DASTARDLY PLOT AGAINST NON-UNION MINERS IN COLORADO; TWELVE BLOWN TO FRAGMENTS BY DYNAMITE AND MANY INJURED

RUSSIAN FLEET SAID TO HAVE MADE A SORTIE FROM THE HARBOR OF PORT ARTHUR AND SUNK FOUR OF JAPS' SHIPS

Only Fifteen Miles Now Separates Japanese From Port Arthur.

Liao Yang, June 6.—It is persistently reported here that the Port Arthur squadron made a sortie shortly before dawn Saturday, with the torpedo boat destroyers leading, and found the Japanese fleet quite unsuspecting the presence of hostile warships, with the result that four of the Japanese ships were sunk during the attack.

Che Foo, June 6.—The Russian consul here has received news that a large Japanese vessel has been sunk by a mine off Talien Wan. The news has not been confirmed.

Russian reports vary regarding the sinking of a Japanese vessel off Talien Wan. It is believed it was a merchantman.

Tokio, June 6.—The destroyer flotilla engaged in watching Port Arthur from the eastward, reports that at 7:40 p. m. on June 4, a Russian gunboat of the Gilliak type, was seen to explode and sink near Chentao-Shan. The vessel, with another gunboat, a destroyer and other steamers was evidently engaged clearing the vicinity of mines. When the explosion occurred the others hurried back into Port Arthur. Vice Admiral Togo expressed the opinion that the explosion was caused by a Japanese torpedo. The name of the gunboat destroyed is unknown, but it has been seen before upon several occasions acting as guardship at the mouth of the harbor.

FIFTEEN MILES

Separates the Japanese From Port Arthur.

Che Foo, June 6.—A Japanese correspondent confirms the reported advance of the Japanese army on Port Arthur, news of which was brought here today by the Chinese. The correspondent states, however, that there are fifteen miles between the Japanese and Port Arthur instead of seven as reported by the Chinese. The Japanese army is advancin along both coasts. It is reported that the peninsula division on the east coast fought a battle within 15 miles of Port Arthur June 3. The result of the battle has not yet been learned.

A junk which lay off Port Arthur, June 4, because of lack of wind, heard desultory firing on the morning of the fourth and saw five Japanese torpedo destroyers as they disappeared below the horizon. Afterwards a tremendous explosion was heard and it was thought by those on the junk that possibly one of the destroyers had struck a mine. On the night of June 3, immense columns of smoke and flame were seen from the junk in the direction of Dalny.

CARRIER PIGEONS

Bring Russians Good News From Port Arthur.

Newchwang, June 6.—Two carrier pigeons arrived here Saturday at noon from General Stoessel at Port Arthur. The Russians will not divulge the messages carried by the birds, but declare they contain good information and are very cheerful since the pigeons arrived.

An Associated Press message from the north reports that the magistrates of Hai Cheng and Liao Yang were recently arrested by the Russians and charged with furnishing supplies and information to the enemy. They were taken to Mukden, but released after an investigation.

Influential natives declare that the arrests were not made because the Russians believed they could prove charges, but the magistrates were noncommittal and refused to aid either side.

The Russians are printing a newspaper in Chinese at Mukden for the purpose of influencing the natives. The latest copy received at Newchwang says that Japan attempted to float a second loan in America for $3,750,000, but was completely rejected. Other contents of the paper explain that the Russian loss in the Yalu battle was due to the preponderance of Japanese cavalry and also states the Russians will soon dictate terms in Tokio and the leading Japanese statesmen will be reduced to rickshaw coolies.

PHILIPPINES TO JAPAN.

Russian Paper Speaks of United States' Intentions.

St. Petersburg, June 6.—The Novee Vreyma today discusses quite seriously the report that the United States intends to cede the Philippine islands to Japan, and argues that the far-seeing Yankee, anticipating the inevitable future conflict with Japan, prefers to sell the islands, instead of defending them, having thereby learned Russia's lesson of the present war, namely, the difficulty of holding territory so far from the base. The paper adds:

"Europe certainly was not pleased at the exchange of Spanish for American domination in the Philippines, but the latter is a thousand times more agreeable than to see Japan installed there, where she would be a constant menace to Europe's Asiatic interests. England will have to look well to her position in India, France to Indo-China, and even Holland to Java. The only consolation is that the cession may keep Japan quiet for a number of years."

The military attache of a first-class power has telegraphed here that Gen. Kuropatkin's headquarters staff has moved forty miles south of Liao Yang, to a point between Hai-Cheng and Dashitszaio.

JAPANESE DEFIANCE.

Commander Keriso Failed to Carry Out Threat.

Port Arthur, June 6—Among the documents found on the steamer Yeddo, one of the vessels sunk at the mouth of the harbor, the following defiance was discovered fastened on the rail of the bridge:

"Remember, my dear Russian sailors, my name is Lieut. Commander Keriso. This is my second visit; my first was on the Kossuke. I will come again."

This threat was not carried out, however, as Keriso was found among the dead.

TOGO PROMOTED.

He and Yamamoto Have the Highest Rank In Navy.

Tokio, June 6.—Vice Admiral Togo and Admiral Yamamoto, minister of the navy, have been promoted to the rank of Kaigun Taisho, the highest rank in the navy. Lieut. Gens. Okasawa, Hasegawe, Nogi, Nishi and Kodama, have been made generals. Okasawa is the emperor's chief aide-de-camp. Hasegawe commands the imperial guards division. Nogi is not assigned, but probably will be given an important command; Nishi commands the second division, and Kodama is vice chief of the general staff, and with Gen. Fukushima is largely entitled to the credit for the organization and transportation of the army and the conduct of the war. The promotions are all in recognition of services.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Tokio, June 6.—It is suspected here that the Russians at Port Arthur are communicating with points on the Chinese coast by means of wireless telegraphy. It was reported that a wireless station had been erected secretly at the village of Peh Wang, on Takin island, one of the Miao Tao group, situated in Pe Chi Li strait, and the Japanese cruiser Chitose visited the island Saturday to investigate. She did not, however, find anything. It is reported that another such station has been erected near Shan Kai Kwan and the Japanese are investigating this matter.

Saturday the Chitose steamed in close to Liaote Shan promontory and discovered four masts and a watch house near the coast. One of these masts evidently was fitted for wireless telegraphy operations. The Chitose reports having heard a series of explosions at Port Arthur and believes them to have resulted from blastings preparatory to the emplacement of new batteries.

The Japanese torpedo boat destroyer Ikazuchi yesterday discovered and exploded a large mine off San Shan island, at the entrance to Talienwan bay. The Japanese naval authorities engaged in clearing out the mines in the vicinity of Talien Wan bay are employing Japanese shell divers from Kushiu province for the purpose. These divers volunteered for this work, and are wonderfully expert. It is said that with their diving paraphernalia they can stay under water for half a day at a time. Hundreds of Japanese fishermen are volunteering to assist in clearing away Russian mines and it is probable that some of them will be used for this work. These volunteer offers are taken to illustrate the unity of the Japanese people in the war.

THIRTY JAPANESE KILLED.

Seoul, Korea, June 6.—The Japanese consul at Gensan wires that during a skirmish which took place on the third instant, thirty Japanese soldiers and one lieutenant were killed and three men were severely wounded. The Russians in retreating burned a number of Korean villages. The natives seizing old flint-locks and weapons of all sorts attacked the Cossacks, killing two and wounding several. There are about two thousand Japanese troops now at Gensan. The merchants there have not left.

LIBERTY OF CITIZEN

Is the Only Desire of the United States In Morocco.

Foreign Countries Are Excited Over Navy at Tangier.

London, June 6.—The fears expressed at Madrid that the action of the United States in sending a fleet to Tangier was due to the American desire for a port on the west coast of Morocco, and the rumors at the Spanish capital of an exchange of notes between the European powers with the view to obtaining assurance that the American action will be confined to liberating Messrs. Perdicaris and Varley are not shared and are not confirmed at the Spanish embassy here. Nor has Ambassador Choate heard anything of the exchange of notes mentioned by La Correspondencia Des Espanna. The Spanish government appears to be acting in perfect harmony with Great Britain and the United States, and no apprehension is expressed in Spanish official circles that the United States has any designs except to ensure the safety of Mr. Perdicaris, an American citizen. The dispatch of the Spanish battleship Pelayo and other Spanish vessels to Tangier, it is pointed out at the Spanish embassy, was rendered essential by the large number of Spanish subjects, resident both in Morocco and in the Spanish territory on the northwest coast of Africa. Some fears are expressed that a general uprising in Morocco might ensue in the event of hasty action by an outside power, but it is believed that if France is not hampered she will be able to secure the release of the captives. The rumor of the suggested sale of the Philippine Islands to Japan receives no credence here.

Washington, June 6.—Rear Admiral Chadwick in a telegram to the navy department today, said that the British minister at Morocco had requested the English government to send a battleship to Tangier and gave the information that the sultan of Morocco was expected to arrive at Tangier. The admiral advised the department further that the general opinion in Tangier was that the naval forces in the harbor should not yet be reduced.

MAY RESTORE TROPHY.

The Palma Trophy May Be Sent Back.

New York, June 6.—That American riflemen may not rest under even a technical imputation of unsportsmanlike conduct, the executive committee of the American Rifle association may offer to restore the Palma trophy to the British association, agreeing that the match at Bisley, England, last July shall be erased.

Gen. Bird W. Spencer, president of the American association, is said to be of the opinion that a restoration of the trophy would be the best way out of the discussion now going on and he has called a meeting of the executive committee, of which he is ex-officio chairman. It is likely the committee will meet within ten days and settle the matter.

THE MUSIC CURE IS BOSTON'S LATEST FAD.

Boston, June 6.—The "music cure" has been taken up by Boston society, and its devotees are said to be numbered by hundreds. Its advocates assert that music has an extraordinary power to cure many ills, especially those of a nervous origin. In one instance an aggravated attack of neuralgia of three weeks' standing is reported to have been cured in half an hour by the playing of music in a minor key on a piano. No particular instrument is favored, but a violin is most frequently employed.

LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS.

Boston, June 6.—The fifth annual convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union was opened here today with a large attendance. The convention represents all the organized woman's garment workers in the United States and Canada. President Benjamin Schlesinger, in his annual report, advocated that all members give more attention to political affairs than they have in the past.

FIRE IN NEW YORK.

New York, June 6.—Fire early today destroyed the 7-story drug warehouse of McKesson & Robbins on Ann street. The loss will reach $100,000. The main building of the firm was saved. Three firemen were bruised and cut by glass.

JAPS REPULSE RUSSIANS.

London, June 6.—The Daily Telegraph's Tien Tsin correspondent writes: Four thousand Russians belonging to Gen. Talkenberg's brigade on May 31, attacked 1500 Japanese occupying a position five miles south of Waganglien. The Russians were repulsed, losing 200 killed and 400 wounded. The Japanese lost more than 100 killed.

WOULD DRAW CHINA IN.

Tien Tsin, June 6.—M. Uchida, the Japanese minister to China, came to Tein Tsin yesterday from Pekin to confer with the viceroy and returned to the capital today. Japan, it appears to be confirmed, is trying to induce China to occupy the territory conquered from Russia, thus inveighing China into a breach of neutrality and giving Russia the opportunity of attacking China, who claims she will maintain her neutrality until the termination of the war.

AMENDED BILL

Brought In Suit Against Northern Securities Company.

Trenton, N. J., June 6.—Counsel for Edward H. Harriman and Winslow S. Pierce today filed in the United States circuit court a second amended bill in the suit brought by them to restrain the carrying out of the proposed pro rata plan of distribution of the assets of the Northern Securities company. The amendments are intended to meet the points raised at the recent argument of the case before Judge Bradford.

Counsel for the Northern Securities company at that time insisted that Harriman and Pierce through J. P. Morgan & Co., had sold their Northern Pacific stock outright and that they had no equitable right to have the stock returned to them.

Counsel for Harriman and Pierce had argued that owing to the supreme court's decision against the Northern Securities company, the stock of the Northern Pacific company had never legally passed to that company. It is averred that it was well known to all concerned that the Northedn Securities company was formed solely for the purpose of acquiring and holding the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads and operating these roads jointly, and that this understanding constituted in law the Northern Securities company as custodian of the stocks of the two railroads of the original owner rather than an absolute owner itself of the stock.

LIBERTY BELL

Viewed By Thousands of People at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Schools in St. Paul were dismissed for a half holiday today in honor of the Liberty Bell, which arrived on a special car last night on the way to the St. Louis exposition, and until noon today thousands thronged the Union station at the Broadway entrance to view the relic of revolutionary days. A salute of twenty-one guns was fired by a battery from the National Guard, which was accompanied by the shrieks of all factory and locomotive whistles and the ringing of bells in St. Paul. The bell then went to Minneapolis.

MUSCATINE MAN DYING.

Muscatine, Iowa, June 6.—William Hoffman, recently defeated as Republican nominee for congress in the Second Iowa district, is dying as the result of injuries received in a runaway. He was widely known in Iowa as a lawyer.

ALL QUIET AT FAYAL

Striking Strippers Are Expected to Return to Work Soon.

Two Meetings Held and Another Has Been Called.

Eveleth, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—All is quiet today at the scene of the Drake & Stratton company's stripping operations at the Fayal mine. The striking strippers have not yet decided to go back to work, but are divided among themselves as to whether to accept the reduction in wages and continue employment.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting was held here at which they considered the question of whether to go back to work or not, but it was without result. This morning they again convened, but again the meeting brought no agreement.

This afternoon another session is to be held at which an attempt will be made to reach an agreement. At this morning's meeting from 150 to 200 were present. It is believed they will soon decide to return to work.

At the Fayal mine, where the stripping work is being done, there is nothing doing. The work is shut down and no attempt is being made to do anything.

STRAWBERRIES ROTTING.

The Scarcity of Crates Prevents Their Shipment.

Louisville, Ky., June 6.—On account of the scarcity of crates, strawberry shipping from Louisville and New Albany, which has been something enormous probably will collapse after today. The available supply of crates is exhausted and the strawberry growers in the New Albany district alone will lose thousands of dollars because they cannot procure crates.

The season is at its height and the crop is the most abundant ever known. The shipments last night amounted to thirty-one carloads aggregating 120,000 gallons, the largest ever sent from the New Albany district in one day. There will be no more large shipments and hundreds of thousands of gallons of fine strawberries will rot in the field.

MORE RURAL CARRIERS.

Washington, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oscar S. Mattson has been appointed a regular and William J. Mattson a substitute rural carrier at Dassel, Minn.

"WOODSIDE" DESTROYED.

Troy, N. Y., June 6.—Fire has partially destroyed "Woodside," the mansion of James A. Budden, a millionaire iron manufacturer. Many valuable paintings were destroyed and the building, which was the finest in this section, was flooded by the firemen. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

NEARLY ALL KANSAS RIVERS CONTINUE TO FALL SLOWLY

The Walnut and Verdigris Are Still Coming Up But It Is Not Believed They Will Go Much Higher—Damage Is Heavy.

Kansas City, June 6.—All Kansas rivers, except the Walnut and the Verdigris, in the southern part of the state, continued to fall today. The streams named are rising slowly and are driving families from the lowlands around Arkansas City and Coffeyville, but it is not believed that they can go much higher. But little rain is reported for this part of the Southwest today. As the waters subside the great amount of damage wrought becomes apparent. The continous sweep of water over the farms in the past month has practically ruined many of them, much of the soil having been washed away. The water has been over the wheat, corn and alfalfa fields so long that the farmers believe that crops are completely ruined. The loss to stock will be heavier than at first expected, and as most of the farmers on the bottoms lost their cribs of corn, the stock that escaped drowning is suffering for food. Train service is still demoralized in the southern part of the state, although it is gradually improving.

WOMAN IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Chicago, June 6.—When Mrs. Rebecca Bailey called at the Wesley hospital to see her fiancee, Louis Miller, who had been taken to the institution probably fatally wounded by a bullet, she was arrested on the charge of shooting him. At the time of her arrival the man was making an ante-mortem statement accusing her and the police were searching for her. With Mrs. Bailey was Miss Sophia Grabner, who was held as a witness of the shooting. Mrs. Bailey and Miller were to have been married. Miller died later.

The shooting took place in Mrs. Bailey's apartments and it was four hours later before the police were informed. The man was found by Mrs. C. J. Snyder, who declares he said that he had shot himself. Mrs. Bailey had fled from the house.

The police found the apartments deserted. Mrs. Bailey and Miss Grabner could not be found. It was learned that the women had rented the apartments a few days before and that she gave the name of "Mrs. Miller."

The theory of the police is that Mrs. Bailey shot Miller while in a jealous rage, because of his failure to name a definite day for the wedding ceremony.

Hundreds of Pounds of Explosive Put Under Railroad Station.

Train Was Stopped Just In Time to Prevent Injury to Its Crew.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 6.—Twelve miners were instantly killed and eight or ten others badly injured by an explosion that occurred after midnight at the Independence station of the Florence & Cripple Creek railroad. The cause of the explosion that occurred has not been ascertained, but apparently it was the result of a plot against the non-union miners on the night shift at the Shurtloff, Findlay and Lost Dollar mines, who had just finished work and were about to return to their homes. These men had no warning whatever of their impending fate.

The dead:
GUS AUGUSTINE, aged 33.
ARTHUR MUHLESON, 35.
HENRY J. HAAG.
ALEX McLAIN, shift boss.
CHARLES BATSER.
HERBERT McCOY, McCoy was taken from the ruins alive, but died in the Victor hospital.
L. S. HINCKLIN, eager.
—— BERKELEY.

The explosion occurred beneath the platform on which they were standing, blowing many of them high into the air, destroying the depot and rending a great hole in the earth. It is believed a large quantity of dynamite had been placed under the platform and that it was set off by means of electricity, or by the concussion caused by the approaching train.

The train had not arrived at the Independence depot, but was within a short distanec of it when the explosion occurred. About forty-five or fifty miners from the Shurtloff, Findlay and Lost Dollar mines had gathered at the depot platform and they were blown into the air in every direction. One man's body, cut in two, was found 100 yards from the scene of the explosion. Seven bodies were laid out together and the remnants of others were secured as fast as possible. On account of the terrible nature of their wounds, identification was difficult.

"There were about fifty or sixty of us," he said, "waiting for our train, which was coming up the track a few hundred feet distant. A number of miners who had not yet reached the depot, were running toward it with their dinner buckets in hand. The train aproached the depot at a moderate rate and the crowd on the platform began to move around to secure points of vantage in getting aboard as soon as the train stoped. At this moment an explosion occurred right under our feet. The impact shook the buildings in the town and everything became absolutely dark. A few moments later the groans of the injured were heard and people came running from residences and stores to the scene. I was uninjured. The depot, platform and the surrounding objects were rent into splinters.

"The work of rescue was begun at once. Six badly wounded miners were picked up at different points near the scene and were quickly carried to the train and sent to Victor. The dead were found after much difficulty. There was almost total darkness in the vicinity."

The train was in charge of Engineer W. W. Rush and Fireman James Gardner, who escaped unhurt.

The train consisted of two large passenger coaches and was without passengers, as this was the first trip of the morning and Independence was the first station where passengers were expected.

It is supposed that at least 200 pounds of dynamite must have been used to produce such an explosion. The depot was entirely destroyed. The ground on which it stood shows a great gash, as if an earthquake had torn up the country and left this yawning cavity to remind the people of a great upheaval. The impact of the explosion was felt in every direction. The miners who stood on the platform were literaly shot far into the air.

The theory of accident is scouted by every one.

Later detectives found the machine which set off the dynamite under the platform. It consists of a revolver and 300 feet of steel wire. The revolver was placed underneath the platform close to the powder. The other end of the wire was fastened to a chair leg which was used as a lever from the cribbings of the Delmonico property. The whole district is aroused over the catastrophe. A number of fist fights have already occurred.

Independence is about six miles from this city. A special train carrying physicians was dispatched to the scene of the explosion and the injured were taken to the Victor hospital. Sheriff Robertson with deputies and police officers of both Cripple Creek and Victor, went to Independence on the special train and immediately began careful search for clues to the perpetrators of the outrage. Although the strike of union miners in the Cripple Creek district which began August 16, 1903, and which led to the declaration of martial law in Telluride county by Governor Peabody, is still in effect, good order has been maintained for the past six months and military rule has been suspended and all troops withdrawn. The mine owners, with the exception of the Portland company, claim to have as many men working as they need and they require all miners to renounce allegiance to the western federation, before giving them employment.

Most of the killed and injured were non-union miners employed on the Findley mine, which is controlled by A. E. Carlton, president of the First National bank, a man prominent in the councils of Cripple Creek Mine Owners' association. The conspirators evidently did not wish to kill or injure any of the crew of the train which the ill-fated miners intended to take for their homes in Victor and Cripple Creek.

When within seventy-five feet of the depot at Independence, the engine whistle sounded as a signal for the men at the depot to get ready to board and to warn any laggards to make haste if they wished to catch the train. The whistle was the death signal, for no sooner had the shrill blast sounded than a muffled roar was heard and the mountain trembled as if rocked by an earthquake.

The train, which was running very slowly, was brought to a sudden stop by the engineer and members of the train crew ran hastily forward to investigate. They were horror stricken at the sight that greeted their eyes, a spectacle that was made all the more gresome by the sickly flickering lights from lanters and burning torches carried by the railroad men. It took but a few seconds for the trainmen to appreciate the terrible situation and messengers were hurried away for assistance. The secene about the depot was sickening. Portions of human bodies were scattered over the right-of-way and in the twenty-foot hole made by the explosion, were found severed heads, arms, legs and hands. Every object within a radius of fifty feet from the hole is bespattered with blood.

When news of the disaster reached Victor, Mayor Franklin orederd out Company L, Colorado National Guards, and the soldiers are now on guard at the scene.

THE NATIVES OF THIBET HAVE DELIBERATELY CHOSEN WAR

Letter Which Colonel Younghusband Sent to Thibetans, Demanding That Amban Come to Gyang-Tse, Has Been Returned Unopened.

New York, June 6.—A dispatch from the correspondent of the London Times at Gyang-Tse, Thibet, says a letter from Col. Younghusband of the British mission, to the Thibetans, demanding that the Amban come to Gyang-Tse with qualified Thibetan representatives to settle the outstanding differences before June 25 has been returned unopened and without comment.

The Thibetans have, therefore, the correspondent says, deliberately chosen war.

The Thibetans are now concentrating in the monastery and the town of Gyang-Tse. Another concentration is rumored between Ralung and Khan-Ma.

The present intention of the Thibetans is to prevent Brig. Gen. MacDonald from arriving at Gyang-Tse, and it is possible that recent experiences have taught the enemy how to make his advance a matter of greater difficulty than it was the first time.

TROOPS NOT NEEDED.

They Can Safely Be Withdrawn From Ironton.

Cincinnati, June 6.—The Times Star's Ironton, Ohio, special says that Sheriff Payne today sent a telegram to Adjt. Gen. Critchfield, at Columbus, saying that he believed that the troops of the Ohio National Guard, ordered last week to Hanging Rock to suppress disorder growing out of a strike at the furnace company mills, could now be safely withdrawn, and an order of withdrawal is expected. As both parties to the controversy have been disarmed the sheriff believes that his force will be able to preserve order.

NOT ONE UNION EMPLOYE

Appeared at Paper Mills In Fox Valley.

Appleton, Wis., June 6.—Not one union paper mill employe in Fox Valley came to work today. The proposed lockout was not necessary. On a secret ballot all but two men voted to stay out and on an open ballot all voted to quit work. The manufacturers are reported to be under $5000 bonds each to keep together in an agreement against the union for a long hour schedule.

NEARLY ALL SHIPPED.

Anchor Line's Accumulation Has Been Sent On.

It is said that pretty nearly all the freight which had been lying at this point waiting for shipment, via the Anchor and other package freight lines which have not started operations for the season, has been sent down East by rail. The entire tonnage of this freight is said to be in the neighborhood of 5000 tons, which is not more than a cargo for one trip of a good-sized vessel. This tonnage does not include shingles, however. The amount of flour released thus far does not seem to be very extensive, although there is known to have been a shipment some days ago of eighteen cars, or about 5400 barrels, over one road.

For Insulting Women.

On the charge of making insulting remarks concerning women, Frank Musolf was arrested last evening by Officer Cameron and locked up at police headquarters. The officer says that Musolf was standing on West First street, near Second avenue, when two women passed. He is claimed to have made an insulting remark, which was heard by the officer, who attempted to place him under arrest. The man fled and dodged into a nearby saloon, where he was overtaken by the officer.

He forfeited his bail of $5 in municipal court this morning.

DELEGATES CHOSEN

Very Few Contests Develop In the Democratic Primaries.

In the Democratic primaries Saturday night for the election of delegates to the county convention to be held here next Saturday, the voting was comparatively light, save in the cases where there was a contest. The delegates printed in The Herald Saturday were nearly all elected.

The only notable exception to the list was in the Third ward, where, in the Second and Fourth precincts there was active and effective opposition to the delegates supported by the Hearst adherents, and the three delegates elected in each of the two precincts named are expected to be for Parker for president or for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention at St. Louis July 6.

The returns had not come in today to T. T. Hudson on the First precinct of the Sixth ward, nor on the Eighth precinct, of the Eighth ward, but in the last named district, Charles Gasper, a Hearst man, is expected to have been elected.

In the majority of the precincts there were only about a dozen votes cast, although in the contested precincts of the Third ward there were thirty or forty voters on hand to demonstrate their choice.

Weather Interferes.

No scores were reported today in the golf contest at the North Land club links, and those who let last week pass without playing their matches will have to play twice as many this week. The weather has been the great drawback, and while some of the men are expected to play off their matches early this week, it is not expected that the women will. They will probably wait until the latter half of the week, when they can get dryer ground to play on.

Will Give Excursion.

The excursion on the lake for the benefit of the enterainment fund of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association will be given this evening. A fine program will be given on the boat and the best musicians of the city will take part.

BEARING ON HOMESTEADS

Two Rulings of Interest to Those Taking Lands.

A circular received at the local United States land office today from Washington calls the attention of the register and receiver to the provisions of an act of congress entitled, "An act providing for second and additional homestead entries, and for other purposes," approved April 28, 1904.

The first section of the act allows any person who has theretofore made a homestead entry and was unable to perfect it on account of some unavoidable complication of his personal or business affairs, or on account of an honest mistake as to the character of the land, to make a second entry, provided that it is shown to the satisfaction of the commissioner of the general land office that he made a bona fide effort to comply with the homestead law, and that he did not relinquish his entry or abandon his claim for a consideration. A person applying to make entry under this section must furnish necessary affidavits and witnesses to prove his claims.

The second section is substantially a re-enactment of section 5 of the act of March 2, 1889, only modified so as to apply to entries for less than 160 acres each made after the date of the act, as well as those made before, and provides for an additional entry of land which shall be contiguous to the land embraced in the original entry, for which the final proof of residence and cultivation made on the original entry shall be sufficient, but of which no party shall have the benefit who does not, at the date of his application, own and occupy the land covered by his original entry. Applicants for additional entries under this section will be required to produce evidence that they own and occupy the land embraced in their original entries.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

Celebrating the Jubilee Anniversary of Its Founding.

Madison, Wis., June 6.—Madison is in gala attire, for the jubilee celebration of the founding of the state university is in progress. The ivy exercises were carried out today. It started to rain early, but good weather prevailed before the exercises opened. The class day exercises were held in th gymnasium.

Word is received today that Levi M. Booth, who is the last of the survivors of the class of '54, the first class to graduate from the university, is dying in Colorado. He is not expected to survive the day. It was hoped that he would attend the jubilee.

The annual meeting of the alumni and a reception to the official guests were the afternoon features. At the annual alumni dinner tonight, 600 guests are expected. Judge Winslow will be toastmaster.

NEGAUNEE'S MAYOR FOUND

Body Taken From Escanaba River Near Sands.

Milwaukee, June 6.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Negaunee, Mich., says: The body of Dr. Hudson, mayor of Negaunee, was found in the Escanaba river today near Sands. A special train has left for Sands to bring the body home. Dr. Hudson and a friend went hunting about two weeks ago and became separated. The friend returned home and searching parties had been scouring the woods ever since in the hope of finding the doctor alive.

Dr. Hudson was reputed to be very wealthy.

TWO MORE BODIES

From the Corning Distillery Fire Identified.

Peoria, June 6.—Two more bodies, those of Louis Sacks and Milton Crowl, were identified today, leaving two of the victims of the disaster at the Corning distillery Saturday at the morgue so badly burned that recognition is impossible. The work of searching the ruins for the five bodies still supposed to be in there, progresses without result.

The health authorities today commenced the work of burying the 300 cattle, but it is necessarily slow and the decaying carcases are proving a menace to the south end of the city. Coroner Harper commenced today the official investigation.

NIAGARA'S WRECK.

Official Report Forwarded to Marquette.

The wreck report of the tug Niagara, which was wrecked off the south point of Knife Island Saturday evening, was today mailed the Marquette customs office by local customs officials. The boat is registered in the Marquette district, making it necessary to forward the report to the Michigan city. The estimated value of the tug is given as $25,000. She is a total loss, except for the engine, according to the report. The force of the wind is given as thirty miles an hour, from the northeast. It is stated that she was running under cheek at the time of the accident, and that she was in the breakers before their presence was known. The engine was backing when she struck.

Information as to Lands.

Since the act of congress opening for homestead settlement over half a million acres of Indian reservation in Itasca, Cass, Beltrami and Cook counties, this state, will make it necessary for those who wish to make entry to begin their registration June 15, the Great Northern has gotten out a leaflet in advance of an extensive folder on the subject, soon to be issued.

The lands are in the Red Lake, Chippewa of the Mississippi, Deer Creek, Bois Fort, White Oak Point, Pigeon River and Winnibigoshish reservations. Those making entry for the Bois Fort and Pigeon River lands will enter at the Duluth office, those for Red Lake at Crookston and for the rest at Cass Lake.

FIRING IS HEARD

Russians Have Evacuated Sin Min Tung, Near Mukden.

Tien Tsin, June 6.—Heavy firing was heard at Newchwang this morning, coming from the direction of Liao Yang.

The Russians have evacuated Sin Min Tung, about 30 miles west of Mukden, and its vicinity. It is said that the troops which were at Sin Min Tung are joining troops on the road to Mukden.

Berlin, June 6.—Colonel Gaeske, war correspondent of the Tageblatt, has forwarded to his paper from Mukden, under date of June 4, a dispatch which is interesting as showing the views prevailing at the Russian military headquarters. He says:

"The Japanese are reported to have retreated from Kin Chou in a northerly direction. A change in situation has taken place. It appears that the forward movement of the Russian army has begun at various points of the theater of war. The situation is daily improving. The Japanese losses around Kin Chou were enormously heavy, astensibly 15,000 men."

St. Petersburg, June 6.—Gen. Kuropatkin has been subject to considerable pressure to help relieve the tension at Port Arthur. As cabled to the Associated Press Saturday, he sent several thousand men down the railroad to see what could be done to impede Japanese operations. This force, which there is best reason to believe falls far short of three divisions, not exceeding ten thousand men at the most, is reported to be advancing on the peninsula.

Kuropatkin is on board a special headquarters train, which is constantly at his disposition. His trip may be only for the purpose of personally examining the situation.

The lack of news from the seat of war during the last forty-eight hours, is regarded by the public as being full of significance. The city is already rumor-ridden by stories of impending battles.

The admiralty has no information regarding the Tokio report that a Russian gunboat of the Gilliak type has been torpedoed and destroyed off Port Arthur.

The Shanghai report that the Port Arthur squadron has already been beached and its guns mounted ashore evokes intense amusement here.

ALDERMAN PLEADS GUILTY.

Schwartz of Green Bay Says He Was Bribed.

Green Bay, Wis., June 6.—Alderman George Schwartz today pleaded guilty to accepting three bribes, aggregating $150 from contractors and those furnishing materials used on city contracts. There are three other indictments against Schwartz. A change of venue to Fond du Lac county was taken in cases against Alderman A. L. Gray, City Attorney A. B. Bontaine and City Assessor Parmenter.

ELECTION IN OREGON.

Legislative, Judicial and County Ticket Is Up.

Portland, Ore., June 6.—A legislative, judicial and county ticket is being voted upon, and "local option" and a direct primary law are being passed upon by the people of Oregon today. Two representatives to congress also will be elected today.

Fair weather is generally reported throughout the state, but political leaders do not expect a large vote, it being argued that seasonable work in the agricultural districts will prevent a great number of persons visiting the polls. Owing to the great length of the ticket it will be very late tonight before an accurate estimate of the result will be obtainable and it may be several days before the actual figures can be announced.

TOBACCO BURNS.

Richmond, Va., June 6.—Fire in the tobacco district of Danville yesterday morning, destroyed three warehouses and 4,000,000 pounds of leaf tobacco. The American Tobacco company was the lessee of the building. The estimated loss is $600,000, covered by insurance.

TO SUCCEED CALLAWAY.

New York, June 6.—Albert J. Pitkin, vice president and director of the American Locomotive company, was elected president of the company today to succeed the late Samuel R. Callaway, who died last week.

A REMARKABLE OPERATION.

New Orleans correspondence to Philadelphia Press: The left arm of Thomas Shay, Jr., which had been shattered with bird shot, was saved by forcing the impoverished limb into his stomach for nourishment.

The operation ranks among the most skillful surgical feats performed at the New Orleans Charity hospital. By nourishing the arm in the abdominal region the torn ligaments became reunited, a complete new skin grew, and after the parts had grown sufficiently the arm was removed from the stomach almost intact.

The operation obviated the necessity of amputation; and soon Shay will be able to use the arm.

A JAP'S LACONIC REPLY.

The occasional Japanese in evidence here in New York, now that the Russo-Japanese war is on, affords now and then an interesting opportunity for observation says the New York Evening Post. On a Brooklyn elevated train this week an Irish laborer in overalls was, by the luck of the 6 o'clock rush, thrust into a seat next to a complacent little subject of the mikado. The Japanese was busy reading the war news in the paper with conspicuous head lines. This the Irishman viewed with approval. Finally he leaned over to his neighbor and said in tones which attracted the attention of the other passengers: "'Tis a fine scrap that it is. An' no matter who wins it's been odds against the yellow min from the first. Shake hands, and here's luck to the bantam weights."

The Japanese probably does not yet know why his hand was pumped vigorously by a hairy hodcarrier, who reeked of putty and who beamed at him until he left the train.

At the theater two evenings ago a Russian and a Japanese found themselves in contiguous orchestra chairs. "I'll say something to him," remarked the Russian to a friend after the first act. Then he addressed the Japanese.

"I see you are from Japan," he said. "I am a Russian."

The little man stared back gravely.

"Three battle ships in one day," he replied quietly.

It did not seem to be gloating; it was more as if the Japanese were merely thinking aloud. But the Russian was said when the curtain went up again.

IN HIS AUGUST PRESENCE.

There has always been more or less pretension, on the one hand, and toadying on the other, in the national capital, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, and these unmanly, unwomanly and unmannerly features of life there have been steadily increasing; perhaps they may have reached their high-water mark with the era of the strenuous in the master and the supercilious in the understrapper. It is pitiful to mark the humility of the official subaltern, the fawning of the social parasite, as it is exasperating to observe the airs the would-be great—but a while ago the vulgarest of self-seekers—at once proceed to give themselves, when they have "arrived," or think that they have "arrived." One would fancy we are a nation of canting hypocrites, or else that we have mistaken our character, and are not free men at all, as court-like and courtier-like is the atmosphere pemeating the seats of the mighty.

The scheme of uniting lordly assurance with the affectation of Democratic affability, and so of imposing upon the ignorance and thoughtfulness of the multitude whilst familiarizing the public with the assumptions of power, is as old as government. The kaiser has the trick down to a turn; but the president is no belated follower. "Is there," asks Mrs. Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres, the observant and wide-awake correspondent who keeps the readers of the Courier-Journal advised of what is socially going on in Washington, "is there," says she, "a divinity which constitutionally doth hedge a president, rough hew him how we may, or is there not?" And then Mrs. Ayres proceeds to tell some tales out of school which make the rustic hair to stand on end like quills of fretful porcupine. Among these we find and reproduce the following, which ought to set people a-thinking.

In the embrasure of a window, in the geen room, that overlooks the beautiful south lawn, the president stood, laughing and chatting cheerily with a group of women guests. He is, Mrs. Ayres tells us, a breezy, wholesouled host, impartially cordial and interested, as, she thinks, a typical American gentleman ought to be. Sauntering casually through the apartment came a sweet-faced elderly woman in smart attire. She dropped languidly into an easy chair, unheeding the brilliant scenes, or the knots of gay people all around her. Instantly, toward the lady, there came stalking across the room, a groomed and corseted and sabered little military attache of pompous mien, one of the appointed social aides of the palace. "Madame," says the portentously bending toward his astonished victim—she had spanked such as he across her motherly and grandmotherly lap many a time in her career—"don't you know it is not permissible to sit in the presence of the president, or Mrs. Roosevelt?"

"I wonder," she said, smiling sweetly into the youngster's face, "who made the rule." But she moved off thoughtfully from the imperial presence, even though she owned one eighty-millionth of the seat from which she was banished, and out through the royal portals one eighty-millionth hers, into God's free democratic sunshine. Now, exclaims Mrs. Ayres, who relates the story, is this a free country or is it not?

At another White House function, earlier in the season, a more or less informal afternoon affair, our imprudent correspondent goes on to tell us, the wife of one of the very oldest and most distinguished Southern statesmen, after having paid her respects to the always gracious, gentle hostess, and her assistants, seated herself on a sofa in the receiving room, precluded rheumatism from taking any unnecessary steps. But the blinks and stares and unveiled criticisms of a brace of young girls of the royal coterie brought her rudely to the consciousness that unwittingly she had committed an unpardonable breach of court etiquette. One must stand on one's feet in the presence of the presidential consort. The senator's wife, Mrs. Ayres assures us, has declined all subsequent invitations to the national mansion. So has the senator.

A dinner invitation to the White House, however impromptu, or informal, has, by some subtle process, come to assume the momentousness of a royal summons. No matter how dilatory the executive mandate, or how imperative previous obligations, if one be a true and loyal subect one gladly drops everything like a hot potato and rushes to do the royal bidding. Not long ago a young girl prominent in court circles received a sudden, familiar invitation from the president's impulsive daughter to dine with her that evening tete-a-tete at the White House —just as the young girl herself was about to receive an important dinner company at her own house. A perplexing situation truly. But just as the young hostess was about to excuse herself to her guests and hasten to the White House, the presidential daughter being organically a level-headed young woman, came hurriedly to her friend's in an automobile, absolving her from the White House obligation and contrite that she had thoughtlessly interfered, with other arrangements.

"There are those among the ultra sticklers for court propriety who hold that the company everywhere should rise to their feet whenever the presidential wife or daughter enters. But this regulation is not so far enforced at the point of the bayonet. We are delightfully amusing, we American people—better than the comic supplement to a Sunday newspaper."

This is at the very least "flat bigamy," and we greatly fear that, the first thing Mrs. Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres knows, she will be arrested and imprisoned for "lese majeste."

HOW ONE MAN REFORMED.

Bishop W. C. Doane, of Albany, who is to be chairman of the inter-church conference on marriage and divorce, used to know in Hartford a cooper called Uncle Josh.

Uncle Josh was a kind of Eben Holden. Everyone knew him. His quaint sayings were passed about in Hartford as, in London, the sayings of Whistler used to be passed about.

"Old George Silcox has joined the church," said Uncle Josh to Bishop Doane one morning. "He is a Methody on probation now."

"That is grateful news," said the clergyman, for George Silcox had the reputation of a miser and a rake. "That is grateful news indeed. And do you notice much change in George, Uncle Josh?"

"Oh, considerable," said the other. "In the past when he went out to mend his fences on Sunday, George carried his ax on his shoulder, but he carries it under his overcoat now."

It pays to advertise in The Herald—ask I. Freimuth.

RAILWAY ISSUE

Ottawa, Ont., June 6.—The cry of "repudiation" is raised against Borden. The leader of the opposition is charged with a deliberate intention to smash the government national transcontinental railway bargain if the conservatives are returned to power at Ottawa. Yet Borden's language on this point in the house before the third reading of the bill was explicit. He laid down the principle that the sanctity of contracts demands the legitimate rights of the undertaking shall be respected and went on to say there must be no repudiation.

"They" (the promoters), he said, "shall not be put to any loss, but at the same time the country shall not be required to pay to them any prospective or speculative or unreasonable profits. If they see fit to join with the government in driving this measure through parliament by the aid of an obedient majority they must take that course with their eyes open and with the understanding that the right of the people of Canada to a voice in so great an enterprise is not to be denied and will not be disregarded."

In both the issue on which the next federal celection is to be fought American interests play the most prominent part. The opposition leader, in summarizing the points to be submitted for the verdict of the electorate in the first of these issues—the national transcontinental railway policy of the government—made this clear. The first question, as he presents it, is, shall the Americans control the Canadian national road, for which the country is to be made liable to the extent of some $150,000,000; and the next, shall the Canadian government be allowed to construct a road which will be largely utilized to build up American ocean shipping ports?

"Shall we supply the money and three-quarters of the credit necessary," he asked, "for the building of a great transcontinental line to be transferred to and controlled by what is virtually a United States corporation?"

And again, after setting forth at considerable length the grounds of his contention: "Shall we do all this for the purpose of enabling a great corporation to increase the flow of our traffic to Portland instead of to Canadian ports?"

He challenges the government to appeal to the country for a verdict on the ground that it has no mandate from the people to engage in the enterprise and no legitimate authority to deny that appeal, and the government accepts the challenge.

In the other great campaign issue, the Canadian tariff, the main point is protection against American competition and the preference to British products coming into the markets of Canada to compete with Canadian manufactures.

The coal ring, which has kept up prices so successfully in this province, shows signs of disintegration. The branch established here, and which included all but two or three of the dealers, has been disbanded. The last act of the combine before disbanding was to put up prices from $6.75 to $7.25 per ton.

The imperial authorities of Halifax are responsible for the harbor defenses, and, according to advices received here, have completed the work of mining the ship channels. The mines are said to number about 200, each charged with 500 pounds of gun cotton, controlled from the three observatory stations at Fort Ogilvie, Ives Point, and Fort Clarence. The latter station is, however, to be dispensed with as superfluous, and the work will be concentrated at the other two stations.

Advices received here from Victoria, B. C., report that the delimitation of the Alaska-Canada boundary in compliance with the award of the joint commission will take three or four years. The chief astronomer of the Dominion, W. F. King, who is now at Vancouver, B. C., dispatching the Canadian survey outfits to the north, is sending two of his parties up the Chilkat river and one up the Stikeen to work with three American parties under the direction of O. S. Tittman, of Washington, superintendent of ocean and geodetic surveys. The work will be continued until winter sets in.

From Mount St. Elias northward to the Arctic ocean the line has already been laid along the 141st parallel, according to treaty. This portion of the boundary was not in dispute. From St. Elias east and south around the coast strip to the head of Portland canal, a distance of 550 miles, the boundary will have to be marked by the surveyors.

All that will require to be laid off is that portion of the boundary which crosses rivers, valleys and plateaus—in other words, through which travel is possible and prospecting probable. Mountain peaks will be assumed as boundary points wherever such have been marked on the map accompanying the finding of the tribunal.

J. J. McArthur of the survey department of the Dominion government is resuming his operations of relocating the forty-ninth parallel between British Columbia and the states of Idaho and Washington. This will be the third season spent in the work. The old monuments of the original survey are being replaced by monuments of aluminum bronze.

Advantage is being taken of the rush to Canada to dump all sorts of undesired human raw material on the shores of the Dominion. Last week some hundreds of Italians and Galicians were landed without means to carry them beyond the place of disembarkation, and this week a band of Austrians, alleged to have been engaged somewhere by somebody unknown for a camp in the Soo region, were put off the railway cars here, their tickets being for Ottawa.

The government does not want these indiscriminate and unwelcome settlers, and declines to have anything to do with them, and the city board of charities has to house and feed them, pending a decision what to do with them. The steamship companies are supposed to be liable, but the Dominion officials seem to be lax in the enforcement of the law, compared with those of Uncle Sam.

WORST OF ALL EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles, Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

SWINDLERS AT WORK.

Old Game of Securing Photographs to Enlarge.

For two or three weeks, and perhaps a month past, canvassers have been working from house to house, endeavoring to obtain from the residents photographs or pictures to be enlarged. They have given a variety of inducements, and in some cases it is difficult to see what they are up to, as they claim they want no money or promises of any kind, but will furnish the picture free.

Some of them, on the other hand, have secured money. In several instances they have represented themselves as being agents of J. R. Zweifel, the photographer, and that he is to do the work, and have obtained money on that representation. Mr. Zweifel has been called upon in a number of instances recently by individuals who wanted to know when they would get their pictures, they having been ordered through agents. As he has had no agents of any kind out, all who have given orders for photographs for him to enlarge have been swindled.

The game is not a new one and has been worked here so often and the scheme made public so many times, that those who are caught get little sympathy.

ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY

Three Weeks After His Second Marriage.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 6.—Less than three weeks after his second marriage Burt Miller, alias Burt Conrad, of 49 Quincy street, was lodged in jail on a charge of bigamy. On May 14 Miller, who is a stepson of Patrolman James A. Conrad, was wedded to Miss Pearl De Hondt, daughter of Patrolman Charles A. DeHondt.

During their absence on their wedding trip Patrolman De Hondt heard of a rumor of a former marriage of Miller to a Miss Margaret Alexander. Investigation, the police say, unearthed the fact that Miller was married to Miss Alexander on Feb. 14, 1902. The groom at that time, according to the court records, gave his name as Albert J. Miller. His mother, it is said, then objected to the marriage, and claimed that Miller, who was at that time but 18 years old, was enticed into the marriage.

Three days afterward divorce proceedings were filed but were never heard, the police assert, and the first marriage of Miller, they say, was not annulled. Patrolman De Hondt swore out the warrant and served it on his son-in-law.

RESERVOIR PLANS

Estimates Cost at $20,000 —City May Arrange to Build.

Plans and estimates for the proposed secondary reservoir at West Duluth have been prepared by City Engineer McGilvray at the request of the council, and they will be submitted this evening for consideration.

At the last meeting of the council the city attorney reported that the plan to issue the remaining $40,000 of the $400,000 bond issue, voted last spring, would be illegal, and it was thought that this report would end the matter for the present at least. It is possible, however, that the water and light commissioners have under consideration another plan to raise the necessary funds.

If the reservoir were constructed this summer it would obviate the necessity for the construction of a second main along West First street, and if other additions under consideration for the West End were postponed for another year, the money might be available. Just what action will be taken in the matter will not be known until after the council meeting this evening.

According to the city engineer's estimate the cost of the proposed reservoir would be $20,055. It would be a reservoir of 5,000,000 gallons capacity, occupying the two blocks between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth avenues west and Highland and Huntington streets, in West Duluth. This tract of ground is 300 by 266 feet. The reservoir would be perfectly round and 265 feet in diameter at the top, sloping to 134 feet in diameter at the bottom. Its depth would be 25 feet. The bottom, with the exception of the strip known as the "wash," would be lined with six inches of hydraulic cement concrete, and the "wash" paved with Kettle River sandstone.

A twelve-inch main would connect it with the water system of West Duluth and the West End, and there would also be a drain pipe for the purpose of draining off the water whenever it was necessary to clean the reservoir. The slope of the reservoir would be two to one, or two feet horizontal to one foot vertical. The gatehouse containing the valves would be outside the road, running around the reservoir, instead of in the reservoir, as is the case in many instances.

The proposed site is on a level with the site of the big reservoir, with a capacity of 13,500,000 gallons, at Thirty-fourth avenue east and Fourth street. The force of gravitation would, therefore, keep the West Duluth reservoir filled, and whenever a break in the pipes, or any other emergency would necessitate the shutting off of the West Duluth mains from the central system, there would be 5,000,000 gallons of water available for use in case of fire in the western part of the city for the regular daily consumption.

The board of water and light commissioners was also requested to report to the council the cost of purchasing the two blocks for the proposed reservoir, and the aldermen will, therefore, have before them all the information they need this evening. Most of them have declared themselves favorable to the plan, and if the water board has sufficient money at its disposal to undertake the work, some action may be taken in the matter yet.

SHELDEN NOT CANDIDATE

For the Lieutenant-Governorship of Michigan.

Houghton, Mich., June 6.—Carlos D. Shelden of Houghton has, during the past few weeks, been mentioned, particularly in lower Michigan, as a likely candidate for lieutenant governor, a nomination on the Republican ticket generally awarded to an upper peninsula man. Mr. Shelden, however, is not a candidate for the office, nor for any other of the kind. He is out of politics entirely, and has been since he was succeeded as congressman from the Twelfth district by H. O. Young of Ishpeming, two years ago. He has extensive business interests which demand his personal attention, something which takes up practically all his time. Mr. Shelden favors the renomination of Lieut. Gov. Maitland of Negaunee, general manager of the Republic Iron & Steel Co.'s mines, and as far as can be learned now Mr. Maitland is the choice of the entire peninsula.

WATERWORKS CONVENTION

President Case Responds to Address By St. Louis Mayor.

St. Louis, June 6.—The twenty-fourth annual convention of the American Waterworks association convened today at the Hotel Jefferson. The address of welcome was made by Mayor Rolla Wells, of St. Louis, L. N. Case, the president of the association, responding. The reception followed. Meetings will be held each day this week, the convention ending Friday evening. Saturday will be spent at the World's fair grounds.

The association includes in its membership the engineers and superintendents of the waterworks system of nearly every city and town in the country. It was organized in St. Louis.

CRIME MAY BE AIRED

Claim Miss Eva Love Holds Key to Bedford Mystery.

Sensational Developments Expected In the Next Few Days.

Bedford, Ind., June 6.—The second investigation into the murder of Sarah Schafer, the Bedford high school teacher, has proceeded to a point where the authorities are convinced that Eva Love, the roommate of the dead girl, holds the key to the mystery. In order that time may be had to collect further evidence substantiating the theory and to make certain the apearance in Bedford of witnesses who hitherto have evaded subpoenas, the special grand jury in session for the last week was adjourned to convene again on July 11.

"We, the jury, think it advisable to continue the investigation of the Schafer case," was the significant recommendation that led Judge Wilson to declare an adjourned session of the jury should be had "at all hazards."

There were legal technicalities that led many Bedford friends of Miss Love to declare the adjournment "irregular," but these had no weight with the jurist. The jury's report in favor of further investigation is believed generally to mean that the real murderer of Sarah Schafer at last has been discovered. Sensational developments are expected in the next few days pointing to a man of good social standing in Bedford, a friend of the Love girl and her confidant, as the person.

The murder of the school teacher is said now to have been prompted by a determination on the part of her assailant to gain possession of a letter "damaging" to Miss Love that his victim was known to carry concealed on her person.

Many witnesses remain to be examined. One is W. H. Glenwell, of Brazil, who has said he can prove that Miss Love, on leaving Bedford for Indianapolis, shortly before the murder, entrusted a sealed letter to Miss Schafer, with the admonition to guard it closely and to open it only in the event that "something hapened" to the writer. This letter is believed to be the one "damaging" to the Love girl, for possession of which the assailant of Miss Schafer was moved to commit murder.

The bearing of Eva Love on the witness stand, subjected to pitiless questioning regarding her stay in an Indianapolis private hospital at the time of the murder, has been almost the despair of her inquisitors. It is now a trial of endurance between the girl and the jury, unless testimony received from other sources induces her to speak more freely.

Friends of the Love girl, including Bedford men active in the prosecution of McDonald, insist that the "torture" the grand jury has inflicted on her should not be prolonged further. These say that the girl's visit to Indanapolis has been explained in the testimony given by Dr. Collop, the woman physician who attended her. The fact that the Bedford school board saw fit to retain her in her position as teacher, they say, should dispel suspicion.

Nevertheless, the belief of the grand jury is said to be that the "mysterious letter" now figuring in the investigation had a bearing on the writer's visit to Indianapolis, and that its possession by Miss Schafer was a dangerous bit of evidence against the man who murdered her.

The theory held by the Pinkerton agency in the arrest of McDonald, that Miss Schafer's assailant was unknown to her and that his motive for the attack was one of brutal passion, is no longer regarded as tenable. Rather, it is thought, he was recognized by the girl as a friend of Miss Love with a message from Indianapolis.

The demand for the letter entrusted to Miss Schafer may have been made while the man and the school teacher stood talking for a moment near the entrance to the alley. On her refusal to yield it up the girl is believed to have been choked speechless and dragged to the cab shed, where her body was found the day following.

Special emphasis is now given the statements of persons who discovered the body that the girl's waist had been torn open at the front, indicating, it is held, that her assailant had there sought to find the letter she refused him.

Who is the man suspected by the grand jury? Unless an indictment is returned by the jury his identity can only be guessed at. One of three men is said to be dreading the solution of the mystery.

Despite the several months that have elapsed since the crime was committed, the horror of it hangs like a pall over the community—a horror intensified by the death of Attorney Olin Bundy—"poor Bundy," say the villagers—in an Indianapolis madhouse.

It was Bundy who lost his reason while a member of the village council's committee, engaged in the collection of evidence against McDonald. Now it is believed that the attorney was driven insane in the midst of the investigation by a conclusion, suddenly reached, that the murderer was not the coal heaver, but a man of position in Bedford.

Bundy was not equal to continuing the investigation further. On his deathbed he is said by attendants to have gasped out a confession that "McDonald was innocent and was being prosecuted because a victim was needed."

AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Visit of Liberty Bell Made General Holiday.

Minneapolis, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The visit of the Liberty Bell this afternoon was made the occasion for a general holiday. Reduced rates on railroads brought many visitors to swell the crowds that viewed the historic relic on its flat car in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad yards. Its arrival was signalized by a salute of thirteen guns, the fanfare of numerous steam whistles and bells and the playing of patriotic airs on the courthouse chime bells.

The public schools were dismissed and a free ride to view the bell and return was given to each of the 35,000 school children by the Twin City Rapid Transit company. Many social attentions were shown the Philadelphia party, beginning with a reception in Mayor Hayne's suite at the city hall. The program included an automobile drive about the city, luncheon for the ladies in the afternoon, and dinner for the gentlemen of the party in the evening, given by the city council and public organizations.

SOLVING THE YOUNG CASE

Detectives Believe That Wound Was Not Self-Inflicted.

New York, June 6.—Proceedings were begun today by Coroner Nicholas Brown in an endeavor to solve the mystery surrounding the death of Frank T. Young, the wealthy bookmaker. Young was shot on Saturday last while on his way in a cab to a steamship pier to sail for Europe with his wife. With him was Mrs. Nan Patterson, formerly an actress, whom Young had known for several years. Mrs. Patterson was held without bail by the coroner and was locked up in the Tombs prison. The police at first believed that Young killed himself, but various circumstances caused them to change their minds and today the detectives in charge of the investigated said they were sure Young's wound was not self inflicted.

The Young case hearing was postponed by the coroner and Mrs. Patterson's bail was fixed at $5000.

Mrs. Patterson remained in the coroner's office while her friends sought security for the bond.

Mrs. Patterson, who was accompanied to the coroner's office by her sister, Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, seemed much more composed than she was on Saturday, but she was very pale. She was represented by five attorneys. Assistant District Attorney Garvan said a postponement was necessary because Mrs. Young, who was expected to be a very important witness, was too ill to appear. Mr. Garvan held that $10,000 should be the minimum bail required, saying:

"If this woman is guilty of any crime at all, she is guilty of murder in the first degree."

"I believe that the process under which this investigation is being conducted," said Attorney Levy, for Mrs. Patterson, "is entirely inadequate and I am satisfied that I could obtain this woman's release by a writ of habeas corpus from the supreme court."

Coroner Brown then announced that he would adjourn the case until Friday and fixed bail at $5000. Mr. Levy said he would endeavor to get the bail.

REPORTS OF OTHER CITIES

If the plans of Mayor Cullum are successful, Duluth will have a very complete library of statistical reports from various cities throughout the world, and it will be acquired at no expense to the city.

About two weeks ago Mayor Cullum wrote letters to the mayors of a number of European cities, asking for copies of their municipal reports for the past year. Among the cities communicated with were Edinburgh and Glasgow, in Scotland, Manchester, Birmingham and Liverpool, in England; Calais and Rouen, in France; Bremen, Germany; Brussels, Belgium, and Geneva, Switzerland. No attempt was made to reach the larger cities like London, Paris and Berlin, as their reports would be too voluminous to be of much value to the local administration.

Answers were received this morning from Glasgow and Bremen, and a couple of weighty packages were forwarded by the same mail. The package of reports from Glasgow was very complete, and contained complete statistics from all of the different civic departments. The annual reports of the municipal water plant, lighting plant, street railway, the city treasurer, the police department, the fire department and all of the different city officers were contained in the package.

One report contained an exhaustive treatise on experiments with different kinds of pavement, showing the amount of each laid during the year and the satisfaction given by each kind. The salaries of all the different officers, the plans for park improvements, the success met with in the operation of the various public franchises, and a thousand other items of interest were shown in the report. It is a regular encyclopedia of facts regarding municipal government.

The Bremen report was scarcely so complete, but it also contained much of interest. The other cities have not yet been heard from, but replies are expected at any time.

The reports from each department in the various cities will be turned over to the heads of the corresponding departments in the local administration, in order that they may familiarize themselves with the manner in which the business of their department is conducted in the different cities of the world.

"The reports will be very handy to refer to when occasion arises," said Mayor Cullum this morning, as he looked over the small library that was received from Glasgow. "They may save us from making costly mistakes, and they may contain some ideas that could well be adopted here. An examination of them can at least do no harm, and they give us an opportunity to compare our methods of doing business with those of foreign cities."

NOVEL QUESTIONS

Of International Law Raised By Present War.

London, June 6.—Premier Balfour declined to reply to a question in the house of commons today or give any information regarding the communications with Russia on the subject of the latter's declaration regarding contraband of war, especially food and cotton, the coaling of warships at neutral ports, or the alleged setting of mines outside territorial waters. Mr. Balfour remarked that the present war was certainly raising novel questions of international law. The whole subject was being anxiously reviewed by the government but he did not think any public object would be gained by the publication of communications on the subject made by Great Britain.

STUMBLED INTO WRONG HOUSE

Ole Mansgreth, Befuddled With Drink, Captured as a Burglar.

Ole was discovered stumbling about on the lower floor of the residence of J. P. Denyus at 4624 Cook street, Lakeside, about 3 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Denyus heard some person walking about the house and awakened her husband. Mr. Denyus descended the stairs and discovered Ole. A stranger rambling through the house at 3 a. m. could have but one meaning to Mr. Denyus and in less time than it takes to tell he had the stranger peacefully reposing on his back, and was seated across his prostrate body. He summoned W. H. Henderson, who lives in the adjoining house, and the two men held the intruder on his back until the patrol arrived from headquarters.

Mr. Denyus stated that he discovered after throwing the man down that he was in a rather advanced stage of intoxication and this was the charge preferred against him in municipal court this morning.

It developed that Ole had been in attendance at a Scandinavian dance but a few doors from the residence of Denyus and had imbibed too freely. He went out to get some fresh air and stumbled into the wrong house.

He pleaded guilty to drunkenness and Judge Windom released him under a suspended sentence, as it was his first appearance in the municipal court and he had never before come under the notice of the police department.

GOVERNOR SUSTAINED IN THE MOYER CASE.

Denver, Col., June 6.—The state supreme court today refused the application for a writ of habeas corpus for Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, who is held as a military prisoner at Telluride by order of Governor Peabody. The governor's action on all points is sustained.

The Society of the Daughters of the Confederacy strewed with flowers the graves of Confederates in all the city cemeteries.

STRIKES ON ROCKS

Crew and Two Women Passengers Rescued By Tug Edna G

The sea tug Niagara, one of the largest boats of her class on the lakes, and owned by the Perry Towing company, of Sault Ste. Marie, went on the rocks at Knife island at 7 p. m., Saturday, and was dashed to pieces. Practically total loss, except the boilers and total loss, exceptt he boilers and engine, which it is hoped may be saved.

No lives were lost. There was a crew of eleven men on board, with two women passengers, Mrs. A. Merritt and Miss M. Gates. The boat was in command of Capt. S. H. Ryerse. A few minutes before the final breaking up of the tug the crew and passengers were rescued by the Steel corporation tug Edna G., Capt. Joseph Cox. The sea was running high at the time, and it took some expert seamanship to manage the rescue without meeting with another disaster.

The Niagara was bound from the Sault to Duluth to tow the Hugo & Tims' outfit to Sand Beach, Lake Huron, where the Duluth contractors have a large contract for pier construction work. The tug was a staunch craft, of 276 gross tons burden. She measured 139 feet in length, with a twenty-five-foot beam and nine feet in depth. She was built in 1872 at Detroit, Mich.

Capt. Ryerse and the two passengers, both of whom reside at the Sault, arrived in the city last evening. They were accompanied by Capt. Joseph Cox, of the rescuing tug. The women left immediately over the South Shore for their homes. The members of the crew are expected from Two Harbors today.

The captain of the ill-fated tug says that the boiler and engine will be the principal articles of value to be saved. He visited the scene of the wreck yesterday and found that the boat had gone to pieces.

The accident, said the captain, was due to the local attraction for the shore, which affects the needle seriously near Knife Island. The boat had been running under check an hour before she struck. The fog was heavy, and the crew were heaving the lead at the time of the accident. The island suddenly loomed up right ahead. The tug was so close that it was impossible to escape grounding, with the heavy wind and sea coming from behind as they were.

The Niagara went on the rocks with great force, and was driven higher still by the wind and waves. The stern of the craft was almost constantly buried from sight by the surf, but crew and passengers crowded forward, where they were safe so long as the boat held together.

The tug shrieked her distress signals, which were heard by T. J. Rosso, the telegraph operator at Knife River station, on the Duluth & Iron Range road. It was but the work of a moment for him to call up Two Harbors, and ask assistance. A few minutes later the Edna G. was steaming at full speed for the scene of the accident.

The sea was running so high that the work of rescue was a difficult one, requiring no small amount of skill. When the tug was in a favorable position, the life raft was launched, and with its aid all on board the Niagara were taken safely on board the Edna G. Miss Gates had a narrow escape from death. She fell from the raft, but was seized by one of the crew before she was out of reach.

The two women were in their stateroom when the boat struck. Before they could get out the tug listed heavily and they were unable to open the door. They escaped through a window in the rear of the stateroom, the glass of which Mrs. Merritt broke with her right hand, cutting the member severely.

Think what this means. Imagine the amount of misery that exists and is endured simply because people do not know there is an absolute cure.

The only way to cure any complaint is to remove the cause. There are very few diseases or ailments that can be cured by external application—and piles is not one of them. Piles can be cured; the treatment must, however, be internal, for the cause of piles is an internal disorder of the liver or the bowels. Even catarrh of the stomach and bowels can be cured by DR. PERRIN'S PILE SPECIFIC, The Internal Remedy. Here is an instance of what this practically infallible remedy will do:

Dr. C. A. Perrin, Helena, Mont.—Dear Sir: I have nearly finished the former bottle of Perrin's Pile Specific and am practically well. My case was one which most physicians would have pronounced incurable, as I was afflicted with a dysentery and compelled to go to the toilet room from three to five times each day and each time would bleed from one-half to one teacupful. I had to resort to bandages and absorbent cotton to check the flow of blood, and now the past ten or twelve days there has been no sign of bleeding and my appetite is good; have gained ten pounds in weight and feel like a new lease of life was given me.

Very truly yours,
T. R. HARRIS,
October 20th, 1902. Yerington, Nev.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is sold by all reliable druggists at $1.00 the bottle, under an absolute guarantee to refund the money should this great internal remedy fail to cure.

CHILDHOOD SWEETHEARTS.

Battle Creek Lawyer and Kalamazoo Lady Wed.

Battle Creek, Mich., June 6.—Attorney L. C. Anderson, one of the most promising young lawyers of this city, and Miss Gertrude Elizabeth Pierson of Kalamazoo, daughter of John A. Pierson, a former resident of Flint, were married in Detroit Saturday by Rev. Reed Stuart. The wedding was the culmination of a very pretty youthful romance in which the convent bars intervened at one time. The two were boy and girl sweethearts at Plainwell, the former home of both. Finally the young woman's parents moved to Kalamazoo and she was sent to a convent at South Bend. Anderson tried to call on her at the convent once but was rebuffed by the mother superior. He did not see his sweetheart for years, until they were lucky enough to meet in this city while she was changing cars on her way to her home, and the boy and girl attachment was renewed. The couple will go for a wedding journey about the great lakes and will be at home here after June 20. Their wedding comes as a surprise to many local friends, as there was no announcement.

FALLS FROM MISSABE TRAIN

N. Nordling Is Killed—Nothing Is Known of Him.

An unknown man was picked up Saturday afternoon in an unconscious condition beside the tracks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad at Twenty-first avenue west. The man is believed to have fallen from the train, as he was found shortly after the train had passed.

He was taken to the Red Cross hospital in West Duluth, where he died at o'clock yesterday morning, without recovering consciousness.

The hospital authorities have no clue as to his identity, beyond a letter found in his pocket. It was addressed to N. Nordling at Wolf, Minn. He is believed to have taken the train at the Union depot and in some manner to have been thrown from the cars when passing the West End station. Three of his ribs were broken and crushed into the left lung, and several other internal injuries had been sustained.

The railroad officials are endeavoring to find the name of the unknown man, and locate his relatives if possible. Inquiries were made at Wolf yesterday, but no person could be found there who knew of a man named Nordling.

The dead man was well dressed and apparently in a prosperous condition.

CREW LEAVES FOR MADISON

Regular Eight and Three Substitutes Go to Wisconsin Capital.

Accompanied by three substitutes, the Duluth Boat club eight departed yesterday for Madison, Wis., where it will race the 'varsity eight. While the weather has been backward and consequently hard on the practice of the crew, it will have three days at Madison to do practising, today, tomorrow and Wednesday, the trial coming Thursday evening.

There are to be no prizes, the contest being a part of the semi-centennial of the Wisconsin university. The local crew's line-up is as follows: S. T. McPhail, bow; Elmer White, 2; A. W. Puck, 3; Will L'Estrange, 4; B. H. Peyton, 5; Guy Colquhoun, 6; B. M. Peyton, 7; George E. Gibson, stroke; R. W. Marshall, coxswain. J. D. Deighton, James Cargill and A. J. Leroy went as substitutes and Capt. J. D. Mahoney as coach.

The men are said to be in splendid physical condition and feeling fine. It has been impossible to get their weights down as well as would have been feasible in better weather, but it is believed they will average no more than 175 pounds per man, which is not considered bad by any means.

One advantage the local men have is the newness of their equipment. The shell is new, the sweeps are new and the "very shirts to their backs" are also new.

FOR THIRD TIME

Another Postponement of Duluth-Winnipeg Game Necessary.

Fargo Defeats Crookston In Only Northern League Game.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

STANDING.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Duluth	14	10	4	.714
Superior	13	7	6	.538
Grand Forks	13	7	6	.538
Fargo	15	8	7	.533
Winnipeg	14	5	9	.357
Crookston	11	3	8	.273

Only one game was played in the Northern league yesterday and all of Saturday's games had to be called off on account of rain and wet grounds.

A steady downpour Saturday afternoon and yesterday has turned both the Duluth and Superior grounds into lakes of mud, and the games yesterday were out of the question. The Duluth and Winnipeg teams have now been idle three days and the Superior and Grand Forks teams for four days. The entire series between Superior and Grand Forks had to be called off, and the token across the bay has not yet seen the openng of the league season.

Better weather is promised for this afternoon. After nearly a week of continuous rain, the weather man has stuck out the sign "fair and warm," and the chances are that the game this afternoon can be pulled off. Grand Forks will be the opposing nine, while the Maroons will cross the bay to Superior, and Crookston will play at Fargo.

It is Shaw's turn in the box today, but all of the pitchers are rested up, and any one of them may be called upon. The series with Grand Forks should prove a very interesting one. The Tigers were the only team to give Duluth a run for the money on the opening tour around the circuit, and if the White Sox can take two out of the three games played at Athletic park it will come pretty near establishing their supremacy over any of the teams in the league as they are at present constituted.

President Lamb, of the Winnipeg club, is losing no time in strengthening his bunch. He left for Chicago Sunday afternoon on a still hunt for some new men. All the baseball players out of a job flock to Chicago, and President Lamb expected to be back today with a bunch of new men to don Winnipeg uniforms and help stop the Maroons on their downward flight.

All is not lovely in the ranks of the Crookston players, according to reports which come from that city. The long losing streak which has landed Crookston in the bottom position has caused a little dissension among the players, and a shaking up is said to be imminent. Even with the good team Crookston had last year, the club dropped a lot of money, and with a tail-end nine it is certain to go in the hole, unless good crowds in the other cities help to pull it out. A number of the games have been transferred to Benedji. That city is said to be an excellent ball town and it may help to keep the Crookston club above water.

* * *

A pretty race has developed between Superior, Grand Forks and Fargo for second place. The three teams are within a few points of each other and all of them are playing strong aggressive ball. Don Cameron's bunch has been strengthened since the last game was played, and the chances for Superior following close on the trail of the White Sox look good.

PLAY IN THE MUD.

Fargo Handles the Tail-Enders Without Mercy.

Fargo, N. D., June 6.—Fargo proved to be better mudlarks than Crookston and won Sunday afternoon's league game in the mud and rain. Both teams were idle the last three days of last week at Crookston, because of the activity of Jupiter Pluvius, and they were determined to play yesterday.

Fargo had no difficulty in getting away with the game, outplaying Crookston at all points. Martin's bases on balls came at inopportune times. There seemed to be internal dissensions in the Crookston organization, and Lally, as captain, had wordy warfares with both Martin and Novacek during the contest. Batting by Edwards and fielding by Mankie were the features.

Harry Gatewood, of Winnipeg, made his first appearance here as an umpire. His decisions were not bad, but lack of firmness with the players marred the contest.

Has the weather man finally decided to be good?

* * *

Two out of three from the tigers is what the White Sox are after.

* * *

* * *

Superior will see its first league game this afternoon, with the usual provision concerning the weather.

* * *

President Laxdal, in a letter to The Herald this morning, states that Umpire Hamilton has been let out and is replaced by Harry Gatewood, of Winnipeg.

* * *

The White Sox will be home until June 18, playing Grang Forks, Crookston, Fargo and Superior in turn. They then go to Superior and swing around the circuit again.

* * *

* * *

President Lamb is dickering for the return of Corbett from the American association. If he does not show up any better than Bartos did on his return, the Maroons are welcome to him.

* * *

Sessions is the only Northern league pitcher in the American association who is really making good. He is pitching beautiful ball, and should go to the big leagues next year if he keeps up the pace.

KEEPS MONEY FOR SALARY

Capi Pasquati Is Therefor Arrested By His Employer.

Capi Pasquati, collector for an Eveleth marhcant, has been bound over to the grand jury on the charge of grand larceny. The circumstances connected with his case are somewhat unusual.

Pasquati insists that his employer is delinquent in the matter of salary and he simply refuses to turn over the money that he, Pasquati has collected on outstanding debts of the merchant.

The sum which he has collected and to which he claims a right to keep is $100. He has been working for his employers for about a year and claims that for the past several months his salary has not been paid.

One day last week when he had made unusual large collections he informed his employer tht he would retain an amount to offset his salary then due.

The manager of the concern immediately caused his arrest and Pasquati has been brought to the county jail to await the meeting of the grand jury in September. Pasquati expects to be able to furnish bail.

HIGH SCORES BY SHOOTERS

Four Marksmen Equal Last Week's Record—J. W. Nelson's Score.

The record-breaking squad score made by the Duluth Gun club last week, was equalled yesterday afternoon when a squad composed of Fulton, Nelson, Warren, Berry and Storey broke 120 birds out of a possible 125. The average really showed better work than the one made last week owing to the fact that each man in the squad had 24 birds to his credit, while last week some of the squad had only 23 and the others 25.

In addition to making a squad record for the club, a new record was established by J. W. Nelson. Nelson was shooting in the Panton & White trophy cup. He scored 48 out of 50 birds in the regular shoot, and 46 in a shoot-up for one of the previous shoots which he had missed. His record consisted of breaking 53 birds without a miss during the progress of his two shoots.

The other scores yesterday were all high, and the shooting was probably the prettiest seen on the ranges this year. The scores were as follows:

Panton & White cup:

	Shot at.	Broke.
Nelson	50	49
Fulton	50	48
Berry	50	48
Storey	50	47
Warren	50	46

Grocers' Clerks Organize.

The retail grocery salesmen of Duluth met in Kalamazoo yesterday morning with A. H. Garfield, of St. Paul, organizer and vice president of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, for the purpose of organizing a local branch of the association. A temporary organization was effected. Another meeting will be held this evening, when the permanent organization will be perfected and officers elected and installed. A good deal of interest is manifested in the move, and the meeting yesterday was quite largely attended.

"McFADDEN'S FLATS.

At the Lyceum this evening "McFadden's Row of Flats," completely outfitted with a new dress of scenery, costumes, effects and pretty faces, will be the offering. Few farce comedies have enjoyed such a career of prosperity as has "McFadden's Row of Flats." Unique in its conception and clever in its execution, the farce comedy has made millions laugh. A strong list of performers is said to have been engaged for this season's production.

MAHARA'S MINSTRELS.

The latest innovations that could be secured are said to have been put together by the Mahara Operatic Minstrel firm which will be seen at the Metropolitan theater Wednesday and Thursday nights. Nothing is more refreshing than a real bright, gingery minstrel performance, with its jolly comedians, graceful dancers, superb vocalists, grand augmented orchestra, all keeping time with the happy jingle and taps of the bones and tambourine.

McCarthy-Twitchell.

Miss Anna McCarthy, of this city, and J. F. Twitchell, of Hibbing, were quietly married by Rev. Father Corbett last Wednesday in Duluth. They left for the Twin Cities for a wedding trip and will return this week, going to Hibbing, where they will make their home.

Mr. Twitchell has been a resident of the range city for a number of years and was at one time its mayor.

POISONED IN SANITARIUM

Philadelphia, Pa., June 6.—Convinced that a crime is hidden in the extreme secrecy with which the body of a wealthy Western woman was brought to this city, smuggled into a cemetery and hurriedly buried, Coroner Duggan has decided to make a personal investigation of the case. With this end in view he leaves Philadelphia for a city near Cleveland, Ohio, in which place the woman died.

A week ago the coroner was visited by the brother of the dead woman, who made serious charges against a man and a woman. He declares his sister was murdered by poison administered in a private sanitarium in Ohio, to which she had been lured. The object of the crime was a large estate, which, through undue influence exercised while the victim was under the influence of a drug, was willed to the conspirators.

The same drug, the brother said, was finally used to kill her.

Coroner Duggan issued orders for the body to be exhumed, and Dr. Wadsworth, his physician, and Detective Robert McKinney, visited the cemetery for this purpose, but before the work was accomplished the order was countermanded, the coroner having decided to make a personal investigation in Ohio before taking drastic action.

All names and that of the town in which the death took place are withheld on the ground that the cause of justice might not be diverted.

FROM A COW

Johnson Said He Got the Counterfeit Money.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 6.—Charles Johnson, of Mitchell, under indictment for counterfeiting, on being arraigned startled the court by declaring that a cow had given him the bad dollars.

"How's that?" asked Judge Anderson, mystified.

"Yes, sir," answered Johnson, unabashed. "A hand appeared from beyond the cow and gave them to me. I often get money in that way."

"Who told you to go to the cow?" the judge queried.

"Spirits, Your Honor," promptly answered Johnson. "They came to me at night and told me to hunt the cow. This I did and then the hand appeared."

The case was postponed until fall pending an investigation into the man's mental condition. Last March Capt. Halls, chief of the secret service, found a complete counterfeiting outfit in Johnson's home.

NO TRACE FOUND

Of "Blessed" Herbeson, Father and Son-in-Law.

Chicago, Ill., June 6.—"Blessed" Herbeson, who was taken by her father from the "Spirit Fruit Heaven" of Jacob Beilhart, at Lisbon, Ohio, has disappeared.

Herbeson and his daughter are in hiding. Mrs. Herbeson, the mother, whom the father blames for the girl's peril, is still missing. Charles Krice, the son-in-law of Herbeson, and his wife, the sister of "Blessed," are missing from their home, and Krice's mother has closed her house.

It is as if the entire family had dropped off the earth. No trace of them has been found, and friends of the girl's mother declare that her disappearance has many of the elements of mystery. Krice declared before he went to Lisbon to rescue the girl that she feared his wrath and the wrath of her husband.

Local "Spirit Fruit" leaders declare they have absolutely no knowledge of the whereabouts of the girl, but that they are confident she will return to resume her place as a "manifestation of the spirit," and take leadership again in the councils of the cult.

Belle Norris, known to the "Spirit Fruit" sect at Lisbon as "The Mystery," and "The Silent Maid," is the daughter of a wellknown and highly respected Congregational minister, now retired.

She was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 31, 1881. Her father is now residing in Detroit, Mich., where her two brothers, Charles and John, are in the insurance business. Miss Norris is highly educated, being a graduate of the Dr. Mills College, Ontario, Canada, one of the most exclusive academics in the Dominion.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

Yesterday afternoon a pretty church wedding took place at St. John's English Lutheran church, on Third street, when Miss Willa Kate Michael, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Michael, and Herbert Bricker Detweiler were married. The church was prettily decorated for the wedding, the service for which was read at 2:30 o'clock.

As the wedding music was played the party entered. First came the page, Master Herbert Lunberg, bearing the ring, with the ushers, F. Michael, E. Olson and Lundberg following. The maids, Miss Nellie Lundberg, Miss Mabel Johnson, Miss Annie McBride and Miss Elinor Swendby next came, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Blanche Michael and the bride, who was immediately preceded by a little flower girl, Lois Michael. The party was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, L. Stunts, and the service was read by the bride's father, Rev. D. W. Michael. The bride was gowned in white batiste over cream silk, with a veil and carried white roses. The maids were all gowned in white and carried American beauties.

ANTIQUE GIFTS.

Craze For Old Things Is Rampant Now.

The June bride may have her pathway to the church door strewn with fresh flowers, but her gift table will bear the stamp of rare old age.

Never in the history of the trade has there been such a demand for antiques as wedding gifts.

In New York city there are four solid blocks of shops near the city's center, popularly known as "Antique avenue," and to these shops are coming orders from all over the United States for wedding gifts of old silver. Some of the orders come from private customers, but more from dealers in other cities flooded by orders which they are not prepared to fill, for the fashion in antiques changes with all the suddenness of the proverbial winds.

The gift pre-eminent is a piece of genuine Sheffield plate, which means that the plating is done over copper, and the bowl or lining is of glass in such colors as modern blowers cannot reproduce.

The Sheffield silver dates as far back as 1793, its age and genuineness being determined by the hall mark, placed thereon by the English government, and which is not in evidence in a spurious piece of work.

For a Chicago bride there was recently purchased at a fabulous price a gravy boat in Sheffield silver of 1793 date, measuring six inches long, which has beak and handle so peculiarly shaped that the whole piece suggests a swan in miniature. The whole is marvelously chased and hammered, but black with age.

Tankards and compotes in this ware are superb examples of repousse work, and the glass bowls which fit into them are in colors that defy description or imitation. They are best described as rich cathedral tones of crimson, blue and yellow or orange, always suggesting sunlight filtering through them.

For a sum as low as $18 there may be purchased a tiny bit of Sheffield, known as the jeweled church urn. It is no higher than three inches, but the work is perfect and the jeweling admirable. One of the largest pieces on sale is a silver platter as big as a small serving table, done in filigree and repousse, with a heavy, plain cover, oval shaped.

Silver necklaces of various periods and lands are also in demand, and they, too, are black with age and defy modern cleaning appliances. The necklace must be flat, in the form of links, set at intervals of three or four with old-fashioned jewels, topaz, emeralds, sapphires and rubies.

In ceramics, blue crockery, either old English or delft, is in favor. But the piece—and a single piece is the correct gift—must be distinctly quaint in shape and dull in tint. A crack, yellow with age, is not considered a drawback, but rather stamps the dish with age and service.

Of the big pieces, the quaintest are the meat platters, which look as if they were intended for serving a baron and his retainers. In the center is a deep hollow for the roast or the steak, while in the big scallops on either end is ample room for a supply of chops.

Next come the candlesticks, as high as the ordinary woman's heart, with candles 2 inches in diameter, towering high above her head.

A quaint centerpiece is a dish which might be intended for a birthday cake. In its center is a hole for the candle to sink, with a dish below to catch the sperm as it melts. Tiny candlesticks with standards, for all the world like cake ornaments, come for desks or curio cabinets.

In mirrors the demand is for Florentine frames, which shoot out two feet or more like centipedes. For hanging these there come old gold cord and tassels, old with age. Old furniture is not greatly in demand for wedding gifts, though there is a brisk trade in colonial furnishings of all sorts.

THE EVENING STORY.

A WOMAN'S PRIVILEGE

By Elizabeth Sears.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"The train is an hour late," he said, distantly. "Would you rather go up town or wait here?"

"I'll wait here," she answered, in a tone as distant as his own. "It doesn't make any difference." She looked straight past him at the door, through which a constant stream of humanity passed and repassed, as she spoke. He hesitated for a moment, and then sat down beside her somewhat doubtfully.

"I didn't know," he essayed, politely, "I feared you might find it tiresome——"

"It would be just as tiresome up town," she replied, coldly. "I would be tired anywhere, now," she caught her breath softly as she spoke and a grim silence fell between them.

Her eyes followed a gay young party just entering. A bridal party evidently. Jean sighed with hidden tears as she watched the happy young girl-bride and the adoring husband who held her arm so proudly. She remembered with pangs of bitter sweet memories of her own wedding day when she, too, had been so happy, so hopeful; when the whole world looked so full of rosy futures. Her happy dreams had all turned to gray and cold ashes in a few short years and now—she was going home.

The baby beside her cooed and gurgled and patted the fur on her collar lovingly as it danced in its mother's arms. She turned and smiled absently at the child and the mother murmured hasty apologies and shifted the rosy baby to the other side.

A young mother going home, too, but with what a difference in the going. The proud husband and father was giving her anxious counsel as to the journey and pleaded that she would come home soon.

"I cannot stand it long without you and baby," he was saying tenderly, "though I want you to have a good visit, Minnie."

The little mother's face beamed with love and happiness as she held her baby and looked into her husband's manly face. Her dress was simple and unmistakably home-made, but her baby was sweet and dainty in the little garments into which hours of mother love had been stitched. There was an air of content and happiness about this little family which nothing but perfect love and trust could create. Jean glanced bitterly at her own expensive costume. There was no question of money in their home—just temperament—inability to understand or forgive.

Her thoughts flew back to her own baby girl, dead at birth. The happy plans she had made with Jack about the baby—the hopes she had built upon its coming. Her eyes filled with tears and she turned away quickly to hide them. If the baby had lived—perhaps things would have been different. She might have been more patient, Jack more considerate.

"How fortunate you are," she murmured to the mother when they rose for their train. "Be thankful all your life for your baby and your happy home."

The little mother smiled happily at her as she went and Jean sank back, ashamed at her outburst of emotion and fervently hoping that Jack had not heard it. Jack was staring straight before him. Sweet memories were tugging at his heartstrings, also. Involuntarily she moved closer to him and became aware that he was speaking to her.

"Your tickets are all here," he was saying. "I did not wire, Jean. You did not say——"

"No," she said, "I prefer not to. They will know—soon enough."

Fifteen minutes dragged slowly by and restless thoughts were surging through her weary brain. Jack had made friends with two sturdy, lively boys near him and was chatting gayly with them. Jack was so fond of children. Perhaps, in time, if she had not been so hasty and so exacting over trifles—for it was but a trifle, after all—they, too, might have been as happy. Her life seemed to stretch itself out before her in the weary years to come, lonely, loveless, childless—she shuddered at the prospect of the dreary years ahead.

The sudden silence of the train crier calling her train roused her from her reverie and she looked up almost piteously. It had come—the time that she herself had decreed, when she was to leave Jack forever. He stood up with set lips and outstretched hand for her wrap. They had gone over this so often at home that he had braved himself for this.

"Come, Jean," he said, quietly, and she rose and followed him blindly and silently through the gate.

"All aboard!" called the conductor, briskly. "Right here, lady."

A sudden horror surged through her as she looked at Jack. He was so quiet, so pale, so handsome. There were other women who might not be so exacting in their demand as she had been. Her heart almost stood still at the thought of another woman sharing Jack's life.

Jack bent to kiss her, somewhat timidly. One never knew just what Jean might do and he hated a scene. Still he could not let her go without one last kiss. As his lips touched hers she fell with a wild sob into his arms.

"Oh, Jack, forgive me, dear. Say you forgive me before I go. I—was not as patient as I might have been, Jack." She clung to him convulsively while hurrying passengers crowded past them.

"All aboard, here," called the conductor once more. "Going, lady?"

"No," roared Jack, gathering her close into his arms. "She is not going."

WEST DULUTH

It is thought that the heavy rains of the past few days will make it possible to complete the Cloquet river log drive this week. The drive was abandoned, awaiting higher water, last week, and the men working on it, most of them residents of West Duluth, returned to their homes.

Of the 100,000,000 feet to be floated down the stream only 60,000,000 feet have been delivered to the Cloquet mills. In spite of the great depth of the snow last winter, the rivers in this vicinity have been unusually low, making it rather difficult for the loggers to get their winter's cut to the mills. The rainfall this spring has been so slight that conditions have been growing worse instead of better, and until the recent rains the lumbermen were many of them in despair over getting their logs down stream at all. Even now it is said the stage of water is comparatively low, but it is thought the streams, particularly the Cloquet, will be high enough to admit of the drives being finished.

TOOK A HAND CAR.

Several Boys In Trouble as Result of It.

Members of the West Duluth police department are busy today rounding up boys charged with the theft of a hand-car from the Northern Pacific yards in West Duluth. Warrants have been sworn out for about a dozen of them. Most of the youngsters implicated are from ten to fifteen years of age.

Yesterday afternoon, when there were no railroad men around to see what was taking place, the boys put the hand car on the track and started for Duluth in great glee. They got as far as Forty-sixth avenue west and then, fearing detection, left the car and started home on foot. The mere taking of the car would not have been so bad if they had not left it standing on the rails on their departure, where the first train was bound to run into it, unless stopped in time. It happened that the next train along was a passenger. The engineer saw the machine on the track in time to stop and avoid hitting it, but was wrathy at the delay. He reported the incident and an investigation, which revealed the identity of the boys, followed. The latter may get off this time with nothing worse than a severe reprimand.

A large crew of men are today at work tearing up the pavement at the corner of Central avenue and Raymsey street, preparatory to raising the rails of the street car track at the curve. The track at this point has been in an unsatisfactory condition for some time past.

Dear Sirs: A year ago last February I was taken with a most severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism, so that it was impossible for me to help myself. I called a doctor and he prescribed some medicine for me and I dosed and nursed him for two months without any help. Then I went to taking patent medicine, but they did not help, and I was nearly discouraged, till finally I saw your advertisement and started to take MEDERINE. After I had taken three bottles I was able to work but I finished the whole course and am perfectly cured. If not it would have come back before this time. I most gladly recommend Mederine for Rheumatism. One of my children is taking Mederine for Eczema with great success.
Yours truly, A. O. ANTUS, Shawano, Wis.

Speaks In Saloon, Dance Hall and Boarding House.

William Asher, superintendent of the Duluth Bethel society, who last week instituted a novel religious campaign in Duluth by holding services, the first of a series, in a Bowery saloon, is also extending his evangelistic work into the small towns in the vicinity of Duluth.

Saturday he visited Nickerson, unaccompanied by any other church workers, and held a meeting in Frank Taylor's saloon in the evening, later visiting a dance hall where about 100 young people were enjoying themselves. He was allowed to make a brief address there. The following day he addressed forty men in a boarding house, and Sunday evening delivered a sermon to a congregation which completely filled the building.

"I feel well pleased with the result of my two days' labor," said Rev. Asher this morning. "I was well received in the town. The people there were not used to my methods of campaign, but this fact aroused all the greater interest in my efforts, and assured me a large audience wherever I spoke. I am more convinced than ever that this plan of speaking to men in saloons, boarding houses and wherever you can get them to listen to you is the only logical way of reaching the great mass of individuals who never attend church.

"The first night, in the saloon, I had an audience of thirty men. At the dance hall I was listened to by probably 100 people, and at the boarding house by forty men. Thus 170 persons were reached, without my setting foot inside a church door. Some of the dancers probably attend church regularly, but the majority of those addressed seldom, if ever, enter a church. I believe that I am safe in saying that a very big majority of those addressed never attend church at all."

Mr. Asher's visit to Nickerson aroused much curiosity among the natives. He first visited Frank Taylor's saloon, and requested permission to hold brief religious services there.

"Well," said Mr. Taylor, "if the people here have a right to come in my place and talk politics, I don't see but you have a right to talk religion here if you want to. Go ahead."

Being Saturday night the mill men were loafing around in numbers. Mr. Asher easily gained their respect and attention. The service lasted for half an hour, and the men were attentive throughout. Mr. Asher talked to them reasonably, along the same lines as in his bowery address last week, and at the conclusion of his short sermon approval of his words was shown by applause.

Mr. Asher had heard that a dance was in progress at the town hall. He splashed through the mud, rain and darkness for a mile, finally arriving at this structure. It was apparent that something was doing inside. The lights, music and sounds of merrymaking bore sufficient testimony to the fact. As Mr. Asher entered the hall the word was passed around, and he was greeted by numerous unfriendly stares. Some of the girls giggled. Their escorts frowned. It was very evident that the presence of a minister at that particular time was anything but desirable.

Mr. Asher called the caller to one side. He appeared bewildered when asked for permission to make a few remarks to the dancers. He said he had no authority in the matter and referred Mr. Asher to the woman having the dance in charge. The woman in question was obdurate. She would not hear of Mr. Asher addressing the select crowd in attendance at the ball.

Finally, however, on the assurance from the Duluth man that he had no intention of breaking up the dance, and that he had no desire to attack the people before them on the score of their sinful ways, she told him to go ahead. A waltz was just about to start when Mr. Asher leaped upon the platform and commanded the attention of the dancers. It was given somewhat reluctantly. He talked for five minutes, doing little more than to invite those present to attend services at the church the following evening. When it was seen that he was not inclined to "raise a row," Mr. Asher was invited to remain and partake of the feast which had been prepared.

Before church services Sunday evening Mr. Asher addressed forty men at DeLong & Chamberlain's sawmill boarding house. He was given respectful attention, and the meeting was successful in every way. At the church services in the evening it was a noticeable fact that men were present who had listened to Mr. Asher in the saloon, boarding house and dance hall. The women of the dance were also present in a body.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—As a result of the heavy rainfall over the Black Hills, which has continued for nearly a week, Whitewood, Deadwood and Cherokee creeks, three streams which pass within the city limits, have left their banks, carrying away a number of barns, sidewalks and outbuildings. The White building, one of the most substantial in the city, was wrecked and the city hall greatly damaged. One large building was carried away. Two lives are known to be lost. Mathew Bender, a young man of Center City, who was drowned in an attempt to save property and Guy S. Boudy, a farmer, near Sturgis. No trains have been able to enter or leave Deadwood since Friday on either the Burlington or Northwestern on account of washouts. The damage was greatest at Central City, nearly all the business portion of that town being washed away. Half a mile of Northwestern track was swept away and the Columbus Mining company's plant nearly destroyed. A large number of homes at Gayville, a few miles distant were carried away and the lower part of the town is under water.

From reports thus far of the floods, it is believed the property loss in Deadwood and other Black Hill cities and to railroads will exceed half a million dollars. The water is still high but it is believed the crest of the flood has been reached.

Watertown—Sheriff Waddell and Deputy Frank Elkins, assisted by a Deuel county officer, captured at midnight six miles east of Clear Lake, John Johnson, an escaped convict and horse thief, wanted in several parts of South Dakota. The prisoner was sent to the penitentiary three years ago by Judge Bennett, but broke out and went to Clark county, where he stole a rig. He was captured there, but mysteriously obtained a $500 cash bond.

He immediately stole another rig and started east, being overtaken at midnight just this side of the Minnesota state line. He is vicious and apparently has a mania for horse stealing. He will be brought to Watertown.

Canton—Ed. L. Wendt, who was brought out a week ago as a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator, withdrew his name. He is opposed to the liquor traffic and as he could not win without its support, decided to withdraw. His name was brought out by the old-line element of the party against C. H. Cassill, the candidate of the Crawfordites, who have good chances of success. The old-line men refuse to give up and will in a few days bring out a new man.

The annual commencement exercises of Augustana college were held last night. Rev. J. O. Hauge, pastor of the Lutheran church at Inwood, Iowa, made the address and President Bergesen, and A. G. Tuve, president of the college, presented the diplomas. The class is composed of sixteen members.

Aberdeen—At the meeting of the South Dakota State Medical association, held at Redfield, Dr. C. B. Mallery of Aberdeen was elected president, Dr. Adelbert H. Bower of Deadwood first vice president, and Dr. J. E. Coulter of DeSmet second vice president. Dr. Edwards of Bowdle held over as secretary and treasurer, having been elected for three years at the meeting last year. The next meeting will be at Deadwood.

In the suit of J. H. Hauser for $5,000 damages against the city of Aberdeen for the breaking of his ankle by a fall on a sidewalk alleged to be defective, Judge J. H. McCoy directed a verdict for the city. In the case of Harry C. Butcher against the city for $2,500 damages for injuries alleged to have been received from a fall on a cement walk, the judge threw the case out of court.

Vermillion—J. A. Byerly was drowned in the Vermillion river by the capsizing of his boat in twenty feet of water. He was about 60 and leaves a wife and five children at Pocahontas, Iowa. The body was recovered fifteen minutes after the accident.

White Rock—Cole McLean, the farm hand who was stabbed recently by his employer, Casper Enwiller, is suffering from blood poisoning and pleura. Enwiller is out on bonds.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Officials have decided to work convict tramps on the streets. The plan was tried some years, but has been allowed to lapse.

There are eight graduates at the North Dakota agricultural college. Ross Fowler, of Hankinson, is a graduate of the pharmaceutical department and seven others receive the degree of B. S. They are James McGuigan, Fargo; William Weisegerber, Buffalo; Miss Sophia Thomas, Fort Berthold; Miss Dora Jenesen and Miss Katie Jensen, Buffalo; Miss Mary Darrow and Miss Edith Bowler, Fargo.

Peter Dahluff who has been around Fargo for some time, committed suicide in Moorhead by taking laudanum. No reason is assigned for his act.

Ben Fiesta, a well-known local character, who was arrested on the charge of robbing the store of "Old Settler" Griffin, has been released from custody. The state was unable to secure evidence sufficient to convict.

Grand Forks—At the annual oratorical contest of the University of North Dakota for the prize offered by State Superintendent Stockwell, Mrs. Grace B. Putnam, of New Rockford, was awarded first place, the second going to Mr. Ward. Mrs. Putnam's oration was on "Woman as a patriot."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Sault Ste. Marie—A huge metal working mill, the exact nature of which the promoters will not give out, will be built on the American Soo this summer. Ground for the plant will be broken within six weeks on a tract of twenty-five acres which has been set aside for this purpose below the big power house. The concern will use 2500 horse power from the Michigan canal and the company has an option on as much as they care to use. As the industry grows several hundred men will be employed. The gentlemen interested refuse to allow the use of their names until the work is started.

Thomas Allen, of the Soo, captured a snake of the copper head family on the hill in the south of the city a few days ago. The reptile is fifteen inches long and so far as known is the only specimen ever captured in that vicinity. It will be presented to the high school museum.

Stambaugh—Pasquilli Callari, a miner employed at the Baltic mine, at Stambaugh, was almost instantly killed by falling backward from a pocket under an ore car while the latter was in motion. Both legs were cut off, and he was also disemboweled. He leaves a wife and six children.

Newberry — Superintendent Johnston states that the Newberry furnace will not be closed down until July 1st, when it will be necessary to shut down for repairs. Whether the furnace will be shut down any longer than is necessary to make repairs is not known at the local offices. The matter will be decided at a meeting of the directors in July.

Iron Mountain—While on a recent visit to Crystal Falls, Oliver Wells and wife, of Iron Mountain, fell into a sump 40ft deep by city employes along the pipe line in Maple Grove. Besides the shock and their involuntary bath, the clothing of the couple was practically ruined. Now Mr. Wells contemplates a suit for $500 damages, claiming the city negligent in not having seen that a lantern or some other warning sign indicated the location of the hole. The municipal authorities manifest an inclination to settle, and the matter may not reach the courts.

"WATER SKIRT DANCING."

Latest Fad of New York Society Girls.

Waterbury, Conn., June 6.—"Water-skirt dancing" is the latest fad of a number of young women whose names will appear in the lists of those attending the functions of New York's "556" during the coming winter.

Prettier than any mermaid and wearing short skirts with rubber boots that reach to the hip, they can be found wading about in the icy cold spring water of the creeks and ponds in the suburbs at all times of the day. They dance, sing and play in the water, some gathering lilies and others spearing at small fish, all on the advice of a physician.

This is a new "beauty" treatment, and after exercising in the water for an hour or two, the young women are wrapped in huge blankets, carried home in an intense perspiration, put to bed and fed on warm milk.

Dr. Charles A. Ward, who prescribed the treatment, is being overrun by people who call to see him and want to take the course.

The young women drive to the spot selected in carriages, wrapped in long, loose gowns.

The banks of certain streams near the city look like nothing so much as the sidewalk about the Flatiron building in New York City on a windy day.

SENATOR MORGAN

Says Outlook For Democratic Success Is Good.

Birmingham, Ala., June 1.—Senator John T. Morgan says that the Democratic party can win with either Parker, Gorman or McClellan. The outlook, he declares, was never better for Democratic success.

"The people," he contined, "are earnestly looking for the right man. If the party can get together at St. Louis on the basis of old-fashioned Democracy, there is nothing which I can foresee that will prevent its triumph in November. Judge Parker is undoubtedly the choice of a large contingent of the party, but if Tammany shows a very raucorous spirit in the convention, the nomination of Parker may be defeated.

"McClellan is fine presidential timber, has the qualities of a statesman, and the party and the country would be safe in his hands. If Gorman were elected the South would feel at rest on the race problem, but I don't believe he is pressing for the nomination."

The senator says he does not now, nor never did care, to say anything about Hearst.

PREHISTORIC RELIC FOUND

Jamestown, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most peculiar specimens of prehistoric art, showing the ingenuity of ancient workmanship, has recently been unearthed in the neighborhood of Driscoll, N. D. This ancient relics is about ten inches in length, is made of bronze, and in many respects resembles the modern crab. It was found by a homesteader while digging a well an his land, and was about 4 feet, 7 inches under the surface of the ground.

Two horns or feelers project from the head of the crab. They are each 4½ inches in length. The body of the crab is 5½ inches long. The tail has 3 prongs, two lesser on the sides and the larger in the center. There are 13 projections protruding from the back of the creature, which were in the living species quite probably used in self defense. The eyes are peculiarly set and protrude about one-quarter of an inch from the head. They extend upward. The legs, which are ten in number, five on either side, seem to have been riveted to the main body and are capable of being moved backward and forward.

It is in an almost perfect state of preservation. The figures and carvings, which are quite numerous may be readily traced upon mostly any member of the body. The owner values the curiosity highly, having already refused a good offer.

THE BEHEST OF GREED.

"This is the most absolutely reckless, unsafe, and I had almost said insane, utterance that has ever been attributed to a president of the United States."

Such is the verdict of John Sharp Williams of Mississippi with regard to the letter of President Roosevelt read at the Cuban dinner in New York by Mr. Root. At the conclusion of a long letter discussing the matter, Mr. Williams says:

"It would be curious to consider this new discovery in the realm of international relations from the standpoint of the condition of the United States in 1877, when both panic and Molly McGuires were in evidence; and also about 1893, when panic, Chicago strikes and various other things were in evidence. I think it could hardly be said that we were 'prosperous and orderly' at either of these two periods, or at several others in the history of our country; and yet, had the nations of the world turned this acting-presidential doctrine around about on us, I think we could have replied that, although we were neither 'prosperous nor orderly,' we were at least, like the dancing girl in the Western show, 'doing the best we could,' and because of that had a right to beg 'not to be shot at.'"

Of course it never entered the head of President Roosevelt that his rule might be made to work the other way. He imagines, of course, that the United States is the whole thing and that, like himself, this country is a large bully walking about with a chip on its shoulder and a big club in its hands. This is a big nation and a strong one. As long as it walks in paths of justice and rectitude it has no need to fear any nation on earth. But let it once undertake the role of international debt collector by use of force, and it would at once become the target of the greater part of the world. As Mr. Williams says, this is more than foolhardy. It is little short of actual insanity.

Commercialism and greed have met with such success and grown to such greatness within the nation, that Mr. Roosevelt evidently thinks it about time to extend their domination to international affairs, the object being, of course, to make unsafe and risky speculation absolutely safe by government interference. Mr. Roosevelt would find an ample field for the endeavor right at home.

In commenting upon this phase of the question, Congressman Williams says: "The truth is that commercialism ought to be taught a valuable lesson, to-wit: that if it chooses to do business in unsafe countries, without stable institutions and among semi-barbarous peoples, it does it with its eyes open, to takes its own risk, and the armies and navies of the world, especially those of the United States, maintained by taxing the people, cannot be used as constables, without warrant or other process, for debt collection purposes."

Since the president made this unfortunate declaration, we may perhaps better understand why it was that the international court of arbitration in the Venezuelan case practically sustained the action of European governments in attempting to collect private debts by force, by giving those countries first lien upon the customs receipts of the country. No doubt the decision was made through his influence, for it would hardly seem possible that if our government had thrown its influence in the opposite direction such an unjust and dangerous precedent would have been established.

FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE.

If wars were always won by the party in the right there would not be such great objection to the settlement of disputes in that way. Foolish and criminal as the sacrifice of human life may be, it is not to be compared in absurdity and wickedness to the theory that right can always be established by might. Fortunately the wars of the American nation, with the exception of one, have always been on the side of right. That one exception, the conquest of the Filipinos, forms a dark and forbidding blot upon our national history. But nations which uphold unjust warfare are always certain of punishment in course of time, and punishment for that conquest of the Philippines is already being visited upon this nation. It comes in the way of continuous sacrifice of life, in increased taxation for support of greater armaments and in loss of prestige for republican form of government among the nations of the earth.

Before the United States undertook that war of conquest it was free to criticise injustice on the part of other nations and free to interfere in behalf of suffering and oppressed humanity in any part of the globe. The very moment that the treaty with Spain was signed without a promise of ultimate independence to the Philippines, that moment this nation tied its own hands and proclaimed itself a coward and a backslider. Instead of continuing our unbroken record as the only great world power that had earned the right to set men free, by this act we joined forces with the monarchies of the East in the effort to promulgate the doctrine of divine right and deprive other peoples of their political liberty and equality.

The war with Spain in order to secure the freedom of Cuba was clearly justified as also the movement which liberated both Porto Rico and the Philippines from unjust Spanish domination, and yet it were better never fought if this nation insists upon continuing the policy of depriving those dependencies of their right of self-government.

Virtuous as was the sentiment that demanded Spain's relinquishment of Cuba, how much better it would have been had this case been brought before an international court of arbitration for settlement. How much human anguish and waste of treasure might have been avoided. The whole American continent as well as the republics of the East would have united in Cuba's favor, and that island would have been freed without the loss of a single human life. What an object lesson that would have been to the other monarchries to deal fairly and justly with the people residing in the colonies under their control.

For proof that Cuba might have been freed without bloodshed even without an international board of arbitration it is only necessary to refer to the testimony of John Sherman, who was secretary of state at the time, that successful negotiations were in progress and would have been consummated but for the unfortunate explosion of the battleship Maine, which fired the national heart and brought about the bloody conflict that resulted so distrstrously to Spain.

That was only one instance in many recorded in the pages of history, where the possession of battleships and armaments and "preparedness" for war have involved nations in needless bloodshed. Instead of devoting its resources and energies in useless and wasteful expenditure for navies and armies the United States government would be much beter employed in cultivating among the nations of the earth a demand for universal peace and the setlement of all international disputes in a court of equity.

The resolutions passed by the recent conference on international arbitration held at Mohonk Lake, N. Y., speak in tones of hopefulness and encouragement. Let us hope that this optimism on the part of its distinguished membership is well founded and that the day is soon to come when the energies and resources of all the people throughout the world will be directed only in the paths of peace and mutual helpfulness. What great good might be accomplished for the benefit of humanity if all the wealth now squandered on war and war equipment were used for the benefit and elevation of mankind.

WHY IT TOOK WINGS.

The reason that a certain "merry prosperity came and went with McKinley," as poetically stated by the New York Sun, has had another exemplification furnished by a bank cashier in New Haven, Conn.

Douglass M. Smith, for twenty-two years a trusted employe of the National Tradesman's bank, of New Haven, has just confessed to a shortage of $60,000, which he put into stock of the United States Steel corporation. Mr. Smith knows where some of his "merry prosperity" has gone. And by this time it is probably unnecessary for anybody to tell him that it is not the fault of President Roosevelt.

After realizing that he could not make good, Smith acknowledged his shortage and said that the bank might take such action as it saw fit.

Teller Smith had worked up to his position in the bank from that of office boy. He has a wife and two children. The bank officials have discovered that Smith has been deliberately destroying deposit slips for large deposits and pocketing the money. He concealed the shortages by manipulation of the figures and by using false checks.

The bank brought suit for $50,000 against Yeomans & Dill, brokers with whom it is alleged Smith did business in stocks, attaching them for this amount which it is alleged he deposited as collateral, taking securities of the bank to do so. It is stated that other attachments of a similar nature will be made on other brokers.

Thousands, yes, millions of people of moderate means throughout the country, dazzled by the formation of gigantic corporations, and the promises of rich dividends, invested their money in stocks that represented nothing but wind inflation. The desire to get rich quickly and to get something for nothing was at the bottom of it. It may be said that the money thus invested is not destroyed and that what is one man's loss is another man's gain. Yes, but the money might as well be lost as far as the effect upon the business of the country is concerned. The loss is borne by those who could ill afford it and the gain made by those who had plenty and to spare before, while the large rake-off from this game of gamble is consumed in riotous living by the drones and vampires in society whose living is a curse upon the world.

There should be little sympathy for a man who loses his money in speculation when he knows what he is buying, but there ought to be some sort of law that will prevent the capitalization of any enterprise at several times its actual value.

President Roosevelt will not burn his fingers by dipping them into that Wisconsin row. He will let the national convention settle the question of regularity.

J. E. Therrien, editor of the Floodwood News, wants a continuance of present prosperous times and so he has joined the Republican party. He was formerly a resident of Two Harbors and was once honored with a nomination for representative by the Democratic party. He did not win.

The supreme court of the United States has denied an American citizen residing in the Philippines a right to a jury trial. Do not forget that, dear brother, when talking about disfranchisement of Southern negroes by the Democratic party.

It is the claim of one of the leading shipbuilders of the country, advanced before the federal merchant marine commission, that English steel is superior to American, and that American high-wage labor is not more effective or productive than low-paid English labor. This statement comes from a resident of the state of Pennsylvania, and is probably intended to show that high protective tariffs are enacted solely for the benefit of the workingman.

Correspondent Curtis, having wandered around the earth as far as Manila and had a talk with the hotel clerk, now knows all about everything in those islands and can describe the character and habits of any native as faithfully and accurately as a phrenologist. It beats all how much some newspaper correspondents know what nobody else knows.

It is no longer necessary to submit to the people proposed amendments to the constitution of the United States. The supreme court attends to that and brings about the change whenever in the opinion of the powers that be it is necessary. It is the court itself that is constantly "bringing water to Bryan's wheel," not the people who criticise its decisions.

HOTEL GOSSIP

Dr. George W. Frederick, of Kokomo, Ind., who was here last week visiting Collector of the Port Wilcutts, has returned to his home in the Hoosier state. In speaking of Indianapolis, the capital of that state, which used to be famous for its cleanliness, owing to the use of natural gas there for fuel purposes, the doctor said it used to be that a man could stand on the Soldiers' monument and count the chickens in a back yard a mile away. The monument is in the neighborhood of 200 feet high and one of the most famous pieces of public ornamentation of its kind in the country. It is located in a circular plaza which is a city block in width, and very close to the geographical center of the city, which is likewise the center of the state. It has been often contended that Indianapolis is more nearly located in the center of the state than any other state capital in the country, and this fact gives the circular plot of ground on which the monument is located a peculiar interest and significance, many people believing that it marks the exact center of the state.

Among the guests at the St. Louis last evening was S. G. Iverson, state auditor, who was on his way to Two Harbors to consult with Frank W. Walker, a state cruiser, about timber trespassing. Mr. Iverson says the state does not provide sufficient funds to properly police the timber districts, but he is trying to do his best to make trespassing on state lands unprofitable and discourage it altogether.

He will join General C. C. Andrews, state fire warden, and Prof. S. B. Green, of the state forestry commission, who were expected here this morning. They will go to the northwestern part of the state to make the selections of land for forestry purposes provided for by the last congress. Mr. Iverson will look up some of the state's iron lands on the range.

The following party were among recent arrivals at the McKay and have gone up on the north shore, where they are pushing claims for some land in Lake county: P. S. Blodgett, A. R. Blodgett, W. S. Some of the railroad men who register every few days at the hotels get careless about putting down on the register the name of the town they hail from, and when they are particularly tired and want to get to bed quickly, they don't take the trouble to write their residence. They simply quote the name of the town on the line above, no matter whose name it may follow, by putting down the ordinary "ditto" marks. So it is that to those who do not know the man a conductor with his name on the book may apparently be at home at Sandstone when he has his family at Marquette, or a Minneapolis man may seem to be from Floodwood.

THE FAVORED.

'Twas Smith who held her rosy palm
And prophesied—a specious Daniel;
'Twas Jones who left a heaven of calm
To proffer sugar to her spaniel.

'Twas Brown who took her broken fan
And brought it back when it was mended;
To call her carriage Clarkson ran,
Blake cloaked her when the play was ended.

And Robinson, beloved by Fate,
Secured the extra I aspired to;
But when the spaniel strayed of late,
'Twas I, 'twas I, Clarinda wired to!

'Twas I who found the erring cur—
An erring cur—breed not the rarest;
'Twas I who carried home to her
Beast to the Beauty—Fat to Fairest.

For me, for me, she watched the street,
Echoed the door bell's every spasm;
She called me everything that's sweet
In one enchanting pleonasm.

So, though no word that's worth a word
Is fixed between us, Life flowers double;
She shares her pleasures with the herd,
She turns to me—in serious trouble.
—London Outlook.

The Candle Time.

'Tis candle time; the day has grayed
To dusk; the low tea table's laid,
And Flo and Phyllis cosily
Discuss their world, and sip their tea
From curious cups of priceless jade.

'Tis now each calls a spade a spade,
For, if there is one hour made
For gossip most especially,
'Tis candle time!

"Mabella's gown's a horrid shade;
Whatever made her choose brocade?"
"Gwen's flirting just outrageously—She'll soon win Jack from poor Marie!"
Alas! I'm very much afraid
'Tis scandal time!

MARY.

Shall I whisper a name that was lovely of old.
When the tale of the infant, Redeemer was told,
The honored of God, in her sorrow sublime,
Still haunting the heart through the twilight of Time?

O'er the starlight of Judah the night mists were chill,
On the Galilee's bosom the shadows lay still,
When it woke on the midnight, so solemn and dim,
With the flame of a star and the sound of a hymn.

And bright with the lustre, and sweet with the tone
Of the angels that sang and the glory that shone,
Its echoes are soft through the haze of the years
With the breath of her sigh and the dew of her tears.

From the cradle of Christ to the ends of the earth,
As gentle in glory, as steadfast in gloom,
It serves at His side, as it waits at His tomb.

And many shall bless it, as many have blessed,
From the dawning of life till the morrow of rest;
And its fullness of meaning, its music shall keep,
While a Mary shall watch, or a Mary shall weep.
—F. O. TICKNOR.

Town Topics: The last child looked about him painfully, and winced, without knowing why, at the contemptuous glances of the grown-ups. His mother, shame-faced and absorbed, fed him furtively from a bottle, and blushed as she did so.

"Mother," said the child, curiously, "what is the matter? Are we different from the rest? What have we done to cause all this prying contempt?"

His mother sighed as she replied:

"My boy, it is no longer good form to have children. The idea of not having them, promulgated at first by a few queens of society, gradually spread to the masses, until it became firmly established. Now no self-respecting wife ever has any babies. You are the only one left. You are the last child."

"But, mother, whom am I to play with?"

"Playing went out long ago, with the advent of psychology and the higher education. It was discovered that children got a certain amount of pleasure out of playing, and this not being in accordance with the scheme of life as taught in the highest thought circles, it was stricken off the list."

"But, mother, is there no hope for me?"

"None whatever. By being born you have fatally compromised yourself and me. You are a freak and I am ostracized. There is no help for us."

And the last child, overwhelmod by the seriousness of the situation, conscious of the humiliation of his position, turned sorrowfully to his mother and said:

"Oh, mother, will you forgive me? I knew not what I did."

And the mother folded him in her arms.

"My dear child," she sobbed, "don't you see that I am to blame? In the race for supermacy I have been left behind. I am a relic of the past. Alas, to think that I should turn out to be only a mere mother!"

Indianapolis News: A father from Missouri went to visit his son in Kentucky only to find he had died suddenly. He visited a medium and got into communication with his son, when this conversation occurred:

Father: What sort of place are you in? Are you comfortable?

Son: Everything is much as it is in Kentucky. I feel quite at home.

Father: Any politics or politicians there?

Son: Yes, plenty of both—just like those in Kentucky.

Father (throwing up his hands)! Just as I supposed; Tom is in hell!

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Sauk Centre Herald: Should Heatwole win the present fight, the iron rule of Quay in Pennsylvania and the perfect political control of Platt, in New York republican politics, will be as the loving control of a mother compared to the iron discipline of a second wife and stepmother, compared to Heatwole's regime. If Joel wins in this fight he will make and unmake United States senators, governors, members of congress at his royal pleasure. Legislative members must receive his "O. K." before becoming effective. We are opposed to "machine" methods in Minnesota politics, but if we must have a machine we want Heatwole's because it is a marvel of mechanism. We are opposed to a "Boss" and "Boss-rule" in republican circles and republican administrations, but if we must have a "Boss" we want Joel, at least he is no amateur.

Virginia Enterprise: An article in the Duluth Evening Herald of Monday announces that considerable money will have to be expended on the famous Miller Trunk Road between Duluth and the ranges this season to keep portions of the highway from becoming entirely lost. Insofar as any actual benefit ever derived from the Miller Trunk Road is concerned it might as well all be lost—not that there is not a demand and necessity for a connecting highway between the points touched, but from the fact that the road as built was so poorly constructed that it has always been impassible except during the winter season. And all this at an expense per mile greater than was ever before or since put on a piece of road work in the county. There is some consolation in the knowledge, however, that what was the county's loss was the gain of others.

Why Roosevelt Is Popular.

Detroit Tribune: The most popular thing about the present very popular president of the United States is the fact that Wall street doesn't like his style. If the Democrats want to invite disaster they will become the agent of Wall street by the nomination of some one who bears Grover Cleveland's O. K. mark, and then at least 3,000,000 of those who voted the Democratic ticket in 1892 will take a holy pleasure in voting for Theodore Rossevenlt in 1904.

The Anglo-Saxon Negro.

New York Sun: As to "the Anglo-Saxons," who are they and what reason is there for describing this country of many nationalities—more than a million Jews, for instance—as "Anglo-Saxon?"

New York World: In these days of the new ethnology, created by the British cousin across the sea, everybody is an "Anglo-Saxon" who can speak English or a dialect thereof. The Babu of India and the greaser of New Mexico are alike Saxons and brothers. The leading paper read at a Michigan ministerial conference not long ago was entitled, "The Future of the Anglo-Saxon Negro."

Socialism in China.

Chicago Tribune: According to a Russian traveller who recently made a tour through Manchuria, there are in a Chinese business house neither proprietors nor employees. All persons employed are partners, who share in the profits of the undertaking. During the year each member receives, at stated times, a kind of salary, which, however, is so meagre as to be barely sufficient to supply the necessaries of life. Then at the end of the year the profits are divided.

The Arab Wanted Proof.

Contemporary Review: The Arab is such a romancer himself that he looks with suspicion upon every statement he cannot verify personally. An incident, described to me by the British participant in it, illustrates this Arab characteristic: A sheik was discussing with the commandant of a British vessel the points of a Turkish gunboat which lay before them in one of the harbors. The Arab thought the gunboat more powerful than that of any British vessel he had seen. The conclusion he at once drew, and frakly expressed, was to the effect that Turkey was a greater naval power than Great Britian. He was shown a picture of the Channel fleet, but that did not alter his impression. "These are only pictures," he said. "It is easy to make pictures."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A woman is so queer she can guess wrong and yet hit it right.

A mother can hardly wait for her son to get to the age when the people can make him president.

Up to the time a man gets to be 85 his wife is always expecting the advent on the scene of some designing woman.

It makes a woman very happy to have it rain hard on the Sunday after her next door neighbor's new hat comes home.

Cortelyou.

Don't imagine you have balked us, Cortelyou, Cortelyou,
That we canot find a rhyme to fit your name;
It's a name not very hard to chortle to, chortle to—
We must rhyme to it or not be in the game.

Of the national committee, or we're daft,
You'll be chairman; never picture mortal drew, mortal drew,
Held such wondrous possibilities of graft.

The position you've been holding, Cortelyou, Cortelyou,
Was a strong one, and the trusts won't dare resig;
Never dare to scorn your knocking, or to slam their portal to,
They will have to take their medicine and dig.

But we're sort of speculating, Cortelyou, Cortelyou,
What reward you'll get for frying out the fat;
The portfolio you're working for will you—for will you—
Get, do you think? Or where will you be at?

Philosophy in the Woman's Ward.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Two women, whose only homes now are jail cells, philosophized on the circumstances that brought them to this level in life. Mrs. Addie Miller and Mrs. Sadie McCabe are both young and married. To matrimony they charge much of the responsibility for their present condition. Says Mrs. Miller:

"Marriage is a lottery, and I drew a Barrois diamond."

"Never marry a man unless he has the 'sparkles' on him."

"When a bride dreams of a pretty little home she often wakes up in an attic."

"There are more failures in marriage than in business."

"The Bible says: 'Love, honor and obey your husband.' Well, that depends altogether upon the husband. I followed that road, and it led me to jail."

Mrs. McCabe says:

"Honesty is the best policy, even for shoplifters."

"A few hours in a jail may redeem a man, but it always ruins a woman."

The Motorist's Soliloquy.

To stop or not to stop; that is the question.
Whether 'tis wiser for a guiltless driver
To halt when ordered by officious sergeants
Or to protect himself from future trouble
By just ignoring them? To halt; to dip;
No more. And by a dip to say we stop
That summons for exceeding legal speed
That flesh is heir to! 'Tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To halt—to tip—
To tip—and then be fined! Aye, there's the rub.
For in a court of law there are imposed
Such awful penalties on motorists
That give us pause. There's the respect
That makes us anxious to observe the law,
For who would bear the tedious procedure,
The sergeant's tales, his witnesses' untruths,
The quips of rural bench, the misread law,
The insolence of office and the spurns
The patient motorist from reporters takes
When he could easily prevent them all
The weird decisions of the magistrate's bench
But that the dread of something worse than this—
The numbering scheme to label every car
And give the police more scope—puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of?

The Alkali Ikes.

John C. Withrow, a North Dakota pioneer writing to the Bismarck Tribune from Crooke Valley, comments on the reported death of "Alkali Ike, a noted scout" in this way.

"We have read of Buffalo Sams, California Joes and the like, who have had the reputation of having been noted scouts. These names have served well to adorn a yarn of frontier life. But after many years spent on the frontier, and eight years in Indian warfare, we will confess that we have never been fortunate, as to have seen one of these celebrated scouts. Their usefulness existed, only in story books. We always found that when service was required, which required nerve, some private soldier was ready and willing to perform the same."

COMMENCEMENT SERMON AT NORMAL

Bishop James D. Morrison Addresses Graduating Class.

Words of Advice to Coming Teachers—This Week's Program.

The first exercises of the second annual commencement of the Duluth state normal school were held at normal hall yesterday afternoon, when Bishop J. D. Morrison delivered the baccalaureate sermon before the members of the graduating class and their parents and friends.

The sermon was a forceful and eloquent one. The text was a passage from Jeremiah, where God gives the prophet his commission. The mission of the prophet and the teacher, said the speaker, were similar in many ways. He showed the profession of teaching to be a noble and important one, more important, perhaps, than any other one profession in the world.

"My text is the commission of a great prophet, called in the days of darkness, to be the inspired teacher of man," said Bishop Morrison in introduction. "He was to be both iconoclast and architect; to destroy with relentless severity whatever opposed the purpose for which he had been commissioned; and to build, and to plant in its place, that which would promote the highest interests of men. In the prophet's commission may we not find the madate and the ideal of the teacher?"

The bishop told of how the idea of vocation is found everywhere in Holy Scripture, and said that it is because so many have not grasped the truth that one's vocation is a solemn thing that the shores of life are so often strewn with wrecks and failures. The mind and conscience of men was Jeremiah's labor. "He was to root out and to destroy the fallacies, the misconceptions, the cruelties, and the prejudices of ignorance, and in their place to build and to plant the foundations of everlasting truth."

Continuing the speaker said that this was also the mandate of the teacher. He spoke of the marvelous development of education in the United States since the establishment here of the public school system, and of the wonder with which American educational institutions, planned on so large a scale, are regarded by the educated in foreign countries. So that his hearers might the better appreciate the growth of education in the United States, Bishop Morrison gave some interesting statistics in regard to the matter, and repeated part of an after-dinner speech made in a company of his countrymen by a Frenchman, just after his return to France from his second visit to the United States. Between the two journeys there was an interval of seventeen years. On the first trip the foreigner found 22,000 pupils in the colleges and universities of the country, and on the occasion of his second visit inquiry developed the fact that there were nearly 85,000 pupils in attendance at these same institutions of learning. And the educational methods instead of deteriorating with the greater demands made upon them, were found to be vastly ahead of what they were years before. They had steadily advanced, until a state of perfection had almost been reached.

The speaker, from generalities regarding eduaction and educators in America, turned his attention to the graduating class this year going forth from the normal school. He said that it was a noble mission to do the work of a teacher, and impressed upon the minds of his young hearers the fact that they were to be the teachers of the children of one of the greatest nations of the world.

"You are to form their minds and morals," he said, "and to inspire the ideals of those who will hold in their hands the destiny of the world. What nobler mission could a high and pure ambition desire than this?"

Up to this turning point in their lives, he said, the graduates had been dependent upon others. They had leaned upon others for support and guidance, in preparation for the great work they were to perform later in their own lives. Now the time had come when they in their turn were to be leaned upon, when they were to guide the footsteps of others and prepare others to take up the nation's work. They could no longer be dependent, but with their independence must push ahead and strike out alone, guided by their own high aims and past training.

Here Bishop Morrison took occasion to speak of the careful training pupils were receiving at the local normal school, and to tell of the fine work this educational institution is doing, owing to its newness, by the lack of one or two conveniences in the eduactional line. The bishop complimented President Bohannan and his efficient corps of teachers for the good work they were doing, saying that Duluth was fortunate in having such able instructors to assist in starting the youth right along the path he must follow.

Dr. S. P. Long Talks to Congregation of General Conference.

At the services at the First Methodist church last evening, Dr. S. P. Long, the pastor, gave an interesting talk about the general conference which was held at Los Angeles, Cal., last month, which Dr. Long and Watson S. Moore, of this city, attended as delegates.

"The general conference of the Methodist church," said Dr. Long, "is a law-making body that is remarkable in many ways. It meets once in four years to legislate on matters of interest to the church. This year it met at Los Angeles.

"The delegates were well taken care of, in fact I doubt if there is another city in the United States where better arrangements could have ben made for the entertainment of its guests. The conference was held in a large pavilion that has been the scene of several pugilistic encounters. The reports of the conference, published in some of the Boston papers, would indicate that it was another pugilistic entertainment. I do not understand why the Boston papers came to publish such reports. Certainly no sane person would believe them, or even take the trouble to deny them. They were without any foundation.

"The general conference is a large body. It is comprised of 750 delegates, who come from all over the world, from this country, from India, Africa, Japan, and in fact every part of the globe where the Methodist church has established itself. It is a marvelous gathering of men from the different conferences. For the first time in the history of the conference, women sat in as delegates. There were twenty-five women delegates and these took a prominent part in the deliberations. Some of them made good speeches.

"It is rather interesting to note how so large a volume of business as comes before it at every session is transacted. The general conference is divided up into a large number of general committees, comprised of ministers and laymen. The general committees are divided into sub-committees. Whenever acts on it and refers it to the general bring before the conference he presents a memorial to the sub-committee, which "Europe certainly was not pleased at committee. If the action is favorable the memorial goes before the conference.

"Sometimes there is so much business to come up that the committees select the most important measures for consideration, and the others are put over until the next general conference, four years after.

"One of the first important questions to come up was the retirement of the bishops on the superannuated list. Bishop Merrill asked to be placed on the list, in a splendid and eloquent speech. The conference was greatly affected by his remarks and acted handsomely in granting his request.

"In the discussion relative to the retirement of the bishops it was found that with the retirement of some and death of others, we were left eight bishops short. The age of the retired bishops is 74 years. They are put on the superannuated list at a salary of $2500 per year, just half what they receive while in active service. They may live anywhere they please and, while acting as an advisory board, they are relieved of the burden of the work they formerly had.

"Then came the election of the bishops. This was an interesting event, for in this election, just as in political elections, there are some who desire to win a better position. In all there were 182 men voted for. Your pastor received one vote and he knows who cast that. He did not vote for himself. Dr. Hurley, who was here last conference, had sixteen votes, so we ran a sort of sixteen to one combination. Dr. Forbes received forty-three votes. Although he was not elected a bishop it wil be gratifying to his friends to know that he was re-elected to the prominent position that he has held during the past year.

"As it took a two-thirds vote of the conference to elect, it will be readily seen that the contest was rather a long one. Only one bishop was elected on the first ballot. The first bishop elected was Dr. Berry, editor of the Epworth Herald. Dr. Spellmeier was the only pastor elected, so you see my chances were not very good. We also elected some men prominent in church educational work.

"When Dr. Day came up for election, the first sign of bitter feeling developed. Dr. Day, as you have probably all heard, has had his orthodoxy questioned and, during the election, printed circulars were scattered among the delegates containing purported heterodox statements he is said to have made in speeches.

"Things reached a climax when the Los Angeles Examiner said that during the heat of the argument Dr. Day had knocked a man down in conference. The printed article was, of course, absurd, but anybody who has seen Dr. Day's magnificent physique would not for a moment doubt but that he could easily do so did the occasion demand it.

"Following the newspaper article Dr. Day made a splendid speech to the conference in which he set forth his position plainly and requested the delegates not to vote for him. Every man who heard that speech felt that the conference should show its confidence in Dr. Day and it did so by electing him on the second ballet thereafter. At the next session Dr. Day made another effective speech in which he resigned from the position of bishop. In the eyes of the general conference he was a great man before the election, but he is a greater man since.

"I never before saw such a scene as when he was elected. The big audience rose en masse and cheered and cheered him. He was vindicated.

"We elected some missionary bishops. A missionary bishop has the same power as a general superintendent or bishop, but is restricted to a certain field. For instance, we have a missionary bishop in Japan, in India and in Africa.

"A serious question arose over an attempt to elect a colored bishop. A doubt was raised as to the jurisdiction of the general conference to confine a man's work to a special class of people. The question was finally decided in the negative. It will be submitted to the next annual conference.

"Another question that come up was whether we should return to the old time limit for ministers. Four years ago we did away with the law of time limit. This year an effort was made to return to the law, but it was defeated. Ministers may now be appointed for one year or they may stay 15 or 16 years in a place.

"Another matter that came up was the question of amusements. I may say in the start, that it was not the slightest intention of the general conference to let down the bars for a discussion of the question. It was simply a restatement of the question. There was some intense feeling in the matter and the minority report favoring the amusements was turned down by the general conference.

"Personally, I do not believe that the Methodist church will at any future time sanction dancing and card playing. The question will probably come up again in the general conference, but I believe it will come up merely as a restatement.

"Another important step taken was the unification of our publishing interests. We have over $3,500,000 invested in our Methodist publishing houses and the proposaition was made to consolidate them in one plant. This was nat an easy matter to arrange but a plan was finally adopted.

"We also consolidated our benevolences. This means that there will not be so many collections. Where we have had seven collections a year we will now have but three. The foreign missions come under one head, the home missions and church extension under a second head and all the rest of the charities under a third head."

In concluding Dr. Long gave an interesting sketch of the personalities of some of the men who attended the conference. Of Dr. Robert Forbes, of this city, he said:

"Dr. Robert Forbes, of our own city, always makes a strong appearance. He always has the eye and the ear of the general conference, and has a way of straightening out all difficulties."

Dr. Long said that in addition to the regular business sessions of the conference the ministers in attendance preached at the various churches in Los Angeles while they were there, and the people of that city were thus given quite a treat.

He said the social events of the general conference are not a success, for the reason there is so much work to be done. The conference met at 8:30 a. m., held all day sessions, then the committees would often be in session until 12 o'clock at night.

NEW YORK ATHLETES.

Winners of the Games at World's Fair.

St. Louis, June 6.—The junior and senior A. A. U., championship games were held at the stadium Saturday under the adverse circumstances. Rain left pools of water on the field and track and kept all spectators away from the junior events which were held first.

The meet was won by the Greater New York Irish Athletic association of New York, representatives of which scored 61 points. The New York Athletic club came next with 45 points. Pastime Athletic club of San Francisco, 13 points; Chicago Athletic club, 8 points; Seventh-Fourth Regiment Athletic club of Buffalo and Maryland Athletic club tied with five points each; Cambridgeport, Mass., 1 point; Washington university, St. Louis, 1 point; Roller Athlette association, 1 point; Star Athletic club, New York, 1 point.

MICHIGAN WON.

Chicago, June 6.—The sturdy athletes representing the University of Michigan won the "big nine" conference here with 32 points. Chicago was a close second, while third honors went to Wisconsin.

Six intercollegiate conference athletic association records were broken. Rose, the big Michigander, set a new mark in the shot put, and also smashed the discus record held by Swift, of Iowa. Two Wisconsin men set new marks. Fuhrer broke the high jump record held by Brewer, of Michigan, and Breitkreutz bested his former mark in the quarter-mile run. Thomas of Purdue broke the hammer throw record, and Friend, of Chicago, shattered the old mark in the broad jump.

Minnesota was out of the running and failed to win a single point. Hasbrook was the only Gopher who had a chance, this being in the 20-yard hurdles.

MAC'S LUCK.

The Young Woman Reporter's Story.

The following food tale written by a clever young newspaper woman is a true story that came under her personal observation.

"I have been with the ——— (a paper in a Calif. town)for nine years and Mac has been with us all that time and I do not know how much longer. Mac's full name is Macclellan. Before the Linotypes came in he was a good printer, and was one of the first to learn the machine, and is now, at about the age of 42, one of our very fastest operators.

"Last winter and the winter before Mac, probably from constant night work and improper food, got badly run down, could not eat much, what little he did eat did not do him much good, and he always complained he could not keep warm.

"I missed him for awhile until yesterday I overtook him on the street going toward the office, and hardly knew the man: had it not been for the familiar walk I should surely have passed without recognizing him. He was stout, his face was round and ruddy and his eyes bright as I had never seen them before.

"I said 'Mac I hardly knew you, what on earth have you been doing to get so fat?' He replied 'Grape-Nuts, nothing else. I started in on Grape-Nuts food three months ago when I weighed 126 and was feeling miserable, but now I weigh 160 and feel better than I ever felt in my life. I quit my old diet and went on Grape-Nuts, and that's the whole story.'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Exercise is necessary, but there's no nourishment in it and proper food alone can supply that. Grape-Nuts for 10 days is a pleasant trial and proves big things.

There's a reason.

CAPTAIN DROWNED

Vineyard Haven, Mass., June 6.—The barge Lorberry, of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal company, was sunk off Vineyard Sound lightship during a dense fog early yesterday, through a collision with the steamer Tallahasse, Savannah for Boston.

Capt. Burroughs, of the barge, was drowned. The Tallahassee was saved from sinking by her water-tight compartments and arrived here last evening. Her passengers will be sent to Boston by rail.

The Tallahassee, which carried nineteen passengers, had a large hole stove in her bow and ran into Kencha by night for safety, later proceeding here.

The accident occurred within a quarter of a mile of the lightship. The Lorberry, coal laden, was the stern barge of a tow of three behind the tug Gettsburg, and was proceeding slowly, when the Tallahassee, which was hunting for the lightship under slow speed, came suddenly upon her.

The Lorbery was struck on the starboard bow and sank within a few minues. Capt. Burroughs was on deck when the collision occurred and, rushing aft with the steward, endeavored to clear the boat.

The barge sank before the boat could be lowered. The steward clung to a piece of wreckage and was picked up.

Three others of the barge's crew ran to the bow and climbed up the anchor chains to the steamer.

ENRAGED CROWD BURN BULL ARENA.

St. Louis, June 6.—Incensed over their failure to see a "genuine bull fight," which the authorities had ordered stopped, a riot was started in the arena near the World's Fair grounds last evening by a crowd of 2500 men and boys, who were unable to get their money back and the building was burned to the ground. The price of admission charged was one dollar. Four men were placed under arrest by the authorities of St. Louis county, charged with trespassing on the property. The crowd thinking these men were connected with the show, made an attempt to rob them, and in their encounter with the deputy sheriffs, a number were roughly handled and some received scalp wounds. The building is said to have cost $2500. It is a total loss, with no insurance.

PRETTY WOMAN'S WINKS

And Peeps at Stocking Influenced the Jury.

St. Louis, Mo., June 6.—"Gentlemen of the jury, it is a pity that a sickening flirtation between jurors and the defendant in a criminal case has the power in this court to defeat the ends of justice."

This was a part of the severe lecture given by Judge Taylor of the criminal division of the circuit court, to the jury which had just acquitted Maud Williams, a pretty brunette, of the charge of robbing Aldon Mather, a caller, of $204.

Judge Taylor was indignant, and said he was "sick and disgusted with such action on the part of the men sworn to give a fair and impartial verdict based upon the law and evidence."

He dismissed the jurors and expressed the hope that none of them would ever again sit on a case in his court.

Judge Taylor's rebuke followed a scathingly sarcastic speech of "thanks" by Assistant Circuit Attorney C. Orrick Bishop. "Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "I thank you for your verdict. I thank you in the name of all that is lawless and shameless in crime and criminals. I thank you for the discriminating taste you have shown—for the high order of citizenship which you have displayed in being influenced in your verdict by a pretty woman's winks and a glimpse at a bit of openwork stocking. You are a credit to your class."

COURTED SEVEN YEARS.

Ella Jensen Sues For Breach of Promise.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 6.—George Thurston, a well-known decorator, is in jail because he couldn't give bail in a $5000 suit for breach of promise brought by Miss Ella Jensen, who declares that Thurston has kept her waiting for seven years for him to fulfill his promise to marry her, and that she has in that time had three proposals from desirable men which she rejected because of her promise to him.

She came here from Greenville, a young and unsophisticated girl. She met Thurston and apparently a great attachment was formed for each other. They were in each other's company almost constantly. They exchanged confidence, and she, young and trusting, believed the ardent words of affection which he spoke to her. She relates that he exercised almost a hypnotic influence over her.

In February, 1898, she asserts, he asked her to become his little wife. She replied in the affirmative. Her lover, however, did not fix the day, and so when time went on and he said nothing further about the prospective wedding she became fearful that he was not sincere in his intentions. Finally she summoned up her courage and confronted him with her doubts.

A quarrel ensued. He spoke hot words to her, and they parted. A month passed and one day they met and he importuned her to forgive him, professing at the time, she says, deep love for her, and promising her that he would marry her soon. Three times this occurred, and finally he scorned her and told her he would never marry her.

CLASH OF ARMS

Between the United States and Northern Africa Probable.

Strong Force May Be Sent After the Bandit Raisuli.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a clean bill of health, so far as diplomatic relations with all South America, Europe and Asia are concerned, it seems likely that the United States will once more clash arms with Northern Africa. Within the past year Secretary Hay has demonstrated very forcefully to the sultan of Turkey that American citizens will be protected, no matter where they may be or what may have been the country of their nativity. Today he has taken steps to convince the sultan of Morocco that the naval demonstration at Beirut will be repeated at Tangier unless the safety of Ion Perdicaris is assured. Already the United States has a squadron on the scene capable of demolishing the Moorish city, and other vessels are on the way thither which will give this country a force of blue jackets and marines numbering about 5000, and fit to cope with five times that number of the Africans.

In the meantime negotiations are pending between the representatives of France and the state department which, it is believed, will result in the hearty co-operation of the French with the forces of the United States. France has established a virtual protectorate over Morocco, which makes her morally responsible for the life and liberty of the foreigners within the border's of the sultan's domains, and France is apparently willing to acquiesce in the plans of this country to secure the safety of the captured American and his foster son. An official of the state department said today: "There is perfect accord between this government and that of France to all appearances, and the latter agrees that this country has an absolute right to land forces upon the soil of Morocco for the purpose of protecting the liberty and life of our citizens. If it is found necessary to take drastic steps it will be found that France will offer no protest."

The administration is not disposed to show its hand, however, and beyond the fact that a very large fleet has been ordered to Tangier little information is given out officially as to the program to be followed. But there will be no more of the Miss Stone foolishness. Perdicaris may be ransomed, but if the bandit Raisuli is enriched through his seizure of the American it will not be American gold which will line his coffers.

Owing to the absence of the members of the British embassy it cannot be learned positively what steps have been taken by England towards securing the safety of Cromwell Varley, but should it be deemed necessary to proceed into the mountains to reach Raisuli, it is almost certain that the expedition will consits of a mixed force of American and British sailors and marines, with a strong probability of the co-operation of a strong force of French soldiers, from Algiers, who are familiar with the military methods of the tribes from which the bandits are recruited, and are, besides, acclimated to the country in which the conflict, now apparently inevitable, will occur.

While there are nearly a score of prominent members of the Democratic party "mentioned" in connection with the nomination for the presidency, it is a notable fact that up to the present time no one has been seriously considered for the second place on the ticket. This is due primarily to the fact that the leaders are all at sea as to the man for first place. The state conventions in Georgia, Michigan, Nebraska and Oklahoma have not served to throw much light on the situation. Georgia, it is true, declared for Parker. Oklahoma's six delegates are classed in the Hearst column, but Michigan's contngent goes to St. Louis uninstructed and it is assumed that Mr. Bryan will throw the Nebraska votes to some one of the dark horses. There are plenty of Democrats who are ready to make the race with Parker or Hearst, Gorman or Gray, but the geographical consideration—always an important one—must enter into the calculations and until the convention decides upon the head of the ticket no one will be able to name the tail, or even to make an inteligent guess as to his name.

It is now about two years since the department of agriculture began a systematic examination into the purity and healthfulness of foreign food products and the results are little known outside the department. Dr. Wiley, chief of the division of chemistry, has established a rigid basis of purity. Thousands of gallons of wines have been refused entry from Europe because they contained too great a percentage of chemicals used as preservatives. Importers naturally do not care to advertise the fact that their wares are below the standard of purity demanded by the government and the department contents itself with excluding foreign products below this standard and does not care to disclose the name of the vineyardists or importers whose goods are excluded. It is understood that the principal wines kept out because of the adulterations used are white still wines, and as the demand for such drinkables is on the increase, the natural inference is that the American wine grower will eventually profit greatly by this species of paternalism.

"The newspapers of the country have a great deal to say about the railroad strike in New England," said an official of the department of commerce today. "Yet comparatively little space is devoted to the great tie-up on the lakes. The lake strike is one of the most important labor movements this country has known in years. Its efforts reach from the northwestern extremity of the wheat and corn belts to the Atlantic seaboard. Lake traffic is absolutely crippled and the trunk line railroads have all suffered to a greater or less extent in consequence. The strike is remarkable in that it has served to place the ship captain—heretofore an autocrat—on a level below his subordinates. The Masters' and Pilots' association is an organiatonz of the captains and mates of the lake vessels. There are at leas two pilots to one master and as a consequence the latter are invariably outvoted two to one. It seems unreasonable that such a state of affairs should exist, but so thoroughly has the organiatzion controlled the affairs up to the present time that practically 90 per cent of the lake tonnage is out of commission with no immediate prespect of a settlement. But even if satisfactory arrangements should be perfected today, the traffic of the lakes for the year 1904 will certainly show a falling off of not less than 20 per cent—and there is no present chance for such arrangements."

The fiscal year beginning July 1 promises to be a record breaker in the matter of public buildings. Two years ago Supervising Architect Taylor was directed by congress to buy sites and erect thereon about 200 buildings in various cities and towns. Every congressman wanted his particular building erected first, but there were many preliminaries before anything could be done towards the preparation of plans. For some time past work in the architect's office has progressed smoothly, and the present prospects are that during the next fiscal year the number of public buildings completed will aggregate more than 100, or about eight such structures turned over for occupancy every month. It has been the aim of the architect to distribute the buildings upon a geographical basis as nearly even as possible.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND THREATEN TO STRIKE.

New York, June 6.—A strike of 16,000 members of the Rock Men and Excavators' union, which was to have taken place May 1, is now threatened in good earnest. Before May 1 the union made a demand on all contractors through the city for a new wage scale and recognition of the union. The strike was about to be declared when the matter was placed in the hands of a committee for settlement. The men now claim nothing has bene heard since from the employers and they are determined to carry out the original plan.

GINSENG'S WONDERS

Michigan Scientists Are Preparing to Analyze the Herb.

The Chinese Use It In Their Medical Prescriptions.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 6.—Michigan scientists are preparing to analyze the herb ginseng, the Chinese superstition plant, to discover the elements of real scientific value which undoubtedly underlie a 3000-year-old superstition. This rare plant is brought to Michigan by a student, Charles Barton, who with his father, R. W. Barton, owns a ginseng farm near Toledo, which consists of but a single acre, but the crop of which is worth at harvest $40,000.

The Chinese superstition, which alone produces this fabulous value, is founded on the misshapen form of the ginseng root, which grows in the shape of a man. The process of this growth begins in the third year after sprouting the ginseng seed. Till then the root has been single, white and carrot-shaped. The third year one branch appears, making the lower end of the root forked, like a pair of legs, and two more sub-roots follow, growing nearer the top, emblematical of human arms. Only one of these arms and legs grows in a year, so that ginseng matures in the fifth year.

A coincidence occurring on the year of this man-like maturity, gives the Chinese superstition a basis of fact. In the fifth year the root possesses certain medical properties, but after this year becomes tough and worthless for market. For a root whose shape is perfect, an accident of one root out of 20,000, the Celestials pay $500 to $600, and ordinary roots will sell on the farm for $10 a pound.

The Chinese chew ginseng, make tea of it, use it in their medical prescriptions, take it in spring as a tonic, and think that nothing but hunger can kill a Chinaman stimulated with ginseng.

There is more in this curious herb than even Chinese fanaticism imaglines. Each year, on his farm, Mr. Barton gathers seeds which are more valuable than pennies, and in a few days' work he "picks" enough to pay his next year's college education. This rich annual harvest is entirely distinct from the root harvest. The seed grows from a cluster of pure green flowers, and ripens under an umbrella-shaped crown of leaves, resembling those of the horse chestnut, which stands a little more than a foot above the ground. The flowers ripen into a bunch of scarlet berries, each the size of a pea, and worth $85 to $120 a pound, or more than a cent apiece. There are 8500 ginseng seeds in a pound, and from seventy-five to 125 of them on each plant.

There is no known limit to the time which a ginseng root will produce seeds. Formerly ginseng grew wild throughout the United State and Canada, but farmers thoughtlessly sold the roots for a few cents each to wise physicians who were in touch with Chinese firms, and today there is nothing left but the few acres of cultivated herb.

This ginseng cultivation is full of unique farming devices. Mr. Barton's farm is parly under a lattice shed and partly in the woods, for sunlight destroys ginseng. Only a man's fingers must be used to pull the weeds.

There are some peculiarities about ginseng, which only science can solve. The Michigan experiments may throw some light upon the need which a ginseng root has to freeze three months in a year in order to be good, or may discover how one mediocre ginseng plant, such as a Japanese ginseng root planted in a garden of American ginseng, will quickly deteriorate the whole garden. The Michigan drug provers' principal work, however, will be to test upon a large number of people the medicinal effects of ginseng, and to classify these results under a code useful to Western civilization.

DRAWING AT DEVIL'S LAKE

Washington, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commissioner Richards of the general land office, announces that the president has signed the proclamation providing for the opening of the ceded lands of the Devils Lake Indian reservation in North Dakota under the act of congress, approved April 27, 1904. The land is to be disposed of by a registration and drawing similar to that provided for the opening of the ceded lands of the Rosebud Indian reservation in South Dakota by recent proclamation. The Devils Lake Indian reservation contains approximately 88,000 acres of land, of which approximately 550 homestead entries may be made. The registration will be made at Devils Lake, and Grand Forks, North Dakota, and will begin August 8, and run until August 20. The drawing will be held at Devils Lake and will begin August 24. The entries must be made at the Devils Lake land office and will begin at 9 o'clock, September 6, and will proceed at the rate of 50 per day for 60 days, after the expiration of which period any land remaining unentered will be subject to homestead entry on payment of $4.50 per acre as provided in the act. Only qualified homesteaders will be allowed to participate in the drawing and all persons must register for themselves except honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, who will be entitled to make homestead entry. These may register by an agent, but an agent can not represent more than one such soldier or sailor. The entryman will be required to pay for the land at the rate of $4.50 per acre, $1.50 to be paid down when the entry is made and the remainder in annual installments of 50 cents per acre until paid.

The proclamation reserves 1160 acres for the Fort Totten school, 73 acres for the Grey Nuns department of said school, and 320 acres for a meadow for both of said schools. Seven acres are reserved for the Protestant Episcopal church, 160 acres for the Raven Hill Presbyterian church, 165 acres for the Wood Lake Presbyterian church, 167 acres for the Mission of the Sisters of Charity, 155 acres for the St. Michael's church, and 80 acres for St. Jerome's church, both of the latter being of the Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions. Ninety-two acres are reserved for the Devils Lake Indian agency, and 883 acres for a public park at Sully's Hill.

Copies of the proclamation, instruction thereunder, and schedule of the land will be printed and sent to the Devils Lake, North Dakota, land office for distribution, and will also be distributed from the general land office.

NOT TO BUILD THIS YEAR

Minnesota & International Extension to Canadian Boundary Abandoned.

St. Paul, June 6.—No further construction work on the Minnesota & International will be done this year. The line will not be extended beyond Northome, and, for the present, the extension to the international boundary has been abandoned. The present condition of the money market and the general cessation of railway holding this year are given as reasons for the abandonment of the plans to put the line forward to the boundary.

Surveys for the Minnesota & International have been completed from Northome through to the international line and construction over this section will practically double the mileage of the Northern railway.

No important improvement work will be done this summer, the management contenting itself with a continuation of ordinary maintenance and betterments. General Manager W. H. Gemmel, who has just returned from an inspection trip of several days over the line, said today:

"The line will not go beyond Northome this year. It is a bad year for railway construction. The usual work will be in progress, but nothing more. We do not plan any important improvement this summer.

"I was well satisfied with conditions along the line. The volume of business now being handled is very satisfactory indeed. Logging operations have resulted in large shipments over our line. General business is satisfactory.

"Settlers have been going into the country tributary to the Minnesota & International in large numbers. They are opening up small farms and are developing the available agricultural land. This has been followed with a better business for the railway. Prospects are very favorable."

ALLEGED THIEF IS ARRESTED

May Know Something About Duluth Man's Money.

St. Paul, June 6.—A man who gave his name as Donald Stewart, and who is supposed to know something about the disappearance of a certificate of deposit for $2400, belonging to J. E. Hall of Duluth, was arrested at an early hour yesterday morning, after an exciting chase by four hack drivers. Hall, who was recently in St. Paul, called at a down town saloon, the proprietors of which were former residents of Duluth. Afterwards he went for a hack ride with a stranger, supposed to have been Stewart. The next day he missed the certificate of deposit which was on the American Exchange bank, and reported his loss to the police, but they were unable to locate his companion.

Early yesterday morning one of the proprietors of the saloon saw Stewart on a down town corner, and calling together four hack men who had been informed of Hall's loss and who were stimulated in their efforts to locate his companion by the offer of a reward of $100, the pursuit was begun. The fugitive was fleet of foot, and after being chased several blocks eluded his pursuers by dodging into an alleyway. His trail was quickly found again, however, and soon he was arrested and taken to the central police station.

Hall is expected in St. Paul today to identify the prisoner. The payment of the certificate of deposit has been stopped.

DIAMOND THIEF ARRESTED.

Kansas City, June 6.—Blanche Ryan, charged with the theft of $5000 worth of diamonds from a woman at Chihuahua, Mexico, has been arrested at Little Rock by Deputy United States Marshal Charles Haskell, of St. Joseph, Mo., and is to be brought to Kansas City, where she will be held until extradition papers are made out. The theft of the diamonds is stated to have occurred four months ago and since then officers have chased the woman 10,000 miles.

HUSBAND'S GHOST

Spoiled the Wedding of a Connecticut Widow.

Waterbury, Conn., June 6.—With hands uplifted as though pleading, and with eyes burning with the old-time affection, the ghost of the former husband apeared to Mrs. Clarence B. Ives just on the eve of her marriage to George B. Rankin, of East Windsor.

Mrs. Ives was in the sitting room of her home late at night when the specter called. Of course she swooned. Those who heard her cries were quickly to the rescue, carrying her into the sewing room on a sofa.

"Oh, I know it was Clarence. The same bombazine necktie and the litt'e chin wisp of reddish-brown hair, and the same kindly look. He isn't a bit satisfied, either, and I am so troubled."

The foster sister of Mrs. Ives announced to the prospective bridegroom the next day that the marriage would not take place; that Mrs. Ives had had a premonition that a postponement would be best for all concerned.

GAY OLD MEN

Seeking Wives, Plucked By Indiana Woman.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 6.—Mrs. Emma Wilhite, of Hedrick, Warren county, who has been plucking gay old wifeseekers in half a dozen states of $10 bills, came into the United States district court and pleaded guilty to using the mails for that purpose.

Mrs. Wilhite advertised in a Milwaukee paper that she was a beauty, she weighed 118 pounds, was plump, good looking and a good cook, and that all she wanted was a husband. She thus got up a correspondence with old men over the country. In each case she asked for $10 to cover the expenses of a trip to the victim. When the $10 came the correspondence stopped.

Among the victims who have come to light are:

L. C. Aiken, of Uniontown, Pa.; Daville Brady, of Six Lakes, Mich., and J. W. Dean, of Sperry, Idaho.

"I hope," said the fair maid, "that you are too much of a man to marry for mere filthy lucre."

"Well, I don't know," rejoined the bachelor, who had leap-year hopes. "By the way, how much of the filthy stuff do you possess?"

BODY FOUND AND STOLEN.

Osceola, Wis., June 6.—The body of Dr. J. H. Hutchinson, the university of Minnesota medical student, who was drowned at St. Croix Falls last Sunday, was found yesterday in the St. Croix river near Marine. While the finder was at Marine notifying the coroner at Stillwater, the body disappeared. It is suspected that the body was stolen. A reward of $50 is offered for its recovery.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Heavy rains continue to fall in the vicinity of Ardmore, Indian Territory and railroad traffice is being seriously affected. The Rock Island operated no trains Sunday into Ardmore and trains on the 'Frisco are being operated with difficutly, washouts on both roads being numerous.

The utmost quiet prevailed at Houston on Sunday. No attempt was made to run street cars and no crowds collected on the streets. It is reported that the company has increased its force of strike breakers by eighty men. The Central Labor union met and adopted a resolution calling on the mayor to appoint citizens of Houston as guards.

The Nebraska delegation to the Republican national convention has issued an address of endorsement of the candidacy of John L. Webster for the vice-presidency.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, who has been the guest of St. Louis friends for the past nine days, left for Washington Sunday over the Pennsylvania road.

Two Indianapolis street cars, one of which was returning from Riverside park, carrying sixty-one passengers, collided last night, resulting in the injury of eight persons, one of whom, Walter Dunn, will probably die. Dunn was the conductor of one of the cars.

YOUNG MAN ATTACKED BY GANG OF TWENTY.

New York, June 6.—William Gillen, 24 years old, was attacked by a gang of about twenty men last night at his home in East Sixteenth street. When he refused to open his door to admit the intruders several shots were fired through it. Finally, opening the door, he was struck on the forehead by a bullet and slightly wounded. He fired his own revolver five times into the crowd and probably mortally wounded William Wynn, 19 years old.

Gillen and Wynn were arrested, charged with felonious assault and three others were taken by the police as accessories. Other arrests are expected.

Gillen refused to make any complaint against Wynn or any of the others arrested, and Wynn refused to make any statement. Gillen said that the trouble came through a quarrel three weeks ago.

FOREIGN TRADE

In Iron and Steel Shows Marked Contrast With Last Year.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Junt 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The foreign trade in iron and steel will show in the fiscal year which ends with the present month, a marked contrast compared with that of last year. The imports of iron and steel in the fiscal year 1903 were the largest since 1891, and with the exception of that single year, the largest since 1883. In the fiscal year 1904 they will be but about one-half those of 1903. During the ten months ending with April last the total imports amounted to but $23,075,084, as compared with $43,332,714 in the same period of last year. In practically all articles of iron and steel imported there has been a marked reduction, both in quantity and value as compared with 1903, but this is most strongly marked in pig iron, which alone shows a reduction of more than $10,000,000, while steel ingotes, blooms and bars show a reduction of $5,000,000.

On the other hand, exports of iron and steel show a material increase. In the ten months ending with April, 1904, the total exports of iron and steel, as shown by the reports of the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, amount to $89,094,415, against $79,839,462 in the corresponding months of the preceding year—an increase of nearly $1,000,000; while the single month of April shows an increase of about $1,500,000 as compared with April, 1903. This suggests that the exports of iron and steel in the full fiscal year will considerably exceed $100,000,000, though it hardly probable that they will reach the figures of 1901, when the total was $117,000,000, or of 1900, when the total was $122,000,000.

The principal increases in iron and steel exports occur in billets, ingots and blooms, which amount to nearly $2,500,000 in the ten months ending with April, 1904, as against but $65,174 in the same months of last year; steel rails, $1,890,107 in the ten months ending with April, 1904, as against $665,695 in the corresponding period of last year; locomotives, $3,947,225 in the ten months of the present fiscal year, as compared with but $2,958,491 in the same period of last year; typewriters, which show an increase of about $500,000, and firearms, an increase of about $500,000 in the ten months in question, as compared with the ten months of the preceding year.

In locomotives the chief increase is in shipments to Canada and Mexico. To Canada the increase is about $600,000 as compared with the ten months of last year, and to Mexico there is an increase of about $150,000 as compared with the ten months of 1903, and of over $700,000 as compared with the corresponding period of 1902. In steel rails the increase in the ten months was compared with the same period of last year is about $1,250,000, the shipments to Canada showing an increase of about $250,000, those to Mexico over $170,000, those to Japan $200,000, and those to "Other Asia and Oceanica" nearly $500,000.

The following table shows the principal articles of iron and steel manufactures imported into the United States in the ten months ending with April, 1904, compared with those of the corresponding months of the preceding year:

Articles Imported	1903	1904
Pig Iron	$14,327,165	$3,860,502

The following shows the exports of iron and steels manufactures from the United States in the ten months ending with April of each fiscal year from 1890 to 1904: 1890, $21,174,675; 1891, $23,779,522; 1892, $22,495,-251; 1893, $24,885,882; 1894, $23,962,569; 1895, $26,250,722; 1896, $33,995,074; 1897, $46,505,119; 1898, $56,224,165; 1899, $76,272,778; 1900, $68,012,-194; 1901, $99,228,228; 1902, $82,388,463; 1903, $79,839,462; 1904, $89,094,415.

ELECTRIC CAR RUNS AWAY

Burlington, Iowa, June 6.—A heavily loaded electric street car on the Valley street line, yesterday afternoon, was wrecked against a shade tree. The passengers jumped as the car flew along. Mrs. Joseph Kechn was killed and sixteen others were seriously injured. O. J. Gould, publisher of the city directory, had his shoulder broken. Several others had arms and legs broken and many were badly cut about the head and shoulders.

In some unknown manner the brake beam on the open electric car broke just as the car was beginning to descend a steep valley. The car dashed down the long decline with frightful speed and at the foot of the hill it crashed into a shade tree. The car was crowded with people, who began to jump as soon as the danger seemed imminent. Mrs. John Kechn was killed almost instantly, and sixteen others were seriously injured. The injured ones were strewn on both sides of the track down the entire length of the hill. They weer taken to neighboring residences or to hospitals. The injured are:

Mrs. Joseph Carlson, Munson; Miss Jennie Munson, Mrs. Charles A. Munson, W. L. Kesler, Mrs. Davenport, Miss Betty Sandborn, Charles Taeger, Edward M. Hellwig, Mrs. Andrew L. Sloderberg, Miss Emma Thuline, William Kotthamp and Ora J. Gould. It is not believed that any of the injured will dies, although several are in a serious condition.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

FARMER KILLED TWO.

Lexington, Va., June 6.—Edward McCormick, a young farmer of Brownsburg, sixteen miles from here, Saturday night, shot and instantly killed John W. Wade and Arthur Blackwell. The shooting was the result of bad feeling that has existed between the men for three years. It is asserted that the dead men had been drinking and waylaid McCormick and his father on their way home and stoned them, whereupon Young McCormick fired, shooting Wade through the heart and Blackwell through the lungs. McCormick was arrested yesterday.

SSS THE BEST TONIC

In S. S. S. Nature has provided a tonic suited to every requirement of the system when in a debilitated, run-down condition. It contains no strong minerals or drugs, but is a pleasant vegetable preparation. You can find no better remedy for toning up the nerves and bringing refreshing, restful sleep.

S. S. S. improves the appetite and digestion, and its good effects are seen almost from the first dose. It acts promptly in cases of chronic dyspepsia, indigestion and all stomach troubles, and does away with the uncomfortable fullness, shortness of breath, drowsiness and dizziness that so often come after eating. S. S. S. is not only the best tonic, but possesses alterative or purifying properties, and if there is any taint, humor or poison in the blood, it searches it out and removes it. Many times a low state of health is due to a bad condition of the blood and can only be remedied by such a remedy as S. S. S.

If you suffer from debility, weakness, insomnia, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion, or any of the miserable symptoms of a disordered blood, nothing will so soon put your blood in good condition, invigorate and tone up the system and restore the health as S. S. S.

I have used S. S. S. and found it to be an excellent blood purifier and tonic. My system became very much run down and debilitated. I lost twenty or more pounds in weight, had no appetite and was in a bad shape. Seeing S. S. S. advertised I began its use, and am well pleased with the results after using it for some little while. From 130 pounds to 165 is pretty good evidence of merit on the part of S. S. S. H. MARTIN. 50 Second St., Warren, Ohio.

HENNEPIN COUNTY

Republicans Trying to Decide on Candidate For Congress.

Anti-Hearst Democrats Expect to Win Out In State.

St. Paul, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Republicans of Hennepin county will get together this week to decide on a congressional candidate to run against Congressman John Lind of Minneapolis. Representatives from the several political organizations in the city have called a meeting for Wednesday evening in the municipal court rooms in the city hall, when the question of gubernatorial candidates will be discussed behind closed doors.

There are three announced Republican candidates in the field, Former Congressman Loren Fletcher, William T. Coe and Albert Hall. The Republicans believe that unless they can unite on one man and give him their undivided support, there will not be much chance of defeating John Lind.

Mr. Coe and Mr. Hall formally announced that they were candidates at a meeting Saturday night of the Union Veterans' and Sons' league, at Alexander's hall. Mr. Coe advocated reciprocity with Canada and a national incorporation law. Speaking of the latter question, he said:

"Our commercial condition is similar today to the uncertainty of the monetary system prior to the enactment of the national banking law, with the addition that the control of the main forces and instruments of commerce is vested or conferred in a few state-created corporations that have become federal in operation, federal in organization and imperial in power."

Mr. Hall expressed the opinion that the Fifth district will give President Roosevelt at least fifteen thousand majority and that, therefore, the Republican nominee for congress, if supported by all the Republicans, will be elected.

* * *

Anti-Hearst Democrats in the Twin Cities say they are not discouraged over the results of the Democratic primaries in Duluth, which, as reported in St. Paul and Minneapolis, were controlled by Hearst men.

"Of course we shall be sorry if we lose St. Louis county," said an anti-Hearst Democrat of St. Paul yesterday, "but even should the New York publisher prevail at the St. Louis county convention I am satisfied that the conservative Democrats will win out in the state.

"You will notice that the Hearst men have not even had a chance to look in on Ramsey county. There are not enough supporters of the New York publisher in this county to make a corporal's guard. I don't believe that they will put up a fight in the county convention at all.

"I do not believe that there is very much Hearst strength outside of Hennepin, Winona, Stearns and St. Louis counties. I am satisfied that the anti-Hearst men will win out in Stearns and they have a good show in Minneapolis."

DESPONDENT MAN KILLS HIS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Philadelphia, June 6.—W. H. Dorry, aged 60, and his wife, Lizzie, 40 years old, were found dead at their home, 1408 South Juniper street, last evening, death in each case being due to a bullet wound. Neighbors say that they heard shots Saturday night and it is the belief of the police that Dorry shot his wife and then killed himself. The woman's body was found in the kitchen and that of Dorry lay in the second story front bedroom. His head rested on a coat which had been folded for a pillow. Nothing wrong was suspected when the shots were heard but the incessant barking of a hungry dog yesterday led to further investigation. Dorry had been out of employment for some time, which fact is believed to have led him to end the lives of both.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

Rev. Charles Fox Davis Begins Series of Sermons.

What promises to be a very interesting and instructive series of sermons on "The Bok of Job" was begun last evening at the Lester Park Methodist Episcopal church by Rev. Charles Fox Davis, the pastor. The first lecture was largely introductory, the characters presented being God, Satan, Job and his friends. Shakespeare's "Hamlet" and Milton's "Paradise Lost" are not in the same category with the great drama of the Book of Job, he said. Not much is known of the author, some eminent ancient writers ascribing it to Moses. But whoever was responsible for the book, the fact stands out prominently that on the success or failure of Job depended the civilization of the world.

Satan had assailed Job in the spring, summer, autumn and winter, but without avail, and accused God of protecting him with an impenetrable barrier, said the speaker. "Remove from Job his great worldly wealth and strike him in his most cherished belongings," said Satan, "and he will curse God to his face." The story was told in detail how God gave Satan authority over his wealth and belongings, and everything, except the man Job, and how one calamity after naother overtook him until, from affluence he was reduced to abject poverty. And yet with all the afflictions heaped upon Job, he rent his clothing and gave thanks unto the Lord. "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

BREAK IN WHEAT

Market Weaker All Morning and Has Decline of Cent.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 6.—The wheat market was weak this morning, opening lower and declining further. It had a few rallies, but only brief ones, and then fell lower than ever. The cables were lower, Liverpool showing a decline of ½@¾d. The world's shipments were larger than had been estimated. The weather, too, was somewhat improved and an easier feeling in that respect was apparent.

The Duluth market closed 1c lower for July as did also Minneapolis, while Chicago lost ¾c and New York 1½c.

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the previous week and last year, were as follows:

WHEAT.

The amount of wheat on passage increased 672,000 bus, and corn decreased 1,632,000 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 23, against 8 a year ago and at Minneapolis 311, against 401 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 334, against 409 last year. Chicago received 18, against 27 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 422,057 bus., last year 501,445 bus. Shipments 714,221 bus., last year 373,881 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 156,240 bus.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 972,000 bus, last week and is now 20,002,000 bus. against 22,711,000 bus. last year.

Shipments 517,310 bus., last year 867,219 bus. Clearances were 2600 bus. The visible supply of corn decreased 520,000 bus. last week and is now 4,260,000 bus. against 4,931,000 bus. last year.

Trading in wheat was very dull on the Duluth market. The July option opened ⅝c lower at 95⅛c, sold off to 95c at 10:28, rallied to 95⅜c at 10:50, reacted to 95c at 11:18 and advanced to 95¼c at 11:30. It then fell to 94⅝-¾c at 12:45, and closed at 94⅝c, a decline of 1c. The September option lost ⅝c, closing at 82⅝c.

Flax was extremely dull all morning and closed without change.

Oats lost ½c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Sentiment In the Wheat Pit Was Weak.

Chicago, June 6.—As a result of bearish weekly statistics and easier cables sentiment in the wheat pit today was weak. More favorable weather throughout the West and Southwest contributed to the weakness. Trading was inclined to drag owing to a lack of demand. July opened 1⅛@1¼c lower at 87⅞c to 88c, sold off to 87⅝@87¾c and after rallying to 88@88c, the price again declined to 87¼@87⅝c. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 332 cars, as against a holiday last week and 450 cars a year ago.

Reports from the spring wheat country were of a bearish nature and tended to increase the weakness. July declined to 87@87⅛c and closed at 87⅝c, a net loss of ⅜c.

Liberal receipts and a large increase in the amount on passage caused weakness in corn. Easier cables and improved weather conditions were additional bear factors. July opened 1½@1⅝c to ¾@⅞c lower, at 48c to 49¼c sold at 49⅝c, and reacted to 49@49⅛c. Local receipts were 837 cars, with 55 of contract grade.

Prospects of still larger receipts for the next few days caused additional selling later in the day, the market continuing weak the entire session. After selling down to 48¼c, July closed at 48⅝@48¾c, a loss of 1⅛c.

Weakness of wheat and corn had a depressing influence on oats. Trading was light and prices showed a range within narrow limits. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 38⅝c to 39⅜c and held within the opening range. Local receipts were 138 cars.

The feature of trading in provisions was the selling of September lard by commission houses. Sentiment was rather bearish as a result of an easier tone in the hog market. The weakness of grains also was a bear influence. September pork opened unchanged at $11.75 and sold off to $11.72½. September lard was down 2½@5c to 2½@5c, opening at $6.52½@6.55 to 6.55. Ribs opened 2½c up at $6.87½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Pringle, Fitch & Rankin, Chicago: The following detailed statement of the winter wheat crop is made by Mr. Pringle: "I submit herewith a summary of my observations of the winter wheat crop, covering the territory over which I have traveled the last ten days, embracing a distance of about 3000 miles. From St. Louis for a distance of about seventy-five miles via Clover Leaf, indications are for a medium crop, but general deterioration is very marked further East and from Central Illinois to Toledo, and from Toledo to Cincinnati via C. H. & D. R. R., crop is very poor and lmost a failure by reason of winter killing. From Cincinnati to St. Louis via Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, the crop is poor until you reach a distance of about sixty-five miles from St. Louis to Springfield via Prisco, the distance was covered during the night, but this is not a wheat territory. From Springfield to near the Western line of Indian territory, it is a good average crop; but from this point west the crop shows rapid decline, as you approach territory affected by the drouth during the winter and extending up to about April 20. Indications are not for more than 50 or 60 per cent of last year's crop for Oklahoma. The Kansas crop is very spotted; in western sections the crop has suffered by reason of dry weather in the spring, but not so marked as in Oklahoma, and the only section of the state indicating a full crop is from Elsworth to Kansas City via Union Pacific, a distance of 225 miles, but in this territory is embraced the Kaw Valley, one of the most productive sections of the state. Considerable damage has been done in Kansas and Oklahoma by the recent floods. It will require most favorable climatic conditions up to and including harvest for the state to raise more than 85 per cent of last year's crop. It is difficult to estimate the acreage in Kansas and Oklahoma that has been plowed up and planted to other crops, and that which was totally destroyed by the floods, but it is very considerable. Missouri seems to be the most favored of an of these soft winter wheat states, and from Kansas City to St. Louis via the Chicago & Alton railroad, the crop averages slightly better than other sections, and near Glasgow, Mo., the outlook is very fine; but there are many fields very poor and it is doubtful if the state averages more than a medium crop. It is the concensus of opinion that the general harvest will be from two to three weeks late."

Chicago Record-Herald: Wheat is just now in the transitory period between an old and a new crop. Jun nominally ends the crop year, but the old crop promises are expected to present themselves for settlement until the end of July. The trade has it figured that July will be an old crop future in so far as adequate commercial supply of wheat is concerned. There is, neverth-less, a sharp debate period as to the price. One side of the controversy estimates that wheat will be fully as scarce in July and perhaps fully as high in prices as now. The other believes that not only will there be a fairly respectable movement at least from the new crop during that month, but that the approach of harvest will cause a loosening up of offerings from the old crop. During the last week there were evidences that wheat heretofore tenuously held by producers was coming to market. The total primary market arrivals for the week were 1,520,000 bus as compared with 1,460,000 bus the previous week and 1,919,000 bus the corresponding week of last year. If this gain should be improved upon this week it would undoubtedly have an influence in the market.

Chicago Record-Herald: After making two trips over the entire winter wheat belt except Pacific coast states, the traveling crop expert for A. J White & Co. reached Chicago last night. "After summing up all of my reports I can see nothing better than short to medium crop of winter wheat," said he. "Ohio, Indiana and Michigan will not raise more than one-third of an average crop on the acreage seeded. The crop in Oklahoma west of the Rock Island road, about one-half of the territory will not raise 10 to 20 per cent of a crop and most of it is not worth cutting. In fact, Oklahoma's good wheat section this year is limited to five counties in the northeast part of the territory, where it will go 50 per cent to last year. The Missouri crop is good except in the central part, where some sections are rain and light and sustered loss from fly last fall. There are also important overflow losses on the Mississippi bottoms both above and below St. Louis. The crop is very thin, poor and spotted in Nebraska west of Hastings and in the west half of Kansas and Texas. Overflow losses have been important in Southern Illinois and Indiana, but plain winter killing is responsible for most of the losses in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana."

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Wheat—Large world's shipments, 10,000,000 bus, easier cables and an increase on passage were all against the price and the expectation of better weather also encouraged liquidation and a decline, however, did not, we think, been to change the market again to an oversold condition and so susceptible of a sharp advance when an effort is made to cover. The weather from the Southwest was unfavorable and there was a good deal of buying on this.

Corn—The sharp advance of last week stimulated the country movement and as the falling off in country acceptances had much to do with the advance, so their resumption as shown by the large estimated receipts of 860 cars for tomorrow had a depressing effect. We feel that the break will again check the movement and advise the purchase on the dip.

Oats—This market was easy and a trifle lower in sympathy with wheat and corn, but there was at no time any great pressure to sell. The situation in oats would become extremely bullish should rainy weather continue.

CHANGE IN STOCKS

Former Advanced Sharply, While the Latter Declined Rapidly.

New York, June 6.—Only a dozen stocks were quoted in the first five minutes of trading, and of these half were unchanged. The others showed mixed gains and losses of ⅛ to ¾, except General Electric, which rose a point, and Virginia-Carolina Chemical ½.

Ontario & Western touched 25⅛ before the demand for it was satisfied. Prices then sagged to below last week. Amalgamated Copper lost its rise. Losses of 1 to 1¼ were made by the Colorado & Southern stocks, Tennessee Coal and Cotton Oil preferred. United States Steel preferred and Locomotive fell moderate fractions. Bonds were irregular.

Minor railroad and industrial stocks broke heavily on small offerings. Business in other quarters was practically suspended. Chicago Great Western fell off 1, the preferred "B" 5, and the preferred "A" 8 points without adequate explanation. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie also lost ⅞, and Pump and Rubber Goods preferred 1½ each. North American improved ¾.

With the exception of sensational decline of Chicago Great Western securities there was nothing to relieve the dullness. Selling of Chicago Great Western common and preferred by a crowd abruptly and the preferred again slumped again to 47½, a loss of 13½. Pump extended its loss to 3½ and Wisconsin Central preferred declined 1. Railroad Steel Spring rose ⅞. C. C. & St. L. made a fresh advance to 25½. Chicago Great Western preferred B, rallied 1½ and the preferred A 3½. Allis-Chalmers rose 1 and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred fell 1⅜. Some of the weak stocks hardened moderately and the closing was dull and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: There are no changes in conditions. Ontario & Western advanced sharply on heavy buying, and is still the object of much guessing. Outside of that there was very little change and very little doing. Easy money is the mainstay of the market, but the long and continued indifference of the public has finally made an indifferent professional element. There is no shortage anywhere except in wheat, and that is problematic. The market is absolutely without tendency.

* * *

Coe Commission Co.: The stock market opened steady this morning, the features being the weakness in Great Western stocks and the strength in Ontario and Western. Traders were offering the Great Western, trying to start liquidation and break the market. The strength in Ontario & Western was due to heavy buying orders for London account. Canadian account, doubtless Canadian Pacific interests. The general market eased off a little. We believe the good standard shares should be bought.

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is in a state of utter stagnation and dead-lock, and it is impossible to say when it will come out of the rut. There is not the slightest sign of improvement in the genral business situation, rather the contrary, and it looks as if the contraction must go further and the earnings of railroads show a still greater falling off. Railroads, industrial corporations and private concerns are laying off men every day. This means of course, decreased consumption and poorer business. Whether the stock market will soon begin to take account of this or not it is impossible to say, but I believe that we must see lower prices between now and the nominating convention.

Ridgely to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market may rally a few points, but I do not think it will hurt you to sell stocks such as Missouri Pacific conservatively on a scale up. There is little or no short interest in Missouri Pacific. Though Atchison, Consolidated Gas, Steel pfd, and Pennsylvania may all go lower, short interest in these makes them somewhat risky. There are some stocks like Southern Pacific, Brooklyn Rapir Transit and Tennesse Coal & Iron that might be bought on a scale down and profits taken on each separate lot when in sight. The positions of coper and smelters are good. My own view is that you will be better off by doing nothing temporarily; that is, to wait for more activity, when we will be able to get a better line on the market.

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Market continued quiet, but prices remained fairly firm and in some cases were higher than Saturday. Buying in Ontario & Western was very noticeable, but it looked like manipulation, and although there are rumors of higher prices for the coalers, it is evident that upon every advance stocks are for sale and we continue to feel that the short side of the market is the best for limited profits although we do not look for any big movement.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 6.—The cotton market opened weak at a decline of 12@20 points under lower cables, continued liquidation and generally favorable weather. After losing another few points on the activ months, with July selling down to 11.16 and October to 9.70, there was some covering, on the theory that the market had been oversold, and a rally of 5 to 8 points followed, after which trading, which had been very active, quieted down somewhat and the market ruled very irregular. The chief selling on the early break seemed to come from Southern sources, while Wall street continued buying, and then there was some demand for foreign account, believed to be for continental spinners. But after advancing to 11.28 for July, the market weakened again under a renewal of bear pressure, with that position at the end of the first hour off to 11.14, or the lowest point so far since the decline started.

Cotton spot closed steady, 15 points lower. Middling uplands, 11.60; middling gulf, 11.85. Sales 341 bales. Futures closed easy; June 10.98; July, 11.11; August 10.63; September, 9.84; October, 9.51; November, 9.44; December, 9.42; January, 9.48.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Nothing of a sensational nature developed at the Amalgamated company's annual meeting. None of the officials of the company were present. Amalgamated is acting well as anything else in the market. Other coppers are dull and slightly changed in price. The general stock market is acting rather better than would naturally be expected. Prices refuse to go down. The outlook seems to favor advancing rather than declining prices.

MAY AFFILIATE WITH FEDERATION

Duluth Harbor Masteres and Pilots Ordered to Vote.

Would Bring Into Fight Other Forces of Great Power.

The above message, received today by the local branch of the Masters' and Pilots' association, is taken to mean that head officials of the organization have come to the conclusion that the strike cannot be won without outside assistance. The message is from Cleveland, headquarters for the association, where Howell, district captain, resides.

In accordance with the instructions contained in the telegram, a special meeting of Harbor No. 44 has been called for this evening, when a vote on the proposition will be taken. It is said that the local members are practically unanimous in favoring affiliating with the federation, and that there is no doubt that at the close of the evening the captain of the local harbor will be able to wire to Cleveland that it

CITIZENS TO TALK

County Board to Be Called Upon By Several Committees.

Will Urge Against Decision on Present Courthouse Location.

The board of county commisisoners will convene tomorrow afternoon.

Up to this noon there was little new business on file to come up at the meeting, but there is the usual amount of routine business to be transacted, including some county road and school district hearings. No new petitions for county roads have thus far been filed since the last meeting of the board.

The most important matters that will come up for consideration at the meeting will be in regard to the location of the new courthouse.

Committees representing the local Bar association and the West Duluth Commercial club will probably request the commissioners to select a location nearer the business portion of the city, while a committee from the Duluth Commercial club will urge that the matter of a selection of a site be held in abeyance for a time. It is likely that all three of the committees will concur in the request that he commissioners do not commit themselves at the present time to the old courthouse site.

Arguments will be presented by lawyers and business men why another site will be preferable to that on which the courthouse now stands, and the commissioners will probably give their views as to a selection of a site if they have definitely decided to build the new county courthouse where the old building now stands.

The county road appropriation will be divided among the various commissioner road districts, and arrangements will go forward looking toward road repair and improvement this summer.

Appointed to Board.

Patrick McCabe, secretary and treasurer of the Duluth Wholesale Supply company, who resides at 2301 West Third street, has been appointed by Mayor Cullum to the vacancy on the board of labor and employment commissioners. The board as now constituted is as follows: O. T. Strand, Henry Dworschak, Patrick McCabe and William F. Markus, secretary.

The appointment is made by the mayor no consent of the council being necessary.

Showing Little Interest.

"Very little interest in politics is shown in Blue Earth county," said City Clerk Cheadle, who returned last evening from a short vacation trip to his old home in Blue Earth. "The people down there don't appear to be taking much interest in the guebernatorial fight.

"The southern part of the state has been getting just about as much wet weather as we have up here. It has been raining almost constantly there for the past week or two and the farmers are commencing to complain of the duration of the wet spell."

DONNELLY, MINN., MAN SUCCUMBS TO WOUND.

Minneapolis, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ray W. Harrison, the Donnelly, Minn., busines man who was shot at that place last week by Miss Meda Mahn, who immediately killed herself, died at St. Mary's hospital here Sunday afternoon. Harrison's body will be taken to Donnelly for burial. The girl left a note, in which she said Harrison had wronged her.

MORE DETERMINED

Than Ever Are Masters to Win the Fight.

Cleveland, June 6.—"If the Lake Carriers expect that the defection in our ranks at Milwaukee would cause a stampede, they are greatly mistaken," said District Capt. Howell, of the Masters' and Pilots' association, today.

"The letters from many ports," continued Mr. Howell, "show that our members are more determined than ever to win the fight. Up to date we have signed contracts covering 212 vessels outside of the Lake Carriers' association. On the other hand the Lake Carriers' association has not sent out to exceed twenty boats."

CAREFULLY PLOTTED

Was Explosion Which Killed Non-Union Miners.

Cripple Creek, June 6.—Most of the victims of the dynamite explosion have families. That the crime was carefully hatched and deliberately perpetrated there is now not the shadow of a doubt. Two or three hundred pounds of powder were exploded by a revolver attached to a wire which still remains leading out from the scene of the explosion.

There is seventy-five yards of wire which was used to pull the trigger of the revolver, which fired the immense charge of powder. The rear end of the wire was uncoverede at noon by a railroad construction gang.

A large quantity of recognizable remains of human beings were also uncovered. Sheriffs Burton and Wilson and Underwood stood guard over the pile of debris.

TRIUMPHS OF MODERN SURGERY.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It so allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all druggists.

NEW BOARD APPOINTED TO SELECT NAVAL SITE.

Washington, June 6.—The president has appointed Captain William H. Reeder of the navy, William M. Bradley, of Portland, Me., and Henry M. Waite, of Lexington, Ky., a grandson of the late Chief Justice Waite of the supreme court, a board to select the most available site for a naval training station on the great lakes.

A naval board, headed by Rear Admiral Taylor, had recommended that the school be located at Lake Bluff, on Lake Michigan, not far from Chicago, but as many people were dissatisfied with this site, congress authorized the president to appoint a board, composed of one naval officer and two civilians to determine the matter. The civilian members of the board were required to be residents of states not interested in the controversy.

CONDITIONS IN THE GREAT GOLD CAMPS BORDER ON ANARCHY; FURTHER OUTBREAK OF LAWLESS ELEMENT EXPECTED SOON

Thirteen Deaths Result From Outrage at Independence.

Several Injured In Critical Condition and Cannot Recover.

Two More Were Killed In the Rioting at Victor.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 7.—After a night of terror comparative peace prevails throughout this great gold camp today, but conditions are still of a volcanic nature and nobody believes that the trouble is yet ended. Thirteen deaths have resulted from the dynamite outrage at Independence, several of the injured are in a critical condition, and two men were killed and eight wounded in the subsequent rioting in Victor. Following is a list of the casualties in the rioting:

Killed:

ROXE McGE.

Wounded: J. A. Reed, Joe Findley, Fire Chief Murphy, Peter Chrisman, Fred Studebach, Peter Calderwood, Arthur Parker, James McKelvey.

A thoroughly organized vigilance committee, composed of mine owners and their employers and sympathizers, has taken charge of the government of Teller county, and large squads of armed men are patrolling the district. These men are ostensibly acting under orders of Edward Bell, the new sheriff, who is a large property owner and an outspoken opponent of the Miners' union.

Sheriff Henry M. Robertson resigned under compulsion. He was forcibly taken to the headquarters of the Mine Owners' association and his resignation was demanded. At first he refused to resign, but when finally a coil of rope was thrown at his feet, he weakened and signed the resignation, which had been provided for him. The first act of Sheriff Bell was to take away the star of Under Sheriff J. Knox Burton. Then he appointed twenty-five deputies, to which force large additions have since been made, and later he disarmed the union officers who had been appointed by City Marshal Michael O'Connell of Victor. Meantime O'Connell had visited the mine owners' headquarters, in which about thirty armed men were assembled, and demanded that they surrender their arms to him. He was forcibly ejected, and after being deposed from office by Mayor French, he was placed under arrest. Many of the other regularly chosen peace officers of the various towns in the district also have been deposed and some of them locked up with about 200 union miners, who were arrested after the rioting in Victor.

The sentiment of the mine owners, as voiced by C. C. Hamlin, secretary of the association, is that all union miners must be driven out of the camp. His declaration that the time had come to "purge the district" started the rioting at the mass meeting in Victor called to discuss the dynamite outrage at Independence.

"It's up to you to drive these scoundrels out," Hamlin had declared, whereupon Alfred Miller, a union man who had been sworn in as deputy sheriff, raised his rifle and inquired "whom are you referring to?" Miller's rifle was seized and the shooting began, which resulted in the killing of Roxie McGee, a non-union miner and the wounding of six other persons, one of whom, John Davis, also a non-union miner, died a few hours later. The first shot was fired by some one in the crowd. This was followed immediately by two rifle shots from the windows of the Miners' union hall. A man standing in the door of the union store, it is said, also fired into the crowd with a repeating shotgun.

Sheriff Bell called on the local company of the state guard, commanded by Captain Harry G. Moore, to assist in preserving order and in arresting the men in the Union hall. Soldiers were stationed on the roof of the building opposite the hall and from this point of vantage fired into the door and windows of the hall. A scattering fire was kept up by both sides for twenty minutes at the end of which the miners surrendered. Only three wounded men, Calderwood, Parker and McKelvel were found in the hall and there were no casualities in the attacking party. The uninjured men in the hall, forty in number, were all placed under arrest and all books and documents of the union were seized.

During the night further arrests were made in Victor, Goldfield and Independence. The union stores in Victor and Goldfield were wrecked and the stocks scattered in the streets by a mob. This was not countenanced by Sheriff Bell or others in authority. Among those taken prisoner was Editor George Kyner, of the Victor Record but he was subsequently released.

A bloodhound brought from Trinidad took the trail of the person who exploded the dynamite at Independence by pulling a wire attached to a revolver or some other instrument and thereby murdered at least thirteen workingmen, and followed it from Bull Hill to the Colorado Springs wagon road. Detectives Robert Sterling, of the Mine Owners' association then declared that he was convinced that he knew who caused the deadly explosion.

A posse of 300 deputy sheriffs, armed with rifles and revolvers, is now scouring the hills of the Cripple Creek district, with the object of rounding up every union man and every idler in the camp. They will be escorted to the county lines and warned never again to return to Teller county.

The union men also are well armed and say they will resist any attempt at deportation. Many of them are desperate and serious trouble may occur.

ditions prevailed, fears of another outbreak at any moment are general. Throughout the nigth squads of citizens, reinforced by details of the militia, traveled over the district making arrests, until now the bull pen is filled with 20 or more prisoners. The city marshals of Anaconda, Goldfield and Independence are among the prisoners. Together with the city marshal of Victor and the sheriff of Teller county, this makes a total of five officials of the Gold camp towns who have been deposed since the trouble of yesterday began.

Adjt. Gen. Bell remained in his office at the capitol here until a late hour last night, expecting a call for troops from Cripple Creek, but none came. The fact that Sheriff Bell, the successor of the deposed Teller county official has expressed a determination to handle the situation without the aid of troops other than the local companies, gives assurance to many that the citizens of the camp have offered him all the assistance necessary to meet the conditions, and that the trouble will be brought to an end by sheer force of pluck. Sheriff Bell is known as a man of nerve, and this was demonstrated when he compelled the deputies appointed by the deposed city marshal of Victor to surrender their commissions and guns to him personally. No attempt is being made by the so-called vigilantes, and the new police officers to interfere with crowds who congregate on the streets, and, although nearly every one is carrying arms unconcealed, Sheriff Bell and his deupties and the soldiers mingle freely among them searching for persons upon whose arrest they are bent. All citizens of the district, union and non-union sympathizers alike, unite in condemning the atrocity at Findlay, which caused loss of life and precipitated a condition in the district little short of anarchy.

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

Telluride Miners Demand Protection Afforded By Law.

Telluride, Colo., June 7.—A. O. Floaten, one of the proprietors of the People's Supply store, M. J. Sullivan, secretary of the local miners' union, and Tony Rolla, a bartender, who have been advised by the military authorities to leave San Miguel county, have retained Congressman H. M. Hogg as counsel and acting under his advice, have decided to remain here until forced to leave.

The following telegram has been sent to President Roosevelt at Washington, to which no reply has yet been received:

"Have been ordered to leave our homes by June 7, but do not intend to go. We, as citizens of the United States, demand your protection under the constitutional rights. The civil courts would protect us, but are powerless. The governor will not protect us.

"A. O. FLOATEN.

THE UNION'S SIDE.

Vice President Williams Talks of Outrages.

Denver, Colo., June 7.—The News today prints the following interview with Vice President Williams of the Western Federation of Miners, who is acting president during Mr. Moyer's imprisonment in the military bull pen at Telluride:

"Troubles at Cripple Creek—the riot and disturbances there—are simply an attempt to disrput the union and bring the strike to a close.

"It is my candid opinion that the Citizens' Alliance, an organization that is and always has been biterly hostile to the unions, is at the bottom of this attempt to break the strike by a display of violence.

"The opinion among the miners is the Citizens' Alliance is afraid that the committee that has just returned from Cripple Creek may have produced good results by its visit.

"It is to break the strike and discredit the unions that the disturbances of yesterday were started.

"News dispatches contain references to the mass meeting that was in progress when the trouble originated. My own opinion is that this meeting was called by Mr. Hamlin of the Mine Owners' association, ostensibly to give an opportunity for free and fair discussion of matters involved in the strike, but that as a matter of fact the scabs, employed in the mines, were to play the part of miners. Then when a union man attempted to speak he was to be shot down.

"As for the Citizens' Alliance, its members are absolutely unfair and pay no attention to law and order. This was brought out in the Telluride strikers, when miners were driven out and many forms of violence put into effect to defeat the strike.

"This whole matter came up in a manner that appears very peculiar. Just after the visit of our commitee, when the strike was progressing satisfactorily, and during the governor's absence, the trouble springs up. There are few soldiers in the district. The Citizens' Alliance, absolutely unfair, will resort to anything. Such outrages do not occur during the presence of the military, who are responsible to some one besides themselves.

"Our organization is founded on the principles of truth and justice, and its members as much interested as other persons in suppressing lawlessness. Whoever committed the dastardly crime at Independence must be found and punished, and we want to put ourselves on record as helping to bring that about."

DENOUNCE OUTRAGE.

Miners and Mine Owners Condemn the Explosion.

Victor, Colo., June 7.—At a meeting of the Mine Owners' association of the district, held last night, the Findley outrage was discussed and the deepest feeling of indignation expressed, and it was the unanimous opinion that under no circumstances should the murderers escape. May of the members pledged their individual support to run down and punish the conspirators, and a large reward will be offered by the association.

The county commissioners and different mine managements will offer individual rewards also.

The local committee of the Western Federation of Miners has authorized the Associated Press to say that they deplore the diabolical murder. The following is a statement given out by them last night:

"No men who deserve to live would or could approve the awful deed. The fiends who planned and carried out the devilish crime should be detected and punished to the full extent of the law.

JAPANESE MAKE DETERMINED LAND AND SEA ATTACK ON PORT ARTHUR—RESULT IS UNKNOWN

Heavy Firing Heard North of Stronghold All Day Monday.

Indications That Russians Sent Out Fleet For Sea Fight.

Forty-One Mines Removed From Talien Wan Bay.

Che Foo, June 7.—Preceding a sea attack on Port Arthur last night, the Japanese apparently made a determined effort to advance on that stronghold by land.

A Chinese junk which left a point three miles south of Port Dalny early Monday morning has arrived here. She reports having heard firing north of Port Arthur from seven o'clock Monday morning until 2 o'clock that afternoon, by which time she passed out of hearing distance. It would appear that the Japanese planned a land and sea attack on Port Arthur yesterday. The Russians on seeing this sent their fleet out to give battle. The result is not known.

The above dispatch would seem to confirm the dispatch previously received at Che Foo today from the Associated Press correspondent at Teng Chow, Shan Tung peninsula. The correspondent said there was firing at Port Arthur last night, beginning at 11:30 o'clock and continuing for several hours.

The above Che Foo dispatch also confirms the report brought there by a Chinese junk which arrived during the night. The latter reported that there was heavy firing all day yesterday, in the vicinity of Port Arthur.

Che Foo, June 7.—An impression prevails here that a naval battle took place last night in the gulf of Pechili. Passengers on steamers passing the Liao Tieshan promontory at the time did not hear any firing, while reports come from Teng Chow of heavy firing being heard there from 11 o'clock last night until 2 o'clock this morning. Vessels from the Miao Tao islands confirm this report, and so do the residents of hills in the vicinity of this city, who heard the firing and saw flashes out at sea during the night. The fact that the Russians were endeavoring, on June 4, to clear the roadsteads, off Port Arthur, of mines indicates an intention upon their part to give battle outside the harbor upon the first favorable opportunity. A Japanese correspondent, returning from Talien Wan, says there is a persistent rumor that the Japanese battleship Yashima struck a mine off that port recently and was sunk. Chinese arrivals from Talien Wan are unable to confirm the story.

COSSACKS ARE ROUTED.

MISS ADELE MALONEY.

St. Louis, June 7.—Governor Van Sant of Minnesota, his staff and more than 300 members of the Minnesota Editorial association, assembled at the Minnesota building today and formally dedicated the structure to the World's fair. The ceremonies were conducted under the auspices of the Editorial association, and were very simple in character, at the close of which Miss Minnie Sota Whitney Marshall, of Minnesota, unfurled the state flag. Miss Ada Murphy, of St. Paul, is the hostess of the Minnesota building.

One of the features of the exercises this morning was the singing by Miss Adele Maloney, of Minnesota, who was selected by the state commission as the soloist for the occasion is Miss Maloney possesses a beautiful soprano voice, especially effective in colorature selections.

RETURN TO WORK

Yielded to the Arguments of Eveleth Business Men.

Eveleth, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The striking miners at the Drake & Stratton stripping contract returned to work this morning, having accepted the reduction in wages. Of those who originally struck only about 250 remain in the city. The others left for other points to accept employment, feeling that it was useless for them to remain and work at the wages offered. Yesterday three Italians left for Eastern points and Saturday a party of eleven Austrians departed. These are only two of several like instances.

The four shovels at the stripping are all in operation today. The common laborers at the mine will receive $1.50 a day where before they were paid $1.65, while the freightmen will draw $1.65 a day instead of $1.75 as before. The shoved men, only a few in number, will continue to be paid at the rate of $2 a day, as in the past.

It was largely through the arguments and influence of the citizens of Eveleth that the strikers returned to work. The men decided that $1.50 a day was better than nothing, and it was plainly apparent that unless the reduction was accepted the company would give up the work entirely for the time being, and all the men would be without employment, greatly injuring the business interests of the town.

Yesterday it was announced about town that the men would stand firm, but at a meeting last night it was decided that the only thing for them to do would be to return to work.

SNATCHED FROM GRAVE

Girl Revived After Being Thirty-Six Hours In Coffin.

Chicago, June 7.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Custer, S. D., says: After lying thirty-six hours in her coffin, Mabel Fearing, the 5-year-old daughter of C. M. Fearing has been revived. The child was saved through the intervention of Dr. E. S. Norton, a relative, who was at the house to attend her funeral. Dr. Norton noted the rosy cheeks and unchanged appearance of the child and refused to permit the coffin to be closed. He called other physicians and an effort was made to revive the child. At last signs of returning animation were noted. Half an hour later the stethescope indicated a return of strong heart action. With proper care the child will soon be in an advanced convalescent stage.

CLEVELAND-HEARST COMBINE IS EFFECTED BY HOPKINS FOR ILLINOIS CONVENTION

Madison, Wis., June 7.—This morning's feature of the semi-centennial jubilee celebration of the University of Wisconsin was the inauguration of President Charles Richard Van Hise, Ph. D., in the presence of a great gathering at the Armory, which included many distinguished educators and other prominent men from the East and the West. The exercises were preceded by the academic procession. Brief addresses were made by President William R. Harper, of the university of Chicago, on behalf of sister universities; Hon. Robert M. LaFollette, '79, governor of Wisconsin, on behalf of the state; Hon. John J. Esch, '82, member of congress, on behalf of the alumni; Hon. William F. Vilas, '58, on behalf of the board of regents; Professor Frederick J. Turner, '84, on behalf of the university faculty; Eben R. Minahan, '04 law, on behalf of the students of the university; Hon. Charles P. Cary, state superintendent, on behalf of the Public school system of the state. The exercises closed with the inaugural address by President Van Hise. The newly inaugurated "prexy" is entirely the product of the Badger state; he was born here, educated and taught in both the common schools and university, of which he has become the official head. He is 54 years of age and has a family consisting of a wife and three daughters.

Vote For Hearst Few Times and Then For Cleveland.

Thus It Is Hoped to Make Cleveland the Nominee.

Chicago, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A Cleveland-Hearst combination is the latest development in Illinois politics. John P. Hopkins, who is anxious to see Grover Cleveland again nominated by the Democratic party for president, is uniting his forces with those of William R. Hearst in this state against Carter H. Harrison, and the Hopkins-Hearst combine will probably control the state convention. This is their program:

1. Re-elect John P. Hopkins chairman of the Democratic state committee.
2. Defeat Carter H. Harrison for national committeeman, not from any great desire to have the office, but with a view to discrediting him and making it impossible for the mayor to pick the next mayoralty nominee of the party in Chicago.
3. Endorse William R. Hearst for president and vote for him for one or perhaps two ballots at St. Louis. The Hopkins leaders are of the opinion that Mr. Hearst stands no chance of nomination, but they propose to keep their agreement made with his representatives previous to the Cook county primaries and support the publisher. This support may go on until Mr. Hearst says "quit," for the reason that the Hopkins people expect to have a hand in naming the Democratic county ticket and will desire the support of Hearst for that ticket.
4. Hold compromise conferences with such Harrison leaders as William Loeffler and Thomas Carey in naming a slate for the county convention, which will be held June 20.
5. Make an earnest fight for the Democratic nominee for governor and the party county ticket.

Astute politicians, outside of the contending factions in the Democratic party, figure that should William R. Hearst get the indorsement of the state convention in Illinois, such a move may break the backbone of the Parker boom. From a political viewpoint it is believed that such an indorsement would at least put a cloud over the chances of the New York jurist, while not particularly helping the cause of Hearst who is said to have practically abandoned the campaign already. Such a move would undoubtedly be a great stumbling block in the pathway of the New Yorker and with the friends of

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Another Prominent Physician Uses and Endorses Pe-ru-na.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

A constantly increasing number of physicians prescribe Peruna in their practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so-called patent medicines and recommend it to their patients.

Peruna occupies a unique position in medical science. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession today. Catarrh, as everyone will admit, is the cause of one-half the diseases which afflict mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of the United States.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner United States Treasury.

Robert R. Roberts, M. D., Washington, D. C., writes:

"Through my own experience as well as that of many of my friends and acquaintances who have been cured or relieved of catarrh by the use of Hartman's Peruna, I can confidently recommend it to those suffering from such disorders, and have no hesitation in prescribing it to my patients."—Robert R. Roberts.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does.

Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

WEST DULUTH WOULD END LIFE

Samuel Savage Makes Several Attempts at Suicide.

Finally Lands In Jail—Boulevard Extension Desired.

Samuel Savage, a bachelor Frenchman, who lives by himself in a shack just to the rear of the National Iron works, in West Duluth, was arrested early this morning on complaint of the watchman at the Oneota shingle mill, charging the man with having made attempts at suicide three times within a few minutes. Savage, who is 58 years of age, is now resting in the cell at the West Duluth engine house. It is thought that he is not quite right in his mind, although he is not at all violent.

The night watchman at the mill says that Savage entered the building at 3 o'clock this morning. He is an odd character, given to roaming about at all hours of the day and night, and is well known to residents of West Duluth, so that his appearance at this unusual hour caused little surprise. Soon, however, Savage produced a rope, stepped under the stairs and threw the rope's end over a beam, proceeding to fasten the other end about his neck. The watchman interfered, and gained possession of the rope, greatly to the disappointment of the Frenchman.

Relaxing his vigilance for a moment, the watchman next saw his visitor sprawled over a beam near the ceiling, with the evident intention of dropping to the floor below and landing on his head. He was rescued from his perilous position before he had time to inflict injury upon himself.

For a time after this Savage remained undemonstrative. He did not stay quiet long, however. Suddenly he dashed out of the door to the mill pond and leaped into the water, submerging himself in it.

By this time the watchman was becoming alarmed for the safety of his strange patient, and after a third rescue, called for the police. Officer Anderson responded, and some time between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning, Savage was safely landed in the lockup.

BOULEVARD DRIVEWAY.

People Impatiently Awaiting Its Extension.

West Duluthians generally are impatiently awaiting the time when work will be commenced on the extension of the boulevard, from its present terminus at Fortieth avenue west to the Oneota cemetery road, which merges into Fifty-ninth avenue west.

This route will open a driveway direct to the splendid road leading from West Duluth to New Duluth, and thence to Fond du Lac. It is argued that the drive around the boulevard, and then towards New Duluth and Fond du Lac, will become a very popular one, and daily bring visitors in numbers through West Duluth, offering them an opportunity to observe its advantages and attractive features. With the pretty scenery along the St. Louis river, it would be hard to find a prettier drive than the one towards Fond du Lac.

Several aldermen, with members of the park board and city engineer, went over the route of the proposed extension a short time ago. The sentiment of the entire party was in favor of the extension, and great enthusiasm was expressed at the magnificent view to be had from that portion of the hill. The line the party followed was surveyed last year. Besides its favorable location, the new road is favored on account of its cheapness of construction. Little if any blasting will be necessary, and the cost will be comparatively small. With 100-foot right-of-way donated by property owners, and ample funds in the treasury for its construction, it is expected that the work will be finished before the summer is over.

IRVING SCHOOL BANQUET.

The annual banquet of the Irving school alumni will be held at the school building on the evening of June 17. It is expected that there will be at least 150 guests in attendance, many of them from outside the city. Arrangement and decoration committees have been appointed, and plans for the event are practically complete. The hall and table decorations will be elaborate. Miss Kenny, principal of the school, will act as toastmistress.

V. R. Method, who has been treasurer of the St. James Catholic church for the past five years, has resigned the position, and J. P. Hammll has been appointed as his successor.

Action against the boys who took a Northern Pacific handcar without permission and rode on it towards Duluth was postponed from yesterday to today. A railway official, with a West Duluth officer, will see to arresting the ringleaders of the crowd today.

The contract for sprinkling the streets of West Duluth this year has been let to H. R. Patterson. Fifty-ninth avenue is to be sprinkled from Cody to Gosnold and Grand avenue from Fifty-fifth to Fifty-sixth avenues west.

At the council meeting last night the rewiring of the West Duluth fire and police station was ordered. City Electrician Hough gave it as his opinion that the building stood in danger of being burned at any time because of defective wiring. Chief of Police Troyer made the statement that three fires had already started in the building from the wires. The equipment was put in many years ago, when the improved type of insulation and protective systems of wiring were not in use.

Final action on the matter of the petition of West Duluthians residing directly north of the Irving school, whereby it is asked that the petitioners be allowed the use of the school sewer system as an outlet for a branch sewer leading from the houses in question, was postponed until the next regular meeting of the board of education last night. A further investigation of the matter will be made. It is thought the pipe in question is too small to be used for the purpose desired.

Apparently In Search of Something Other Than Cash.

Some unknown midnight prowler entered the safe of the Crane & Ordway company at number 12 West Michigan street last night and left without taking any valuables as far as can be discovered. The safe had been left unlocked last evening, when the office was closed for the day. Neither the heavy outside doors or the light inner ones had been locked although both were closed. All that was necessary for the burglar was to turn the handle of the outer door.

He gained egress to the shop by breaking a pane of glass in the rear door and reaching through with his arm to lift down the bar which locked it.

It was then an easy matter for him to open the safe and gain access to the cash box inside.

No money had been left in the safe by the cashier, although the cash box contained several dollars' worth of postage stamps. The burglar pulled out the cash box and broke through the tin with some sharp instrument. Through the aperature he pulled out the papers which the box contained and the postage stamps. The papers were carefully sorted over and laid to one side, and the postage stamps left undisturbed.

The unknown visitor, when he completed his search, made his escape by the way he had come, and nothing was known of his inspection of the contents of the .safe until this morning, when the employes came down to open the shop for the day. They then discovered the open safe and the papers lying about on the table and realized that some person had entered the shop during the night. A thorough search failed to reveal anything missing.

The object of the unknown burglar is a complete mystery. From the manner in which he sorted over the papers contained in the cash box, he was apparently in search of some particular document which he believed was among them. The members of the company are unable to give the police any clue as to who the stranger might be, or as to the document for which he was searching. The manner in which he left the postage stamps undisturbed would conform with this opinion.

He was apparently familiar with the building and its surroundings from the manner in which he gained entrance to the office.

Sweeping Changes In Management of Harvard Athletics.

Cambridge, Mass., June 7.—Notice of important and sweeping changes in the management of Harvard university athletics has been given to the under-graduate managers by Professor S. H. White, chairman of the Harvard athletic committee. The 'varsity crew and the track team must raise the funds necessary for their expenses; baseball and football must support themselves out of gate receipts; the promoters of minor sports and all freshman teams must raise all their money themselves or else not be allowed to compete, and in case of any deficit, games cannot be played. Professional coaches will be employed for the football and track teams only, and the managers must retrench in the matter of sweaters, numerals, medals, cups and other prizes.

The reason given for the new rules is that the construction of the new stadium in Soldiers' field put the committee in debt to the amount of $70,000.

PUBLIC HOLIDAY

St. Louis, June 7.—Preparations are being made for the reception of the famous old Libery Bell, which is to arrive tomorrow from Philadelphia. Mayor Wells has issued a holiday proclamation and the city will welcome the sacred American relic. The bell will be escorted from its car to the Pennsylvania building, where it will hang during the exposition. The schools will be closed during the day and thousands of school children will, by special order, be admitted to the grounds free.

A committee consisting of Charles W. Knapp and Judge W. F. Boyle, representing the exposition company, and a committee consisting of Hon. Thomas H. Carter and Hon. John M. Thurston, members of the national committee representing the United States government, will endeavor to effect a settlement of a question that has arisen regarding the right of the national commission to control the free admissions to the exposition or to have a voice in their control. It is stated that since early in May the national commission has sought to restrict the number of free admissions. President Francis, as the head of the Exposition company, took the ground that it was not within the province of the national commission to stipulate as to the number of free or other admissions to the exposition.

MARTIN IS OUT

Shaw Exchanged For Noldin—Ball or O'Leary Captain.

Material changes have been made in the line-up of the Duluth baseball team during the past twenty-four hours. They were announced this afternoon by Manager Van Praagh.

Frank Martin, the captain and second baseman leaves the Duluth team temporarily at least. He has been claimed by Little Rock in the Southern league under a 1902 contract. Martin is claimed to have jumped the Little Rock team at the close of the season, and the manager has been after him ever since that time. He has finally succeeded in securing an order from the national committee which forces Martin to quit playing for the present at least. His case will have to be settled by the national committee before he can play again with the Duluth team, and he may be returned to Little Rock.

"Joe" Wilkes has been recalled from Superior to take Martin's place. Wilkes was too good a man to let go and Van Praagh kept a string on him thinkingthat he might need him at some time. It was fortunate that he did so for the time came sooner than was expected.

The other change consists in the swapping of Shaw for Noldin with Superior. Noldin was always a favorite with the Duluth fans and they will welcome his return, especially after the brilliant work he has been doing for the Superior club since he was loaned to it by Van Praagh. Shaw's work in the box this season has been a disappointment. At the close of last year he was looked upon as one of the most promising pitchers in the league, but this season he has been wild and ineffective. He has a good arm on him, however, and will probably make good yet with the Superior club.

Noldin's return will strengthen the pitching staff materially by adding a southpaw to the list. All of the pitchers at present with the team are right-handed throwers, and the club stood in need of at least one southpaw.

The team, if anything, will be strengthened by the changes. It necessitates the choosing of a new captain, however. Just who will be chosen is doubtful, but it lies between Ball and O'Leary. Either the shortstop or the catcher will be selected for the position, but the choice will not be announced by Manager Van Praagh for a day or two at least. The team work depends largely on the ability of the captain to handle the players and it is an important position to fill.

The changes take effect today. Hank Gehring, who has been at his home in the southern part of the state for the past day or two, returned this afternoon, and will pitch today's game against Grand Forks.

A general demand has arisen among the fans to change the hour of the game from 3:30 to 4 o'clock. Very few business men are able to get away from their duties by 3 o'clock in the afternoon, which is necessary if they desire to see the opening of the contest, whereas if the games were set for 4 o'clock they would be able to do so.

The complaints concerning the hour have been heard from all sides, and it is not unlikely that the management will comply with what seems to be a very general demand.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Ontonagon Man Has Narrow Escape From Dynamite Explosion.

Ontonagon—Eugene Laveigne, of Ontonagon had an experience with dynamite which came near ending his earthly career and just how it happens that he is still in the land of the living is something which he and those who witnessed the accident are unable to comprehend. Laveigne was employed on the Diamond Match drive on the Baltimore. There was a jam and in order to break it the use of dynamite was resorted to. Sticks were prepared and Laveigne who has had much experience in handling this explosive, touched them off. The fuses did not work properly at first and while the man was attempting to fix them an explosion followed. There was a general upheaval. For a few seconds the air was filled with flying logs and splinters and Laveigne was in the midst. When the commotion subsided a number of persons who witnessed the accident rushed to the rescue, expecting to find the man torn to pieces. They pulled him out from under the debris, and while his clothing had nearly all been torn off and he had sustained injuries on more than a hundred places on his body he was a long way from being numbered among the dead. His face and arms were literally filled with slivers, but no bones were broken nor did he suffer any permanent injuries. Laveigne is able to handle himself, although he is still sore from his experience. His face and arms are a sight, looking as if somebody had attempted to dance a clog on him with calked boots.

Manistique—Mr. and Mrs. William Bebeau and Ralph McCauley, of Manistique, plan to attend the St. Louis exposition and will make the trip to the World Fair city in a gasoline launch, which has been especially fitted up for the trip. The yacht has a roomy cabin and is speedy. The trio expects to leave early in June, making the distance leisurely, going via the Fox, Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers. On their return trip, they will visit Chicago. It will be late in August before they will reach home.

Escanaba—The contract for laying the new intake pipe for the Escanaba Water company has been awarded to A. Q. Thatcher of Toledo, O. The contract price is $18,750, for which amount the contractor will do the entire work aside from furnishing all the material for constructing the pipe 2600 feet into Green bay, together with the crib at the outer end. Mr. Thatcher's bid was not the lowest submitted but as his company is known as one of the best on the great lakes the consulting engineers recommended the acceptance of the proposition. According to the terms of the contract the new intake pipe must be finished within ninety days from the time that the first length of pipe is laid.

PULITZER CASE

In Montana Has Been Knocked Out.

Helena, Mont., June 7.—The case of the state vs. Ralph Pulitzer, pending in Teton county, in which the young New York millionaire is accused of violating the game law by killing a Rocky mountain goat, has taken another sensational turn.

As heretofore stated in these dispatches, there was an absolute stipulation that the case should be tried June 2, and witnesses had been subpoenaed for that date, but on June 1 the attorney general signed a stipulation that it should again be continued for the term.

When the attention of District Judge Smith was called to this stipulation he stated that the case had been discontinued at the last jury term upon the stipulation of the attorney general without excuse having been shown why numerous witnesses had been subpoenaed at great expense to Teton county, and that the same thing had now been requested. He said he believed the attorney general was not prosecuting the case in good faith, and that therefore he would entertain a motion upon the part of the county attorney to dismiss the action and not allow the county to be put to further expense.

The county attorney of Teton county has always been opposed to the prosecution of Pulitzer, holding that the evidence was not sufficient to justify the prosecution, and the case will doubtless be dismissed.

Pulitzer will go to Fergus county on June 16 to answer a charge of having unlawfully killed game there.

Michigan—R. Clinton Platt, W. S. Sperry, Freeland G. Stecker.

TELEGRAPHERS' TROUBLES.

The Situation at St. Paul Remains Unchanged.

St. Paul, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local situation in regard to the difference between the Western Union Telegraph company and the members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America remains unchanged from last night. The company, so the men say, in spite of their declaration that the men were discharged on account of depression in business, hired an additional operator this morning.

The officials of the tlegraph company refuse to discuss the matter, but the officials of the union say the grievance will be taken up in the regular form under the constitution of the order and the final disposition to the national executive officers. They would not be surprised to see the local office and the offices at Minneapolis and Duluth tied up at any minute, through a spontaneous outbreak of the men.

CLEVELAND-HEARST COMBINE

Cleveland in control of the delegation, would open the way for the ex-president in a manner that would not be possible otherwise.

Tammany is believed to favor Cleveland, and the Southern states are not adverse to him. As most of the delegations to the national convention from the South are uninstructed, as well as the big delegation from Pennsylvania and the delegation from New Jersey, the power of such a move toward Cleveland can be readily estimated and foreseen.

Furthermore it has long been figured by the leading Democratic politicians of the country that a man who does not enter the St. Louis convention on the first roll call is likely to be a winner. It has been freely predicted that Bryan will bolt Parker and that Cleveland, under any circumstances, would be a much stronger candidate than the New York judge. Should such a situation develop it does not seem unlikely that Cleveland might be the nominee.

NEW COUNTERFEIT

For One Hundred Dollar Gold Certificate Discovered.

Washington, June7.—Chief Wilkie of the Unite States secret service announces the discovery of a new counterfeit $100 gold certificate. The counterfeit is of department series; act of July 12, 1882, check letter B; plate number 5; J. W. Lyons, register, Ellis H. Robert, treasurer, portrait of Benton.

This counterfeit is a well executed lithograph, printed on bond paper of good quality, bearing blue ink marks in imitation of the silk fibre of the genuine paper. The most noticeable defect is the portrait of Benton where the absence of light and shade effect give it a flat, unnatural appearance. The back of the notes is not so well executed as the face. The good general appearance of this counterfeit make it dangerous, but it should be readily detected on close inspection, particularly if the portrait is examined.

MUCH RED TAPE

Large Amount Involved In Burning of City Bonds.

Each One Burned Separately and Affidavits Are Made.

The city has money to burn, or rather bonds to burn.

Some day this week Aldermen Barnes, Trevillion and Wing and City Clerk Cheadle will get together in the basement of the city hall and cast into the fire, bonds representing $40,000. The bonds will be burnt one at a time and the aldermen will watch while each is consumed to ashes.

One year ago the voters at the general election authorized an issue of $100,000 of water and light bonds for extensions of water and gas mains. Of this amount only $60,000 worth of bonds were issued at the time, as this was all that was required by the water and light department for immediate use.

The remaining $40,000 worth of bonds were prepared and signed by Mayor Hugo, but were not issued and have remained in the vaults in the city comptroller's office since that time.

Recently occasion arose for the use of the bonds in the building of the West Duluth supplementary reservoir and City Attorney Bert Fesler was asked for his opinion in regard to their legality. He gave it as his opinion that in issuing the $60,000 worth of bonds, the city had exhausted its authority under last year's election, and that together with the change in the city's administration, would render the bonds unsaleable at least, on account of legal technicalities which might arise.

Last night City Clerk Cheadle called the attention of the council to the fact that the bonds were still in existence, lying in the vaults of the city comptroller, and asked that a committee be appointed to attend to their destruction. The council committee on finance was selected to burn the bonds. There are forty of them, each one representing $1000, and the aldermen will carry this worthless fortune to the basement and consign it to the flames. The description of each bond will be noted, and they will be burned separately. The aldermen will then be sworn before a notary public, and make a statement that they have seen all of the bonds described destroyed by the flames, and that they are no longer in existence. This statement will be filed among the records of the council.

While the bonds would be utterly worthless if they fell into any person's hands they might prove a source of endless annoyance to the city if they were allowed to remain in existence. Should they fall into the hands of an innocent purchaser, law suits might result, and the credit of the city would undoubtedly be injured. Every care will therefore be taken that every vestige of the issue is consumed.

RUSSIAN SCHEME

To Assail Sweden and Norway Is Foiled.

New York, June 7.—A Christiana dispatch says Scandinavia is anxious that Russia may receive a blow from Japan so that she may learn to leave neighboring nations in peace. Improved relations between Norway and Sweden were long ago determined by the Russian attitude toward Finland.

Subversion of the Finnish constitution was not only treachery against Finland, but it also involved a plot against the Scandinavian kingdom.

Russia supposed the Finlanders would take to arms.

The Russian army could then have marched in and drowned Finnish resistance in blood. The Russians thought the Finlanders' death cry would ring painfully in Scandinavian ears, provoke the united kingdom to commit imprudence or imprudence toward Russia, or involve them in complications that might give Russia the desired pretext for letting her army advance further west and take possession of the North Atlantic coast.

Finland's submissive attitude has saved Sweden and Norway from the plot. Scandinavia has received a useful lesson to settle its internal affairs amicably.

PAYNE WILL NOT

Be Chairman or Vice Chairman of Committee.

Washington, June 7.—Postmaster General Payne has given out an interview in which he states that he will be neither chairman nor vice chairman of the Republican national committee this year. He takes this ground on the advice of his physician, who tells him that he must retire from active business and take a long rest if he is to live out the allotted number of days. This statement comes in answer to newspaper stories published in the Middle West that Payne might retain his present position as vice chairman of the national committee.

SUED BY HIS DOCTOR.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coachella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

FOR LAST TIME

Normal School Graduates Assemble In Chapel Exercises.

Addresses Are Made and Seniors Present a Farce.

This morning, at 9:30 o'clock, the last chapel exercises of the year were held at the assembly hall of the normal school. The regular service was observed, the selection and hymns being the seniors' favorites.

Following the exercises, Superintendent R. E. Denfeld, of the city schools, spoke to the graduates for a few minutes. Mr. Denfeld dwelt on the good the normal schools of this country are doing and the progress and accomplishments of the schools in this state.

J. L. Washburn also spoke to the graduates. He expressed his pleasure in seeing so many graduates from the school this year and that so many of the number had selected the advanced graduate course. To have the percentage in the advanced courses large speaks well for the school and Mr. Washburn hoped the normal school here would keep up the high per cent with which it has begun. He said that with his association with this graduating class he had discovered that beauty and utility may be combined and on the whole gave a very happy little speech.

The seniors had charge of the remainder of the program and they presented a little farce made up entirely of hits upon the faculty and their mannerisms or hobbies. Every remark told and the half hour that the seniors were in possession was one of great jollity.

This evening the first annual banquet will be given by the faculty for the graduates and the alumnae and after the banquet the alumnae association will be formed. At 9 o'clock a reception will be held in the library for the friends of the school.

KATE HAS A KEEN NOSE

The value of the police bloodhounds in assisting the police to run down criminals was clearly demonstrated Sunday morning. The little incident was kept secret by the police as they hoped to locate the criminals yesterday.

Sunday morning J. E. Morgan of Ninth avenue east and London road appeared at police headquarters and reported that a chicken coop belonging to him, situated at Sixteenth avenue east, had been broken into Saturday night by thieves and twelve spring chickens stolen.

Captain Resche immediately started for the scene, taking "Kate" the mother of the bloodhound pups with him.

It had been raining heavily the previous night and Mr. Morgan and the police captain discovered a large footprint just outside the window of the chicken coop. They put "Kate" on this track, and she immediately started for a lumber yard adjoining the coop. She circled about among the lumber piles for a moment, emitting an occasional howl, and then returned to the coop, where she stopped at a piece of lathe which had been thrown down in front of the door. It had evidently been used by the thief in attempting to open the door.

She then started off down the railroad tracks of the D. & I. R., straining at the chain which the captain held. When she struck the cinders on the tracks she redoubled her speed and her howls. The scent evidently clung to the cinders through which the heavy rain of the previous night had drained away. She ran along the tracks followed by the police captain and Mr. Morgan, crossed the high trestle work bridge and darted up the steep embankment at Tenth avenue east, and stopped at a large rock. Strewn about the rock were the heads of a dozen chickens, while near by was found a sharp stone covered with blood and feathers which had evidently been used to behead the birds.

From the stone she again took up the scent, went down the embankment to the railroad tracks again and continued along the right of way to Seventh avenue east, where she ran up a path to Superior street. On the sidewalk on Superior street she lost the trail, and refused to go further. The scent was then at least twelve hours old, and it had been raining almost constantly during that time. The dog had been working for over an hour in the wet grass and was exhausted. It was the firm belief of the captain and Mr. Morgan, however, that if the weather had been fine she could have followed the scent down Superior street and perhaps have located the destination of the thief, unless he had boarded a car.

The police were delighted over her work. There was no doubt but that the dog followed the trail, which was twelve hours' old, for nine blocks through the wet grass and across a trestle work bridge. The finding of the chickens' heads was proof positive that she was on the right trail, and had the weather been fine she might have run down the offender.

The story that the pups are to be returned is denied by the police, who claim that they have not yet been tried out.

SUGAR REDUCED.

New York, June 7.—All grades of refined sugar have been reduced 5 cents per hundred pounds.

Waters of Whitewood Creek Still Isolate City of Deadwood.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—While the waters of Whitewood creek have fallen to a considerable extent, they are still high enough to completely isolate the city, the mail from surrounding towns and camps being brought in over the mountains on pack horses.

The first estimate of the damage to the city is about correct, while that to the surrounding camps and country may aggregate a trifle more. At Terry on Saturday night the dam of the Horseshoe Mining company broke, letting the impounded waters come with a rush through the main street of the camp. The flood struck a saloon, in which were eight men. Two of them, Slavonians, rushed for the door and plunged into the stream in their excitement and were drowned. Their bodies were recovered. The building collapsed and the others were badly injured, one man having his leg broken while the rest were otherwise hurt. The body of Matt Bender, drowned at Central City on Sunday, was found Monday.

Mrs. Patsy Carr, wife of a prominent citizen, is under a $2000 bond for attempting to burn the building owned by Ayres & Co., hardware merchants. Since the death of a daughter Mrs. Carr has had a mania for setting fire.

Huron—The decision by the United States supreme court in the famous O'Brien county, Iowa, land case is especially gratifying to Col. John H. King, of this city. Upon this decision hinged the validity of title to about fifty quarter sections of land, aggregating in value something like $10,000 each. The case taken to the United States supreme court, and which was understood to be a test, was that of Knepper vs. Sands, a homesteader, Col. King representing Sands.

Wessington Springs—Rev. H. E. Newton has accepted a call as pastor of the Universalist church of this place.

The town school closed with a picnic on the school grounds. The commencement exercises of the grammar school were held in the M. E. church.

Belle Fourche—An irrigating association, to be composed of farmers and ranchers along the proposed irrigating ditches, is to be organized, and Congressman Martin and Capt. Seth Bullock have arrived for the purpose of assisting in the organization.

Sturgis—Guy Shoudy, a farmer of Spring Creek, was drowned. He attempted to cross Bare Butte creek on horseback.

Edgemont—D. B. Aultz, an engineer on the Burlington train between Newcastle and this city, was scalded to death and Fireman Robert Freeman dangerously injured by the breaking of a tube in the boiler of their engine.

Wessington—A large delegation of Odd Fellows came from Huron and instituted Evening Star lodge, No. 157, starting out with twenty-six members. Grand Secretary Harvey J. Rice conducted the ceremonies and the Huron team did the work. Delegations were also present from St. Lawrence and Virgil.

Armour—Not much headway was made the past week in circuit court, which is in session in this city. One criminal case was disposed of, the defendant pleading guilty and receiving a fine of $25. The jury in the case of Clarence Rupp vs. the city of Armour returned a verdict for the plaintiff, which means that the city must pay the claims against it for the sinking of an artesian well two years ago that proved to be a failure. The well was not properly cased and it has cost the city about $3,500. It flowed freely at first, but in attempting to attach it to the mains it ceased almost entirely, and the pipe is now filled wit hshale rock, showing the casing did not reach to the bottom of the hole. The city refused to accept the well.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—T. J. Fordham, who was convicted at the December term of district court on a charge of highway robbery and sentenced to three years, has been granted a new trial. Judge Pisk heard the arguments, and on showing that jurors were secured from other than the regular panel, owing to the fact that the jurors not engaged at the time had been excused over the day, granted a new trial.

Clara Alvina Benick had her marriage to John A. Benick annulled in the district court. They were married here two years ago and a short time ago Mrs. Benick No. 2 received a letter from Mrs. Benick No. 1, living in Minneapolis. Mr. Benick, who is a barber, did not deny that he had a wife living, but asserted he had secured a divorce from her. His second wife declined to prosecute him and proceeded to get a divorce.

Mayor George E. Duis has returned from a visit to the St. Louis fair and is enthusiastic over the showing that has been made there by the North Dakota commission.

Mrs. Peter Maguire, one of the pioneer citizens of the city and state, died early Sunday morning. She came to Grand Forks thirty years ago.

Fargo—Much interest has been taken in the action of property owners in the first ward to secure a permanent injuction against the house in the district along the river. The owners secured the injunction and a notice of appeal was filed. Another fight was made on the question of permitting the houses to remain open pending the decision of the supreme court, but Judge Pollock held that his injunction was permanent and immediate, and the houses will be closed by the authorities. Some of the business men object to the places being closed. They are segregated and in a locality where they cause as little annoyance as possible. It is feared when the places are closed the women will secure rooms in the business blocks and private residence districts and be of much more annoyance than formerly, where they were well controlled by the police. No defense is attempted by the business men on moral grounds, the majority taking the view that the social evil can best be controlled by keeping the establishments confined to certain districts.

"FRONT YARDS" ON THE ROOF.

John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, W. K. Vanderbilt and Charles M. Schwab are about the only millionaires in New York who can support the luxury of yards around their city houses. J. Pierpont Morgan has a fine house in Madison avenue, but his yard is only about the size of a billiard table. Havemeyer, the sugar man, has a little green blanket of grass in front of his house, and he prizes it so highly that he has erected safety deposit bars about eighteen feet high around it. Mrs. Astor's fine white mansion, in Upper Fifth avenue, hasn't a blade of grass around it, and the same is true of two or three of the Vanderbilts', Helen Gould's, Elbridge Gerry's, Charles T. Yerkes', Mrs. Herman Oelrich's, Whitelaw Reid's and 100 other magnificent places along Riverside drive, but even there it is only the richest kind of a man who can buy a plot of real estate big enough for the purpose. Naturally, people less favorably situated are beginning to look around for other means of bringing the fresh air to their homes, and many have taken to the plan of fixing up their roofs. Many little arbors are being constructed on the rooftops of the city, which serve the dual purpose of a dining room for the evening and a playground for the children during the day. Vines and flowers are planted, and a skeleton structure is erected to encourage the creepers upward. The poor of the tenement district have been using the roofs for a long time as sleeping quarters on hot summer nights, and the model tenement house of the future will have special provisons for rooftop bowers.

FORESTERS MEET

High Court of United Order Holding Biennial Session.

Supreme Ranger H. L. Southworth of Chicago Is Here.

The biennial session of High Court Superior, U. O. F. is being held today in Hunter's hall.

High Court Superior has jurisdiction over all of the lodges in Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan. A meeting is held once every two years for the election of officers and the transaction of regular business, and delegates attend from all of the different lodges within the jurisdiction of the court.

The meeting this year is being held in Duluth, and between forty and fifty of the most prominent members of the United Order of Foresters in this state and Northern Wisconsin are in attendance.

Supreme Ranger H. L. Southworth, of Chicago, is also in the city to attend the meeting, and is a guest of honor.

The meeting was called to order this morning and remained in session until noon, when an adjournment was taken for luncheon.

The meeting convened again at 2 o'clock and the chances are that the business will be completed before it adjourns this evening.

An informal dance and supper will be given the visiting members by the Court Eastern Star, the local branch of the organization, this evening.

The high court has a total of 1637 members under its jurisdiction in Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin.

At the session this afternoon the officers for the coming two years will be elected. The present officers are as follows: High ranger, John MacMurchy, of Duluth; high vice ranger, Harry Milnes, of Duluth; high secretary, W. H. Thorn, of Itasca; high treasurer, I. W. Gilleland, of Duluth; high physician, Dr. Orchard, of Superior; high auditor, George W. Boyden, of Duluth, and J. G. Van Wogenen, of Itasca; high chaplain, Ruth Mallory, of Duluth; high archer, L. S. Knowlton, of Ashland; high inner woodward, Lydia Wills, of Ashland; high outer woodward, Nine Chapman, of Aitkin.

Miss Mrytle Stewart, of Superior, was chosen this morning to act as assistant to the secretary in transcribing the minutes of the meeting.

Gold For Pensions.

The outlay for pensions since the foundation of the government, if met in gold, would make an obelisk 10 feet square and 108 feet high. This illustration gives an idea of what three billion dollars mean. The best illustration, to give you an idea of the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is to point to the fact that during its 50 years' experience it has never failed in cases of dyspepsia, indigestion, insomnia, nervousness, heartburn, constipation, general debility and malaria, fever and ague. You can therefore depend on it in your case. Have you a bad taste in the mouth, tongue coated, yellow complexion or severe headaches? Then you need the Bitters at once. A few doses now may save you a long sick spell. Accept our advice and you'll thank us afterward for it.

UNIONISTS TO BE BANISHED

Will Be Deported From the Cripple Creek District.

Victor, Col., June 7.—Mayor French said today that in his opinion no more troops are needed here.

"Company L, now on duty, consists of sixty men," he said, "and the number can be increased to 100 if neessary. Besides these soldiers we have 100 armed deputies. The civil authorities have perfect mastery of the situation. Should the military turn over their prisoners to the civil authorities there will be no lynching."

However, the feeling is strong against Alfred Miller, who is said to have started the rioting here, and Former City Marshal Michael O'Connell, who, it is asserted, deputized union men, who fired upon people in the streets from the Union hall, and Harvey Starbuck, former marshal of Independence.

Every person in the district has taken sides with one faction or the other here, and should rioting break out anew it would not cause surprise.

"The Western Federation of Miners will be banished from the district," declared the mine owners. "It has not been proven that the dynamiting was done by the federation," retorted union men; "we have a right to organize and to remain here."

Both sides express a determination to fight to the bitter end. In Victor business is practically suspended and conditions in Cripple Creek are little if any better. All saloons have been closed by order of the authorities. Many merchants have closed their stores and all who can are increasing their insurance.

Two more names were added today to the list of those killed by the Independence dynamiting. They are:

GEORGE S. HENDERSON.
FRED BECKLEY.

It is believed that the bodies of several others were blown to atoms. George Hall has been appointed coroner in place of James Doran, who has been forced to follow the example of Sheriff Robertson in resigning, and will hold the inquest over the dead miners.

STRUCK DEAF AND DUMB.

Preachers Say Modern Miracle But Doctors Dissent.

Chicago, June 7.—Prayers were offered at Moody church Sunday night for Julian Renfro, who, it is declared, was made deaf and dumb when he protested that he must remain an agnostic till he "received such a sign from heaven."

Renfro's case, as told by friends and Dr. W. S. Jacoby, of the Moody church, is a remarkable one. Physicians declared it was probably hysteria. Clergymen, while saying it might be a modern miracle, withheld a positive statement until more familiar with the occurrence. According to the statement of Renfro he and three companions were playing cards in his room at 205 La Salle avenue, last Tuesday night, when the conversation took a religious turn.

"I was raised a Christian," said Renfro, "but have bene reading so much of Ingersoll's works and studying theosophy and hypnotism that my belief has been shaken. Let God prove His power. Let him take away my sight, my speech and my hearing, then, I will believe."

Almost before the words had passed his lips he gasped and fell from his chair unconscious. His companions summoned a physician. At first the physician thoughtt he man was shamming, but after a further examination, decided he was for the time deaf and dumb.

Physicians say a man might make such a declaration in an excited condition of mind and be convinced that such a thing was possible as the taking away of his speech. They say it is a diseased condition, functional rather than organic, and that the condition may become permanent if the brain is sufficiently disordered.

CONDITION OF CROPS

Shown By the Weather Bureau's Weekly Summary.

While too cool for best results in portions of the lake region and in the Mississippi valley and Northern Rockies, with excessive moisture and lack of sunshine in the Central Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys, the week, as a whole, has been very favorable in the districts east of the Rockies. Drought in the South Atlantic and east gulf states has been very generally relieved, although more rain is needed in portions of Florida and in the central and west gulf coast districts. The North Pacific coast also experienced a favorable week, but in California nearly all crops were injured by drying north winds.

Over the western portions of the corn belt, the growth of corn has been checked by lack of warmth and sunshine and it is much in need of cultivation, while in the central and eastern districts planting and replanting have been delayed by rains. Poor stands are reported from the lake region, Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states.

In the Southern states, the general condition of corn is promising, although rain is needed in the central gulf coast districts.

Winter wheat has suffered somewhat from heavy rains in portions of Oklahoma and Missouri; elsewhere the crop has advanced favorably, but the outlook over the Eastern portion of the winter wheat belt continues unpromising, although more or less improved in the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states. Wheat is now heading as far north as the Central Mississippi valley, harvesting being general in the Southern states. On the North Pacific coast, the crop has advanced favorably and is heading; in California it is maturing rapidly, the late sown having been seriously damaged by hot winds.

With the exception of some weedy fields in South Dakota, spring wheat is in a very promising condition in all districts. Oats have made vigorous growth throughout the central valleys and Middle Atlantic states and a general improvement in condition of this crop is indicated in nearly all districts.

Seeding is now practically finished in the extreme Northern sections and harvesting continues in the Southern states.

As a whole there has been quite a decided improvement in the condition of cotton over nearly the whole of the belt.

In the extreme Northern states there is an encouraging outlook for apples, but in the Central Mississippi and Ohio valleys and Middle Atlantic states, the prospects appear to be somewhat impaired by excesive dropping.

The previously reported promising condition of grass continues generally throughout the country.

WHALE OVERCAME TUG.

Four large whales entered the Sinslaw river near this point last week, according to reports that have just been received here, while the river was at flood tide, says the Florence, Ore., correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. The leviathans played havoc with a tug and some small boats that were near by. When the whales entered the river they were apparently having a good time, catching fish.

Tiring of that sport they started out to sea, but missed the channel. Three of them ran on the south pit, while the other was shot at by a watchman. Supposing that the whale was dead he put a rope around it and tried to tow it down the river, but was unable to move the heavy body.

The tug L. Roscoe came along at this stage of affairs and attempted to assist the watchman in towing the body. But the whale had revived from the effects of the watchman's shot and proved itself very much alive. The tug couldn't hold the monster, which started up the river, dragging the boat stern first. The tug finally struck a shoal and the line parted.

The whale immediately turned toward the ocean and in going down the river at a terrific gait struck the watchman's skiff, breaking it into splinters and throwing the watchman about 20 feet into the air. The man succeded in reaching the bank after an exciting experience and the whale escaped them.

UNUSUAL EVENT

New Englander Invited By Southern Manufacturers to Talk.

Will Hear Lesson of Experiences of Northern Competitors.

Washington, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Within the past decade Southern orators have frequently enthused Northern audiences with glowing accounts of the industrial progress of the New South, but it is a very unusual, if not unprecedented occasion, for a Southern commercial organization to invite a New Englander to read them a lesson of the experiences of their Northern competitors in order that they may profit by them. Consequently, the action of the Georgia Industrial association in inviting Daniel Davenport to deliver the address of the ocasion at the forthcoming annual meeting at Warm Springs, Georgia, next Thursday, has attracted wide attention, in view of the importance of the topics to be discussed and their bearing on the commercial development of the South.

Mr. Davenport was selected for this honor because his wide acquaintance in New England and his exhaustive investigation of the relations between the millowners of that section and their employees thoroughly fitted him to discuss the subject in a highly intelligent manner. He is an attorney by profession, and the executive agent of the American Anti-Boycott association through force of circumstances. Some years ago he became interested in the case of D. E. Loewe & Co., hatters, of Danbury, Connecticut, not far from Bridgeport, where Mr. Davenport lives. This firm had resisted the efforts of labor organizations to "unionize" their shops, and had been boycotted by them, the American Federation of Labor and substantially all union labor. Boycotting circulars were sent throughout the country, with the result that their business and that of a number of their customers who stood by them was seriously injured. Mr. Davenport's sympathies were thoroughly aroused by the despotic methods employed by the Hatters' union to enforce its demands, and he discussed them with a number of his friends among the manufacturers of Connecticut, Massachusetts and elsewhere, with the result that they induced him to lay aside his large practice for the time and go on a mission to manufacturers who were susceptible to boycotting, and present to them the idea of organizing an association to fight any boycott declared against any member. He traveled for a year or more, visiting thousands of factories and finding the owners welcoming the idea as a mutual insurance against the dreaded boycott. As a result, the American Anti-Boycott association was formed, with Mr. Davenport as executive agent, and Former Solicitor General James M. Beck as general counsel, but with the personnel maintained secret. The plan of the association is very simple. When one of its members is boycotted, the entire strength of the corps of attorneys is directed toward securing the enforcement of the law against boycotting, picketing or otherwise interfering with the manufacturer or sale of its goods. It is not generally known that Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas and Wisconsin, already have laws against boycotting, and a strong movement is on foot to secure similar legislation in other states.

The objects of the association are to secure the enforcement of these laws, to prevent their repeal, and to procure the enactment of similar laws in other states. Because of its great interest in legislation of this character the organization fought the Grosvenor anti-injunction bill with all its strength, for that bill substantially legalizes boycotting. For the same reason it opposed the eight-hour bill by means of which the labor unions hope to put all factories making government supplies on an eight-hour basis; also the national arbitration bill, which proposes a national commission to arbitrate all labor disputes, on the ground of unwarranted and undesired interference by the government in disputes between employers and their employes. In addition to representing his association against these measures, Mr. Davenport also represented, either wholly or in conjunction with others, the Chicago Building Trades Contractirs' council, the National Building Employers' association, the Citizens' Industrial Association of the United States, and other allied organizations. It is interesting to note that the anti-injunction bill is still in committee, the eight-hour bill has been referred to the secretary of commerce and labor, and the arbitration bill has never left the hands of the sub-committee.

Mr. Davenport's speeches before the congressional committees attracted such widespread attention that he has received many invitations to discuss the subject of labor disputes from the standpoint of the employer before organizations similar to the Georgia Industrial association. Not the least interesting of his experiences has been his debates with leading Socialists in different cities. He vexed the Socialists by condemning their doctrines in scathing terms, while arguing to the committees of congress that the leaders of labor unions, were imbued with socialism. Consequently he has been challenged to debate the question and has appeared before Socialistis audiences a number of times in defense of his outspoken position. One of these debates occurred in Bridgeport, his home, and another in New York, the house being packed on both occasions.

While in Washington last winter he met President F. B. Gordon, of Columbus, Georgia, and Fuller E. Calloway, of Legrange, Georgia, and other members of the Georgia Industrial association, who were also appearing in opposition to the eight-hour bill, with the result that he has been invited to address a typical audience of Southern millowners on his experiences and observations among Northern manufacturers and his address should prove of much interest. Mr. Davenport is a man of something more than average height and weight and wears an air of perfect self-reliance. Coupled with a somewhat commanding appearance, he has a natural gift of oratory, speaking almost always without notes. He holds himself always well in hand and his familiarity with the subject he most frequently discusses enables him to meet and parry, in unusually skillful manner, interrogatories designed to be disconcerting. His long experience on the stump, in the courts and on the platform has trained him to face any kind of an audience without a tremor, and his magnetic manner and piercing black eyes assist him in captivating his auditors.

NEW CABLE

To Be Laid From Menado Tua to Shanghai.

Berlin, June 7.—The Frankforter Zeitung announces that a syndicate of German and Dutch capitalist shas been organized for the financing of a cable from the Dutch island of Menado Tua, off the coast of Celebes, East Indies, to the island of Guam and thence to Shanghai. Through a connection with the American cable it is intended to eliminate British influence over the German and Dutch cable business with East Asia.

A company for laying the cable will be formed with a capital of $1,750,000, the German and Dutch governments giving large subsidies. It is also intended to issue a four per cent loan of $1,875,000 which will be taken by the Dresden bank, the Schaaffhausen bank, the Disconto Gesellschaft and the Darmstadter bank of Berlin and two Dutch banks.

TO INSPECT SUN.

Chicago University Sends Expedition to Mount Wilson.

Chicago, June 7.—The university of Chicago, with the aid of a grant of $10,000 from the Carnegie institution for use during the current year, has sent an expedition to Mount Wilson (5886 feet), near Pasadena, Cal., for the purpose of making special investigations of the sun. The work will be under the immediate direction of Professor G. E. Hall, director of the Yerkes observatory. During his absence Professor E. B. Frost, as acting director, will have charge of the work of the observatory.

The instrument to be used on Mount Wilson is the snow horizoatal telescope o. the Perkes observatory. This powerful telescope will give a large image of the sun, especially adapted for the photographic and spectroscopic investigations which the expedition expects to undertake.

Spectropelliographs and spectroscopes of new designs and of great power are under construction for use with this telescope.

KING'S FINAL LEVEE.

London, June 7.—The final levee of the present season was held by King Edward at noon today in the throne room at St. James' palace. It was largely attended. Amabssador Choate and Second Secretary Carter represented the United States embassy. The only American presented was Nelson O'Shaughnessy, secretary of the American legation at Copenhagen.

SWEEPING LAW

Proposed City Ordinance Against Carrying Concealed Weapons.

Improvement of East Fifth Street Ordered—Other Matters.

The council last night:

Gave first reading to ordinance prohibiting carrying of concealed weapons.

Ordered extension of East Fifth street with bridge at Twenty-second avenue.

A new ordinance, designed to prevent the carrying of all kinds of dangerous weapons, was given its first reading at the meeting of the council last evening.

The ordinance was introduced by Alderman Haven. It provides a maximum penalty of $100 fine or imprisonment for a period not exceeding ninety days for convictions of any persons carrying pistols, revolvers, slungshots or other dangerous or concealed weapons.

The ordinance is a very broad one, and covers practically every kind of weapon known to the police, including daggers, dirks and metal knuckles.

"I believe the ordinance will assist the police in preventing these cutting scrapes and shooting scrapes," said Alderman Haven last evening. "There is already a state law covering the ground, but a city ordinance may make prosecution a little easier, and will give the police a better hold on those men who are addicted to carrying concealed weapons. I would like to see the law in regard to this matter most rigidly enforced, for I believe it would prevent many of the cutting and shooting scrapes."

The order for the improvement of East Fifth street was finally passed. It provides for the grading, paving and the placing of a new curb in East Fifth street, from Woodland to Twenty-third avenue east, and makes provision for an ornamental bridge over the ravine in the normal school grounds. The normal school board will stand one half of the expense of the bridge.

* * *

The board of public works reported that it would cost $5560 to repair the bridges on Grand avenue at Sixty-first and Sixty-sixth avenues west, so they would bear the weight of the large cars, and $10,362 to place the bridge over Lester river in a similar condition. The bridges, according to the report of the board were never intended to sustain the weight of the large cars, and the repairs would practically amount to the rebuilding. The board stated that there was not sufficient money in the fund to warrant the expenditure of any such amount, and the matter will probably be dropped until next year at least.

* * *

A petition was received from the property owners on Twenty-third avenue east, asking for the paving of that avenue from Superior street to Fifth street. The petition was referred to the board of public works.

First alley between Superior street and First streets, from Lake avenue to Fourth avenue west, was ordered paved. The cost will be from $8000 to $12,000, according to the kind of material selected.

* * *

Chief Troyer in a communication to the council, stated that the report of the city electrician shows that the wires in the West Duluth police station are in a very dangerous condition. Three different fires have already been caused by the deefctive wiring, and while the damage from them has been very slight the electrician reports that a fire may break out at any time. He recommended that the building be rewired. The mater was referred to the proper committee.

DESPONDENT OVER ILLNESS

Despondent over an illness that has made his life a burden for the past ten years, Theodore Neuman of 507 East Sixth street, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by cutting the veins in his arm, and by swallowing a bottle of iodine. His efforts were ineffective, and he was reported to be recovering last evening.

Neuman has been suffering from epileptic fits for the past ten years, and his left side is partially paralyzed. Yesterday morning his wife had gone out and the two sons and a daughter were down town at their respective occupations.

Mrs. Paul Lick who resides in the lower floor of the house occupied by the Neuman family, heard somebody knocking on the floor above, and rushing upstairs she found Neuman lying unconscious on the floor of the kitchen with blood flowing from his arm. She hastily summoned Mrs. Neuman and a doctor and the flow of blood was stopped.

Neuman stated that be had used a razor to inflict the cuts, but it could not be found. The iodine which he swallowed had been purchased by one of his sons for treatment of a sore finger.

Neuman is a man of about 46 years of age and has lived in Duluth for the past twenty years. He was at one time a bartender in Grassi's saloon, and was later employed as foreman of a street gang. During the past year he has been unable to work on account of his illness

THE PLANS FOR THE CAMPAIGN

Members of President's Cabinet Will Make Speeches.

Washington, June 7.—President Roosevelt is now engaged in mapping out a program of campaign spell-binding for members of the cabinet. Each of the nine members will be expected to make at least one speech. Every effort will be made to give these addresses the widest publicity.

The president would like to participate in the campaign himself, but this has been considered inadvisable. He will have at least two opportunities for sounding keynotes and will doubtles make the most of them. The first will come when he is formally notified of his nomination. The second opportunity will be in his formal letter of acceptance.

Three or four of the cabinet members are old political wheel-horses and will be often heard from prior to election day.

One will be Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, who has already delivered several speeches of a semi-political character. It will be one of his parts to emphasize that the Republican party is the party of prosperity.

Secretary Hay will make at least one speech and perhaps more, but his effort at the semi-centennial of the Republican party in Michigan, July 6 next, the day when the Democratic national convention assembles at St. Louis, is reckoned to prove of value to the party in the presidential contest. No man could be better qualified than he to make the principal keynote address on such an occasion. All the other cabinet officers will make addresses.

THE OLD UNIFORMS

Must Be Worn By the National Guardsmen.

Washington, June 7.—An order of great importance to the militia of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin and Iowa was issued yesterday by the quartermaster general of the army. The order sets forth that the war department will not issue new regulation uniforms to the above militia until their present supply of old uniforms is exhausted.

The records of the department show that these states have on hand nearly $125,000 worth of uniforms which must be used up. This announcement will be a great disappointment to members of the National Guard who had anticipated that they would be fitted out with the latest olive drab uniforms for their coming annual encampment.

FOUGHT TO DRAW.

Bantamweights Walsh and Stanley Fight In London.

New York, June 7.—At the National Sporting club there has been a well-fought boxing contest for $1500 between bantamweights, Jimmy Walsh, of Boston, and "Digger" Stanley, of England, says an American dispatch from London. They boxed fifteen rounds at 112 pounds to a draw.

Despite the American's failure a month ago against the same opponent, he was the favorite and much money was bet on him at 4 to 5. Walsh's weight was 111½ pounds, while Stanley tipped the beam at 110.

The fight commenced at a very warm pace with the Englishman much faster than his opponent. He took a slight lead for the half dozen rounds, but the Bostonian improved and at the eleventh round scored quicker than Stanley. In the twelfth round Walsh's rib punches had great effect on the Englishman. The referee declared the bout a draw in the fifteenth round.

DOWAGER DUCHESS OF MANCHESTER ILL.

London, June 7.—Consuelo, the dowager duchess of Manchester, who it was reported in the United States, was seriously ill with an affection of the heart, has been ill in London, but there has been no indication that her condition was critical. She has practically recovered from her indisposition and yesterday went to Fulwell park, Twickenham, which she has rented for the summer.

HAWAII FOR HEARST.

Honolulu, June 7.—The territorial Democratic convention after a long discussion has instructed the Hawaiian delegation to the national convention at St. Louis to vote for Congressman W. R. Hearst for president. The vote was nearly unanimous.

BRITISH SHIP ARRIVES.

BOTH JAWS SHOT AWAY

Still a Successful Business Man.

A man who had both jaws shot away had trouble eating ordinary food, but found a food-drink that supplies the nutriment needed. He says:

"I have been an invalid since the siege of Vicksburg, in 1866, where I was wounded by a Minie ball passing through my head and causing the entire loss of my jaws. I was a drummer boy, and at the time was leading a skirmish line, carrying a gun. Since that time I have been awarded the medal of honor from the congress of the United States for gallantry on the field.

"The consequences of my wound were dyspepsia in its most aggravated form, and I finally proved ordinary coffee was very hard on my stomach, so I tried Postum and got better. Then I tried common coffee again and got worse. I did this several times and finally, as Postum helped me every time I continued to use it, and how often I think that if the government had issued Postum to us in the army how much better it would have been for the soldier boys than coffee.

"Coffee constipates me and Postum does not; coffee makes me spit up my food, Postum does not; coffee keeps me awake nights, Postum does not. There is no doubt coffee is too much of a stimulant for most people and is the cause of nearly all the constipation.

"This is my experience and you are at liberty to use my name." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

NOT ALL OF EASY KIND

So many stories have appeared in the papers from time to time relative to the troubles of the lumberjack, who is drugged and fleeced when he comes to the city to spend his earnings, that the knowledge that there are many woodsmen who are shrewd enough to take care of themseves, and some who can even do a little beter, has generally escaped the public.

One of the latter class of lumberjacks hit the trail for Duluth about a week ago. He had less money when he sudenly departed a day or two ago, but he had the knowledge of getting his money's worth and is now somewhere in Wisconsin, where he went on another man's money and is probably wearing the other man's clothes for which he exchanged his own when he left town.

The victim did not complain to the police, in fact, he kept all knowledge of the game that had been played to himself, until yesterday when he unbosomed himself to a friend.

The unbosoming process was something like this:

"Hello, Billy."

"Hello, Van. You look a little down at the mouth. What is the matter? What did you do with that friend of yours from the woods?"

"Oh, that fellow Frenchy? Well he came in with not enough stuff in his packsack to make a wrestling jacket for a lumber camp grayback, but he has gone out mighty wel provided in the clothing line. He was a pretty foxy guy.

"The other night we were out for a time, and Frenchy spent what money he had in his pocket and wanted to borrow some from me. I knew he had $35 up in the safe, so I went to Andy Duff and told him to give Frenchy $15. He did so, and next day Frenchy paid me the money he borrowed.

"That night he started out again and went all in. He came to me and asked for a stake to get out to work. I separated myself from a fiver, for I thought he was all right.

"Do you know what that fellow did? He went to my boarding place and told my landlady he would like to get his sack which had been left in my room. She thought it was all right to let him go after it, and he went.

"When I got home Frenchy had departed for Superior without saying even a good-bye.

"You know what sore of underclothing I wear, nothing less than $6 or $8, and one or two suits that cost me $12 wholesale. Well, Frenchy emptied his stuff on the floor and packed his sack with every stitch of my underclothing and dug out.

"I am out my clothing, $5 that I loaned him and about $3 more that I paid on his laundry bill.

"Will I do anything to get him back? I should say not. It's a long road that has no turning, however."

DIDN'T LIKE THE STREET.

Differences that exist in various sections of Brooklyn's long streets are now fully appreciated by the mistress of a fine house on —call it Pacific street though that is not it—who was in need of a cook. She went to an agency and there saw among others a strong looking Irishwoman, says the Brooklyn Eagle. After inquiring as to her ability, references, etc., she paused a moment to think about the matter. During this pause the woman leaned toward her and said, majestically: "An' now Oi want ter ask you a few questions, mum!" Then she looked the woman over critically and appeared to note each item of her plain walking costume, her lack of jewels, and the small leather bound shopping pad on which, opposite each article purchased that morning, appeared the price paid. All were inexpensive.

"Fir-r-st," said the cook, "Oi want ter know where youz lives." "On Pacific street," began the womn when she was interrupted by a wave of the hand and "That is enough;" from the cook. "Ave course," she continued condescendingly, "you prob'ly live wher it shutes youre purrse—an' that's all roight! Noabuddy cud complain er youz fer thaat. But a 'livvin-out gurrl loike me hez ter be particular where she lives. Else, when yer goes ter th' nex' place an' th' laady sez ter yer, 'An' where wuz yer livin' last'?' an' yer sez, 'On Pacific street,'—up goes her noz, an' yer don't git th' place."

"Now Oi might live on Pacific sthreet myself, an' Oi have, but Oi chorge a gud proice when Oi goes out ter worruk an' Oi doubt, mum, ef youz cud pay me—that is, roight along—an' Oi'm lukkin fer a stiddy job. Oi perzoom youz lives in er flat, an' Oi won't live in one er them things, noa, mum, though they may be well enough fer youz, Oi'm not sayin' ann'thing about thaat."

"I am sorry my street does not suit you," said the woman. "Have you ever walked on it uptown?"

"A-h-h, no, mum!" said the cook. "Whoi shud Oi? It's enough fer me ter see it downtown. It has its uses as a business sthreet, but Oi don't care ter live there, Oi assh ure yer, fer th' rasons Oi have naamed."

GAMES TODAY.
Grand Forks at Duluth.
Winnipeg at Superior.
Crookston at Fargo.

Little Willie Zink and his willow wand turned the trick yesterday for Duluth and pulled out a victory in a game that looked as good as lost.

Four times did the featherweight first baseman step up to the plate. Once he was given four bad ones, once he failed to reach first, and the other two times he swatted the ball for two bases. And they came when they were needed. His batting was responsible for three of the four runs scored by Duluth, and the credit for the victory is due to him.

Shaw was serving up the benders when the game opened, but the "Demon" was as wild as a hawk. He had barrels of speed and good curves, but the plate looked pretty small to him. He pitched the first six innings and during that time passed seven men to first, giving six of them bases on balls, and hitting another on the short ribs with an in-shoot. He allowed six hits during that time and struck out six men.

The three runs secured by the Tigers were all due to Shaw's erratic work. He walked the first man to the plate in the first inning, and an out and a couple of singles did the trick. Nothing but the sharpest kind of work kept the Tigers from scoring during the next three innings. They had men on bases in every inning but some phenomenal work on the part of the field would catch a base-runner napping or spoil a good hit. Quillan made two beautiful running pick-ups from the third corner, catching the runner by half a foot at the first bag each time. O'Leary, Martin and Quillan saved a certain score in the fourth by some quick work. With a man on second and a man on third O'Leary made a pretty throw to second base, catching the runner napping. He started for third, forcing the man on third home. Martin headed him off by a throw to O'Leary and Quillan and O'Leary finally ran him down.

The second run came in the fifth inning on two bases on balls and a pair of singles. Their third and last run came in the sixth on an error by O'Leary, the only one in sixteen chances, and two bases on balls.

In the seventh inning, with one man out Scharnweber knocked a foul tip back of third base. Both O'Leary and Quillan started for it, and they came together just under the ball, with a terrific crash. O'Leary's head striking Quillan on the forehead just above the right eye. The little third baseman went down and out, and O'Leary was also dazed for a moment.

Quillan had to be carried from the grounds and taken to his rooms in a hack. "Rusty" Owens took his place on the third corner, and Koukalik replaced Shaw in the box. "Coke" was in beautiful form. During the remainder of the seventh and the last two innings he struck out five men, granted but one little single and passed one man to first. The Tigers were never in danger of scoring again.

It was in Duluth's half of the sixth that little Willie Zink did his first stunt and brought the fans to their feet. Randall, who, by the way, was a bright and shining light in the batting line himself, opened up with a slug to center field good for two bases. O'Leary sent a long fly to left-field, and Lagger followed with a scratch hit to the pitcher, which O'Brien fumbled, and Lagger was safe on first with Randall on third. Quillan got a scratch single and "Newt" came home. Ball failed to hit, and the hopes of the fans rested on Zink.

As the big first baseman came up to bat with that young telegraph pole over his shoulder, the crowd yelled for a hit. Zink waited for a couple of good ones to go by, and then picking out one that suited his fancy, drove it to deep center field for two bases. Lagger and Quillan sprinted home and the score was tied. Shaw was an easy out and Zink remained on second base.

His second stunt came in the last half of the ninth. He was the first man to bat and he brought the fans to their feet by a drive to deep right field. It looked as if the game was won right there, but the ball struck the top boards of the fence and bounced back into the field. By the time the fans quit cheering, Zink was on second and "Coke" was facing O'Brien. He rapped out a clean single and Zink went to third. Corrigan brought in the winning run by a long drive to center field, which Brown failed to return in time to catch Zink at the plate.

The game was a hard one for O'Brien to lose. He pitched winning ball from the start, and nothing but Zink's timely batting enabled the White Sox to pull out a victory.

POOR OLD CROOKSTON.

Still Further Pins Its Faith on Low Point.

Fargo, N. D., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crookston got a further cinch on last hole by dropping another game to Fargo yesterday afternoon. The locals deserved to win as they played a better fielding game and got more than twice as many hits. Hillock was in the box for Fargo and threw well. Neither of his bases on balls figured in the score.

Miller, a new man, was tried by Crookston and made a good showing in the face of the poor work of his team mates. Rose, Carlisle and Demont made nice catches and Hoffman robbed Treager of a hit on a sensational stop of a hot one at third.

Crookston had three double plays and Fargo one. Two of those by the visitors were made when Fargo had three men on bases by the batsman dropping little ones right in front of the plate.

Crookston has traded "Handsome Dan" Lally to Butte for Hoffmeister, who will play first.

Off the Bat.

"The Moose" is O. K.

* * *

Better than Kennalley was the verdict yesterday afternoon.

* * *

Newt Randall had three good hits himself, a double among them.

* * *

Quillan is reported to be better this morning and will probably be in the game this afternoon.

* * *

"Hank" Gehring will pitch this afternoon for Duluth and "Iron Man" Morton for the visitors.

* * *

The weather man has finally let up, and the fans should be out in force this afternoon.

* * *

There are rumors of the trading of Shaw for Noldin, but Van Praagh stated this morning there was nothing definitely settled yet.

* * *

If Koukalik's work yesterday was a sample of what he can do, the faithful would like to see him given a chance at a whole game.

* * *

Gehring has yet to lose his first game. He may meet his Waterloo today, for Morton is a hard man to beat.

* * *

Crookston is making efforts to strengthen the team. Hoffmeister has been secured from Butte in exchange for Lally.

* * *

An outfielder named Gass was the only man secured by President Lamb on his trip to Chicago. He has some other strings out, however.

The addition to the bleachers will be completed for next Sunday's game. The new stand will seat about 250 and a similar one will be added to the bleachers on the north side if it is found necessary.

Umpire Hogan has given very fair satisfaction in the two games he has umpired here. Dunn, the Tiger with the aggressive manner and pugilistic tendencies, attempted to dispute one of his decisions yesterday, but Hogan shut him up.

The papers in some of the cities in the league have counted out the protested game between Fargo and Superior. No announcement has yet been made by President Laxdal to warrant this, and while it is likely that the game will be thrown out, Fargo must be credited with it until this is done.

CLAIM IT IS NUISANCE

Jefferson Street Residents Object to a Large Stable.

Complaint is being made by the residents at Jefferson street and Eighteenth avenue east of the maintenance of a barn in proximity to the several houses in that neighborhood.

The barn was originally an old ice house and has been remodelled into a building to accommodate horses. It stands hardly more than twenty feet from some of the houses and is being regarded as a great nuisance.

Ordinarily not many horses are kept in the place, but since the work of repaving East Superior street has begun, Contractor P. McDonnell has been keeping eight teams in the barn because it is near the scene of the work, the teamsters living in a large tent near the barn.

The presence of so many horses, especially with the wet weather of the past week, has made the institution particularly disagreeable to the people living in the vicinity and complaint has been made to the health authorities with a view of having the barn closed up and removed or, if it can be done, to have the owner of the property prosecuted for maintaining a nuisance.

The health authorities are said to have had much difficulty in locating an owner for the barn. Mr. McDonnell disclaims all interest in the property except that he pays for having his horses kept there for a time.

"Sweetzer-Pembrook fakes"

From Maine to California they are advertising fake sales of "Sweetser, Pembrook" goods. If all the ads were true the defunct firm must have had a billion dollar stock. As the fake wave may strike Duluth, we repeat our New York buyer's letter and back it up with another, written by the New York buyer of a Cleveland house. We have—and will have—nothing to do with this "fake" wave.

New York, May 25th, 1904.

Messrs. Panton & White Company,
Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sirs:—Enclosed find express and freight lists. Regarding the Sweetzer, Pembrook & Co. sale, will say that I have been attending same with Mr. Field and his buyers since Monday morning. All goods sold have brought very high prices, in fact in a great many cases more than the goods can be bought for regular. Then again the auctioneers would not give you the choice of lots so that if you did want any particular lot you would not be apt to get it as they would sell a big range of numbers at one time and give the purchaser whatever lot they wished to put down. So far Mr. Field or myself have made no purchases.

Most of the stock, in fact the cream of it, was previously sold to Claflin, Tefft Weller & Co., and Dunham, or taken back by the commission houses, as a great many goods were on consignment. However the town is full of merchants and buyers, who have forced the bidding up, and who seem to be willing to pay any old price to get some of the goods. For instance, Red Seal shorts, which I am buying for you at 7¾c less 3 per cent 10 days, sold for 7¾c and 8c, take them as you could get them, bad colorings, and on which you also have the expense of shipping, etc.

Yours truly,
GEORGE SLOAN.

THE MAY COMPANY,
4 and 6 Washington Place,
New York, 5-14-04.

The May Company,
Cleveland, O.

Gentlemen:—I presume you have read of Sweetzer Pembrook & Co., going out of business. I went through their stock yesterday with Mr. Burton, of the St. Louis House, and find the stock in a very miserable condition. It seems they have bought very few new goods this season, and all the new goods they did buy, have been picked out and the ragged end of the stock is left. Their affairs are in a very bad condition. This necessitates their husbanding their resources very closely, and they are holding their goods correspondingly high, which coupled with the fact that they recognized the advertising value of their merchandise, makes it very hard to secure any bargains from them. On Wednesday next, they are going to have a sale (a sort of bargain sale) and I presume merchants will fight for the privilege of paying them high prices for damaged old goods. I, personally am not in favor of buying any of this stuff, but thought it best to acquaint you with the facts, so that in case you think it advisable to buy some of the stuff and make an ad. item of it, you can instruct me.

Very truly yours,
E. M. SOSTMAN.

Duluth and Superior women may rest assured that when we advertise a special purchase the goods are as represented and the values are worth coming for. "Faking" the public is no part of the business of a modern, up-to-date, department store. Genuine money-savers are what we give the people.

TO SERVE TERMS.

Convicted Persons Will Be Taken to Prison Soon.

Joseph Boreck, who was convicted during the present term of district court, for larceny in the second degree, will be taken to the state reformatory at St. Cloud today. A number of the other persons convicted or who pleaded guilty to various crimes this term, will be committed to state penal institutions before the end of the week.

Frank White, who was sentenced to the state penitentiary for 20 years for killing Jerome Menaige, is still in the county jail. His commitment papers are expected this week.

Friends of Capri Pasquali, the Eveleth man who was arrested and bound over to the grand jury on the charge of grand larceny, came to his relief yesterday and furnished bail in the amount of $250.

Pasquali claims that he loaned the complaining witness $65 to bring his folks here from the old country. He says that he afterward collected and retained $50 that was due the borrower, when he was arrested.

Pasquali says he is not only arrested for keeping the $50 which he believes he is entitled to, but he is still out $15 that he loaned the man who is now the complaining witness.

GOOD TIMES AT HAND.

The end of the tie-up of the boats of the Lake Carriers' association is not far to seek. The probability is that the masters and pilots have decided to give in at this time, affiliate in future with the American Federation of Labor, await a more favorable opportunity, and then, with the strength of that great organization at their back, renew their demands. That, at least, would seem to be the sensible plan.

The practical ending of this strike calls attention to the fact that the ore-shipping railroads are getting ready for business and are beginning to put on men. They evidently expect to begin ore shipments on an extensive scale in the near future. This will necessitate the opening of several mines on the ranges and the employment of thousands of men.

Furthermore, there are other reasons for hopefulness and confidence just at this time. The interior lumber mills are all operating. Experts recently sent out by the Washburn-Crosby Milling company, of Minneapolis, to make a report on the crop prospects have returned and report that throughout Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northwest Canada the conditions are all exceedingly favorable for a bumper crop. It is a well-known fact that wheat reserves are about used up or will be before the new crop is harvested. Consequently high prices may be expected to rule after the harvest. This means much for the jobbers and wholesalers of Duluth.

There never was a period in the previous history of Duluth when there was so much building in progress as there is at this time. And, furthermore, there is more in prospect, enough to keep all the contractors busy until the freeze-up comes. This may have one good effect in somewhat reducing rents so that more people can find homes in Duluth. It also indicates that an army of well-paid mechanics will be kept busy here until late in the fall.

There are also signs that Duluth real estate is again being sought by outside investors. The representative of an Eastern trust company, who is now in Duluth and who came here to investigate local conditions with a view to making real estate investments, has made a favorable report to his company. He is very favorably impressed with Duluth's business prospects and the chances are that his company will make large investments here. The Herald some time ago predicted that the money-owners of the East would soon be compelled to seek real estate investments in order to find safe and profitable use for their money and the time is at hand when this prediction is to be fulfilled. Naturally Duluth will attract their attention because it is generally admitted that this city is to have a greater proportionate growth in the near future than any of the other large cities of this country.

While business is considered somewhat dull at this time in certain lines the fact remains that many of Duluth's merchants did a larger volume of business last month than in any other May in the history of the city. Of course the tendency of prices is downward, and business is bound to be less profitable than when opposite conditions prevailed, but the volume remains large and the public will be better off when the adjustment is finally made.

Considering all these favoring conditions, The Herald cannot see anything dark or gloomy in the present business situation. Everything points to an early resumption in all line of industry and an exceedingly busy fall and winter.

THE CONSTITUTION AMENDED.

Nearly every decision that has been rendered by the United States supreme court on questions affecting the relations of this country with its dependencies since the war with Spain has had a tendency to show that the members of the court are guided in these decisions by political expediency without regard to law, justice or the provisions of the federal constitution.

In no case is this made plainer than in the recent decision denying a jury trial to Messrs. Dorr and O'Brien, American citizens residing in the Philippines. Justice Harlan, recognizing the utter absurdity of many of these decisions and their contradictory character, took this occasion to make some very telling points against the members of the majority in his dissenting opinion. The judgment of the majority, he pointed out, amounted to the amendment of the constitution by the court.

The constitution holds that "no person" (not "no American citizen") shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime except on presentment or indictment of a grand jury and the unanimous verdict of a petit jury composed of twelve persons. Justice Harlan, with a fine vein of satire, amends this phraseology so that the constitution will hereafter conform to the majority decision. He says that in order to make Article 5 of the bill of rights conform to the decision, it must be written substantially as follows: "No person (except a Filipino or an American citizen who happens to be residing or sojourning in the Philippine islands) shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury." And Article 6 must be written in a style something like this: "In all criminal prosecutions the accused (unless he be a Filipino or an American citizen who happens to be residing or sojourning in the Philippine islands) shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury."

It will at once be seen that by our conquest of the Philippines we have not only deprived their people of the right of a jury trial, but we have deprived ourselves of that right should we move to any portion of American territory held as a dependency. We have, in fact, revoked and abrogated one of the supreme rights guaranteed by the constitution in any territory over which the American flag floats in order that a few exploiters and aristocrats might launch the country upon an era of conquest and imperialism.

Much as it may deplored, the only way now left to the American people to right this wrong, short of a revolution, is to elect a president who will appoint supreme court judges who may be depended upon to follow the constitution not only in matters affecting the United States, but every foot of territory over which Old Glory floats.

ANARCHY IN COLORADO.

The lid is off at last in the mining districts of Colorado and an ugly and malignant social ulcer is exposed to public view. One of the most horrible crimes ever perpetrated in the history of the United States occurred at Cripple Creek yesterday when a dozen men were instantly killed and many others torn and mangled by the explosion of an infernal machine under the feet of a group of non-union miners who were gathered on a depot platform after their day's toil. It was a foul and dastardly deed and whether committed by union men or not they will get the blame for it, and rightly, too, for the first law-breaking that occurred in the district was committed by these union men. Furthermore, it is hardly probable that anybody but union members would have concocted the diabolical plot to murder at wholesale as was done yesterday. Nobody else would have reason to do so, unless it should be the mine operators, in an effort to bring down upon the heads of the union members the wrath of the state so that the strike might be broken. But the operators would hardly dare to enter into such a dastardly scheme. Their crime would surely find them out in time, as it will find out the men who actually committed the deed.

Since this horrible crime was committed the Citizens' alliance has forced both the city marshal and the sheriff of the county to resign their offices because they are supposed to sympathize with the union men. This is further indication that the latter are in the wrong in fomenting the present trouble.

But, as in the past, this Citizens' alliance has gone too far and has ordered several union men to leave the district. Two of these have appealed to President Roosevelt for protection, to which they are justly entitled, and it remains to be seen whether he will be as ready to send troops to protect workingmen in their rights as President Cleveland was to send troops into Illinois to prevent alleged interference with the mails.

It is an interesting fact in connection with this trouble that unionists who have been brought to trial on different charges during the progress of the strike, have invariably been acquitted and it is claimed that their acquittal was because of the fact that union men dominate the political affairs of the country and that therefore an unbiased trial is impossible.

There is certainly a sorry condition of affairs, and it is principally the result of political corruption and corporate greed together with the spread of anarchistic sentiments among the workingmen. The people of Colorado should not rest until they have brought to justice the dastardly perpetrators of this latest heinous crime.

THAT CANAL DEAL.

The Democrats of Tennessee held their convention before President Roosevelt's recent Cuban letter was published, but it did not need this last blunder of his to assure them that he considers himself greater than the constitution, and that he may be expected at any time to involve the nation in unnecessary trouble. Their platform said:

"It is especially necessary to restrict the executive head of the federal government within the constitutional limits of his authority, and no argument of temporary expediency can justify the assumption by him of powers conferred exclusively upon the legislative department of the government or the violation by him of plain provisions of constitutional, statute and treaty law."

This is certainly a very opportune declaration, and one that will set many Republicans and independent voters to thinking. But the Tennessee convention proceeded to marr this good resolution somewhat by adding some language about the "lawless, revolutionary and dishonest course" of the administration in regard to the Panama canal.

If there had been any valid objection on the part of Colombia to the United States owning or digging the Panama canal, then there might be some reason for criticising the president for the part he took in acquiring the site. But Colombia wanted the canal dug, wanted this country to dig it, and had practically agreed upon a price for the concession. Afterward, in the hope of bleeding this country for more money, the Colombian government went back on this agreement. Under these circumstances the fact that it lost the whole bone serves that country right, and a little sharp dickering on the part of the United States is perfectly excusable.

As The Herald some time ago remarked, the Democratic party will not attract any votes by condemning President Roosevelt's action with regard to the Panama canal.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

The American people make a great fuss when one man is kidnapped by a bandit while they permit their government to kidnap seven millions and deprive them of their natural rights and political liberties.

By a decision of the Minnesota supreme court the Socialist party is under the necessity of choosing another name to appear on the election ballots. This is now being done by referendum vote. Although this may be considered a hardship the ultimate result may prove that it was one of the best things that ever happened to the party.

Says the Detroit Tribune: "Starting from false premises in the first insular decision, the supreme court has involved itself in a maze of damning error." All of which points to the conclusion that questions of this character should be left to direct vote of the people instead of to the supreme court.

The Philippine census bureau has found that the population of the islands consists of 7,635,426 persons, of which 674,740 are savage and uncivilized. It will be a matter of exceeding great pain to American imperialists that these figures were not reversed in their order, because it effectually disposes of their argument that the islands would be dominated by savagery and anarchy should these people be permitted to govern themselves.

What corporation or combination of corporations does Deneen represent? Nearly all the newspapers in Chicago favored his nomination as governor.

It is about time for some of the South American nations to speak up pert and ask President Roosevelt: "How about order and prosperity in Colorado?"

HOTEL GOSSIP

Traveling salesman who make Duluth in the interest of various iron products are interested in the letting of the contracts for some of the material to be used for the new canal bridge across the government canal at Minnesota point.

E. E. Hickok, of St. Louis, at the Spalding, is one of the latest of these to arrive in Duluth. He represents the A. Leschen & Sons Rope company, of Chicago, and has put in a bid for some material to be used in the bridge, which is being manufactured in Waukesha, Wis.

He says he finds things dull just now over his territory, which extends from St. Louis to Detroit and Duluth to Peoria, which makes about five states to cover. In Minnesota he says the farmers are away behind in planting their corn and for this reason some things which depend on crops will be delayed. Politically Mr. Mickok says the Republicans everywhere are for Roosevelt and that the Republican party seems to have the advantage of being united on one candidate, against the several that are spoken of on the Democratic side. He believes only one Democrat that he knows of could be elected this year.

"That's Cleveland," said he, "but they cannot get him to run, at least it does not look at this time as though they could. I believe he is a very strong man and would make a remarkable race if he would permit his name to go before the convention at St. Louis.

"What is it son?"

The question was asked yesterday morning by William McKay of a diminutive bit of humanity who walked into his hotel.

"I want to register." The voice indicated that the owner was a little older than the hotel man thought him to be, and that he was entitled to more dignified treatment.

Mr. McKay, seeing that he had made a mistake, did not want to make another, for the arrival was certainly an adult in years, though not of normal size. He did not know whether to bring him a chair so that he could stand up on it and reach the register with the pen or not.

So the landlord handed him a pen and decided that the best thing was to hand the register down to him and let him write from the floor.

"Jerry Sullivan and wife" was the name inscribed by the little man. He is one of the performers in the "McFadden's Flats" company and is about three feet high. When his wife arrived the hotel people were surprised to find that she was of normal size.

The company is soon to break up, and probably the manager is glad of it, for he has had quite a time during the season on account of the little people. It has always been the intention of the performance to have two dwarfs continually, and it was with this number that the combination went on the road last fall. One of them got sick, and for a time the company had to get along with only one, until someone could be found to take the place.

The next discovery had all the eccentricities of a genius and could not be relied on to come to the theater on time nor to attend rehearsals, nor to pay his board bills at the hotels. There was just one point where he was punctual. He was willing to draw his pay envelope every week without keeping the people in the box office nervous for fear he would not come before the money would decay.

After many trials it was decided to let him go, and he was given the necessary notice and told that the combination would no longer pay his railroad fares, much less a salary. So the company is now getting along with one midget, and this clientage will a shortage in the undergrown division until it concludes the season. The two little people have been used as "yelow kids."

Frank W. Higgins, lieutenant governor of the state of New York, is at the Spalding. He registers from Olean, which is a great oil town in the Empire State, and which had a great reputation at the time of the oil excitement years ago. He is here on business connected with the Olean Land company, and is associated with Giles Gilbert, of Duluth, in Mesaba range mining fees. He believes New York will be carried by Roosevelt to the extent of 50,000 or 75,000 majority. If not more. Judge Parker, he says will have the Democratic state delegation to St. Louis, although New York city does not favor him, but will be for him under the unit rule.

Pianists Small Men; Violinists Large

Atlanta Constitution: Silvio Risegari, the young Italian pianist, yesterday was discussing his country, Italy, and from that the conversation drifted to music and art generally.

"You may laugh at me," Signor Risegari remarked, "but most of the great pianists have been small men and the great violinists are large men. I couldn't explain why this is, but, nevertheless, the statement is true."

Old Darkey's Thunder Song.

Atlanta Constitution: During the thunder storm the other night an old darky was going along, singing of the lightning:

Here come de devil,
Flashin' er his eyes—
Mad kaze de righteous,
Is gwine ter de skies.

MEANINGLESS PLATITUDES.

St. Paul Dispatch (Rep.): Thus does John A. Kasson characterize the substitute of the standpatters for "the usual plain talk to which Iowa farmers were treated in former times" on the tariff, in the letter sent by our Des Moines correspondent and printed in the Dispatch of Saturday. Mr. Kasson was made a special commissioner by President McKinley to negotiate treaties of reciprocity under the provisions of the Dingley act, and in redemption of platform pledges. That duty he performed. The treaties were approved by the president and sent with his recommendation to the senate, where every one of them died by limitation, the senatorial stand-patters refusing even to consider them for discussion. For decency's sake we trust the coming convention will not repeat those pledges. It is too farcical.

Mr. Kasson says that "not one politician in a thousand studies the actual conditions of our exports to foreign countries, or of our imports from them, and the relations of each to our home industries. * * * who of them once said, Who cares for abroad? Mr. Blaine once talked about our "dropping forty millions a year into Cuba" because we bought that amount of Cuban products more than we sold there of our own. The "balance of trade theory," which regards an excess of exports as indicating prosperity and excess of imports as portending bankruptcy, roots in the same common ignorance. Mr. Kasson evidently believes in the soundness of the proposition that if you shut imports out you shut exports in. We cannot buy unless we sell, and we cannot sell unless we buy, and every hindrance put in the way of buying tends directly and exactly to sell. Simple statements of economic law are these, but "not one politician in a thousand" understands them.

Mr. Kasson is well qualified, both by his experience in congress and as treaty commissioner, to pass judgment upon that ridiculous declaration on reciprocity, which the standpat bewers of the Iowa plank declared should be restricted to "non-competitive products;" that is, to such foreign articles as are neither grown nor made in this country. He invites the authior of that plank "to try his hand at making a treaty with any European nation on that basis." If he succeeded in finding any "non-competitive" products of those nations on which a treaty could be based, "he would not find business enough," says Mr. Kasson, "covered by his treaty to maintain a store at a Kentucky cross-roads village." And with exquisite hypocrisy or with dense stupidity, the same plank at once endorsed the Dingley act, that provided for reprocity in competitive products and denounces reciprocity in them.

That appalingly blunt endorsement of the trust movement on which we made comment, the declaration, that "it is equally unwise to legislate in a manner to provoke American industries to making war upon each other," strikes Mr. Kasson as having "a mysterious significance." He perthently asks if this means that "competition should be discouraged and monopolistic agreements stimulated?" And "to what legislation does it refer?" No wonder Mr. Kasson is amazed. And yet the standpatters spoke their mind candidly. They bluntly avowed their motive and purpose. Other less frank hedge and prevaricate. These say plainly that if competition from the outside is bad for industry—and "labor"—it is equally bad for industry—and "labor"—on the inside, and laws designed to prevent consolidation and promote competition are unwise. The very essence of standpattism is in that pregnant declaration.

She Helped Her Husband Save.

"My husband is a generous man, and has been as liberal as his means allowed in giving me money for my own use, and, best of all, I have never had to ask him for money. One day he explained to me a business transaction he had under consideration, and said:

"'It will take every cent I can raise, and I fear I cannot carry it through unless you go without pin money for six months. I do not like to ask you to do this, and if you do not care about doing it I will call the deal off.'

"I saw what a good thing it was for his interests, so I cheerfully agreed to get along without any money. I was so cheerful about it that he said: 'I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll stop smoking. I'll shave myself, I'll buy no more magazines, I'll walk to and from work and will go to the theater only once a month instead of once or twice a week. All the money that I would have spent I'll put into a fund for you. Our gas bill has averaged $5 a month and you may have all you save on that.'

"I was delighted with this arrangement. At the end of six months I found I had earned $115. But I received only 82 cents."

Where He Was Lacking.

Atlanta Constitution: "Br'er Thomas wuz always singin' dat song 'bout 'De Yuther Side of Jordan,' but you orter heerd him w'en de doctor tol' him his time had come ter go dar."

"What did he say den?"

"Bellowed lak a bull, 'en hollered: 'I can't swim a lick,' an' I never did take no swimmin' lessons.'"

His Forgetfulness.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Herbert has been running an auto so long that he has forgotten all about horseback riding."

"What did he do when the horse balked?"

"He crawled under it to see what was the matter."

Handicapped.

"How can I? My wife insists upon having new onions every meal and they make me cry."

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN DULUTH

The body of Mrs. Londmark, a resident of Hermantown, was found near her home with a knife gash across her abdomen. The woman had gone to a neighbor's for milk, which she secured and started for home. It was thought that she had been waylaid, outraged and murdered by some tramps who had camped in the neighborhood. The sheriff is on the track of the perpetrators of the horrible deed.

P. Beneteau has decided upon the erection of a wholesale warehouse on Michigan street and the contractors will commence work at once. O'Brien & Knowlton and James McCahill will also put up buildings on Michigan street and this will create quite a boom on that thoroughfare.

Charles H. Carpenter and wife, of New Orleans, are in the city and will spend some weeks here.

Miss Carrie C. Noyes, of New Haven, Conn., a sister of Rev. Mr. Noyes of this city, has been engaged to teach in the schools here for the next year.

Thomas Whittaker has gone to Port Arthur and will probably open a gaming house there.

Bert Marshall returned home from Owen Sound, Ont., where he went to visit his mother who was ill. He was accompanied by his younger brother, Charlie, who will remain here.

Capt. Joseph Lloyd, who recently purchased the steamer Queen of the Lakes, from parties at Elk Rapids, Mich., decided, after expending $500 on fitting her up, that he did not want her because she was not suitable for the Lake Superior run, and demanded $1000 back that he had paid. The demand was refused and he was compelled to bring suit.

There is some talk of a race between the Maggie Carrol and the steam scow Northern Pacific on the Fourth of July. As it takes either one of them half a day to make the run to Superior and return, the race will, no doubt, be a most exciting one.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

New York American: "I regret having caused you pain," said the slayer, withdrawing his blade. "Is there aught I can do to make your last moments comfortable?"

"You are marvelously considerate," said the dying victim, "for such a brutal murderer as you are."

"Softly, friend," responded the assassin. "No harsh words. I have been reading war stories and trust that I know the ethics of homicide."

A little later he paid the expense of a neat funeral and sent flowers.

Washington Star: "You say Crimson Gulch has settled down into a quieter and more peaceful community?"

"Yep," answered Bronco Bob, confidently. "The boys is learin' repose. You can shoot a hoss-thief now without its creatin' a ripple of excitement."

"Now," said the city editor, "see if you can't get an interview with Judge Parker."

Utterly aghast Herc staggered from the room.

Chicago Tribune: "Gayboy told me a month or two ago that his physician had limited him to one whiskey a day, but he doesn't look as if he had reformed."

"He hasn't. He went to four other doctors, and each one gave him the same directions. He's following the advice of all five of 'em."

Argonaut: Champ Clark, of Missouri, attended exercises in a kindergarten school, the other day. "Have any of you ever seen an elephant's skin?" Mr. Clark asked the youngsters.

"I have," shouted one little fellow.

"Where?" asked Mr. Clark, impressed with the youngster's earnestness.

"On the elephant," he answered.

We're gamblers all for wealth unearned,
Both those who win and fail.
Jerome should raid the wide, wide world,
And land us all in jail.

—The Whim.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Virginian: E. L. Millar, editor of the Duluth Trade News, was in town Tuesday evening looking for Collins delegates to the county convention. He brought an X-Ray machine with him, but was unable to locate a single man who favors the candidacy of the ex-judge. He left town the next morning feeling exceedingly discouraged over the political outlook on the ranges from a Collins standpoint.

Wabasha Herald: We are a pretty loyal Democrat, but if we were an elector in Wisconsin this year there would be some danger of our vote going to Governor La Follette.

Martin County Sentinel: If a high tariff between the United States and Canada is a good thing why would not the same law be a good thing between Minnesota and Wisconsin, for instance? As a matter of fact there ought to be absolute free trade between this country and our neighbor on the North. It would help both and injure neither, but in our selfishness and greed and shortsightedness we have so often insulted the Canadians and repelled their friendly advances that they have come to regard us as commercial swine whom they had better stay away from. McKinley foresaw all this and Roosevelt knows it, but the trusts and combines which now rule the Republican party are heedless of McKinley's warning and have got the string on Teddy so that he dare not speak without calling in Aldrich and asking what he may say.

Todd County News: A Colorado judge proposes to send parents to jail for the misdoings of children. In a good many cases we believe the result would be beneficial, not alone to the parent languishing in prison, but to the general public. Many children become criminals for the simple reason that their parents do not look after them properly, for instance such as allowing them to roam the streets at will both day and night, where they are up to all sorts of deviltry.

Fergus Globe: Congressman Steenerson has decided to appoint his brother Elias Steenerson to be postmaster at Crookston. And why not? Elias is a very competent man, and then it will keep the good things in the family.

"Cluff," Not "Clock."

Victor Smith, in New York Press: There is no rule for the pronunciation of proper names. When David Marston Clough, friend of "Jim-Jaw" Hill of the Great Northern and the ex-merger, was here a few days ago he attended important meetings. A certain lawyer who had merger interests in fee addressed the former governor of Minnesota as "Governor Clock." Mr. Hill corrected him in a deep whisper, "Not Clock; Cluff." The incident suggested the following:

It's bad enough
To spell it Clough,
And Mr. Hough
Rhymes well with cuff;
An Irish lough
Sounds just like Clough.
Or rock, or stock,
Or horse's hough;
A cliff spelled clough
Agrees with plough,
And cow and brow
And any-how
And yet, although
I've got the dough,
To call me Clough
You'd be quite off
In trench or trough.
And now I'm through
With all of you
Who style me Clough.
I've got the stuff!
Hold fast! Enough!
I'm D. M. Clough.

Too Far For Water.

Sporting Times: At a colliery near Leeds, is a shaft with a staging round it, its height being considerably above the average of such erections in the West Riding. A miner had fallen off this staging to the ground, and on recovering consciousness was offered a glass of water by one of the men who had picked him up. Looking at the water in disgust and amazement, he exclaimed, "——— ——— hoo fur doos tha' ha' to fail at this pit afore they gives yer brandy?"

Her First Experience.

Lippincott's Magazine: A small boy, aged 5, had a stepmother who was young and nervous. She had never had experience with children, and the small boy's slightest ailment tortured her into a panic.

Croup threatened one day, and the doctor was sent for in wild haste. As the doctor entered the room the child raised his head from his pillow and croaked hoarsely, in apology for the hasty summons:

"You must excuse her, doctor; this is the first time she's ever been a mother."

Vote the Same Ticket.

Boone, Iowa, Independent: Brother to the Ox—Why is it that I work hard and have nothing, while you don't work at all and have more than you need?

Brother to the Fox—I vote for my interests, while you vote the same ticket I do.

"I don't understand why, if we vote the same ticket, I don't get half the benefits."

"I know you don't understand. That is the reason you don't get half the benefits."

A Lover's Plea For Pardon.

I have wrote and I have went
For to see you and explain
That there wasn't nothing meant
When I kicked you in the brain.

I weren't mad ner nothin'—but
Just a jokin', so to speak,
When I slashed that little cut
In the middle of yer cheek.

Yuh won't let no things like that Separate us, will yuh, Hat?

—Sphinx.

Of Hearst Disease.

Typographical "errors" are often so fearfully and wonderfully made as to arouse suspicion. Thus there was consternation in the office of the Chicago American recently, and all excuses and loud asservations on the part of proofreaders availed not. There it was in big black type on the first page:

"MICHAEL FARLEY DEAD FROM HEARST DISEASE."

Settled With Lunatic First.

Argonaut: We all have our trials at the telephone, but we do not usually hear "central's" opinion of us. A San Francisco lawyer, who had been trying for ten minutes or more without success to get the number he asked for, at last gave vent to his annoyance in very strong language. His wife, who was standing near, said, persuasively, "Let me try, dear." Then, in a gentle voice, which was intentionally a strong contrast to his angry tones, she called, "Hello, central!" Her husband distinctly heard "central" answer promptly, "Just a moment, madam. There is a crazy man on the line. Let me settle him first."

The Company Willing.

Youth's Companion: The housekeeper who has known what it is to have unexpected guests will no doubt find sympathy welling within her heart at the plight of a woman in a Western town.

Her husband had asked her to show some kindness to a young officer of the militia to whom he had taken a fancy. She therefore dispatched a note, in which she said: "Mrs. Brown requests the pleasure of Capt. White's company at supper on Wednesday evening."

She received a prompt and joyful reply, which read, "With the exception of the men who have other engagements, Capt. White's company will come with pleasure."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl likes a romance even if she knows it isn't genuine.

It makes a mother very proud to think how much smarter her boy would be if he weren't so good.

It is taking an awful mean advantage of a girl's helplessness to hold her hands and then not kiss her against her will.

A girl seems to think she takes a good many risks in marrying the best man, and more in not marrying the worst.

A girl is so suspicious about a man wanting to marry her that if he looks at her in church she runs and tells her mother.

Managerial Joys.

Puck: Opposing Captain—Why don't you fire Smithers? He can't bat, he can't run, and he can't catch.

Manager Home Team—No—but every other member of the nine owes him money.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

One of the most interesting of dramatic works that has been presented in Duluth was given last evening at the normal school by the graduating class. The play chosen by them to be presented was the "Antigone" of Sophocles. The class, in choosing this drama for their study and presentation, considered the beauty and classical worth of the drama, together with the novelty of the play in this locality as the deciding factors, and the piece was given in such a manner as to satisfy those acquainted with the work and interest of those of the audience to which it was a new thing, was held.

The play deals, as do some six other Greek tragedies, with the fortunes of the house of Thebes. Before it begins, Oedipus, unwittingly, had fulfilled the doom which the oracle declared should be his, he had slain with his own hand, his father, Laius, and had become the husband of his mother, Jocasta. When the horrible truth becomes known, Jocasta hanged herself and Oedipus dashed out his eyes with a brooch of her robe.

The two sons of the ill-fated pair fall in deadly combat the younger, Eteocles, seeking to hold the Theban throne against his brother, Polynices, who had come an alien host from Argos to claim his rights. Creon, the uncle of the two youths, has become king, and has declared that the corpse of Polynices shall remain unburied, to be rent of dogs and birds. To this edict the citizens submit and with them, one of the two sisters, as next of kin, the duty of paying burial rights to the fallen chiefly rested. The other sister, Antigone, in defiance of the edict, gives burial to her brother, and sister's child to the king though she is betrothed to his son Haemon, is herself condemned to be buried alive in a rocky vault, where she takes her life.

Haemon slays himself in anguish by the side of his betrothed and learning of this, Eurydice, wife of Creon, takes her life; so that woe upon woe is heaped upon the head of the unhappy king.

The play was presented in the Greek manner, without stage settings. The action takes place before a palace. Max Weber, teacher of drawing at the school, painted this bit of scenery, which was historically correct. The Greek robes were worn and wigs and beards transformed the students so that the required male robes were acceptably filled. In the reading of the lines the thoughts of the work were brought out perfectly and in this respect no criticisms could be offered the invididuals of the play or the chorus. The interpretation throughout was one of the finest features of the performance.

Miss Ella Deetz acted the part of Creon, the king, and in this role of the headstrong, wilfull monarch, which is the longest and most exhausting of the play, she acted well and spoke her lines without a hesitating pause.

Miss Mary Bartlett made a beautiful Antigone and gave a good idea of the dramatic possibilities of the role and the more feminine and timid characteristics of Ismene were made clear to the audience in a pleasing manner by Miss Leora Fenton.

Haemon, betrothed to Antigone, was presented by Miss Katheryn Joyce, in all the hot-headed defiance of youth. Miss Joyce also made a remarkably good looking, golden-haired Greek youth.

Miss Dorothy Kuhns, as the wife of Creon, was, perhaps, the most Greek looking of the feminine characters and looked the part of the heart-broken queen perfectly.

Miss Clara Laughton, as the blind seer, who predicts the fall of Creon's family and kingdom, read her lines in a solomon and dignified manner that was impressive. Miss Lucy O'Keefe, as the saucy and prating youthful watchman, was charming. The bit of comedy that the piece allowed was well augmented by her shrugs and expressive eyes. Miss Carrie Neff and Miss Grace Thompson were the guard and messenger, and Miss Myers and Miss Buswell were lovely attendants of the queen.

The chorus of the Greek tragedy is an actor or acting body, and, under the direction of the coryphaeus, participates in the action of the piece. The chorus are interested spectators of the action from first to last. They receive and impart information, give and accept counsel, interpret the motives of conduct, and in various ways favilitate a natural outworking of the dramatic situations. Much of the smoothness of the performance depends on them, and last evening, with Miss Clara Somerville, as leader, the work of the chorus was clear and well defined.

Three of the choruses were sung, Mendelssoan's music, written especially for "Antigone," was used, and Miss Farnsworth, head of the music department, trained them for the choral odes. The following young women made up the chorus: Misses Kruschke, Grube, Hathaway, Knutson, Mason, Johnson, Farrell, Swendby, Herrell, Coulter, Olson, Murray, Lippitt and Yager.

The piece was a great success, and great credit is due Miss Pendergast, of the school, who has been in charge of the production, and to whose efforts last evening's affair went without a hitch, and the literary value of the work so well brought out.

Y. W. C. A. MAKES PLANS.

Gymnasium to Be Used as Summer Dormitory.

With the closing of the gymnasium classes of the Young Woman's Christian association for the summer, the question of the use to which the gymnasium room might be placed was considered, and it was decided by the board to use the place as a dormitory. The room is at the back of the building, well lighted, bright and cool, and for transient guests during the summer a better place could hardly be secured.

Cots will be placed in the room, which will accommodate about twenty, and women who are in the city for a few days only may rent them. The baths and dressing rooms adjoining will add to the convenience of the rooms. During the summer months travel to Duluth is large, and many women will doubtless be glad to get cots at the local institution. The furnishings of the room as a dormitory will be borrowed for the summer and returned in the winter. Several have already bene received, and eral have already been received, and to be a source of revenue during the summer that will materially help the association in its work.

Mrs. Wesley Feetham, who has been the general secretary since Miss Kemper's departure has been permanently engaged as general secretary of the organization. Mrs. Feetham has done very fine work since she has been in charge and the board of directors of the work are pleased at having secured her for the work. The progress made in association has been most pleasing. Miss Culver will be her assistant for the summer.

THE EVENING STORY.

CHRISANTHE

By Laura L. Hinkley.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

I saw her first at the flower show. Chrysanthemums were everywhere, streaked and pied and spattered, yellow and bronze and purple and white and red, prim and stately, and flaunting, tousled, alluring monstrosities. I watched her from behind a towering array of blossoms, white but for a red streak down every petal.

She was style incarnate in every curve, with a great fluffy chrysanthemum at her breast. In spite of her slim, sprite-like girlishness I was aware of something in her passionate, luxurious, unbounded, a sort of intense sympathy with the bouncing riot of the chrysanthemums.

Presently she came toward me with a light in her eyes and hands outstretched.

"We should know each other mon-cleur! I am Mademoiselle Chrysanthe. Won't you come to see me?" She gave me her address, not repeating or trying to impress it on my memory, but as if assured that I would remember. "My day is Thursday." And she left me with a light nod, passing quickly from the room.

I stood astounded. I was tolerably familiar with the methods of adventuresses, but this person betrayed obvious wealth and breeding. Was she some one I ought to remember. I knew she was not, yet her face had for me some dim, haunting reminder. Had she mistaken me for an acquaintance? Why then her absurd nickname and strange speech? A clever adventuress, reason told me. Yet I went on the appointed day to her house.

It was on one of the quieter, but intensely respectable and decidedly smart streets. An imposing butler admitted me. I looked to see him change countenance when I asked for Mademoiselle Chrysanthe, but he bowed impassively and ushered me into a splendid and lavish drawing-room. Jardinieres of chrysanthemums stood about and a long mirror at one side repeated their bizarre luxuries of form and tint.

My hostess glided in. Her yellow house dress, adroitly garnished with ruffles and fluttering ribbon ends, simulated a prim, demurely wild chrysanthemum.

"I knew you would come," she said, giving me her hand. "You will want to see the conservatory. Not at home, James! Come, monsieur!"

The conservatory was immense and almost entirely devoted to chrysanthemums. She flitted about among them, bending her dainty head, with its black Japanese coils stuck through with long twisted amber pins.

Her fascination took violent hold on me, her weird, exotic mingling of extravagant and exquisite. But she would tell me nothing of her identity, nor would she let me reveal my own.

"No, no, monsieur. This and this," touching two splendid blooms, "need no names. Nor do we."

As I neared the door at last to take leave, half-suffocated with her witcheries—"I love you!" I said, abruptly.

She listened, silent, smiling, unmoved. I caught her roughly about the waist.

"Stop! Stop! I will call James!"

"I will come tomorrow," I said, and left her.

On the morrow I found her in the lavish drawing-room. She had given the place an accent of royal, gracious welcome by massing everywhere chrysanthemums of every tone and hue of purple. She herself was gowned in sumptuous purple velvet, adorned with falls of priceless lace, a more mature, ample and majestic presence than I had dreamed she could be. I was permitted to stay long and talk on every topic, but the forbidden ones of her identity and mine. I kissed her hand at parting.

The third time I went I resolved to discover who she was and whether she reciprocated my passion. I no longer recognized myself. I was wild about her.

I found her robed in the very garb of passion—glistening red silk, barbarically splendid, with wonderful garniture of rubies and diamonds. About the room, here and there, a single crimson chrysanthemum echoed the note of her poignant personality. Awhile she eluded me, lithe and slender as flame; but at last my pleading touched her.

"I believe you do love me!" she cried. Her superb bosom swelled against its jewelled barrier.

"I love you more than life! Whoever and whatever you are, I love you!"

She gave herself to my arms and my lips had their will.

"But you don't know who I am!" she laughed, escaping.

"You are my wife to be! I have told you that the name of my family is honorably known to every man in the street. And our wealth is equal to our honor. Will you hear my name and tell me yours tonight?"

"Not tonight," she said, and her eyes grew suddenly dark and terrible. "Not tonight! Tomorrow! But do not come till night!"

On the morrow night she was not in the drawing room when I entered. White chrysanthemums clustered in every available place, large, loose, crinkly-petalled abandon or delicate, staid reserve. I was vexed to see among them her favorite pied variety, white petals splashed and streaked with red.

Then she came, a seductive bridal vision infloating, glimmering white. I sprang forward.

"Wait!" She threw up her hand forbiddingly.

Her voice was clear and dulcet and self possessed.

"I am Christine Tyrone."

"Impossible!" I gasped.

You remember the famous Tyrone murder case—every one does!—the California millionaire who was killed in his bed. The man's wife, thirty years younger, and her lover were implicated. Evidence showed the guilt of the woman at least, conclusively. But she was a woman and strangely beautiful. The jury acquitted her and condemned the man.

All this went through my sickening brain. And—horror of horrors! That dim, haunting likeness in the face of Chrysanthe was for the newspaper pictures of the murderess!

"Yes, I killed him, my husband," she said slowly. "I hated him and he mated Roland. I struck the blow myself to spare Roland. But the jury—" Her face went suddenly white and wild. She beat her clenched hands against her breast. "Roland died today," she whispered, "in the Western slaughter house!"

In an instant she mastered the wave of anguish, and became the woman I knew.

"You must forgive me for making you love me," she smiled. "I wanted to be loved once more. I thought it might help me to forget. And I chose fastidiously! But it has hardly worked, has it?" She laughed in my face. I shrank.

"Ah, you are shocked, monsieur. Wait! I will show you one of my pied chrysanthemums!"

She moved across the room toward a great bunch of the splotched beauties. I wheeled away stricken and stunned. Raising my eyes to the mirror I just caught reflected the gleam and plunge of her lifted arm.

I whirled about. Too late! I was only in time to catch her as she fell. She herself pulled out the dagger, and the blood gushing forth streaked and stained her white gown.

FIRED FIVE SHOTS

At Two Women But No Serious Injuries.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 7.—Angered because his wife walked with his mother-in-law instead of riding with him, Albert Nelson, a south side business man, yesterday afternoon fired five shots at the two women, whom he met on Fifth street. The shots lodged in the folds of the women's clothing, but inflicted none but flesh wounds. One bullet struck a corset stay which probably saved the life of Mrs. Nelson.

Nelson took to the woods and was chased by the police. Seventeen shots were fired at him as he dodged behind trees, fences and other obstacles, but none took effect. When Nelson was finally captured it was because he fell exhausted in the road several miles south of the city.

The police regard the two shootings as the most remarkable in the history of police business in this city. In all twenty-two shots were fired. The police and Nelson say that they aimed to maim and the miracle is that there is practically no injury.

Nelson says his mother-in-law has been alienating the affections of his wife from him.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

George M. Moore, M. D., in the American Health Journal says: "The one laxative which has merit is Rea Bros.' Cascarin, made from roots, herbs, barks, plants and berries, nature's true remedies, and has given universal satisfaction. It would be an excellent investment for any one to keep this remedy near at hand. The digestive organs, often need a laxative tonic to aid them in their work, which every one makes doubly hard through carelessness. Rea Bros.' Cascarin cleanses the bowels thoroughly, strengthens the stomach, stimulates the liver and increases the flow of bile. This results in more of the food being digested and purer blood being produced. Pure blood will overcome any disease. It tones up the nerves, makes the complexion clear and healthy. No one can afford to be without a bottle of Cascarin, for it only ccosts 50 cents a bottle. Your money will be refunded if it is not entirely satisfactory. At all leading druggists.

RIOTING AT VICTOR.

One Man Killed and Several Seriously Injured.

Victor, Col., June 7.—Rioting broke out in this city yesterday afternoon while a mass meeting was being held to discuss the murder of twelve non-union miners by means of an infernal machine at Independence. Forty shots were fired in a crowd in the street. One man was killed and six persons at least injured.

The dead:

R. McGEE, of Victor, shot through heart.

The injured: William Hoskins, of Goldfield, shot through body, may die; Alfred Miller, of Goldfield, shot in body, may die; J. D. Davis, skull fractured by blow from revolver, seriously injured; Peter Fleming, shot; Fred Strudes, engineer at Independence mine; an unknown man.

Secretary Clarence C. Hamlin of the Mine Owners' association, concluding a short address, said:

"I want to hear what the boys in the mines have to say about this trouble. Sam Hoskins, a union miner from Goldfield, threw up his hands and shouted: "Let me talk."

At this the crowd began to hiss Hoskins and cry, "Put him out."

A free-for-all fight followed, and shooting began.

Most of the shots were directed skyward.

Hoskins fell with a bullet in his body, and the crowd scattered in every direction.

Secretary Hamlin, who had been standing on a wagon, kept talking, unmindful of the hailstorm of bullets that whizzed about his head.

After the first excitement had somewhat cleared away, the injured and the dying were gathered up.

R. McGee, of Victor, who was instantly killed, had been standing on an embankment, thirty feet above the men who had been fighting, and was an innocent spectator. AAlfred Miller and J. D. Davis were carried to the Victor hospital.

An eye-witness of the shooting said: "I saw them carry three men away, one shot through the head and another shot through the arm. I think that more than five were shot."

Previous to the rioting, Sheriff Henry M. Robertson had been summoned to a meeting of the Mine Owners' association in Armory hall, by a committee composed of C. C. Hamlin, secretary of the association; J. S. Murphy, manager of the Findley mine, and L. E. Hill, of the Theresia. At this meeting his resignation was demanded. He yielded to the demand. Then Edward Bell was appointed by the county commissioners to fill out Robertson's unexpired term. Robertson was a union miner before he was elected sheriff. Bell is a member of the Citizens' Alliance.

Nearly all the mines in the district have been closed by orders of the Mine Owners' association and hundreds of miners flocked into town from the surrounding hills. Fully 1200 supporters of the association gathered about the armory, where it was meeting. At the same time, 1000 men, armed with all sorts of weapons, were assembling on the vacant ground at the corner of Victor avenue and Fourth street in response to a call for a mass meeting. Most of these were union men who declared their intention to resist to the death any attempt to run them out of the district. City Marshal Michael O'Connell hurriedly swore in several hundred citizens, most of them union men, as deputy policemen, after being refused admission to the Mine Owners' headquarters. After a conference with Sheriff Bell and a number of mine owners, Mayor Frank D. French removed City Marshall O'Connell, who then dismissed his deputies.

Then followed the rioting in which McGee was killed and at least six persons injured.

After the rioting began Sheriff Bell ordered out al the soldiers in the district. He also appointed one hundred deputies. Wholesale arrests of union men will be made, it is said.

Soldiers have already arrested a trio of editors and printers of the Daily Record and City Marshal O'Connell, and put them in the bull pen.

Victor, Col., June 7.—Although excitement was at a high pitch last night, no sensational incidents occurred after the riot of the afternoon. From dark till dawn the principal streets were almost as crowded as they were during the day by thousands of men and women, who had assembled from all parts of the camp, in the belief that darkness would invite further bloodshed. Their expectations, however, proved to be groundless.

Aside from the occasional arrest of a union agitator by the military authorities, or the sheriff's deputies, and the occasional shriek of a Krag-Jorgenson from some dark, secluded spot in the foothills, the night passed off quietly. All night, however, the streets of the city and the pathways leading to and from the mines were watched closely by the troops and the deputies, and every few minutes a hard faced miner was brought in and placed in the armory, which is under heavy military guard. The dragnet was cast far and wide, and more than 150 union men, said to be the leaders of the riot of yesterday, are now lounging about on the hard floor of the armory. Many have been there since early yesterday morning, and there is no telling how much longer they will be kept in confinement.

At midnight last night a special train of five coaches, drawn by a heavy engine, pulled in on the Florence & Cripple Creek siding, near the temporary bull pen, and the suppressed excitement was suddenly raised to fever heat. It was rumored, and apparently with some foundation, that twelve or fifteen of the recognized leaders of the union were to be turned over to Sheriff Bell, and that all other prisoners were to be deported from the camp. As soon as the train backed on to the siding, Secretary C. C. Hamlin of the Mine Owners' association, Sheriff Bell, Mayor Francis and Capt. Moore went into conference at the military headquarters. In about thirty minutes Hamlin came out of his private room and telephoned to the railroad officials that the train would not be needed at that time. When this information went the rounds, those who had been expecting trouble gave a sigh of relief, and many went to their homes.

TWO SHARP FIGHTS

Between the Russian and Japanese Outposts.

Liao Yang, June 7.—Details have been received here of two smart outpost fights, one at Liao Tung and the other in southern Manchuria. The former occurred in the morning of June 3, at Yan Tai Antsur east of Vafangod (15 miles above Kin Chou). The Russian force consisted of an infantry regiment, some artillery, several companies of Cossacks and a squad of dragoons.

The enemy was discovered in the valley of Pwy-Tai-Antul. The Russians brought up a battery, opened fire and cleared the Japanese out of the valley. Then the Russian guns were moved to a more favorable position. The Japanese, taking advantage of this, fired a few shells. The Russian losses were Col. Serede and seventeen men wounded. Both sides retained their positions.

The other fight was between Major General Mistchenko's Cossacks and the Japanese advance posts along the river Kolendzy, north of Taku Shan. It lasted from the evening of June 3 till late the following day. A company of Cossacks tried to cut off a detachment of Japanese posted on the heights at Tadziapudey, but the enemy brought up reinforcements and the Russians were reinforced by five companies of Cossacks. Finally 3000 Japanese were engaged, including artillery. The Cossacks repeatedly drove the enemy from their entrenchments. In one charge the Japanese fled across the river, but returned with more reinforcements and the Russians drew off. The Cossacks' commander, Col. Starkoff, was killed and two officers and nine men were wounded. The Cossacks carried the body of their commander to Siu Yen.

FORTY-ONE MINES

Discovered and Removed at Talien Wan Bay.

Tokio, June 7.—Admiral Togo has succeeded in clearing the channel leading into Talien Wan. He began locating mines on June 3 and since then he has found and exploded forty-one. Yesterday a small steamer was able to safely enter the harbor. The work of locating other mines is now continuing and it is expected that the vicinity will be speedily cleared of all such dangerous obstructions to navigation. Admiral Togo reports that a southerly gale and a high sea prevailed during his operations, but the men steadfastly continued at their work.

DESCRIPTION OF BATTLE

Of Kin Chou By Associated Press Correspondent.

Liao Yang, June 7.—Nemirovich-Danchoko, the distinguished war correspondent in the service of the Associated Press, sends from the front the following description of the battle of Kin Chou:

"The Japanese forces consisted of 45,000 men, with a large number of long-range guns which they brought up from all quarters, and supported by their fleet, which had taken up positions on the east and west shores of the Kin Chou isthmus. The battle opened at 5 in the morning with a cannonade of unparalleled violence. The isthmus appeared to be afire. Shrapnel burst by thousands. Shells fell everywhere, littering the lower slopes of the mountains, the railway line and the trenches with fragments. The Russian artillery and machine guns worked incessantly.

"The Japanese infantry advanced under cover of their artillery fire to the attack. The Russians, despite scanty numbers, obstinately defended the heights, which were literally torn up by projectiles from the Japanese battleships and cruisers. Some of the entrenchments were completely blown to pieces. In some parts of the position not a square yard remained unplowed by Japanese shells. The Russians, with incredible audacity, threw themselves upon the Japanese, but fell back shattered by a murderous fire.

"A considerable force of Japanese infantry attempted to turn the Russian position by advancing on Kin Chou through the sea, wading a distance from the shore, neck high in water. But the attempt failed through the determined resistance of the Russians standing their ground like a living wall. The men of the Fifth regiment were the most seriously tried. The remnant threw themselves with desperate valor on the Japanese, who recoiled in confusion. All the officers were down, but the men, although left to themselves, did not waver. They continued to defend the position with coolness and intelligence, always hurrying to threatened points to repel an attack.

"The battle continued uninterruptedly for fifteen hours. The Russians at 8 o'clock, having spiked their pieces and destroyed the mechanism of the machine guns, retreated toward Port Arthur. Their killed and wounded numbered 800. Many wounded would not leave the firing line. Others during the engagement returned to the firing line after their wounds had been dressed, saying, 'Even cripples are wanted there now. Though we cannot stand, we can shoot, and if we help to hold out an hour longer, that will be so much gained.'"

QUIET AT VLADIVOSTOK.

Provisions Sent From There to Port Arthur.

Vladivostok, June 7.—All is quite here. It can be stated that Port Arthur is abundantly supplied with provision and munitions of war. The bulk of the supplies now there was sent from here before communication was cut off.

Vladivostok was not weakened by sending these supplies and there is plenty of everything remaining here, except sugar. Kerosene is also scarce among the civilians, but the quantity on hand is adequate for the need of the garrison. Trade with the interior is improving. A train often arrives laden with miscellaneous goods.

Much excitement has been caused by the reported discovery of gold in the vicinity of the mouth or the Amur river. Several hundred prospectors have already gone to the locality and others are starting.

Mail advices from Liao Yang say the last ambulance train to arrive had on board, among other wounded, a Japanese prisoner, whom Gen. Kuropatkin took particular care to single out and compliment on the fighting qualities of his compatriots. The general told the Japanese he would personally insure the forwarding of a letter to his parents in Tokio.

A Russian soldier, who was badly wounded at Turenchen has received a medal for an exploit performed by him during the fighting there. He returned to his uninjured gun, which could not be removed when the Russians withdrew and disabled it as the Japanese were coming up. He received a number of bayonet wounds, but succeeded in making his escape.

MA CAN CONTROL TROOPS.

Pekin, June 7.—The Chinese officials emphatically deny that there is the slightest reason to doubt General Ma's ability to control his troops. General Ma has been strictly ordered to prevent any outbreak and none is likely to occur. Viceroy Alexieff's Manchurian proclamation charging the villages with the duty of protecting the railway under pain of extermination, is creating a bad impression here. The government has protested unavallingly and it is currently supposed that Russia desires to provoke an outburst with the view of justifying Russia aggression.

CORRESPONDENT KILLED.

Newchwang, June 7.—A private telegram just received from Shanhaikwan says that Lewis Etzel, correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph and Ernest Brindle of the London Daily Mail were fired upon by Chinese soldiers while in a junk between Shwanaitze and Erdiko. Etzel was killed but Brindle is believed to be safe. They left here on June 3, to investigate the movements of some bandits. Etzel was a native of Butler, Pa., and his father resides now either at Denver, Col., or San Diego, Cal.

ALL LABORERS EMPLOYED.

The work is organized in a style different from that of the French company, and will enable the laborers to do the maximum amount of work. The Panama section house, where the canal commission will reside, is being repaired.

STATE HAS NO POWER

By Law to Lease Land Lying Under Water For Exploration.

The Supreme Court Intimates There Will Be No Change.

St. Paul, June 7.—The supreme court of Minnesota, sitting yesterday in a case involving the question whether or not the state has the right to lease lands lying under water for mineral exploration, intimated quite broadly that there would be no change in the law which has prevailed in Minnesota since the state was admitted to the Union, which law confers no such power on the state.

The case under consideration was the state of Minnesota ex rel, Richard Grant, relator, vs. Samuel G. Iverson, commissioner of the land office of the state of Minnesota, and the suit was a friendly one, so far as the parties in issue were concerned. Other Minnesota mining men, however, intervened and filed briefs in opposition to the claims of the relator, who own land abutting on lakes, which would be seriously depreciated in value were the courts to decide in favor of Grant and his contention that the state has a right to lease land lying in the beds of the lakes of the state.

The case came before the supreme court on a writ of certiorari, directed to S. G. Iverson, state auditor and land commissioner, requiring him to certify for review the record of his action in refusing to grant to Richard F. Grant, a Duluth attorney, a mineral lease governing certain lands lying under the waters of Snowball lake, in Itasca county. While it is questionable whether or not there are valuable lands under or not there are valuable minerals underneath Snowball lake, the suit was in a sense a friendly issue between Grant and the state auditor.

The auditor had previously issued leases to mining men under similar circumstances, but refused in this instance for the purpose of precipitating a suit that a determination of the question whether or not the state has such an interest in the beds of lakes as will give to the right to issue mineral leases thereon. Other applications pending were heard by the state auditor pending a decision in this case.

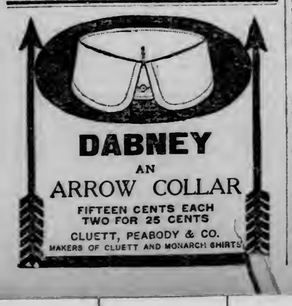
On the trial of the case Grant in person filed a brief and argued the case orally. Attorney General Donahower filed a brief, in which he raised the point that the court in this proceeding could not grant the relief asked for. Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, and Jacques & Hudson, Duluth attorneys; W. R. Begg, St. Paul, and M. H. Standford, an Illinois attorney, each submitted briefs against the proposed lease, as representing clients who own lands which would be adversely affected either by the issuance of the lease in question, or similar leases, and several of the attorneys argued the case orally before the court.

It was in the course of Grant's argument that Chief Justice Start asked a question which is taken to forecast the court's decision. He intimated that if the contention of the relator was the correct one, the improvements made about St. Louis bay, and consisting of elevators, mills, wholesale houses and docks, and estimated at millions of dollars, all standing on land originally under water, or on made land, would never have been built. Certainly no man would invest any large amount of money on land which the state still controlled, and the chief justice suggested that the state had no such authority over lands in a meandered lake, but the shore rights belonged to the land owners, and this right could not be destroyed by a writ of certorari, as asked for in this case.

The case was taken under advisement by the supreme court. It is considered of much importance to the iron mining interests of the state.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Louis Larson, aged 16 years, and his sister Nellie, aged 14, were drowned near Mellen, Wis., while boat riding in Meter lake. In some unknown manner the girl accidentally fell overboard and her brother jumped in after her, but she threw her arms around him and dragged him down, both drowning in sight of many people on shore.



A tornado near Commanche, I. T., destroyed several houses. Four persons were severely hurt, but no deaths are reported. The schoolhouse at Williamsport was demolished and heavy damage to crops done.

Oil derricks were raised, houses were unroofed and twisted on their foundations and lives were imperilled in a fierce tornado that swept the town of Amos, W. Va., Sunday evening. Amos is the center of a large oil territory and the damage sustained is estimated at $75,000.

Charlie Neary, of Milwaukee, and Clarence English, of Omaha, fought uninteresting rounds at Chicago, Monday night, the decision being a draw. Both men showed poor judgment and the first four rounds were more of a wrestling match than a boxing contest.

SALARIES OF MAIL CARRIERS

On Rural Routes to Be Adjusted By Miles Traveled.

Washington, June 7.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow announced yesterday that the salaries of the rural free delivery mail carriers will be adjusted on the basis of the number of miles traveled. Further than this Mr. Bristow would not discuss the adjustment the department is now making in the classification of the carriers.

The following statement regarding the outside business privileges of the rural carriers was issued at the postoffice department and an order in accordance therewith will be promulgated at once by the postmaster general:

"Under the law rural carriers are not permitted to solicit business or to receive orders of any kind from any person, firm or corporation, and cannot, during the hours of their employment carry any merchandise for hire, except that they may carry merchandise for hire for and at the request of patrons residing on their respective routes, provided the same shall not interfere with the proper discharge of their official duties, and under such regulations as the postmaster general may prescribe.

"Under this provision of law no mailable matter may be handled by rural carriers while serving their routes, unless the proper postage has been prepaid, with the single exception of county newspapers, which, under the law, are permitted to be carried free throughout the county in which they are published, to actual subscribers, and such newspapers addressed to subscribers, residents on rural routes, must be deposited at the postoffice the same as papers for other subscribers.

"The hire for merchandise carried on request of the patron of rural free delivery must be paid by the patrons. Carriers will not be permitted to receive any compensation from the seller of such merchandise.

"Articles, or packages, which are mailable which are handed to the carrier or deposited in the postoffice or in a rural letter box or in a collection box located on a rural route, with requests that the rural carrier deliver the same, are subject to the rules regulating mail matter, including the payment of postage thereon.

"Articles or packages that are not mailable, which the patron desires the rural carrier to carry, must be delivered to the carrier in person and in carrying merchandise for hire rural carriers are not permitted to leave their routes as officially laid out or to accept anything that will in any way delay the delivery of the mail or in any way interfere with the efficiency of the service."

AGAIN HOLD SERVICES

Mr. and Mrs. William Asher Appear at Two Saloons.

Mr. and Mrs. William Asher, of the Duluth Bethel association, who have started upon a series of meetings in the saloons of the city, held services at two places last evening, Charles Wheaton's Monte Cristo bar room on South Lake avenue and August Johnson's saloon on the Bowery.

The evangelists were treated with the utmost respect at both places by the proprietors and the occupants and good sized audiences gathered to listen to the speaking and participate in the singing. If any intoxicated persons showed a disposition to interrupt the service they were quickly suppressed by their fellows.

The method employed by the evangelists is to first obtain the permission of the saloonkeeper to hold services in his place of business. This is rarely ever refused. After several rousing sacred hymns by Mrs. Asher, who plays a portable organ, Mr. Asher talks to the crowd.

Some Lumber Sales.

Some small lots of lumber have been sold by local interests in the past few days. The Barnett-Record company has purchased about 500,600 feet of long Norway stuff to be shipped to the construction work now going on at Port Arthur. The Red Cliff Lumber company is said to have sold 1,000,000 feet to go to Cleveland and C. R. Ash, who is manufacturing lumber at Virginia, has placed 6,000,000 feet of lumber and 5,000,000 lath among Eestern wholesalers and boxmakers. The Lesure Lumber company has sold 500,000 feet to go East.

Other small sales are being made from time to time so that the unsold stock is not acumulating very fast.

ISSUE OF BONDS

School Board to Submit Question at Coming Election.

To Erect Three Buildings —Arrangements Made For Election.

The proposition to issue bonds for $125,000 to defray the expense of erecting three buildings for school purposes in different parts of Duluth will be voted on by the people at the general school election, to be held July 16, according to a resolution passed at the regular monthly meeting of the board of education last evening.

With the money raised by bonding, a ten-room school building will be built at West Duluth, to draw from both the Irving and Longfellow school districts; another ten-room building will be erected at Hunter's Park, and a structure to be used as a manual training department will be constructed at the southwest corner of Third street and First avenue east, adjacent to the high school building.

No opposition was offered by members of the board regarding the issue of bonds. One or two of the directors were of the opinion that if the bonds were issued as needed they would not be legal, basing this opinion on the fact that the city met with difficulty in issuing the last $40,000 bonds of the $100,000 originally decided upon for the water and light department. It was decided that there was a difference in the two cases, and that it would be well within the confines of the law to issue the bonds as needed—a certain amount for one building at one time, more at a later date for another building and a third installment for the last building to be erected. The resolution provides for their being issued "as and when needed." Interest will be paid on them at the rate of 4 per cent per annum.

On resolution of Commissioner H. H. Phelps it was voted to issue 10,000 ballot blanks, more or less, for the voters at the forthcoming school election. They will contain the names of candidates now on file with the board, with a space for the vote on the bond issue. Instructions regarding the issue will be published in the daily papers. A two-thirds vote of those voting on bonds, and not two-thirds of all the voters, will prevail.

The petition of James L. Crawford and others, asking that they be allowed to connect a branch sewer, used by three blocks of houses directly north of the Irving school building, with the school sewer, was considered, but definite action on the matter was postponed until the next meeting, pending the result of a further investigation to be instituted by the proper committee, consisting with H. H. Phelps and L. A. Larson, chief engineer of the Duluth schools. It is feared the sewer pipes are too small to admit of the proposed connection.

Mr. Washburn said that if this was the case it would be no kindness to the people to allow them the privilege asked for. It is customary for the board to charge $25 for each sewer connection, but there is some doubt in this instance as to whether each family should be charged the $25, or whether this fee should apply to the whole row of houses concerned. There will really be only one connection, but this connection will be used by a number of families. A case of this nature has never before been brought to the attention of the board.

There was some discussion over the question as to whether substitute teachers, who have been engaged during the past school year, should have the advantage of the two weeks' extra salary granted by the board to teachers who serve throughout the year. It was decided that those teachers who began the year as substitutes and were later elected to the regular teaching force, those who began the year as substitutes and taught in this capacity throughout the year, and those who were elected to regular positions during the year, should receive pay for ten months' work.

* * *

It was decided to employ George S. Wilson to audit the accounts of the board for the school year. On motion of J. L. Washburn, it was unanimously voted to re-elect the three members of the present board of examiners, which is made up of Superintendent Denfeld and two high school professors.

* * *

Petitions for the re-election of J. L. Washburn, 759 signers; N. C. Hendrickson, 260 signers, and J. J. Moe, with 260 signers, were opened.

By the treasurer's statement it was shown that there is now in the general fund $203,758.50; overdraft, $39,530.97; building fund, $22,985.

Superintendent R. E. Denfeld, in his report on the results of the Seymour lectures, said the net receipts from the course were $25.25. He urged that the feature be made permanent.

SHOOTING AT TURTLE RIVER

Bemidji, Minn., June 7.—A serious shooting case occurred last Saturday evening at the Valle homestead about three miles and a half from Turtle River, when Frank Warner shot, with a shot gun, and seriously wounded Frank Brady, a well-known logging-camp cook, who now lies in a critical condition at St. Anthony's hospital in this city.

Warner's story is to the effect that Brady came to his homestead and that while he was preparing supper the two became involved in a dispute over some old grudge which culminated in blows. He asserts that Brady knocked him down and then started to leave the house. He shot him while he was leaving the premises and says he believes himself justified in doing it.

Brady's story is different. He says he was invited to the Valle homestead by Warner, with whom he had been friendly for a number of years. Warner was sullen and morose and started talking of some trouble the men had had five or six years ago. A dispute followed and Brady stated to Warner that he did not care to have trouble with him and that he would leave the premises. He walked to the edge of the clearing on his way back to Turtle River and when he called out, asking which was the right road, Warner picked up his shotgun and fired, the charge taking effect in the small of the back. He crawled into the underbrush and hid and finally reached a neighbor's shack.

Brady came to this section from Sanilac county, Michigan and has been employed as a cook in the woods in this vicinity. For some time he conducted a restaurant at Cass Lake. He has always borne a good reputation. Unless blood poisoning should develop his wound is not necessarily fatal.

Warner is an old timer in this vicinity. He has an eccentric disposition and some of his friends incline to the opinion that he is mentally unbalanced. He went to Turtle River and gave himself into custody.

"McFadden's Flats," at the Lyceum last evening was about the flattest entertainment that has held down the boards there for some time. A fair-siezd audience witnessed the sad attempts of Terry Simonds and his band of alleged actors to give the play a funny aspect.

The surfeit of horse play almost erased from the recollection of the audience the few funny things that were said or done. The worst of it was that the horse play was not even original, but of the old time worn order.

The chorus was very poor in appearance and very weak in vocal execution and the orchestra charitably covered up many defects.

The character of Tim McFadden, played by Terry Simonds, might pass for humorous in some home for old gentlemen. J. F. Willard was a shade or two better as Jacob Baumgarter, "another power in the ward." Belle Gold, as Mary Ellen, the belle of the ward, did her best stunt when showing how nimble she could be on her feet.

Terence McSwatt, a character by Preston Reed, was absolutely beyond redemption and the Weary Willie of Fred LaRue might be entered in the same class.

MAHARA'S MINSTRELS.

One of the novelties with Mahara's minstrels, who will appear at the Metropolitan Wednesday and Thursday, are eight handsomely costumed lady vocalists. This double quartet of women are graduates of the Dunavin Musical college, where high grade colored musicians are educated. It is claimed that the singing features of this organization compares favorably with the best operatic companies, it having always been the endeavor of the Mahara Brothers to excell in singing features, and these ladies, aided by twenty male voices in grand chorus, do fine work.

THE FOUR COHANS.

The Four Cohans are announced for the Lyceum Friday evening in "Running For Office." The company is a large one, the largest ever carried by the Cohans and probably the strongest ever seen in musical comedy. The cast includes George M. Cohan, Josephine Cohan, Jerry J. Cohan, Helen E. Cohan, James M. Manning, William Keough, John Keefe, Jo Smith Marba and M. J. Sullivan.

Miss Whittaker, a prominent club woman of Savannah, Ga., tells how she was entirely cured of ovarian troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Uterine Tonic and Regulator. I suffered for four years with irregularities and Uterine troubles. No one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental misery those endure who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me within three months. I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to be able to obtain such a remedy when so many doctors fail to help you. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had. Very truly yours, MISS EASY WHITTAKER, 604 39th St., W. Savannah, Ga."—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women prove beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

ANOTHER REPORT

By Johnson on "Bob Dunn's" Record Is Expected Soon.

Heatwole Denies Emphatically He Is Candidate For Senator.

St. Paul, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is reported at the state capitol that Public Examiner S. T. Johnson has about completed another installment of his report of the investigation of Former State Auditor R. C. Dunn's record, and that the report will be issued in a day or two. News of this has reached the Dunn headquarters and the Collins men are talking about the expected document.

Mr. Johnson has concentrated practically his entire office force on the examination in the last few days in an attempt to get the work out of the way as soon as possible. The Dunn men believe that Mr. Johnson's purpose is to spring as many reports as possible before the convention, on June 50.

"Ye, I have heard that Mr. Johnson has another installment of his report ready and that it is to be made public in a day or two," said Mr. Dunn yesterday. "I have no idea what the report contains, and I don't care. I am satisfied that the people of Minnesota understand the purpose of Mr. Johnson's investigations, and that what he has to say will not injure my candidacy."

The officials in the public examiner's department are keeping the matter quiet, but it is learned from the state auditor's office that something is about to be made public soon.

"The dispatch from Washington stating that it has been agreed that R. C. Dunn, if nominated, is to appoint me chairman of the Republican state central committee is absolutely without foundation," said Joel P. Heatwole to The Herald correspondent yesterday. "I would not accept the chairmanship of the state central committee if it were tendered to me."

Mr. Heatwole made this statement after reading a Washington dispatch in a Minneapolis paper, stating that Mr. Heatwole desires, as the only reward for working for R. C. Dunn, that he be appointed chairman of the state central committee, that he may "build up a party machine to the control of state politics." Mr. Heatwole, according to the dispatch, is to use the chairmanship of the committee as a stepping stone to the senate, and that should he fail to defeat Senator Clapp, he would make a fight on Senator Nelson.

Mr. Heatwole, in a letter to the Minneapolis Journal, flatly denies that he is a candidate for the senate, or that he ever told a group of politicians at the Merchants hotel, or a Journal reporter, that he would announce that he is a candidate after the nomination. After explaining the story, which appeared in the Minneapolis Journal, Mr. Heatwole says:

"Personally the matter is of little interest to me, but inasmuch as this publication was intended to injure R. C. Dunn, the leading candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, and in whose candidacy I am very much interested as a friend; and as your newspaper has been deliberately and repeatedly using said false assertions for the sole purpose of attempting to prejudice your readers againts Mr. Dunn, I now write and ask, as a matter of simple justice, that this letter appear in as conspicuous a place in the Minneapolis Journal as was given the faked interview."

Mr. Heatwole closes the letter by saying:

"I wish to distinctly state, as I have heretofore stated in my newspaper, in letters and personal conversations, that I am not a candidate for United States senator, or for any other office."

Robert Jamison, chairman of the Republican state central committee and private secretary to Governor Van Sant, thus sizes up the gubernatorial situation in this state:

"I have unlimited confidence in the wisdom and good faith of the people of Minnesota, and that when they thoroughly understand a proposition they will take the right side. I believe that they understand the issues between R. C. Dunn and Judge Loren W. Collins, and that they will decide in favor of the St. Cloud judge. I believe that Judge Collins will be nominated by the Republicans June 30. I have not paid much attention to the details of the situation, but my candid opinion is that Judge Collins will win."

Very One-Sided.

The Proctor baseball team defeated the Pike Lake nine Sunday by the score of 25 to 1. The game was a close one up to the fifth inning, when the Pike Lake team went to piects and Proctor piled up 20 runs. The line-up was as follows:

Proctor—		Pike Lake—
Nelson	catcher	J. Brinda
Fraser	piether	Engreen
Cusick	first base	Peterson
Witt	second base	Koldeski
Kemp	third base	Barrie
Trempe	short stop	Denoniski

VETERANS' AGES

Old Soldiers Would Be Affected By Retirement Order.

One-Tenth of All Government Employes In Washington.

Washington, June 7.—Pursuant to efforts to retire from government service clerks who may have become superannuated because of age, the civil service commission has conducted an investigation and prepared a statement showing how such retirement might affect the veterans of the civil war if any of the propositions were carried into effect.

During the session of congress just past, the house committee on reform in the civil service, of which Representative Gillett, of Massachusetts, is chairman, conducted a series of hearings upon the subject of retirement and superannuation, and recommended a plan which in effect meant the discharge of government employes at the age of seventy, and would preclude any form continuing in the classified service after reaching that age.

The old soldiers have been more interested in the matter than any other class of employes, since they constitute one-tenth of all the government employes in Washington, and are rapidly reaching the proposed age limit.

The statement of the civil service commission shows that the ages of the veterans of the rebellion in service in Washington range from fifty to eighty-two years, there being one at each of these ages. There are 217 who are sixty-one years of age, and 190 who are sixty-two years old, and 190 who are fifty-nine. There are 2175 veterans in the service in this city, and nearly two-thirds of this number, or 1585, are from fifty-eight to sixty-five years of age.

Those over seventy years of age number 226. Of this number eleven are more than eighty. The ages of twenty-two are unknown. The veteran with the longest service is seventy-seven years old, and has served fifty-two years.

The largest number of veterans according to salary grouping is 412, receiving from $1200 to $1400 per annum, followed by 321 receiving from $1400 to $1600 per annum. Nearly two-thirds, or 1332 of the 2175 veterans receive salaries ranging from $1200 to $2500 per annum, while sixty-six receive more than $2500 per annum.

The salaries of sixteen are not known. Those receiving $840 or less number 476, and presumably are watchmen, messengers, laborers, etc.

The veterans of the war of the rebellion, and widows of such veterans, constitute 10 per cent of the number of persons employed in the departmental service and government printing office in Washington.

One veteran in the service is eighty-six years of age, and comes in the class whose length of service is between ten and fourteen years, and whose salaries range between $1200 and $1400 a year.

There are 140 veterans who have been in civil government service for less than five years, and the ages of sixty-five of them range between sixty and sixty-four years, while fifty-one of them are between the ages of fifty-five and fifty-nine; six of them are over seventy and under seventy-four, and one is over seventy-five.

SPECIMENS OF FISH TAKEN

Cass Lake, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The private car belonging to the state game and fish commission of the state of Pennsylvania was in Cass Lake over Sunday, having come in from St. Paul on Saturday night for the purpose of taking to the St. Louis exposition specimens of fish which inhabit the waters of Cass lake and its tributaries. Sam F. Fullerton, executive agent of the Minnesota game and fish commission, was in charge of the car and accompanying him were William Sprane, of Erie, Pa., and W. A. Hutchinson, of Corry, Pa., employes of the commission of that state. The Cass Lake game warden had used a net in the lakes here and had secured a large lot of specimens of pike, pickerel, whitefish, mull and some of the other varieties. It had been the intention to secure several large muskallonge, there being many in the large lake here, but owing to the fact that the weather was exceedingly stormy during the past week, the water was in such a disturbed condition that it was almost impossible to drag the long net in the deep water where the "muskies" live, at least not rapidly enough to catch and hold the big fellows, consequently none were secured, although several very large pickerel were secured. Many black and othr varieties of bass could have been secured here, but Mr. Fullerton had previously made arrangements to get these varieties at Alexandria, and no effort was made here to get any. Those specimens secured here were very good, and will add considerably to the exhibit being made by the state at St. Louis.

Y. M. C. A. WITH JAP TROOPS

General Staff of the Japanese Army Opens the Way.

New York, June 7.—Early in January, before trouble began between Russia and Japan, the Young Men's Christian association in the latter country undertook to do for the soldiers of the Japanese army what the American associations did for the enlisted men in the Spanish-American war. At the outbreak of hostilities in February application was made to the general staff of the Japanese army and the services of the Japanese associations were offered. The officers were against the proposition. Only Buddhist priests were to be allowed to go with the army. The prevailing sentiment was anti-Christian. Permission was indefinitely postponed, although many educated and pro-Christian leaders supported the application. Only after months of delay and through pressure brought to bear by eminent Japancse and by several of the foreign ministers in their personal capacity, orders were given permitting associations to send six Japanese and six foreign men forward with the troops. Four of the Japanese are members of the national committee of the associations of Japan, one of the men is an American association secretary and five are missionaries. The Evangelical alliance and the Missionary union of Japan co-operate with the association, which is an interdenominational action of unusual significance on the foreign field. Simultaneously with allowing correspondents of the press to go to the front, the association representatives were accorded the same privilege. The associations will establish tents, containing correspondence materials, reading matter, musical instruments, games and such features as may be provided for social and relief purposes at the principal camps in Korea as far north as the Yalu river, in which section over 100,000 men are concentrated. Between 300,000 and 400,000 men have been mobilized and will go to the front, passing largely through the camps where the association will operate. The majority of the soldiers are from the country districts, have a common-school education and are by no means illiterate. They are open-minded men and will not be generally averse to the ministrations of a "Christian" organization. The usual American association army institutional and social features and frequent religious services will be conducted. A fund to provide for the enterprise in Japan has been raised. At the recent association convention in Buffalo $500 was pledged; New Jersey associations have sent out $500, and Japanese residents in leading American cities will probably contribute an equal amount. Galen M. Fisher, representing the National Association union of Japan, now at 3 West Twenty-ninth street, New York, is receiving contributions. One thousand dollars more will be required to see the enterprise through the year. The association will act, as did the Christian commission in our civil war, as a medium of general helpfulness for the distribution of everything that contributes to the comfort and efficiency of the soldiers.

The association movement in Japan now enrolls over 2000 members in its fifty-nine associations, among whom are many men of national prominee, both in civic and military circles. Men like Baron Komura, the foreign minister of Japan, who was educated in America, strongly favored the association's entrance into the army.

A great memorial meeting was held on March 31 under the auspices of the Tokio association, commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of Japan by the treaty concluded by Commodore Perry. The hall was crowded and distinguished men connected with the privy council and governmental circles were on the platform. Addresses were made by Count Okuma, ex-premier, and others. The meeting took a practical form in the shape of a subscription of $3500 for the relief of the families of Japanese soldiers and sailors. This fund has also been supplemented by general subscriptions in America, sent through John Ford, of the American Asiatic association, New York. Anti-Christian sentiment had run high. Ignorant and fanatical Japanese were beginning to raise the cry that the war was one between Buddhism and Christianity, and this meeting and the proffered assistance to families of soldiers and sailors had an appreciable influence in curbing the anti-foreign sentiment, and in showing the Yankees of the East that they had the support of Americans, regardless of creed or race.

BEANS VS. BULLETS.

During the Civil War, disease killed as many soldiers as did bullets. One writer says: "Beans killed more men than bullets." Poor food was responsible for many deaths. The boys of '61 hadn't the advantage of pure wheat foods like the boys of today. If they had a packange of pillsbury's vitos in their knapsacks, it would have been a different story. Vitos is always healthgiving.

DEAD MAN IS IDENTIFIED

Man Killed Was N. Nordling Resident of Wolf Junction.

N. Nordling, the man who was killed in being thrown from a train at twenty-first avenue west, Saturday afternoon, was identified yesterday by a cousin, Andrew Peterson, of Two Harbors.

Mr. Nordling lived at Wolf Junction, where he was section foreman for the Missabe road, having held the position a year.

The decedent was a single man and had no other relatives than Mr. Peterson in this country. His mother lives in Germany.

The body will be buried by the Railway company.

Mr. Nordling got on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern train at 3:50 p. m., last Saturday, to return to Wolf. About 10 minutes after the train left Duluth he was found unconscious alongside the track at Twenty-first avenue west, the supposition being that he was thrown off when the train rounded a short curve. He did not regain consciousness and died at the Red Cross hospital early Sunday morning.

FOOTBALL PROBLEM

Claimed That Workingmen Are Injuriously Affected By It.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Consul Water C. Harmon, writing from Hull, England, has this to say regarding football in England:

Football is a source of trouble in England as in the United States, but in a different way. In the United States the chief complaint against the game is that it occupies too much of the time of college students, costs too much money, is dangerous to life and limb, and has a generally demoralizing effect on undergraduate athletics.

In England it is not the college students, but the workingmen, who, it is claimed, are injuriously affected by football. Two articles touching on this subject have recently appeared in English magazines, and the view they take of the question may be of interest to the American public. The first is from the New Liberal Review and cites the tendency to football and other sports as one of the signs of the "decay of industry." The following is a pertinent extract:

"Despite the modern talk about the dignity of labor, in practice the workingmen evince but scant respect for labor as such. All over the country the evidence accumulates that they are the victims of the present-day tendency to leave work to take care of itself so long as ever-increasing oportunities can be secured, not for rational leisure, but for pleasure seeking. The Saturday half holiday is coming to be supplemented more and more by a'day off' on Monday, and Monday football matches are now a recognized institution. The occurrence of bank holidays is made the occasion of a suspension of work during several days following and everybody knows to his cost the difficulty, if not the impossibility, of getting any work done for at least a week after the holidays. The observance of Mabon's day—a monthly whole holiday—in Wales has long been a standing grievance to the employers of men for whom the claims of their work seem to rank after all others. No reasonable or fair-minded person will grudge a generous allowance of holidays to the toilers and the breadwinners. But it is a cause for censure that work should be held in such low esteem that any and every excuse should be deemed good enough for setting aside its obligations."

The second article appeared in Macmillan's Magazine for February, and is directly to the point. These extracts will be found interesting:

"Large employers of labor in Yorkshire, in Lancashire, in Durham, and in Northumberland, as well as in the Midlands, have been obliged to yield to the rush of the tide and are powerless to command the interests of business against those of football. Momentous events, such as the launching of a ship or the completion of an important order within contract time, have frequently been delayed by the coincidence of a 'cup tie.' Large establishments are occasionally closed in mid-week because the whole body of workmen take into their heads that their pets on the football grounds require encouragement. If these men were ordinary hewers of wood and drawers of water a remedy might be found, but they are chiefly skilled laborers—earners of good wages—who need never be out of work, and who, if turned off, would be eagerly snapped up by a rival.

Persuasion is useless, for money is no object to men who can make their £3, £4, and £5 ($14.60, $19.47, and $24.33) for a week of five days; resistance is worse than useless; so the tyrannized employers have, in their own interests, actually to encourage what in their hearts they detest. Thus, as I have been told, a large shipbuilding firm in one of our northeastern ports has been forced to find good berths for a couple of first-rate football players during the summer months, merely to retain their services for the local club and to prevent them from being tempted away by a rival. If a man or a half dozen men are absent from their posts on a Wednesday or a Saturday nobody asks where they are, or if they are ill or dead; it being taken for granted that football somewhere has attracted them away. To ask leave of absence is, of course, an archaic superfluity. Jamie or Georgie wants to be at a certain game, he goes, and there is no more to be said about it."

The objection to football in England, then, is that it interferes with business and not that it occupies the time and uses up the pocket money of college students.

It must be remembered that football in England is largely professional, as baseball is in the United States, and that it is played six or eight months in the year and not confined to two months in the autumn. There are intercollegiate and interschool matches, but the chief interest in the game centers in the matches played by the professional teams. The interest felt in the game can be measured by the attention given it by the newspapers. Every day the announcement of games to come, and the reports of games played the previous day, occupy several columns in the leading newspapers and the Saturday games demand a page and a half in Monday morning's newspapers.

From this it will be seen that football is a much more serious subject in England than in the United States.

Hints To Advertisers

The Herald's First or Iron Range editions are not the least important of its advertising service. Always have your copy in by noon of the day before in order to secure this service.

No store ever "fell behind" if the advertising was adequate—carefully planned, prepared and placed.

"Young-man- afraid-of -his-horses" made a pretty good chief for the Sioux Indians, in spite of his name. But "Young-man -afraid-of-his- expenses" make a pretty poor sort of a merchant; especially if he is afraid to use printers' ink.

Timidity is sometimes a negative sort of courage. For example: Nowadays it is more dangerous for a merchant to advertise sparingly than it is to advertise on a big scale—so the timid man faces the greater peril.

The merchant should not give the people the impression that on some days of the week there is very little business done at his store. Spiritless advertising—reduced space—will give such an impression.

The first big expenditure a merchant makes for advertising makes his teeth chatter. It is the same when a boy makes his first plunge and tries to learn to swim. But very few people ever lose their lives in learning to swim—very few. Even a less number lose their fortunes in learning to advertise.

DULL AND LOWER

Copper Metal Price Not Yet at the Turning Point.

George L. Walker reports copper dull and the tendency toward lower prices. Consumers seem to think they can buy the metal cheaper and are delaying purchases. As to copper shares, he reports the market in a rut but is no less confident than ever that prices are dragging on the bottom and that a rise is not far off. He says:

"The copper market continues dull with a slight tendency at the moment toward lower prices. Lake is now about 13 cents, and electrolytic is reported offered at 12¾ cents per pound. Consumers are holding off and hoping for a decline upon which they may replenish their exhausted supplies. They are buying only what they are obliged to to keep going from day to day. Producers have sold more or less copper for July delivery, have no supplies left on hand, and they therefore are not disposed to press copper for sale. Should one or two large consumers come into the market to buy in considerable quantity there could not be other than a substantial advance in prices.

"It is the opinion of a leading foreign metal selling agency that the advance in the price of copper to nearly 14 cents per pound recently in Europe slightly checked the consuming demand and that there is now a disposition there as well as here to, as far as possible, wait for slightly lower prices. It is an interesting situation. The market is in every way in a natural position and we see the price of copper hovering around the point at which the world's demand for the metal readily absorbs the current volume of production. A slight improvement in general business conditions either here or in Europe will advance the price, and a further trade reaction might drag it down slightly.

"The foreign visible supply of copper is steadily declining. June 1 it was at the lowest point ever reported, amounting to only 10,823 long tons. This compares with 15,764 a year ago, 24,264 in 1902, and 27,231 in 1901. This reflects the healthy position of the market. Exports of copper for the month of May aggregated 14,377 long tons, or 810 tons more than in April. Total exports for the first five months of this year amounted to 96,954 tons, or about 65 per cent of the United States production. There is no reason to expect more than a fractional decline in the price of copper.

COPPER SHARES.

"The copper share market continues in the same rut of dullness that has held it for many months. The slight tendency of metal prices to sag has destroyed any speculative courage that the advance in copper earlier in the year may have created. The general disposition of traders now is to wait. It is a geo dtime for waiting, for all of the new producers are giving constantly improving account of themselves. There is a steady though slow absorption of copper stocks by small investors, and this will increase rather than diminish. Officials of copper mining companies tell me that the number of holders of record of the stocks of their companies is constantly increasing. This means that the large amounts of these stocks formerly held by commission brokers and carriers on margin for speculators are going into the hands of small investors who pay for them outright. This is greatly strengthening the market position.

"The present buyers of coppers are the class that refused to buy at the high prices of three or four years ago, but determined that when quotations got down to a very low level again they would buy and be prepared to make big profits on the next big boom. They will not miss in their calculations. Another boom will come, and it will carry prices just as much higher than they desire to go as they are now below the normal level. This is not intended as prophesy. It is simply a statement of what has occurred periodically ever since stock speculation began, and what is bound to continue while speculation lasts. A protracted period of depression always follows a boom and is in turn succeeded by an era of rising prices, which usually terminates in overspeculation. We have seen three years of depression in copper mining stocks, and there can be little question that the upward movement is about due to begin."

FATHER KILLS THREE CHILDREN AND HIMSELF.

Roselle, N. J., June 7.—After killing three of his children and wounding a fourth, Joseph M. Pouch, at one time an undertaker, shot himself through the head yesterday and died a few moments later.

Pouch lived in a little cottage with his four children. Sunday he shot two of them and embalmed their bodies. He took the other two to an upper room with him. Meanwhile he had mailed warning to County Physician Westcott, who, upon receiving the letter, notified the police. When the officials knocked at the door of the Pouch cottage yesterday Pouch shot and instantly killed his little daughter and wounded his sole remaining son. He then shot himself.

ADAMLESS EDEN

New York Has an Innovation of Startling Nature.

Young Women to Have Apartment Houses By Themselves.

New York, June 7.—There is to be an Adamless Eden established in West Ninety-second street. Three six-story double apartment houses, Nos. 4-6, 8-10 and 12-14 are to be turned over to the exclusive use of lovely women. The project is believed to be distinct innovation. It is true the Hotel Martha Washington in East Twenty-ninth street approaches it somewhat in character, but the West Ninety-second street enterprise has distinctive features that practically put it in a class by itself.

Already the work of ridding the three apartment houses of the profaning presence of mere man has begun, and by next October it will be complete. On and after Oct. 1 the only creature in trousers about the premises will be the negro elevator boy and two lone janitors, who will keep to the cellars if they know what is good for them. The eternal feminine will bloom and blossom there in all its alluring loviness, undistracted by the intrusion of the brutal sex, and with only itself to admire itself within the sacred walls. And over the destines of this Adamless Eden will preside the widow of a United States senator.

The owner of the Adamless Eden apartment houses is Carl Fischer-Hansen, the young Dane who came to this country as a penniless immigrant, built up a fortune largely through real state investments, studied law and was admitted to the bar and finally married into the millionaire Brokaw family.

On the first of this month the middle house of the three, Nos. 8-10, was taken possession of by the New York Hospital Graduates Nurses' club, it having leased the building for a period of five years. This organization formerly was situated at 52-54 East Forty-ninth street. As its name implies it is composed of young women who earn their living as trained nurses. It has a membersip of 140 and a long waiting list. There are two families still living in the house it has leased, but they will move out on Oct. 1 and after that it will have complete possession. Like clubs in general, the Nurses' club is co-operative in principle. It maintains a restaurant for the accomodation of it members and rents rooms to them for fixed sums in addition to the regular dues.

There is now not a room vacant among those it controls in the house it has just leased, and its success in disposing of all of them gave to Mr. Fischer-Hansen the idea of turning all the families out of the houses he owns on either side of the club and renting rooms himself to bachelor girls and professional and self-supporting women of all kinds. As a preliminary Mr. Fischer-Hansen advertised that rooms in a first-class apartment house near Central Park, west, in a restricted residential street, between Ninetieth and Ninety-fourth streets, would be rented exclusively to women at the rate of $14 a month for single rooms and $28 a month for double, if enough applications for them to warrant the success of the experiment were obtained before July 1.

This "feeler" appeared about two weeks ago. Although it did not give the exact situation of the house and stated that there would be no dining rooms facilities and that possession could not be had until Oct 1, its success was emphatic. In less than ten days after the advertisement appeared Mr. Fischer-Hansen received application for 100 rooms. It convinced him the experiment would be a success and led him to decide at once to devote two houses to the bachelor girls.

The large number of applications he received also caused Mr. Fischer-Hansen to decide upon establishing a restaurant in connection with the enterprise. This will be situated in the house 4 and 6, which is immediately in the rear of the great apartment house called Ardsley hall, which faces Central park west at the south corner of Ninety-second street.

All three of the houses which are to form the Adamless Eden are alike, with the exception that the interior decorations of 4 and 6 are more elaborate. There are two apartments of seven rooms and bath on each of the six floors. Each of the apartments has a private hall, upon which all of the rooms open. This gives a separate entrance to each of the rooms and makes it possible to rent them individually. All of the rooms will be rented furnished. If a girl prefers to bring in her own furniture she may have that supplied by the landlord removed, but she will receive thereby no reduction in rent.

It is intended to spend $200 in fitting up each of the rooms. They will be made to look as unlike a boarding house room as possible. Divans that will be covered over with tapestry and adorned with cushions in the daytime will take the place of the conventional bed. The chairs, tables, dressers, etc., will be of white maple and mahogany. The style of the furnishing of the rooms will be divided between the empire, colonial, renaissance and rococo, but each will have a distinct individuality.

Upon each floor of the two houses above the entrance there are eight rooms that can be rented singly and six doubly. The prices for the single rooms will range between $13 and $18 a month, and the prices for double rooms between $26 and $36, the average being $14 and $28. There will be two bathrooms on each floor. It is thought that the house Nos. 4-6 will accommodate about 100 bachelor girls and Nos. 12-14 about 110, so that with the 110 nurses living in the club this Adamless Eden will contain some 350 independent young women, which, as every one can see, will make a colony of such formidable size that it may well exist to the everlasting chagrin of the creature in trousers.

To keep a motherly eye on the bachelor girls and superintend the Adamless Eden's affairs in general Mr. Fischer-Hansen has obtained the services of Mrs. M. H. Gibson, widow of Former United States Senator Gibson. Mrs. Gibson for several years looked after the comfort of the girls of Barnard college and therefore is considered well equipped for the task she will enter upon next October. She will have an assistant in the person of a Miss Cleeve, who once was employed as a companion and general supervisor in the household of Bishop Courtney of Halifax, N. S. Mrs. Gibson will live at Nos. 4 and 6 and Miss Cleeve at Nos. 12 and 14.

LEVI MORTON'S DAUGHTER

May Be Divorced From Duke of Valencay.

Paris, June 7.—In consequence of differences between the duke and duchess of Valencay, steps have been taken to dissolve the marriage. The duchess was Helen Morton, a daughter of Levi P. Morton, of New York.

It is learned that the duke's mother having asked the sanction of the pope for annulment on the ground that the marriage had been without issue, the duchess has applied to the civil courts for a legal dissolution, the grounds being withheld for the present.

The duke, who is a scion of the ancient and princely house of Talleyrand-Sagan, is at his magnificent chateau on the Loire. The duchess is in Paris at the family residence adjacent to the Boulevard St. Germain. She is in constant communication with her father, who has been here for some time. Close friends have long realized that an estrangement had taken place for the duke stayed continually at his chateau, while the duchess remained in Paris.

Thus far only members of the two families and their intimate friends are aware of the steps that have been taken.

TELEGRAPHERS MAY STRIKE

Operators Have Trouble With Western Union at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 7.—The Globe says: A general strike of all the telegraph operators in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company in the United States and Canada is a probability of the near future.

That a strike of the men employed in the St. Paul office of that company will be called out within the next two or three days seems certain.

The cause of the trouble is the discharge by the Western Union of seven of their oldest employes, without cause, the men maintain. The only reason for their dismissal so far as could be learned from officials of the company was because of "business depression." It is asserted by the telegraphers that five new men were employed immediately after the discharge of the seven, who are members of the Commercial Telegraphers' union. According to the dismissed men, they were let out solely because of their connection with the union.

Immediately after their dismissal the telegraphers called on Superintendent J. Swan, at Minneapolis and demanded to know why they had been discharged. No satisfactory reason for the action of the St. Paul officials could be obtained by the men, they claim, other than the statement by Mr. Swan that because of the loss of their poolroom business, the Western Union was compelled to retrench in every direction possible.

Returning to St. Paul the telegraphers held a meeting with the local officials of the union. It is not known what action was taken, but it is understood that a telegram was sent to President W. C. Long, of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, who now is in the East, asking him to come to this city at once.

A prominent member of the Commercial men's union said tonight that the matter undoubtedly would be submitted to a referendum vote of all the local lodges for action.

"It is probable," he added, "that a strike of all the Western Union operators in the United States and Canada will be ordered. One thing is certain and that is that the Western Union in St. Paul will be tied up tight before the end of the present week.

"The trouble with the Western Union company dates from the inception of our organization in Chicago, two years ago. Since then that company has discharged men known to be members of the union in different cities in this country and Canada, in an attempt to break the union. Notwithstanding this the work of organizing has proceeded steadily until now we feel strong enough to make a winning fight. It has ever been the policy of the Western Union to oppose any attempt on the part of their employes to organize. The result has been a steadily decreasing rate of wages, until at this time I am ashamed to tell you what salaries the majority of their telegraphers are paid.

"We have no trouble with the other companies, which have always been friendly to us and which pay much better salaries."

CREW GOES OUT

Wisconsin Crews Fast and Rowing In Fine Form.

Madison, Wis., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth crew arrived here yesterday morning shortly after 9 o'clock. The visitors were not expected to arrive before Wednesday, but some of the 'varsity oarsmen assisted them in unloading their shell from the train and getting it to the boathouse. Dan Mahoney spent the afternoon in rigging up the shell and at 5:30 o'clock it was ready for use. The Wisconsin 'varsity and freshmen eights were already in their shells and out on the lake for a trial spin. The visitors followed them.

A heavy wind was blowing and the water was extremely rough. The Duluth eight rowed four miles in good form and returned with the boat full of water.

The Wisconsin crews all show beautiful form. They are using the O'Dea stroke and evidently the coach has not spared them in the spring training.

The stroke appears to consist of a lightning shoot with the hands, a slow and careful slide with an exaggerated reach forward. The power goes on hard and the backs swing well beyond the perpendicular at recovery.

The Wisconsin men are all husky young giants, but the 'varsity crew appears to be too big for its boat, which sets very low in the water.

Duluth visitors are being treated royally by the 'varsity men and Coach O'Dea has offered the use of a launch for coaching the crew. The members of the Duluth party are rooming and boarding at the crew headquarters.

MAY COME TO DULUTH

Rivers and Harbors Committee May Visit This City.

When the congressional committee on rivers and harbors comes to Minnesota, late this month, it is expected to visit this city on its way to inspect the work being done on government dams on the Mississippi river. There were no appropriations for river and harbor improvements by the congress just adjourned, and the next session is expected to be liberal in consequence of this fact. Congressman J. Adam Bede is a member of the committee, of which Thodore Burton, of Ohio, is chairman. At St. Paul the Commercial club will entertain the committee.

LIGHTING FOR CHISHOLM

Plant to Furnish Electricity Will Be Operated Soon.

Within a week or ten days the village of Chisholm will have a full-fledged electric lighting plant in operation. The plant, which is valued at $20,000, is now building and is owned and controlled by the Chisholm Light and Power company, a new corporation, whose articles were filed with the county register of deeds this morning.

The incorporators and officers of the company are Nils Anderson, of Virginia; Henry A. Liedel and Daniel D. Crowley, of this city. Duluth is designated as the principal place of business of the company.

The new electric lighting company is capitalized at $25,000, and the limit of indebtedness is $10,000.

As its articles of incorporation would indicate, the company purposes to furnish light and power for the village of Chisholm. Lights will be furnished also for all the stripping work that is going on in that vicinity, and for the underground mines, in place of the candles now in use.

The village of Chisholm will have sixteen arc lights. Besides these there will be arc lights for the stripping work, and incandescents for the stores and buildings and underground mining work.

A meeting of the officers of the company is being held in Duluth this afternoon.

INJUNCTION CASE

Involving Removal of Madame Gain's Building.

A partial hearing was had before Judge Dibell this morning in the case of J. C. Richardson against Madame Gain, of St. Croix avenue. The proceedings were instituted by the owners of the land where the defendant's house in the red light district is located, to prevent her moving the building to some land which she bought last fall, the claim being made that she had leased the property where the building stands for a long period and that the lease has two or three years yet to run. Permission to move the building was granted some time ago by the city council.

On the witness stand, this morning Madame Gain gave some figures which tended to show the extent of business in a line prohibited by law. She said she had $4000 in the bank and owned a house costing $13,000. The furniture in it cost $5000. She paid $9000 last fall for the lot where she wishes to move the building and declares that she does not owe anybody.

"Is not your line of business a peculiarly precarious one?" asked Attorney P. J. Neff, on cross examination.

Madame Gain said she did not understand the terms used.

"I mean risky. Have you not lost large amounts in your business?"

"No, I never lost any money in that line of business."

"You might be placed in a position to pay out a large amount of money?"

"Well, I would be able to pay it."

"Did you not lose a large amount of money in Chicago in bail?"

"I never lost any money by bail."

Madame Gain's attorney, during the proceedings moved for a dismissal of the action on the ground that the other side had not proved a case, but the motion was denied.

COMPANY HAS CLEAR TITLE

Settler Dietz Perpetually Enjoined By the Circuit Court.

Minneapolis, June 7.—A special to the Tribune from Hayward, Wis., says: J. W. Dietz, a Sawyer county settler, who during the past two months has defied a court injunction, a lumber company, hung up its drive, broken up its lumber camp and has fired on and driven off officers of the law, injuring two, was perpetually enjoined from further misdeeds by Judge Parish of the circuit court today. The evidence brought up shows that the Chippewa Falls Logging & Boom company has a clear title to the use of Thornapple dam, which passes through Dietz's land. Dietz, who was not in court in person, denied this, saying that he claimed the title on a warranty deed. Dietz was characterized by Judge Parish as an anarchist and the court said that if Sawyer county upheld such lawlessness its organization should be revoked by the state legislature.

ARMORY, Wednesday, June 15

Rev. J. M. Cleary, of Minneapolis will lecture on

"AMERICAN SYMPATHY IN THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR."

MEDICS IN SESSION.

Fifty-Fifth Annual Meeting at Atlanta City.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 7.—The fifty-fifth annual meeting of the American Medical association was opened today in Marine hall, in Young's street, with more than 1000 members from every section of the country in attendance. The opening session constituted the official reception and welcome of the association by the state and local medical professions.

The meeting was called to order by Retiring President Dr. Frank Billings, of Chicago.

The report of the committee on arrangements was followed by the introduction of the president-elect, Dr. John H. Musser, of Philadelphia, who delivered the annual address. In addition to the general session twelve sectional meetings, devoted to various departments in the practice of medicine and surgery, were held during the day.

JOHN P. LITTLE IS ROBBED

John P. Little, who resides at 224 East Second street, was assaulted and held up in the amount of about $30, so he claims, while on his way home about 11 o'clock last evening.

The affair took place in a vacant lot near First street alley and Third avenue east, where Mr. Little was found lying on the ground and bleeding profusely from several blows on the side of his head that apparently were made with a slungshot.

His cries were heard by Mark Baldwin and Harry Baker as they were on their way home. They investigated as soon as they could locate the cries, Mr. Baker seeing two men slink away in the direction of the Armory building.

Mr. Little was found badly cut up and covered with blood. Though somewhat confused by his injuries, he was able to tell his name and residence. He declared that he had been followed and attacked by two men and that they had taken from him the amount mentioned.

Up to this noon he had made no complaint to the police department.

MINISTER BRYAN'S BALL

At Lisbon, Spain, Was a Great Social Success.

Lisbon, June 7.—The ball given last night by United States Minister Bryan at the American legation to Rear Admiral Barker and the officers of his fleet, was a very successful affair. In addition to King Carlos and Queen Marie Amelie, the queen mother, Maria Pia, was present, as were the Crown Prince Louis Philippe, the cabinet ministers, the diplomatic corps and the leading representatives of Lisbon's official and social circles. The presence of the king, queen and the queen mother at the function was a very unusual honor.

A ROYAL WEDDING.

Gmunden, Upper Austria, June 7.—The marriage of the grand duke of Meiklenburg-Schwerin and the Princess Alexandra, daughter of the duke of Cumberland, was celebrated here today in the presence of many members of royal families and a great gathering of other distinguished persons.

IN MYSTERY SHROUDED

Emperor Has Not Sent Him to Relieve Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, June 7.—While it is undoubtedly true that a very active Russian force is operating on the Liao Tung peninsula in the hope of impeding and possibly crippling the Japanese army commanded by Gen. Oku, the number and character of this force are shrouded in mystery. Figures are freely bandied about, but it is impossible to ascertain the actual facts. It is doubtful even if the general staff is fully advised of Gen. Kuropatkin's intentions. According to accepted stories here, Viceroy Alexieff insisted that Kuropatkin should not leave Port Arthur to its fate and the advance of troops, the strength of which is not known here, may be due to his pressure. But two things are certain—the strength of the main army at Liao Yang has not been appreciably weakened by the force sent south, and the movement was not ordered by Emperor Nicholas. The Associated Press is assured by a member of the emperor's suite that the stories that the differences between Viceroy Alexieff and Gen. Kuropatkin on this subject were referred to the emperor, who in turn submitted them to the council of war, which agreed on the advisability of ordering an advance, are absolutely false.

The Associated Press informant reiterated the statement, cabled June 3, that the emperor is not attempting to impose his views upon Kuropatkin, saying further that the emperor considered that the military situation has distinctly improved from the standpoint of the latter.

This being the emperor's birthday, the day was observed as a general holiday.

The emperor received a telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin last night, reporting the skirmishes near Sia Yen and Saimatsza. Although neither movement has yet developed particular significance, they might eventually indicate an attempt of the enemy to push along the line of the head of the Liao Tung peninsula while feinting at the Russian left flank at Liao Yang. Kuropatkin's telegram is dated Liao Yang. Therefore it is possible he has already returned from his trip to Kai Chou.

The general staff has received advices to the effect that the Chinese report that the Japanese were grouped in renewed heavy fighting on the Kwan Tung peninsula Thursday.

The foreign office says it has not received a report from the Russian consul at Che Foo in regard to the rumored sinking of a large Japanese warship off Talien Wan.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH.

Newchwang, June 7.—United States Consul General Miller has left here by special train for the scene of the killing of Lewis Etzel, of Butler, Pa., correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, who was shot by Chinese soldiers between Shwantaitze and Erdiko. The consul will make a personal investigation of the death of Mr. Etzel.

STEAMER HELD UP.

Nagasaki, June 7.—The Norwegian steamer Aggi, which arrived here Saturday from Cardiff with coal, was arrested today by the Japanese. Reasons for the action taken are not stated.

OF ANOTHER TYPE.

Tokio, June 7.—Supplementary reports from the blockading forces indicate that the Russian gunboat which was sunk by a torpedo off Port Arthur Saturday was of the Gremiashchi type instead of the Giliak class.

Admiral Kataoka (commander of the Third squadron) reconnoitered San Shan Tao and Taku Kao. The Chinese say that when the Russians abandoned Taku Kao they poisoned the water sources. Admiral Kataoka is investigating the charge.

POSTPONES EXCURSIONS

Excursions which were expected to be run this month into Duluth by the Great Northern railroad have been postponed until next month, and the railroad company has so notified Secretary Eva of the Commercial club.

The officials say that the uncertainty of the crop conditions and the bad weather that has prevailed lately make the excursions less feasible at this time than would be the case under normal conditions. Not only this, but all the equipment which would be necessary for very large excursions, such as the coming ones are expected to be, could not be spared this month, if the crowds should be as great as expected.

It is believed that the railway company, by deferring the events, will make a double play, as the baseball people would term it, as they will get larger numbers of people to come after the crop conditions are more settled and the weather warmer, as Duluth is more attractive to the rural people at a time when they feel sure of a relief from heat by a visit on the tip end of Lake Superior.

The dates as the railroad company now expects them to be observed on its various divisions are: July 9, Evansville, Minn.; July 16, Litchfield and Benson; July 22, Crookston and Grand Forks. The rates have not been announced, but are promised to be very low, and will apply from stations between the above named points and Duluth.

MAY BURN TOWN.

Troops to Be Rushed to Victor at Once.

Denver, June 7.—It is reported at the capitol that troops from Colorado Springs and neighboring cities will be ordered to Victor before night. Fears that the town will be burned up are entertained by everyone familiar with the feeling existing.

Nearly 500 troops are now mobilized and can be rushed to the Cripple Creek district on short notice.

REHEARING DENIED.

Cincinnati, June 7.—The United States court of appeals today denied Former Turf Commissioner W. W. O'Hara a rehearing in the case in which he was accused of using the mails to defraud. A mandate was sent to the United States marshal to take O'Hara in custody at once. He was taken to Columbus to begin serving his 17-months' term in the penitentiary.

PROBABLY UNINSTRUCTED

Will Be Colorado Democratic Delegates to St. Louis.

Pueblo, Col., June 7.—The state Democratic convention to select ten delegates to the national convention at St. Louis met here today. In all probability the delegation will be uninstructed, but considerable Hearst sympathy was manifest and a fight may develop, a resolution commending Mr. Hearst probably being adopted. The delegates agreed upon in caucus are former Governor Charles S. Thomas, Charles J. Hughes, Jr., Senator H. M. Teller, H. E. Insley, State Senator Charles B. Ward, Former Governor Alva Adams, Judge J. H. Voorhees, Judge William P. Seeds, George E. West and J. H. Robeson or Judge Theron Stevens.

A resolution was adopted in caucus strongly denouncing the outrage at Cripple Creek yesterday. Charles J. Hughes, Jr., of Denver, will be temporary chairman of the convention and Milton Smith, of Denver, permanent chairman.

BIG RANCHES

Will Be Taken By Homesteaders In Nebraska.

Omaha, June 7.—The interest in the opening of the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota and the grazing land in Northern Nebraska is very great. The letters received by the officials of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad from intending settlers come from all over the United States. Indications point to the taking advantage of the Kinkaid bill under which a homesteader can enter a whole section of public land in the grazing district of Western Nebraska. Under the Kinkaid bill there are over 8,500,000 acres of public land from which to make selections and a man with a family of say, three boys and two unmarried daughters, all over 21 years old, can enter six sections, or 3840 acres at an expense of $1440 per section. It is believed that quite a number of the settlers will select a cattle ranch and go into the stock raising business.

RESORT FOR THIEVES.

Police Claim That of Matt Thompson's Saloon.

Matt Thompson was fined $30 and costs in the municipal court yesterday afternoon on the charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday.

Thompson's place on Lake avenue is alleged by the police to be the resort for a gang of petty thieves and grafters who are laying for opportunities of holding up any visitors who happen to enter the place in a slightly intoxicated condition.

A Finlander reported to the police yesterday that he had been robbed of $200 in the saloon on Sunday afternoon. The police are endeavoring to locate the man who committed the theft, but they have no clue to his identity as the Finlander was so intoxicated at the time that he did not realize what was going on about him, and he does not know himself who committed the theft.

HARMONY IN DELAWARE.

Concessions Are Made Among Democratic Delegates.

Dover, Del., June 7.—Indications pointed to a harmonious Democratic state convention today. Peace to a great measure was due to concessions made by both the Gray and anti-Gray men. Through the efforts made late last night by Andrew C. Gray, of Wilmington, son of Judge George Gray, aided by J. Harvey Whiteman, also of that city, and with Water Commissioner Peter J. Ford, of Wilmington, as intermediary, a resolution was agreed to by Ex-Senator Richard R. Kenny, State Chairman Willard Saulsbury and other members of the state committee, endorsing Judge Gray for the Democratic presidential nomination and "requesting" the six national delegates from Delaware to use all honorable means to secure his nomination.

This resolution was prepared by Mr. Whiteman and is the key to the situation. The convention was expected to ratify this action by the formal adoption of the resolution.

The delegates from the three counties met in separate county caucuses to select the six delegates to the natinal convention, two being named by each county. When these caucuses began it was stated that the national delegates would be Willard Saulsbury and Peter J. Ford from Newcastle county; Ex-Senator Kenney and Alexander W. Daly, from Kent, and probably E. C. Dukes and either John P. Holland or Col. Wm. T. Record from Sussex. Peter J. Ford was the temporary and permanent chairman decided upon.

Commercial Travelers Leave This Week For Winnipeg Meeting.

C. W. Sutton, W. H. Wilson, P. W. Reemer and Henry Gujer will leave tomorrow evening over the Great Northern for Winnipeg, where they will attend the eleventh annual convention of the United Commercial Travelers, of America. The ladies and visiting members will occupy the morning by a ride around the city in cars specially provided. In the afternoon there will be a reception for the women, with music and refreshments, and in the evening there will be a dance. LITTLE ROCK HIGH.

Within Three Feet Of Highest Point Known.

Little Rock, Ark., June 7.—The river at this point today is within three feet of the highest point ever reached in the history of the government service. The gauge registered 25.9 feet, and there is enough water in sight to insure a river of twenty-eight feet. This will inundate thousands of acres of rich bottom lands and will entail a heavy loss. Already reports are coming in of the overflow of many farms and the abandonment of entire localities by those who live in the overflowed districts. Live stock has suffered heavily.

SUCCESSFUL TEST

Of Submarine Torpedo Boat Fulton Under Water.

Newport, R. I., June 7.—The submarine torpedo boat Fulton, which was sunk to the bottom of the ocean last evening for a test, remained there over twelve hours, coming up at 11:10 today. The men were on duty in watches of two hours each, the remainder of the time being spent in reading, playing games and sleeping. All the members of the crew were in good condition today and appeared to have rested well. By order of the trial board, fresh air was pumped in every four hours. Naval Constructor Woodward said this afternoon that the test was satisfactory. Hitherto only six men had gone below for any length of time, but on the Fulton there were nine men, and they could have stayed in the boat under water for ten days without coming to the surface.

THE CHARIVARI.

The Western Brand Sometimes Took on Rough Aspect.

"It is high time," says a Western Kansas paper, "that the charivari should be relegated to the past for the relic of barbarism which it is." Still, in the opinion of many, the charivari is preferable to the substitute offered by refined society, says the Kansas City Journal. A burlesque serenade at the home of a young married couple has points of respectability over the custom of pursuing a bridal couple to the depot, stuffing rice down their backs, nailing baby shoes and paper hearts to their baggage and passing insulting handbills through the cars.

In the West the charivari—always spelled and pronounced "shiveree" without any French quirks or turns—was deemed a token of respect and affection. There has been a time in every Western town when the omission of the serenade would have been regarded as a reflection on the standing and popularity of the bridal couple. As a rule the most boisterous shiverees were given to the best liked in the community. "He hadn't friends enough to give him a shiveree" was the contemptuous remark of a borderer who was telling of the unpopularity of a certain bridegroom.

It cannot be denied that the Western shiveree sometimes took on an aspect of roughness. If so, though, it was the fault of the bride and the groom. Two things were always demanded by the serenaders. One was that the groom should produce his bride at the door or on the porch. The other was that the groom should give up a bit of money to be expended in "refreshments." As a rule both of these demands were complied with graciously. Occasionally, however, a stubborn pair would refuse to appear or to contribute to the thirst of the serenaders and then a rough time followed, for it was a matter of pride with the visitors never to let up until their demands had been satisfied.

Old timers in Hays City will remember an amusing incident of the kind. Away back in 1874 Ben McDonald took a bride in the person of a buxom widow who came from some Eastern state. Ben was a hard-working fellow, grizzled by a rough life on the plains, and he bore the reputation of being the stingiest old curmudgeon in the town. The bride arrived on an afternoon train, the couple were married at early candlelight, and they immediately retired to the two-roomed house which Ben had provided.

Along about midnight the shiveree party arrived at the home of the McDonalds! It was composed of nearly the whole male citizenship of the town, for Ben had been making some ominous remarks about what he would do if "them tin-horn and bull-fiddle fellars come a projectin' 'round" his place. It was said that even the solitary preacher of the place was observed in the outskirts of the crowd. Be that as it may, the occasion was truly a town celebration to be enjoyed by all.

The boys exhausted the usual means without eliciting anything at all from the McDonald house. They climbed the roof and poured water down the chimney. They belabored the sides with pieces of scantling. They fired volleys from rifles and six-shooters. They yelled and whooped and made a horrible din on their outrageons instruments. But still the house remained dark and silent, and it began to look as though the McDonalds would win.

At this juncture A. E. Buddecke, a long Missourian engaged in the business of freighting, came to the front. "Boys," he said, "I reckon if ye went up to my bulpen an' got about six yoke o' bulls, an' put a log chain around that house, Ben mought be made to wake up."

The boys got those bulls and the log chain without waiting for further invitation. They put the chain around the house and attached it to the bulls, and with a whoop from the crowd the team pushed their heft into the yokes and the hones came down from the 6 by 6 posts on which it was perched with a crash. And certainly Ben woke up. He came out of that house making the air blue with swear words and immediately opened on the crowd with a Winchester. Fortunately no one was hit, but it was astonishing to observe the celerity with which that crowd got to cover. And that was the end of the shiveree, though not of the sequels, the wherewithals and consequences.

The next morning the barkeeps going to the dance halls and saloons to relieve their night-working brothers were privileged to see a curious sight. Down at McDonald's old Ben was sitting on a rock with his Winchester, keeping guard over the six yoke of bulls which were still hitched to the house. On another rock some yards away sat Buddecke, and he was trying to argue Ben into letting those bulls go. Ben was holding out for enough money in the form of damages to put his house back in good shape and to build a kitchen in the rear. He said he wanted the kitchen as a poultice to the injured feelings of himself and bride. Buddecke knew he would get neither help nor sympathy from his pals of the night before old Ben had reversed the joke, and "Bud," as he was called by everybody, fully appreciated that fact. He was billed to go out with a trainload of government supplies that morning, and he needed those bulls. There was no legal machinery that he could put in motion, and if there had been, neither he nor anyone else would have thought of using it. The great underlying code of Hays at that time was to "lay down" to the fellow who "had the drop." Old Ben had the drop and Bud lay down to the extent of repairing all the damages and building that kitchen besides.

A GREAT FENCER.

Mulatto Faces and Conquers Thirteen Expert Swordmen.

The greatest personage in the annals of fencing, Jean-Louis, has been the hero of fights so wonderful that were they not known to be authentic historical facts they might be thought exaggerated, even if read in one of Dumas's famous novels." This remarkable man was a mulatto, says the National Review. Born in the eighties of the eighteenth century, he entered the French army at the age of 8 as enfant de ntoupe, and did not leave it till he was well over 50. In 1814 the most astonishing combat of modern days took place. Jean-Louis was then about 29 years of age. He had taken part in more than thirty engagements in Egypt, Italy, Prussia and Russia, and at the time of which I write found himself in Spain.

"It was the year which proved so disastrous to Napoleon. Jean-Louis's regiment had just arrived in Madrid, and was made up, like many others, of men of various nationalities. The first thing Napoleon did after a victory was to oblige his the enemy to serve under his flag. It thus happened that for five or six years there were Italians, Dutch, Saxons, Bavarians and Poles, who all fought for the French empire. As long as the conqueror was successful, the foreign legions accepted the servitude Napoleon imposed upon them; but the day his luck turned they were all possessed with one idea, which was to throw off the yoke and rid themselves of this terrible tyrant. In 1813, after his Russian campaign, Napoleon's glorious prestige had begun to be impaired, and discontent was very apparent in the ranks. When the news of the disaster of 1812-13 reached Spain the foreign legions no longer concealed their hatred of their French victors.

"What had long been threatening happened. One night a quarrel sprang up between some Italian and French soldiers, which ended in each calling friends to their aid, with the result that in a short time there was a regular engagement of 100 a side. Many men were wounded, and the combatants were separated only by means of a bayonet charge. The leaders of each side were arrested, and it was decided, in order to make an example of them to the army, that each side should produce fifteen men, who should fight until they were put hors de combat. Jean-Louis, as the principal fencing master of his regiment, was chosen to fight Giacomo Ferrari, a fencing master of great renown in his own country. Ferrari was a most redoubtable adversary for any man to encounter. Over six feet in height, possessed of great strength, he was a man of incontestable courage.

"These thirty men were to fight in the presence of 10,000 witnesses. To the sound of the roll of drums two men march on to the fighting ground, which has been specially chosen on account of its slight natural elevation. One of these men is Giacomo Ferrari, the other is Jean-Louis. They are accompanied by their two seconds. A deathlike silence has succeeded to the murmur of curiosity which greeted their arrival. Then a voice is heard to break the silence, the command 'En garde!' is given. The two masters join swords. In the first instant Ferrari attempts to rush Jean-Louis, but in vain. Every attack is met with a parry. He retires a little and tries what patience will do. He feints, makes a pretense to attack, retires again, while Jean-Louis, very calm, remains on the defensive. Suddenly the Italian, with one of those savage yells common to fencers of his country, makes a little bound to one side, followed by an attack in the lower line, delivered with lightninglike rapidity. This is a Florentine ruse, which has often proved successful to him before, but at the same time a cry of rage rather than of pain, is heard. Jean-Louis, with indescribable swiftness, has parried and riposted. His sword penetrates Ferrari's shoulder. 'It is nothing,' cries Ferrari. 'I am not hurt.' They continue the fight, and Jean-Louis, in histurn, attacks, and almost instantly pierces his opponent in the breast. Ferrari's sword drops from his hand. He falls heavily to the ground, and is picked up dead. Jean-Louis wipes his blade, and, with the point on the ground, waits.

"His task has only just begun. Fourteen adversaries are there waiting eagerly for their opportunity to avenge their champion, whom they had until then thought invincible. After two minutes' rest Jean-Louis is ready. The second adversary stands before him. Their swords join. There is a sinister clash of steel. Jean-Louis lunges; a cry is heard; then a sigh. Jean-Louis has got back to a standing position, and has another dead body before him. The third adversary comes forward, and has to be held back in order to prevent him from springing at the Frenchman before he has finished his short rest. The order to commence is given. The Italian has followed the mulatto's play attentively, and thinks he has grasped his feints, surprises and modes of attack; but the result of his observations does not avail him much, as after a few passes Jean-Louis's blade disappears into his body, and he is carried away dying. Ten more adversaries come forward, one after the other, and the ten share the same fate as the first three. The thirteenth adversary is carried away insensible; and cheers, in which sounds of something like terror can be heard, rend the air.

"There is no precedent in the history of duelling for this remarkable number of victories attained by one man, and in the incredibly short time of barely forty minutes.

"One might have expected the Frenchman to feel fatigued after his efforts, but he showed no signs of it, and was quite prepared to take on the last two remaining Italians. The colonel, however, finding the lesson had been severe enough to prevent future insubordination, goes up to Jean-Louis and thanks him in the name of the whole regiment for having upheld its honor so valiantly.

"This extraordinary story is only one of many in which Jean-Louis, 'le pere de l'escrime,' as he was called, figures as the hero. His biography, written by Vigeant, is well worth reading. Though he has probably done more than any one toward the advancement of the art he loved so much, and has created a school that will live for ever, unfortunately he has not left anything in writing as to the marvelous methods he employed for forming pupils, though he was no less wonderful as a teacher than as a fighter."

A HUMBUG.

Miss Daisy Leiter has brought back from London a story about Charles Darwin.

"Two English boys," said Miss Leiter, "being friends of Darwin, thought one day that they would play a joke on him. They caught a butterfly, a grasshopper, a beetle and a centipede, and out of these creatures they made a strange, composite insect. They took the centipede's body, the butterfly's wings, the grasshopper's legs and the beetle's head, and they glued them together carefully. Then, with their new bug in a box, they knocked at Darwin's door.

"'We caught this bug in a field,' they said. 'Can you tell us what kind of a bug it is, sir?'

"Darwin looked at the bug, and then he looked at the boys. He smiled slightly.

"'Did it hum when you caught it?' he asked.

"'Yes,' they answered, nudging one another.

"'Then,' said Darwin, 'it is a humbug.'"

HELPING THE CAUSE.

Governor "Jeff" Davis of Arkansas, who won a big victory over his Democratic opponent, Judge Woods, is a very skillful campaigner in the hill country, says the Chicago Post. Among the "red necks" he is very popular. When he goes among the hills he travels behind a yoke of oxen, the popular mode of locomotion there, and calls every "red neck" by name. During the week immediately preceding the last primary election, held a week ago last Saturday, Governor Davis, driving a yoke of spotted oxen, reached the metropolis of one of the counties.

He went into his hotel, and there found a leter from his wife at the executive mansion in Little Rock. He was still reading the letter when a party of his "red neck" constituents came into the hotel office to greet him.

"Hello, Zach!" said the hearty governor, grasping the outstretched hand of the first man in the party. "How's the folks?"

"They're all right, Jeff," answered the delighted "red neck." "How's your folks?"

"Jes' get a lettah from my wife," answered the governor, holding up the dainty notepaper. "She's right pert, too, but plum nigh beat out. Been a-bilin' soap all day!"

And so another link was forged in the political chain which binds the hill dwellers to the political fortunes of this most skillful and astute of campaigners.

NO EXTRA TROUBLE.

It was in the dead of night, and a cold night at that, says the Youth's Companion. Mr. Smith was away, and Peterson Smith, aged six, was getting over the measles.

"Mother, may I have a drink of real cold water?" he asked, waking Mrs. Smith from a refreshing slumber.

"Turn right over and go to sleep!" commended Mrs. Smith. "You are a naughty boy to wake mother up when she put a pitcher of water on your table the very last thing before you went to bed."

"Peterson," said Mrs. Smith, sternly, "if you say that again I shall get up and spank you!"

There was five minutes' silence, and again Peterson spoke:

"Mother," he said cheerfully, "when you get up to spank me, may I have a drink of water?"

BY MISS MANHATTAN.

NEW YORK, May —

What would woman do without little fads and whims to occupy her mind and fill up the time she doesn't devote to the pleasures of life? The cynic believes that she might find other and more profitable channels into which she could pour her energies than the various cults taken up one after another, but fads are the raft to which those who are shipwrecked in the domestic or social sea cling with grim determination. This fad saves one woman from being bored by her friends, that banishes ennui as the sun does the morning mist. Whether it is a method of finding out the color of your soul, listening to a Swami dilate on the benefits of concentration or a new beauty cure, it is a fad just the same, and if there is any good whatever in a new whim some women are going to take it up as a diversion and become enthusiastic worshippers at the shrine until —well of course, until another novelty makes its appearance on the horizon of the faddists, and then goodby to all that has gone before.

Investigation proves that there is nearly always some good in these feminine fads, for the foundations which may be ever so shaky, tumbling to earth in little or no time, are built upon some truth, generally one that is as old as the hills, and for this very reason carrying the fad to a successful career by the new turn given it—a turn that has something which appeals strongly to the feminine mind.

The quest of beauty was begun long, long ago, probably in the Garden of Eden, and ever since that time it has been a matter of business leavened somewhat by the pleasure that comes to those who benefit their fellow-creatures, to invent ways of enlisting women in the great army of personal improvement seekers. Did you ever notice how few really old women you see nowadays? Even the grandmothers are young and gay, and this is all because no woman lets herself think she is getting old, since she has learned to take Time by the forelock and hold off his ravaging marks. If an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure in the lore of the herb mixer, then how much more is this true in a case of such vital importance as the preservation of one's looks? Thus, it is that anything relating to beauty, any new scheme for warding off the tell-tale marks of age, is greeted with warm enthusiasm by the feminine members of society and followed diligently, for a little time at least.

The latest beauty cult is an alphabetical one and is as simple as the proverbial A B-Cs. It is too new to have many believers, but these will come in good time. The origin is traced to the Hindoos, and its exponent here is a youthful and attractive-looking nigh-caste priest of the Orient. It's amazing how these fellows get on here with their fads and cults. They certainly are to be congratulated on the genius displayed in adapting old theories and practices to modern requirements and introducing just the element that appeals to the modern woman. It is a quaint instinct with them, and the remarkable way in which they turn it to account puts the average worker to the blush. It may as well be told in the beginning that this Swami is already overwhelmed with applicants to join his classes and the proof of his art is in the beauty he is actually able to produce.

His field is the feminine throat, the region first to show the effects of age, and he believes that just so long as woman can keep her throat young looking, she herself will feel and appear young. There is more truth in this statement than appears on the surface, and no one knows this better than women who have reached 30 years, at which time wrinkles begin to make themselves apparent, unless excellent care is taken to prevent such a catastrophe What makes this cult all the more popular at present is the actual necessity for owning a pretty throat if one wants to wear fashionable gowns. Almost without exception these frocks are collarless, especially for the summer, and a woman has to make up her mind either to swathe her throat and be unfashionable, or else go through a course of treatment, if she is over 30.

Alphabetical massage designates and describes the cult of the Swami, for by speaking certain letters of the alphabet is the subject able to gain beauty. Surely there is nothing simpler and less harmful than this belief. It isn't a joke, either, as you will readily see if you follow the instructions which have been given by this eminent disciple of the faith. Each letter of the alphabet, when spoken properly and sounded with vehement force, makes use of some muscle or set of muscles of the throat, and by selecting those letters that play upon different tissues it is possible to stretch every one of the muscles covering the throat. Herein lies the secret of alphabetical massage, but, of course, there is the right way to go at it and there are certain letters to choose.

For the uninitiated the best possible exposition of the theory is a mirror to reflect the various movements. Starting with the cart before the horse, let the aspirant to cultism and the seeker after beauty say the letter "X" with an explosive force. The letter must come out hard, but not necessarily loud, and by observing carefully the different muscles of the throat it will be noticed that those high up, almost behind the ears, are made to contract and stretch as the letter is exploded. What other massage will produce the same effects? Rubbing on cold cream is excellent, of course, but that does not get right down to the tissues as this does, unless it is electrical treatment, and a good deal could be said in favor of the simpler means of producing contractility and dilation. Lines, small at first, but growing ever deeper and broader, make their appearance in this part of the feminine throat very early, but they are not always noticed on account of their position.

Another unmistakable sign of age is a double chin. Every woman would avoid such an unsightly fulness if she could, so she says, but I notice that very few of them keep up any exercise long, even though it is recommended to get rid of this bete noir of the stout woman. Saying letters of the alphabet is so easy, too, and as no accompaniments are required, no gymnasium apparatus, they can be practiced at any time and anywhere, an immense advantage, and one that ought to convert loads of people to the cult. The letter that is said to dispel a double chin as if by magic is "B." By closing the lips and pursing them up to form this letter one can quickly discover the muscles that are brought into action They lie just under the jaw, and to say "B" and locate the tissues that are moved by the sound soon strengthens one's conviction of the genuine value of the new cult.

"Q" is another gymnastic letter, and its use is in the development of the base of the throat, where that little hollow place is so apt to come in necks that are not very plump. It is difficult enough under ordinary circumstances to pronounce this particular member of the alphabet, and to say it with the proper amount of force to have it move the covering of the throat sufficiently to take the place of massage is far from an easy feat. To test the exercise place the tips of the fingers just above the point of the collarbone, then tilt the head back ever so slightly and with the fingers resting delicately in place say the letter "Q" with all the force of the lungs. Beginning under the chin, there is a sudden contraction of the small muscles, and by the time the lips are drawn together in pronouncing the last tone of the letter the entire front part of the throat seems to have undergone some sort of a movement which, when carefully watched and analyzed, is the very thing that a thin neck needs to round it out and make the flesh and muscles firm and shapely.

While "X" reaches back of the ears "G" gets at that part of the throat that is so hard to massage, especially if it belongs to a thin woman. The space affected lies between the "X" territory and that of "B." It is under the side of the jaw between the tip of the chin and the angle at the back near the ear. It is really amazing what a crying need for development there is in the average woman's chin and throat, though you couldn't make her believe it until she suddenly gets a good look at herself in a mirror with aid of a strong light, and if she is talking, the astonishment is doubled for that is the time that the skin falls into numerous small creases and wrinkles. When in repose even a thin, wrinkly face will put up a fairly good appearance, and it is only unexpected views that depict lift and animation which may improve a face in some respects, but have an opposite effect in others.

If women only realized before it is too late, how much a good poise of the head has to do in warding off wrinkles they would probably go about with their heads in the air all the time. This isn't necessary or advisable, but it would improve their looks if they didn't allow the flesh and skin of the neck to sink down in little wrinkles and creases. When the chin is thrust forward, not in an aggressive way, five years at least are taken away from the individual's age. This is worth remembering and following for it is something to be practised at any and all times and demands no violent exertion whatever.

It may seem a bit astonishing at first to hear that the outline of the chin can be altered, but the fact is so easy to prove that it would not be worth while if shaping the chin did not enter into this alphabetical massage. It is a good time to state, too, that a gentle rubbing of cold cream previous to the saying of the letters is not a bad idea for the cream softens up the muscles of the throat and gives them greater freedom of movement. To rub her face with cold cream has now become second nature to every woman of good appearance and she doesn't employ the cream so much for any softening and whitening effects it may have on the skin as she does to give the pores a thorough cleansing. Instead of washing her face with cold or even lukewarm water when she returns from a walk or drive the cold cream pot is brought out and the face given a gentle rubbing with its contents and the sight of the grime and dust that are removed from the skin to the snowy towel is positively startling, and yet no amount of water would have got rid of so much.

To return to the discussion of the chin, the woman who possesses an angular one can fill out the hollows if she will observe the rules of the new cult and she who is burdened with a shapeless mass of flesh can get rid of a considerable amount of it in much the same way. In fact some women whose chins were quite buried beneath several layers of fat were able to accomplish wonders in the matter of reducing them to normal size and then after continuing the good work for sometime their chins emerged with pretty curves and lines that one would not have believed to have been hidden there. "U" is the magic letter for this purpose for it reaches the muscles on the outer side of this part of the face, as well as those under it. By placing the thumbs just under the chin at this spot the workings of the tissues can be felt distinctly. Do you wonder, then, at the success of this novel method of self-improvement? Is it to be marvelled at that women who have tried it are explaining its virtues to their friends and converting them to the cult? Not at all, and the underlying reason for it is that anything that touches the beautifying of a woman's throat is sure to appeal to the fair sex. There are so many times when a woman likes to show just a little of her pretty neck and throat, and now that so few gowns are supplied with high collars there is all the more reason for looking after this particular feminine charm.

Singers' throats are nearly always well developed and rounded because they use the muscles surrounding their throats much more often than the average person does. The constant repetition of certain sounds, whether they are spoken or sung, is the same basic principle as this cut sets forth. We may eventually behold the fair sex becoming singers, if for no other reason than the improvement of their throats.

Paris Notes.

Fashion experts in Europe are brimming over with new ideas about frocks and frills. They say that corsages are made pointed in the front as well as the back, after a style that recalls Louis XV. It is a very pretty and becoming one, too, for the woman who rejoices in a slender waist, especially if the skirt is gathered on full at the belt. Margaret Anglin in her late presentation of "Camille" wore just such bodices with all her gowns, and with the accentuated broad shoulders and drooping trimmings to give them a slope her waist looked even smaller than usual. Her bodices were full over the bust, the waist part suggesting a very deep girdle with a point in front and one of the same depth at the back, where there were invisible fastenings.

Many dressmakers are using crinoline to give greater width to the shoulders. It suggests the possibility of the same material being made to play an important part in skirts sometime in the near future. Horrors! let us hope that that day will be far distant, indeed. Many hats are built of this material. It is admirable for making shapes, and when crinoline is not used spotted tulle serves the same purpose.

Historic hats are much worn, especially large ones for dress occasions. In outline and trimming it is essential that they harmonize with the costume. It would look ridiculous to be sure to see a shepherdess hat with a Directory gown, or a tricorne with an 1830.

Other large hats are of fine braid entirely covered with a scarf of chantilly, which turns up over the brim and crown in front, then falls like a veil at the back. Lots of flowers are to be used for trimming, but these will all be small, such as tiny June roses, English pinks, camomile blossoms and arbutus.

New styles of hairdressing are announced periodically, but women seem to prefer the one that has been in vogue for a good while now—that is, the rather high knot that is flat, but is fastened on the very top of the head, well forward. The bun has been proclaimed the smartest coiffure, but later notes favor the auriole pompadour, with a slight wave and a twist at the back.

Flower headdresses have come in again, and for summer occasions, when such things are in good taste, quantities of wreaths, clusters of blossoms and sprays will be seen. There is nothing prettier and fresher looking than such ornaments, especially when they surmount a fresh, youthful face.

Rage for Buttonhole Embroidery.

Almost every plain garment that belongs to the feminine wardrobe for this summer has somewhere about it dainty buttonhole edging. The fashionable woman's petticoats of chambray, batiste and mercerized gingham have their flounces prettily worked in this finishing stitch with cotton, silk or linen to match the shade of the material, for, of course, these petticoats are not white. Some of them have very simple little edges, while others are elaborately worked with open patterns in buttonhole stitch for a depth of six or eight inches above the scalloped edge. Besides being extremely smart, these skirts are very serviceable, for they stand a good tubbing; in fact, almost any number of cleanings, if the material of which they are made is of the right quality and weave.

Parasols, too, come in for their share of buttonholing. The latest ones are finished around the outer edge with handwork of this kind, and occasionally a series of tiny frills, each one buttonholed, is put all around the bottom. The material of which these are made is not, however, quite sheer enough to make the piling up of frills an effective arrangement of trimming, and the general verdict is that fluffiness belongs to chiffon carriage and promenade parasols, while the trim and plain buttonhole finish is more suitable for walking and hard service ones.

Automobile Veils.

The newest covering for the face when automobiling at a high rate of speed is the nearest approach to the beautiful that has so far been conceived for the occasion. It is a lace veil, combined with a white corah puggaree, and entirely covers the hat as well as the face. In the front of the veil the usual rectangular space is taken out to make room for a piece of mica to protect the eyes.

Another novelty in the same line with a degree more of the coquettish about it is a veil that seems to fall in wavy forms, entirely enveloping the lines of the face. It then falls to the back, where it is knotted in a pretty scarf that flutters slightly in the wind. This veil comes in all the desirable shades and is made either of a kind of chiffon or a heavy and substantial tulle. Five dollars is the price of either of these automobile accessories and, all considered, this is by no means dear.

Too Much Brushing.

Probably it never occurred to anyone that teeth are brushed too frequently. Dentists have been so urgent as to the use of the toothbrush that few people dreamed of overdoing the good work. The latest advices from dental headquarters, however, suggest a little less brushing: once a day, in the morning, they consider sufficient and at night the use of dental floss is recommended. This loosens all particles of food without having any ill effects on the enamel of the teeth. Dentists contend that ever so many pretty teeth have their contours marred by tiny ridges, which are the result of the constant rubbing of bristles. It is well to take precautions against this destroying fenture and let the floss divide honors with the brush.

Dr. Edmond Klamke, a practicing physician and surgeon of Ilwaco, Wash., has been appointed by the Russian government to a position in the hospital service at the front. He is of Danish birth, and received his medical education in Copenhagen. He has a strain of Russian blood in his veins.

A woman who had much to do with creating early public sentiment against the Mormons, Mrs. Fannie Stenhouse, died a few days ago in Los Angeles, Cal. She and her husband had embraced the Mormon faith and adhered to it until the Salt Lake elders tried to compel her husband to take a second wife. Then both left the church, and she wrote a book that finally led to the steps taken by the government to repress polygamy in Utah.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Better Crop Conditions Fail to Hold the Price Down.

Large Decrease In the World's Visible—Flax Slightly Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 7.—Strength in wheat prevailed today in spite of better weather and improving crop conditions, and lower cables. Liverpool was ½d lower. The cash demand generally is reported as slow. The northwestern receipts which for a couple of weeks were running ahead of last year are again lower and this has stimulated the bulls somewhat. Bradstreet's report of a decrease of 4,676,000 bus. in the world's visible supply was another bullish consideration. East of the Rockies there was a decrease of 2,276,000 bus. and in Europe and afloat a decrease of 1,800,000 bus.

The July option in Duluth advanced ⅝c, in Minneapolis, ¼-⅜c, in Chicago, ⅝-¾c, and in New York, ¾c. The September option advanced ¼c in both Duluth and Minneapolis.

Primary receipts of wheat were 352,140 bus., last year, 261,574 bus. Shipments, 252,229 bus., last year 171,624 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggreated 66,203 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ⅝d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ¾-⅞c higher. July oats closed ⅛-¼c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 1,062,700 bus., last year 648,670 bus. Shipments 649,686, last year 371,620 bus. Clearances were 7,000 bus. Bradstreet reported an increase of 665,000 bus. in the world's visible supply of corn.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was dull. The July price opened ⅛c lower at 84¾c and sold steadily upward to 86⅝c at 12:10. It closed at 86½c, an advance of ⅞c. The September option advanced ⅛c to 82¾c.

Cash offerings are a little larger but not very. The mills are anxious for wheat and are bidding strong for the choice cars that come in. For No. 1 northern the price by shippers is from 1 to 2c over July.

Flax was dull and a little firmer, July advancing ¼c.

Oats and rye were unchanged.

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 northern, 96½c; No. 2 northern, 94½c; on track No 1 northern, 97½c; No. 2 northern, 95½c; Macaroni No. 1, 85½c; No. 2, 86½c; July, 95½c; Sept. 82¾c; flax in store, $1.07½ to arrive, $1.07½; July, $1.06½; Sept. $1.09½. Oats—$1.05½; oats on track, 41½c; to arrive, 41½c; rye to arrive, 65c: on track, 65c; cars inspected: Wheat—49; last year, 81; oats, 5; barley, 2; flax, 16; last year, 20. Shipments: Wheat—20,485; oats, 4,258; barley, 831; flax, 9,358. Shipments: Wheat—71,901; oats, 4,566; flax, 201,422.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Considerable Firmness In Wheat From Shorts' Demand.

Chicago, June 7.—Decreased receipts in the Northwest brought out an active demand from shorts for wheat today and, in consequence, the market developed considerable firmness. The opening was easier on Cudahy cables and to greatly improved weather conditions. Initial quotations on July were 1⅛@1¼c yower at 87⅛c to 87¼c. Offerings were not large and as a result the price soon advanced to 87⅝@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 246 cars, against 560 cars last week and 304 cars a year ago.

Sentiment became quite bullish during the latter part of the day. A decrease of 4,000,000 bushels in the world's visible supply brought out a number of buying orders and was an important factor in causing July to advance to 88⅜@⅝c. Toward the close there was some realizing and final figures on July were at 88⅛c, a net gain for the day of ⅝@¾c.

Under the influence of wheat the corn market held firm in face of excellent growing weather. A big decrease in local receipts was an important factor in creating bullish sentiment. July opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c up at 48⅜@48¾c, and held within the opening range. Local receipts were 667 cars, with 55 of contract grade.

The market became stronger as the session advanced. The weekly weather bureau report was considered quite bullish. An advance of fully a cent in cash prices also had a stimulating influence on speculative trading. The market closed near the high point. After selling at 49⅝@⅞c, July closed at 49½c, a gain of ⅞@⅞c.

In sympathy with strength in other firains oats were firm. Trading was light, and prices showed little change. July opened unheanged at 39⅜c, eased off to 39⅛@⅜c, and then rallied to 39¾c. Local receipts were 208 cars.

Light hog receipts and firmer prices at the yards caused considerable covering of July pork by shorts. The entire provision list was strengthened by this demand. September pork opened 5@10c higher at $12.95@12.65, an advance of $12.17½ was followed by a reaction to $12.10. September lard was up 7½c at $6.70@6.72½. Ribs were up 10c at $7.46.

Closes: Wheat—July, 88⅜@⅝c; old, 89¼c; September, 81¾c; old, 83½@84¾c; December, 81¼c. Corn—June, 48½c; July, 49⅝c; September, 48¼@⅝c; December, 45⅞c; May, 43¾c. Oats—June, 41⅝c; July, 39⅝@⅜c; September, 31½c; December, 31½@⅝c. Pork—July, $12.15; September, $12.32½c. Lard—July, $6.62½; Septemi er, $6.80; January, $6.70@6.75. Ribs—July, $6.92½@6.95; September, $7.12½@7.15. Rye—July, 67½c; September, 62c. Flax—Cash northwestern, $1.06½; southwestern, $1; July, $1; September, $1.06. Timothy—June, $3; September, $3.10. Clover—June, $10.75. Barley—Cash, 39@58c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.05@1.08; 3 red, $1.03@1.06; 2 hard, 92@100c; 3 hard, 80@88c; 1 northern spring, $1@1.01; 2 northern, 95@100c; 3 spring, 86@88c. Corn—No. 2, 49½c; 3, 49½c. Oats—No. 2, 39½@40c; 3, 39@3½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker, Chicago Grain Letter: Wheat—The bullish opinion on the winter wheat situation given out by a prominent operator today proved more effective today after the decline. The market proved to be a strong one, and the government weekly bulletin and the forecast for unsettled weather throughout a portion of the belt wer material bull points. Local cash business was quiet. The world's supply of breadstuffs is 12,000,000 bushels less than on May 1, but 22,000,000 bushels larger than on May 1, but 22,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. We consider the price of wheat high and a little fine weather will entirely change the tone of the crop advices. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 36 cars.

Corn—The advances in the futures and in the sample market were of the nature of reactions from the two days sharp declines. The strength in wheat, the predictions for unsettled weather in the Western belt and the bullish attitude of a local operator were factors. Country purchases continue in fair volume, and consignments are increasing. It is probable this movement will continue for the balance of the month. Export demand is nil and shipping demand small. The government weekly bulletin says: "Growth has been checked in the Western belt by lack of warmth and sunshine. In the Central and Eastern parts planting and replanting have been delayed by rains. The stand is poor in the late region, the Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic states." The cash market for No. 3 yellow corn was 1c a bushel higher and for low grades from 1 to 3c up. We expect a lower range of values. Liverpool closed ⅜c lower. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 326 cars.

Oats—Oats were firm, but the advance was mostly sympathetic with other grains. Receipts were small, country movement is light. Shipping demand is fair and the sample market varied from steady to ½c higher. The government weekly bulletin was bearish reporting favorous growth through the central valleys and middle Atlantic states, and a general improvement in all districts. While the cash oats are strong we look for lower values in the options.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—It was very quiet. Foreign markets dull and without much change. The cash situation is slow and although cash premiums are maintained the demand is a from hand to mouth character. Broomhall cables that the drouth continues in northeastern Europe. The outlook is a dull one but with favorable weather we think it will be difficult to maintain an advancing market. The Illinois state report was bearish.

Corn—It is the same unsettled scalping market as heretofore. Temperatures are a little lower and this together with a more favorable outlook for the lake strike setlement caused a covering of shorts and a fairly sharp rally in prices. Local receipts were less than expected but are still greatly in excess of last year as are also the primary receipts. We still feel that there is enough uncertainty in the crop situation to keep the market guessing for some time.

Oats—It showed a little more firmness than usual on the strength in wheat and corn but the improvement was only partially maintained. It is on the whole a very quiet market. Receipts are moderate and find a good demand.

Provisions—The tone of the market is strong. There is nothing in current conditions to account for it. Receipts of hogs are liberal and the distributive demand while fair is not urgent. There is continued buying through brokers which seems to be the covering of shorts by local packing interests, but it is not on a large scale. The offerings are small. The property seems to be still largely owned by scattered outside speculators but it was held off the market. The market acts bullish but we do not see much in immediate conditions or prospects to account fir it.

Pringle, Fitch & Rankin, Chicago: Reports from reliable source we have had man in Kansas for a couple of weeks says that state will not raise over 65,000,000 to 75,000,000 bus of wheat.

• • •

Chicago Record-Herald: C. Spencer, of Spencer and Denniston has just returned from a 3000-mile trip over the wheat belt and has issued a complete and voluminous report of the existing crop conditions, in general they show a poorer condition than had been popularly supposed.

The San Francisco correspondent of the Daily Trade Bulletin estimates the wheat yield of California at 75 to 80 per cent of a full crop.

The proposition of reduced rates on flour and grain from trans-Mississippi points and from Chicago to the seaboard to the same basis as the special rate put in between Minneapolis and the sea-board was turned down yesterday at the meeting of the railroad freight officials. The board of trade had no petition on hand in support of the proposition to reduce the rate, the mills had a very small representation.

Pineknevville, Ill., wires: "Wheat in this section has not been hurt in the least by rain and will not be unless it should continue into the harvest which will begin here on June 20. The wheat has improved fully 50 per cent since the first of May. I have several farms in this locality and speak from I know of my own wheat. It was full of bugs and but for the wet weather would have been destroyed."

Coe Commision Co.: Wheat—The weather map was a good one and exerted some influence early on the selling side. This was, however, short-lived. It soon become evident that all offerings were being quickly absorbed, the result was a gradual hardening of values up to the noon hour when the market showed a gain of 1c from the low point of the morning, and about ⅝c up from yesterday's close. We suggested in our letter yesterday that the bears were overdoing it and that wheat should be bought on any further break. We hope that you took our advice and bought some wheat this morning. We believe wheat will sell considerably higher and that it should be bought on all declines like we had yesterday and this morning.

STOCK GOSSIP.

W. T. Carrington to B. E. Baker: While we are not at all likely to have many months more of dull uninteresting markets in stocks with no chance to make money, speculation on either side it seems wise for investors to buy good stocks that pay satisfactory dividends and put them away. Conditions are not likely to arise causing pauses, or much further depression. We believe a great many stocks are being absorbed in this way now, which will make it difficult to buy them when trading starts again. This it is sure to do. There are any number of stocks that pay over 5 per cent net and are safe under any conditions. Sugar for example we call a perfectly safe investment. It pays over 5½ at present prices and we know the company is making nearly 20 per cent. It is no more manipulated stock and is likely some day to go up on its merits. St. Paul is safe and pays 5 per cent at present market. Southern Pacific has great possibilities.

• • •

Dow-Jones & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bear talk on Wisconsin Central noted by us is inspired by the outlook for earnings of all the smaller roads. The earnings of this road from July 1, to the latest date shows a decrease of $100,000. The expenses have not been reduced it is said. There is bear talk this morning on Toledo, St. Louis and Western issues in the class of the small railroads. The gross earnings of the road since last July show but a small increase, about $100,000.

• • •

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: So-called "information" is bearish, but I fail to see anything at present to put the market down much. Too much bear talk. Brooklyn Rapid Transit might work up to near 60 this summer. There are signs that the Standard Oil people are buying St. Paul. Big short interest in Pennsylvania and Steel preferred. Latter looks cheap to me. Probably but little more than a traders' market need be expected for the moment. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie is a good stock for investment.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: American stocks in London steady without feature. Our securities market opened steady, a few fractional changes being noted at the opening. The market ruled steady but very dull all morning. Ontario & Western being the only exception. There was considerable activity in these shares again today, offerings being quite liberal, causing a slump of a point to noon. Sales to noon 71,900 shares.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 7.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 9 points on covering promoted by rather better cables than looked for and continued rain in Western sections of the belt. Trading at first was quiet and the market showed little feature, easing off a few points from the opening, but soon after the call brokers with Southern connections were active buyers and the list supported by continued firmness in Liverpool, advanced several points, with July selling up to 1.30 and the new crop to a net gain of 8 to 11 points before the end of the first hour after which the market was more or less irregular, but showed a steady tone on continued covering by Wall street and scattering shorts.

Spot cotton closed quiet, 20 points higher; middling uplands, 11.80; middling gulf, 12.05; sales, 102 bales. Futures closed barely steady; June, 11.40; July, 11.50; August, 10.90; September, 10.07; October, 9.76; November, 9.76; December, 9.78; January, 9.74.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: There has been a genial disposition to buy stocks today and prices have as a result shown sharp gains. It looks like a reaction from the tendency to oversell the market. There are very few stocks kicking around the street and there is more or less short interest. This rally will probably be much like those that have preceded it. It will present a good opportunity to traders to take profits and prepare themselves to buy again when a reaction comes. Amalgamated Copper was also strong. All the good coppers are stronger on the week and may go higher. Conditions seem to be very favorable for an upward movement in coppers.

• • •

Hayden, Stone & Co. to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Market steady but very dull. Utah on dealing of about 800 shares advanced to 34⅞ with New York the principal buyer. This strength is on expectation of a regular $1.50 dividend. Osceola also has acted well of late and stock offered is quickly taken without any attempt to advance the price. We understand the next dividend will be $2 and we think stock is good for an advance.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 7.—Money on call, easy, highest 1¼ per cent; lowest, 1 per cent; ruling rate, 1¼ per cent; last loan, 1 per cent; closing bid, 1¼ per cent; offered at 1¼ per cent. Sterling exchange easier, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.60 and $4.87.65 for demand, and at $4.85.75@80 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.86@½ and $4.88@4½; commercial bills, $4.85¼. Bar silver, 55¾c. Mexican dollars, 44½c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

MYSTERIES OF NATURE.

How does the bulb of the common lawn-lily get deeper and deeper into the ground each year? asks John Burroughs n Country Life in America. Why does the ginger-root hide its blossoms when nearly all other plants flaunt theirs? Why do the roots of trees flow through the ground like "runnels of molten metal," often separating and uniting again, while the branches are thrust out in right lines or curves? Why is our common yellow birch more often than any other tree planted upon a rock? Why do oaks or chestnuts so often spring up where a pine or hemlock tree or a pine or an oak, and rarely or never a beech? Why does the bolt sometimes scatter the tree about, and at others only plough a channel down its trunk? Why does the bumble-bee complain so loudly when working upon certain flowers? Why does the honey-bee lose the sting when it stings a person, while the wasp, the hornet and the bumble-bee do not? How does the chimney swallow get the twigs it builds its nest with? From what does the hornet make its paper?

I have never been greatly interested in spiders, but I have always wanted to know how a certain spider managed to stretch her cable squarely across the road in the woods, about my height from the ground?

Does it pay to advertise in The Herald? Ask B. E. Baker.

STAGNANT TONE

To the Stock Market During Most of the Session.

Ontario & Western Was Again Feature of Considerable Activity.

New York, June 7.—There was a slight mixture of changes on the opening dealings in the stock market today, but the declines predominated. Ontario & Western, Chicago Great Western and Steel preferred lost ⅝ within the first few minutes and Pump fell a point.

The market steadied after the initial selling and gradually recovered most of its loss. Fresh realizing in Ontario & Western forced it to 24½ and other stocks fell back a trifle. Business virtually ceased before 11 o'clock.

Brooklyn Union Gas jumped 3 points. Pump recovered to a point over last night.

Metropolitan and Pressed Steel Car preferred rose about a point, but the general market was practically stagnant at slight recessions. Bonds were irregular.

The usual midday dullness was intensified by the abandonment of the recent speculative operations in the low priced stocks. Recognized market leaders were also wholly neglected.

Ontario & Western recovered its loss of the morning and a little more, selling up to 25¾. Most of the limited business was in this stock and its renewed animation failed to arouse any general interest in the rest of the market. Kansas City Southern preferred moved up ⅞ and Minneapolis & St. Louis, 2 points.

The recovery in Ontario & Western was followed pretty generally and an impression was produced on sentiment by the semblance given to the buying coming from large banking interests. St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Reading and Lake Erie first preferred ⅞ and a number of other market leaders ½ to ¾. The movement flattened out and prices fell back. Cotton oil declined 1¼ and Westinghouse Electric 1⅜, and Chicago Great Western 1. The closing was steady but very dull.

A SUDDEN MOVE

Affiliation With Association Determined Upon Very Quickly.

Parallel Drawn Between Engineers' Strike and Present Situation.

The following telegram was today received from Cleveland by Duluth harbor No. 44 of the Masters' and Pilots' association:

"By noon today will have charter from American Federation of Labor. Deserters will be kept out. Give members up to Monday noon to right themselves. Paul Howell, district captain."

Last night and yesterday all the harbors along the lakes voted on the proposition of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. It is said that the vote favoring the move was practically unanimous. There were no dissenting votes when the question was brought up at the special meting of the Duluth harbor last night, as far as can be learned.

That the decision to affiliate with the larger association was arrived at quickly is shown by a letter received today by the local branch of the masters and pilots. The letter was written at Cleveland June 5, and in it the statement is made that there was some talk of affiliating with the federation, but that it had been later decided that it would be better for the association to fight out the battle on its own merits. The following day, June 6, before this letter arrived at its destination, a telegram ordering the calling of a special meeting to vote on the proposition to join the federation was received. A portion of the letter above referred to reads as follows:

"I regret to say that sixteen of our so-called brothers have tendered their resignations. Nearly all but these left thirty or forty more, but even if we do get this number of resignations, they cannot possibly defeat us. Our yellow dogs will soon be weeded out of our ranks, and then we shall be in a better position to fight than before. It is gratifying to note that no mates are found among the deserters.

"In the engineers' strike they started fifty-six boats, but in spite of this the engineers beat the owners to a finish."

Two telegrams have been received from the Milwaukee harbor, one stating that all the masters in the Foam City are standing firm, and the other containing the information that all the masters have withdrawn from the Milwaukee harbor.

Local labor leaders have a good deal of faith in the workings of the American Federation of Labor, which they declare is the most powerful organization of its kind in the world, and confidence that a speedy settlement of the difficulty between the masters and pilots and their employers will soon be reached is freely expressed. Those who before were not slow to assert that the masters and mates had no show to win the battle now say that the chances are in favor of the association, since it has, or is supposed to have, become

DISCUSSES TIE-UP

Sympathy Is With Men—Too Much Tonnage For Business.

Capt. Alexander McDougall, who is one of the men best known to the lake trade, both as an ex-navigator and designer of lake ships, and who views the present quietness in the lake traffic, brought about by the strike, from a peculiarly interesting standpoint. His being an old shipmaster and shipowner, and the fact that he is not now interested in the shipping problem save from his interest for the welfare of all concerned, makes his opinion of considerable interest.

"In your opinion, how long will this strike continue?" he was asked.

"I am of the opinion it will not last very long, other than the struggle that is on in the United States between those who own property and those who do not own it as to who shall manage the same. In the case of the masters and pilots, my sympathy is entirely with them. They have been faithful, loyal, intelligent and submissive to the owners, worked for very low wages, much lower than is paid to men who manage the affairs of such importance of concerns on shore. They have been hampered by the fact that all kinds of unions among the men who constitute their crew, engineers, firemen, sailors, cooks, etc., have been able to dictate through their unions to owners and corporations, and particularly the Lake Carriers' association, while the masters and mates took what was left, without an organization. They took the sneers and insults of young and inexperienced men in the managers' offices of the different corporations owning lake vessels, until it became unbearable, and the captains and mates organized last year, practically because they were compelled to, and unfortunately there followed such a year as this, which needs an explanation to appreciate the conditions."

"What were conditions when you handled a vessel years ago?"

"In the days of my early experience in the lake trade, during the war, and up to 1874, we had no American chart of Lake Superior, very little information whereby a young or old man could learn lake navigation other than what he was told in secret or learned by long experience, for the want of buoys, beacons, fog whistles and aids to navigation. All lake routes were more dangerous than they now are under the beautiful maps and charts made by such a perfect lake surveyor. These charts are obtainable at so low a cost, 20 cents each, that a young or an old person with much less experience, can quickly learn all branches of lake navigation. In addition to that, many navigation schools are open for young men and from the fact that the young men now have a better education than formerly, the lake navigator is easier made, and I think, better material when completed. This has brought a full supply of his class as fast as boats were completed.

"Do you think the captain is well treated today?"

"Under the management of the Lake Carriers' association he and his crew have been well treated, other than the fact that the master and mate should have had a larger compensation. I am exceedingly sorry to see this trouble between them and the owners, for there is not enough business in sight for the enormous lake fleet, built through the excitement of the abnormal conditions existing for three or four years past, and the class of vessels built is too large to go to sea through the Canadian canal.

"It must remain here and will be of exceedingly long life, because steel and lake water agree together with little corrosion and ships will last a long while. The dangers of navigation are reduced to such a minimum, through double bottoms, collision bulkheads and the rules that govern the navigation of lake vessels so rigidly adhered to that the life of the present lake fleet will be much longer than the wooden vessels of the past."

"How do you compare capacity as it is with the tonnage needed?"

"The condition of the lake fleet at present, as regards their yearly carrying capacity, as compared with the outlook for business, is about as follows: The average lake tramp steamer, under the modern system of loading and unloading, should make about twenty round trips a year. If all the lake freighting vessels were employed in moving the foreign products that go by lake, they would move it all in two or three trips, consequently more than 75 per cent of the lake trade, other than coal, which is a westbound cargo, is iron ore. Westbound freight, including coal, is less than 25 per cent of the capacity of the vessels, and its lake freight is based upon the vessel's actual time value.

"In 1902, when lake traffic had the largest share of farm products, coal and merchandise, and from crowded conditions at ore docks, scarcity of cars, etc., the lake fleet carried that year about 28,000,000 tons of iron ore. During that year and since, up to June of 1904, new ships have been built to carry an additional 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 tons. The improvements made for loading an unloading the lake ship can be summed up as equivalent to 2,000,000 tons more. Thus we have, a capacity to move 36,000,000 tons of ore in one year and evidently less than half that amount in sight to move this year, owing to the stock piles carried over at the furnaces and Lake Erie and Lake Michigan docks, amounting to 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 tons at the present time.

"The transportation conditions in the interest of lake men is exceedingly unfortunate but is one of the leveling up processes going on regulated by supply and demand, and is part of the struggle as to who shall manage the affairs of one's property, he or the man whom he is supposed to hire."

The masters and pilots are not wholly free from blame for bringing about the estranged condition, according to Captain McDougall. He called attention to the fact that the Lake Carriers at a meeting early this year, freely expressed themselves as of the opinion that there would be no need of beginning the season's operations before the first of June, owing to the light tonnage expected to be shipped during the time the season would be open. The captain appeared to believe that it would have been well for the masters and pilots to have taken this as a cue and not taken as raldical steps as they have, with the consequent tying up of business.

GOT OUTFIT BY FRAUD

Chicago Girl Said She Was Daughter of Wealthy Parents.

Chicago, June 7.—After securing her wedding outfit by having the goods charged to two men of wealth, Rose Reifers, 18-year-old, has been arrested while passing herself off as a daughter of Theodore A. Kochs. She had ordered jewelry to the value of $350, charged to Mr., Kochs' account. The jewelry consisted of a diamond ring and shirt stud, which the young woman afterwards confessed she intended to give George Bockley, of Oak Park, to whom she is engaged.

The girl's parents are well-to-do, and declare their daughter had everything she wished. Mrs. Reifers was prostrated by her daughter's disgrace.

Mr. Kochs and A. Rawson Waller both reported to a local firm, the police say, that their May bills were $100 in excess of what the families had purchased.

The matter had not been cleared up when Miss Reifers entered the store and selected the ring and stud.

She declared she was Mr. Kochs' daughter, and said the jewelry was to be charged.

Suspicion was aroused when she announced she would take the articles with her, and she was arrested. Detectives were sent to the residence of Mr. Kochs, where they were informed that Miss Kochs was traveling in Europe.

When they returned with this information the young prisoner broke down and confessed. She admitted, the police say, that she had secured her wedding outfit by passing herself off as the daughter of wealthy parents.

While but two complaints have come to the notice of the police, they believe the prisoner operated more extensively.

AS IT HAPPENED.

Now, you never can tell what a woman wants. At least, that is the experience of the hero of this story, and he even goes so far as to say that she herself can't tell, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"John," his wife said one morning, "I've got to ship back that china and glassware that we borrowed from mother, and I want some excelsior to pack it."

"How much?" he asked.

"Well," she replied, "I saw a small bale in the window of that feed store on Blank street yesterday, and I think two such bales will do. I wish you'd order it on your way to the office."

Naturally he stopped to order it, and he saw the bale in the window.

"What does she want of so much?" he growled. "I guess one bale will do."

He ordered one bale and then decided that he had made a mistake.

"She always claims to know what she wants," he mused, "and she said two. I'll get a blessing when I go home tonight for not following instructions."

He looked at the bale again and was doubtful.

"It isn't what I would call a small bale of excelsior," he said. "Still, compared with a bale of hay or a bale of cotton, it is small, and she said two like the bale in the window. I'm always being criticised for failing to get exactly what she wants."

So he increased the order to two bales and went merrily on his way. But that night there was trouble.

"Did you think," she demanded, "that I wanted to pack the house in excelsior?"

"You said two bales," he pleaded.

"I said two small bales," she asserted.

"You said two bales like the one in the window," he insisted.

"But these are twice as large.'

"On the contrary, one of these is the very bale that was in the window."

"Well, it looked smaller in the window," she said.

"I can't help how it looked," he retorted. "I got exactly what you told me to get."

"You ought to have more sense," she declared. "Anyone ought to have known that I didn't mean any such amount of excelsior as that; and if you think I'm going to pay for it out of the house money, you are mightily mistaken. If you'd only use a little judgment once in a while you wouldn't do such fool things."

A NICE PET.

Len Acker, the horseman, is Lincolnesque in the patness of some of his illustrative stories, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The other day a big gawk of a man, accompanied by his wife, came to Acker's stable to buy a trotter. The wife, every time she spoke to her husband, called him "Pet." It was Pet this and Pet that until the horseman felt like eating a pickle to take the taste of sweetness out of his mouth. When his visitors were gone he said:

"My father once hired a tall, lank fellow to work about our place. One of his duties was to milk a certain cow which had a bad habit of kicking unless she was handled with the utmost care.

"Father was afraid that if he told the fellow of this he would object to milking her, so he thought to accomplish his purpose by telling him that the cow had been raised a pet and must be treated very gently.

"Well, the fellow, disdaining a milkstool, sat on the ground with his long legs sprawled out under the cow and the pail on his knees.

"Everything went on quietly until he had nearly filled the pail. Then, all of a sudden, the cow let go a swinging kick, landing on the fellow's chest, sending him flat on his back into a mud hole and upsetting the pail of milk over him.

"When the astonished milkman had recovered his breath, he rose slowly to his feet, looked down his bespattered front, dug the mud and milk out of his ears and said:

"'Wal, she's a deuce of a pet, she is.'"

A TOAST.

At a dinner given by Governor J. K. Vardaman, of Mississippi, the subject of toasts came up.

"A very good toast," said Governor Vardeman, "and one that comes home forcibly to all men in office, was once proposed by the learned Ashley Stockton, of Montpelier.

"The occasion was a farewell banquet to the governor of Vermont, whose term of office was expiring.

"'Here,' said Ashley Stockton at this banquet, 'is the health of all governors. They come in with a great deal of opposition. But they go out with none at all.'"

RUSSIANS AT PORT ARTHUR SHELL THE JAPS' GUNBOATS

Four on Reconnoitering Trip Exposed to Cannonade.

One Struck Eight Times and Somewhat Damaged.

An Important Battle on Land Is Soon Expected.

Tokio, June 8.—Four Japanese gunboats, which made a close reconnaissance of Port Arthur harbor at midnight of June 6 for the purpose of examining the entrance, were exposed to a severe cannonade. Gunboat No. 4 was hit eight times and sustained some damage. One of her sailors was killed and two others were wounded.

IMPORTANT BATTLE

Which May Decide Campaign Will Soon Be Fought.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The reports of sorties from and attacks on Port Arthur coming in from foreign sources arouse the liveliest interest here. The government, not having means of communication with the fortress, accepts them with reserve. The authorities generally believe that the reported

ASKS DEATH BY MOB

Murderer Implores Sheriff to Let Them Get Him.

Kills Wife and Brother-in-Law and Wounds Himself.

Chicago, June 8.—A dispatch to the Tribune, from Carmi, Ill., says: A mob surrounded the home of John Robinson, at Maumie, early today clamoring for his life. Sheriff McConnell and thirty-six armed deputies were keeping back the riotous crowd. It was thought the mob would not succeed in its mission as the officers were determined to do their duty. Robinson, who killed his wife and brother-in-law and then attempted to take his own life on Monday, has sufficiently recovered to discuss the crime. He shows no emotion, and only says: "People don't kill one another for nothing."

On learning that he was not dead a mob formed and made an attack on the place where Robinson is being cared for. He had lost both eyes and begs the sheriff to let the mob have its will.

GOLD MINING CAMPS ARE PLACED UNDER MILITARY CONTROL

Many Union Miners Are Deported and City Officials Are Forced to Resign Under Compulsion.

Martial Law Is Proclaimed By Acting Governor Haggot and More Troops Are Sent to Camps.

Victor, Colo., June 8.—Martial law was declared in the Cripple Creek district early today by the posting of Acting Governor Haggot's proclamation at a number of places in the camp. The posting was done under the direction of Adjutant General Bell. Conditions in the camp are quiet, according to all accounts.

Gen. Bell has assumed command of the military and control of the district and has called a council of the officers of the local military companies. He also has ordered Col. Verdeckberg, who had charge of affairs in the district when martial law ended there several months ago, to the district.

The proclamation reads as follows:

"Whereas, there exists in Teller county, Colorado, a large number of armed persons acting in conjunction with a large number of persons outside of that county who are fully armed and acting together for unlawful purposes, and,

"Whereas, open riot and insurrection now exists in said county of Teller, and felonies and murder have already been committed by such persons and are still threatening to commit murders and felonies, and are offering violence to citizens and property in said county and are resisting the laws of the state of Colorado, and

"Whereas, at divers and sundry other times various crimes have been committed in said county of Teller by and with the aid and under the direction of said vicious and lawless persons, and the security of persons and property is now threatened in said county, and,

"Whereas, threats, intimidations and violence are threatened and believed will be resorted to by said lawless class of individuals, and,

"Whereas, it is represented to me by the sheriff of said Teller county, that the civil authorities within said county are unable to enforce the laws to secure peace and order in said county, and that it is necessary to put the military into said county for the purpose of enforcing the laws and restoring peace and order.

"Now, therefore, I, Warren A. Haggot, acting governor and commander-in-chief of the military forces of the state of Colorado, by virtue of the power and authority invested in me, do hereby, proclaim and declare the said dcounty of Teller in the state of Colorado, to be in a state of insurrection and rebellion.

"In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state of Colorado to be affixed at Denver, the state capitol, this seventh day of June, A. D., 1904.

WARREN A. HAGGOT,
Acting Governor."

Sherman Bell, brigadier general and adjutant general.

Early today Gen. Bell and the mine operators led by Charles M. MacNeal and C. C. Hamlin were preparing to take a secret trip down the Short Line railway, their destination being unknown, every member of the party taking the greatest pains to conceal the purpose of the trip. No sooner had Gen. Bell arrived than the trip was suggested.

Three more Victor city officials have been forced to resign. They are Justice of the Peace J. D. Thomas and Aldermen J. W. Murphy and J. J. Tobin. Police Magistrate Michael Gibbons, who refused to resign, was made a prisoner at the Victor military armory, where many union men are also confined.

Frank J. Hangs, leading attorney of the Western Federation of Miners here, has been warned to leave the district. In all about 200 union members and sympathizers have been arrested by the sheriff and military since Monday. Twenty-eight of these have already been deported. The remainder are imprisoned in the jails, Victor armory and the Cripple Creek mining exchange hall under military guard. The dragnet is still out and the "house cleaning," as the authorities term their proceedings, continues. Records of the unions have been seized whenever found, and are under examination for the purpose of securing evidence showing that the unions, or some of their officers, have participated in or approved of crimes that have been committed.

In addition to the unearthing of about thirty group photographs of non-union workingmen at various mines, which were concealed in a heap of rubbish in the Victor union office, it is alleged that in the office of the Altman union were found quantities of electrical fuses and batteries to produce explosions.

Talk of lynching or violence has subsided to a degree, though if the man who exploded the infernal machine in Independence, killing fifteen men, should be captured, it is doubtful whether any military force could protect him from the fury of friends of the murdered men.

The man who killed Roxie McGee at the mass meeting here on Monday has been positively identified by an eyewitness of the shooting, and although he has not yet been captured, it is believed he cannot escape.

No further deaths have been reported among those wounded in the explosion and riots of Monday.

TWENTY-FOUR DEPORTED.

Union Leaders Sent Out of Mining District.

Cripple Creek, Colo., June 8.—Under the regime of hundreds of deputy sheriffs and about 150 militiamen, receiving orders from Edward Bell, a wealthy mine owner, who succeeded Sheriff Robertson when he resigned under threats of lynching, this gold mining district passed a comparatively peaceful day. Throughout the day deputies and soldiers searched the hills for union miners, and the sum total of the days' arrests was nineteen. This swelled the number of men confined in the bull pen to considerably over 200 and last night twenty-four of them were placed aboard a special train and deported from the district. A guard of deputies rode out of the district with them. The men were residents of the following towns of the district: Cripple Creek, 3; Victor, 3; Independence, 12; Gold Field, 3; Anaconda, 2; Altman, 1. They were all active unionists and served as leaders in the strike now pending. Three additional city officers were forced to resign their offices yesterday, namely, Chief of Police William Groham, Night Marshal Fred Hardy and Justice of the Peace Charles Karrington. Their reputed sympathy for unionism led to this action. In each case a committee of the Citizens' Alliance waited upon them and compelled them to act immediately under pain of violence.

Sixteen deputies armed with sawed off shot guns visited the union store and made a thorough search for weapons. They were rewarded with find-

Sultan of Morocco Will Agree to Raisuli's Conditions.

Expected That This Will Expedite Release of Captives.

Tangier, Morocco, June 8.—The sultan's letter in reply to the diplomatic representations made in regard to the kidnaping of Messrs. Perdicaris and Varley, arrived here this afternoon. It is said by a person in the sultan's confidence that the sultan has given orders to grant all of the conditions demanded by Raisuli, the bandit leader, in order to expedite the release of the captives.

Washington, June 8.—The navy department today received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Chadwick, at Tangier, to the effect that he has been informed that Perdicaris and Varley are in need of medical assistance, and that the consul general has sent to Raisuli to inquire whether a surgeon will be given safe conduct. The admiral says that if so, one will be sent to Raisuli to inthe sheriff of Wazan. Raisuli's reply is expected June 9.

The Express Car and Contents Were Badly Wrecked.

One Bag of Specie Was All the Bandits Obtained.

Denver, June 8.—A Denver & Rio Grande passenger train, westbound from Denver, was held up by five masked men three miles west of Parachute, a small fruit station midway between Grand Junction and Glenwood Springs.

One sealed bag, containing specie, was taken from the express safe, which was dynamited. The express car was badly wrecked by dynamite, but the robbers were compelled to escape to the mountains before they could gather up the valuables in the car.

Sheriff W. G. Struthers and Deputy Sheriff D. M. Hardy of Grand Junction are now upon the trail of the robbers, with a posse of farmers and ranchers, who were quickly summoned from the vicinity of Grand Junction.

Sheriff Frank Adams and another posse from Glenwood Springs are also scouring the surrounding country.

HANNAH ELIAS, THE OCTOROON, IN JAIL.

HANNAH ELIAS.

Mr. Platt, the New York millionaire, was finally persuaded to bring criminal action against the negro adventuress, and the doors of her palatial home were beaten down and she was placed under arrest.

OCTOROON ADVENTURESS PLACED IN JAIL IN DEFAULT OF BONDS

Hannah Elias Taken From Palatial Home and Put Under $50,000 Bonds Which She Is Unable to Give.

New York, June 8.—Mrs. Hannah Elias, who was arrested last night, charged with extortion by John R. Platt, was arraigned today and held in $50,000 bail for examination next Friday. Bail was not furnished and she was committed to the Tombs prison.

When the prisoner was taken from her cell to a cab in which she was taken to the Tombs court, she was met by a jeering crowd which filled the court around the police station. The woman, accompanied by two detectives, entered the carriage and the start for the court was made. Just as the cab started, however, a large express wagon drove directly in its patch and the crowd closed in, many men climbing onto the wheels to peep into the vehicle. Mrs. Elias appeared much frightened, but it developed that the crowd was more curious than threatening. Assisted by several patrolmen, the detectives succeeded in clearing a passage and the carriage continued on the way.

New York, June 8.—Hannah Elias, the octoroon, charged by John Platt with having secured from him by blackmailing methods nearly $700,000, passed the night in the Mercer street police station.

She was taken from her palatial residence in Central Park West (where the doors were knocked down with axes) to police headquarters in a carriage. She delayed so long at home arranging her toilet that the latter place was not reached until nearly 2 o'clock. After having given her name, age, etc., she was taken to Mercer street for the night.

Efforts to serve a warrant on Mrs. Elias in a civil suit had kept a crowd about her house for a week, and when the detectives attacked the doors with axes in order to serve a warrant in criminal action, which Mr. Platt finally had been prevailed upon to bring, there was a large audience.

As Mrs. Elias left the house, leaning heavily upon the arms of the detectives, she had to pass between solid rows of curious persons, while street cars, carriages and automobiles were lined up in order that their passengers might view the outcome of the strange siege which has been on for days. Mrs. Elias expressed no concern over her arrest.

The specific charge on which the warrant was based is the alleged extortion from Mr. Platt of $7500 in May last.

The New York actress, famous in the "Florodora" sextette, is under arrest, charged with knowing something about the death of Bookmaker Frank T. Young.

MORMONS HINDER

Congregational Educational Society Work In Utah.

Boston, June 8.—The report of the directors of the Congregational Educational society, presented at the annual meeting here, today designated the year as "One of vigorous activity in all departments of educational work," and indicated that progress in Utah had been seriously hindered by the Mormon church. The report said:

"Opposition to our mission schools on the part of the Mormon church authorities is determined and persistent. Every effort is made to hinder their efficiency."

The report showed two new colleges instituted, one at Redfield, S. D., and the other, French-American, at Springfield, Mass. Twenty academies were helped financially.

TRAINS COLLIDE; NO ONE WAS HURT.

Danville, Ill., June 8.—Wabash express train No. 3, westbound, ran into a Big Four freight train at the Danville crossing early today. Several freight cars were smashed and a number ditched, but no person was hurt.

Two engines were badly damaged and the property loss was heavy. The crews escaped by jumping. There were several narrow escapes.

WOMEN HAVE STRANGE AFFLICTION

New York, June 8.—Friends of the Misses Bondy, of New York, have received from Vienna news that the young women are in a medical institution in that city, having been taken there for observation and treatment while laboring under great excitement or hysteria, says a Herald dispatch from Paris.

The story of their affliction is a strange one. Six months ago the three young sisters, who are between 20 and 30, left New York for Europe, unattended, for a trip to the Mediterranean, Egypt and the Holy Land. They were well supplied with money and proficient in European languages.

A month ago they reached Constantinople. There they met a party of Americans. They were evidently in a nervous condition and told stories of an attempt made to kidnap them. They gave the impression to all who came in contact with them that their nerves had been considerably shaken by their adventures, fancied or real.

On the arrival of the sisters in Vienna their nervousness became more marked. They evaded the courier and moved from hotel to hotel, declaring their lives were in danger. Finally they called upon the police for protection and were turned over to the United States consul, who is having them cared for pending the arrival of relatives. The real cause of the nervous breakdown is unknown.

YOUNG MAN'S MYSTERIOUS DEATH

New York, June 8.—It has just been learned that "W. Parker, of San Francisco," who was found dead in a Broadway hotel Sunday morning, was Walter Basil Packer, a graduate of Harvard university and said to be a member of the Bohemian and Pacific clubs of San Francisco, two of the most exclusive organizations on the coast. Packer was prominent in legal circles before coming to New York a little more than a year ago.

A coroner's physician, who examined the body, found that death was caused by acute gastritis, induced by some agency with which he was unfamiliar. The stomach is being analyzed.

Orders had been given a burial company to cremate the body, when a woman, said to be Mrs. Packer, appeared and declared that it should be made ready for regular burial.

Two or three weeks ago Packer ran out of money and complained that his remittances had been delayed. He became melancholy and friends had seen him but infrequently since that time.

WRECK OF TRAINS

Mix-Up of Freights Delays Morning Northern Pacific Train.

Twin City Mail Blocked —Passengers Reach Here Very Late.

Last midnight, at Rush City, there occurred a wreck of two Northern Pacific trains that damaged four freight cars and the engines of both trains, although Assistant Superintendent Bean says no one was hurt.

An extra freight train out of Duluth, which left here last evening, was standing on a side track in the yards at Rush City awaiting a northbound freight train which was to pass it at that point. It seems that the engineer of the southbound train did not get his engine stopped on the side track in time to avoid "fouling" the main track, so that the engine, when the train came to a standstill, was partly in the way of any train that would attempt to pass. The result was that when the northbound train came along it scraped the stationary engine with the damage, as indicated above. It is said that the engineer and firemen of the moving train jumped, although the details about the other engineer and fireman could not be learned.

The engineer and fireman of the waiting train left their train before the collision, but how long is a question which can only be settled by an investigation, and this had not been made this morning. If it is found that the engineer and fireman of the waiting train were not on it at the time the other approached, they will probably be disciplined.

It is said they claim the switch lamp was not lighted, so that they could not tell where the train was when it stopped, which, according to a railroad man who was asked about that point, in itself was evidence against any train crew, who, under such circumstances, would rightly have to take steps to make their train safe from accident, either by determining where they were, or putting up a danger signal of some kind.

The monetary damage to the Northern Pacific is said to be comparatively light, although no estimate in dollars was obtainable. The point where the wreck occurred is 99 miles from Duluth, and the wreck was the cause of the morning passengers northbound, due here at 7:10 a. m., being about four hours late. The long delay to passenger and other service was due to the weight of the enormous freight engines which were displaced by the accident. Northern Pacific people said the accident would not delay the people from the points on the line who are to be in here on an excursion.

The mail from St. Paul did not arrive with the pasengers from that section and it is supposed the pasengers were transferred around the wreck and that the mail car was left at the scene until the track could be cleared.

NEW WARRANT FOR BEAVERS

Charged With Influencing Purchase of Book Typewriters.

New York, June 8.—When George W. Beavers, former superintendent of the divilson of salaries and allowances of the postoffice department, appeared in the United States circuit court in Brooklyn today, he was served with a new warrant for arrest on a Washington indictment, charging him with entering into a deal for the purchase of book typewriters and with receiving money for his influence in putting through a contract for the machines. On this warrant Beavers was taken before United States Commissioner Burdick, who required an additional $10,000 bail on the new charge, but with the consent of Judge Thomas, was given until next Monday to furnish the additional bond. On that day there will be another hearing and the federal authorities hope to secure the transfer of Beavers to Washington, where it is desired that his first trial will be held.

LIBERTY BELL

Reaches St. Louis and Is Greeted By Thousands.

St. Louis, June 8.—The historic Liberty Bell arrived from Philadelphia today in response of the petition of 90,000 public school children of this city and will remain in the Pennsylvania building until the close of the fair.

After Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia and other city officials, who accompanied the bell, were received by exposition officers, the famous old bell was taken to the exposition, where formal exercises were carried out.

The gates had been thrown open to the school children of the city and the day had been proclaimed a holiday by Mayor Wells. It is estimated that more than 50,000 school children formed a portion of the immense throng that greeted the bell when it entered the grounds.

NOTHING OFFICIALLY

Has Been Heard of the Death of Etzel.

Washington, June 8.—Secretary Hay today received a telegram from Miss Anna Etzel, in Denver, Colo., a sister of Louis Etzel, a newspaper correspondent, who was killed by Chinese soldiers off the coast of the Liao Tung peninsula, asking the secretary to endeavor to have his body recovered and returned to the United States for burial. The state department has heard nothing so far officially of the killing of Etzel, a fact probably accounted for by the reported departure from Newchwang of Consul General Miller for the scene of the killing. Therefore it has not yet been possible to make any representations on the matter to the Chinese government.

New York, June 8.—A distinguished assemblage of alumni and guests gathered at Columbia university today to attend the one hundred and fiftieth annual commencement exercises, when 776 degrees and six honorary degrees were awarded. Among the honorary degrees awarded were:

TRIUMPHS OF MODERN SURGERY.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antisepdc and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It so allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all druggists.

STATUS OF SOLDIERS.

Where They Stand With Reference to Entries.

The local land office officials are in receipt of a letter from a soldier in one of the interior towns of the Philippine islands, making inquiry in regard to the opening, June 15, of lands in the Pigeon river Indian reservation. The writer is under the impression that soldiers' claims will be reserved, without the soldier being present to make entry on them. Register Culkin has answered the communication, setting the far-off American right on the matter.

In taking a homestead, the only advantage a soldier has over the ordinary citizen is that he can make final proof on his claim sooner than is ordinarily the case. His period of service in the army is taken from the time he must live on the homestead. If he has served three years, it will be necessary for him to settle on the land only two years before making final proof, while the citizen has to reside on the land five years before he can procure title to it.

The only exception to this rule is where the soldier entered land before June, 1874. In this case he is entitled to take enough additional land to make up 160 acres, if he secured title to less than that amount in the first place.

PAYS DR. FLOWER'S BONDS OF $20,000.

New York, June 8.—Mrs. Cornelius Storers has paid $20,046.67 to Assistant District Attorney Minor, the amount with interest of the forfeited bail for Dr. Richard C. Flower, who is said to have obtained some $300,000 of the woman's money through mining schemes. He has disappeared. Mrs. Storers declared that Flower saved her from death, and that she was grateful and had faith in him.

MRS. PATTERSON REMANDED.

New York, June 8.—Justice Clark, of the supreme court today dismissed the writ of habeas corpus in the case of Mrs. Nan Patterson connected with the shooting of Caesar Young and remanded the prisoner.

GOG AND MAGOG

An Anglo-Israelite of Nova Scotia Nakes a Prophesy.

"An Anglo-Israelite" of Nova Scotia calls our attention to chapters 38 and 39 in the book of Ezekiel in the Bible as prophetic of "what is going to happen to Russia," says the New York Sun.

According to Ezekiel, Gog from the land of Magog, "the chief prince of Mesbech and Tubal," "shall come out of the north parts, thou and many people with thee, all of them riding on horses, a great company and a mighty army," andarmy," and him the Lord will destroy utterly, in a great battle, after which shall come the final dispensation.

In the New Testament Gog and Magog again appear, but as terms descriptive of the Antichrist whose destruction is to be the precursor of the millennium.

The Gog of Ezekiel seems to have been, unquestionably, representative of the Scythians. Later he seems to have been, not less unmistakably, an expression symbolical of the heathen nations of Asia generally, of whom knowledge in Ezekiel's time was of the vaguest description, if not wholly mythical. The destruction of Gog might therefore be interpreted as prefiguring the downfall of Japan and China, not less reasonably and perhaps more reasonably than the downfall of Russia.

Gog has been taken to represent many military undertakings reprobated by the interpreters. For example, Gog was identified with Napoleon; but now our Jewish correspondent revives him as Russia and looks forward to the destruction of Russia by the Japanese as the fulfillment of the prophecy, and the restoration of the kingdom of God to follow on it he interprets to be "a destined triumph for the British nation and the United States, or the whole Anglo-Saxon race." "The destiny of the world today" he puts "in the hands of those two great powers."

"The sooner you come down off your perch," he tells us in conclusion, "and acknowledge the corn the better." Inasmuch as we have ascended no perch it is not possible for us to get down. We can only look up to the perch from which he utters the command and wonder at his assurance as an interpreter of prophecy.

As for ourselves, we have no theory on the subject of Gog to propound. Nor have we been able, after more or less reading on the subject to reconcile the opinions of other people who have ventured interpretations of the prophecy—whether Gog was destroyed in the far distant past, was overcome in the person of Napoleon or is now about to be overcome in the defeat of Russia by Japan. Both Japan and Russia, it must be remembered, are northern peoples, the one Christian and very piously Christian, and the other heathen. Nor is it sure yet how the present war is to come out. Perhaps Gog will prove to be Japan.

As to "the Anglo-Saxons," who are they and what reason is there for describing this country of many nationalities—more than a million Jews, for instance—as "Anglo-Saxon?"

Manley-McLennan Agency Captures Rock Island Insurance.

Schedule Calls For About Thirty Millions—Competition Was Sharp.

One of the largest schedules of railroad insurance ever awarded to a single insurance agency has been captured by the Manley-McLennan Agency, of Duluth, in competition with a number of the strongest insurance agencies in the United States.

It is that of the Rock Island railroad company and the gross amount of the insurance to be placed will be about $30,000,000. D. R. McLennan, of the agency, is now in Chicago in connection with the matter.

The success of the local agency in this particular is due to their success in this line of insurance business, notably with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems.

The mileage of the different divisions of the company is as follows: Rock Island, 3,394.08; Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern, 2,185.04; Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf, 1080.98; other branches, 463; total, 7,123.10.

This covers a vast territory and that a Duluth firm could carry off this business against the agencies in the largest cities is not only a great credit to Duluth but the firm as well.

Wrecks Finances Also.

The congregation of the Duluth Heights Presbyterian church, which was wrecked by the high wind of last Friday night, has been left in a bad way in the matter of church finances, by the loss of its building, and is compelled to appeal to friends for assistance at this time. The congregation had enough funds on hand to move the building to a new site, and fix it over a little when it was located, but the unexpected accident that wrecked the building leaves it without a church to put on the foundations or fix up.

Struck By Bicycle.

J. P. Swanstrom, the well known real estate dealer, who has an office in the First National Bank building, was run into by a bicycle on the corner near that building today and painfully hurt. Mr. Swanstrom was starting across the street shortly after noon and attempted to get past a car that was coming.

A small boy on a bicycle on the other side of the car did not see Mr. Swanstrom's approach until too late. Both of them were knocked down by the collision and Mr. Swanstrom was painfully bruised and cut about the head. He was taken to the store of M. S. Burrows where Dr. A. E. Walker attended him. He soon revived, and insisted on walking away, although very nervous as a result of the shock.

Have Grievance.

The members of the Endion school ball club are very wroth at the treatmen given them at the hands of the ball team from the Washington school, in reporting very inaccurately, it is claimed, a game of ball that occurred on the carnival grounds on London road yesterday afternoon. The Endion ball team claims that it defeated the Washington school team by a score of 15 to 12, but the latter team reported the game in the morning paper as having been won by themselves with the same score.

VISCOUNT D'OYLEY FINALLY BURIED.

Paris, June 8.—Allister Evans (known as Viscount D'Oyley, a son of the American dentist, Dr. John Evans), who died May 26 in a private sanitarium in this city, as the result of a bullet wound received under mysterious circumstances, was buried from the morgue today after two weeks litigation over the disposition of his body. Madame Pilucker, the friend of the deceased, directed the ceremony. The family was not represented.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST BARRETT ARE NOLLED.

Washington, June 8.—The government today nolle prossed the two remaining indictments against Harrison J. Barrett, former clerk of the postoffice department, growing out of the postal investigation.

The action was taken by United States District Attorney Beach before Judge Gould of the district criminal court. The indictments charged Barrett with bribery in accepting an $800 fee as the attorney of an Alabama bond investment company while he was a government employe.

ADDRESSES GRADUATES

J. B. Cotton Makes Strong Speech at Two Harbors School.

Joseph B. Cotton made a speech to the graduating class of the Two Harbors high school last night that is said to have been the best effort of his life up to this time, and those who heard it say that if he excells it when he seconds the speech at Chicago which nominates President Roosevelt for a second term, he will have to make a supreme effort.

Some time ago the school people of Two Harbors made the request that Mr. Cotton address them on the occasion of the commencement and he consented. It was known by the school people that the assembly room would not be of sufficient capacity to hold all the people who would want to hear the young attorney and Norden hall was offered for the purpose and accepted. It was packed.

Mr. Cotton is understood to have made an address which was very much out of the ordinary, and his expression on corporate propositions is said to have been very unusual in view of the fact that he represents here the United States Steel corporation. He is understood to have advocated that it would be well if corporations could be removed from the varying influences of the different states and governed by some central power, which would keep them from being a menace to the public welfare, and rather tend to make them a help and stimulation toward the general good weal of the people.

His statements along this line were considered as indicating the ultimate government direction, if not absolute control, of the corporations. He said that this was the golden age of industry and that the oportunities of the young folks of today were broader and more exacting than ever before, and that owing to the increased importance of the problems of today the need would be greater for well disciplined, trained and balanced minds.

At a banquet held in the railroad Y. M. C. A. building afterward, Mr. Cotton was again the center of attraction and made an address which closed that portion of the evening's proceedings.

There were ten in the graduation group, five girls and five boys, and the diplomas for these were distributed by President George E. Mumford, of the school board.

Professor W. J. Marquis, who has for three terms been superintendent of the schools at Two Harbors, has been chosen for the office for a fourth term. With a staff of twenty-five teachers, a new high school building and a greater school population than ever before, the educational interests of the town have grown unusually important. The graduating class last night was the largest yet to come from the Two Harbors high school in one year.

BIBLE CRITICISM.

The Oppsition Has Met the Revised Version.

A significant incident—it may be said to be a consequence—of the criticism to which the Bible has been subjected during recent years is the decision of the managers of the American Bible society, on Thursday, to amend the constitution of that society so as to permit the printing of the revised version of the Scriptures completed in 1885 by British and American committees, in accordance with principles and rules laid down by the convocation of the province of Canterbury in 1870, and further revised and edited by the American committee in 1901.

The Canterbury plan was simply for a revision of the King James version, made in 1611, or of the standard and authorized English Bible of all Protestants, and not for a distinctively new version, says the New York Sun. The resolutions of the convocation, in view of the veneration in which this ancient and authorized version was regarded, took pains to announce that "we do not contemplate any new translation of the Bible or any alteration of the language except where in the judgment of the most competent scholars such change is necessary." Even where changes were made, the revisers were enjoined to follow closely "the style of the language employed in the existing version."

In 1885, when the revised version was completed and was published by the University Presses of Oxford and Cambridge, there was a great demand for the new Bible in both England and America. In the course of a single year as many as three million copies were sold in the two countries, and it was a leading subject of discussion in the religious world of that day. The general feeling in the two countries, however, was of disappointment. The changes made by the revisers, under the compulsion of fidelity to the originals, came as a shock to the sentiment of veneration which had grown up around the old version, so that its very language had become emblazed in English literature and had profoundly affected the whole thought and the doctrinal statement and conviction of English speaking Protestantism.

Accordingly, after the brief period in which the revised Bible awakened sensational interest, it ceased to attract any large degree of attention. During the twenty years since its first publication it has made no headway. The old version has continued to hold the affections of the people, to be the source from which Biblical quotations are made and from which lessons are read at church services. The revision is used in critical rather than pious study of the Scriptures. It is true that two years ago the British and Foreign Bible society anticipated the decision of our own Bible society on Thursday by amending its constitution so as to authorize the publication of the revised Bible among its issues, but the demand for the new has been trifling relatively to that for the old version.

Of all the books printed since the invention of printing, the Bible has been by far the most numerously sent out from the presses of both Europe and America. The total number of the issues of the English society since its organization in 1804 has been toward 200,000,000, and of the American society about half as many. So far as concerns the English language, these have been of the old King James version. Meantime, the Bible has been translated in whole or in part into hundreds of languages and dialects, or practically into every speech of the earth. The amount of labor expended by Protestant missionaries in this direction has been prodigious. Giving the Bible to every people of the earth has been considered by them the first great religious obligation.

The American Bible society, by its decision to add the revised version to its issues, now admits tacitly the imperfection of this King James version as measured by the standards of modern scholarship, but the new is not venerated and it never will be venerated like the old. The Bible as revised is a strange book. Changes made in passages hallowed by three centuries of devout use produce a painful impression of almost sacrilege in the religious mind. The Word of God, in the estimation of the great mass of the English speaking Protestant public, is the very language of the Bible as it was translated in 1611 by a commission of forty-seven members under James I.

At this time, too, when the new revision is made authoritative, there is throughout Christendom a criticism of the Scriptures which goes far beyond the mere imperfections of any translation. It weighs in the balance and rejects even the authenticity and authority of the Biblical originals themselves. The Bible emerges from its testing furnace no longer the Word of God, but the words of men—fallible, legendary, contradictory, defaced by fraud and limited by an ignorance of the natural laws of the universe which betokens a human authorship at periods when superstitions swayed the minds and governed the religious conceptions of men.

The decision in 1902 by the British and Foreign Bible society and by the American Bible society in 1904 to put forth both the newly revised version and the old version of 1611 as authoritative translations of the Scriptures is therefore of grave importance at a time of religious revolution due to new conceptions of the Bible.

COMMENCEMENT AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Graduates Receive Diplomas—Prof. McMillan Fails to Arrive.

Delayed By Wreck and Dr. Milne Speaks to Class.

The second annual commencement exercises of the Duluth state normal school were held this morning at the normal school building, on East Fifth street, and twenty-four young women comprising the class of 1904, and who have completed the various courses of the institution, were given diplomas permitting them to teach in the schools of Minnesota.

The exercises were largely attended by the relatives and friends of the young women, and were interesting in spite of the disappointment in the program arranged because of the unavoidable absence of the principal speaker for the event.

Professor Conway McMillan of Minneapolis, who was to have delivered the commencement address, did not arrive in the city this morning, and ten minutes before the time set for the program to begin President E. W. Bohannon received a telegram from him stating that he had been detained by a railroad wreck a little way this side of St. Paul and would be unable to reach Duluth today.

Rev. Alexander Milne, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church, when asked to act as substitute, consented, and gave a very interesting and entertaining talk to the graduates and their friends.

The music for the occasion was especially pleasing, consisting of several choruses by the normal school choir and a splendidly rendered violin solo by Miss Spring, teacher of primary grades in the model school.

Rev. Mr. Milne proved his ability to readily accommodate himself to trying circumstances. He prefaced his remarks with appropriate stories of the feelings of those when unexpectedly called on to deliver addresses on important occasions.

Mr. Milne said his position reminded him of his first experiences as a minister when, with a number of other callow youths, he was sent out from the theological seminary to disseminate the gospel and, incidentally, to practice on the natives of Wisconsin. He said that every Monday morning he found himself "mentally bankrupt."

"When the call came this morning," said Mr. Milne, "I felt mentally bankrput and sent out a search warrant for some ideas, but the warrants have not yet been returned."

"The word commencement," continued he, "I have learned to mean the beginning of things. Here it means the end of the school year. The word came into usage through the University of Oxford where, when a man finished his degree as master of arts, he was described as commencing his degree. This is really a beginning more than it is an ending. You are looking forward to life's work, becoming disciplined and trained to the conditions of future life as you may find them. You and I have larned, if we have profited at all by our studies, the value of a trained mind.

"Many people have today a false conception of an education. They have the idea that a person to be well educated must be educated entirely along the special line of work he or she expects to follow as a life work.

"I believe in training the mind along any and all lines."

Mr. Milne illustrated his point by the story of the great English statesman, William E. Gladstone, who, he said, had a training that made him practically a schoolman of the middle ages, yet the time came when he was called upon to deal with great questions of trade, commerce and finance, and he turned to them his trained mind, becoming one of the greatest financiers of the ages.

"The lesson teaches," said Mr. Milne, "that the mind that had been so guided as to grasp and master a few subjects was able to master other subjects. When you are called upon to do a particular thing, master it.

If you have complete mastery of your subject you can present it interestingly and clearly to others. I would commend to you the principle of gaining mastery of your own powers of your mind.

"I believe we read too much these days. I am a friend of books, but I believe that we gallop through them too rapidly. An education means the mastery of a few books."

Mr. Milne then touched on the general difficulty experienced in dealing with children by those who have not had the training to do so and illustrated his points with a number of witty and entertaining stories of child life.

"You have to deal with child life," said he, to the graduates, "and have had the training to deal with immature minds. I believe that one of the principal things in an education is to teach one to do things not always agreeable.

"It is your duty always to make a subject as interesting as possible. Of course all young ladies are interesting but they do not always know it, nor does everybody know it. It is your duty to make them know it. Interest the children in their work so that they will know that they not only have to go to school, but that they will like to go.

"I believe that religion is an essential element in education. It is unfortunate indeed that at the present time with so many ways of looking at the Christian faith it seems impossible to have anything like religion taught in the public schools. I hope that the time may come when under the influence of a christian brotherhood, a more liberal spirit will prevail and the religion of Christ will be taught in our schools. It is impossible to keep religion out of the schools so long as Christian teachers are employed. They may not say a word about religion, but they may greatly influence those under their charge by their Christian character and clean living. It is part of your duty to exemplify the Christ life that you may lead and transform your pupils.

"You get the child with habits largely framed. You must face little children who have to be taught the first principles of civilized life.

"Some one has said that the primary teacher is the guardian angel of the republic. I believe that is so, therefore, let us take off our hats to the primary teacher."

Rev. Mr. Milne interspersed his remarks throughout with a fund of humorous stories for which marks of appreciation were always evident.

Following Rev. Mr. Milne's talk a musical selection, the 24 young women graduates, dressed in white shirt waist suits carrying roses, gathered at the platform, where they were addressed by President Bohannon and presented with their diplomas.

President Bohannon said:

"It is the custom on such occasions as this for the graduating class, upon recommendation of the faculty, to be presented to a member of the state normal board, who, in turn, presents the diplomas. In the present instance that custom cannot be observed for the reason that no member of the board is here. A succession of interfering circumstances has made it impossible for first one and then another of them to be present, until the whole range of possibilities in that respect has been exhausted.

"Our resident director, Mr. Washburn, whose interest in, and loyalty to, the school would naturally insure his presence here today, accepted an invitation some weeks ago to present today the diplomas to the members of the graduating class at Mankato. It falls to me, therefore, as a self-constituted representative of the board, to present the diplomas.

"Under the circumstances you have excellent reason for believing that they will not be long in finding their way into your hands.

"I am mindful of the fact that what I am about to say must appeal to you as warmed over advice, a thing which is always easier and pleasanter to give than to receive. You have already had full measure of counsel and suggestion. In fact, the conditions under which our work here has to be done, compel us to depend somewhat more upon such means and methods than we like. You are not so much in need of advice and of suggestion as of experience.

"In your work here we have striven to supply as nearly as possible the conditions which should furnish you with the experience likely to be most serviceable in the work for which we have tried to prepare you. We do not cherish the delusion and hope that you do not, that we have made teachers of you. The school does not try to make teachers and could not make them if it would.

"Henceforth you will have to gain knowledge under conditions less agreeable and under guidance much less charitable and sympathetic. You must, therefore, prepare yourselves to expect criticism, of one sort or another. Accept it and profit by it. If you are as worthy as we think you are, it cannot hurt. The teacher or individual who shrinks from criticism or from what he honestly believes to be his duty for fear of criticism, is thereby making himself a proper subject for criticism. It is only the self-centered and the selfish person who resents, or fails to benefit by, criticism.

"You cannot afford either from your own point of view or that of the public which you are to serve to be over-sensitive. Very few of the mistakes which you could make, very few of the limitations which you may have, could so effectually lessen the service which you will engage to render the public. Of course, the public will often be unfair in its criticism and even harsh, but that will not justify you in resenting it. To be sure, this calls for the exercise of not a little forbearance and charity.

"It is especially desirable that you be especially charitable in your relations with the children under your care. Be charitable, not indulgent. The distinction is important and particularly so I think, in view of the fact that there exists today, with a certain degree of theoretical sanction, the habit or tendency to hold that only that which is agreeable and pleasant should be insisted upon in the training of children.

"I cannot help thinking that one of the most fundamental defects in the work of our schools today has its origin in that fact. It may not be true but it seems to me to be, that there is too little of the spirit of reverence, of prompt and willing obedience to ordinary requirements, on the part of American children. There are too many homes in which the parents are ruled by the children and too few in which we see obedience of the good old-fashioned sort.

"This state of affairs is, in my opinion, almost wholly a result of educational theory and school room practice. Therefore I hope you will not seek to obtain compliance with your regulations by means of indulgense.

"Be charitable and at the same time be just. Indeed, you cannot be charitable in the right sense unless you are just. Do not plead and beg where you ought to command.

"Teachers who have had their professional training in normal schools have been subjected to no small amount of criticism on the ground that they are method ridden. The criticism is not so common as it once was, but there is still too much reason for its existence. The conviction still exists that method is unduly and unnecessarily prominent in the consciousness of most teachers. Not only does method have unwarranted prominence in the consciousness of many teachers but, (and this is its worst feature) as a consequence, it is obtruded on the consciousness of the child claiming not infrequently a larger share of his attention than the subject matter itself. These things are easily apparent to the most casual observer, who is in any sense free from bias.

"The child and the subject are often lost sight of entirely and the teacher never so convinced of success as when an all but impregnable barrier of method has been erected between the subject and the child.

"There is no warrant for such glorification of method, no reason for this worship of the how and neglect of the what. It is always better to do a thing than to know how to do it, better to know than to know how to, know.

"The ingenuity and skill which is often displayed in the elaboration and manipulation of method for the "development of power" is truly remarkable, so remarkable indeed that a single little fact may, by careful pre-arrangement, be kept for days just beyond the grasp of the childish consciousness.

"This leading of the child to the object by the farthest way about, this tempting and teasing of his mental appetite, is simply pedagogical trickery and jugglery, and only the misguided and lazy person will resort to it. I do not believe you have been misguided and I do not think any of you are lazy.

"You have, in almost every instance, had all of your training in this institution. In a larger measure, upon you, therefore, than in the case of the only class which has preceded you, or of any which may follow, rests the responsibility, whether you will have it so or not, of determining the character of the impression which the public is to gain of this school. For that reason we shall have a peculiar interest in your success or failure. It will mean more to this institution than the success or failure of future classes. Your achievements will go a long way towards fixing the standard of public regard, and will decide very largely the character of the feeling with which members of succeeding graduating classes will think of the school.

"Be loyal to your colleagues and to your superiors, and with all the power that within you lies, avoid the easily-formed habit of fault-finding. It will not add to your comfort, your success or your salary. It will not inspire school boards with the desire to retain you at any cost, nor strengthen the probability of your leaving the profession for the best possible reason any young woman can give—a reason which, I hope, none of you may feel called upon to give before you have fulfilled the conditions of your pledge to teach.

"And now a very few words of a more personal sort. In the two years of your connection with the school, the first two of its existence, you have won an important place in the esteem of those who have been your teachers. You have done your work cheerfully and well, notwithstanding the difficulties and inconveniences incident to these first years of the school's career. It has been a genuine pleasure to have you here, to know and serve you. I cannot wish you a greater happiness in your service than has been ours in serving you."

At the close of the exercises an informal reception was held by the graduates for their friends in the assembly room in the hall of the normal building.

Advanced graduate course—Mary Sayles Bartlett, Banche May Coulter, Ella May Deetz, Catherine Farrell, Leora Pearl Fenton, Ora Margaret Hathaway, Mary Alphade Herrell, Alma Kruschke, Dorothy Katherine Kuhns, Clara Rubena Laughton, Fanny Beulah Lippitt, Florence McLean, Carrie May Neff, Frances Ida Maud Neff, Mary Lucy O'Keefe, Emma Laurentia Olson, Clara Mildred Somerville, Florence May Swendby, Hattie Yager.

THE MAYOR OF EVELETH

To the Editor of The Herald:

In every issue of the dailies published in your city, since the strike took place at the Drake & Stratton works in this vicinity, the municipal authorities of the city of Eveleth have been the target of the most undeserved and malicious criticism, and a person not acquainted with the facts would imagine that we are a city of the Wild West instead of one of the most peaceable cities in the state. An editorial in the News Tribune said: "As for the mayor of Eveleth, who respects the howl of a mob more than the law, and his swron duty, it would be interesting to know just what his standing is in the estimation of the intelligent citizens of the community." I took the oath of office as mayor to do my duty, not to do the work of other people. The fact that, in all the strike, it was not necessary for us to swear in any special officers to protect our city shows how much I am appreciated by those who know me best. Had it been required, I should, of course, have taken the lead, as the chief executive of our city. Why was it not required? Because our children could play on the streets at any stage of the game, and except for the occasion of the sheriff's prisoner being confined in the city lockup, no one would imagine anything extraordinary was occurring. When the strikers marched through our streets, they came up on one side and marched back on the opposite sidewalk. There was no more noise than there would be in a lodge procession. During the time the prisoner was in the lockup, and in fact during all that day, I ordered the saloons closed, and every proprietor or saloonkeeper thoroughly acquiesced in my request.

Now for the facts of the case. In the morning when the prisoner was brought to the lock-up by the sheriff's deputy, they left him in charge of Chief of Police Pat Dolan. Everything was quiet then, but after the excitement at the works had abated some of the strikers began to return to the city and between 900 and 400 men assembled in the alley and surrounded the lock-up and were using all manner of threats, but Patrick Dolan kept them at bay for a considerable time, and until I ordered one of our night policemen, Nick Kent, to go to his assistance, he ably controlled the crowd. Things were getting rather warm around the lock-up, and Alderman Matt Prettner and I went down to the municipal court, and Judge Prince called up the Drake & Stratton works, and asked for the sheriff, and told Mr. Butchart, or one of his deputies, the situation, and that if they wanted to keep the prisoner in the lock-up, they had better send up some deputies to take care of him. Mr. Butchart replied, "Hold him if you can; but don't let any lives be lost. If it comes to bad as that, let the fellow go; we don't want him." After the crowd was getting more excitable, Judge Prince again called up the works, and asked Mr. Abbott for the sheriff. He was told that they were just going over the hill to their dinner. I then went up to the McNiel Hotel, which is about a block from the jail, and told Mr. Butchart, personally, to go down or send his deputies, and take charge of the prisoner. He replied: "Call out your firemen, and turn the hose upon them and that will disperse them."

Now these are the facts. Butchart and his deputies were notified ten minutes before the man was liberated, and they were not two miles away (although they might as well have been as the papers state, but within two minutes' walk of the lock-up. Now if I had ordered the hose turned on the crowd, and it was done, there would have been a riot in the city in fifteen minutes. Then this city would have needed one hundred special police. Had Butchart and his seven deputies failed to keep the man in jail, there would have been bloodshed, and they knew it. But discretion is the better part of valor, and they knew it. Perhaps they thought we were going to commence hostilities, and then they would have put the blame on us as they are doing now. There were two men supplied with rifles at the Drake & Stratton works, one George Ramusich, an Austrian, and Chris Grannum, a Swede, who, if left alone would have pumped every lead in the strikers, out of their Winchesters, than the soldiers in the Spanish war. These men are conspicuous by their absence, and they were the ones that caused all the hard feelings. The fact of the matter, there was more reported than ever occurred, and it was not half as bad as it was represented. I should have left the matter drop, but "patience ceases to be a virtue," and in justice to the municipal authorities of this city and myself I state emphatically that I have told the truth and defy contradiction. Your truly,

M. MAXWELL,
Mayor of the City of Eveleth.

HEARST MEN WIN HENNEPIN

On Face of the Returns But Conservatives Are Hopeful.

Minneapolis, June 8.—In primaries remarkable for the total vote and intense interest displayed by both factions, Hennepin county Democrats last night elected delegates who will probably be controlled in their county convention Saturday by friends of W. R. Hearst.

Returns are by no means complete, but the Hearst men claim they will control the county convention by a vote of 2½ to 1. Their figures are considerably more complete than those furnished by the anti-Hearst men, but those who favor an uninstructed delegation to the St. Louis convention say that they will have sufficient strength to direct the policy of the convention.

In thirteen wards of Minneapolis returns are far from complete. Of the 399 votes which the city is entitled to in the convention, the Hearst men claim a total of 187 and concede the antis 43. The other 169 delegates are not known.

In the same precincts the anti-Hearst leaders say they surely have 120 delegates, concede to Hearst's following 49 votes and say they have heard nothing from the other precincts. Of the 30 precincts outside of Minneapolis, Minnetonka Beach alone had reported at midnight. The Hearst men say they captured the single delegate from that precinct. The anti-Hearst men had no report from the precinct.

There are several contests for the county convention to settle. By a vote of 28 to 17 F. D. Larrabee, a candidate for delegate-at-large on the Hearst ticket, defeated F. G. Winston on the anti-Hearst slate for a similar position for delegate to the county convention from a precinct in the Fourth ward. It is now claimed that Larrabee is not a resident of the ward, having rented his house and moved to a hotel in the Fifth ward more than a year ago. His right to a seat will be contested in the convention. In the Second precinct of the Fourth ward, the four delegates chosen were instructed for Charles A. Towne for president.

Excitement during the primaries was at fever heat, and it is reported that several personal encounters occurred at the polling places. Not in the history of Minneapolis have Democratic primaries been so largely attended or so keen an interest displayed as in last night's primaries.

The anti-Hearst precinct tickets each bore the names of John Lind, J. G. Winston and Elijah Barton as delegates to the national convention, Mr. Lind being slated for delegate-at-large, and the others as delegates from the Fifth congressional district. The Hearst tickets had at the head of each ticket the words "For Hearst."

THREE CHILDREN DEAD.

Floodwood Widow's Case a Pathetic One.

When Dr. Frederick Patton, the county health officer, reached Floodwood, last Monday, in response to a call to investigate a diphtheria epidemic there, he found a condition of affairs in the family of a poor widow, which he describes as one of the most touching things that he has run across in his experience.

In his report to the board of county commissioners, yesterday, Dr. Patton says that he was first notified of a diphtheria epidemic at Floodwood, June 4, but as he was not able to get up there until June 6, he sent word to Dr. Triplett, a local physician, to use every precaution in the way of a quarantine to prevent a spread of the disease. Anti-toxin was also sent to be used in the family where diphtheria existed.

The disease was confined to the family of Mrs. Malachi Koski, who lives in 52-20-15, about seven miles from Floodwood. Her husband died in the Red Cross hospital sometime ago. One of the children died May 31 last, of diphtheria, although it was not known then what the disease was. The body was brought to Floodwood on the shoulders of two men and a public funeral was held. Since that time two otner children in the same family have died of diphtheria and the fourth is likely to die.

Dr. Patton says that the Koski home is almost inaccessible, half the distance to it being traversed through bogs and swamps with the water coming to a person's shoe tops and some times as high as the hips.

He says that every precaution possible has been taken to prevent a spread of the disease and the local health authorities at Floodwood are co-operating with the county authorities.

OPEN RICH LANDS

Within Few Weeks Public Will Get Enormous Acreage.

New System to Be Followed In Disposing of Them.

Within the next few weeks the government will throw open to homesteaders valuable tracts of lands, aggregating about 2,000,000 acres. They embrace rich forest sections and fertile agricultural areas, and will furnish homes, it is estimated, for 11,600 families of five persons each, or 58,000 individuals. It will be possible to purchase an 160-acre tract of timber or farming land for less money than is usually charged for a 50-foot lot in a suburban boom town.

The prospective homes for the multitude of 58,000 individuals are scattered through the state of Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Oregon. Some will be disposed of at a straight price per acre, with a lottery feature to determine choice of sites, while many of the reservations will go under the hammer to the highest bidders.

Still others, as in the case of the Pigeon River, Bois Fort, Deer Creek, White Oak Point, Chippewa of the Mississippi and Winnibigoshish reservations, in Northern Minnesota, will go to actual settlers only, under the provisions of the homestead law, upon the payment of $1.25 for each acre, such payment to be made in five equal installments, and title cannot be perfected until proof of occupancy for five years is given. The opening of these lands will be the first, the date for the event having been fixed as June 15, to occur at Cass Lake.

All corporations and land-grabbing syndicates are to be barred from this bargain counter sale of public lands, there being a strict limit of 160 acres for each applicant, with a forfeiture provision for those caught selling out to capitalists or corporations.

The opening of these Northwestern lands will be accompanied by many new features. In the first place they will go at higher prices than have prevailed at any previous sale or opening. For years the government has been disposing of valuable tracts of timber, mineral and agricultural lands at nominal rates. Some have gone as cheap as $1.25 an acre, without any provision for actual settlement, as is the case with ertain of the Minnesota lands to be opened this month. The most paid for vast areas of timber, coal and mineral lands has been $2.50 an acre. Many millions of acres of land have been disposed of at these ridiculous prices. In his last annual report Commissioner of Public Lands Hermann estimated that the government had lost $10,000,000 on forest lands alone.

The protest against giving away public lands for a mere song apparently stirred the last session of congress into increasing prices. The 2,000,000 acres of lands to be awarded within the next few months will, with few exceptions, bring $4 an acre, or will not be sold.

Another unusual feature about the coming sale is that the property is not, strictly speaking, public land. It belongs to the Indians, and is being sold for their account by the government. Most of such land openings of the past, however, have been on reservations that formerly belonged to the red man, the government buying it up in order to provide homes for the public. The custom has been for the government to buy the land outright from the Indians and then turn it over to the homeseekers, depending on being reimbursed from the proceeds of the sales. This object has been almost invariably defeated however by the passage of "free home laws" by congress. In a great many instances congress has passed acts relieving settlers from the payment of balances on their claims, and as the government was the only loser, there was no one to offer serious objection.

But with the tracts that are about to be opened a different course has been pursued. As before stated, the lands belong to the Indan tribes and Uncle Sam is merely acting as their agent. Any proposition that may be made to congress to adopt free home laws will be met with the statement that the property belongs to the Indians and not to the government, and that it cannot be given away. This will insure the full payment on every claim, or its forefeiture to the government.

The Indians whose land is to be sold in this fashion will not be crowded entirely off their reservation. The government has seen to it that a tract has been reserved for every member of each tribe. The funds derived from the sales will be kept in the treasury to the credit of the Indians and will be doled out in regular annuities.

The lands referred to are located as follows: Red Lake reservation of 256,000 acres, and minor reservation lands of 248,000 acres, in Minnesota; Rosebud reservation of 382,000 acres, in North Dakota; Crow reservation of 1,115,000 acres, in Montana; Grande Ronde reservation of 27,000 acres, in Oregon.

The auction sale of the Red Lake land begins on Monday, June 20, on the ground, and will continue until the last acre has been disposed of. The headquarters for the sale will be at Thief River Falls. Registration for the Rosebud lands begins July 5 and ends July 23. Applicants may file their claims at any of a half dozen towns in South Dakota. The drawing will begin on July 28. Bids for the Grande Ronde lands will be opened Aug. 8.

The lands on the Red Lake reservation will be sold at public auction. A limit of $4 an acre has been fixed by congress, and as much of the area is made up of timber lands, it is thought that no difficulty will be experienced in getting the minimum amount. Many fine forests that were bought from the government a few years ago at the rate of $2.50 an acre, are now worth from $15 to $100 an acre.

The Rosebud agency will be alloted on the same plan as was followed when Oklahoma was opened up for settlement by a lottery.

It will be six or eight months before the Crow reservation is opened to settlement. The government agents still have a good deal of survey work to do there in alloting lands to the Indians. When everything is in readiness the land will be disposed of under conditions that apply on the Rosebud agency. The Devil's Lake reservation lands will be disposed of on the same plan also.

A different method will be followed in connection with the Grand Ronde opening. That porperty is to go to the highest bidder, congress having specified that it must bring at least $1 an acre or there shall be no sale. This land is of much less value than that to be opened in Minnesota.

SEEKS A "BIBLE WIFE."

Iowan Appeals to Minister as Matchmaker.

Des Moines, June 8.—Desirous of finding a "Bible wife, educated and propertued,' having in her possession the recommendation of a preacher, Albert Monroe Graves, of Mason City, has tried to use the preachers of Iowa as matrimonial agents. Graves says it was a custom of old for men to secure their wives through the preachers, and he believes that this mthod of mating should be revived. One of his letters, received by Rev. Frank Loveland, pastor of the Methodist church at Mason City, is as follows:

Mature men used to seek wives through ministers. Please keep my enclosed credentials for reference, and with my enclosed samp place me in communication with a youngish, educated, propertied Christian woman. I take this means of securing a Bible wife.

A NEW PRINCIPLE IN MEDICAL SCIENCE.

For years it has been the practice of medical men to treat patients suffering from piles by local, external applications. These treatments give but temporary relief, but have never affected a positive cure.

After months of research and study, accompanied by actual experience with various patients, Dr. C. A. Perrin arrived at a positive conclusion as to the exact action of the various parts of the bowel system, under different conditions, and when subjected to various prescriptions.

He finally prepared that wonderful internal remedy known as DR. PERRIN'S PILE SPECIFIC, which is put up in bottles, retailing at all reliable drug stores for $1.00 each. This internal remedy has been on the market for the past ten years, and in all of that time there has been but three cases where a positive cure has not Been effected.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is sold under a positive guarantee by the druggist making the sale, to refund the full purchase price, providing the remedy fails to cure. This is the absolute proof of its merit. Any man or woman who suffers from blind, bleeding, itching or internal piles can try this internal remedy with the absolute certainty that it will cost nothing unless it cures. Here is what one sufferer says of this wonderful remedy:

Dr. C. A. Perrin, Helena, Mont.—I wish to thank you for the cure your wonderful medicine has done for me. I had the piles some five years, and under the advice of a doctor had them removed by the knife and felt free for awhile, but they returned and I at once got a bottle of your Perrin's Pile Specific and one bottle has entirely cured me, and I am as good as I ever was.
Yours truly,
JACK SULLIVAN, Chicago.

TENTACLES TIGHT

Armour Car Lines Well Fastened on Railroads of Country.

Copy of Its Contract With Pere Marquette Railroad.

The hearing in Chicago last week before the Interstate Commerce commission which aimed to bring out evidence of extortion and discrimination against railroads in the state of Michigan in the matter of carrying fruit in refrigerator cars of the Armour refrigerator line, has excited much interest among shippers.

It appears that the Armour people, wherever they are able, and which appears natural enough, insist on exclusive operation of their cars over the railroads where they have contracts, and charge exorbitant rates for the service. The evil is said to exist nearly all over the United States, save mostly in the southwestern quarter of the country, where there is not so much trouble. Ohio is exempt, of the central states, and Wisconsin has not yet been added to the list, as it is not much of a fruit state up to this time.

Ohio, however, is probably the last state in the country where any railroad extortion would be practised, as that state is generally noted for being unfriendly, at least not liberal, to railroads, and lines that operate within that state are exceedingly careful about their actions. It is a notorious fact that nearly every damage suit brought against railroads which may have a portion of their right-of-way within the Buckeye state is brought in the state of Ohio to get advantage of the stringent Ohio laws.

E. M. Ferguson, of this city, was a leading witness and says that the exclusive contract between the Armour Car Lines and the Pere Marquette railroad company is, he believes, the first of the kind to have ever been brought to the light for the benefit of the public eye. Mr. Ferguson contends that it is not exclusively the interest of the commission men who pay the charges on the fruit cars that is at stake, but more particularly the interest of the public which eventually "pays the freight." He says copies of the contract will be printed and distributed to all interested in the Western Fruit Jobbers' association and that every effort will be made to make the agitation general and get a hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission which will be general in its scope and results.

As an instance of the difficulty, Mr. Ferguson cites the futile efforts of anyone who applies to a railroad office and asks for a rate on fruit from, for instance, Arkansas. He says in substance:

"Anyone asking for such a rate will be told by the railroad people that it is third class, and they will look it up accordingly. But the rate they give you will not include the charge for the refrigerator car, and unless the applicant knows of this he will find the charges very much at variance with the figures the railroad people may quote. For instance, if the person knows there will be an extra cost for the refrigerator car, he asks, and is told that the office does not know, but will find out. The office then has to enter into correspondence with some other headquarters to learn what the cost will be and after quizzing for three or four days by wire or mail, may be able to quote a price.

"On a refrigerator car from Arkansas, say the charge is $81, which the Armour people charge. Then there is the freight rate, also, which must be paid by whomsoever hires the car. Out of the $81 which Armour charges, $20 may be estimated as a legitimate cost for icing, although it is a high estimate. Then the railroad company pays the Armour people three quarters of a cent per mile hauled on each and every one of the Armour cars, whether loaded or empty.

"The shippers want to get a rate that will be a straight rate for carrying fruit in refrigerator cars, at least a rate that will include everything but icing. The Armour cars are by no means the only fruit cars in the country, and by no means the best. The Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul have their own fruit cars which are vastly superior to the Armour cars. The trouble is they cannot be had to bring fruit in from points off those companies' lines, as they are too valuable to be permitted away from the home territory.

"The Pere Marquette road, for instance, in the exclusive use of Armour cars, exempt nearly excepting Grand Rapids, the reason that at the time the contract was made other lines were competing with it into Grand Rapids that did not use Armour cars.

"The railroad company, by the very terms of the contract, agrees to do the icing itself and at a maximum price of $2 per ton delivered in the bunkers of the cars, and as the testimony given at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission developed the fact that the refrigerator car would, according to the conditions of the weather, consume from one, one and a half to two tons of ice daily, the enormous profits would figure for instance from Tennessee to Chicago and the refrigerator charge would be from $80 to $84, time in transit about two days.

"It must be remembered that these car line contracts are not confined to Michigan alone. They cover a greater part of the United States, all of the southwestern states, California, all the Rocky mopntain states, all of the Gulf states and many of the Northern and Central states. The practice has extended rapidly within the last few years and millions and millions of dollars are being yearly extracted from the public under the operation of these secret and unlawful contracts.

"It is not the necessity for these cars nor the service they perform that induces these contracts. It is the opportunity for despolling the public that looms up before the railroad officials and induces them to enter into these unholy agreements with the car line company, or perhaps more properly speaking, creats within their own corporation a private car line company which shall be a private corporation not amendable to the laws governing common carriers, that they may be able to make these contracts. That the railroad company is doubly interested and equally benefited with the car line company, cannot be questioned as it would be absolutely impossible for any private car line company to induce or force such contracts with any common carrier. Their operation is to avoid the restraint of the Elkins law and to delegate to a private corporation, or perhaps, more properly speaking, a subsidiary private corporation to do that which it would be unlawful for the railroad company to do themselves."

"This agreement, made and executed in duplicate this 23rd day of December, A. D. 1902, by and between Armour Car Lines, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of New Jersey, hereinafter known as "The Car Line," party of the first part, and the Pere Marquette Railroad company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of Michigan, hereinafter known as the "Pere Marquette," party of the second part.

"Witnesseth: That for and in consideration of the sum of one ($1) dollar, by each of the parties hereto to the other in hand paid, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and in further consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter set forth to be kept and performed by each of the parties hereto, it is hereby agreed as follows:

"1. That the Car Line agrees to furnish to the Pere Marquette at some point or points on the Pere Marquette lines, properly constructed fruit cars lettered "Fruit Growers' Express," "Kansas City Fruit Growers' Express," "Continental Fruit Express" Express," or "Continental Fruit Express" sufficient in number and furnished in such order as to carry with reasonable despatch, the fruit which the Pere Marquette shall be tendered by the shippers during the life of this contract; and the Car Line also agrees to keep said cars properly iced and under refrigeration so as to protect fruit in carloads while in transit over the lines of the Pere Marquette and to destination.

"2. The Pere Marquette agrees and obligates itself to use the Car Line's equipment exclusively in the movement of fruits under refrigeration from points on its leased and operated lines, except the Detroit and Lake Erie railroad in Canada, during the term of this contract —excepting from Grand Rapids, Mich., and excepting on the line of the Pere Marquette, and to Milwaukee, Wis., and Manitowoc, Wis., for which shippers may request Pere Marquette system refrigerators; and with the further exception that such Pere Marquette system refrigerators as are in suitable condition, as the Pere Marquette may elect, shall be used in the handling of said fruits, when the same are destined to points beyond the Pere Marquette railroad; but in that event, the Car Line's regular refrigeration charge, as indicated hereinafter, is to be applied, and the shipments iced and handled under the supervision of the Car Line.

"3. The Car Line agrees to erect icing platforms at Grand Rapids and St. Joseph, Mich., and provide other convenient facilities for the proper icing of cars used in the business referred to.

"4. The Car Line's charges to be made for superintending, loading, furnishing refrigeration, and handling the business generally, under the supervision in any cars used for the same, not to exceed on peaches and plums the rates shown in the Car Line's tariff No. 296, in effect Aug. 1, 1902, hereto attached and made a part hereof, and not to exceed on green apples, green pears and grapes, the rates shown in Car Line's tariff No. 297, in effect Aug. 1, 1902, hereto attached and made a part hereof. It being understood and agreed that the Car Line's charges from Pere Marquette stations in Michigan shall in no case exceed charges made by the Car Line for refrigerating similar fruits from stations also situated on the lines of other roads in Michigan. The Car Line's charges referred to shall be billed as advance charges on each carload, and shall be paid to the Car Line by the accounting department of the Pere Marquette monthly, it being understood that in event property is refused and sold at destination through no fault on the part of the railroad companies interested, or the Car Line, that the Car Line will join the railroad companies in pro rating on a revenue basis any deficit between the amount of transportation charges and proceeds of sale that may exist. In case consignees refuse to pay the refrigerating charges and the agent at destination is unable to collect the same, the railroad shall be reimbursed for the amounts advanced to the Car Line.

"5. The Pere Marquette shall pay the Car Line three-quarters (¾) of 1 cent per mile run by each car of the Car Line used in said refrigerator service, both loaded and empty, except on such cars as may be left over at the end of the season in shipping districts and hauled empty to connections, as provided for in the last sentence of this paragraph, while in service upon the lines of the Pere Marquette, and furnish free transportation over its lines for the use of representatives of the Car Line engaged in looking after the fruit movement referred to, incuding permits to ride on freight trains, on the condition, however, that the Car Line shall (and it hereby agrees to) indemnify, protect and save the railroad harmless from any loss, damage or expense on account of any claim against the railroad growing out of any injury sustained or claimed to have been sustained, either in person or property, by any employe or agent of the Car Line receiving such free transportation over the lines of the railroad under the provision of this contract, whether or not such injury is due to the negligence of the Pere Marquette or its employes. And the Pere Marquette also agrees to instruct its agents to obtain by wire from the officers of the Pere Marquette such information as may be requested by the Car Line's representatives. The Pere Marquette further agrees to deliver promptly any cars left over at the close of the season to such connections as are indicated by the Car Line, provided the Car Line shall not ask the Pere Marquette to haul its cars empty farther than the junction point at which the cars were received.

"6. The Pere Marquette agrees to sell the Car Line such quantity of ice at Shelby, Ionia, Ludington and Saginaw as the Pere Marquette can reasonably spare, from time to time, if required by the Car Line, on basis of not to exceed two ($2.00) dollars per ton in bunkers of cars.

"7. The Car Line agrees to assume all liability for and promptly adjust and pay, and indemnify and save the Pere Marquette harmless from claims arising from any failure on its part to properly ice and keep iced said refrigerator cars furnished and supplied by it as aforesaid to the Pere Marquette.

"8. This contract to become operative the date of its execution and terminate November 1st, 1905.

"In witness whereof the said parties hereto have caused this contract to be executed in duplicate by their proper officers the day and year first above written."

VIEWS OF GORMAN

On Platform Expected to Prevail at St. Louis Convention.

Tariff and Combine Questions Considered as Leading Issues.

New York, June 8.—The Herald says: Senator Gorman's statement that he is more interested in the platform and issues than in candidates, and ex-Lieutenant-Governor William F. Sheehan's belief that the platform adopted at St. Louis will be conservative and outspoken, show a determination on the part of the leaders of the Democracy to make no mistake this time in the presentation of principles. More than half of the forty-five states have held Democratic conventions, and likewise a majority of the territories.

An examination of the platforms adopted by these conventions clearly show that the conservatives will no doubt make the national platform, but they may be influenced to a greater or less degree by the nature of the demands made by the radicals and by the strength of the Bryan and Hearst forces in the convention.

In order to ascertain the tendency of the conservative element it is best to take the platforms adopted by several of the representative states in the East, because the Democrats in the South and Middle West are looking to the conservatives in furnishing the issues, the candidates and the funds. They did all this themselves in 1896 and 1900, and twice has been enough for them.

The platforms that will be of prime importance in making up the St. Louis declaration will be those of New York, Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, but chiefly New York and Maryland. The first because Judge Parker comes from New York, and Maryland because Senator Gorman is recognized as the most experienced Democrat in public life, is the leader of his party in congress, and is the man to whom nearly all the state leaders are looking to be chairman of the national committee.

The New York platform had in it several things which appealed to the conservative Democrats, although it was severely criticized for some things, which if they were inserted in the national platform, in the opinion of many members of congress, would contribute directly to Republican success. On the subject of tariff the New York platform was conservative, but not sufficiently explicit in one direction and too explicit in another. It favored a "reasonable revision of the tariff," and singled out raw materials for another elaborate statement as to where duties should be reduced. This caused loud objections from the Southern states, who said "free raw materials" was a cry set up by the campaign managers of 1892 for the purpose of favoring the manufacturers of New England, the American owners of Cuba, or the sugar combine, and the American owners of Canadian coal mines and timber lands. This was at once an objection to this clause in the platform, which began in Texas, where Senators Bailey and Culberson entered their protest.

Senator Gorman had these objections in mind when he framed the Maryland platform on the tariff. He pledges his state to a revision of the tariff "in a conservative spirit of fairness to all interests." He promised duly to regard labor and capital, to promote their healthy growth and to guard against inflicting injury upon established industries by abrupt, unjust and radical measures. At the same time odious monopoly might expect reduction of the excessive rates under which they were extorting oppressive tribute from the people.

The West Virginia platform, which copied the New York platform, without its contradictions and ambiguities, favored a reasonable reduction of the tariff without making any declaration in favor of free raw material, which would have been a blow to West Virginia coal.

New Jersey declared for a revision of the tariff, so conducted that commerce may not suffer from unjust discrimination and manufacturers may have more favorable opportunities to compete with the markets of the world.

Pennsylvania favored an immediate, but careful and prudent revision of the tariff, correcting its inequalities and reducing the duties on free raw materials wherever the duties burden the home manufacturer. It should be revised so as to lessen the cost of the necessaries of life and placing the burden on the luxuries, but primarily the duties collected should be for revenue only.

Scarcely a state convention has been held that has not favored the revision of the tariff. But so far as New York and Pennsylvania have been the only ones to single out raw materials. Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina and Wisconsin have all taken the position that the tariff should be reduced. It is noticed, however, that in a majority of the platforms there is very little difference between the Democrats and Republicans.

The California platform reads very much like a paragraph from one of President Roosevelt's speeches made in the fall of 1902, in which he said that the Republican party was not wedded to any schedules and that he did not favor revision, which would unsettle business, but would favor revision when it became necessary. The California platform admits that the only difference between the Democrats and the Republicans is the degree of protection which is to be afforded, and it only favors such protection as will not foster monopolies.

The fact that manufacturers whose products are protected are selling some of their goods abroad more cheaply than at home has attracted the attention of the Democratic issue makers, and many of the state platforms favor the abolition of duties on all articles which are sold abroad more cheaply than at home. This would result in the removal of the duty on steel rails, typewriters, agricultural implements and hundreds of articles that are made in the United States and protected by 60 per cent duty.

There is little doubt that this idea will prevail in St. Louis.

Mr. Bryan, in the Nebraska platform, would go further than anybody else in lowering the tariff. On raw material and manufactured product alike, he would cut the duty down to a mere revenue basis. He would have no protection about it, and would use tariff revision for destroying "the predatory trusts."

Most of the platforms regard the tariff and combine question as being intimately connected. It must be admitted, after an examination of the various state platforms, that the New York declaration did not "set the pace" as was expected. It merely declared opposition to "trusts and combinations that oppress the people and stifle healthy competition." No other state has been so guarded in its declarations on the combine question, and it has remained for Senator Gorman to put forth a declaration which semes to have met favor with the conservatives.

The Maryland platform says that these illegal combinations which, under the Republican tariff, have grown so great, and which in unlawful restraint of trade have crushed honest competition, must be stripped of the power which they have so mercilessly used. Pennsylvania would try to solve the question by rigid regulation, and if that failed would try ruthless destruction. The Georgia platform denounces the Republicans for being responsible for the combines, but proposes no remedy but driving the Republicans out of power.

New Jersey declared in favor of more legislation against the combines, also a constitutional amendment, revocation of charters, a revision of the duties on all articles made by combines, and would have it made a criminal offense for any one to attempt to monopolize the necessities of life.

Iowa Democrats recognized the combine question as the paramount issue, and favored the abolition of the tariff on all articles produced by the combines. Wisconsin went on record as in favor of the abolition of the tariff on all combine made articles. Washington demanded the destruction of the combines without prescribing the means.

On the subject of Rooseveltism, or "one-man power," other state conventions have spoken almost as one body. They all put the issue of the president to the front. New York spoke in favor of a government of law, not of men, against any usurpation of legislative functions by the executive. This was a reference to the service pension order. It also condemned "unsteady national policies and a restless spirit of adventure, which engenders alarm and checks commercial growth."

Extravagance under the administrations of McKinley and Roosevelt is also attracting attention. This furnishes most of the ammunition of Senator Gorman's platform. He charges that fraud and corruption have been permitted to go unchecked and unpunished under Roosevelt; that public expenditures have been kept at war figures, and that the system has gone beyond the control of the party. A system of favor to great banks and financial institutions has grown up, and the only remedy is for the people to "turn the rascals out." Great stress is laid on this feature of the campaign in the platforms of New York, Tennessee, Georgia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, West Virginia and other states.

miles west of Parachute, early today, two masked men crawled over the tender of the engine. They pointed revolvers at the head of Engineer Allison and his fireman and demanded that the train be stopped. Three men were waiting on the tender, and as the train stopped they quickly ran back and uncoupled the express and baggage cars. These cars, with the engine, were run two miles further west.

The members of the train crew were ordered to remain with the passenger coaches on threat of being shot. When the point selected for the dynamiting of the express car was reached, the engineer and fireman were ordered down. One of the robbers covered them with two revolvers. The remainder of the gang went to the express car.

Messenger M. D. Shea, of this city, refused to open the car upon demand, and piled the baggage in front of the door.

The robbers thereupon placed a stick of dynamite at the door, which was blown away. Half a dozen trunks piled up against it were demolished, and their contents scattered over the car. The iron combination safe was the only one in the car. The robbers showed that they were conversant with conditions on the road, for they did not even demand the messenger to open the safe. They knew that he did not have the combination. This safe can only be opened in Denver and in Salt Lake City. A stick of dynamite was placed against the lock of the safe. Just at this point Brakeman Shellenbarger, who had been ordered to remain with the passenger coaches, two miles behind, came running up the track carrying a lantern. One of the robbers shot him. He was wounded in the leg and is now in a hospital at Grand Junction.

When the robbers saw that the train crew were coming they fled to the mountains. One of them as he jumped from the express car grabbed one sealed bag which had been blown out of the safe. This is the only plunder which was taken.

The engineer and the others who had been under the aim of the robbers, went to the aid of Shellenbarger, who had fallen where he was shot.

After the hold-up the engine, baggage and express cars backed to Parachute, where the alarm was given.

The scene of the robbery was but 700 yards from the Grand river, and it is believed the robbers had a boat hidden in the Grand and that they used this to cross the river, destroying it after they had crossed.

J. Edson, manager of the Denver & Rio Grande railway, who was on the train that was robbed, sent a report of the robbery to the general offices here in which he said:

"Baggage car dynamited and very badly damaged. Robbers got nothing of value. Twelve or fifteen pieces of baggage quite badly damaged. The baggage was transferred to mail car and went forward on same train."

IN MORE TROUBLE.

Matt Thompson Again Gets Into Court.

Matt Thompson, the liquor dealer, who was fined yesterday for keeping his place of business open on Sunday, is in trouble again.

He was arrigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of assault. A Finlander claimed to have left $40 with Thompson for safekeeping, and he alleges that when he returned to get the money Thompson assaulted him and threw him out of the saloon.

Assistant City Attorney McKeen had charge of the prosecution and M. H. McMahon defended the prisoner. Several witnesses were placed on the stand, and while their testimony in regard to the alleged assault was somewhat conflicting, Judge Windom decided that the evidence warranted a conviction.

The attorney for the defense requested a stay of sentence, pending a motion for a new trial, and it was granted.

FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

H. G. Fisk Arrested For Theft of $60.

Henry G. Fisk was brought in yesterday afternoon from Scanlon by Deputy Sheriff Levy on the charge of embezzling $60 from J. D. Miller.

It is claimed that Fisk sold 1000 shares of St. Paul & Colorado Milling & Mining company's stock for $100 and failed to turn over the $60, which remained after his commission had been taken out.

The transaction is alleged to have occurred on March 30, and Fisk is claimed to have immediately left Duluth for parts unknown. He was located at Scanlon yesterday and brought back to Duluth.

He was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree and pleaded not guilty. His preliminary hearing will be held this afternoon. His bond was fixed at $250.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentonville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free. Regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new addresses.

SHOULD OPEN THEIR EYES.

The Herald has frequently made reference to the system of railroad rebates which permits the trusts and big corporations to throttle competition and tax the entire population for the benefit of themselves. It is this system of rebates that makes such a wide margin between the price of meat on the hoof and meat on the block and places the retail dealer at the mercy of the packers' trust. It is this system that makes Duluth people pay excessive prices for all kinds of produce and fruits, while in many agricultural sections these things rot on the ground for want of a market.

In no other thing is the viciousness of the rebate system more pronounced than in the handling of fruit. The Herald today publishes a contract between the Pere Marquette railroad and the Armour Car Line company, showing how the railroads assist this avaricious corporation in robbing the people of the United States. These contracts are made with railroads covering three-fourths of the territory of the entire country. They enable the Armour Car Line company not only to beat down the price of the producer, but to control the price paid by the consumer and to monopolize the entire business and kill all competition—in any territory it may desire.

If anything ever does open the eyes of the American people to the enormity of the fraud that is practiced upon them by this railroad favoritism, the following list of rebates paid to Armour & Co. on fruits alone ought to do it:

Every box of California oranges, 20c per box.

Every 24-quart case of Southern berries, 15c per case.

Every small basket of grapes from the state of Michigan, nearly 2c per basket.

Every bushel of peaches from the state of Michigan, about 15c per bushel.

Every 4-basket crate of tomatoes or vegetables from the Southern states, 9c per crate.

Every crate of canteloupes from the West or Southwest, about 25c per crate.

Every box of California peaches, 10c to 12c per box.

There are laws to punish the petty criminal who steals a few pennies, but for this wholesale thievery from all the people of the nation there appears at present to be no relief. This railroad rebate system is every bit as illegal and immoral as grand larceny and yet it is practiced with impunity almost universally by the railroads in the interests of the different trusts. It is this railroad favoritism alone that gives some of them their hold upon the country and their power to crush all competition and yet the authorities at Washington sit supinely by and permit it to be practiced. It is this system of robbery that absorbs the surplus wealth of the nation, that a few multi-millionaires may add to their enormous fortunes and which causes our "merry prosperity" to disappear at frequently recurring periods. It is the vital question of the present day and yet it is doubtful if either of the great political parties will undertake to do anything that will be effective in preventing this wholesale public robbery in the future. It may be definitely stated, also, that nothing whatever will be done to relieve the people of this burden if the party of Roosevelt and Knox is returned to power. Its success too much depends upon the contributions of those men who gain their wealth by the robbery of the people through the railroad rebate system.

Just as the Republicin party of Minnesota is too closely bound up with the pine land and other thieves, so the Republican party of the nation, and President Roosevelt as well, are bound and hampered by the men who steal the people's wealth through the system of favoritism in rates practiced by railroad companies.

BE POLITE.

If there were fewer rude people there would be less incivility among public servants. New York is periodically perturbed over the brusqueness and brutality of street railway employes. But, as the New York World recently pointed out, they have many ill-mannered and silly people to contend with and it is no wonder that they become hardened and brazen in manner. Since the strike-breakers left town Duluth is rarely troubled because of impolite or offensive traction employes. Although there are exceptions, they are a civil class of men and really patient and pleasant under many difficulties and provocations.

It is worth while to practice politeness. It makes better both the one who practices and the one practiced upon. Many people are gruff and boorish only because, from lack of cultivation, they really do not know how to be polite. It is time for these to begin to learn. There is nothing that so offends a sensitive person as boorishness or undue brusqueness in those he is compelled to meet. If everybody were polite there would be a drop in the percentage of quarrels. True politeness does not mean elegance and sauvity alone. It means a regard for the feelings and rights of others. A man may be so tauntingly polite and sarcastically pleasant that he incites to rebellion. That is not true politeness, but even rose-colored duplicity and courtly deceit are better than sincere rudeness and boorishness.

The man who thinks himself too busy to make a civil and pleasant reply is making a big mistake. If he is too busy to do right he ought to hire help, because it is only a matter of time when he will not be so busy. Don't be rude. It does not pay.

WHERE ANARCHY REIGNS.

Whoever was responsible for the beginning of the recent trouble in Colorado and the dastardly crime that hurled a dozen miners into eternity, it is now plain to be seen that both the Mine Owners' association and the Citizens' alliance, probably a creature of the mine owners, are both organized for the promulgation and spread of anarchy.

These two associations, by threats of hanging and death, have compelled the duly elected and qualified officials of the district to resign their offices. They have already deported 300 union miners from the district and forbidden them to return under pain of death. They have demolished and taken charge of buildings belonging to the union. They have established a censorship over the local press and broken its liberty and in all probability they also see to it that lying reports are sent out by telegraph so that public censure will fall upon the union men.

Since the awful explosion at the Cripple Creek depot, union officials have denied any knowledge of the crime and express their intention of doing all in their power to hunt out the perpetrators and bring them to justice. For their own welfare and the cause of unionism they should do nothing less, and they should see that the guilty parties are brought to book whether they are union men or not.

Desperate diseases sometimes require desperate remedies, but there never was a situation of lawlessness so desperate that more lawlessness was necessary to cure it. Lynching might have been justifiable at times in communities where there was no civil law, but in a regularly organized commonwealth, with a full complement of officials, unlawful violence would seem to be entirely unnecessary. If the state authorities are too weak and incompetent to restore and maintain order then there is the federal authority to be appealed to, and it would seem that considering the apparent incapacity of the state government and the further fact that the president has already been asked by union miners to protect them in their right to remain in their own homes, the president would be entirely justified in lending a hand and placing the district under martial law.

A MERITORIOUS ORDINANCE.

Probably at the instigation of the chief of police, Alderman Haven has introduced an ordinance before the city council prohibiting the carrying of concealed weapons, including slingshots, brass knuckles, billies, revolvers, pistols, etc. The ordinance provides a maxim penalty of $100 or 90 days in jail, and that is little enough.

The ordinance is a meritorious one and no doubt it will meet the approval of the entire council. Many crimes might be prevented if this ordinance is passed and rigidly enforced. The theory that it is necessary to carry some weapon is fallacious. The man who does not seek trouble rarely finds it. There are a lot of tough cowards in every city who constantly go armed in anticipation of trouble which they usually create themselves and if these were deprived of the privilege of carrying such weapons they would be as meek as doves. Furthermore, it would have a tendency to prevent many petty hold-ups and robberies.

Of course there will be difficulty in enforcing such an ordinance strictly, but its passage will have a tendency to free the city from the element that is most dangerous in the community. There will be few toughs likely to carry concealed weapons when they learn that the practice is liable at any time to cost them a heavy fine or a term in jail.

SLAG FOR PAVEMENTS.

It may be of interest to Duluth citizens to know that slag from a pig iron furnace makes an excellent paving material. The experiment of paving with slag is already being tried in West Duluth, but the use of slag as a paving material is neither new nor experimental. It is recognized by the engineering profession as equal to stone in concrete, and superior to stone when used without cement for street paving. Through the columns of the Municipal Journal and Engineer, Howard H. Gross, of Chicago, claims that its use extends over 300 years in Europe, 150 years in Pennsylvania, and nearly forty years in Chicago.

Slag is a by-product in the manufacture of steel and iron. It is a combination of the fluxing stone and the foreign substance that comes from the mines mixed with iron ore. It is melted with the iron and then separated. It is grayish in color and resembles stone. Slag is made into Portland cement, brick, mineral wool, and used for concrete, ballast and foundations for street paving.

What is desired in a street foundation is permanency, says Mr. Gross. Material that will stay where you put it and will form a strong and enduring bond. Too much emphasis cannot be put upon what "bond" means in a macadam pavement; it is the holding of all the material composing the pavement immovable in place. A material that cannot be bonded or held in place is worthless for paving. Other things being equal, the value of a foundation material increases directly as its bonding qualities increase. For this reason a Portland cement concrete is better than a natural cement concrete, and likewise slag, which bonds like cement, is better than limestone, which bonds like lime mortar. The slag bond is three times stronger than the limestone bond.

In crushed stone and slag, broken into pieces from two to four inches, there is about 40 per cent of voids, or open spaces. These are supposed to be taken out by filling and rolling. The more the material rolls down or compresses under the steam roller the less "filler" is required, and vice versa. Slag compresses a little more than stone, but it requires less filler; the one offsets the other.

A special committee of the Chicago city council, appointed Oct. 19, 1903, to investigate the cost of paving, reports that limestone macadam had increased in price in three years 46 per cent, while in the same time slag macadam had increased but 26 per cent. Also, that a 14½-inch slag macadam costs 4 cents less per square yard than a 12-inch limestone macadam. Experience shows that a 14½-inch slag macadam is 40 per cent better and more lasting than a 12-inch limestone macadam.

It is probable that the Zenith Furnace company will find a market for most of its slag, but if it is cheaper and better than stone it would seem to be good policy for the city of Duluth to use as much slag as possible in the improvement of residence streets. Perhaps, however, in Duluth, where there is plenty of stone, macadam might be as cheap as slag pavement.

THE FIELD SURVEY

A young German in Martin county having recently married his aunt, the possessor of nine children, it has been suggested that a portion of the hero fund be distributed. It might be appropriate to reward the widow for adding another child to her family, but the fact remains that a German woman with nine children is the possessor of no small capital, especially if they reside on a farm. The young man who is able to marry into a family like that, if he is a good manager, is in luck. He adds, at least calculation, $9000 to his visible assets the moment the marriage knot is tied. It is one thing where parents meet all the expense of bringing up children and another thing where the children earn not only their own living, but something for the parents besides.

Instead of tearing up macadam pavements for the purpose of laying a sewer system, the city engineer of Rockford, Ill, hit upon the happy expedient of laying a 27-inch sewer pipe between the curb and the walk. But then Rockford is one of those old fogy towns where people probably object to having their pavements destroyed as soon as they are laid.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS.

As between Roosevelt and Cleveland, for example, Republicans might have a strong party preference; but none would expect ruin to business or disaster to national credit from the defeat of his own candidate. These are plain facts. We believe in recognizing them.

So says the Minneapolis Tribune, in explaining why it hopes for no compromise candidate at the Democratic national convention. Then it was not Cleveland's former administration that brought on the panic of 1893 and ruined the country?

The editor of the Chisholm Herald had some thoughts the other day and this is the result:

> And now the press is saying nice things about Senator Quay, who died a few days ago; and it could not say hard enough things about him when living. How is this? Does death obliterate all the bad in a man and make him good? Was it true what the papers told us of him, his ways, his actions and means used to keep himself in power? Or was it all lies? If it was true then, it is true now. If it was true that he used his great power and influence to enrich himself and his friends at the expense of the people he should be condemned for it now, and it should not be passed, and his acts smoothed over simply because he is dead.

A recent issue of the St. Paul Globe contains an editorial protesting against any commutation of the sentence of William Chounard and demands that the full penalty of the law be carried out. While it is an almost inhuman thing to insist that a man's life shall be taken on the gallows, we agree with the Globe that the law should be allowed to take its course in this case.

The Herald agrees with the Cass Lake Voice that when a man has been fairly tried and convicted of murder in the first degree he should be given the extreme penalty of the law, and as long as hanging is provided by the statutes he should be hung. The question whether society has a moral right to deprive an individual of his life should be settled by the legislature, not by the courts or the pardoning board.

"One of the saddest affairs on Memorial day was the suicide of R. N. McLane, of Baltimore," says the Funkley Bugle. What was the next saddest?

IF YOU DO NOT KNOW, YOU OUGHT TO KNOW:

That on May 24, sixty years ago, Morse sent his first telegraphic message from Baltimore to Washington. Five years prior to that time a poorly equipped line existed between Paddington and Brayton, eight miles, but the Morse achievement was really what made telegraphy commercially possible. Today in this country alone there are 38,000 telegraph offices with about 230,000 miles of line and over 80,000,000 mesages transmitted a year.

HOTEL GOSSIP

Frank W. Higgins, lieutenant governor of New York state, left last night for his home in Olean. He said that when he started from home everything looked promising for the agricultural interests of the state.

"Two of the greatest factors in our state, you know, are the fruit crop and the grass crop," said Mr. Higgins. "Both were looking exceedingly good at the time I left, and I think the state will have nothing to complain of at all in this respect this year. It is true that the season has been backward in our state as it has been all over the country, but that will not have any marked effect in blighting the result.

"New York produces over half the cheese consumed in the United States, and has no rival of any consequence in the Union."

When told that Illinois was expected to show a cheese at the Louisiana Purchase exposition which would furnish enough cheese to make sandwiches for every family in the United States, Mr. Higgins appeared surprised and amused. He said some of the other states made considerable cheese, Iowa, for instance, but none of them rival the Empire state. It used to be that the United States had a better hold on the foreign trade than she has now, for in late years Canada has jumped into the market and is doing a large share of the cheese exportation.

There's a colored waiter employed at one of the hotels who is married but who does not seem to worry about the fact, and his tendency toward supporting his family is not of the strongest. But his wife goes out and does washing by the day and endeavors in every way to do all she can to keep the house running whether her poorer fraction comes home or not.

They have had quite a number of children to bless their union, and the death of one of them recently gave light to a peculiar trait of the husband. One of the women for whom the colored wife had done washing was down to visit the stricken household and inquire about the conditions. The mother said that one of the hardest things about deaths among the children was the way the father took them. She said she could get along fairly well with it all, if he was different about the bereavements when they struck the family.

She said it was so hard for him to "give them up." The visitor thought it ought to be hard for anybody to give up their children. On second thought she believed possibly that the husband was reluctant to let the bodies leave the house for the burial ground after death. Then the mother went on to repeat herself, and said that it was one of the saddest things to witness the "giving up" on the part of the husband.

"It was jes' awful to see the way that last child went," she said, referring to the death which last occured in the family. "It's father jes' seem like he couldn't give that child up. You could see she was ready to go any minute and wantin' to go, but for him holding her back. He would just take on pitiful 'bout her goin', but wouldn't let her go. After a long while, though, he said, 'Well, I give her up.' And it was hardly no time from then till she died."

According to this the mother believes the father possesses peculiar mediary power. He evidently cannot prevent the children from getting sick, but he "holds them back" when they want to die.

"IT."

New York Press: The little word "it" has grown wonderfully from a miserable personal pronoun of the neuter gender. To be "IT" these days is to be the whole shooting match." IT is beautiful slang in the new application. A friend wrote me the other day from Colorado: "I am IT out here in the telephone business." The slangy use of the word comes straight down from the children's game of tag, I suppose. A youngster rushes up, touches you with his or her hand and says, "You're IT," then runs away, which means that you shall remain the victim until you succeed in touching him or her. By extension we have "IT" to signify supreme power. The stranger may ask: "Who is that slender old gentleman?" "He? That's Rockefeller." "What does HE do?" "Why, he's IT." I once heard a worthless fellow called an "awful it." Shakespeare said: "There is much virtue in 'if.'" He lived before "IT" was fully developed. In his own line he was "IT." And, my brethren, let us pray that there shall in the future be much virtue in "IT."

Too Many People Around.

Louisville Herald: "Sure, Texas is a great state," said I. P. Kendrick of San Antonio recently at the Fifth avenue hotel.

"I recently met a fellow who lives out in the wilds of Texas and who gave me a spiel like this:

"'I live in the woods and sleep on the Government Purchase. I eat raw bear and wild turkey and drink out of running springs. But it is getting too think with folks around here. You are already the second man I have seen in a month. I hear that a whole family has moved 50 miles down the road. I'll have to go further into the woods again.'"

The Delegate's Query.

Chicago Tribune: The delegation from Kohosh county to the state convention was holding a consultation.

"We have decided," said the chairman to the member that had just come in, "to cast the vote of our county as a unit."

"Is that the reason," demanded the delegate, "why there's only one bed at the hotel for the whole bunch of us?"

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN DULUTH

B. B. Spalding, who has been down to the North Shore mine, has brought up some specimens with him which show up very rich. They have started sinking a shaft with a good force of men and it is proposed to go on and push the work as rapidly as possible. They have a vein on top four feet wide which bears copper and silver very largely.

Wiard took his variety troupe to Port Arthur on Saturday night and will open there for two or three weeks' run. Billy Jackson went with him.

J. T. Pollock, of Bradford, Pa., brother of Mr. Pollock, of the Zenith Bottling works, is visiting in Duluth. He may locate here.

Thomas Whittaker's gambling rooms in the McGowan building were finally closed by the police and a demand was made that the gambling rooms in two prominent hotels be also closed.

At 2:30 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the rear of Ed. Main's saloon, Rice's Point, and before it was discovered it had gained such headway that it was with difficulty that the inmates got out of the house. Mr. Main was compelled to jump from the balcony with a child in her arms and both were considerably injured. The building and contents were entirely destroyed. Mr. Cary's butcher shop next door took fire, but it was extinguished by the department after a loss of $300 or $400. Mr. Main's loss was about $800 on building, which was insured. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

At the meeting of the school board Saturday evening it was decided to sustain the retention of Professor West and the dismissal of Miss Coleman. It is celarly evident that the majority of the people of Duluth sympathiez with the lady—Miss Coleman—all through this matter and would be better satisfied had she been retained and Mr. West dismissed. However, perhaps, it is all for the best.

Col. Eaton is back from Winona and St. Cloud.

Dr. Fullerton, of Two Harbors, spent the Sabbath in Duluth.

MUSCULAR REPUBLICANISM.

New York Sun (Rep.): Mr. Roosevelt must see with satisfaction the gradual interpenetration of politics and athletics. Everywhere Republican muscles are being exercised. The marquis of Queensberry's rules have an equal place with Cushing's in many congress and state conventions. The sound of the swatting is high. A race of strenuous, resolute men, men "with the stuff in them," has been developed in Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kansas and we don't know how many more states.

The Hon. Robert C. Dunn, formerly state auditor of Minnesota and now a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of that state, speaks and acts with an armed determination that ought to be sufficient to make him the administration candidate. The other day he paid this compliment to Public Examiner Johnson:

"This man Johnson is beneath my notice. Farther, this man Johnson is beneath the notice of a respectable dog. Put that in the lying (St. Paul) Dispatch."

A day or two afterward Mr. Dunn had a fight with a writer on another "lying" sheet. We judge from his portrait that he is not a warrior to be trifled with. His strong right hand bears a still stronger cigar. His intellectual but combative head reminds us vaguely of the Hon. John B. Stanchfield shaded into the Hon. Robert Fitzsimmons.

Minneapolis dispatches inform us erroneously that this fight was "the result of the bitter campaign raging in Minnesota over the gubernatorial nomination." Not bitter, but spirited. The face of battle now reddening over so large a belt of the United States is a graceful compliment to Mr. Roosevelt. Under his inspiration and example, the active and military virtues are practiced. Energy, motion and its equivalent in heat are given out in tremendous quantities. Pale principles and flabby abstractions have had their day. Republicans follow gladly where Mr. Roosevelt has gladly led them. Strength, valor, pugnacity, the primitive and healthy qualities, feel their oats and enjoy their triumphs. This Republican rejuvenescence, these bollings of the blood, these continual charges up endless ringing Kettle Hills, testify as nothing else could to the absolute identification of the Republican party with its brave young chief.

May we take from the Springfield correspondence of the Inter-Ocean an illustration or two of the cacoethes pugnandi as it raged in the Illinois Republican convention?

"When the result of the sixty-ninth ballot, in which Lowden made his greatest gain, was announced, three or four First ward delegates seized banners bearing the colonel's autograph and started to march up the aisle toward the chairman's platform. While they were passing the Thirty-first ward, Alderman Butterworth sprang from his seat and pulled down the foremost banner. The First ward delegates began to use their banners for clubs, and in a moment a score of men were mixed up in a struggle for the banners. Mike Walsh, a big six-footer, Deneen delegate from the Thirtieth ward, and Harry Chadwick, Frank Sadler and E. Fowler of the Thirty-first, joined the alderman. Several Lowden men in the Ninth and Tenth ward delegations, sitting across the aisle, joined in the melee. Coats were thrown off, lunges were made for the broken staffs of the banners, and 'billies' were produced, but before the belligerents could get together a squad of police who had been stationed in the aisles seized the combatants and forced them into their seats.

"When quiet was restored Harry Chadwick found he had a hole in his scalp and a long, livid bruise on the right cheek. He had been struck by the staff of one of the banners. He was taken to a doctor and had his wounds dressed. Mike Walsh received two long scratches on his forehead, and Alderman Butterworth had the dandruff loosened on his cerebellum."

A minute before "a bunch" of Lowden delegates had been hit with a cane by a secretary and a Federal officeholder had been knocked down by a Deneen man. An assistant secretary smashed a man in the face with a cane. There were many football charges. Hats, chairs, and heads were broken. As Alderman Butterworth says, "the boys have got to have a little fun once in a while."

The boys are having a good deal of fun all the time. Almost anywhere you look, you see a shindy. Mr. Roosevelt has impressed himself upon his party until it has become his image.

THE FUNNY FELLOWS.

Yonkers Statesman: Mrs. Crimsonbeak—When a man talks a good deal he is called an orator, I believe.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Yes.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Well, when a woman talks a good deal what is she called?

Mr. Crimsonbeak—A nuisance.

"Simply stupendous," answered the other. "Why, he can call any member of his family by name the minute he sets eyes on him."

New York Weekly: Jinks—Yes, I always take my boy along when I go to the minstrels. That's the only way I can get my money's worth.

Binks—How so?

Jinks—The music is new to me, and the jokes are new to him.

Brooklyn Eagle: The young clergyman was under the impression that there had been some criticism because he preached extemporaneously. "Do you think I ought to write my sermons?" he asked.

"No," replied the sarcastic deacon. "I think you ought to buy them."

Yonkers Statesman: Patience—Good gracious! You've been an hour in that dentist's! I hope he hasn't been pulling your tooth all that time?

Patrice—No; forty-five minutes of the time the dentist was trying to convince me that it wouldn't hurt, and the other fifteen minutes I was trying to convince him that I had better call tomorrow.

She—Because he thinks she will love him in time.

Chicago News: "It is said," remarked the moralizer, "that fortune knocks once at every man's door."

"I guess the old girl forgot to remove her gloves when she knocked at mine," rejoined the demoralizer.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It's awful generous the way a girl will admit you are fascinating to think she is so beautiful.

It's very exasperating to have to say good night to a girl in the rain unless she will hold the umbrella.

No woman can ever resist taking the advice of the man who tunes her piano on how to make her rubber plants grow.

The girl who can refrain from blushing when it would be immodest to do it is not likely to go very far from the path of innocence.

HE WAS QUEER.

Cincinnati Post: Do you know Conrad Mizer. Pehraps you never even heard of the man who died in Cleveland last week, but there are things in his life that deserve well to be put on paper and spread broadcast.

He was not rich. He builded no libraries and he was not even a business success, for in buying and selling his heart so often interfered with the cold rules of trade that he lost money when a more prudent man would have made a profit.

When he developed a desire to be of use to humanity and the true friend of the children he was called "queer" and people said: "Years ago Cooney Mizer was thrown out of a buggy, alighting on his head, and he has never been right since."

He was "queer," measured by the standard of a busy world. He believed that the parks are for the people, and that children should roll and play on the grass and get the full benefit of the public property. He believed that there should be seats for tired mothers. Harmony thrilled his soul to its uttermost depths, and he was convinced that good music for the people meant the elevation of humanity. He required months of labor on his part before Sunday concerts became a feature of Cleveland life, and it was Conrad Mizer who walked from door to door asking contributions to pay for the concerts that had brought joy to tens of thousands. He would have died rather than ask for a penny for himself, but he could endure affront and humiliation in his efforts for the people.

He was in favor of laughter and sunshine and play-grounds and liberty for children. He stopped trying to be a business man and used all his energy and time in his self-sought mission. He was sorry for the shut-ins of the tenements and the idle women who live in joyless homes. men and women who live in joyless homes. He dedicated himself to them, and he made his work count.

And his last words were: "God bless the dear children."

Yes, he was queer.

DELAY ACTION AS TO COURTHOUSE SITE

Arguments Against Present Location Made to County Board.

Majority of Commissioners Against Buying Other Half of Block.

The board of county commissioners has delayed the matter of selecting a site for the new county courthouse until the taxpayers of the county have an opportunity of expressing their views in the matter by petition or otherwise.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon the commissioners did not make any motion or resolution that the courthouse matter be delayed, but they assured the various committees that met with them, the understanding was no action would be taken until the people of the county have had an opportunity of expressing their choice of sites.

This means that the county attorney will not go ahead for the present and begin condemnation proceedings for the remaining half of the block where the old courthouse now stands.

The meeting was largely attended, the commissioners' room being filled to its capacity with local people to be heard relative to the new courthouse and with farmers who had requests for road improvement.

* * *

After the discussion was over the board stood, relative to the site matter as follows:

Commissioner Patterson is in favor of building the new courthouse on the site of the old building. He is not in favor of purchasing the remaining half of the block.

Commissioner Kauppi is willing to vote for a site where the majority of the taxpayers wish it. He is not in favor of purchasing the other half of the courthouse block.

Commissioner Kugler believes that the new courthouse should be located partly on the old site and partly on the east half of the courthouse block, which he favors purchasing. Mr. Kugler, however, says he does not wish to be arbitrary in the matter and is willing to subserve the interests of the taxpayers.

Commissioner McInnis does not care particularly where the new courthouse is located. If it is to be in Duluth he thinks the old site is good enough, but does not favor the purchase of the other half of the block.

Commissioner Connor has no particular choice of sites. So far as he is concerned, personally, the old site will fill the bill. He is not in favor of purchasing the other half of the courthouse block.

Chairman Morcom stands with the other two range commissioners in the matter of a site; no particular choice if the courthouse is to be erected in Duluth, but he does not favor purchasing any more land at the present location.

Commissioner Berg did not express himself at the meeting of yesterday, but he has said that he is willing to build where the taxpayers desire the new courthouse and that he does not see the need of purchasing the other half of the courthouse block.

* * *

The matter was taken up immediately after the roll call, the regular order of business being suspended for that purpose.

The committees representing commercial and business interests, to confer with the commissioners, were the Commercial club committee, the West Duluth Commercial club committee and the committee representing the members of the local bar association.

Luther C. Harris acted as spokesman for the lawyers' committee and opened the discussion, urging earnestly that the county board locate the new courthouse nearer the business portion of the city.

He said that with one exception the attorneys that attended the meeting in the Commercial club rooms some weeks ago, were all in favor of a courthouse site nearer the principal business section of the city, and expressed assurance that with few other exceptions the sentiment of the entire Duluth Bar association is in favor of a change of sites.

Mr. Harris said that there were just two essential things to be considered in the matter of a change of sites and those were convenience and cost. He claimed the only possible argument for keeping the courthouse where it is now located is that it would cost more to build nearer the business center. He presented the supposition that the county had no courthouse and that it were offered the present site gratis and would have to pay for a site nearer the business center. He declared it his belief that not one of the commissioners or one-tenth of the taxpayers in the county would advocate the acceptance of a free site.

It was argued by Mr. Harris that as the courthouse is the place of business for taxpayers it should be conveniently placed for them, and that it is not so conveniently placed where it now stands. He took up the matter of street car fares paid by the taxpayers in going to and from the courthouse and said that enough was paid out in fares every year to pay the interest on $105,000 worth of bonds.

He said the question of the county's title to the present site should be determined before any definite move is made in the matter of sites and told the commissioners that there are a great many lawyers in the city who believe that St. Louis county has acquired a clear title to the courthouse grounds.

He spoke of the great loss of time to lawyers and others who have to travel to and from the old courthouse and said all the lost time must be charged up. He said it was also a matter of great inconvenience to those who are looking after abstracts and deeds, to be compeled to do so much traveling to and from the courthouse.

Mr. Harris also made reference to the need of a new city hall, and the idea of combining the courthouse and city hall under one roof. In closing, he said the lawyers had no way of determining what the board would do, so they sent out petitions to the range towns, only two having been returned up to the present. He asked that action might be delayed until petitions could be generally circulated among business men and taxpayers.

The two range petitions referred to were filed from Eveleth and Ely, and were claimed to be signed by practically all the business men in either place.

W. B. Getchell and Rev. Father Feehely, of the West Duluth Commercial club, spoke for a more central location of a courthouse, and claimed the sentiment in the western end of the city to be overwhelmingly in favor of a site nearer the business center of Duluth. Rev. Father Feehely emphasized especially the point that the county is to build for the future, and that the question of future growth and convenience should overshadow that of cost. As to the matter of a free site, Father Feehely repudiated the idea that St. Louis county is in need of charity.

H. H. Phelps, who was a member of the lawyers' committee, urged that the board act slowly in the matter, and that they decide to build nearer the business center. He claimed the building will not be for the present generation alone, but for the generations to come, and that the location of a new courthouse on the old site means the saddling of an extra expense on the taxpayers for all time to come. He took the position that the taxpayers will not sanction the purchase of a large tract of land for a courthouse, but merely enough to hold a building large enough to meet all needs.

Commissioner Kauppi said he was glad to see the interest aroused. He said the county needs a new courthouse badly, and so far as he is concerned he is willing that it should be built where the majority of the taxpayers desire it. He said that if the new building was to go up on the site of the old one, the county has enough land on which to build.

* * *

Commissioner Kugler said the county must have quarters somewhere when it builds, and his idea was that in purchasing the other half of the block the new building could be started on that, and could be occupied while the other portion of the courthouse was being erected on the site of the old courthouse, torn down.

Mr. Phelps pointed out that the question of quarters while the new building is being erected was an additional argument for a down-town site, that the old courthouse could remain in use until the new courthouse is ready.

E. P. Towne, of the lawyers' committee, suggested that twould be a good idea to give the people an opportunity of expressing their choice, an recommended that action be delaped until the taxpayers could be heard from in the way of petitions. Mr. Towne said he lives in Commissioner Kugler's ward, and he is satisfied that the majority of the taxpayers there are not in favor of the old site.

Commissioner Kugler then gave a short history of the new court nouse agitation, and said that he started the ball rolling two years ago when he suggested to the commissioners that they get an expression of the sentiment of their constituency relative to a new court house. He said he made a thorough canvass of his district and found only about 10 per cent of the taxpayers against the proposition of building a new court house. On the strength of that sentiment he made his platform and won out in the election two years ago.

Mr. Kugler expressed his personal views that the old site with the acquisition of the other half of the block would give the best location for the new court house, but said he was willing to abide by the wishes of the taxpayers.

* * *

Assistant County Attorney Crosby then explained that he had not started the condemnation proceedings for the reason that he knew public sentiment was aroused in the matter of a court house site, and that he thought the board might care to take some other action. Mr. Crosby said, however, that he was in duty bound to go ahead as he had been directed, unless the commissioners should come to an understanding that he was not to hurry the matter.

As to the other suit, that of clearing title to the present court house site, Mr. Crosby said the papers had been served on Judge Ensign, and that the case will likely come up this term of court, John Williams appearing for Judge Ensign.

Mr. Crosby said that in a conversation with Judge Ensign the latter had said that he had no personal interest in the matter; that when the property was put in his hands in trust it was the sentiment of the former owners that if it were not used for court house purposes, it should be a park. Under those circumstances Judge Ensign thought himself in duty bound to oppose the county's suit.

Commissioner McInnis said there was no hurry in the matter anyway; that the money would not be ready for use for the building for some time yet, and that it is only a question of time before the county will have to be divided. Mr. McInnis made a hit by declaring that all the talk he had heard was about Duluth, and that if it was the county of Duluth instead of the county of St. Louis that was to be considered, he did not see why the range commissioners need come in with any expression of their views.

Mr. McInnis was against the proposition of bonding the county for a court house, and claimed that the court house where it is is convenient enough for those who transact business there from the ranges.

Henry S. Ely and C. F. How, of the Duluth Commercial club committee, requested that the commissioners simply delay action on the court house matter for a little time.

Commissioner Patterson then told where he stood in the matter. He said he felt the county should build on the old site. He voted for the condemnation proceedings because the feeling on the board seemed at that time to be unanimously in favor of acquiring the other half of the block. He said he believed that the county will be divided within the next twenty years and that the cost of a court house will fall on the city of Duluth anyway, and it would be far better to retain the old site. He argued that the city has about all the bonds that it can stand now.

In closing Mr. Patterson said he did not wish to do anything against the wishes of the taxpayers, and for that reason believed the board should not act hastily.

After a few more remarks from Commissioners Connor and Morcom, the commissioners agreed to delay action and the committees left after expressing their thanks for the attention that had been accorded them.

The division of the county road levy among the road districts for the ensuing year, occupied some little time, after the discussion over the new courthouse site and it was not until nearly 7 o'clock that the apportionments weer satisfactorily completed and made by resolution.

The apportionments were as follows: Second district, $8500; Fourth district, $8500; Fifth district, $11,000; Sixth district, $8500; Seventh district, $8500; miscellaneous $3000; City of Duluth, $3000.

Commissioner McInnis—Old Missabe road, $2000; Grant road, $5000; McKinley and Virginia road, $1500; Old Vermilion road, $300.

MONEY IS PLENTY

And Loan Business as Dull as the Stock Market.

Bettering of Conditions In the Iron and Steel Trade.

New York, June 8.—The dullness of the stock market and the abundance of money continue to be the feature of financial affairs here. It is undoubtedly correct that the banks have gained several millions in cash during the week and have been unable to place many loans to advantage.

June 3, it is stated, the Bank of Commerce loaned upward of $3,000,000 on call at 1¼ per cent, and Russell Sage and other lenders were placing funds at the rate of even 1 per cent per annum. Bank runners had immense sums of money to place on time, but could find very few borrowers and the loan business is as dull as the stock market, and that is almost at zero.

The discharge of men by the Pennsylvania railroad and the closing down of the bar iron and steel mills have during the last ten days virtually caused a suspension of purchases of stocks, and the reports of excellent business conditions through the South and the West prevent any bear movement upon prices, so between the timidity of the bulls and the fears of the bears there is complete stagnation in Wall street. There will be an effort made during the week to start up gold shipments again, but if a few millions are shipped it will have no effect upon cash holdigs, with $20,000,000 soon to arrive from the Klondike and new circulation being taken out by the banks at almost record-breaking figures this past month.

This new circulation is sure to be an important factor in keeping money easy during the crop-moving period this autumn. The release of bonds, by the action of the treasury calling for the Panama money, has given the bankers the necessary securities for obtaining new circulation. The new circulation for May amounted to $11,500,000, and to those woe predicters who said the government would be unable to provide currency for moving of crops, these new issues give complete denial.

The story told by the report of railway earnings is of much significance as to the conditions maintaining in the country at large and in the various sections which comprise it. The official reports of 42 railroads taken through all sections show that from July 1, 1903, to May 21, 1904, their gross earnings have increased 4.37 per cent.

For the third week in May, 1904, the gross earnings of 42 roads, as compared with the corresponding period of 1903, showed a decrease of .78 per cent, indicating a far less dropping off in business than has been generally supposed.

These roads represent the entire country and show business of transportation, both freight and passenger, holding well up to the best records ever made.

The reports of the roads in the West and Southwest go far above the average, as for instance, the great Southern Pacific system for April 1904, shows an increase of $143,364 in its net earnings, as compared with April, 1903, and an increase of $122,728 in its gross earnings.

The Union Pacific shows for the same month an increase in gross earnings of $66,721, and an increase in net earnings of $79,931. These great roads show larger and better business than last year, and railway economics that produce better financial results. In nearly every branch of business the reports show that the people of the South, the Southwest and the West are enjoying the best times they have had for many years, and that the prosperity in these sections is well distributed among all classes of the people, and not confined to any particular branch of affairs. I have conversed with many salesmen and manufacturers of fertilizers and they report the largest sales in the South of record. They predict that with even ordinarily favorable weather the South will produce the greatest number of bales of cotton that has ever been produced.

They base this prediction upon the very largely increased acreage, estimated variously from 8 per cent to 12 per cent, as well as upon the much greater attention that is now being given to the cultivation of this great staple. Of course, they give fertilizers full credit for a great part of the expected increase, and they state with great confidence that upon account of the extensive use of fertilizers this year by the cotton planters that the yield per acre will be larger than ever known.

Cotton has declined from the prohibitory prices of last winter, yet today it is bringing fully 50 per cent more than the average price for the past ten years, and its present price will give a magnificent profit to all planters. A bumper crop of cotton at present prices will not only make the planters completely independent of merchants and money loaners, but will give steady employment to many thousands of people in the United States north of Mason and Dixon's line. This money which comes into the South for cotton, to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars, is largely from foreign countries. It is a veritable gain to our people. First, it goes through the hands of the cotton buyer, then to the planter, from him to the field hands, the mechanics and the merchants, and as each class take its earnings from the golden stream the division of the cash is widespread and profitable to the entire community. Then it passes from the merchant to the bankers and the manufacturers. The Southern bankers usually have their surplus funds in Baltimore and New York, and the manufacturers of the North and of the West come in for a good round portion of the gold that comes to the South for cotton. The agricultural implement manufacturers of the Middle West have realized very handsomely from the good fortune of the South in 1903, and it looks now as an assured fact that the South will be able to do even better for them from the results of the cotton crop of 1904. The presidential election, always an element of depression in business affairs, seems now likely to have but the minimum effect this year.

There is no business aprehension or fear evinced by any one. It is generally recognized that whichever party may be successful at the polls business affairs will not suffer in the near future.

There is but little interest taken in the contest as yet in the Eastern portion of the country, and while you often hear expressions wishing the election was over and activities resumed, there is no anxiety as to results.

Taking all classes of business into consideration one hears far more discussion of the future of iron and steel affairs than of any other two or three industries; indeed, I may say the iron and steel prospects are discussed with greater interest by business men than those of al other industries combined. It would be difficult to convince the majority of people that while some mills were shutting down and others curtailing production there was apparent a bettering of conditions and an assurance of still greater trade in the near future. Yet, such is the positive statements made this week by several of the best posted men in the metal business. They state that all indications point to a greater demand both at home and abroad, and believe that the coming three years will witness a greater demand for iron and steel than there has yet been experienced, and a corresponding increase in the tons of both metals in production. They do not claim higher prices, but they do unhesitatingly name larger tonnage both in supply and demand.

A cablegram from London yesterday, stating that European iron and steel markets were depressed owing to reports that the Americans were about to make prices that would enable America to supply Europe to a large extent with both metals, may indicate the partial basis of the hopeful views of the iron masters here. A revival in coal, iron and steel next winter would certainly be welcomed by the people of the Ohio valley. The best informed men here state that it will surely come to pass.

DESTROYING A RACE.

The extermination of the Armenian people proceeds at a rapid rate, thanks to the complicity of Europe in the crimes of the occupant of the imperial kiosk on the Bosphorus. According to official information received by the French foreign office, the remnant of the unfortunate race inhabiting the mountainous region of Sassun in Asia Minor that escaped the knife of the Kurd in 1896 has been delivered over to butchery by the Ottoman soldiery; as a dispatch says, "the action of the Turks has been sweeping," and "the work of exterminating the Armenians in the mountainous districts of Sassun has been accomplished."

This news cannot be said to be unexpected, for at intervals during the winter just past dispatches have appeared in the European papers concerning the preparations of the Turkish authorities to put an end, once for all, to Armenian discontent with their barbarous rule by putting an end to the Armenians themselves. Fate has been against the Armenians on all sides, says the New York Sun. Divided between Russia, Turkey and Persia, in the last named country alone have they received fair and sympatnetic treatment. The political conditions, however, in Persia, and its relations to the other two countries, have prevented it from aiding in any way the persecuted Armenians across its borders. Abandoned entirely by Europe, they have been given over, like sheep, to the slaughter.

The sultan knows well with whom he has to deal. Any attempt at active physical intervention in behalf of the Armenians or the other races under his oppressive sway would be the signal for the suspension of payment on all his pecuniary obligations to his European creditors. That is the whip which he holds over them and their governments, and it is a more effective weapon than all the cannon in the forts of the Dardanelles or the Mausers in the hands of his soldiers.

Russia is, of course, the last country to which the Armenians can now turn for sympathy or aid. The $60,000,000 of Armenian church property in the pocket of the Russian government are a guarantee to the sultan that there will be no interference by Russia with whatever he may do in Armenia; and there is no danger that any of the governments of Western Europe will intervene. The same reasons that held them back in 1896 are holding them back now, and will continue to hold them back until the moral sense of Europe is really awakened.

As for the leaders of the Armenian people, they have long since lost all illusions about the fate of their nation. A few years ago there was in the monastery of Etchmiadzin, in the Trans-Caucasus, a painting by an Armenian artist of an Armenian church standing solitary in a graveyard wherein appeared a single gravestone with an inscription to the memory of the article in the treaty of Berlin guaranteeing the lives and liberty of the Armenian people.

FIGHT WILL FOLLOW

If Any Attempt Be Made to Defeat Cortelyou's Selection.

Roosevelt Will Not Allow Any Other to Become Chairman.

Washington, June 8.—President Roosevelt will stand pat in his selection of George B. Cortelyou as chairman of the Republican national committee. If a certain coterie on the national committee endeavor to prevent the formal election of the secretary of commerce and labor as the head of that body, they will get into a serious row with the man who will head the Republican ticket. It has been asserted within the last two or three days that a plan was being considered by several influential Republican politicians to defeat the president's desire by preventing the election of Mr. Cortelyou by the national committee. If such a scheme is in contemplation, the president will not hesitate to meet the issue with his customary fearlessness and vigor.

When President Roosevelt caused it to be understood that Mr. Cortelyou was his choice for national chairman he did so after having made up his mind that his former secretary was the man for the place. He weighed carefully every consideration that entered into the problem and concluded there was no serious or reasonable ground for objection to Mr. Cortelyou as the manager of his campaign. He was assisted to this conclusion by some of the most prominent men in the party, among whom may be mentioned Cornelius N. Bliss, the treasurer of the committee, who could have been chairman had he desired; former Secretary of War Root and others. As a matter of fact, it is an open secret that Mr. Bliss made it a condition to his acceptance of the treasurership that Secretary Cortelyou be made the chairman of the committee.

But since the announcement was made that Mr. Cortelyou had been chosen as the president's campaign manager half a dozen conspicuous Republican leaders have permitted it to become known that they regard the selection as an unwise one—at least they have appeared in the newspapers stating they were opposed to Mr. Cortelyou as chairman. Among these may be mentioned Senator Kean, of New Jersey, Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, and Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, who himself had been mentioned prominently in connection with the place. It was even reported that Mr. Kean had told the president personally that he thought Mr. Cortelyou's selection a mistake although afterward the senator denied he had given expression to any such thought in the presence of Mr. Roosevelt.

But that there are some well-known Republican leaders who do not regard with high favor the prospect of Mr. Cortelyou managing the campaign there is not the slightest doubt, and it would be but natural that some criticism should be made, regardless of who had been designated as chairman of the national committee. But, as indicated before, the president does not intend to back water on the Cortelyou appointment, and he will not hesitate to make his purpose plainly known to any one of the party leaders who may be so bold as to bring the matter up with him. Mr. Cortelyou is the kind of man the president wants to manage his campaign, especially since the president himself intends to have a prominent part in the direction of affairs during the impending political contest. He can get along better and more harmoniously with Mr. Cortelyou than perhaps with any one of half a dozen other men whose friends would like to see them at the head of the committee.

"HELLO" GIRL'S AWFUL DEATH

Followed Parting With Her Lover After Bitter Quarrel.

Muncie, Ind., June 8.—Miss Artie Monks, a beautiful young girl of 17, died Sunday morning at 1:15 o'clock after being unconscious and in convulsions for several hours, and Solomon Lee, of Indianapolis, a motorman for the Indiana Union Traction company, was arrested and is now in the Delaware county jail on the charge of "suspicion."

Miss Monks has been an operator for the Central Union Telephone company. Saturday night she left her work as usual about 10:20 o'clock. When she came down from the exchange she was met by Lee, who accompanied her home. On the way home they quarreled. Miss Monks got the various trinkets which Lee had given her during their two years' courtship and gave them to him. Lee had some trinkets given him by Miss Monks which he returned. They parted, never to meet again.

It was about 11 o'clock when the couple got home. Miss Monks retired. In a few moments she became deathly ill and went into convulsions. Her roommate, Miss Katie Wirth aroused Mrs. Christopher Hollinger, the girl's grandmother. Miss Monks was unconscious, and remained in that condition until death ended her suffering. Three Muncie physicians could do nothing to save her life. She acted as if she had taken strychnine poison, but when an autopsy was held the stomach was found to be empty, as if the girl had eaten nothing for a day. Not a drug store can be found where she had purchased poison.

Lee was in the sweat box all day. He was once married, his wife being dead. He was much surprised when told of the girl's death, as he alighted from his car at 1:15 p. m. He gave the officers a key to his room in Indianapolis that they might search it. He says that Miss Monks had had nervous trouble. The girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Monks, of Daleville, this county. The Monks family is one of the oldest and best known in the county. The girl's father was formerly wealthy, but reverses caused the girl to seek employment to aid the family. The autopsy revealed nothing that would detract from the girl's honor.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

Last evening at seven o'clock the last of the festivities of the Normal school were held when the faculty entertained at a banquet the graduates and alumnae of the school. The affair was the first of this nature in the history of the school but in the years to come the alumnae banquet is expected to be a prominent feature of commencement week.

The tables for the banquet were spread in one of the laboratory rooms on the third floor. Seven tables were laid for fifty-three guests and the color scheme was carried out in the class colors of the graduates, green and yellow. Presiding at the tables were Mrs. E. W. Bohannon, Miss Eaton, Miss Pendergast, Miss Horn, Miss Ray, Miss Fenton and Miss Neff. The centerpiece of each table was aglow with the golden marshmarigolds and their foliage and yellow candles lighted the tables. The confections also carried the yellow and green scheme of color. In the center of the room the aquarium of the laboratory was transformed with palms and ferns and the tinkle and drip of three tiny founts of water were a musical accompaniment to the toasts which followed the banquet. Miss Eaton, of the faculty was in charge of the affair and the juniors graciously served.

President E. W. Bohannon presided as toastmaster and introduced the speakers. Miss Quillard, who has recently taken charge of the kindergarten department, spoke of "First Impressions." The school with its teachers and their foibles and the airs of the seniors were all brightly told about as the first impression of a newcomer in verse. The toast was greatly appreciated.

Miss Esther Levy, of the class of 1903, spoke of "Afterwards" and told of the multitude of school days, said to be the happiest of a life, that the teacher may enjoy. Out of her year's experience she told of the struggles and happy moments of the teacher's life.

Miss Carrie Neff responded to the toast "Domestic Science" and told of the gratitude the class of 1904 feels for the privilege it has had of studying the subject with Miss Eaton.

"The Graduating Class" was toasted by Miss Pendergast, who has come to know the class so well and "The Faculty" was the subject of a bright toast by Miss Dorothy Kuhns. "School Spirit" was described by Miss Florence McLean as the thing which allowed her to stop talking when she might continue for five minutes more. The toast was a dainty and clever one.

The last toast called for was "The Resident Director" and was responded to by H. C. Strong, of the faculty. It was a toast that the hearers received enthusiastically, for the work and efforts of J. L. Washburn in this direction are appreciated by them and the opportunity to show part of their feeling was welcomed. Mr. Strong said in part:

"Mr. Washburn is a big man. I mean, that in the range of his activities, many lie outside those of his own personal advancement. An essential part of his being is the advancement of the interests of other persons and especially of those interests that affect the public good. His presence on the Normal board is an instance. His time is valuable in a purely material way. The part of it he spends in his duties on the board, he could use in acquiring many dollars.

"Far greater than that, however, is the time he gives voluntarily in promoting the interests of the school in ways entirely apart from his regular and form duties. And time is not all. When the state funds for improving the grounds gave out our Resident Director had the work continued at his own expense. He has also pledged a personal contribution to aid in bridging the gully on Fifth street in front of the school and in building a street as an approach to the building.

"You will also meet Mr. Washburn as a member of the school board of the city, and if your work has been commended here, and you continue to do your work well, you will have no better friend than Mr. Washburn. Every word of approval you get from him you will merit. Fair play is one of his life motoes. So long as you live up to the best that is in you and work your best you will find nobody more interested in you, readier to give you help than is Resident Director Washburn."

At the close of the toasts the Alumnae association was formed and officers elected. The officers for the coming year are: President, Miss Leora Fenton, 04; corresponding secretary, Miss Willena Marshall, '03, and treasurer, Miss Ella Deetz.

A reception was held for an hour following the banquet in the library and lower hall, and many friends of the school called to greet the faculty and class.

THE EVENING STORY.

The Keeper of the Castle Stores

By Axel Tegnier.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

In a house within the fortress of Riga, Gunna sat spinning. Eighty years old was she. Her long arms were sinewy, their veins stood out. Thin and like to a man's was her bosom. A few scanty locks of white hair hung loose over her eyes. She wore about her head a clout resembling a round cap.

"Grandmother," said he, "can ye not sing something as ye spin? Never yet have I heard ought from you but scolding and wrangling."

She turned her tired, crafty, lackluster eyes upon him.

"Sing! Maybe of your mother? They put her into a cart, and sent her over to the Muscovites! Of you father? Strung up in the chimney of the brewhouse. The night I was born I will curse—curse myself, and every man I meet. Tell me of a single person who is not worse than he is said to be."

"Ay, when one sees a person laughing and making sport, 'tis but because he knows how to conceal. With us, it is all shame and debauchery; it is for our sins and debauchery, the Saxons are lying before the town. Hear the guns? How they crack and roar! Why are ye not on the ramparts on duty with the rest of them, instead of sitting lazily indoors?"

"Grandmother, can ye not say one kind word to me ere I go out?"

"I would thrash ye instead, but I am too frail now! Ay, so bowed down with years am I, that I can never more lift my eyes Heavenwards. Will ye have the truth told? Do not folk call me the soothsayer? What if I should say then that the slanting line above your eyebrows tells of sudden death. I read the ages to come, see into them for a time and times; yet with all my far vision I see nothing but wickedness and business? You are worse than I am. am worse than was my mother. All those born will become worse than those who die."

He got up and arranged the firewood.

"I will tell, grandmother, why I am here tonight, and why I ask for a kind word from you. The old goveror general has given order this day that on the night after this all our women, young and old, sick and strong, are to be put without the gates, so that there be left bread for us men. How can you tramp about in the winter cold, through field and forest? For these last ten years ye have been no further than across the courtyard to the store rooms!"

She laughed. Her spinning wheel she turned faster and faster.

"Ha, ha! I have expected this—for all I've faithfully kept our great lord's storerooms and all that is his! And you, Jan? You are troubled because there will be nobody now to make up your bed on the sleeping shelf, and cook and bake for you? Are there any thoughts but these in the minds of the young? But, glory be to God—God, who in the end throws us all under the scourge of His anger."

"Go, I say. Let me sit in peace, and spin my flax—till I open the door and creep away to that spot where I shall lose my earthly life!"

He worked the distaff for a little, then of a sudden turned and went out. She whirled and whirled the spinning wheel till the fire went out. In the morning, when Jan came back, the house was empty.

The siege had now grown fierce and prolonged. Accordingly, after divine service, all the women folk were turned out into that snowy day of February, the weak and ailing being put into wagons and barrows and on stretchers. Riga became a throng of men. For the hordes of women, begging piteously for food as they skulked at the foot of the walls, there was neither bite nor sup to be given; the defenders had scare enough for themselves. Hunger-maddened horses in the stables tore at each other, crunched their bits, or gnawed great holes in the sides of their stalls. Smoke hung thick over the fired suburbs, and often was the garrison aroused by the alarm bells to out and draw the sword.

When the trumpeter returned that night, he found his bed already made up, and a dishful of moldy victuals on a stool. He was ashamed to speak to anyone about this; he feared that his grandmother lay smothered in a snow wreath, and now was haunting his neighborhood in repentance of her hardheartedness. After he had strengthened himself in prayer he grew calmer. Yet, as the days passed on he grew more troubled and afraid; occasionally he found the bed unmade and no platter on the stool, so he needs busy himself at the spinning wheel; and softly treading it listened with increasing reassurance to the well-known sound from it. From his birth had he heard it.

Now it came that one morning Eric Dahlberg, the governor general heard a sudden burst of minstelsy. In haste and irritation he arose from his plans and the waxen model of the fortifications.

* * *

As a recollection of the joyous incursions of his younger days into the realms of beauty, numerous magnificent engravings of the ruins of Rome hung on the walls of his room. But now his features, in former days mild and beneficent, wore a cast of somber brooding thought. A line of sternness curved around his small, well-nigh bloodless lips, now close knit.

He pulled his full-bottom wig straight, stroked his thin mustache with a shaky finger, and stepped out into the staircase. He struck his stick hard against a step.

"Ah, we Swedes," he muttered, "we ginsfolk of the Vasa kings, who can only curse and accuse us in their old age, and after all are afraid of themselves in the darkness of their own chambers—black seed lies sown in our souls. With the years, a vast, outspreading tree will shoot up from it, full of the bitterest of gall nuts!"

As he went down the stairs his mood became the harder and more acerb, until, when he stood upon the ramparts he would speak to no person. A battalion had formed up, with colors flying and drums a-beating. But the venture was ended by now; already loose bands of the tired and wounded were filing through the gateway. Rearmost, came a very thin and exhausted old man. A ruddy saber cut gaped in his chest, yet with frantic efforts he was trailing home a dead boy, who lay in his arms.

Eric Dahlberg shaded his eyes with his hands to see the more distinct. Was it not Jan, the trumpeter, the lad from the fort overhead?

The exhausted soldier sank down on a low mullion in the vaulted gateway. Here he remained, the wound guttering, the dead upon his knee. Troopers bent over him to examine his wound; and the bloody shirt above his bosom was slit open.

"What!" they cried, starting back. "It is a woman!"

In great surprise they leant down and scrutinized her face. Her head was now sunk against the wall. The fur cap was fallen to one side, and locks of white hair lay bare.

"It is Gunnel, keeper of the stores!" they exclaimed.

She breathed heavily. But her dimming eyes opened. She panted.

"I did not want to leave my bairn alone in this evil world, but I put on a man's clothes, and day and night have done my work with the rest. I thought I had a right then to eat the soldiers' bread."

The officers and men looked irresolutely at the governor general, whose decree she had broken. He stood there, gloomy, sinister, reserved as ever.

The stick in his hand shook and fell on the flag stones. He turned slowly to the battalion. His lips moved apart.

"Dip the colors," said he.

You Want It—
You Ought to Have It—
Yet You Hesitate to Buy It—

That Piano!

There once were a lot of reasons to bring pause to a man in ordinary circumstances, before he undertook to purchase a piano.

We have wiped them all off the map.

We have evolutionized the piano business.

We have made it easy for almost every home to possess a piano.

You love music; your wife loves it; your children love it—yet you are probably trying to do without a piano because it seems a luxury that should come second to other things.

You and your wife probably go away from home for entertainment. So do your children. And you pay your way. These little sums would go far toward paying for a piano. And when you got the piano, your interest and your children's interest would center in the home, instead of away from it. Music entertains, it refines, it educates. The piano gives its possessor an accomplishment that supplies social standing. The person who plays the piano is always welcome—always in demand.

Do you realize that you can buy an excellent piano for the small sum of $5 a month?

Isn't this a little price to pay for such a valuable possession?

When you buy your piano at French & Bassett's you are sure of several things that are not always certain elsewhere:

The piano you secure is of thoroughly worthy and artistic character—no matter how low its price.

The price you pay is the lowest for which that piano can be bought; and lower than that for which a piano of equal quality can be bought elsewhere.

The terms of purchase will be made to suit your convenience; and nothing added to the cash price of the piano.

Then you have our guarantee of satisfaction. We are always here in easy reach; and always ready to make everything right, in the most prompt and pleasant manner. And that means a good deal, many a time.

Come in, and talk the matter over; and perhaps you'll be able to decide that you needn't wait any longer, to possess the piano you want.

In a large piano business there is an accumulation of used pianos from renting stock, also many sample pianos and discontinued styles.

These instruments are, practically, as good as new, and are, in many cases, wonderful bargains. We offer a number of such instruments now of which the following list is only a suggestion:

It will pay you to come here and investigate our used pianos for you may find exactly what you want at about one-half the regular price.

GAMES TODAY.

Crookston at Fargo.

Duluth took a lead pipe cinch on first place yesterday and shoved the Tigers down a notch, by winning the second game of the series, 7 to 3.

The Tigers played championship ball for five innings, but got started wrong in the sixth, and when the Duluth men started the hit and run game, the field went up in the air. Before the visitors got back to earth again the White Sox had put four men across the plate, and the game was won.

Newmeyer, who started in to pitch for the visitors, was apparently in good form, and might have given the White Sox a run for the money, but he got mixed up in an argument with Umpire Hogan in the opening of the second inning, and was sent to the bench after being fined, and Randall led off with singles, and Zink advanced them both with a sacrifice. O'Leary's single scored them both.

The Tigers had no difficulty in finding Owens except when there were men on bases. They rapped out twelve hits during the game, but when there were men on bases the Duluth twirler was a mystery. He plays ball with his head as well as his feet and arms, and pulled the team out of many a tight corner. In the third inning the Tigers got three hits, one of them a two-bagger, and yet the White Sox kept them from getting a man across the plate. After Cole had been caught on a foul tip, Martin hit safely and Scharnweber followed with a double. Hanrahan got a scratch hit, which was not sufficient to bring Martin in from third, but it filled the bases. With the bases full, Cheek knocked a grounder to Owens, and Martin was nipped at the plate. "Rusty" struck the next man out and it was all off.

The Tigers got their first run in the sixth on Hanrahan's double and Cheek's single.

Errors by Ball and Wilkes, a pass to first, the only one given by Owens during the game, and a hit netted the Tigers two in the seventh, but they went out one-two-three in the eighth and ninth, and the final score stood 7 to 3.

The feature of the game was the head work of Owens in the box. In every inning but the eighth the visitors got a hit, and rolled up a total of 12, two of which were doubles, and yet all the runs they could secure were three, only one of which was earned.

The team work of the White Sox was very pretty, Zink especially shining in this department of the game. The big first baseman gave himself away by changing his bat for a bunt, but he beat all bunts out yesterday, and very nearly succeeded in doing the same with a second one.

AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

Games to Be Called Half Hour Later.

Beginning tomorrow, the games will be called at 4 o'clock, instead of 3:30. This will enable a large number of business men, who can hardly get away in time for the 3:30 game, to attend. There has been a strong demand for a little later hour and the plan will be tried.

STILL ANOTHER JOLT.

Former Champions Get Trouncing From Superior.

The Northern league season was opened yesterday afternoon on the Superior grounds, after several postponements on account of rain. Winnipeg was the opposing team, and the "Champs" proved to be a comparatively easy mark for the home nine.

Bartos, the former American association pitcher, was in the box for the visitors, and Camerons' Colts took to his curves gleefully. By bunching hits in the second and third they succeeded in putting seven men across the plate.

The visitors made a game up-hill fight, but Noldin kept the hits scattered, and they were never dangerous, although they gave the fans a little scare by starting a batting rally in the ninth inning.

GETS SWEET REVENGE.

Crookston Finally Gives Fargo a Drubbing.

Fargo, N. D., June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crookston got all kinds of revenge on Fargo yesterday afternoon and this evening, when a terrific bombardment was over they had made seventeen hits and an even dozen runs while Fargo was accumulating a trio of runs. Added to the terrible swatfest in which the visitors indulged, Fargo's fielding was execrable and assisted the visitors to add scores.

Milton, who pitched such sensational ball against Winnipeg in a shut-out game, was up for Fargo. Everything he threw looked good to Lycan's pets and they commenced to hit early and hit often. Little Bryzatte, the diminutive short fielder of the visiting aggregation, was the star with the stick, with three singles and a two-sacker to his credit. Hoffman had a pair of safe ones, Carlisle, Novacek and Hoffmeister each had a pair and every man on the team hit safely.

A postponed league game from the Crookston grounds is being played by the same teams here this afternoon.

Off the Bat.

Five straight victories.

* * *

Four out of six from the Tigers.

* * *

Crookston won a game yesterday.

* * *

Poor old Winnipeg! That bottom place isn't far off now.

* * *

That grand stand won't commence to hold the Saturday and Sunday crowds.

* * *

Hogan's decision on the balk was raw yesterday, but it was no excuse for the rowdyism shown by Dunn and Newmeyer.

* * *

"Rusty" certainly knows how to pull a team out of a hole. It was the same way in the opening game with Winnipeg.

* * *

Owens relies on his field and lets the opposing batsmen hit him freely, when there are no men on bases.

* * *

That team across the bay will bear watching. Anderson and Leach have strengthened it materially.

* * *

Superior will be here next week after the Crookston series. The Bugville nine ought to be ripe for a good trouncing by that time. It has been climbing steadily and needs to run up against something hard like the White Sox.

* * *

Noldin won his game again yesterday for Superior. He has not lost a game since leaving his old team mates, and his departure will be regretted by the fans across the bay. But "we need him in our business."

* * *

"Joe" Wilkes played the game yesterday all the time. He had two singles out of three times up. A little stage fright was responsible for his error, which was not a costly one. He was trying for everything between the first and second bags.

* * *

ARTIE BALL IS CAPTAIN

Ball was selected as captain of the Duluth team on the departure of Martin for Toledo, where he will join the Minneapolis team.

The choice, as stated in The Herald last evening, lay between Ball and O'Leary, but Ball was finally selected on account of his long experience and the fact that he will participate in all of the games, whereas O'Leary in the position of catcher may be replaced at times by Hughes.

The cause of Martin's leaving was the protest of the Little Rock club against Martin playing with any other minor league club. If he was to play with a minor league, Little Rock claimed the right to him. Minneapolis had a string on him and recalled him when the Little Rock management raised such a howl over his being loaned to Duluth.

Ball should make an excellent captain. He was formerly a member of the crack Baltimore National league team, and had a reputation as one of the fastest men in the business. He is a hard worker and covers an immense amount of ground.

TO PLAY AT CLOQUET.

Big Duluths to Go Against Mill Town Bunch.

The Big Duluth team will journey to Cloquet Sunday for a game with the nine from that town. Menefee and Schaffer will be the battery for the clothing men.

In the game played last year ten innings were necessary to decide the winner. The Big Duluth men claimed a victory, but there was a dispute over the winning run. This year both teams are anxious to win and the game should be a warm one.

The two nines are among the best amateur teams in Northern Minnesota, and both in the running for the championship of the head of the lakes.

The Big Duluths have arranged a game with Aitkin for June 26 and will probably go to Hibbing for July 3 and 4.

Signs College Pitcher.

New York, June 8.—It was learned on good authority yesterday that Walter Clarkson, the crack pitcher for the last four seasons of the Harvard team, has signed a contract to pitch for the New York American league club. It is said that his salary will be $900 a year.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH

Declares He Loved All His Mothers-in-Law.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 8.—President Joseph F. Smith of the Mormon church, addressing the young people of the church at a conference of the Mutual Improvement association, took up the marriage relation. In the course of his remarks he referred to his plural marriages, and said:

"I dare not and will not cast aside those to whom God in His infinite wisdom has joined me for time and eternity. I dare not and will not cast aside the mothers of my children. If I did I should be forever damned and be forever deprived of the companionship of God, my wives, my sons, my daughters and all those most dear to me throughout eternity. I could not shrink from exile, imprisonment or any earthly hardship that might come to me in fulfilling my duty to God and men. When it comes, however, to throwing aside all hope for future happiness, all expectation of continued union with those I love, I will not make such a sacrifice. I dare not and cannot. But rather I will be true to my duty, true to my trust, true to my God, my wives, my children.

"I want to impress upon you the sacredness and hallowedness of the marriage relation. I would as soon think of ridiculing the attributes and holiness of God as to make light or joking allusion to my marriage ties. Another most despicable custom prevalent through the world is that of holding up the mother-in-law to ridicule and contempt. Now I want to say that the best friends I ever had were my mothers-in-law. I loved and honored them, and shall ever hold their memory sacred. They were true women and worthy of their daughters."

THE IRON RANGES

Completion of Study of Lake Superior Iron-Bearing District.

Washington, June 8.—The recent publication by the United States geological survey of monographs on the Mesabi, Vermilion and Menominee iron-bearing districts (Vols. XLIII, XLV and XLVI) marks the completion of the systematic study of the great Lake Superior ore-bearing series in pre-Cambrian rocks. There remains to be published only a final and supplementary volume on the geology of the Lake Superior region as a whole, which will bring together and correlate the general conclusions and maps that are embodied in the several monographs devoted to the separate districts of the region. The manuscript of this final monograph will be submitted for publication in 1905.

This series of reports was inaugurated late in the eighties by R. D. Irving. His death in 1888 allowed him, however, to see only the beginning of the work in the Penokee-Gogebic district. Dr. R. C. Van Hise then took the plan in hand and during the past sixteen years has carried it through to its present state of completion.

The first of the series to appear was the Penokee-Gogebic monograph (Vol. XIX), published in 1892. The field work was done jointly by Messrs. Van Hise and Irving, but the monograph was written almost entirely by Dr. Van Hise. In 1895 appeared the Marquette monograph (Vol. XXVIII) by C. R. Van Hise and W. S. Bayley. This was followed in 1895 by the appearance of the Crystal Falls monograph (Vol. XXXVI), by J. Morgan Clements, H. L. Smyth, W. S. Bayley and C. R. Van Hise, in 1903 by the Mesabi monograph (Vol. XLIII), by C. K. Leith; and finally, during the past winter, by the Vermilion monograph (Vol. XLV), by J. Morgan Clements, and the Menominee monograph (Vol. XLV), by W. S. Bayley. Monograph V, on the copper bearing rocks of Lake Superior, by R. D. Irving, should also be mentioned, although this was published in 1883, many years before the inauguration of the plan for covering the iron-bearing districts.

The total expenditure made by the survey for this great series has been less than $150,000. Considering the magnitude of the iron mining industry and the geological and commercial importance of the work, the expenditure is not large. There are mining companies in the Lake Superior region that have spent a larger sum than this in the exploration of very limited areas. Indeed, it is in a large measure through the active co-operation of such companies that this series of monographs has been prepared within the amount named.

The work of the survey is highly valued in the Lake Superior region, where a good geological and structural map of the region has come to be considered not only desirable but an absolute prerequisite to intelligent exploration and mining development; in other words, the principle has been firmly established that before expensive underground exploration is attempted it is economy to spend whatever sum may be necessary—which is usually a comparatively small amount—to ascertain all that can be ascertained at the surface. A proper geological map of an ore-bearing district saves many thousands of dollars in exploration by limiting the areas which it is worth while to explore. Professor Irving outlined the iron-bearing formation of the Penokee-Gogebic district in the middle eighties, and up to the present time no valuable iron mining land has been found in this district outside of the narrow limits he set down. In other districts, while exploration has from time to time enlarged the boundaries of the ore-bearing formations as mapped by the survey, it may be said that, in general, the geological maps have saved the cost of a vast amount of exploratory work in barren areas, and have served to restrict exploration to more promising fields

This series of monographs constitutes a valuable addition to the library of those who are interested in the theory of ore deposition and in the intricate geology of the fullest known series of pre-Cambrian rocks. In addition to its value to local mining men and to geologists, another and scarcely less important use of this series has been to disseminate among scientific and commercial men information concerning a region of dominating importance in the most essential metallic industry of the United States.

FOR PARDON OF AN OKLAHOMAN

Strong Effort Being Made In Behalf of Tom Jones.

Guthrie, O. T., June 8.—The influence of a prominent Texas family, through a local attorney, is being brought to bear on Governor Ferguson to secure the pardon of Tom Jones, the Oklahoma prisoner in the Kansas penitentiary, who went to the assistance of the guards and prevented the escape of Bill Rudolph, now awaiting execution in the St. Louis jail. Jones—although that is not his real name—is serving sentence of fifty years for the murder of Deputy United States Marshal Huston, at Ingalls, I. T., in 1893. Governor Ferguson refuses to say whether he views the application in a favorable light or not, and declares he has not thoroughly investigated the merits of the case.

Colonel Buckner, of Guthrie, who is acting as attorney in the case, says Jones is a member of a prominent family in Texas, and at one time studied for the ministry. He has seven brothers, who are ministers, and since being confined in the penitentiary the wayward brother has profited by his early training, for he has been one of the principal bookkeepers for over ten years. Warden Jewett has sanctioned the application for a pardon, by declaring that Jones' prison record has been exemplary.

The murder for which Jones, as he called himself when captured, was convicted, was committed in one of the battles which were fought between the authorities and the Dalton and Doolin gangs, of which Jones was a member. He had, prior to this time, given up his early intention of becoming a minister, and turned cowboy. The success of the outlaws, together with the sentiment of almost respect in which they were held by his fellow cowboys, induced Jones to ride to Ingalls, the outlaw headquarters at that time, and offer himself as a recruit. That very morning the marshals made a raid on the town, in an effort to capture the desperadoes, and Huston was killed. All the outlaws escaped, save Jones, who declares he was asleep in the upstairs of the hotel, when the fight was in progress. Sentiment against the outlaws at that time, however, was intense, and he was found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for fifty years. It is asserted that since the gangs were broken up, several members have offered to make affidavit that Jones had nothing to do with killing Marshal Huston, as he was killed by other members of the outlaw bands in a fight at the livery stable, in which Jones could not have taken part.

ECZEMA

SETS THE SKIN ON FIRE.

No disease causes so much bodily discomfort, or itches, burns and stings like Eczema. It begins often with a slight redness of the skin, followed by pustules or blisters from which a gummy, sticky fluid oozes, which dries and scales off or forms bad looking sores and scabs. It appears on different parts of the body, but oftenest upon the back, arms, hands, legs and face, and is a veritable torment at times, especially at night or when overheated.

The cause of Eczema is a too acid condition of the blood. The terrifying itching and burning are produced by the overflow through the glands and pores of the skin of the fiery poisons with which the blood-current is overloaded. While external applications, such as washes, soaps, salves and powders are soothing and cooling, they do not enter into the blood itself or touch the real cause of the disease, but S. S. S. does, and purifies, enriches, and strengthens the thin acid blood and cleanses the general system, when the skin clears off and Eczema and all its terrifying symptoms disappear. Book on the Skin and its diseases free. No charge for medical advice.

Dear Sirs:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know what S. S. S. has done for me. I have suffered with Chronic Eczema for over fifteen years, and have spent a great deal of money trying to get cured. Have used salves and washes and different kinds of blood medicine, have been treated by the best doctors in the city, but could not get relief. My leg was in a terrible condition when I started the use of S. S. S. Have taken several bottles and now there is not a spot on my leg or any other part of my body. I feel like a new man.

Said to Be Particularly Effective In Nervous Diseases.

Boston, June 8.—A school of healing, in which the physician will combine with his knowledge of anatomy a thorough understanding of music, and the trained nurse will possess the ability to play a wide range of musical instruments as well as administer medicines, is the prophecy of the large number of persons who have taken up the "music cure" fad. In defense of their claims they insist that the theory has been given thorough proof already, and that in Europe it has been practiced successfully for several years. In Vienna its followers have gone so far as to establish a sanitarium where music is the chief means employed to effect cures of nervous disorders. Thus far in Boston the treatment for the most part has been confined to the homes of patients.

All assert that there is a subtle, mysterious quality in music that will cure many human ills, particularly those of a nervous origin. Different ailments require different kinds of music, just as a physician gives different medicines for different diseases, and so the music cure has come to be a sort of science.

Recently Mrs. Mary A. Livermore asked Miss Christine Brewn to play in the wards of the woman's hospital, and the results were so pronounced that Miss Brown has become an enthusiast on the subject and has repeated her experiments with marked success.

The choice of musical compositions, the proper moment for applying them, and a correct appreciation of the patient's constitution comprise the whole secret. For purely bodily ills, ailing ones are advised to try the effects of chords and airs until one is found that has greatest soothing effect. The choice of instruments is wide. No rules have yet been formed on this point, but the violin is thought to be a little more successful than others. A piano, however, is almost equally considered.

For deep-seated diseases or for those of an aggravated nervous nature, and in every case where the trouble is a mental one, music should be employed as a curative agent only under the directions of a physician. In many brain diseases a style of music that is suggested without reflection or rashly employed might produce serious consequences. In the treatment of simpler maladies experimentation is freely permitted. Boston physicians say there are on record instances of insanity being cured by music.

The advocates of the cure use many familiar illustrations to defend the fad, among them the fact that mothers in all lands always have sung to their babies and can soothe the most peevish little ones.

OREGON REPUBLICANS

Win Practically Everything at State Election.

Portland, Ore., June 8.—That the Republican party in this state scored an overwhelming victory in the state election is being made more apparent as the count comes in. Returns from isolated counties are coming in slowly. Congressman Binger Herman has been re-elected in the First district with a majority of about 7000, while J. N. Williamson, the Republican nominee in the Second district, rolled up a majority of 10,000, and later returns may swell this estimate somewhat.

The next legislature will be Republican by a large majority, and Republicans were elected to most of the county offices. Local option will probably carry with a good majority.

STORMY INTERVIEW

Said to Have Occurred Between Penrose and Elkin.

Philadelphia, June 8.—Senator Penrose, who is chairman of the Republican state committee, has been looked upon as state leader since the death of Senator Quay and the naming of the new senator is practically in his hands. Commissioner Durham is the leader of the Philadelphia organiatizon and advisor of Senator Penrose. Western Pennsylvania will be given the place and there is a warm contest on between Allegheny county, in which John P. Elkin, of Indiana county, who was defeated for the gubernatorial nomination two years ago and who was recently nominated by the state convention for justice of the supreme court for a term of twenty-one years at a salary of $10,000 per annum, is a candidate against the field. Allegheny county has put forth four candidates, two of whom are being seriously considered. They are George T. Oliver, a millionaire, and William A. Flynn, a leader in various political movements in Pittsburg.

Rumors has it that State Chairman Penrose and Mr. Durham are opposed to Elkin, and that they look with favor upon Mr. Oliver. Outside of Philadelphia and Allegheny counties Mr. Elkin is quite strong. On this account his friends declare he should be named for the vacant place.

There were persistent rumors afloat that Senator Penrose and Mr. Elkin have had a stormy interview and that strained relations exist between the two. These rumors were put point blank to Mr. Elkin, but he would neither confirm nor deny them.

STOLEN DIAMONDS RECOVERED.

New York, June 8.—Fifty thousand dollars worth of diamonds and jewelry were stolen last night from hotel Le Marquise, in East Thirty-first street. An hour later the valuables were found by the police in a furnished room in East Thirtieth street, occupied by William J. Dards and George Glocker, night clerk and head bell boy, respectively, at the hotel. Both men are under arrest. The stolen jewels are the property of Mrs. Halsey Corwin, wife of a Brooklyn millionaire, and were taken from the apartments at the hotel occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Corwin.

Schlitz

Beer is Good for You

When the nerves need food, beer is the usual prescription. So in insomnia; so in nervousness.

The doctor knows that malt and hops are nerve foods and tonics. And he knows that most people drink too little fluid to rid the system of waste.

He knows that pure beer is good for you.

That is why he says "Schlitz." He knows that Schlitz beer is brewed in absolute cleanliness. It is even cooled in filtered air. And every bottle is sterilized.

Half the cost of our brewing is spent to insure absolute purity. Ask for the brewery bottling.

INSTRUCT FOR JUDGE GRAY

Delaware Democrats Insist On His Candidacy For Presidency.

Dover, Del., June 8.—Contrary to the expressed wish of Judge George Gray, the Delaware Democratic state convention by a unanimous vote yesterday instructed its delegates to the St. Louis convention to present the name of Judge Gray to the convention as the choice of the Delaware Democracy for the presidency and to work for his nomination. This action was taken after one of the most stormy conventions ever held in the state. The leader of the opposition to the Gray boom was Former Congressman Kenney, who was opposed to the word "instruct." He offered a resolution that the delegates be "requested" to place Judge Gray's name before the national convention.

The fight between the Gray and the anti-Gray factions became so bitter that the former paid no attention to Judge Gray's letter, in which he asked that the delegates be not instructed. They fought to defeat Kenney and would not listen to anything that his supporters offered. In his letter Judge Gray expressed his great anxiety for harmony in the Democratic party this year and held that the Democratic national convention should be left free to select as the candidate for president the strongest and most available man. He therefore requested that the delegates selected to represent Delaware Democrats at St. Louis be not bound by instructions but be left free to act as the best interests of the party seemed to require.

Judge Gray knew nothing of the action of the convention until informed by reporters last night. In reply to a question as to whether the action of the convention would change his attitude, he said: "I have not changed my attitude at all. I am not a candidate for president. The instructions were against my expressed wishes."

SHOOTING OF ETZEL

By the Chinese, Described By His Companion.

London, June 8.—Ernest Brindle, the Daily Mail's correspondent in Manchuria, in a description of the death of Lewis Etzel, the correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, who was shot by Chinese soldiers while in a junk between Shwantaitze and Erdiko, says:

"Our intention was to cruise along the Liao Tung coast. About 6 o'clock in the morning the junk was surrounded by four sailing boats manned by Chinese soldiers, who, without explanation, opened fire, their shots falling over our boat. We were below reading and writing and Etzel, looking out, received a fearful wound in the back of his head and expired in a few moments.

"The soldiers, who were dressed like pirates, said they mistook us for a pirate boat they were seeking. They afterward donned uniforms.

"I walked to Tienchwangtai to summon assistance. One of the Chinese crew was badly wounded and it is not likely that he will recover."

KILLED BY BROKER.

Albany Man Shoots Partner With Shotgun.

Albany, N. Y., June 8.—Richard Pruesser, a well known broker of this city, shot and killed Miles McDonnell, a member of the Boston Metropolitan Stock Exchange, early this morning. Both men were interested in the company and had been on amicable terms until just before the tragedy. Pruesser had been drinking heavily and left a restaurant, went to his office and got a shotgun. He then went to the hotel Ten Eyck, where McDonnell was stopping and went to McDonnell's room. As soon as McDonnell opened the door Pruesser shot him dead.

It was said that McDonnell before he went to Boston was a New York gambler and killed a man named Price in a Harlem saloon. Pruesser assisted in securing an acquittal for McDonnell.

MUST MAKE PAYMENTS.

Government Notifies World's Fair Company.

St. Louis, June 8.—In a letter received by the Exposition company yesterday, Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, gave formal notification that if payments on the $4,600,000 government loan are not promptly forthcoming when due, he, as guardian of the United States treasury, will take charge of the receipts and collection of fair tickets.

The letter formally reminds the Exposition company of the date for the payment of the first installment of the loan and includes a copy of the rules governing the loan and repayment.

These rules set forth that the loan of $4,600,000 was made to the Exposition company in the months of February, March, April and May, 1904, and that in return the government is to have a first lien on the receipts of the fair from paid admissions and concession privileges. Payments are to be made each half month, the first payment, June 15, when 40 per cent of the gross receipts, from June 1 to June 15, shall be surrendered. Thereafter, at the 1st and 15th of each month, 40 per cent of the receipts for the previous half months shall be paid, and it is further provided that after the 1st of July the semi-monthly payments shall not be less than $500,000 each.

GAVE HALF HIS FORTUNE

To Woman He Married Two Hours Before He Died.

Goshen, Ind., June 8.—An effort will be made by the heirs at law of the late George P. Moorehead, a wealthy dry goods merchant, of South Bend, Ind., to break his will. The case has been brought to Goshen for trial. The defendant in the case is Mrs. Mayme Tutt-Moorehead, who married Moorehead at St. Joseph's hospital, South Bend, but two hours before he died. Immediately following the ceremony, Moorehead, making the explanation he knew death would be inevitable within a few hours, called for a lawyer and drew his will.

To his new wife, who had been a clerk in a drygoods store in South Bend he bequeathed $50,000. Having no other relatives, the balance of the estate was left to his legal heirs, his nieces and nephews, who are the plaintiffs in this suit.

Albert H. Cushing, Miss Tutt's brother-in-law, witnessed the marriage and as an executor of the will is made co-defendant.

Moorehead's nieces and nephews, Thomas M., Rachael L., Effie B., Margaret M., and Henry J. Whiteman and Samuel, Fergus and John Rock, Jr., all live at Pittsburg. They allege their uncle made the will under duress and that fraud was resorted to to get his wealth.

PECULIAR TERMS

Of Maiden's Will Leaving $100,000 to Charity.

Cleveland, O., June 8.—Suit has been filed to set aside the will of the late Miss Mary E. Brainard, who died last winter and left the bulk of her $100,000 estate to charity. It is claimed that the document admitted to probate in this county is not the last will which Miss Brainard made.

Miss Brainard's will contains one of the most peculiar and eccentric charitable bequests ever made in Cuyahoga county. By the terms of her will the greater part of her estate will pass into a trust fund, of which the trustees of Parma and Brooklyn townships were to be the managing board. The probate judge was also to exercise a sort of general supervision of the charity, and the revenues from the trust fund so created were to be distributed among the "worthy poor" of the two townships.

It was specified that no resident of a village or city, no matter how poor or how worthy, was to receive of the money, and preference was to be given to farmers.

LURE FOR MOSQUITOES.

Music Hath Power to Charm the Pest.

New York, June 8.—Music hath power to charm the baleful mosquito and lure him to electrocution, according to Mrs. Amelia Weed Holbrook, who read a paper on the properties of music before the Professional Women's League.

"It has been discovered that the hearing apparatus of this little nuisance,' said Mrs. Holbrook, "is attuned to catch sounds, and these can be made to vibrate to the pitch of certain musical notes. When these are sounded the entire nervous system of the insect is affected, and when raised to a greater number of vibrations a second, yet in harmony with the lower note, the mosquito becomes paralyzed.

"When the note is sounded the mosquito will plunge toward the music, and if the windows are opened from the outside the insects will fill the room and will precipitate themselves against the apparatus. The method provides for the setting up of a musical instrument that will vibrate at the proper pitch to attract the mosquitoes and to surround it with a wire screen charged with electricity, so that as the mosquitoes plunge against the screen they will be electrocuted."

Not only mosquitoes but mice are to be taught through their musical tastes. Mrs. Holbrook described a trap that, instead of being baited with cheese, has hidden in a double bottom a small musical box which plays automatically all the popular airs.

MAY HAVE DROWNED.

Father and Son Missing and Probably Perished.

Bemidji, Minn., June 8.—A special telegram to the Pioneer from Blackduck is to the effect that John Holzberger, a homesteader living on Blackduck lake, and his 14-year-old son are believed to have been drowned in Blackduck lake last Sunday night.

Father and son had been in Blackduck Sunday morning, where the parent had come to do some shopping, and late Sunday night left for Blackduck landing in a small boat for their home on the other side of the lake.

The man and his son were the only occupants of the boat and the father, who had been drinking in Blackduck, is said to have been in an intoxicated condition. Besides some groceries the boat was loaded with several sacks of feed. The lake was very rough when they started across.

Neither father nor son have been heard from an dthe opinion that they have been drowned generally prevails.

Searching parties were sent out yesterday and the lake is being dragged in an effort to recover the bodies.

OWNERSHIP OF REVOLVER

Which Shot Frank Young May Solve Mystery of Death.

New York, June 8.—After a second effort within twenty-four hours to secure from J. Morgan Smith, brother-in-law of Mrs. Nan Patterson, any information he may possess as to the ownership of the revolver which killed Bookmaker Frank T. Young, a subpoena has been served directing Smith to appear before the grand jury today.

Detectives have been at work constantly since the tragedy, which occurred Saturday morning in a cab, to trace the ownership of the revolver, whereby they expect to unravel the mystery surrounding the affair. It was at first stated that the weapon had probably been shipped by a local firm to San Francisco. This was found, however, to be incorrect, and now it is definitely said that it was sold over the counter here. This occurred in 1898, when Young was in San Francisco and another person connected with the affair is understood to have been in New York.

Mrs. Patterson's brother-in-law, who was called to the district attorney's office yesterday and examined at length, was visited several hours later by detectives, and upon refusing to answer their questions, he was served with a subpoena.

A well-known young pugilist from the West, who has just returned from Europe, is understood to have promised to meet the expense of defending Mrs. Patterson, and has made arrangements to furnish bail for her should the court decide upon accepting bond.

Lung Diseases Cause of Quarter of Deaths In May.

Over one quarter of all the deaths which took place in Duluth during the month of May were directly caused by diseases of the lungs, while in a number of others lung diseases were mentioned as contributing causes.

Tuberculosis and pneumonia are by far the most prevalent diseases in the city at the present time and are responsible for several times as many deaths as any of the other common maladies.

During the month of May the total number of deaths in the city was 61. Of this number ten were caused by tuberculosis and six by pneumonia, making a total of sixteen or slightly over 26 per cent of all of the deaths.

The contagious diseases are well under control. Only one death from diphtheria was reported during the month while scarlet fever and smallpox were not responsible for any.

Two deaths from accidental drowning appear in the list this month, and there is one case of suicide by hanging.

What is probably the first case on the records of death by nasal hemorrhages was reported during May. It was that of ex-Alderman Joseph A. Mannheim. Two deaths due to over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors were also reported, and the remainder of them were caused by the ordinary diseases such as peritonitis, meningitis, cancer and heart failure.

The total of the births for the month which have been reported up to the present time is ninety-three. The physicians have until June 15 to report the May births, however, and a few will probably be reported between now and that date, bringing the total up to about 105.

There was but one pair of twins born during the month. Of the ninety-three births, fifty were boys and forty-three girls.

Figuring the number of births at 105, the natural increase in the population of the city during the month, caused by the excess of births over the number of deaths will be forty-four. The yearly increase at this rate would be 528 or a little less than 1 per cent of the total population.

NEXT WEEK'S CONVENTION

Music Teachers From All Over State to Be Here.

The convention of Minnesota State music teachers will meet one week from tomorrow, and hold a session of three days' duration. The meetings of this body of teachers have really a great significance, as many of the members come from little towns scattered all over the state, and have during the year very little opportunity to hear the class of music offered at the conventions. Apart from the outside artists presented at the convention concerts, the state itself commands an exceptional array of fine talent. The organists that will appear in Duluth are equal to the best artists found anywhere in the country and music lovers will have a chance to revel in organ music of the highest type.

Beside the organists, the state sends a variety of its select players and singers and the convention will be an inspiration as well to the teachers, whose aim and duty lies in elevating the cause of music to ever loftier planes, as to the general public, who will take pride and pleasure in the advanced musical position Minnesota holds among the states. The convention offers not less than twelve concerts and meetings, among them three organ recitals.

WEST DULUTH

It is expected that at the council meeting next Monday evening there will be a petition from West Duluthians asking that the city establish a roadway from the end of Wadena street east to Fifty-sixth avenue, a distance of one block. The petition is about to be circulated, it is understood, in the district interested, and it is thought that a large number of signers will be secured.

At present the land in question is private property, although there is a sidewalk across the strip. This walk, however, is now to be torn up, and a building placed directly across its path necessitating an extra walk of four blocks for those persons who desire to go out Wadena street from Fifty-sixth avenue, by making them go about two blocks north or south of their direct course, so as to avoid crossing the private property in question.

It will be suggested at the council meeting that suppficient ground be purchased in this vicinity to allow the laying of a narrow street, as a continuation of Wadena street. As the distance is short, only one block, the petitioners hope that their request will be granted.

MANY AT SPIRIT LAKE.

Great Resort For Pleasure Seekers Now.

With the advent of pleasant weather Spirit Lake is becoming a favorite morning and evening resort for pleasure and fishing parties from Duluth and West Duluth. Yesterday and today the fishermen have been numerous, and have most of them met with very fair luck.

Last evening there were in the vicinity of twenty row boats and launches in and about the lake, and the majority of their occupants were anglers. Several good strings of pike and pickerel were caught. The lake is only three miles above West Duluth, so that it is an easy matter for the little launches to reach it after business hours, giving two or three hours for fishing.

Some of the launch parties from Duluth camp on Spirit island over night and get up with the sun to try their luck with the pike. In this manner they have an opportunity to enjoy themselves for an hour or two in the morning and then get to Duluth in time for the work of the day.

ing a rifle and a shotgun concealed behind a large ice box. Subsequently they went to the union headquarters and overturned everything in an effort to find the union records. Their efforts were unavailing.

All of the injured in the accident at Independence and the rioting in Victor are reported doing well. No definite clue, it is understood has been obtained through the bloodhounds which were started on the trail of the persons who placed the infernal machine under the station at Independence. While the tension is tightly drawn and the whole district has taken sides in the bitter feeling existing between the Mine Owners' association and the unionists it is thought a crash will be averted for the reason that most of the union leaders are in durance. The streets of this city are being constantly patrolled by deputies and soldiers.

Denver, June 8.—The twenty-four deported union miners from the Cripple Creek district exiled since the serious riots in that section have arrived at Denver on a special train over the Denver & Rio Grande. In the rear of the car stood nine guards armed with shotguns and army rifles, who had been deputized to conduct them to Denver from the gold camps. The miners were unarmed. Nearly all were penniless. The men were met by about forty of the delegates to the convention of the Western Federation of Miners and were taken to a restaurant. The miners declare that the Cripple Creek district is no longer safe for union men.

The miners assert that when arrested they were searched by the guards of the military and Citizens' Alliance and their money and valuables taken. They also declare that before they were placed on the train, they were lined up by members of the Citizens' Alliance and their federation cards taken from them. They were told that they were wanted in Cripple Creek, but that they must take out cards in the Citizens' Alliance to stay. If they did not consent to do this they were to be deported.

TELLURIDE EXCITED

Over Outbreak In the Cripple Creek District.

Telluride, Col., June 8.—The recent outbreak in the Cripple Creek district has inspired the military here to renewed activity. Crowds have been gathering before the bulletin boards containing news from Cripple Creek, and some feeling was displayed. Lest trouble should result from a too free discussion of the incidents occurring at Cripple Creek, Capt. Wells, in command of this district, began rounding up the men, until he had marched between sixty and seventy to the district court room. Each man arrested was compelled to give an account of himself. The majority of them made a satisfactory showing to the captain and were released with a few words of admonition as to their future conduct.

Those men who are not employed at the present time were told plainly that they must either go to work at once, or leave San Miguel county. Capt. Wells advised the men of the necessity of conducting themselves in an orderly manner, and they were especially forbidden to indulge in discussions, or talk that would create excitement in the camp, or tend to prompt parties to lawless acts.

THE REASON WHY.

Because it supplies the strength to the body to throw off the cold and prevent pneumonia and consumption, is why physicians indorse Father John's Medicine for all throat and lung troubles. Its nourishing qualities furnish vitality by which the system is able to ward off attacks of colds—it helps the stomach to assimilate food and forces nutrition into the blood. Not a patent medicine, and free from weakening stimulants, alcohol or nerve-destroying and poisonous drugs. We are able to guarantee it because it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. During the 50 years of its success, since it was prescribed for the late Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., by whom it was recommended and from whom it derived its name. Father John's Medicine is for sale by all druggists; the L. W. Leithhead Drug Co., wholesale distributors.

TO CALL STRIKE OFF.

Official Organ Urges Miners to Do So.

Victor, Colo., June 8.—The Record, owned and edited by George E. Kynor and recognized as the official organ of the Western Federation of Miners in the Cripple Creek district, published an editorial today urging the miners to call off the strike inaugurated ten months ago. The article says:

"Public sentiment is growing against the Western Federation of Miners on account of its continuing the strike. There are few people who believe that this organization of miners is responsible for the crimes that have been committed here, except that if the strike had not been called and continued so long the dynamiting would not have occurred, and in that respect the strike is responsible for this outrage, whether there was justice in the calling of it or not. In the interest of the men and women who have made the Cripple Creek district, the Record asks the Western Federation of Miners to call off the strike. Miners living in this district are losing their homes or being obliged to go away and leave them. None of them, when they express their convictions, as many of them have to the writer, believe that there is any chance of winning the strike, but that the longer it is kept going the further they are away from securing work. They are not in a position to stand it much longer and the Record asks, as labor's best and demonstrative friend through this hard struggle, that it be called off at once, or else people will either be forced to leave the federation or their homes.

"The Record does not have the confidence of the mine owners, or of the military or of the Citizens' alliance, and it makes this plea solely in the interest of the men and women of this district that are without work, without money, without food, and who believe there is no hope of winning the strike and want it called off."

The tension of the situation at the theater of war is manifestly increasing. The general staff is becoming more reticent and the public is convinced that an important battle which may decide the fate of the campaign is impending. The outpost engagements between the main armies of Generals Kuropatkin and Kuroki have suddenly ceased. Such a lull frequently occurs after two armies have been for some time in touch and just before they are ready to strike. Kuroki has not yet moved according to the latest advices, but is drawing in his skirmishers as if preparing to do so. Developments on the lower part of the Liao Tung peninsula may determine when and where the two armies will come in collision. Kuropatkin has elaborately fortified his position at Liao Yang, in anticipation of a possible forward movement on the part of Kuroki and the army landed at Taku Shan. But Kuroki's failure to assume the aggressive and the approach of the rainy season, which would stop operations, as well as the pressure to impede General Oku's army may have been determining factors in dispatching a force southward, the strength of which is as much a mystery as ever. The Japanese apparently are not averse to this advance, having already withdrawn before it to below Wafandian. If Kuroki should now push in behind this force across the head of the Liao Tung peninsula Kuropatkin, in the opinion of military experts, with nothing to fear on his flank is certain to come down from the north and a decisive battle might occur in the neighborhood of Faicheng.

The admiralty is convinced that either the battleship Yashima or the battleship Shikishima has been lost off Talien Wan.

CHINESE ADMIT

That They Fired on and Killed Etzel.

Newchwang, June 8.—The funeral of Lewis Etzel, correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, will take place here this afternoon. He was killed ten miles out at sea by some Chinese soldiers who were searching for pirates. Immediately after realizing the mistake they had made, these men put out to sea and have not been seen since. United States Consul General Miller held an inquest at Shwantaltze yesterday, at which the Chinese General Lu acknowledged that Etzel was killed by his soldiers.

Ernest Brindle of the London Daily Mail, who was along with Etzel when he was shot, testified that their junk was unchallenged by the soldiers and was fired upon in spite of the fact that the two foreigners were plainly visible at a distance of less than 10 yards. At least 150 shots were fired at the correspondents' junk, which did not reply.

Consul General Miller will forward his report to United States Minister Conger at Pekin, showing gross carelessness upon the part of the soldiers, to say the least. While Brindle is uncommunicative regarding the plans, which took himself and Etzel on the sea voyage, the Associated Press correspondent has learned that they were attempting to reach Port Arthur. The Russian authorities are doing all in their power to assist the American officials in the matter. General Kondratovitch placed a steam launch with twenty-five soldiers under the orders of Consul General Miller and otherwise rendered great aid in recovering the body of Etzel. Consul General Miller has replied to Gen. Kondratovitch, thanking him heartily for his kindness, on behalf of the United States government.

THROUGH DARDANELLES.

Turk May Allow Black Sea Fleet to Pass.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The Grand Duke Alexis, commander-in-chief of the navy, according to an apparently reliable report, which, however, is not officially confirmed, has obtained the permission of the emperor to create a third Pacific squadron from the ships of the Black sea fleet, and permission has already been obtained from Turkey to take the ships through the Dardanelles on the condition that they will not return.

This fleet will be composed, according to report, of the battleships Rostislav, Dvenadzat, Apostoloff and Tria Sviattitalia. They will be accompanied by torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers, and will sail for the far East simultaneously with the Baltic squadron.

The Associated Press is unable to obtain any confirmation of the report.

London, June 8.—The foreign office has not received any request from Russia or Turkey to agree to the passage of the Russian Black sea fleet through the Dardanelles.

It is pointed out that Turkey doubtless would be delighted to get rid of Russia's Black sea fleet, but the passage of warships through the Dardanelles would be a distinct contravention of the treaty, permission for which has neither been asked nor is likely to be granted if asked for.

STRUCK A ROCK.

Russian Torpedo Boat Sunk In Kin Chou Bay.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch from Viceroy Alexieff:

"According to the report of Rear Admiral Wittsoeft, on the battle of Kin Chou, our right flank was strongly supported by the gunboat Bobr and the torpedo boats Burni and Boiki, which afterwards returned to Port Arthur.

"On the night of May 26 ten torpedo boats were sent out against the Japanese boats operating in Kin Chou bay. One of the torpedo boats struck the rocks and sank. Her crew were saved.

"The casualties among those serving the naval guns were: Sub-Lieut. Shimanobovsky missing and six sailors wounded."

THE LARGEST CLASS

In History of Brainerd High School Graduated.

Brainerd, Minn., June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The largest class in the history of the Brainerd high school was graduated last night. The class numbered twenty. The graduation exercisse were held in the Brainerd Opera house and were largely attended.

Two large conventions will be held in this city for three days, commencing tomorrow. The one is the convention of the English-speaking Baptist churches of what is known as the Northwestern district of the state of Minnesota. The other is the convention of Swedish Baptist churches of the entire state. A large number of people prominent in Baptist circles will be present, and interesting programs have been prepared in both languages.

Poundmaster Ed Woodbury had a serious time of it yesterday when he attempted to take up a cow belonging to one William Lamekin. Lamekin jumped on the officer and administered a rather severe trouncing before the latter could get hold of his gun. When he did get his gun out of his pocket he took two shots at Lamekin as he was fleeing away, but both bullets went wide of the mark. A warrant is out for the arrest of Lamekin, but he has skipped out, according to the authorities.

BREAK IN WHEAT

Small Receipts In Northwest—Flax Slightly Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 8.—Wheat had a reaction this morning after the advance of yesterday. Cables were indifferent, the Liverpool market closing ½d lower. Weather conditions were good, but most of all the demand seemed to have been satisfied yesterday, and in spite of light Northwestern receipts the market steadily dropped off. The July option in Duluth fell ¾c, in Minneapolis ⅞-⅞c, in Chicago 1⅛c and in New York 1c. In Minneapolis September lost ⅞c and in Duluth 1c. The trade will for a day or two probably hold off, awaiting the government report of Friday which will give the condition of winter wheat and the acreage and condition of spring wheat, a very important report.

Snow's crop report for June was issued this morning and said:

"Weather conditions during May were favorable for winter wheat, but the actual improvement in condition was smaller than expected. The present condition is 76.3, against 74.5 on May 1. The improvement is most marked in Tennessee and Kentucky, but is only nominal in the Ohio valley. Missouri and Kansas improved only two points, while Michigan shows further depreciation. The figures in the leading states are: Ohio, 58; Indiana, 58; Illinois, 79; Missouri, 84; Kansas, 88, and Nebraska, 81. Complete returns fail to show the increased breadth expected in spring wheat, the area being reported at 20,190,000 acres, against 20,176,000 harvested last year. Minnesota and South Dakota show a slight enlargement, but North Dakota and Nebraska offset it with an equal decrease. The condition of the crop is good, the average being 90.9 against 94.7 last year. The plant is vigorous, and but for a little lateness in growth the condition would be higher. Complete returns develop decrease in oat acreage, the total breadth being a fraction smaller than last year. There is a good increase in the Ohio valley and in the Southwest, but rain interfered with seeding in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, and the shortage in these states offsets the increase elsewhere. Total acreage returned at 29,494,000 acres, against 29,561,000 last year. Condition of the crop moderately high, 90.1 against 86.6 last year. On this basis a reasonable crop expectation would be somewhat above 900,000,000 bus, against an estimated yield last year of 823,000,000 bus.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 44, against 15 last year and at Minneapolis 73, against 278 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 117, against 293 last year. Chicago received 29 against 36 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 260,000 bus., last year 355,000 bus. Shipments 227,000 bus., last year 266,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 25,753 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. July corn in the Chicago market closed ⅝-⅜c lower. July oats closed ⅛-¼c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 943,000 bus., last year 421,000 bus. Shipments 274,000 bus., last year 278,000 bus. Clearances were 17,459 bus.

This was one of the dullest days the Duluth market has seen in months. The July option in wheat opened ¼c lower at 95⅝c, sold at 95¾-⅞c at 11:30, fell to 95c at 11:55 and closed at 94⅜c. This was ¾c lower than yesterday. September wheat fell 1c to 91¾c.

Cash offerings were small. Receipts are increasing somewhat, however. Mills are good bidders for wheat on track.

Flax was very dull and held unchanged most of the morning but finally closed ¼c higher for all options and cash seed.

There was no change in oats or rye.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Sentiment In the Wheat Pit Was Easier.

Chicago, June 8.—Sentiment in the wheat pit today was easier under the influence of indifferent cables and an improvement in weather conditions. Notwithstanding much smaller receipts in the Northwest pit traders were inclined to the selling side of the market, offerings being quite liberal. July opened 1⅛@1¼c to 1⅛@⅞c lower at 87⅝c to 87¾c. After selling off to 87⅝c, the price rallied to 88@⅛c on covering by shorts. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 157 cars, against 274 cars last week and 302 cars a year ago.

Through the day small longs continued to take profits and the market developed additional weakness. Favorable progress in harvesting was reported from the Southwest, and many bearish crop reports were received. After selling down to 86⅜c, July closed at 86⅞@87c.

Excellent growing weather was offset by smaller receipts and a good cash demand, resulting in a firm tone in corn. Reports from the country indicate that the supply of corn is becoming exhausted. This helped to strengthen the situation. July opened unchanged to ⅛c up at 49⅝c to 49¾c, sold off to 49¼c, but rallied again to 49⅝@⅝c. Local receipts were 237 cars with 36 of contract grade.

The market followed wheat in its downward course, the feature of trading being liquidation by small holders. The close was at the low point, July being down ⅝@¾c at 48⅜@⅝c.

As a result of a strong cash demand and light country offerings sentiment in oats was firm. Trading, however, was light. July opened unchanged to shade higher at 32⅝@⅔c to 32¾c, sold at 32⅝@⅔c and then advanced to 32¾c. Local receipts were 102 cars.

Provisions were strong in sympathy with an advance of 15c in the price of hogs. There was a good demand from packers, but offerings were rather light. September pork opened unchanged to 12½c up at $12.32½; sold at $12.45, and steadied at $12.37½. September lard was up 2½c to 5c at $6.82½ to $6.85. Ribs were up a shade to 5c@7½c at $7.15 to $7.20.

Close: Wheat—July, 86¾@87c; old, 88⅛@⅜c; September, 84⅛c; old, 82⅜c; December, 86⅝@⅞c. Corn—June, 47⅜@⅝c; July, 48⅜@⅝c; September, 47⅞c; December, 43⅝c; May, 43c. Oats—June, 43⅜c; July, 32⅝c; September, 31½c; December, 31½@⅝c. Pork—July, $12; September, $12.20. Lard—July, $6.57½; September, $6.77½; January, $6.70. Ribs—July, $6.87½; September, $7.07½. GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker Chicago Grain Letter: Wheat—Crop damage claims and bullish enthusiasm disappeared with the improvement in the weather. The trade was small and local, and the response to such bull news as came to hand was noticeably feeble. The reports of wheat harvesting along the southern boundary of Kansas proved very effective bear aids occuring the last hour. Minneapolis was the chief dispenser of bull items. Stocks there decreased 425,000 bushels in four days. There was reported a better inquiry for cash wheat from millers, and country elevators receipts were said to be quite light. Minneapolis was bidding 3c over Kansas City July for new two hard. On the basis of last nights close this is equivalent to 88 cents Chicago. We do no see anything in the bull side of wheat for the present. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 25 cars.

Corn—Was dull and weak. The local crowd atempted to bull it during the morning, first on news 24 hours old, and then on showery weather predicted for portions of the western belt. The first had already been discounted, and the latter can hardly be considered a bullish feature in as much as precipitations elsewhere are favorable. Receipts everywhere were large. Arrivals here for two days have exceeded shipments by 1,000,000 bushels. The shipping demand is slow. Low grade corn in the casmple market was all 1 to ½c higher. Good corn was steady. This market will work lower.

Oats—The oats market was firm throughout the session. The trade was not heavy but local operators were bullish on the improved shipping demand the light contract stocks, firm sample market and light country and local receipts. Snow reports the acreage of the spring crop a shade smaller than a year ago and condition 90.1 compared with 86.6 on which basis a 900,000,000 bushel crop can reasonably be expected. The September is too high with the present crop outlook. The future of the July depends on whether it is, or is not ,an old crop month.

Chicago Record-Herald: Much importance will attach to the weather conditions of the next forty days in the winter wheat belt. It will take about that time to complete the harvesting of Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. This is because of the different varieties of wheat raised. The harvesting of the soft winter wheat has already begun in the southern part of this section and before it is finished the soft wheat will be ready to cut in Nebraska. This will be followed in turn by the cutting of the hard wheat in the southern portion of the territories and the harvesting of the hard wheat in Nebraska, will follow on. In fact there is likely to be a continuance of the wheat harvest in Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas for the next thirty to forty days and the same help that does the harvesting will be called upon to do the threshing later. Unusual rain fall during this period would undoubtedly create great apprehension and possibly do considerable damage.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Cables dull and unchanged. It was a dull market and the tone distinctly heavy Receipts are again a little less than a year ago, but the whole cash situation is slow with the demand of a hand to mouth character. The whole tone of the market is heavy and prices have a dragging tendency, and the cables indicate nothing but dullness. The weather is about perfect everywhere for the needs of the crop.

Corn—The tone was heavy under poor support and renewed selling by the local bears. There is no change in the cash situation. Receipts are below expectations, but they are in excess of a year ago and the demand is moderate. There is more or less uncertainty in regard to country offerings. Prices are high, however, and this will probably be a factor.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Trading Showed Greater Breadth and Activity Than Recently.

New York, June 8.—Prices of stocks today started slightly higher from the continued impulse of yesterday's late advance. Denver & Rio Grande preferred rose 1¼, on the strength of the regular dividend declaration. Missouri Pacific and Delaware & Hudson gained ½.

Average gains reached about ½ throughout, with quite an accumulation of the grain carriers. St. Paul preferred, the Toledo, St. Louis & Western stocks and International Paper preferred advanced ⅞ to 1. Consolidated Gas, which closed yesterday at 203¾, was dealt in ex rights at from 189½ to 190¾. The rights brought 15½@6¾. United States Steel preferred was pushed up ⅞ towards the end of the hour.

There were some advances and the general level of prices was well maintained, although Consolidated Gas ran off 1¼. Missouri Pacific, Reading first preferred and Railway Investment preferred rose 1. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 1¼ and Kansas & Texas preferred ½. Bonds were irregular.

Trading showed greater breadth and activity after noon and considerable headway upward was made by the coalers and western stocks. Numerous stocks of less importance shared in the rise and speculation was quite animated at intervals. St. Paul, Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading and the second preferred, Eric first preferred, Delaware & Hudson and Jersey Central were most conspicious in the movemnt and gained ⅞ to 1½. Half a dozen other stocks rose fully as much.

The active demand for stocks ceased, and prices eased off. Chicago, Great Western was put under pressure again and sold down.

A movement to realize wiped out the best part of the days gain and carried Ontario & Western ¾ under last night's level. The closing was heavy and lifeless.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: There is very little change in sentiment. The best judges of speculative conditions continue to talk hopefully of the financial outlook, but do not expect any immediate activity. Commission business is light. The public is apathetic and the big capitalists will take no aggressive part in the stock market until they know who are to be nominated by the national conventions. In Wall street circles Roosevelt's nomination is regarded by the Republicans as a foregone conclusion and the nomination of Parker by the Democrats is believed to be reasonably certain. In this event important interests are expected to become aggressive bulls, taking the position that with these candidates in the field the election campaign will not have the paralyzing influence on general business exerted by that of a few years ago. It is recalled that the rise in prices which followed the reelection of McKinley was preceeded by a long period of dullness, the chief reason for which was that the great financial interests were determined that the market should remain perfectly quiet until silverism and Bryanism should be finally disposed of. There is no currency issue this year. Some commission houses see in the creeping up of special groups of stocks, as the coalers and tractions, and the improving business in bonds over the country of bonds houses, signs of a parting of stocks.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market shows some further gain in prices. It also shows some gain in activity. This latter is no doubt due to covering of shorts, but the buying finds scant offerings of stocks. There is also a noticeable gain in the expression of sentiment from Wall street. This is based on the factors mentioned in our letter of yesterday. The buyer of stocks may have to have patience. A great activity through the midsummer months is not likely, but we doubt if stocks bought at this level will show any material loss and that the patience will be rewarded in the end.

• • •

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Stocks—With few exceptions the market showed good strength. It is reported Harriman interests are taking more active part in the market. Business more widely distributed. Commission houses report more interest in the market. Professionals seem disposed to work for more of a rally. We suggest taking profits even of a moderate kind. Market eased off on profit taking at the close.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: Stocks—American stocks in London, steady. Our market opened strong unchanged to fraction higher and held firm all morning. The market shows a little more activity today than it has for some time. There is nothing to base expectations on, liquidation on, and good stocks bought on the declines will show good profits in the near future.

• • •

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was steady and strong and showed better tone than it has for some time. All the active stocks were advanced and the traders took the bull side. Reading issues were very strong and some of the specialties were taken hold of. Near the close prices eased off a little but they held firm and the general feeling was that we shall see still further advances. The close was steady.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 8.—The cotton market opened steady with an advance of 5 points to a decline of 4 points, the old crop being firmer on the cables, while the new crop was depressed by the excellent weather. Trading was moderately active following the call, but cables weakened soon after the local opening, and there seemed to be a renewal of bear pressure from Wall street, so that before the end of the first five minutes the list had been forced down to a net loss of 11@16 points, with July selling at 11.34, October 10.45, December 9.55. Later a reaction set in and prices at the end of the first hour were about 20@5 points lower.

Spot closed quiet, 10 points lower. Middling uplands, 11.70; ditto gulf, 11.95. Sales 613 bales. Futures closed very steady. June, 11.25; July, 11.35; August, 10.76; September, 9.88; October, 9.59; November, 9.51; December, 9.53; January, 9.55.

ARE NOT SO FIRM

Local Masters and Pilots Are Showing Some Uneasiness.

Important Meeting to Be Held—The Situation Discussed.

It is expected that there will be something doing at the regular meeting of the Masters' and Pilots' association, to be held this evening. Although nothing special is scheduled to come up, a stormy session is looked for.

The plain fact of the matter, as announced by a Duluth captain today, is that local members of the association are daily becoming more discontented. The Duluth harbor, up to this time, has been one of the most orderly along the lakes regarding strike matters, and has quietly followed out all instructions coming from Cleveland. The boast has been made that but one man has deserted the ranks.

But lately signs of discontent have appeared. The leaders stand firm as before and say little, except in the way of words of encouragement to the men, but the captains themselves are far frum satisfied with the manner in which their side of the difficulty has been carried on. It appears that they are losing hope of winning. The reports of wholesale desertions from the ranks at other ports have tended to discourage many of the members of the local branch of the association. Speaking relative to the matter today one of them said:

"It looks very bad for our side of the case. There are a good many masters here in Duluth who would rejoice the association in a minute if they could obtain assurance of steady employment for this and next season. They want, however, a contract for the two season's work before they leave the ranks. This the Carriers refused to give. That is just where the trouble lies—the Carriers' association, locally at least, offers no guarantee of protection to the men who leave the association and go to work. They might work them this season and let them go next season. Then the captain could go and saw wood for a living. The prospect either way is not a pleasant one. Things have come to such a pass that we cannot for the life of us figure out whether it will be to our advantage to remain in the association or to desert and go to work. We are on the fence and don't know which way to jump. I understand that Wolvin wants three captains now. He would get them in a minute if he would agree to protect their interests in the future. A lot of us are willing enough to quit the association, but we are afraid if we do so that it will mean saw wood for a living at some future date. There will be some pretty plain talk at the meeting tonight, or I miss my guess."

ASSOCIATION BOATS CLEAR.

The following Lake Carrier association boats left Duluth harbor yesterday: Oscargotland, flour, for Montreal; Sonoma, for Buffalo with grain; the tug H. B. Hawgood for Buffalo with grain, and the S. S. Curry, also loaded with grain for Buffalo.

The steamer James H. Hoyt, of the Provident Steamship line, the first of the Lake Carrier boats to depart from Duluth this season, returned yesterday with a cargo of coal. She is the first Lake Carrier boat to make a round trip from the head of the lakes this season.

MORE CAPTAINS HERE.

Two more lake captains left the St. Louis this morning, they being W. C. Butts, of Milwaukee, and W. G. Stewart, of Leslie, Mich., who have been stopping there for two weeks. They paid their bills and had their belongings sent to the docks. Both are in the service of the Gilchrist line, and it is reported that one of them will take out the Gilchrist, probably Capt. Stewart. Capt. Butts was in the Whitney last year.

DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Vesselmen So Consider Masters and Pilots' Strike.

Chicago, June 8.—The great deadlock between the Lake Carriers' and the masters and pilots, which has paralyzed lake commerce was considered by vesselmen and shippers as effectively broken. Captains were to be had in plenty and the only trouble was to secure mates. There was a rush of masters to secure their old places at all points around the lakes. They are resigning from the union as fast as places could be secured.

District Capt. Howell announced at Cleveland that the masters and pilots had secured a charter from the American Federation of Labor. This will doubtless result in forming a union with the mates in control and there may be trouble with the organization, but the captains seem to be out of it

FAST TIME MADE

Annual Inspection of Fire Department By City Officials.

Remarkable Records Made In Various Features of Work.

The annual inspection of the Duluth fire department is in progress this afternoon, and some first-class records are being made.

The aldermen, city officials and members of the board of fire commissioners compose the inspecting party, which left the city hall shortly after 1 o'clock for the fire department headquarters at Sixth avenue west and First street.

The first test consisted of the floor hitch. The men took their accustomed places on the floor of the fire hall and Chief Black gave the alarm. The different hitches were checked off by a stop watch and the following results obtained:

Chemical apparatus	5 seconds
Engine	8 seconds
Hook and ladder, 4 horses	10 seconds
Hose company	10 seconds
Salvage wagon	5 seconds

The time was taken from the sounding of the alarm until the horses were in their places and started for the door of the hall.

The party then went around to the rear of the building to witness an exhibition of the use of the pompiere ladders. Five of the firemen started at a signal from the chief, and in exactly one minute and sixteen seconds had ascended the five stories to the top of the building.

The test was then made with one man and one ladder. He ascended the five stories, carrying his ladder with him, in one minute and twenty-seven seconds.

The record made descending the rope was scarcely so good. It took one of the firemen eleven seconds to drop the five stories on the rope.

The nightshitch was then tried. The men went upstairs and donned their night clothing. The signal was rung and the men jumped into their trousers and shot down the poles. The following results were obtained:

Chemical apparatus	8 seconds
Engine	12 seconds
Hook and ladder, 4 horses	12 seconds
Hose company	12 seconds
Salvage wagon	8 seconds

The inspection was brought to a close by a water hitch. The hose company was drawn up in front of The Herald building, and at a given signal from the chief it dashed to the corner of Fifth avenue and First street, and a connection was made with the hydrant on the corner. Exactly 20 seconds was consumed in driving the 100 feet, making the connection and getting the water to the nozzle of the hose.

The inspecting party then left for number 3 fire hall and the apparatus there will be inspected in the same manner. All of the tests will be made with the exception of the pompiere ladder exhibitions.

The inspection will include all of the firehalls, but those at Lakeside and Woodland. The comparative records made by the different companies will not be available until tomorrow morning.

Butchers are complaining of an advance in the price of meats. Good beef now costs $9 per 100 pounds and lamb $12.50. The result of this, of course, is that the consumer is not receiving his meat at as good a figure as he did a short time ago.

Parlor Theater—Delightful vaudeville.

Louis De Chambeau was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of stealing a roll of barbed wire valued at $1 from one of his neighbors in West Duluth. The neighbor claims that De Chabbeau used the wire in making a fence about his own yard. De Chambeau pleaded not guilty and the hearing was set for June 16 at 10 a. m.

GET NO COMMISSION.

Judge Dibell's Ruling In Suit For Commission.

Findings were filed by Judge Dibell, with the clerk of district court, this morning, in which the court held that F. W. Wilcox and H. H. Kattman are not entitled to any commission from John D. Brady and George H. Gamble, for the sale of lands for Mr. Brady, and that the two defendants named shall recover their costs and disbursements.

The court finds that in August, 1903, an agreement was entered into between Messrs. Wilcox and H. H. Kattman, as one party, and Mr. Brady as the second party, whereby the former were to find purchasers for 10,000 acres of St. Louis county lands at certain terms, their compensation to be 25 cents per acre or $2500 on the entire deal.

Judge Dibell finds that Messrs. Wilcox and Kattman did not find purchasers at the terms agreed on and that Mr. Brady did not accept any offer from purchasers secured by the agents.

WORST OF ALL EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles, Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

ACADEMIC PROCESSION

At Madison University Viewed By Great Crowd.

Madison, Wis., June 8.—The academic procession preceding the jubilee ceremonies at Harmony hall was viewed by a great crowd.

A number of addresses by presidents of outside universities lent much interest to the ceremonies. There was on the program President Daniel Gilman, of Carnegie institute; President Richard H. Jesse, of the university of Missouri; President E. Benjamin Wheeler, of the university of California; President Cyrus Northrup, of the university of Minnesota, and President James B. Angell, of the university of Michigan.

This afternoon the guests made an inspection of the university buildings and grounds and went for a drive.

Class and society reunions, the university dinner to the official guests and a promenade on the upper campus completed the day's program.

ANOTHER REVOLUTION

Has Broken Out Among the Dominicans.

Washington, June 8.—Within three days of Admiral Sigsbee's announcement that peace had been concluded in Santo Domingo, another revolution has broken out in that country. Minister Powell cabled the state department today from Port au Prince, Hayti, that "the British cruiser Indefatigable left that place yesterday, it having been reported that Gen. Jiminez had effected a landing at Macoris. Telegraph communication has been interrupted."

MATADOR SHOT.

Spaniard at World's Fair Meets His Death.

St. Louis, June 8.—Don Manuel Cerevera, a Spaniard, who was introduced last Sunday when the bull fight was attempted and stopped by the police, as the favorite matador of the king of Spain, was shot through the heart and instantly killed today by Carlton Bass, known as "The American matador." Bass and five other bull fighters who witnessed the shooting, were arrested. The shooting resulted from a quarrel regarding the bull fight fiasco Sunday when the authorities stopped the fight.

BOILERMAKERS STRIKE.

Would Enforce Wage Scale on Illinois Central.

Chicago, June 8.—Several hundred boilermakers employed by the Illinois Central railroad were ordered to strike today to enforce a minimum wage scale of 42½ cents an hour. At the Illinois Central offices here it was stated that less than 50 per cent of the employes obeyed the order, and that at several points the men returned to work within a few hours, the differences having been adjusted. It was stated that little difficulty is anticipated as a result of the strike.

EXCURSION ARRIVES

Six Hundred People Come In Over Northern Pacific Road.

Commercial Club Puts Forth Efforts to Care For Crowd.

Twelve cars loaded with excursionists were in the Northern Pacific train from Morris and intermediate stations. This was the excursion under the auspices of the Commercial club of this city and the train arrived at 2:50 p. m. today.

The event made the Union station look like the occasion of a huge picnic, for there were scores of people in the city who were on hand to meet their friends from down the line and the arrivals of the train gave cause for many welcomes extended to the incoming visitors.

There were a large number of women in the crowd that met the train, more women than men by three or four to one. The usual number of hand-bill distributors were on hand at the station at the time of the train's arrival to give the excursionists tips on steamboat trips and where to stop, and so forth. Representatives of the Commercial club had been sent to Superior to board the train and give the people pamphlets with information about the city and the rooms to be had through the medium of the Commercial club's quarters at the Manhattan building.

These headquarters are to be open day and night as long as necessary.

It is estimated that there were 600 people on the excursion today and they come from all points between here and Morris along the line of the Northern Pacific. As the train came by Brainerd, it was not delayed by the freight wreck at Rush City.

CROWDING OF BOATS.

Inspectors Call Attention to the Laws.

The near approach of the summer season, when large numbers of passengers are carried on the steamers of the regular lines and on excursion steamers, and the complaints that many of these steamers carry passengers largely in excess of the number allowed by their certificates of inspection, or by their excursion permits, demand that the government officers shall take special precautions to prevent the overcrowding of steamers.

The local United States customs officials and inspectors of steam vessels have, by means of a circular letter, had their attention called to a section of the revised statutes regarding the overcrowding of vessels. The section referred to reads in part as follows:

"Collectors and surveyors of customs are therefore requested to instruct their subordinates to make careful examination of such steamers, and to report all cases of violation of the law. Extra care in this direction should be made on Sundays, and particularly on the Fourth of July and other national or state holidays.

"Supervising inspectors will instruct the local inspectors to detail one-half their force each Sunday for duty in the vicinity of their home ports for the purpose of ascertaining, by actual count if necessary, whether more than the lawful number of passengers are taken on board, and on the Fourth of July the whole force shall be so employed."

A conflict of opinion having arisen in some of the districts as to the authority of inspectors to issue excursion permits including waters outside the local inspection district, inspectors are informed that any local board of inspectors can issue an excursion permit to any steamer then in the waters of their district, this certificate to cover all the waters named in the steamer's annual certificate of inspection, if she is properly equipped and can, in their judgment, safely carry the additional passengers. Such an excursion permit is valid, even though used in waters wholly outside the district in which it is issued.

GOV. BECKHAM IS ARRAIGNED

State Chairman Bitterly Denounces Him at Democratic Convention.

Louisville, June 8.—The Democratic convention was called to order at 2 o'clock this afternoon, by State Chairman Young, who made a speech bitterly arraigning Governor Beckham's administration and denounced the governor's course in the present campaign as calculated to disrupt the party. He was alternately cheered and hissed During the course of his speech Mr. Young appealed to the Bryan element by warning them that if the men supporting the administration secure control of the machinery, the principles advocated by Bryan would be cast aside. At the close of Mr. Young's speech Congressman Ollie James placed in nomination Governor Beckham.

Senator Blackburn was greeted with intense enthusiasm when he rose to place in nomination Judge J. N. Peake. He declared in favor of the government of the party by the voters. He asked that when a vacancy occurs in the party machinery, the place be filled by election and not by arbitrary appointment. He disclaimed any intention of making war on individuals, but declared that his friends would fight the machine until they won or died of old age. Touching on the question of a presidential candidate Senator Blackburn spoke in favor of an uninstructed delegation.

Mention of the names of Parker and McClellan brought only perfunctory applause, the delegates apparently being more concerned with the struggle for control of the committees. Senator Blackburn declared with much emphasis that he still believed that the party was right in 1896 and 1900. He characterized the report that Bryan would bolt as in infamous lie, and paid an eloquent tribute to the character of the Nebraskan.

UNIMPORTANT ENGAGEMENTS

Continue to Take Place on the Feng Cheng Road.

Liao Yang, June 8.—The rumor that the Russian fleet has sailed out of Port Arthur remains unconfirmed here.

Unimportant engagements continue to take place on the Feng Wang Cheng road, between the Motien mountains and the Japanese positions. They are principally between Japanese cavalry and the Russian advance posts. The reports that the Russians had retaken Saimatsza, which the Japanese had previously occupied, are confirmed. Skirmishes are occurring in the neighborhood of Pulien Tien (about forty miles north of Port Adams).

The Japanese, lacking good cavalry, are adopting the system of using infantry supports in their reconnaissances. The Cossacks rarely attack without finding such support.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The emperor, in discussing the war situation at Tsarkoe Seloe with a prominent diplomatist, although expressing complete confidence in the ultimate outcome of the war, displayed considerable concern over the fate of Port Arthur, against which he believed the enemy was directing its principal energies.

His majesty told the visitor that the reports that there was not enough coal at Port Arthur for the squadron had not a vestige of truth and the emperor also said that from the reports he had received he was satisfied the Japanese had already lost three battleships.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—Nothing is known here of the various rumors to the effect that Port Arthur has fallen, but it is not credited here.

NOT DOING SO WELL.

Travis In Poor Form In Open Golf Tourney.

London, June 8.—The contest for the open golf championship was started this morning at Sandwich in blustering weather. Owing to the heavy entry only one round was played today. Walter J. Travis, the American champion started steadily and went out in 39, but he did not show up to good advantage in returning. His score for the full round was 83 which is poor. Travis drove further during the amateur contest but his putting was inferior.

Thus far, Thompson a professional, leads with a score of 75.

The score of M. Byers, American, was 91.

OUTWARDLY QUIET

But Trouble Said to Be Brewing at Appleton.

Milwaukee, June 8.—A Journal special from Appleton, Wis., says: The paper mill situation is outwardly quiet, but trouble is said to be brewing. It is said that news reached the union men that some of their members are aiding repair work in the mills, especially in Neenah. The unions are said to be considerably worried about it.

The owners meanwhile, say that they are preparing to start the mills next Monday with available help. From another source it is reported that one or two of the mills are arranging to close down for a long time.

UNCLE SAM, BANKER.

Your Uncle Samuel is becoming quite a banker for the American soldiers, says the Washington Post. For the year ended June 30, 1903, there was deposited by soldiers $1,888,914, and it is understood that the amount for the fiscal year which will end the last of the coming June will be much larger. The enlisted men of the United States are allowed to leave their money in the hands of paymasters, taking a certificate for it, and the government pays the men interest at the rate of 4 per cent a year.

Many soldiers largely increase their earnings by leaving their money on deposit as long as possible, and it is really a very good savings bank for them. The year before the Spanish war the amount deposited was less than one-third of that deposited in 1902. The enlisted strength of the army has been increased since then, and is now about double what it was before the Spanish war, but the amount left on deposit is three times as great as it was when the army was smaller. Possibly service in the Orient and the establishment of large posts have been conducive to saving on the part of troops. At all events, officers of the war department look upon the increase as being an indication of thriftiness upon the part of the American soldiers. On several occasions attempts have been made in congress to allow officers of the army the same privilege of leaving their money on deposit, but such a bill has been defeated every time.

BULLETS FLEW AROUND THE COLORADO SOLDIERS LIKE HAIL, BUT NO ONE WAS HURT

Fierce Battle Was Fought In New Mining Camp.

One Union Miner Killed, Possibly Several Wounded.

Affairs Now Quiet After Night of Great Excitement.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 9.—After a night of intense excitement, due to the battle between troops and strikers at Dunnville, a small skirmish on Big Bull hill and the wrecking of the Victor Record office, matters have quieted down in this military district, and it is generally believed the worst is now over.

A question may arise over the Dunnville battle between authorities, as it was fought in Fremont county, and John Carley, who was killed, was brought to Teller. Dunnville is located fourteen miles south of Victor, a short distance beyond the border of Teller county, which alone has been decided by the governor to be in a state of insurrection and rebellion. Adjt. Gen. Sherman Bell's right to send troops out of the territory which is under martial law, is disputed, but he claims authority to do this under a paragraph calling out troops, which reads as follows:

"It having been made to appear to me by the sheriff of Teller county, and by other officers of said county and citizens of said county, that there is within the county of Teller and adjacent thereto a large number of persons working together and threatening to join forces in said Teller county, for the purpose of resisting the state of Colorado," etc.

It is considered remarkable that only one man was killed in the Dunnville battle. The contesting forces were about 200 soldiers and deputies, under personal command of Gen. Bell, and sixty-five miners, who were secreted behind rocks and trees in the hills surrounding the new mining camp. The attacking party left its train and walked through a narrow canyon into the open gulch, where the town of Dunnville is located, and was subjected to a hail of bullets from the rocks high above. Probably 2000 shots were fired by both sides, yet only one man was hit so far as is known. John Carley was in the timber and was slain by a bullet from the Krag-Jorgensen rifle of a man in the firing squad of Sergt. Baldwin.

The dirt and rocks around the feet of the invaders and the newspaper men who accompanied them, were spitted up as if a heavy hail storm was in progress, but not a man was touched.

Bullets struck about Gen. Bell and literally sprinkled his boots with earth and broken rock, but he was cool and gave orders deliberately. He even thought to turn to a newspaper man, who was standing a few feet away, and shouted:

"Cover up that white vest and take off that Panama."

They were excellent targets. After several minutes of hot work, desultory firing was kept up for an hour. About twenty men were captured and fourteen of these, who are members of miners' unions, were brought to camp and imprisoned, the others being released.

Gen. Bell will not cal for more troops, believing that the two companies now on duty, assisted by the sheriff's deputies, can cope with the small parties of miners scattered among the mountains.

To queries on this point, Gen. Bell answers: "See how these men fought without cover and death singing about their ears."

Gen. Bell was informed that men wanted for participation in the rioting at Victor were at Dunnville and he made the raid for the purpose of capturing them.

In the party that went to Dunnville was Charles M. MacNeill, of the United States Reduction and Refining company, whose refusal to grant its mill men an 8-hour day caused the Cripple Creek miners' strike. MacNeill was armed with a magazine revolver, which he fired frequently, but apparently without hitting anybody.

One of the wild chases in the general man hunt that the military is conducting ended in the capture of C. C. Friedley, at the Thompson ranch. The three Friedley brothers, miners, had gone southward, and as one of them was suspected of having fired the shot that killed McGee in the riot Monday, the military gave chase. C. C. Friedley at first refused to talk, but the soldiers placed a rope about his neck, and he then told which way his brothers and another man had gone. Marshal H. A. Naylor then continued the pursuit to Canon City. C. C. Friedley was brought to Victor and placed in the bull pen.

Chris Miller, a union leader and member of the Goldfield city council, has been captured at Canon City and will be brought back to the camp. He is charged with having done some shooting in the Victor riot.

The military commissioners appointed by Gen. Bell continued today to investigate the records of the prisoners.

The understanding is that their work will result in the separation of the prisoners into two classes, those to be held on criminal charges and those to be deported.

George R. Kyner, proprietor of the Victor Record, whose office and machinery were wrecked last night by a mob, said today that he will establish a new plant as soon as possible and resume publication of his newspaper. He estimates his loss at $5000. Though the Record has been the official organ of the Miners' union since the strike began last August, it has vigorously denounced the assassinations which took place at Independence on Monday, and has been outspoken in support of law, order and justice.

A grim reminder of the Independence tragedy was furnished at Victor today by joint funeral services over the remains of five of the victims.

ADJUTANT GENERAL BELL,
Who is in charge of the militia at the gold camps of Colorado. He seemed to be the target of the miners in Wednesday's battle, but escaped unscathed, though bullets fell close around him.

UNION MINER KILLED

In Skirmish Between Militia and the Miners.

Victor, Col., June 9.—A skirmish between the military and union miners at Dunnville, a new mining camp, thirteen miles out of Victor, yesterday afternoon, resulted in the killing of John Carley, a union miner, and the capture of a score of other union miners. Several were later released.

The troops returned to Victor last night with fourteen captives.

It was reported before the special train left Victor for Dunnville, bearing the force under Gen. Bell, that the miners in the hills about Dunnville numbered about 250 men, and that it was their intention to march into Victor last night in a body and to attempt to liberate the inmates of the temporary "bull pen" in Victor. That the force consisted of only twenty-one men is the statement of one of the prisoners taken at Dunnville.

The train proceeded to within a quarter of a mile of the Dunnville station. Then the soldiers saw the camp of the miners. It included one cabin and six or seven tents. The soldiers left the train at the command of Gen. Bell and prepared to advance on the camp of the unionists in regular skirmish order. As they emerged from the cut, in which the train had stopped, they were greeted with a volley of shots, which came from the points of vantage surrounding the hills.

The soldiers returned the fire to the best advantage possible, and promiscuous shooting lasted ten minutes. Gen. Bell recognized that the strength of the miners had been greatly overestimated, and he divided the soldiers into seven detachments. These set out to scour all the surrounding hills.

Dunnville sprang into prominence last week, when it was reported that enormous amounts of free gold had been discovered. There was an immediate rush to the place by union men, who declared that no others should be permitted in the camp. All others were barred. But the camp was of mushroom growth, and the thousands who encamped there in the first two days of its existence dwindled away fifty or a hundred a day. Gen. Bell has expressed the opinion that the camp was nothing but a decoy, and would be used by the miners as a base of operations.

Dunnville is about twenty miles south of Cripple Creek, and is said to be in Fremont county, which has not been declared by the governor to be in a state of insurrection and rebellion.

WRECKED NEWSPAPER.

Plant of Victor Record Destroyed By Armed Men.

Victor, June 9.—Eight men, armed with shotguns, rifles, pistols and sledge hammers, entered the office of the Victor Record last night, ordered the employes to throw up their hands, broke up the machinery and then told the men to get out of the region as fast as they could. There is no clue to the identity of the men.

George Kyner, proprietor of the paper, was at luncheon and his foreman, Walter Sweet, was in charge of the men. They were getting out the morning paper when the eight armed men opened the front door and walked back to the composing room. They pointed their weapons at the startled men who were at work and one of the intruders called out: "Line up now and throw up your hands."

The men obeyed quickly. The men they wrecked two linotype machines, several job presses and all the equipment of the office. They smashed the telephone and a typewriter. When the work of destruction was completed they marched the employes of the Record out on the sidewalk and told them to leave town.

The Record has been known as the organ of the Western Federation of Miners in this region.

The men who were ordered to leave the district are: Walter Sweet, F. W. Langdon, printers; John Daneld, pressman, and Art Caldwell, apprentice. The men have not decided whether they will leave.

FEAR MORE CLASHES

Before Order Is Restored In Gold Camps.

Denver, Colo., June 9.—Although the trend of opinion expressed by residents of the towns surrounding Cripple Creek, the scenes of the exciting events of the last three days, is that order will resume sway rapidly, there is an evident feeling of fear that other and more serious clashes may occur between the established authorities and the supporters of unionism in the camp. This is due to the persistent report which has gained circulation, but which is given little credence, that all members of labor unions, regardless of their occupation, will be asked to leave the region under pain of deportation.

Two skirmishes yesterday between soldiers and union miners, one at Dunnville, where one miner was killed and fourten were taken prisoners, form the main topic of discussion throughout the camp. The Big Hill affair was simply a skirmish between union men and soldiers who were scouring the hills for miners wanted by the authorities.

An important feature of the day's events was the appointment of a commission to deal with the military prisoners. This commission consists of the following: F. D. French, mayor of Victor; Nelson Franklin, J. B. Cunninghani, Judge H. McGarry, D. W. Copeland, F. M. Reardon and T. J. Dultzell. They are well know citizens and business men of the towns of the gold region. Their dispesition of the cases brought before them will not be final. It is the purpose to have them separate the prisoners into groups so that those regarded as chargeable with crime may be held and the remainder freed or deported as is thought advisable. These sessions of the commission will be secret. Further resignations of city officers occurred, in some instances, effecting a complete change in the official roster of the town government. No definite clew to the perpetrators of the dynamite outrage at Independence has developed yet. The imported union men who were brought to Denver are cared for by their brethern of the Western Federation of Miners.

Governor Peabody's return from St. Louis has brought about no change in the situation. He expressed the belief that Adjt.-Gen. Bell had the situation well in hand and said that he would await suggestions from Gen. Bell before proceeding further.

MILITARY ADVISER SENT TO COLORADO.

Denver, June 9.—Gen. Charles L. Cooper, retired, of the United States army, has been assigned to Colorado as adviser of the organized militia for a period of four years. Gen. Cooper comes at the request of Governor Peabody, and will receive the full pay and allowance of his rank. He served at Fort Logan as lieutenant-colonel of the Fifteenth cavalry in 1901.

Gen. Baldwin, in command of the department of the Colorado, says while he has no information on the subject, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the assignment is in a measure due to the disturbed conditions of the state.

INSURANCE RATES HIGH.

Vancouver, B. C., June 9.—The business men of Vancouver, Westminster and Victoria were appealing to public bodies to use their influence to protect them from alleged exorbitant fire rates. The insurance companies raised the rates, owing to the Baltimore and Toronto fires. Public bodies are appointing committees to take the matter up.

MURDER IS CHARGED

Father and Daughter Are Missing Under Strange Circumstances.

It Is Thought That Both Were Murdered For Money.

Bemidji, Minn., June 9.—From Quiring postoffice near Blackduck comes a sensational story of the mysterious disappearance of Miss Aagot Dahl, and her father N. O. Dahl, of Crookston, and the opinion prevails at Quiring that both have been the victims of a murder perpetrated to secure possession of a sum of money which Mr. Dahl was believed to have on his person.

Miss Aagot Dahl took a homestead near Quiring some time ago and has made her home on it. Last winter, her father, N. O. Dahl, an aged man, who had formerly resided in Crookston, came to spend a few weeks visiting her. The couple were last seen at the homestead on April 3, but since that time nothing has been seen or heard of them. They were supposed to have left on a visit to Crookston about that time.

April 11, some of the neighbors visited the cabin. They found everything in disorder. The beds where Miss Dahl and her father had slept were still in disorder and a part of their morning meal stood on the kitchen table. The wearing apparel of both was found in the house and the general appearance of the place at the time aroused some suspicion. The theory that the pair had made a hurried departure for Crookston was accepted, however, for the time being.

Mail kept arriving at the Quiring postoffice for the couple until the postmaster was led to inquire as to their whereabouts, when it was developed that they had not returned to Crookston, and that their relatives there knew nothing of their whereabouts. Their mysterious disappearance is still unexplained. O. C. Reed, a prominent Crookston merchant, is a son-in-law of Mr. Dahl's, and the family are much worried over the absence of Mr. Dahl and his daughter.

Advices were received at Quirign postoffice yesterday that the pair had not returned to Crookston, and the people of that vicinity are much excited as a result.

The theory that Mr. Dahl and his daughter have been made away with in some manner prevails and the residents of Quiring are investigating.

A rumor was current in Quiring at the time Mr. Dahl came to live with his daughter that he had $2000 in cash with him, and this is believed to have been the inducement for some one to murder him and his daughter and hide their bodies. From a Crookston oank it is learned that Dhal had only about $150 when he left that city.

A searching party is out at Quiring in an effort to discover some clue that will lead up to an early solution of the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Dahl and his daughter.

BITTER FIGHT IN HENNEPIN

Now Looks as If Anti-Hearst Men Carried County.

St. Paul, June 9.—The Globe today says: Both the opposition to William Randolph Hearst and that young man himself claim the Hennepin county Democratic convention, and there are prospects of a decidedly bitter contest in the convention itself when it meets on Saturday.

Of a total of delegates entitled to seats in the convention, the anti-Hearst managers claim 246, concede 198 to Hearst and say that eighteen delegates are unaccounted for in the returns now made to their headquarters. The Hearst managers' claims are 259 votes for Hearst, 128 for the opposition and 71 unaccounted for.

It is noticeable that the conservatives have reversed the situation of Tuesday night and have much more complete returns than the Hearst men in the country. It is claimed that a number of the men credited to the Hearst column of delegates were elected at rump caucuses and at places not designated in the official call, and these will not be seated without contest.

Feeling is very bitter between the rival factions, and as the anti-Hearst men have the present organization, there are reports that the Hearst men will bolt if they see that they cannot seat all their delegates and thus control the convention.

SNOW IN COLORADO.

Leadville, Col., June 9.—A heavy snow storm began here today. Four inches of snow covers the ground.

THREE BURNED IN HOME.

Maggard, Ky., June 9.—The home of Henry Suthern near here was burned last night. The charred remains of Mr. and Mrs. Suthern and their daughter, Jennie, were found today by the neighbors.

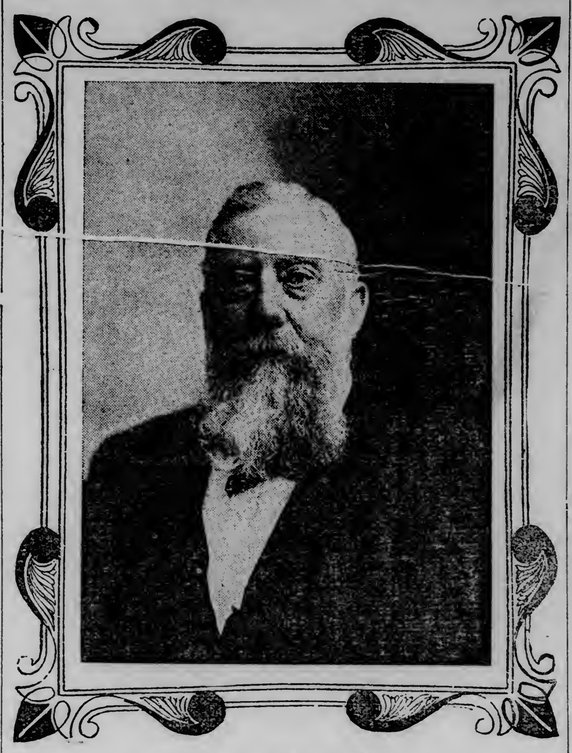
Albuquerque, N. M., June 9.—F. H. Leland, a veteran cavalryman, and William Closson, a well known cowboy of this section, are organizing a 1200 mile relay race for cowboys, open to riders in New Mexico and Arizona, with the starting point in Albuquerque and the finishing point at the gates of the World's Fair grounds in St. Louis.

FIRE AT TROY, N. Y.

Troy, N. Y., June 9.—The Rennssalaer Polytechnic Institute's main building was totally destroyed by fire early today. The loss will exceed $200,000.

JAPANESE CONTEMPLATE AN ATTACK ON THE FORTRESSES OF PORT ARTHUR ON FRIDAY



CAPT. JOHN DUNCAN,
Prominent Copper Miner, Whose Death Is Deeply Mourned Throughout Upper Michigan.

Calumet, Mich., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of John Duncan, one of the oldest and most widely known officials of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, was held here yesterday. It was one of the largest funerals that has been witnessd in Calumet. The funeral services were held under the auspices of the Knights Templar and were begun at 2 p. m. All the Masonic lodges and the Elks of Calumet attended. After the services the body was taken to Hancock by way of the Mineral Range railroad for interment. The honorary pallbearers were J. P. North, Charles Briggs, Ernest Ballman, James D. Ramsey, Jacob Bear, of Hancock; E. G. Brown, W. D. Calvery and Graham Pope, of Houghton.

John Duncan was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, in 1836, and coming to the copper country entered the employ of the Quincy Mining company, where he soon became carpenter foreman. He remained with the Quincy company nine years, after which he came to Calumet, where he was engaged as superintendent of the entire surface operations. On account of the extent and growth of the surface operations it became necessary to divide the duties, Mr. Duncan gave up the work looking after the residences. He held the office of superintendent till a short time before his death.

Mr. Duncan saw the development of the Calumet & Hecla mine from its original meager beginning to its present gigantic proportions. As a citizen he was one of the charter members of the present school board. He was a presidential elector in 1884 and delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention that nominated McKinley in 1896. Mr. Duncan was widely known as a friend to the best interests of the company which he served.

Russians Do Not Believe Assault Has Yet Been Made.

Rumors of Attack Come From Unreliable Chinese Sources.

No Doubt of Fighting on Kwan Tung Peninsula.

St. Petersburg, June 9.—All the reports coming from unofficial sources at the seat of war mention the persistence of rumors of fighting on the Kwan Tung peninsula and the war office does not question the probable truth of these reports, as it is known the Russians are doing all possible to impede the enemy's advance to positions before the walls of the fortress. At the same time they insist that no assault has yet been made on the fortress proper, although the war office advices are to the effect that the Japanese plans contemplated an attack tomorrow. It is considered likely that this fighting may have been of a quite serious character.

CHINESE UNRELIABLE.

Their Reports From Port Arthur Not Believed.

St. Petersburg, June 9.—The war office is in possession of information which the officials declare warrants a contradiction of the reports brought by Chinese fugitives to Che Foo of a four-days' land and sea attack on Port Arthur, and of extensive damage to the forts. An official dispatch from Rear Admiral Wittsoeft, dated June 7, reports that the enemy has been bombarding Port Arthur intermittently from the sea, but does not mention serious operations from the land side. The general staff seems certain that the enemy's siege guns have not yet been brought up.

Discussing the Chinese reports brought to Che Foo, a member of the general staff said:

"We have had our experience with the unreliability of Chinese reports. The idea of the explosion of mines by a thunderstorm is absurd, and the Chinese statement that the whole garrison has gone to the front is wild nonsense, betraying the deepest ignorance of the conditions governing the safeguarding of a fortress. The garrison of each fort never leaves its post except to pursue a routed enemy. The troops contesting the advance upon the fortress are a few regiments of riflemen, which have all the time been on the Kwan Tung peninsula for this purpose."

In this connection an official dispatch from Port Arthur to one of the ministries, not the minister of war nor the minister of the navy, says that only one regiment of infantry, the Fifth, participated in the defence of Kin Chou.

The admiralty is not disposed to credit the report that the Port Arthur squadron has left Port Arthur, or the rumor of its juncture with the Vladivostok squadron, although this is evidently part of the program. If it comes to the worst, the Port Arthur squadron will go out and give battle.

At the admiralty the reported action of the Japanese warships in shelling the coast near Kai Chou will be interpreted, if confirmed, as a demonstration to discourage the sending of a strong force south against Gen. Oku's rear.

The mystification concerning the strength of the force sent south continues. The war office, which seemingly is not fully advised in regard to Gen. Kuropatkin's plans, says the commander-in-chief's ability to detach an adequate force will depend upon the number of troops at Gen. Kuroki's disposal concerning which apparently there is no accurate information here, although the belief is that the Japanese commander has about forty-eight battalions at Feng Wang Cheng, and thirty-six in the vicinity of Taku Shan. The latest intelligence received at the war office is to the effect that the Japanese have abandoned their advance north of Feng Wang Cheng and west of Siu Yen. The Russians are holding Siu Yen and Saimateza.

While declining to furnish specific information on the subject, it seems certain that the Russians are now in wireless communication with Port Arthur. By no other way could the receipt of Admiral Wittsoeft's dispatch of June 7, reporting the intermittent bombardment of Port Arthur from the sea, be accounted for. While the above represents the official view regarding the reports and the nature of the fighting around Port Arthur, this city is full of all kinds of wild stories and the public is inclined to credit the idea that the enemy has already begun serious work against the fortress.

CHINESE REPORTS

Say Japs Attacked Port Arthur and Were Repulsed.

St. Petersburg, June 9.—Special dispatches from Liao Yang report Chinese as bringing news that the Japanese on June 2 attacked Port Arthur by land and sea, but were repulsed with a loss of 3500 men and four vessels, which, judging from the description given of them, were torpedo boats.

Other dispatches give rumors of a naval battle between two fleets in the gulf of Pechili and a definite report of a bombardment in Liao Yang gulf, near Kai Ping, which may foreshadow a

LEVI Z. LEITER, OF CHICAGO, DIES SUDDENLY AT BAR HARBOR

Bar Harbor, Me., June 9.—Levi Z. Leiter, of Chicago, died of heart failure early today at the Vanderbilt cottage here, which the Leiters had taken for the season. Mr. Leiter had not been well for a long time, but up to yesterday, he was able to take his usual drive. A weakness of the heart developed shortly after midnight and death occurred at 3:40 a. m. Mrs. Leiter and two daughters were by the bedside at the last.

Mr. Leiter was 70 years old. He was the father of Lady Curzon, of Kedleston, wife of the viceroy of India, of Miss Daisy Leiter, whose beauty has been the subject of note in English court circles, and of Joseph W. Leiter, speculator and investor.

As soon as it appeared that Mr. Leiter was seriously ill, messages were sent to the son, and today other members of the family were notified of the death. It was stated today at the Leiter cottage that, pending the arrival of Joseph Leiter, the time of the funeral would not be settled. It had been decided that the service would be held in Washington, D. C. The Leiters are well known here. They have been among the summer residents for a number of years.

The drive taken yesterday by Mr. Leiter covered a distance of about twelve miles. Mrs. Leiter accompanied him and remarked on his good spirits. He spent the evening walking about the estate. The attack which seized him during the night was similar to others which he had experienced and for which he kept remedies prescribed by his physician constantly on hand. Mrs. Leiter did not consider the trouble serious and administered the usual medicine, but when the remedy failed to have the desired effect the daughters were summoned and a doctor sent for. Meanwhile repeated doses of the restorative brought no response on the part of the patient and before the doctor arrived Mr. Leiter was dead.

Chicago, June 9.—Levi Z. Leiter was one of the most prominent of the pioneer merchants of Chicago. He began his career in this city in 1855 as an employe of the drygoods firm of Cooley, Wadsworth & Co., later becoming a partner in the firm.

In 1865, Leiter and Marshall Field bought the controlling interest in the drygoods business of Potter Palmer, the firm becoming one of the most prominent in the west. Leiter retired from the drygoods business in 1881, since which time he has devoted much of his attention to the improvement and management of his extensive business properties and corporation interests.

BUT TWO MARINES WERE LANDED

Tangier, June 9.—The American consul has sent two unarmed marines to the residence of Countess De Buisserat (formerly a Miss Story of New York), wife of the Belgian minister. The countess is living in an isolated house, and as the count, her husband, is at Fez, the marines were sent to her home as a precautionary measure. These are the only American marines landed here.

The sultan's troops at Tangier have received orders to proceed to Fez. Thus another of Raiusli's conditions has been granted. The sultan apparently is granting the bandit chief's demands piecemeal, so as not to unduly excite the Moors or emphasize his humiliating position.

Letters received from Perdicaris, the kidnaped American, say he is suffering from sickness and a doctor of the United States cruiser Baltimore is under orders to proceed to see him. Negotiations for a safe conduct are proceeding.

The negotiations for the release of the captives are progressing slowly.

STOLE GOLD BRICK.

Detroit Detectives Believe They Have Guilty Party.

Detroit, June 9.—Edward Delaney, a bartender, is under arrest and the police say that he is suspected of connection with the theft of a gold brick, valued at $22,000, from the Pacific Express company's office in the Union depot, in this city, over a year ago. Gold bricks valued at $80,000 were in transit from the west and were unloaded here and left on a truck for a soort time. When the express agent transferred the bricks he discovered that one was missing. Officers worked on the case for weeks but were unable to solve the mysterious theft. Captain McDonnell of the detective department has telegraphed the president of the express company asking him to come here without delay.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

With the graduation of the regular students of the Normal school of this city the attention of the officials will be turned to the summer school, which will be held for five weeks. It will be for the teachers of St. Louis, Carlton, Itasca, Lake and Cook counties and from many inquiries received a large attendance during the session is expected.

The school will open Monday, June 20, and continue till Friday, July 29. By special arrangement with the state superintendent and the county superintendents of the counties named, this term is to be a joint state summer school. President E. W. Bohannon of the Duluth normal will be the conductor and many members of the faculty have been retained as the faculty of the summer school.

The teachers with their subjects are as follows: E. W. Bohannon, school management; L. W. Kline, psychology and pedagogy; H. C. Strong, history and civics; J. W. Hubbard, geography and physics; Herbert Blair, botany, algebra and geometry; Alice Holt Palmer, of Chicago, music; Dora Eaton, arithmetic and physiology; Olive B. Horne, grammar; Alice E. Woodman, of St. Paul, drawing. Miss Woodman has during the past year conducted classes at Pratt Institute.

The work will be offered to meet the needs of two classes of students; those who desire to review the common branches, and those who desire to earn normal credits. It is hoped that a large number of students will enroll for the latter class and so permanently identify themselves with the interests of the institution. The daily work will begin at half past eight and close at one o'clock. All laboratory work will be done in the afternoon.

The summer school promises to be of the best with a splendid corps of teachers. Having the school held in Duluth is a distinct advantage to the city and interest in the school should be manifest. A large number of applications have been received at the school within the past few weeks in regard to room and board and many places will be in demand at reasonable rates during the weeks that the school is in session. Any who will be able to accommodate any of the students are requested to send a notice to the school and the interest of the people of the city is needed in the work.

THE EVENING STORY.

THE EVICTION OF MONSIEUR

By J. C. Plummer.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Out on the street he goes, bag and baggage," said Mrs. Raggett, "unless he pays what he owes me. And tomorrow morning, too."

"I think Musser Grande means all right," remonstrated Capt. Raggett, somewhat feebly.

"You are a nice judge of people, you are," retorted his wife, scornfully, "he's not a rum-sucking old sailor about the wharves who hasn't borrowed money from you, and they all mean well. You'd think the Old Boy meant well, I suppose, if he stuck you on his fork."

Capt. Raggett, guiltily conscious of having loaned Capt. Simon Bond a dollar, that very morning, held his peace.

"For a whole month that old Frenchman has been promising me my money," continued Mrs. Raggett, "says he's a letter coming from France with a lot of money in it. Where's the letter, I'd like to know? I won't be made a fool of no more."

"Wait until tomorrow night," pleaded Capt. Raggett, "the letter may come tomorrow."

"Letter from the moon," sniffed his wife, "there's no letter, you ninny; he's only playing off on me for time."

"If you please," said a gentle voice from the staircase, "is it that the post has come not yet?"

"Yes, he's come, gone and forgot it," replied Mrs. Raggett, roughly.

"And no letter," cried Monsieur Grande, with a gesture of despair. "I am desolated, Madame Raggett. Again I cannot fulfill my promise. But patience, Madame, it must come, it must come."

"There may have been gales at sea," put in Capt. Raggett.

"Yes, yes," exclaimed the Monsieur, "and hold the ships ahead, no aback; patience, Madame, patience."

The old man ascended the stairs to his room, supperless, for Mrs. Ragg tt had made no hospitable sign.

Monsieur Grande was the sole boarder at the Raggett mansion. The tall, thin, old Frenchman, with the oval of his face accentuated by the grey imperial at his chin, with his gentle manners and perpetual struggle with the idioms of the English language, had made many friends in the neigaborhood, but he had never made a favorable impression on Mrs. Raggett. That strenuous lady denounced his gentleness as weakness, and his mistakes in language, stupidity. At first the Monsieur made a meager living, writing for some French newspaper, but, latterly, his contributions seemed unwelcome, and he became back in his board. Then a letter came from France, and the Monsieur came to Mrs. Raggett, his face as radiant as a sunny day in June. In his excited manner he read that a legal matter had been settled in France, and that a remittance of 2000 francs would be made the monsieur by the next mail. Monsieur trod on the air. He invited both the captain and his wife to a dinner at a French restaurant, and to the theater afterwards. He promised treats, galore, to the neighbors, and presents to the dirty children, who lived to play tricks on the old Frenchman.

But day succeeded day, and the letter came not. Day by day the irony of Mrs. Raggett changed to insulting mockery, and the gentle old man was overwhelmed with shame. Wistfully he watched for the postman each day, and sadly he bowed his head, as he passed the house, without leaving the expected missive.

Capt. Raggett, entering his room, stealthily found the old man sitting with his face on his hands.

"Ahoy, musseer," said the captain, softly, "here's a bit of bread and 'am I hooked from the safe. Eat it."

"I am desolated," groaned the monsieur, "will the letter nevalre come?"

"Musseer," said the captain, suffering from a throat obstruction, "you'd better get ready to weigh anchor tomorrow."

"Comment?" asked the monsieur.

"The missus 'll ask you to get out tomorrow," explained the captain, still suffering with impeded utterance. "I want to give you the word."

"I must leave; is it that I must leave?"

"That's what she says," said the captain, "and you come straight down to the schooner Nautilus. I'll give you a berth."

"But, my letter, captain. It will come here, and I must be here to get it."

Capt. Raggett shook his head, sadly. He did not believe in the letter, but not for the world would he have had the monsieur suspect his doubts.

Mrs. Raggett arose the next morning in a first rate humor for an eviction. She had slept soundly, and had discovered that her husband had loaned a dollar to Capt. Bond. She ate breakfast with a ferocious gleam in her eyes, which chilled the blood of the captain, and directly the meal was finished she prepared for action.

"Mister Grande," she said, sharply, entering the room of the Frenchman, "I've come for the money due me."

"Mais the letter, it has not come," exclaimed the old man. "When it comes I will pay you."

"Mister Grande," said Mrs. Raggett, "you will do me the favor of leaving this house and board."

Monsieur Grande made no move to leave. He sat, as if stunned, in his room.

Mrs. Raggett was a woman of prompt action. She summoned a ragged, slattern of a man, called Pete, who did odd jobs for enough to buy a drink, and ordered him to carry the monsieur's scanty furniture out on the sidewalk.

The neighbors gathered, as the small pile of effects were placed alongside the gutter, and commented in undertones. When the last piece of furniture was out of the room, Pete grasped the arm of the old man, as he leaned against the wall, and began to drag him out. Then something happened. Pete lay down, suddenly, on the floor, his head striking the boards with a thump, and Capt. Raggett, his face as red as a lobster, escorted the old man carefully down stairs.

Pathetically, the old man perched himself on the pile of his household goods, and concealed his face with his hands. The neighbors looked on, silently. Many of them had undergone the same misfortune in their time, and their sympathy was not the less, because they were silent. They were not wont to be expressive of their emotions.

Suddenly, the old Frenchman's head arose, a hopeful, wistful expression came into his eyes, for away up the street he saw the grey uniform of the postman. He came briskly down the street, stopping at one house after another, until he reached the Raggett house.

Monsieur gazed at him, eagerly.

"Nothing," said the postman, shaking his head.

"Rien," groaned the old man, his head dropping on his breast.

Mrs. Raggett laughed scornfully, and Capt. Raggett, who was leaning against the mantel-piece in the lowest possible spirits, was so depressed at the non-delivery of the letter that he knocked a nickel clock off the mantel and with it a mass of papers tucked behind the clock.

"Orkard idjut," exclaimed Mrs. Raggett.

The captain solemnly picked up the clock and replaced it. Then he gathered up the papers. There was one bulky envelope frm some installment house which had come unsealed and contained advertising matter. As the captain picked this up another letter dropped from out of the advertisements.

"What's this?" exclaimed he, "a letter for M. M. Francois Grande. Where did this come from?"

Mrs. Raggett colored. "I suppose it got tucked into that there other letter and nobody noticed it," she said. "Let me see it."

"It belongs to Musseer Grande," said the captain, and he bore it to him.

With eyes gleaming, with gaelic utterances pouring from his lips, the old man opened the letter. There was the draft for 3000 francs, and, more, a promise of a like sum in two months.

The old Frenchman waved the draft triumphantly.

"I was sure, captain," he exclaimed. "It is that I am rich. It is that we have a dinner at the restaurant, that the friends have presents and the children have bon-bons."

Mrs. Raggett was harsh, but she had some feeling. She declined the invitation to the dinner.

"If'd have choked me," she exclaimed.

Monsieur still boards at the Raggett house. His articles sell again, and in two months' time another draft and another dinner, more presents, more bonbons for the children.

Refused Life Insurance on Account of Bright's Disease.

Mr. William F. Montgomery, the Largest Coal Merchant at Albany, N.Y., Was Refused Life Insurance on Account of Bright's Disease, But After Taking Warner's Safe Cure Was Accepted and Now Has His Policy.

Mr. Montgomery is a living testimonial of what this great medicine will do for any man or woman who has kidney, liver or bladder trouble.

If you have any symptoms of kidney disease, or if any member of your family in this or past generations has had it, write the Medical Department, Warner's Safe Cure Company, Rochester, N. Y., for symptom blank, interesting medical booklet, and free doctor's advice.

MR. WM. F. MONTGOMERY.

"I enjoyed vigorour health," says Mr. Montgomery, "up to a year ago, when overwork seemed to undermine my constitution. I paid little attention to the matter until it was brought home to me forcibly at an insurance examination. I failed to secure my policy, and after consulting the doctor who made the examination I became aware of my disease.

The horror of the thing grew upon me when the doctors all pronounced the case Bright's disease. Complications of the stomach set in, and although I doctored with well-known specialists I grew rapidly worse.

My strength diminished and it seemed to me that I could not get well unless some relief was quickly found. Interested friends brought Warner's Safe Cure to my attention, and told of perfectly wonderful cures they knew of among their acquaintances. There being no objection, and all hope having been despaired of, I procured the first bottle. After a few days there were some encouraging indications. The slight improvement noted continued, and I gained rapidly in strength and health. Today I am in perfect condition; not even a trace of kidney trouble left.

My life insurance has been granted me, and I feel that I owe my health and life to Warner's Safe Cure."—Wm. F. Montgomery, 53 Hamilton St., Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1904.

CONSUMING LESS

Consumption of Pig Iron Declines Materially Since March.

Output Decreased But Accumulation of Stocks Increases.

New York, June 9.—From the statistical returns it looks, says the Iron Age, as though the consumption of pig iron had declined very materially since March, while expanding production has not been checked until the last month.

The output for May was 1,523,500 tons of anthracite and coke pig iron as compared with 1,554,000 tons in April. But the rate of output, which had reached 366,000 tons a week on May 1st, had dropped back to 336,000 tons June 1.

The corrective was quickly applied, but meantime stocks which were declining steadily during the first quarter of the year, were increased during May, there having been an accumulation of 100,000 tons during that month alone. Two-thirds of this addition to the stock must be credited to the central west, and to the Northwest. This indicates quite a shrinkage in the demand, which even the cutting down in the rate of production may not counterbalance. It must be noted, however, that already there has been a further restriction in the output by the blowing out of additional furnaces since the opening of the month.

It is not surprising that the pig iorn markets have weakened further, and Birmingham is now on the basis of $9 for No. 2 foundry with one transaction involving 12,000 tons closed this week. It is interesting to note that some export business in southern basic pig has been done.

Valley furnaces are barely getting $12 for No. 2 foundry and Bessemer pig, and one exceptionally low sale of phosporous pig iron has been made in eastern Pennsylvania. Pool prices on steel billets are more and more out of line with present conditions, compared with those prevailing when the schedule was adopted.

The demand is still light in the heavier branches of the finished trade.

In the structural trade some of the long delayed Baltimore business has been coming in, so that the expectations of large orders from that quarter are revived. The bar trade is disappointing, and cutting is going on, notably in the West.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—Mahara's Minstrels.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Friday evening, the Four Cohans.
LYCEUM—Saturday, Richard Mansfield.

MAHARA'S MINSTRELS.

Colored Organization Pleases Large Audience.

Mahar's Minstrels pleased a large audience at the Metropolitan last night. The company is not a large one, but in the main the performance was satisfactory to those in attendance, in fact it was agreed to be as good an organization composed entirely of colored people as can be found.

Gordon Collins, Billy McCarver, Jim Pettie and Zeb Mathews made excellent comedians. Collins was particularly good and on his several appearances delighted the audience immensely. There were several lively dancers in the bunch. J. A. English made a satisfactory conversationalist, and did an interesting stunt with hoops, an act similar to one in Field's minstrel show, which appeared in Duluth recently. The performance will be repeated tonight.

THE FOUR COHANS.

Tomorrow evening the Four Cohans will be at the Lyceum. The entire press of New York endorsed the production and the very best class of theater goers in the metropolis found time to wend their way to the Fourteenth street theater for three months. The musical numbers are exceedingly bright and several "hits" have been registered in the musical world including "Sweet Popularity," "If I were only Mr. Morgan," "I Want to go to Paree Papa," and "I'll be there at the Public Square." The costuming is very tasty and rich in many respects.

NATURAL GAS ROUTE

May Pass Into Control of Marquette Syndicate.

New York, June 9.—Negotiations are in progress and are expected to be completed within a few days, according to the Herald, whereby control of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad, known as the Natural Gas route, will change hands. The syndicate now in control of the Pere Marquette system, probably will have a powerful, if not dominant voice in the affairs of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton.

Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, who is one of the largest stockholders, has been in the city several days participating in the preliminaries looking to the passing of the control of his property. Associated with him is Henry F. Shoemaker, of this city, also a large stockholder.

MAY NOT BE PUNISHED.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, June 9.—The report that Edwin O. Soule, ex-cashier of the Home Savings bank of this city, and a defaulter to the extent of $50,000, has disappeared and will not appear for trial, seems to have grown out of the fact that Soule and his family are no longer residents of Iowa Falls. No one knows for a certainty what he is doing, although it is given out by his friends that he is on the road traveling for a scale house that has headquarters in Chicago.

The impression has gained ground that Soule has shaken the dust of Iowa Falls from his feet and will not return. At the August term of the Harding county district court it was generally supposed the charges against him would be heard, but he was released on bonds of $7,000. It is thought by many that rather than stand trial for the various charges against him, he will not appear and the case will go by default. The various indictments against Soule include forgery, larceny and larceny by embezzlement. The Home Savings bank is the heaviest loser, and the stockholders have been called upon to make good the capital stock and surplus of the institution.

Soule was under $5,000 bonds, and this, as well as his home here, horses, carriages, diamonds, etc., are an asset on which it is thought the bank will eventually realize something. Up to a short time ago his wife and children was here, but, in leaving, the statement was given out that they were going to Moravia, Iowa, and would shortly join the husband and father in Chicago.

THERE WILL BE OTHERS.

Senator Fairbanks' Ultimatum Not Well Received.

Washington, June 9.—Senator Fairbanks' statement that unless all other names are withdrawn before a ballot is taken for a vice presidential candidate at the Chicago national Republican convention he will not be a candidate, is not well received.

Congressman Elmer J. Burkitt of Nebraska, who has been nominated for United States senator, speaking of Mr. Fairbanks' alleged ultimatum, said yesterday:

"While I hardly credit the statement, it is quite probable that Senator Fairbanks and his friends want a unanimous nomination. They desire, as I understand it, to thrust the honor on the Indiana man. Well, there is certain to be another man presented unless I am greatly mistaken. Our delegation is strong for John L. Webster, and he has friends in other delegations.

It is possible, of course, that there may be a situation developed where the nomination will be made on first ballot, but I do not see why that should prevent placing in nomination other candidates, especially where a state delegation is instructed to do so."

THROWN FROM A WAGON.

Mr. George K. Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised. He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one-third the time required by any other treatment. For sale by all druggists.

"REST CURE."

Madeline Island to Be Made Summer Resort.

Bayfield, Wis., June 9.—The Wisconsin Central Railroad company has decided, through an agent sent here two weeks ago, to establish a "Rest Cure" station on Madeline island, the most famous of the Apostle group, lying three miles east of this city, and will commence work on the same this summer. Within the past few years Madeline island has crept into prominence with the tourist trade, that gives every indication of being permanent. The Central people have completed all arrangements as to location and buildings, and will expend a liberal sum to make the new venture a success.

WINONA WANTS

Next State Convention of the Music Teachers.

Winona, Minn., June 9.—It is probable an effort will be made to secure the convention of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association for Winona next year. This convention meets next week at Duluth and a meeting of Winona musicians has been called for this afternoon to discuss the matter of extending an invitation at the Duluth convention. Professor Gordon Graham, who recently came here from England, is to give an organ recital at the Duluth convention.

"PE-RU-NA," A VALUABLE PREPARATION," WRITES DR. KEMBALL.

Most of the Ailments Peculiar to the Female Sex are Due to Catarrh of the Pelvic Organs.

Rachael J. Kemball, M. D., 334 Virginia St., Buffalo, N. Y., is a graduate of the University of Buffalo, class 1884, and has been in the practice of medicine in that city since then. She writes as follows:

"My conviction, supported by experience, is that Peruna is a valuable preparation for all catarrhal affections. I have taken one bottle of Peruna myself and just feel fine. I shall continue to take it."—Rachael J. Kemball, M. D.

Peruna has cured thousands of cases of female weakness. As a rule, however, before Peruna is resorted to several other remedies have been tried in vain. A great many of the patients have taken local treatment, submitted themselves to surgical operations, and taken all sorts of doctor's stuff, without any result.

The reason of so many failures is the fact that diseases peculiar to the female sex are not commonly recognized as being caused by catarrh. These organs are lined by mucous membranes. Any mucous membrane is subject to catarrh.

Female Trouble Not Recognized as Catarrh.

Catarrh of one organ is exactly the same as catarrh of any other organ. What will cure catarrh of the head will also cure catarrh of the pelvic organs. Peruna cures these cases simply because it cures the catarrh.

Most of the women afflicted with pelvic diseases have no idea that their trouble is due to catarrh. The majority of the people think that catarrh is a disease confined to the head alone.

This is not true. Catarrh is liable to attack any organ of the body, throat, bronchial tubes, lungs, stomach, kidneys and especially the pelvic organs.

Many a woman has made this discovery after a long siege of useless treatment. She has made the discovery that her disease is catarrh, and that Peruna can be relied upon to cure catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

READY FOR RACE

Shell Is Working Well—Wisconsin's Crews and Weights.

Madison, Wis., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Greatest Crew Race Ever Held in Madison" is the wording of the bills advertising the race to be held here today. Everything is in readiness for the big event which is to be pulled off this afternoon.

The Duluth crew was on the water Tuesday evening for a short time. No work could be done during the day on account of the high wind and heavy sea, but toward evening the wind dropped and the visitors launched their shell. They rowed across the lake, a distance of three miles, and then landed to empty the water from their boat. They then rowed over the regular course, a distance of two miles and returned to the boat house.

They had four good spurts during the trip, and came in rowing a thirty-two stroke.

The shell is working better than at any time during the training, and the members of the crew are comfortably settled in their quarters and well rested after their tiresome trip. Captain Mahoney spent the greater part of yesterday in putting wash boards on the boat. The Wisconsin shells all have them.

The crew went out again for a short spin last evening, but no heavy work was indulged in, as the men wished to be fresh for today.

A magnificent water fete was held here Tuesday night, which the boys attended, and yesterday President Northrup of Minnesota addressed the students.

The Wisconsin Varsity crew has a new stroke. The man who formerly rowed number 4 will be in the stroke position for the race. The varsity eight averages 172 pounds.

The following is the official line-up of the Wisconsin crews, together with their weights:

PRICE WILL PAY UP,

Although Not Legally Bound to Do So.

New York, June 9.—Although he is not legally bound to do so, Theodore H. Price, whose firm, Price, McCormick & Co., cotton brokers, failed for $13,000,000, will pay his debts in full, and that checks will be sent out before the middle of June. Price went through the bankruptcy court, and was freed of all his obligations, but he feels in honor bound, he tells his friends, to make restitution before he launches in business again.

WILL JOIN BROTHERS.

Percy Sheehan Also Committed to Red Wing.

The parole of Percy Sheehan was revoked this morning by Judge Gearhart, and the lad was committed to the training school for boys at Red Wing.

He was charged with having stolen seven bottles of beer from the residence of William H. Blake. He had the liquor under a sidewalk and would take out a bottle at a time, consuming the entire seven bottles in a few days.

The matter came to the notice of Humane Officer Withrow and the lad was taken into custody. Two of his brothers are already in the Red Wing school and he will be taken there tomorrow to join them.

A QUESTION OFTEN ASKED.

Does It Pay to Be Without the Greatest Tonic Laxative—Rea Bros.' Cascarin?

To those who are dragging out a miserable existence, suffering from the effects of disease of the liver, kidneys, stomach and bowels; to those who are afflicted with flatulency, indigestion, constipation, irregularity and inaction of the bowels and catarrh of the stomach; listen when we say you need not apply to any one if you will only take Cascarin it will cure you even in the most advanced and stubborn case, without any restriction whatever. You whose case has proved unyielding to all other treatments; you who have tried many other so-called remedies; who have paid doctors' bills innumerable, and received no good effects. We do not say it will probably cure you. We say it will positively cure you. You understand, that, don't you? Your vitality will come back, and you will regain your health. Cascarin at all leading druggists. Price, 50c.

WEST DULUTH

Unless the ten children of Julius La Londe, of West Duluth, take the proper care of their father from now on, they will be prosecuted, according to the statutes of Minnesota, provided for such cases. Mr. La Londe, who is an aged West Duluth man, complained some time ago to the county poor commission that he had been turned out of doors by his children and asked to be sent to the county poorhouse.

The matter was discussed by the county commissioners at their meeting this week, and several of them expressed themselves in a decided manner to be in favor of prosecuting children who will not look after their aged parents, especially where there are so many of them.

The commissioners passed a resolution directing that unless the old gentleman is taken care of the county attorney shall begin proceedings against the children, collectively or individually.

FOND DU LAC SERVICE.

Matter Now Up to Officials of Road.

The committee of the West Duluth Commercial club members, recently appointed by the club to see about a restoration of the Fond du Lac train service, this week met with the division superintendent of the Northern Pacific railroad and conferred with him in regard to the matter. It now rests with the higher officials of the road. Members of the committee, which consists of M. J. Fillatrault, E. J. Zault and P. H. Martin, are of the opinion that the request of the club will be granted.

The request was also made that a man be supplied to keep the West Duluth station open and meet the night train. The two requests were embodied in a resolution recently passed at a regular meeting of the club.

Several weeks ago a committee was named to confer with New Duulth and Fond du Lac people in an effort to secure a return of last summer's schedule, but the residents of those parts of the city are too few and lack sufficient organization to give much weight to any demand they may make of the railroad company, so it was decided that it would be better for the club to take the matter in its own hands.

DOCK TRAMWAY FALLS.

A portion of dock tramway No. 1 at the St. Louis mill gave way yesterday, letting three men fall into the water, twenty feet below. The men were uninjured. Several cars of lumber were overturned by the accident, and a horse was left standing on the end of the tramway. He was not released until early in the evening, when a temporary bridge, by which he might walk across the gap, was constructed. The St. Louis mill resumed operations yesterday after havign been closed down several days on account of a shortage of logs.

THE COPPER HANDBOOK.

Fourth Annual Larger and Handsomer Than Ever.

Horace J. Stevens' edition for 1904 of the Copper Handbook is out and it is a most complete and handsome affair. This is the fourth annual edition, and the book has grown, since 1901, from 528 pages of text to 778 pages of text, and whereas the first volume listed less than 300 Lake Superior coper properties only, the present edition lists and describes 3311 copper mines and companies, in all parts of the world, the descriptions ranging from 2 lines to 11 pages each, according to importance. The book also contains fifteen miscellaneous chapters, devoted to the history, uses, geology, geography, mineralogy, chemistry, metallurgy, and statistics of copper, with a glossary of mining terms, etc. The advertising section of the book carries upwards of a hundred pages of paid advertising, this being a notable matter, as it is the largest amount of paid advertising ever carried by a mining annual in this or foreign countries.

The books sells at $5, in buckram binding with gilt top, and is sent, prepaid, on approval, without advance payment, to any address in the world. This plan, apparently risky, was tried last year, and proved a success in every particular the percentage of returned and unpaid for copies being very small. The circulation of the book, while only about 3000 copies, is very thoroughly diffused over the world, reaching every state in the Union and nearly every country in the Universal Postal Union.

Johnson Freed Because No One Would Testify Against Him.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Watertown—John Johnson, cattle rustler and horse thief, was released from custody after three days of diligent search for evidence upon which to convict, it being agreed that he could not be held on the evidence at hand. It seems that he has several times threatened the lives of his neighbors and no one could be found who was willing to appear in court against him. He has jumped the $500 cash bond which he put up in Clark county and gone into Minnesota.

Judge Bennett opened the summer term of circuit court for Deuel county at Clear Lake. There are many cases owing to the fact that at the last term but one day's session was held and no cases tried.

Miller—A Nebraska colony, headed by H. L. Johns, has located southwest of Pierre. Rev. A. O. Swartwood of this place, and W. A. Johns, of the Wolsey Journal, are members of the colony. Those of the colony who built houses last fall—including the editor and preacher—were grieved to learn while temporarily absent that cowboys carried off their houses and fences. The head man of the colony and Mr. Swartwood started from here today to replace the stolen houses. Mr. Johns has farmed in Indiana, Ohio and Nebraska, and says he never saw a better soil anywhere than west of the river, and feels confident that it will produce great crops of grain.

A party just in from Forest City says that a houseboat with three men having a mountain lion and a cougar passed down the Missouri for St. Louis. The lion had torn the hand of one of the men so badly while coming down frim Fort Benton that amputation was necessary.

Pierre—Applications have been made to the state land department to place on sale tracts of land in the newly opened portion of Gregory county for townsite purposes. The applications cover six different tracts. Commissioner Bach will look over the situation and if he can get a good price for the lands the matter will be laid before the state land board. There will be openings for several good towns in that section.

The whole of the Cheyenne river Indian reservation is now under lease by cattle men. All the eastern portion was leased to a man named Mossman. These leases bring the Cheyenne river Indians about $100,000 a year aside from the revenue they receive from the lease of the cattle trail along the northern line of the reserve. They are also being kept busy in the construction of dams and roads on the reservation, receiving fair wages, and are beginning to be prosperous as compared with their condition in past years.

Mitchell—Thomas Taubman, editor of the Plankinton Herald, passed through here on his way to Sioux Falls in charge of a deputy sheriff. He was arrested on a charge of criminal libel at the instigation of Fred L. Stevens, who was recently cleared of the charge of wrecking the Plankinton bank and causing a great loss of money to the depositors. Taubman in his paper repeatedly accused Stevens of being a robber and a thief and was particularly severe when the latter moved away from Plankinton to a suburb of Minneapolis. Stevens started the case at Sioux Falls to take it away from any local influence. Taubman was accompanied there by several citizens who will go on his bond, as he will waive examination before the justice court.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Fred Forester, aged 35, lies at the point of death, suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by his wife. The couple have quarreled frequently, and after trouble Tuesday night the wife grabbed a revolver and fired two shots, both of which took effect. The wife claims self-defense, and says that during a rational period her husband said that he did not wish his spouse to be prosecuted.

Finley—At a mass meeting of farmers of Steele county the Steele County Farmers' Co-operative Mercantile company was organized with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into shares of $100 each. The purpose of the association will be to carry on a general mercantile, trading, shipping and forwarding business. The following officers were elected: G. O. Johnson, president; W. W. Archer, secretary, and John Birkland, treasurer. The meeting was well attended and the farmers were enthusiastic. Already 332 farmers are pledged in support of the enterprise.

Wahpeton—The meeting of the Church of Lutheran Brethren has closed and the visitors are returning home. The most important matter before the convention was the question of the permanent location of the Bible school which is under the direction of the association.

The school was established in this city last fall and has enjoyed a successful year, over thirty students registering. A site was selected, but no buildings were erected owing to lack of funds. During the winter friends of the school in Battle Lake and Kenyon, Minn., started a movement to remove the school to one of those towns, and they put up a strong fight in the meeting here. When the vote was finally taken, however, Wahpeton was chosen as the permanent location and buildings to the value of $20,000 will be erected this summer.

The excellent railroad facilities of Wahpeton and the large Scandinavian population of the county make this an excellent location for the institution.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Three Convicts Escape From the Marquette Penitentiary.

Marquette—Asa Taft, George Wilson and George Tayor, convicts from lower Michigan, escaped from the Marquette penitentiary Wednesday afternoon and are still at large. The escape, which was not discovered until in the evening was made from the roof of the kitchen, the men lowering themselves to the ground by an electric wire, procured in the attic.

Menomenee—The main river drive in which the largest portion of the logs to be sawed on the Menominee are brought down has been started from the mouth of the Brule. It is in charge of Louis Peltier, with 200 men, who will bring the logs down a distance of about 200 miles to the saw mills of Marinette and Menominee. The crew lives on the river bank on the way down camping at night. The drive is earlier than last year and excellent progress is anticipated on account of the high water. The drives on the Pemene, Michigamme, Point Brule, and Fence rivers are all out, and those on the Pike, Peace and Sturgeon rivers are still in progress. These are all tributaries of the Menominee. There will be over 160,000,000 feet of logs in the main drive.

The Kittson farm on the Menominee river, near the Wausaukee bend, better known as a trading post established by the late John Jacob Astor, has been sold by the Beach estate to Attorney A. L. Sawyer, of Menominee. The tract embraces about forty acres. Years ago it was a rendezvous for the Menominee tribe of Indians, and it was there that the veteran Kittson did his trading in the interests of John Jacob Astor.

Munising—Acting under instructions from President William G. Mather, Engineer A. O. Jopling has started a crew of men at work on the driveway on Grand island, of Munising. This will be the third season that the work on this drive has been under way. About twelve miles have been completed and there are sixteen or eighteen miles yet to build. When it is completed the boulevard will extend around the island and will be one of the most attractive features of the Lake Superior country.

Sault Ste Marie—Dr. J. I. Deadman, of the Soo, is exhibiting a freak tooth he recently extracted from the mouth of a Manistique horse. The molar has a three-inch growth of bone attached to it, and is about the size of a goose egg. The doctor says he has not seen anything like it in forty years.

KNOX A CANDIDATE

For Senatorship Made Vacant By Quay's Death.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Attorney General Knox joined Henry C. Frick here today and consulted the Republican leaders regarding the proposition to make him Mr. Quay's successor in the United States senate. This afternoon Mr. Knox and Mr. Frick went to Washington. It is understood they go to consult President Roosevelt as to the advisability of Mr. Knox resigning the attorney generalship to become senator. Should the president advise against such a course, the belief prevails here that Mr. Knox will retain his cabinet portfolio, and that another Pittsburg man, probably Francis L. Robbins, will be the choice of the leaders.

Former Attorney General Elkin, William Flynn and Leader Bigelow, of Pittsburg, were told that Governor Pennypacker was willing to appoint any man who was selected by the Republican leaders.

Senator Penrose stated that no definite announcement would be made for a day or so.

BODIES FOUND.

Thomas Holtenburg and Son Were Drowned.

Bemidji, Minn., June 9.—A searching party which went out from Blackduck iscovered the bodies of Thomas Holtenberger and his fourteen year old son, who were drowned in crossing Blackduck lake Sunday night.

The bodies had washed ashore at Blackduck Island. Coroner Henderson viewed the remains and an inquest was not deemed necessary. The funeral occurred at Blackduck yesterday afternoon.

Holtenberger had been in Blackduck on business Sunday afternoon and started to his home in a small row boat about 7 o'clock. He had been drinking heavily and was in an intoxicated condition. The boat was heavily loaded with several sacks of feed and the lake was quite rough. It is supposed to have been capsized by the waves and the unfortunate occupants, unable to swim ashore, were drowned after a struggle.

Holtenberger has been living on the Fremont homestead. He leaves a family of several children. His wife was committed to the state hospital at Fergus Falls several years ago.

HE LIVED ON BLOSSOMS

Insane Man Makes Flowers His Diet For a Week.

Bemidji, Minn June 9.—George Rosebury, the insane man who left his cabin near Mallard a week ago last Friday, and when found had on only his underwear, had lived on strawberry blossoms and grass for the entire week.

Some neighbors of the insane man found his cabin in a state of disruption two weeks ago, all his money and his clothes were scattered over the floor and the man was missing. This caused a search, which was continued until last Friday, when Rosebury was found nearly starved and with only his underwear on, asleep in a cave, and it was only by the combined efforts of four men that the stone was rolled away and an entrance made to the cave.

When found the man seemed to know those with whom he had been acquainted, and at times talked rationally, but said that he saw an enormous man riding a white horse, who pursued him, riding over trees and lakes in the pursuit.

Rosebury is a single man of middle age and has lived alone on his claim near Mallard for a number of years. He has never before showed any signs of insanity and no reason for his demented condition is given. Dr. Prettyman, Editor Ellis and two others composed the searching party who found the insane man, and they immediately took him to Mallard, from whence he was taken to Bagley for his hearing in probate court. He will be taken to Fergus Falls this week.

JAPANESE TO ATTACK PORT ARTHUR FRIDAY.

BOMBARDING DAILY.

Japs Shell Port Arthur From Long Range.

Che Foo, June 9.—Chinese arriving from Port Arthur say the entrance to that harbor is still blocked and large vessels are unable to pass in or out. Gunboats and torpedo boats can only effect a passage at high tide. The Russians have several fortified positions between the present position, extended for a distance of seven miles out and under the forts at Port Arthur.

The Japanese fleet is bombarding Port Arthur daily from a considerable distance off shore, fearing to attempt a closer range of fire on account of danger from Russian mines.

The Chinese when leaving the town had great difficulty in securing provisions and several junks, which left recently without any food on board, which stopped them.

The Russian officials have notified the Chinese that officers who have treated people of their nationality curelly have been punshed.

Both sides are doing their utmost to earn the good will of the Chinese.

A junk from Takushan reports that the Russian officers who ordered the destruction of Chinese wagons, etc., before that town was evacuated, have been punished.

EXPOSED TO RUSSIAN FIRE.

Tokio, June 9.—Admiral Togo reports that on the night of June 7 he sent eight small torpedo boats from the battleships of his squadron to make a reconaissance of Port Arthur harbor. The boats went far inside the heads and were exposed to the Russian fire. One sailor and one petty officer were killed in the operation, but the boats escaped undamaged.

Admiral Kataoka reports that on June 6 he landed men on San Shan and Taku islands, in Tallen Wan bay for the purpose of making a reconaissance. They found many of the buildings thereon were only partially destroyed. In the hospitals some supplies were also found.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH.

Tien Tsin, June 9.—Viceroy Yuan Shai Kai has sent the Taoti Liu to Newchwang to investigate the death of Lewis Etzel, correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, who was shot recently by Chinese imperial soldiers. It is now reported that he was foully dealt with.

AMOUNT OF DAMAGE UNKNOWN.

Che Foo, June 9.—A Chinaman from Port Arthur says that while the party of Chinese with whom he arrived today were in Port Arthur during the bombardment which took place on the night of June 6, they left at daylight on June 7 for a harbor east of that town, where they boarded junks on the following day. Consequently, they had no oportunity of ascertaining the amount of damage done, if any, by the bombardment.

SUNKEN VESSELS FOUND.

Tokio, June 9.—Official reports show that the first section of Tallen Wan bay has been completely celared of mines. Sixty-two have been found and exploded by the force under Admiral Kataoka. Two Russian ships were found under water about 1020 yards west of San Shan island, one of which is believed to be the cruiser Boyarin. Other sunken vessels have also been found southwest of the same island.

BABE BURNED IN STOVE.

Butte Physician Arrested For Horrible Crime.

Butte, Mont., June 9.—The details of a horrible story of the burning of the body of a babe were told to the police last night and a serious charge has been preferred against a prominent physician of this city.

According to the story told the officers, the physician entered the kitchen of the Delmonico restaurant on Park street, one of the best-known eating-houses in the city, carrying a bundle which he wanted to put in the fire. As the doctor upon several occasions before had put bundles into the fire, the cook thought nothing of the request and granted it.

Several minutes later the cook, unable to get the stove lid down, removed the iron and was horrified to find on the top of the mass of flaming coals the body of a baby slowly burning to ashes, the complete cremation of which would have been accomplished in a few minutes more.

Dr. Otis C. Hull was placed under arrest in connection with the affair. The case has aroused much interest because of the prominence of the physician. Hull has little to say regarding his arrest, averring the officers will release him when the facts of the case become known.

POSED AS HERO

And Now Confesses to Perpetrating Fraud.

Milwauke, Wis., June 9.—M. T. Rattiff, section foreman at Kenosha, whose promotion has been ordered by the railroad company for his supposed heroic work in saving a passenger train from destruction, has confessed that his story was a fabrication and that he himself piled ties on the track in order to appear in the role of a hero. The police forced the confession. Rattiff will be discharged.

WITH BLUE VITRIOL

Woman Poisoned Herself and Her Daughter.

Brainerd, Minn., June 9.—A highly sensational report comes from Pine River regarding an atempt at suicide by Mrs. John Vail, wife of the proprietor of the City hotel of that village, and also the administering of poison to a young daughter. Mrs. Vail is said to have given the little girl some blue vitroil, telling her it was candy and then took some of the poison herself. The little girl did not eat enough to have any effect upon her, but the mother took a big dose and her life is despaired of.

SEARLE IS URGED

By Collins' Managers to Decline Supreme Court Nomination.

Replied That He Could Not Consistently Take Such Action.

St. Paul, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report is circulated in St. Paul by supporters of R. C. Dunn that Judge D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud, has recently refused to sign an agreementwith the managers of Judge Loren W. Collins in the Sixth congressional district that under no circumstances will Judge Searle allow his name to be mentioned in the state convention as a candidate for the supreme court.

According to this report, several of the leading Collins men in the Sixth district held a conference last Sunday to discuss the candidacy of Judge D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud, which the Collins men believe is injuring the candidacy of Judge Collins from the same town. At the conference it was decided to request Judge Searle in the interest of Judge Collins to promise that under no circumstances should he allow his name to be mentioned in the state convention. Judge Searle, it is reported, said that he could not consistently make such a promise; that he was in the hands of his friends; that he was not an office-seeker, but that if the Republicans of Minnesota wanted him for a judge of the supreme court he would not decline the honor.

"I am not seeking the supreme court nomination and prefer not to make a definite announcement at this time. I have, however, received a great deal of encouragement to become a candidate for a place on the bench. I think I will let matters run along as they have been doing, and if the Republicans want me for the position there will then be time to consider the question. I have friends among the supporters of both R. C. Dunn and Judge Collins, and I am not unaware of the effects of my candidacy on the gubernatorial situation."

• • •

There is a report on the street that James A. Martin, of St. Cloud, is slated for Judge Searle's place on the district bench in case Judge Searle is nominated and elected as judge of the supreme court and Governor Van Sant is renominated by the Republicans. Mr. Martin and the Collins men deny the report and it is not generally credited.

The report, however, is that should Judge Searle be nominated when the judges are considered the first thing in the convention and Judge Collins should be rendered unavailable as a gubernatorial candidate, the administration forces will bend their energies in an attempt to nominate Governor Van Sant. Governor Van Sant will have the appointment of a judge in place of Judge Searle, and, according to the report, Mr. Martin is the man slated for the place.

It is very probable that Judge Collins' supporters are not figuring quite so far ahead as this. They have by no means given up hopes of nominating the St. Cloud judge, and until they do they will not take up the question of filling the appointments in Van Sant's third term.

• • •

The Collins men, by the way, have been unusually jubilant the last few days. They point to the incident between R. C. Dunn and Charles B. Cheney, the Minneapolis reporter, and insist that the tide is turning in their favor.

"I don't suppose that Mr. Dunn knew when he bought that umbrella with which he struck Mr. Cheney that it would be the means of putting him in the shade," said a Collins man in a joking strain yesterday.

The Dunn men on the other hand take a different view of the incident, believing that the people of the state admire Bob's fighting qualities.

"It never hurts a gubernatorial candidate to get in a fight," said a Dunn man yesterday. "Why when Knute Nelson was running for governor, he whipped a man to a standstill up at Elbow Lake. He was making a speech at the time and the man persisted in interrupting him. He got down from the platform and fought until the man could scarcely walk, and all the people praised him for it.

"Former Governor Marshall, too, when he was a candidate for the nomination, walked from St. Paul to Stillwater to whip a man, and he whipped him good and proper. These things merely show that the man is human and that when he has been unjustly attacked he feels like striking back."

• • •

Dispatches from Washington state that Congressman McCleary, of the Second district, has started for Minnesota to look after his political fences. Since he left Minnesota for the last session, Former Senator H. J. Miller, of Lanesboro, has entered the field and according to reports received in St. Paul is making an enthusiastic campaign.

The general sentiment is that Mr. Miller's chances depend a good deal on how the farmers of the district will accept his views on tariff revision. He is making his campaign largely on this issue. Should the Republican state convention June 30 come out strongly for revision, Mr. Miller's chances will be still better. Should the Republicans of the state, however, openly declare in favor of standing pat, he will have a hard row to hoe.

• • •

Supporters of Judge Loren W. Collins are renewing talk of the merger issue. The St. Cloud candidate ventured a statement at a recent meeting in Minneapolis that unless the Republican state platform comes out flat-footed against the merging of competing lines of railway, he does not care to be a candidate.

"I oppose the merger and by that I mean corporation control, past, present and future," said the judge. "If the Republican party does not endorse the acts of Governor Van Sant in attacking the railway merger and the acts of President Roosevelt in following up his antecedents I don't want the nomination for governor."

Former Congressman Eddy, of Glenwood, who spoke at the same meeting was not so particular about the platform, but he did not want it drawn up in advance by United States Marshal Grimshaw.

"Let us do away with platform makers," said Mr. Eddy, "who can so readily express at great length sentiments that amount to so little. Let us have a platform presented to the convention which shall embody the ideas on which Republicans should stand united and which shall go right to the heart of each matter."

The Democratic primaries in Ramsey county will be held tomorrow evening, and it is practically conceded that they will be controlled by anti-Hearst Democrats. The Hearst men have made no fight in Ramsey from the first, believing that an overwhelming majority of the voters favor the nomination of Judge Parker or some Democrat of the conservative type.

"I am satisfied that the anti-Hearst men will control the county convention and that Ramsey's seventy-eight delegates to the state convention will oppose the nomination of the New York publisher," said one of the leading Democrats of St. Paul yesterday. "If Hearst has any strength in this county I have not seen any evidence of it. The leading Democrats of the county and as far as I can learn, a good majority of the rank and file believe that a man of Judge Parker's stamp should receive the presidential nomination."

Every conceivable kind of a misplay was pulled off by the White Sox in the game with the Tigers yesterday afternoon. The boys appeared to have been saving up their errors since arriving home in order to spring them all at once and get them over with.

The first inning yesterday was a horrible nightmare of baseball. It was a carnival of errors, a stupednous exhibition of monumental misplays. Nagel led off with a clean double, the only one of the game. Hutchinson followed with a bunt along the third base line. Quillan was sick enough to be in bed, but had gone into the game. The knock-out blow he received Monday followed with another minor accident had left him in poor condition for playing fast ball. He dove after the bunt, however, but fumbled it and Hutchinson was safe. He stole second and went to third a minute later when Quillan repeated his error on Dunn's bunt which scored Nagel. Ball's error let in Hutchinson, and Zink's error left Cole safe on first. Martin put up a pop fly to Gehring, which the Duluth pitcher caught and threw to first to double up Cole, but the ball struck Martin on the top of the head and went to the bleachers, Cole completing the tour of the bases before it was recovered. Four runs were in and the fans squirmed in their seats, but Gehring got the next two on easy grounders, and the slaughter was over. The fans were so surprised that they forgot to knock the team. Owens replaced Quillan at third.

Gehring pitched beautiful ball throughout the game. In spite of the wretched support he received, the Tigers got only seven hits off his delivery, and he did not pass a man to first. Had the boys been playing their usual game not a man would have reached third base. Only fourteen men faced "Hauk" in the next four innings. The Tigers added another in the sixth on a hit, a stolen base and an error by Wilkes.

Two runs came in the seventh, but the White Sox had come back to earth again and sharp fielding kept the visitors from scoring. They went out one-two-three in the eighth and ninth.

The home team could do nothing with Newmeyer, the southpaw pitcher who was put out of the game Tuesday for disputing Umpire Hogan's decisions. Gibson came within three of equalling Noffsin's strike-out record of fifteen, and allowed the Duluth sluggers but three hits. Had it not been for his wildness he would have shut out the leaders. In the sixth the White Sox got their only chance to score. Corrigan, the first man up, drew a base on balls, and Owens sent him to second on a hit. Randall and Zink each received one of Newmeyer's shoots in the ribs and Corrigan was forced home with the only run of the day. O'Leary sent an easy grounder to Schurnweber and Owens was caught at the plate. Lagger struck out, and the best that Bail could do was a long outfield fly.

The White Sox tried hard to pull themselves out of the hole, and win back the game they had presented to the visitors in the first inning, but Mr. Newmeyer was too much for them, and they sawed the atmosphere with unpleasant regularity. Twelve men in all walked up to the plate and wended back again after missing those mysterious shoots three times in succession.

The visitors played a pretty game in the field, and seemed determined to retrieve themselves for the two defeats on Monday and Tuesday. Schurnweber's two excusable errors at short were the only misplays during the game, and these were not costly. O'Leary's arm did not seem to be in good working order and Dunn, Hutchinson and Martin are credited with stolen bases.

CAMERON'S COLTS WIN.

Give the Deposed Champions Another Swatting.

Superior bunched hits and the "Champ" bunched their errors in the third inning of yesterday's game, and seven runs were credited to the Longshoremen before the slaughter was brought to an end.

During the remainder of the game Green pitched good ball and kept the home team from scoring again. Winnipeg made a game up-hill struggle and scored in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings, but the lead was too big to be overcome.

Cameron's Colts had all kinds of ginger and they took delight in robbing the 'Peggers of safe hits by sensational fielding.

Egan, O'Dea and Cameron worked in a double, and Anderson brought the fans to their feet by a long running catch.

Kilroy pitched good ball, keeping the visitors' hits well scattered.

BUNCHES THE HITS.

Fargo Gets Five Safe Ones In One Inning.

Fargo, N. D., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo duplicated its performance of last week with Winnipeg and made it three out of four with Crookston by taking the game yesterday afternoon 5 to 3. The features of the game were Fargo's bunched hits in the sixth when five of the ten safe ones came at once and netted a trio of earned runs.

Crookston started the scoring in the second on Novacek's three-sacker and Mankle's error. Another was added in the fourth when, after one was down, Hoffmeister was allowed to walk. Hoffman died to left but Miller landed for a three-bagger scoring Hoffmeister. Crookston had no further interest in the proceedings after that inning.

Fargo scored in the third, when, with two down Burton allowed Demont't grounder to get away. Furlong got one in the slats and Demont scored on Rose's long single.

In the fourth the score was tied when Werden led off with a single, was sacrificed to second by Lynch, went to third on Treager's short single and scored on a double steal.

In the sixth Rose started the trouble with a single and scored on Werden's hit for two bases. Lynch and Treager hit safely filling the bases. With the bags full Martin got busy and struck out both Edwards and Mankle, but Lempke proved a pinch hitter and clouted a long single into right, scoring Werden and Lynch.

There were two snappy doubles and the play was fast throughout the game. Mankle's catch of Hoffman's fly in the ninth was the prettiest fielding feature of the game. Werden, Rose and Treager were strong with the stick.

Off the Bat.

They can't win 'em all.

• • •

Two out of three will do.

• • •

The first game lost on the home grounds

• • •

The Tigers can consider that an act of charity.

• • •

It was bad, but they won't do it again.

• • •

There is till a goodly margin between Superior and first place.

• • •

They ought to feel better after getting rid of all those misplays.

• • •

Better to have one off day and make all the errors at once, then to string them out.

• • •

Quillan went home and went to bed after being replaced by Owens in the second inning.

• • •

Frank Martin said good-bye to his old team mates yesterday afternoon and took the train for Toledo.

• • •

Was it Winnipeg that led the league last year? And was Superior trailing in last place with Duluth a close rival?

• • •

Conditions are exactly reversed from last season. The three first division teams of last year are in the last division now.

• • •

It would be a shame to take three straights from Crookston. But perhaps the tail-enders have a rally coming yet. They have been playing in hard luck.

• • •

The games with Superior next week should get the fans in force. "Everybody beats Superior and Superior beats Duluth" will be changed this year to "Duluth beats everybody and wipes the ground with Bugville."

BLOOD POISON

"I cure Blood Poison by my Original Perfected System of Anti-Toxine Treatment, thus avoiding the horrible effects of Poisonous Drugs."

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

THESE ARE YOUR SYMPTOMS:

On account of its frightful hideousness, Syphilitic Blood Poison is commonly called the king of venereal diseases. It may be hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous like decay of the flesh and bones.

OUR ELEOTRO-MEDIOAL TREATMENT

improves the patient from the beginning. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones, and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

We do not treat all diseases, but we cure all we treat; we treat men only and cure them to stay cured. We cure to stay cured Varicocele, Stricture, Lost Manhood, Atrophied or Shrunken Organs, Syphilitic Blood Poison, Nervo Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney, Urinary Diseases, and all associate diseases and weaknesses of men. We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men, and to which countless tongues gladly testify? If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully.

CRISIS IS FACED

By Republicans In East and Millionaires Will Enter Politics.

The Philadelphia Manufacturers Take Steps to Re-Elect Roosevelt.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Anticipating a hard fight to elect President Roosevelt, and to pave the way for aggressive, practical participation in municipal politics hereafter, the Manufacturers' club has decided to issue a call for a convention of manufacturers to be held at the Academy of Music, which will, in effect, amount to a Roosevelt demonstration. In all the years of its existence the Manufacturers' club has never figured in politics except as a producer. Hereafter it will figure as a principal.

That the Republican party faces a crisis is generally believed here. A strenuous fight will be made, and unless Insurance Commissioner Durham shall be forced by illness to surrender his leadership in the city, Philadelphia probably will give Roosevelt the greatest majority it has ever accorded any candidate. The health of Mr. Durham is now a matter of serious concern to the party managers and to the local manufacturers, who have always transacted their political business through him or direct with the late Senator Quay.

The death of Senator Quay precipitated the present movement. The state is without a Republican leader, and without the presence of Israel W. Durham, the Philadelphia machine is headless and hopeless. Durham is a very sick man, all statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

The active participation of the Manufacturers' club in a national campaign will prove an important matter, but the real interest centers around the municipal proposition. It is a notorious fact that Philadelphia is the most corrupt city in the United States, and that, strangely enough, the people are more or less well content. So long as Mr. Durham stands at the head of the Republican machine there will be no factional revolt.

With Durham aside, there is danger of political chaos, and it is with this in mind that the directors of the Manufacturers' club have decided to act now. It it hoped that the reaction will carry the city forward to better things. There is nothing of a reform movement in this matter, as such crusades are usually considered. It is a high order of practical politics directed by strong men with millions of dollars.

The national campaign will serve to drill and test the newly-formed political alliance of manufacturers. The men in the line will then have an opportunity to study their divisions and to familiarize themselves with the men and methods of the machine right at the polls. All of this work will be done within the lines of the regular Republican organization, and under no circumstances will any independent movement or candidates be considered.

The object is to control a nucleus of highly-intelligent, wealthy and influential political workers, all of whom will have a voice in the reorganization of the Republican machine when Mr. Durham shall step aside.

The convention of manufacturers will be held at the Academy of Music on Sept. 9 next. Fayette R. Plumb, president of the Manufacturers' club, will preside at the organization. Thomas Dolan will be elected permanent chairman. The general committee will include 100 of the best-known manufacturers in Philadelphia, every one of whom is pledged to the active support of President Roosevelt.

It is believed that this move of the Manufacturers' club, so far as it relates to national politics, was the real excuse for the recent visit of Secretary Cortelyou to this city, upon which occasion he was the guest of the directors of the club, and as such was tendered a public reception at the club house.

The club members and the 1100 employing manufacturers they represent propose to join hands with the local Republican machine managers, who control more than 10,000 office holders, more than 3000 "contractors' men" and 2500 election officers, who of themselves "produce" no less than 60,000 votes by rapid calculation and other methods of fraud. With these 3300 worthies on guard at the polls and in control of the primary election machinery, the "organization" is absolutely invincible.

It is expected that more cash capital will be represented in the proposed manufacturers' convention than in any similar assemblage. The manufacturers of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey will be invited to participate, and something intensely practical will be done to further the interests of Mr. Roosevelt.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

J. G. Butler, Jr., chairman of the Bessemer Pig Iron association, says that on June 1, of the furnaces tributary to the Lake Superior ore region, 11 stacks were in blast and 43 out of blast, with a daily capacity of 51,057 tons.

Damage of $400,000 was caused by a fire which, Wednesday night, destroyed a seven-story building at 54 Canal street, Chicago, known as Machinery hall.

R. T. St. John, of Riceville, was elected department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic of Iowa Wednesday. Mrs. Frederica Philpot, of Cedar Falls, was elected president of the Women's Relief corps, and W. J. Muse, of Mason City, commander of the Sons of Veterans.

Can Cross the Road.

For the purpose of getting a pipe line from Eveleth to Ely lake for a water supply, the county commissioners have given the city of Eveleth permission to lay pipes over, through and under the unused portions of the right-of-way of the Ely lake or Miller Trunk road. The city contemplates a new water plant and the privilege of the county road right-of-way holds good so long as the plant is maintained to supply the city water.

Got His License.

David Forte has at last obtained a liquor license to do business in the town of Great Scott. The license matter has been pending for some time owing to the fact that petitions have been sent to the county commissioners protesting against the saloon on the ground that the place has previously had a bad record and that there is a story afloat of a shooting affray in the building some time ago. At the last meeting of the board a counter petition was presented and Forte got his license. Commissioners Berg, Connors and Morcom, however, voted against it.

PHILIPPINE DELEGATES

Have Arrived to Attend the National Conventions.

San Francisco, June 9.—Four delegates to the national convention from the Philippines arrived on the Coptic. Two of the delegates are judges of the court of first instance, one of them is a merchant and the other is a deputy collector of customs at Malay. None of the delegates is sure of a seat in the convention. The question of recognizing the delegates will be one of the earliest problems before the committee on credentials.

Judge A. C. Carson is a delegate to the Democratic convention, and Judge Trenter has been sent to represent his constituents at the Republican gathering. Deputy Collector J. S. Stanley and J. M. Switzer will also, if the convention decides to receive them, attend the Chicago meeting. T. C. Reiser, of the Manila customs service, comes as an alternate to the Republican convention.

Judge C. H. Haynes, also of the court of first instance, was another passenger. He is home on a leave of absence.

MAKE FINE RECORDS

Firemen Show Up Well In the Annual Inspection.

Records at the Different Houses and Comparisons With Previous Years.

The complete records made in yesterday's tests at the different fire halls are now available.

They are, in nearly all instances, better than those made a year ago and average up well with the excellent records made in 1902. Some allowance must be made for the difference in the water pressure, in comparing the records made by the several companies in the water test. The difference in the elevation of the fire-halls makes no little variation in the water pressure, and would account for three or four seconds of the difference between the records of the several companies.

Especially good work was done by the chemical and salvage corps at headquarters, the chemical and hose companies at number 4, and the hook and ladder and hose companies at number 8.

The inspecting party was much pleased at the efficiency shown by the tests.

Following the inspection Chief Black gave a banquet at the St. Louis hotel to the members of the party, including Mayor Cullum, Aldermen Haven, Harker, Tessman, Moore, Waugh, Walker, Wing, Olson, Wilson, Barnes, Sang and Chesney; President Holgate, of the board of public works; C. T. Fitzsimmons, A. R. Merritt and Secretary Alfred McCallum, of the board of fire commissioners; C. B. Nunan and Arthur A. Fider of the civil service commission; J. H. Crowley, of the water and light commissioners; City Clerk Cheadle; Comptroller McCormick; Edward C. Field and Henry Nolte, representing the fire underwriters; Ex-Mayor Hugo; J. J. Moe and Health Commissioner Murray and B. Silberstein.

NOT IN RIGHT STATE.

Wisconsin Couple Married By Minnesota Minister.

A marriage license was issued by the clerk of court of St. Louis county yesterday afternoon to Charles F. Steele and Miss Edith M. Liden, Nebagamon, Wis., and thereby hangs a tale.

The young people came to Duluth yesterday to be married and brought with them a marriage license, issued in Wisconsin. A Wisconsin marriage license is no more valid in Minnesota than a Minnesota license is in Wisconsin, but the young people did not know the difference, and the East End minister to whom they went to perform the ceremony did not notice that the license was invalid until after he had said the words that united the couple, and had telephoned the clerk of district court to find out if the return had been made on the license.

At this juncture he discovered that no license had been issued in this county, and he was advised to stop the newly married people as soon as he could and explain matters. He did so, finding them at the depot ready to get on the South Shore train for Nebagamon.

After the proper explanations, the young people decided to stay over until today, securing a Minnesota license and being remarried last evening.

WOMAN WILL HANG

In New Jersey, First Time In Forty Years.

New York, June 9.—For the first time in forty years, a woman has been doomed in New Jersey, through refusal of the court of pardons to interfere, to death on the gallows for murder. Mrs. Annie Valentina, who killed Mrs. Rosie Salza at Lodi, N. J., last March will be the victim and she will probably be executed June 16, at Hackensack. At her trial Mrs. Valentina confessed her crime and said in open court that she was ready to die. She said that the Salza woman called her vile names and in a frenzy she stabbed her tormentor seventeen times with a long bladed knife.

A LIEN SUIT.

Paine & Nixon Company Are Plaintiffs In One.

Paine & Nixon company, of this city, have begun a suit in district court against James Kelleher, Gregory company, Rock Lake Lumber company, Hibbing Electric company and several individuals, in which judgment is asked against Mr. Kelleher for $1777.22, the judgment to be a lien superior to a mortgage held by the Gregory company, and that the court adjudge the amount and validity of other lien taken by the Rock Lake Lumber company, Hibbing Electric Light company and others. The local firm also asks that the court direct the sale of the property in question, and that the proceeds be used in the payment of claims adjudged as liens.

In its complaint the Paine & Nixon company allege that it sold Mr. Kelleher building material for a structure now standing in Hibbing, in the amount of $3308.89, of which only $1531.67 is said to have been paid.

GREAT PIPE ORGAN

At World's Fair Is Dedicated —Fish Die.

St. Louis, June 9.—The great pipe organ in festival hall, which is the largest pipe organ in the world, was dedicated today with a program rendered by Charles M. Galloway, official organist of the exposition. The organ is not entirely completed but is so that it can be used.

About 200 fish in the Minnesota and Pennsylvania exhibits have died. It is believed the change in the temperature of the water in which they were kept, from 50 degrees on the refrigerator tanks to about 70 degrees in the exhibition tanks, was too sudden for them.

RECORD IS BROKEN

Imports of India Rubber This Year Exceed $40,000,000.

Demand Has Increased Very Rapidly In Recent Years.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Imports of india rubber into the United States in the fiscal year about to end will exceed by far those of any earlier year, and will amount to over $40,000,000 in value. The demand for this article of exclusively foreign production for use in manufacturing has increased very rapidly in recent years, as shown by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, will amount to about 60,000,000 pounds, valued as already indicated, at fully $40,000,000. This rapid increase is apparently due, in a large degree, to the increasing use of this material for tires of vehicles of various classes, though in other lines of manufacture the demand is also very great.

The rapid growth in the use of this article of manfacture in the United States is illustrated in the fact that the total value of india rubber and gutta-percha imported in 1870 was less than $2,500,000 in 1880, $9,500,000 in 1890, $15,000,000 in 1900, $31,000,000, and in 1904 will be fully $40,000,000. The increase in quantity has not been quite so rapid as the increase in value, owing to the fact that prices have advanced materially by reason of the greatly increased demand of the various manufacturing sections of the world, especially the United States.

In 1880 the quantity of rubber imported into the United States amounted to 17,000,000 pounds valued at $9,500,000, making the average price about 5 cents per pound. In 1890 the quantity imported was 34,000,000 pounds valued at $15,000,000 dollars, or slightly less than 50 cents per pound. In 1900 the quantity imported was 39,000,000 pounds valued at $31,000,000, or about 63 cents per pound; while in 1904 the record of the ten months for which figures are now available shows an average value for rubber imported of 68 cents per pound. In addition to this, however, large quantities of material utilized in conjunction with india rubber are now imported.

Importations of "gutta-joolatong," a product of India, which is used in certain industries as a substitute for india rubber, now average more than a million pounds a month, while importations of old and scrap india rubber to be remanufactured amounted to over 15,000,000 pounds in the ten months of the fiscal year for which a record is now at hand. These importations old and scarp rubber for remanufacture and of gutta-joolatong as a substitute in certain lines of work are comparatively new and have only been reported by the bureau of statistics as a separate item during a very recent period. The fact that they are now utilized and that the importations of old and scrap rubber to be remanufactured have reached such a large total indicates the great demand for this material in the manufacturing industries of the United States.

Brazil is the most important source of this material. More than one-half of the india rubber imported into the United States comes direct from Brazil, the total from that country alone being for the ten months 30,000,000 pounds, valued at $20,325,000. The United Kingdom supplied in the same period 7,000,000 pounds, valued at $5,225,000; Germany, 2,000,000, valued at $1,225,000, and "other Europe" nearly 10,000,000 pounds, valued at over $7,500,000. These supplies of india rubber which come from the European countries are in practically all cases the product of their various colonies, Germany drawing her supplies from her colonies in Africa; the United Kingdom, from Africa, India, Ceylon and the Straits settlements, while the supply from countries designated as "other Europe" is chiefly that obtained in Africa by Belgium from the Kongo country which it controls.

Belgium supplied in 1903 nearly 5,500,000 pounds of india rubber, against less than 2,750,000 in 1900, less than 1,000,000 pounds in 1897, and but 30,000 pounds in 1893. Germany's supply of rubber to the United States has grown from a little over 1,500,000 pounds in 1893 to practically 3,000,000 in 1903, while that from the United Kingdom has increased from 6,500,000 pounds in 1893 to nearly 10,000,000 in 1903. Portugal also draws considerable quantities of india rubber from her colonies in Africa, her total shipments to the United States having grown from 1,500,000 pounds in 1893 to over 2,000,000 in 1903. Brazil's supply of india rubber to the United States grew from 26,749,695 pounds in 1893 to 31,119,486 pounds in 1903, and in the year about to end that country will contribute about 25,000,000 pounds, and probably exceed her total for any preceding year.

The following shows the value of india rubber and gutta-percha imported into the United States at quinquennial years from 1870 to 1890, and annually from 1890 to date: 1870, $3,459,995; 1875, $4,675,490; 1880, $9,606,238; 1885, $9,055,256; 1890, $14,854,512; 1891, $18,020,804; 1892, $19,853,099; 1893, $17,964,997; 1894, $15,162,-393; 1895, $18,475,382; 1896, $16,781,533; 1897, $17,-558,163; 1898, $25,545,391; 1899, $32,041,626; 1900, $31,792,687; 1901, $28,835,178; 1902, $25,952,977; 1903, $31,004,241; 1904 (ten months), $37,880,746.

COPPER-BEARING ROCK.

Some Is Found In Excavation For New Buildings.

"Duluth real estate men ought to tell their clients in the East that there are copper mines under the business blocks now being erected in Duluth, and there would be a rush of speculators here," remarked a Duluth citizen this morning as he watched the workmen employed in the excavation work at the new Lenox hotel location, corner of Sixth avenue west and Superior street, drive their picks into a vein of copper-bearing quartz, about a foot wide and seeming to run down to quite a depth.

The rock taken out of the vein bears strong traces of the presence of mineral.

The rock is very much similar to that taken out of the excavation for the new Duncan & Brewer building. Similar rock was taken out on The Herald building location when the foundations were put in, and copper-bearing rock is not an unusual find in several other parts of the city when excavations are made.

It is claimed by many that the rock foundation of the business part of the city is fairly seamed with veins of copper-bearing rock.

TOO MUCH SPEED.

An accident occurred in Duluth yesterday, when an aged citizen was knocked down by a bicycle that might easily have resulted fatally although fortunately the victim escaped with nothing worse than a scalp wound. The accident occured on Third avenue west and Superior street, the busiest corner in the city, and was a result of scorching. If the boy had not been riding too fast the collision would neither have knocked down the citizen nor thrown the rider from his wheel.

Since bicycle riding as a fad has been discontinued there has been little to complain of from those who ride wheels on business errands or for other necessary reasons. But occasionally there is a boy who will develop the old scorcher spirit and risk all sorts of dangers by rushing along busy city streets like mad. There is no sense in it and the police should make examples of some of these boys who persistently break the laws relating to the speed of bicycles.

While speaking of scorchers it might not be out of place at this time to remind some of the owners of automobiles that they also violate the ordinances of Duluth by rushing along the business streets at a clip of twenty to forty miles an hour. If the police permit this to continue, it will not be long until there will be the news of a serious accident to record.

Furthermore the trainmen of the different railroads entering the city habitually violate the laws and ordinances regulating the speed of trains within the city limits and frequently run through the suburbs at a speed of twenty to forty miles an hour, sometimes crossing busy streets at that speed where there are neither gates nor watchmen to protect the public from injury. It would seem as though the mayor ought to give the police instructions to see that this is stopped.

A MODEL CELEBRATION.

While the people of Chicago have taken steps to protect life and property by forbidding the promiscuous explosion of gunpowder on the Fourth of July, they do not intend that the children of the city shall be deprived of the pleasure of a noisy celebration of the day and so they have invited the boys to the parks and playgrounds of the city, where they will be provided with firecrackers and other harmless explosives at the expense of the citizens' entertainment committee. There they will be expected to shout and howl to their hearts' content.

At each rendezvous there will be in attendance a policeman, a fireman, a doctor with his surgical kit, a member of the Illinois naval reserve and a school teacher. The boys will be encouraged to make all the noise they can, but will be dissuaded from blowing off their hands or otherwise mutilating their persons.

After the boys have had their fill of explosions and hilarity there will be concerts in the public parks by the National Guard bands, a grand promenade on Michigan avenue and displays of municipal fireworks.

This appears to be a very sensible program and one that might well be adopted in Duluth and all other cities. It will have a tendency to greatly reduce the mortality rate that usually attends the celebration of Independence day.

AN OFFICIAL'S OPINION.

Capt. R. M. Shearer has just returned to his home in Cincinnati, after an extended sojourn in an official capacity in the Philippines. He is on an eight-months' leave of absence from his post as treasurer of the province of Pamparga. Capt. Shearer, at the conclusion of the war, was made treasurer of Cavite province whence he was promoted to Pamparga province, where he now is.

In an interview the captain said, among other things:

"In the Philippine islands the United States will eventually have a most valuable acquisition. The finest hardwood in the world is found there in abundance, and minerals, particularly copper and gold, abound.

"In the development of these resources the lack of suitable transportation facilities is severely felt. The building up of contemplated railroads will open up a country second to none in natural resources.

"The agricultural interests of the country are at a low ebb, owing largely to the fact that in the past three years the country has had to contend with the cholera, the rhinderpest, a disease which killed 60 per cent of the carabou, the principal work animal, and the locust plague which for the past two years has destroyed all the crops.

"Those, however, have now all been eradicated and there is evidence that the present year will be a most prosperous one."

Being the holder of a lucrative office in the new territory, it is but natural that Capt. Shearer should speak in glorious terms of that country, but other American visitors who did not hold office are almost unanimous in their opinion that the islands are not a valuable possession and that they offer mighty small opportunities for American enterprise. The talk of rich mines is probably the result of pipe dreams. The Spanish are sufficiently in love with gold and silver to ferret it out if any is to be found. There is some gold in the mountains, no doubt, but as yet it has not been found in sufficient quantities to pay for working the gravel along the streams.

As to agriculture in those islands, it is the judgment of those who have seen, that only a native can succeed. The discouragements are many and the climatic conditions very trying. Capt. Shearer has mentioned a few of the drawbacks, but hopes for a prosperous season this year. It will probably come if some other plague does not develop before the crops are harvested.

If the question of retaining the Philippines rested upon their natural resources there would be good reason for giving them up, but their relinquishment to the people who really own them ought to be done on the more humane ground that the United States has no moral right to retain them. Their very nature forbids that they be incorporated as an integral part of this nation, and any territory that cannot be made a part of the nation, so that its people can enjoy all the rights and privileges guaranteed to every citizen by the American constitution, should be set adrift to shift for itself as soon as this country has assisted it in setting up a republican form of government.

ORDER AND PROSPERITY.

Yesterday was our day of rest. Armed Italians on the Cunard pier resented an attack of boys of another race, and the police arrested fourteen of them; they didn't see the boys. Five Italians and others were arrested for stoning automobiles. A crowd of Princeton students mixed up with a dog and some hotel men on Park avenue and hurt one another all they could, before the police arrived. The Wallabout district broke loose and tried to create another Kishinef affair by mobbing Jews, breaking their windows, upsetting their carts, pulling beards, throwing stones at the women and children, and wondrous to relate, the police did not arrest the Jews! The bell boys of the Gilsey house walloped the house detective and got their union into temporary difficulties. An Italian on Hudson avenue, Brooklyn, having fired into a crowd of boys, the boys knocked down an Italian who had been looking on, and danced on his face. The East Sixteenth street gang turned out to murder one Gillen, but only cut him and fled. One of the gang was shot. The attempt of two Italians to sell cherries on the same block led to a fracas in which a crowd of Italians assailed one another with various weapons, and one was killed. Twenty-four of the gentlemen who climb through the windows of bridge trains to obtain seats before the women can get them, were hauled away in a bunch and fined in a police court. There were a few other things, a few suicides, for instance, a few jags, some minor fights, and a man played on a cornet.

You ask if this is a description of a Sunday in San Domingo, the country that our strenuous president and other American imperialists are so anxious just now to regulate? No, it is a description of last Sunday in the City of Churches, as related in the Monday issue of the Brooklyn Eagle.

It is a pretty good thing for a nation to mind its own business when, like the United States, it has so much business of a certain character to mind.

INSPECTING CITY WELLS.

The city council of Minneapolis has taken a wise step in directing the commissioner of health to make a careful examination of any well-water in the city that he may have cause to believe is contaminated or unwholesome for drinking purposes. The commissioner and his deputies are empowered to enter any house or premises to obtain samples for such analysis. Should any well prove contaminated, a metal tag is to be attached to the water-drawing device and is to state that the water must not be used for drinking. A fine of $25 or thirty days' imprisonment, is to be imposed on anyone removing said tag.

There are a number of wells in Duluth that ought to be inspected by the authorities as well as a lot of old and unused cisterns which are receptacles for kitchen drains and filth of all kinds. The owners of the property on which these old cisterns are located should be compelled to fill them up or take some steps to place them in sanitary condition.

Much of the typhoid fever that occurs in Duluth originates with people who use well water, and it would seem that those who are compelled to use this kind of water should be protected to the extent of regular government inspection.

The health authorities should also occasionally take a look at the alleys and vacant lots and see that they are kept free from disease-breeding cesspools.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

The fact that the Ann Arbor university has a department devoted to the study of graft suggests the thought that some philanthropist ought to endow a college of graft with a prize-fighting chapel so that the admirers of present day strenuous politics might have a suitable place in which to educate their boys. Graft and a big stick are the necessary elements of success in present-day political circles.

Seven painters in Paterson, N. J., refused to paint the house of Mr. Kirchner at Athenia because Kirchner insisted on having yellow trimmings on a white house with green shutters. The contractor told him that the colors clashed, but when he saw that Mr. Kirchner was as adamant in his resolve, he put aside his own conviction. The painters in his employ, however, "removed their overalls, gathered up their paint pots and brushes, and went to their homes." It is probable these painters were actuated more by spring fever than any desire to save from degradation the sacred and noble art of house painting.

Since observing President Roosevelt's career in the executive chair, the American people must have reached the conclusion that it does not require such an awfully smart man to be president of the United States.

Chicago is now having her business streets cleaned by contract, which does away with the political bum looking for a soft snap at the expense of the community.

Because the authorities prevented a proposed bull fight at St. Louis, some of the disappointed spectators burned the building to the ground. This is a species of anarchy little better than that given recent exhibition at Cripple Creek. These spectators themselves were really lawbreakers in that they sought to give encouragement to an illegal exhibition. It was not the fault of the promoters that the exhibition was not given. The authorities of St. Louis should ferret out the parties guilty of this crime and fit them out with good long terms in the penitentiary.

Nobody ever thought that slot machines or any other gambling devices were built to benefit the players. The great majority of men who play them know that they are bound to lose in the long run, but they take the chance in the hope that some temporary streak of luck will place them in possession of a little easy money.

The story that the United States is preparing to cede the Philippines to Japan may be set down as untrue. No party in this country would risk that, even if it were possible. The American people will insist that the United States continue to control those islands until they are able to set up a republican form of government of their own. In fact this nation would have just as much moral right to deliver Japan over to the Filipinos as to sell the latter to Japan.

HOTEL GOSSIP

H. R. Hume, of Germantown, Pa., at the St. Louis, who is interested in structural methods from an engineering point of view, says that the tendency in building theaters nowadays is to broaden them and make them less shallow.

"I mean by that to indicate that the depth of the theaters according to the style of construction being followed nowadays is growing less and less while the auditoriums are being extended from side-wall to sidewall, which will tend to make a theater wider than it is long," said Mr. Hume. "This may be accounted for in two ways. The desire of etting larger stages, wider and deeper, and to be able to make a large number of people hear and see better without so much worriment about the acoustics. By this style of construction there do not need to be used as many pillars, either.

"Owing to the size and style of productions in the theaters of today, and the great contrast between them and the shows of a few years ago, the stages must be made wide and deep. Scenery is more pretentious and the effects generally are such that a comparison with a few years ago leaves the former efforts much in the shade.

"A production these days with 100 or 150 people on the stage is not remarkable, while ten years ago an opera or burlesque company, which was usually the style of show carrying the most performers, advertised itself very loudly and was exceedingly proud if it paid railroad fares for fifty people. You probably know very well that fifty people nowadays is no great number for a troupe to carry over the country, whether it is an operatic, extravaganza or other kind of entertainment, or even a drama. Richard Mansfield, for instance, is frequently known to carry a company running into many dozens and other well known people in theatrical life have big companies.

"The wider a stage is the better the audience can see the performance, and the less complaint there is from people along the side that they 'can't see the side of the stage.' Of course this is not true if the old time proportionate width is carried out as against the stage. But you will find all these things are more closely calculated than they used to be. The wide stage and the shallow theater gives the public a better opportunity to see and hear in every way, although it is a fact that a great many do not think that a theater of such shape is as attractive as the old style, but that, of course, is all a matter of taste."

An Everlasting Mystery.

Why does it always chance to happen,
When Death gets authors in his clutches,
That they have just completed stories,
"Just added on the final touches?"
And why are these productions always
So much more beautiful and splendid
Than any that their authors gave
The world before their days were ended?

"THE IMMORTAL J. N."

Des Moines News: Like a wraith from the past, J. N. Free—"the Immortal J. N."—got the platform at the Republican state convention at Springfield, Ill., and made a speech.

Who that has lived in Ohio, Indiana or Illinois during the last half century has not known or seen or heard of "the Immortal J. N."?

J. N. Free is a giant physically, though in the 80's, and as straight as an Indian. He is an intellectual prodigy—crank as he is. Before the war he was a leading criminal lawyer, but went eccentric; some say because of the war, others because his love suit went wrong.

Anyway, Free has been like the Wandering Jew for many years. He seldom stays in one town more than a day, making his headquarters at the newspaper offices. He has a phraseology of his own. He is always about to "lift the veil" or to "put on the pressure," and these terms have a wide application.

He is a reformer.

The man is entirely harmless and the pink of courtesy. When aroused by some great current of events, he is one of the most eloquent speakers now living. Humor and pathos alternate to hold an audience for hours.

No commission has even been able to find him insane. He is more than a match for any set of lawyers that have ever confronted him. When he turns cross-examiner, he confounds the best of them.

Once the writer asked him what he really thought of people in general. Instantly he replied, "They mean well, but they are insane—every one of them. Let me prove it to you." Marshalling the principles of sociology, and supporting them by current history, he presented an argument almost irrefutable. It was a marvelous presentment. Finally he lapsed into a smile and said, "But it will be all right when the pressure is removed."

The man never did harm to man, woman or child. His love for children is beautiful to see, and no child is afraid of him. His courtesy to womankind is like that of an old Virginia cavalier.

It cannot be long now until the "veil" is lifted from the mind and the "pressure" taken from the tender heart of this remarkable man.

SOWING THE WHIRLWIND.

"Jasper," in Leslie's Weekly: The fight that Lawsn, of Boston, is making against the Standard Oil crowd is something not to be laughed at, if honestly and sincerely intended, as Lawson claims it to be. There is no concealing the fact that the public is highly wrought up over the gross impositions practiced upon it by men of fame and fortune in the financial world. The summary way in which Whitaker Wright, the companion of royalty, the associate of philanthropists, and the daring leader of speculation in London, was dragged into court, convicted, and saved from imprisonment only by the violence of his own hand, has stimulated the thirst for revenge on both sides of the Atlantic. In London especially, where the public is less tolerant of imposition than it is here, it is seeking the punishment of its despoilers. Recently a cablegram announced the arrest of Hooley, the promoter, who, in 1897, was the talk of London. He was the great organizer of speculative industrial combinations, and was rated at $20,000,000. Now he is under arrest on a charge of conspiracy to defraud, made by one of his victims.

Public sentiment in this country against those who have recently enriched themselves enormously by operations in Wall street is unmistakably growing on all sides. It simply wants a leader to make itself strongly manifest, and its power, backed by the strength which manhood suffrage gives to the masses in the United States, will overcome every obstacle that money can pile up, either in the courts, in the legislature, or in congress itself. The magnates of Wall street are shortsighted if they do not perceive the great danger which they have invited by their flagrant disregard of the truth, by their indifference to the law, and their disregard of the equities. They have aroused a spirit of socialism and stirred up the satanic forces of anarchy by their utter indifference to everything but their own selfish interests. The late Jay Gould, at the time of the great Western Union strike, reminded me of the prophecy of Macaulay that this republic would first meet the test of its stability when, with increasing population and decreasing wages, the discontented masses would find it in their power, by the control of the ballot, to proclaim their authority. Fortunately, that day has not arrived, but there are those who see signs of its approach in the candidacy of an avowed socialist and money-hater—though himself reared in the lap of wealth and luxury—for the presidency of the United States. The grotesque vision of today may be sad realization of the morrow. Meanwhile, upon whom will the public first revenge itself for the wrongs it has suffered during the financial debauch now happily ended?

Perquisite of the "Empire."

Hardemann, Tenn., Free Press: If we ever become a baseball empire as we air thinking of doing, we want to be assigned to the Milwaukee district. Life is too dusty down here, and a feller can't take a glass of beer without giving somebody else a fit. If we can git a job as empire in Milwaukee we will take it.

He Got Off Easy.

Brooklyn Eagle: The policeman brought his prisoner before the magistrate.

"Your honor," said the officer, "I caught this man pounding a boy on the street."

"What have you to say for yourself?" the magistrate asked of the prisoner.

"Well, Yer Honor I was jest goin' along the street, whistlin' an' mindin' me own business, when the young felly flung a stone at me an' I ketched him an' cuffed him."

"What were you whistling?"

"'Bedella.'"

"Ten dollars and costs," said the judge.

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN DULUTH

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

Hugh McClellan is now engineer on the Grace Grummond. He was formerly with the steamship Siberia.

John C. Van Norman, J. R. Marble and Guy Selby have returned from a fishing excursion to Sucker river.

C. Judson, president of the Gas and Water company, is expected to arrive here this evening from Chicago.

John Morgan and Bruce Nimmo went to Forest Lake yesterday on a fishing excursion.

The bursting of a water pipe in the German-American block damaged the dry goods stock of Christy & Marvin to the extent of $2000.

The race between Jake Leidel and Capt. Yocum's boats is taking place this afternoon. The boats started about 2:30 o'clock and as The Herald goes to press are over near the Superior entry. A good breeze is blowing and both boats are making good time. If Jake should happen to win, the boarders at his house will have a good time for a week to come.

JUST FOR FUN.

Harvard Lampoon: "Well!" he muttered, butting his head on a landing as he fell down the elevator shaft; "as Mr. Kipling would say: 'That is another story.'"

Puck: "Young man, have you stopped to think where you will go when you die?"

"Gad, no—I haven't even thought where to go on my summer vacation yet."

Exchange: Mother—What seems to be the trouble?

Mrs. Neuwed—I—I always heard Charles was fond of the turf, but I simply can't make him touch a lawn-mower.

London Tattler: "How is it young De Slam has become so unpopular lately?"

"He accepted an invitation to a bridge-party, and won some of his hostess's money."

Exchange: "Have a wee nip, friend?" asked the hospitable passenger with the flask.

"No, I thank you," replied the stranger. "Don't drink whiskey, eh?"

"No. I make it."

Chicago News: Her Mother—Look here, Ernie, I thought your father told you not to encourage that young man?

Ernie—Oh, dear, mamma, that young man doesn't need any encouragement.

Washington Star: "Some men," said Uncle Eben, "gits an idea dat a day's work consists in waitin' as patient as possible foh quittin' time, an' den wonders why dey doesn' succeed."

Princeton Tiger: Mistress—You seem to have a good deal of company, Mary.

Maid—Yas'm. Dey's what I call my rainbeaux. Seven different colored gentlemen. Yas'm.

Philadelphia Ledger: Miss Prude—No, I never approved of cycling for women, but I do like automobiling. It's so much more becoming.

Miss Snappe—I should think it would be for you. You can wear a mask, can't you?

MY CREED.

You ask me to what creed I pin my faith.
To none. And yet I love God's temple, and
My life is shaped and molded to a creed
So simple that a child may understand.

I love the living source of all that's fair
And beautiful, on earth, in sky and sea;
I love my fellow-beings, and I try
To do as I would have them do by me.

I am not orthodox in all my views;
I cannot shout his praises to the skies;
Yet I am sure we are His creatures, all,
And that He shapes our lives with purpose wise.

I think if we reach out a helping hand,
To those who faint and falter by the way—
If by our sympathy and kindly aid
Some sorrowing heart finds happiness each day;

And if we ever carry in our hand
The mantle of sweet charity and grace
To shield the weak and erring ones of earth
And lift them up to a securer place—

Then I believe, if our incautious feet
Should wander out where thorns and thistles grow,
He still would follow us with boundless love
And lead us where the living waters flow.

For I am sure He planted in our hearts
The impulses which move us day by day;
And all our weakness He can understand—
He will not let us drift too far away.

And I believe if by this simple creed
Which any little child may understand,
Our lives are molded, we at last shall find
Beyond the sapphire sea a happier land.

IN JUNE.

Comes the good old summer game
In June.
And the wildwood sings the same
Sweet tune.
It's the month of trolley rides,
Trysts along the lisping tides,
Skeeters, hydrophobia, brides,
In June.

Sits the parson in the kirk
In June,
Sighing, "Must I go to work
So Soon?"
Then the pastor-on-the-spot
Ties another wedding knot,
Takes the fee and says, "It's hot!"
In June.

Warming drinks cannot entice
In June.
And the coal man cuts no ice
In June;
While the weather man nearby
Casts the meteorologic eye
And begins to prophesy
In June.

'Tis vacation, don't you know,
In June;
And "vacate" is all the go
In June.
Even at Port Arthur's gate
Knocks the Jap, like frowning Fate,
Asking Russia to "vacate,"
In June.

The Opportune Moment.

Washington Star: The committee had just waited on Cincinnatus.

"What luck did you have?" asked one of the eager populace.

"It's all right," answered the chairman. "He'll go banck into political life. You see, we found him plowing, and anybody who has ever plowed can understand why he is willing to quit the job. It's lucky we didn't strike him when he was getting ready to go fishing."

A Prevalent Terror.

W. R. R. in Cleveland Plain Dealer: The man who thought himself in the public eye was in sore distress. He crept behind hedges, and he sheltered his somewhat portly form in the lee of tree boxes. Once he dodged through an open gateway and hid himself on a porch.

Pretty soon his actions attracted the attention of a stalwart policeman.

"Hold on, my uneasy friend," he said, "what seems to be disturbing you?"

"D-don't you see it?" chattered the statesman. It's chasing me. It has dogged my footsteps for many days. If I relax my vigilance it will surely catch me.

"What's chasing you?"

"The vice presidential nomination!"

And the frightened man crawled under a coal cart, jumped a fence, and disappeared across an open field.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mankato Free Press: The weather up Duluth way may be a trifle chilly even "in the good old summer time," but the climatic conditions can in no way effect the warm hearts possessed by the citizens of the Zenith City. The Duluthians are preparing a feast of good things for the delegates to the Democratic state convention. Republicans and Democrats alike have joined hands to the end that the visions shall be given a good time.

St. Cloud Times: It is a terrible pity that Theodore Roosevelt and Frederick Funston cannot have any one of the prizes which Carnegie has offered to heroes. Since it became universally known that Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was not the whole thing at the battle of San Juan Hill, and that Maj. Funston could not swim and was towed across the Bag river on a raft, the school books are now being revised to fit the facts. The revelation that they were merely common people sends a shock down the sensitive spine of Americans, that will continue to vibrate for some little time.

St. Cloud Journal Press: A new order is due from the Dunn headquarters: "Hereafter I will do all the fighting as well as the talking."—Verily.

Grand Marais Herald: The person who gets drunk cannot lay the blame on anyone else. But public sentiment never did and never will approve the act of him who having furnished a man or a woman with an overdose of "firewater" will for the price furnish more to make him or her drunker still, and then when such person has reached a state of helplessness or irresponsibility turns him adrift upon the streets to create public scandal and fall into the clutches of the law. There are legal restrictions against the sale of liquor to a person already drunk, as there are against selling to an habitual drunkard, minors, etc., but the average saloonkeeper doesn't seem to know it.

A Touch of Weakness.

Chicago Tribune: Picking up a wornout, empty pocketbook, a salesman in one of the large dry goods stores the other day thought he would have a little fun with it. He therefore placed it on the counter, half concealed by the goods lying on it. Presently a shopper entered. Her eyes lighted on the wallet as by instinct, and while pricing half a score of articles she endeavored to cover it, quite carelessly, of course, now with her handkerchief, then with her satchel and again with her umbrella. The salesman, without appearing to notice her action, each time removed the pocketbook out of danger and into the light. Finally she adopted new tactics and picked it up with the remark:

"Yes?" replied the clerk interrogatively.

"Thank you." And he took the leather and disappeared with it for a moment. Upon his return the woman asked, with a slight show of interest:

"Was there much in it?"

"Only $3," replied the salesman, carelessly, with the ease of one who has been used to lying all his life."

"And who will get it if it isn't called for?" asked the shopper.

"The firm," was the epigrammatical response.

The woman came out. In ten or fifteen minutes a boy came in and asked:

"Was a pocketbook with $3 found here this morning?"

"Yes," replied the salesman, "but it has been called for."

"O," said the boy, and retired.

And the salesman smiled audibly.

DAYLIGHT THIEVES

Another Residence Boldly Robbed During the Forenoon.

G. C. Kahagen's Home On East Seventh Street Suffers.

The residence of G. C. Kohagen at 201 East Seventh street, was entered by an unknown sneak thief yesterday morning in broad daylight, between the hours of 10 and 11.

Mrs. Kohagen had left the house for a short time to go down to Fourth street to do some shopping. Returning at 10:45 o'clock she was much surprised to find all of the doors of the house wide open, although she had locked them before leaving.

She immediately suspected that a thief had been through the house during her absence, and this was quickly seen to be the case when she entered. All of the rooms had been completely ransacked and any small valuables that could be carried away were missing. A valuable gold watch, much prized by Mrs. Kohagen as a keepsake, was among the articles missing.

The thief had also helped himself to a square meal from the provisions found in the pantry, and had carried off the keys to all of the doors in the house, on leaving.

He had evidently gone about his task in a cool and business like manner, and doubtless felt assured that he would be undisturbed by any person until he had completed his work. He had doubtless been watching the house and waiting for Mrs. Kohagen to leave before entering. The silverware and any heavy articles which might be cumbersome to carry or hard to dispose of were left undisturbed.

The robbery was very much similar to the one committed on Memorial day, when the home of Victor Huot was entered in much the same manner. In both instances the burglar chose the middle of the day for his work, entering Mr. Huot's house just after the midday meal, and Mr. Kohagen's house just before noon. The method with which he went about his work was the same in both cases, and he stole only small and valuable trinkets which could be easily disposed of.

The police have been notified of the robbery and are making every effort to locate the thief. Both of the crimes have been committed in a very clever manner, however, and the unknown robber has left no clue as to his identity.

The police believe that both the crimes were committed by the same man, who is doubtless making a business of learning the habits of members of some household in the East End and biding his time to enter the house and complete his work undisturbed.

ANOTHER REPORT

From Public Examiner Awaits Governor's Return.

St. Paul, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor S. R. Van Sant is expected home from St. Louis tomorrow. One of the first things that will probably be presented to him will be another report from the public examiner's office bearing on state timber trespass.

The force in the examiner's office disclaim any knowledge of the forthcoming report, but it is known that the three experts at work in the state auditor's office have been unusually busy the past week.

Mr. Johnson said today that he did not know when the next report would be ready.

The story was current about the capitol that the expected report, when filed, would be a warm one. It is hinted that the charges therein will be stronger than those already preferred.

CLOSING DAY

Of the Jubilee of University of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., June 9.—This was the closing day of Wisconsin university's jubilee and was given over principally to commencement exercises, which were held at the Armory. Exactly 335 students received diplomas and others received high degrees, making 361 in all.

The large number of degrees conferred was a striking mark of the phenomenal growth of the university since 1854, when only five students were graduated.

The addresses were made from the north platform. The first speaker was ex-President T. C. Chamberlain, of Chicago, who was followed by Dr. William Peterson, of McGill university, of Detroit. A musical program followed and then came the conferring of the degrees.

The alumni reception at the gymnasium tonight, to be followed by a ball, are the closing features of the jubilee program.

CONTINUED PROSPERITY

Shown By the Reports of Norwegian Lutherans.

St. Paul, June 9.—A special to the Dispatch from Albert Lea, Minn., says: Today's sessions of the fifteenth annual conference of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America now being held here, consisted of the reading of the reports of the president, secretary and treasurer, which were afterwards referred to regular committees. The reports showed a gratifying growth of the church and an indication of continued prosperity. Following these reports, routine business relating to the church, educational and benevolent work was taken up.

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATES

The Mysterious Death of the Bookmaker, Caesar Young.

New York, June 9.—In his investigation of the mysterious death of Caesar Young, the bookmaker and turfman who was fatally shot while riding in a cab with Mrs. Nan Patterson last Saturday, Assistant District Attorney Rand today had a long consultation with the widow of the dead man, who went to the district attorney's office today, accompanied by a woman friend and John Millin, who was Young's partner. After the attorney's office the party went to the grand jury room.

It was said today by the police that they have positive evidence that the revolver with which Young was killed was bought from a pawnbroker on Friday last, the day before the tragedy, by a man who was accompanied by a woman.

The grand jury probably will not complete the investigation into the death of Young today, in which event the coroner's inquest will be postponed to permit the grand jury to proceed.

DEMOCRATS OF VIRGINIA

Meet In Convention to Elect Delegates to St. Louis.

Richmond, Va., June 9.—The state Democratic convention met here today. State Chairman Ellison announced the following temporary organization:

Chairman, Judge George E. Cassell, of Radford; secretary, Joseph Button, of Appomattox.

Judge Cassell, on taking the chair, said that the state of Virginia had not been conspicuous for many years, but this year the state would take a leading part in removing Roosevelt "from the muckhom of Republicanism." He denounced Roosevelt as a "sham reformer." The president's Northern friends, he said, "gagged at the mention of his name, for he eateth with negroes and drinketh with them."

He appealed to the Democracy, "in the sacred name of history, in the name of prosperity and future hopes, to bury all differences and unite to save this country."

Then followed the reports of the district committees, all the districts represented recommending their committeemen, except the Second and Third, and the convention took a recess until 3:30 o'clock.

The fight of the convention is going to be over perpetuating the state primary system.

Gold For Pensions.

The outlay for pensions since the foundation of the government, if met in gold, would make an obelisk 10 feet square and 108 feet high. This illustration gives an idea of what three billion dollars mean. The best illustration, to give you an idea of the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is to point to the fact that during its 50 years' experience it has never failed in cases of dyspepsia, indigestion, insomnia, nervousness, heartburn, constipation, general debility and malaria, fever and ague. You can therefore depend on it in your case. Have you a bad taste in the mouth, tongue coated, yellow complexion or severe headaches? Then you need the Bitters at once. SUED BY HIS DOCTOR.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coachella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

TUCKER IS INDICTED

For Murder of Mabel Page at Weston, Mass.

Cambridge, Mass., June 9.—Charles L. Tucker, of Auburndale, was indicted by the Middlesex county grand jury today on the charge of murdering Miss Mabel Page, at her home in Weston, March 31. Tucker was not arraigned.

The murder of Miss Page attracted attracted wide attention because of the mystery surrounding the case. It was at first thought she had committed suicide, but later developments indicated murder. Suspicion pointed to Tucker, and he was arrested, but after an examination, was released. Later, on new evidence, he was rearrested and held to the grand jury.

The Price of Rides.

"I believe that steps should be taken to establish a bureau of information for the incoming excursionists this summer," said one of the office holders in the Palladio building this noon.

When asked what he meant, and why the arrangements already made to care for visitors were not sufficient, he replied.

"This morning three people who came in on the excursion yesterday, strolled into the corridor of the Palladio building and, after looking around on the ground floor for a little time, they asked the elevator boy how much it would cost them to ride up a short distance in the elevator."

ATTORNEY GENERAL KNOX TO BE SENATOR

Republican Leaders of Pennsylvania Select Him to Succeed Quay.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Announcement was made by the Republican leaders this afternoon that Attorney General Philander C. Knox has been agreed upon as the successor to United States Senator M. S. Quay.

Washington, June 9.—It is known here that Attorney General Knox will accept the appointment of senator to succeed Mr. Quay. He probably will not resign as attorney general until congress meets next December.

PHILANDER C. KNOX.

Philadelphia, June 9.—At 2:30 this afternoon Senator Penrose and Insurance Commissioner Durham, who have been the leaders in the senatorial conferences, both stated positively that neither Attorney General Knox nor H. C. Frick had gone to Washington. Mr. Durham said:

"The whole senatorial matter was settled this morning, and an announcement could have been made at that time, but in deference to the Allegheny county delegates, the announcement was postponed until 5 o'clock this afternoon, when another meeting will be held."

When asked if the selection of Mr. Knox as United States senator would be satisfactory to Mr. Flynn, Mr. Durham said:

"The selection is as satisfactory to Mr. Flynn as though he was going to be the next senator himself."

Mr. Durham did not say whether the selection was satisfactory to Former Attorney General Elkin, merely giving the evasive reply: "Mr. Elkin is a good friend of mine."

It is understood that Mr. Knox is at his summer home, near Valley Forge.

Everything points to the selection of the attorney general as the successor to Mr. Quay.

POWDER HOUSE IS ENTERED

Thieves Steal Dynamite From Duluth Crushed Stone Company.

The powder house of the Duluth Crushed Stone company on the hillside at Fifty-seventh avenue west was broken into by burglars last night and two boxes of dynamite and a box of caps stolen.

The padlock on the door was broken open by the burglars who got away with their booty without being seen by any person. "Kate," the bloodhound, was taken to the scene this morning by Capt. Resche and Detective Fritz. The employes of the company had flocked about the powder house this morning to see how the robbery had been committed and the trails of the robbers had been obliterated. Some footprints were seen near the door and Kate was placed on the trail. She followed it easily, but it turned out to be the trail of the "powder monekey," who had visited the powder house this morning for powder.

Another attempt led the hound to the office of the superintendent who had also visited the powder house this morning.

The attempt was finally abandoned, and the officers had to content themselves with gaining what information they could concerning the missing articles, in the hope of locating them when the robbers attempt to dispose of them.

NO GUARANTEE

Of Immunity Can Be Promised Raisuli By U. S.

Washington, June 9.—Secretary Hay today cabled Consul General Gummere at Tangier instructions for dealing with the brigand Raisuli, the point of which is a positive injunction to refrain from committing the United States government to any guarantee of immunity for the brigands or in any way to take any action that would amount to the recognition of the right of brigandage and blackmail in Morocco. This attitude will be adhered to regardless of consequences to Perdicaris.

MURPHY IS A FIGHTER

Officer Nelson Has Hard Tussle With Drunken Man.

While "soused" early this morning, Jack Murphy undertook to lambaste Officer Nelson and got into trouble.

Murphy was sleeping the sleep of the drunk in a doorway of a Lake avenue saloon about 2 o'clock this morning, when the officer hapened along and rapped the soles of his shoes to awaken him. Murphy turned over and started to give his opinion of policemen in general and Officer Nelson in particular, in terms that were more forcible than polite. In fact, he forgot his etiquette entirely and some of the names he called the guardian of the peace would make the proverbial trooper blush for shame.

The policeman undertook to place Murphy under arrest, but the latter was just fighting drunk, and declared his ability to whip the entire police force.

The details of that bloody battle in the early morning hours will never be made known to the world. For ten long minutes the conflict raged with now the officer on top and now Murphy on top. Murphy stands at least six feet in his stockings and had the advantage of the policeman in weight, but the latter was sober and very much in earnest in his determination to land his prisoner at headquarters. It was hard to determine just who was the prisoner for a time, but the officer finally got Murphy down and out and snaped the handcuffs on him. The wagon was called and Murphy was bundled off to headquarters.

He was fined $25 and costs in the municipal court this morning for disorderly conduct.

GUARD TO DRILL

Companies and Band to Assemble on East Superior Street.

Will Leave For Camp Monday Evening—Battalions Announced.

Uniforms for the Third regiment band have arrived in Duluth from the factory at Kalamazoo, Mich., and may be worn tonight at the regimental drill, which will take place at 8 o'clock on the plaza at Ninth avenue east and Superior street. This drill promises to be very interesting, as the weather for the day has been pleasant and a good evening for the performance of the military tactics is expected, and in addition to the good weather there will be an unusually large representation, two companies of the naval reserve being scheduled to give maneuvers in addition to those by Companies A and C and the band.

Maj. F. E. Resche will act as colonel for the evening's program, as the drill is to be a regimental affair. What other program may be carried out between now and the departure next Monday for the encampment is not known, as the men may not have much time for drilling. Some of them may go out for target practice next Sunday near the incline, the weather last Sunday having been too much for them to combat.

The Third regiment's men will assemble at the Armory next Monday evening at 8:30 to start on their trip to Pine Lake. They will travel in three coaches from here to St. Paul, leaving on a train from the Union station at 11:15 p. m. The men do not seem to mind sitting up all night, but have the privilege of buying sleeping car accomodations if they like, as the state appropriation is never used for sleeping car accommodations. As a usual thing the men do not try to sleep on the trip down. In fact, many of them are continually busy keeping the others awake.

By order of Col. Van Duzee, F. W. Matson, captain and adjutant of the Third regiment, has assigned companies of the regiment to battalions as follows:

FIRST BATTALION.

Lieut. J. T. Watson, battalion adjutant.
Batt. Sergt. Maj. Ed. M. Van Duzee, Jr.
Company B, Anoka, Capt. A. F. Pratt, commanding.

BABYLESS FLATS.

Parents of New York Children Are Homeless.

There has been a great deal of talk lately about the difficulties environing the existence of the man with the family, if he happens to live in New York. On one side the president is giving forth Delphic utterances about race suicide, and on the other all the owners of apartment houses and flats are banding together in an effort to exclude the couple who have committed the folly of having children, writes Geraldine Bonner from New York to the San Francisco Argonaut.

Some of the papers have taken up the subject, and the result of their investigations is illuminating, if somewhat startling. A very large percentage—I am not sure of the figures so I will not quote—of the apartment and flat buildings in New York refuse to admit tenants who have children. One journal published a sad story of an enterprising woman who had a family of eight and went from pillar to post trying to find a place wherein the eight could be comfortably lodged, and finally had to give it up and go to a hotel. There was not a reasonably-priced apartment-house in New York where eight children would be taken in. In a large majority of the better class of flats, no children at all are admitted. In some, small families are taken, one or two meek and well-behaved infants being allowed to pursue the noiseless tenor of their way, which must never become audible to the other occupants of the building.

That children are continually born in flats is an indisputable fact, and one that must be a thorn in the side of the owners—not of the children, but of the flats. Children have an insidious way of being born that the most vigilant agent cannot circumvent or prefigure on. The stage has not been yet reached—though I feel quite sure it's coming—when a married couple will have to guarantee that no child will be born in their apartment during their three years' tenancy. They will probably take out a sort of insurance policy, as you do for accidents—so much for a single baby; double the amount for twins. The agents complain that childless couples are continually taking flats, signing two and three years' leases, and then having babies. This is certainly taking a mean advantage of the agent, and becoming a tenant of the building under false pretences. I suppose it legally could come under the head of the act of God, but other tenants, who had not been visited by any such act of God, might not see it in that light, and would raise the customary bitter complaints whenever the act of God cried.

That man who has to live in New York, and is at once a husband and a father, with a moderate income upon which to support his responsibilities as such, is one of the most harrassed beings of modern life. There is absolutely no provision made for him, and his life is a struggle, not alone for bread, but for a decent place to live, for a roof over his head, and a board which may not groan, but at least can show forth three solid meals a day. Long ago the simple desire for his own vine and fig tree was beaten out of him. He wishes for nothing so extravagant as a bit of greenery round his house on which a tree or two burgeons beautifully in the spring, and where, beneath their shade, he may sit on summer evenings and see his children playing on the grass.

Those dreams died out long ago. What he asks for now is the permission to live in half a dozen rooms, most of which are semi-dark, and which, in the torrid summer nights, are like a sultry inferno. His children's playground is the flagging about the front door, and where he sits in the cool of the day is on the brown stone steps—there is no balcony—listening to the roar of the city and breathing in its evening reek. It is this privileged existence from which he is now being excluded on the ground that he has a family. He could live in his half-lit seven rooms and be allowed to sit on the front-door steps if he were childless. But his children are the bar to the Elysium. He must either take them to the suburbs or to a cheaper locality where the poor live—for the poor snap their fingers at landlords, and go on bringing forth and raising families in the way the Lord and the president agree in commending.

The only two clases in New York who are now permitted to live comfortably in the city—and the number of whose offspring is a matter of indifference to real estate agents—are the very rich and the very poor. The former live in their own houses, and are their own landlords. There is no one to tell them that because they have children they are barred out of the places in which they want to live. They have large fortunes, and they want heirs to inherit them. I am under the impression that the rich of New York all desire families. There are very few childless wives among the fashionable women who make up what is known as society. I have never heard a New York woman say she did not want children. In California, on the other hand, I have constantly heard women of all ages and of divers means say they either hoped they would never have any, or were glad they had never had any.

With the very poor the bar against the tenant with a family is lifted. The very poor always have children, generally a good many. Among the Jews and the Irish a marriage without offspring is regarded as a disgrace. All things considered, the laboring class has life made a great deal easier and pleasanter for it than the man who comes as the middle layer between poverty and wealth. New York is a city to be very rich in or very poor in. One finds a certain degree of comfort at either extreme. The new tenement-house laws are making the homes of the humble both sanitary and attractive. The time will soon come when all the old rookeries which swarm with a vagabond life will be swept away and decent tenements take their places. The children of the poor have the parks to play in, they have free bathing establishments in summer, they go on excursions down the bay, they go to the country to charitable fresh-air institutions. And wherever they lodge or move to, they are accepted as a necessary adjunct, not regarded as a crushing misfortune, the presence of which comes back upon their parents like a destructive boomerang.

The middle-man's problem is a serious one. At the rate the apartment-houses are closing their doors against him when he has a family, he will soon find himself practically homeless. He cannot afford a house. A house in New York, like a house in Paris, is a prorogative of wealth. He must therefore either live in a flat or a hotel. The latter is the worst substitute for a home yet invented, and the poor middle man, being a simple, domestic soul, wants a home. No decent, self-respecting man with a wife and children was ever content to live in a hotel. Lazy wives have insisted on it, and henpecked husbands have complied, but if it lasted there was only one solution of the situation, and that was that the henpecking had gone deep into the man's spirit, and finally broken it. Such things have been.

The middle man is not a person of large means. He belongs to that enormous class whose income ranges from, say, two to eight thousand per annum. When you get past eight thousand you can arrange your life comfortably even with two or three children. Below that he keeps to the world of the flat-dweller, who has one or two servants, and whose wife is apt to get her spring and winter suits at the large department stores. Both he and his wife are, as a rule, people of a prudent, bourgeois respectability. They attach great importance to certain marks of outward gentility. Both agree as to the necessity of having the entrance to one's apartment of an up-to date and stylish dignity. The wife wants her maid to wear black dresses in the afternoons and colored prints in the mornings. The baby must have the new English perambulator now in vogue, and the other children must go to a good private school.

How so much neatness, method, and style can be evolved in the semi-darkness of the seven-room flat I can not imagine. But these dwellers in the middle ranks are, as a rule, excellent managers. They are real "nest builders"—women who can turn the line of dingy rooms into an attractive and picturesque suite, and lend the air of home to the compressed, half-lit vista opening off the narrow hall. They have ever sought to beautify those stifling evening hours on the front steps by carrying out rugs and cushions and disposing them about as one might at a country mansion, where the deep balconies are set forth in luxurious wicker chairs and hung with hammocks.

Unless some public-spirited citizens begin to raise flats especially reserved for families, the fate of the man who has three children and as many thousands a year to support them on, is a matter for pondering. In the present aspect of the situation, he has found his best move to be a translation to the suburbs. This generally means some discomfort to himself and various small deprivations for his wife. He has to undergo that relentless and tiresome trip in and out twice a day, in summer not so bad, but in winter horrible. His wife has to give up the metropolitan joys of "bargain days," of theaters and concerts, of agreeable city friendships from which teas and drives and restaurant lunches pleasantly arise. Where they console themselves is in the thought that it is better for the children, and the life of the middle man and his wife circles round and centers in those children whose presence is such a bar to choice of residence.

REFORM OF THEATER.

Was Urged Even In Days of Oliver Goldsmith.

The reform of the theater is a subject that engages as much attention in England as with us, says the Baltimore News. That the stage is in a decadent state is, of course, an old theme, and the same charge was made more than a century ago, even in Dr. Johnson's time. We find among the writings of Oliver Goldsmith a ridicule of the plays of his day and the constant intimation that dramatic literature was not improving. He seemed little to realize that one day his own comedies would be regarded among the best in the language. In the Fortnightly Review for May Mrs. B. A. Crackanthorpe puts forth a renewed plea for the reform of the English theater, which she regards now as in an almost deplorable state, and truly it must be said that the charge that the stage in some of the most important respects has declined is not ill-founded.

Mrs. Crackanthorpe makes the remark, with which many will agree, that playgoing, under proper conditions, is the best of pleasures, the purest and completest. The play is made up of complex material, of varied and ceaseless interest, drawn from the strong facts of life. The drama makes the simplest, clearest and most articulate appeal to the widest audience of all the forms of literature. Even those who cannot read and write can see, enjoy and understand a play. So powerful an agent as the theater, therefore, should be jealously watched and kept at the highest point of use and efficiency. To the contrary, we find it, as concerns essential points, greatly neglected and its resources diverted from their proper end and abused.

This English woman, who says she has given close study to the contemporaneous English stage, ascribes the present lamentable condition of the state in her own country in a large degree to the "American invasion." This seems scarcely fair, as comparatively few American productions are taken to London, and of those few not all succeed. Nor do Englishmen, in spite of the cordiality of the critics and literary men, care much for American actors, some of whom have lost a good deal of money there. It is true that Mr. Frohman has control of some English theaters, but the plays he produces are mostly of English manufacture. Mrs. Crackanthorpe, perhaps, means to say that the American manager does all he can to encourage the lighter plays, such as musical comedies, instead of those of more serious import, but the musical comedies which succeed best in London are those by native authors. The recent "American success," "The Prince of Pilsen," was pronounced by Mr. Walkley, the critic of the London Times, ten years behind the same sort of play presented in England.

Mrs. Crackanthorpe has some remedies for the present anaemic state of the English theater. She would have no more plays made to the measure of popular actors; and this is, indeed, to dramatic writing of permanent value. Then she would have dramatic authors publish their plays at the same time with production on the stage, so that people might read and understand them in advance; but, obviously, this would lessen public curiosity and interest. The lady suggests subscriptions to the theater the same as to opera, and the establishment of a national dramatic school. Players, she declares, should not be so much after money as they are at present, but consider more their art. Yet is not this too much to expect of the poor player in an age when all the world is after money? Must he alone take poor engagements for the sake of his calling, when, for the sake of himself and his family, he might get much better ones? Finally, Mrs. Crackanthorpe calls upon the philanthropic millionaire—some enthusiastic play-going Mr. Carnegie—to contribute $1,000,000 for the uses of a national theater. Then we should have properly educated authors and worthy plays, and the debilitating and disorderly reign of musical comedy and American extravaganzas would cease.

SLAPPED THE CARNIVAL QUEEN.

Because the Carnival Queen, who is to reign over the festivities that begin at Joplin today, recalled the appointment of a woman in that town as matron of honor, the object of this slight lured the "Queen" into the Pyramil lodge room, where she proceeded to "put her out of business," unless the Carnival soverign elects to appear in the opening parade with blackened eyes and other marks of physical chastisement, says the Kansas City Star.

Now, this is not the way that most women would have acted under similar circumstances. As a rule, women prefer the poniard to the bludgeon, and make their tongues perform the offices which men accomplish with their fists. But instead of pocketing her injury and taking it out by making invidious comments on the toggery of the queen—which in such cases is usually somewhat vulnerable—this Joplin matron simply sailed in on her muscle and settled the score in a way that seemed to afford the most complete and ready means of satisfaction.

Now there will be any amount of flippant comment in the newspapers about this incident, with probably very little in the way of apology for the impetuosity of the Joplin matron, who beat up the Carnival Queen. And yet, who has not heard society ladies say, again and again, "How I would like to slap that woman!" And, ethically, what is the difference between desiring to slap a woman and doing it? To the keen casuist, there was a good bit of wholesome honesty in the conduct of the Joplin matron, who followed the bent of her truculent impulses, regardless of consequences.

It must be remembered, too, that Joplin is a community with an unusual lot of temperament. No mining town is thoroughly conventional. The sophistications of life do not flourish in a soil that is continually torn up by dynamite and blasting powder. Joplin would lose a distinctive charm of its own if it were like Columbia, or Boonville, or any of the other docile and well behaved social centers of Missouri. Gauchere Joplin certainly is; but who that knows that town would have it anything but what it is?

In very truth, it has been reserved for Joplin to project a new ingredient of interest into the much overdone carnival business. Most of the tricks and subterfuges which have been resorted to to make this form of divertisement popular have been rendered uninteresting and irksome by constant reiteration. Joplin, with its splendid virility, and with its fine scorn for shop-worn usages, has evolved a prologue, so to speak, for its carnival which will enter upon the festival the eyes of the nation; and if the queen appears in her chariot with her eyes in mourning, and with her face plentifully decorated with patches of adhesive plaster, so much the better.

Duluth was ahead of all other cities in the Northwest in forming a council of the order of U. C. T. In 1893 Zenith Council No. 40 was organized and a vigorous campaign immediately inaugurated. To the splendid efforts of the members of the Duluth Council is largely due the importance of Duluth as a jobbing center.

IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS IS URGENT

Crying Need For Development of the County's Highways.

Farmers Present Condition That Shows Retarding of Development.

When the meeting of the board of county commissioners was attended Tuesday of this week by some thirty farmers from the outside districts, all anxious to present the need of appropriations from the county treasury, for the improvement of roads in their various localities, the commissioners made a determined effort to impress on them the futility of bringing such matters directly before the board.

Explanation was made several times and at some length to the farmers that in each instance it is necessary to consult the commissioner in whose district the road is located, and that it was for him to decide how much money should be spent on the road in question. They were told that the board would not vote to spend any money on a road unless the commissioner from the district in which it is located recommended it.

Several of the farmers interposed objections to that method of disposing of the county road funds. They thought all the commissioners should give the petitions consideration and that the question of whether funds should or should not be outlayed on roads was for the entire board, not one commissioner to decide.

While the meeting was open to them the farmers asked for appropriations for the Canosia road, the Stony Brook extension road, the Morris Thomas road, the Tischer road, the Seville road, the Swan Lake road, the LaVaque road, the McCumber road and other highways. After the apportionment was made of the county road levy the farmers found that provision had been made for most of the roads.

The arguments presented by the farmers for better roads illustrated again that the county road fund falls far short of what is should to give urgently needed improvements of the various roads, to say nothing of new roads.

One farmer said there were several families living along his road that were unable to get out at all until the highway is improved.

Another farmer said the children in his district were unable to go to school because of bad roads.

A third farmer complained that the lumber companies had cut up his road by hauling heavy loads of logs over it until it is impassable.

Other pleas for funds were made on the ground that certain districts are fast settling up and the new settlers have no way of getting in and out until the roads are put in a passable condition.

One of the petitions presented for county aid in road extension showed the enterprising spirit of the people in the locality where the highway is needed. It asked the county to appropriate $1000 for the extension of the Payne road from the Miller Trunk road to the St. Louis river, through township 35, ranges, 17 18 and 19. The Duluth & Iron Range Railway company has considerable acreage in the district reached by the road and, last year, donated $1000 to be spent on the road, with the $1000 appropriated for the same new highway by the county commissioners. This year the same proposition is made, that if the county will spend $1000 on the road extension, the railway company wil donate another $1000.

Not only is the proffer made of the cash donation, but the township of Meadowlands has purchased a new road grader which it offers for use on the road free of charge, and several settlers that would be benefitted have tendered their own services and that of their teams, free of charge, for a week or more, if they are needed.

Last year a bridge was built over the Whiteface river on this road, the county and railway company sharing the expense.

An argument made for the road extension was that a settler who went into the country through which it is proposed to extend the road, with 17 head of horses and cows and two carloads of movables, moved out after a few weeks because he had no road to get in and out to the railroad.

The Duluth & Iron Range Railway company claims to have a number of prospective settlers who will go in on the lands if they can be assured they will get a road.

Two of the county commissioners who have road districts have now in their hands petitions for the removal of road foremen on the ground of general incompetency. The charges made against one forman is that he filled up the holes in the road with mud instead of good dirt and put in rotten sticks of corduroy when repairing the road at other places.

One of the commissioners stated the other day that the complaints against road foremen are not infrequent and that they are usually made by those who have some personal grievance against the foremen.

Referring particularly to one foreman against whom complaint had been made, the commissioner said that he was very efficient in his work and conducted it more economically than any other foreman the county had previously had.

The commissioners claim that personal grievances will have no influence in causing the removal of good foremen.

Wages for common labor on the county roads have been reduced from $2 per day to $1.75 per day. This action was taken by the board of county commissioners because the going wages in some of the districts is only $1.75 and plenty of men can be hired at that figure. The commissioners believed it advisable to have the same scale of road wages paid in all the road districts. Last year and this season up to the present month the county paid $2 per day for road work.

MRS. BAILEY RE-ARRESTED

On Charge of Murder After Coroner's Acquittal.

Chicago, June 9.—A coroner's jury yesterday returned an open verdict in the death of Louis Miller, a wealthy saloonkeeper, who died on Monday of a bullet wound in the abdomen, and exonerated Mrs. Jennie Bailey, Miller's fiancee. Miller, in ante-mortem statement accused Mrs. Bailey of murder. No sooner had Mrs. Bailey been exonerated by the coroner's jury than a constable, with a warrant, charging her with murder, rearrested her. The warrant was taken out by Miller's brother.

Miller was betrothed to Mrs. Bailey, and everything had been arranged for their marriage next week. Saturday afternoon he went to the home of his fiance, and, lying down on a sofa, complained of being ill. Later he was found with a bullet wound through the abdomen. In her testimony today, before the coroner's jury. Mrs. Bailey declared that Miller committed suicide, and that his brothers, in order to collect his life insurance, were trying to make it appear that he had been murdered.

OUT FOR GOOD.

Miss Rebecca Taylor Will Not Be Reinstated.

Washington, June 9.—The court of appeals of the District of Columbia yesterday affirmed the decision of the court below in refusing to compel the secretary of war, by mandamus proceedings, to reinstate Miss Rebecca J. Taylor as a clerk in the war department. Miss Taylor admitted the authorship of a newspaper article which, the defense claimed, to be a serious reflection upon the president of the United States. For this she was dismissed. Reinstatement was sought on the ground that Miss Taylor was removed on the ground of political belief, and this was contrary to the civil service law.

Justice Claiburgh, in rendering the opinion, announced the purpose of the civil service law to be to restrict the power of appointment; that the right of removal in the appointing power was not restricted with the single exception that no removal could be made because of refusal of an employe to contribute money or service to a political party.

Consequently, the opinion, said the court, had no right to review the action of an official in making a removal from this service. To grant this right, it is added, would be to demoralize the public service.

PIPE HITTING

Not Prohibited By the Statutes of Indiana.

South Bend, Ind., June 9.—The police made a raid on a Chinese restaurant here and captured a rare collection of pipes and other opium den accessories, only to discover in court that there is no law in Indiana prohibiting opium smoking. It is claimed that the opium habit has a hold on prominent society people of both sexse, but the location of the den could not be discovered.

BLEW MONEY FAST.

Moore Showed Philadelphians How to Spend It.

Philadelphia, June 9.—J. Hobart Moore has left Philadelphia after ten days stay here. Almost every one he met is very sorry that he is gone. It cost Mr. Moore $15,000 to make people feel so sorry, besides the expense of bringing his horses to St. Martin's Green for exhibition at the Horse Show.

Some of the $15,000 Mr. Moore blew in while here went as follows: Automobile hire, $750; telegrams, $300; masseur and valet, $200; wine bill for self and friends, $2,066; one dinner party, $1,250; cigars, $300; special trains, $400; tips, $200; room expenses, $1,100.

"What time does the next train leave for New York," he asked the Bellevue Hotel people one night last week.

"Hour and twenty minutes."

"Can't wait. Telephone for a special," was the reply.

In estimating that Mr. Moore spent $15,000 during his stay here many acquaintances declare that the figure is too low. In one day his telegraph tolls exceeded $75, while a telephone talk to Chicago cost him $25.

GIRL MISSING

And Father Supposed to Have Stolen Her.

Crookston, Minn., June 9.—Considerable excitement has been caused here by the disappearance of the 14-year old grandchild of Mr. and Mr. Edward O'Neal from their farm home, a few miles from this city.

She has been absent several days and no trace of her has been found. She disappeared Saturday evening and the following morning buggy tracks were found at the corner of a pasture fence not far from the house.

The entire neighborhood has been searched and the grandparents are distracted.

One theory is that John O'Neal, the father of the girl, kidnaped her. A warrant has been sworn out for the abductor Her father is a well known railroad man and resident at Devils Lake, where he was recently married a second time.

Good Track, Good Trains, Good Time.

In each of these the New York Central is not surpassed, as thousands will attest. Travelers between the West and the East will find it to their advantage to use the New York Central which, in point of time, equipment, roadbed, dining car service and scenic attractions is first among the railroads of the world.

Send a 2-cent stamp to George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent, Grand Central Station, New York, for a copy of the Illustrated Catalogue of the New York Central's "Four-Track Series."

"CABBAGE,"

Cried the Boys, and a Fight Followed.

Evansville, Ind., June 9.—Cries of "cabbage" were the cause of a quarrel in which Orme A. Creighton, the 13-year-old son of Theodore Creighton, superintendent of the Evansville Glass works, received several knife cuts and a battered nose after an attack which, he says, was committed by Inwood Scott and Herman Litschgi.

"Cabbage" is the taunt of boys to members of their sex who walk on the inside when escorting a girl along the sidewalk. Young Creighton was walking with his girl along the street, when Scott and Litschgi yelled "Cabbage" at him. He went to the middle of the street and, he says, one of the boys assaulted him with a knife, while the other assaulted him with bricks.

All the boys were arrested.

LIST OF THOSE TO SECOND ROOSEVELT.

Washington, June 9.—It is officially announced that the following persons have been selected to make the speeches seconding President Roosevelt:

Senator Beveridge, Indiana; George Knight, California; Harry Stillwell Edwards, Georgia; Joseph B. Cotton, Minnesota; Harry S. Cummings, Maryland.

A SPECIALIST'S OPINION.

A great specialist says that every case of Dyspepsia is either the result of Constipation or is aggravated by it. Beecham's Pills are a specific for constipation or bowel obstruction. Therefore, Beecham's Pills either cure Dyspepsia, or else relieve it so thoroughly that the pain and discomfort vanish. And this is a very conservative statement. As a matter of fact, Beecham's Pills have absolutely cured hundreds of thousands of cases of Dyspepsia.

Try Beecham's Pills, tiny, tasteless and easily dissolved. Take one every morning in a glass of hot water, and you will soon feel the blood coursing through your veins with all its old-time energy. Beecham's Pills are 25 cents a box. They cure all disorders of digestion.

SATOLLI'S VISIT

To This Country Said to Be to See the President.

Vatican Will Endeavor to Establish Diplomatic Relations.

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—The true reason for Cardinal Satolli's visit to the United States has at last become manifest. From a most authoritative source it can be stated that it is his intention to endeavor to establish diplomatic relations between the Vatican at Rome and the United States, with a nuniciature at Washington. In addition it is believed that the former Papal Legate to this country counts upon Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, and upon Mgr. Dennis O'Connell, rector of the Catholic university, to aid him in the enterprise, and in the event of success, it is said, Archbishop Ireland would receive his long coveted red hat and Monsignor O'Connell would be nominated as the first nunico accredited by the vatican court to the United States government.

Going further into the details of this very remarkable disclosure, an ecclesiastic high in the councils of the Catholic hierarchy of the United States has the following to say: "If it succeeds the prestige attaching to Satolli will be so great as to materially strengthen his chances for the Papacy, for it is well known that his power elected Piux X, that he refused the papal portfolio of state, and that he is the strongest man in the college of cardinals. If it fails, the plea of 'nonoffical business' cabled to America will hold good. One may be excused for taking the 'nonofficial' with some grains of salt, for on the occasion of Satolli's first visit to this country, in the fall of 1892, did he not maintain absence of all official mission until he presented himself at the meeting of American archbishops at New York, who questioned his right to be there, and forced the presentation of his papers showing him to be accredited to this country to settle the school question?

"Notwithstanding the fact that it is most unusual for one of the cardinals of the Roman Curia to go abroad, yet Cardinal Satolli, perfect of the congregation of studies, goes abroad 'merely for recreation' and revisits the scene of his labors, mapping out his itinerary before he lands, and in his program avoiding Baltimore, the primacy of America, the see of the only American cardinal and the cathedral before he received his elevation to the cardinalare, going on to Washington afterward, visiting various members of the hierarchy, among them Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul.

"It is true that there exists no very harmonious feeling between the two cardinals, but further than that the avoidance of both may be accounted for when it is remembered that Cardinal Gibbons has repeatedly declared his opposition to any diplomatic relations between Washington and the Vatican."

In Washington Satolli will be the guest of Dr. O'Connell, and will call upon the president, while by peculiar coincidence the papal delegate, Diomede Falconio, disappears from Washington. It is not known whether it has been deemed prudent to have him conveniently out of the country, so that when Satolli approaches President Roosevelt he may have a free hand and not be met with any objection to his authority to negotiate by the statement that there is a papal delegate in Washington whose powers he may be usurping.

EVANGELISTIC MARVEL

Has Appeared Among the Amish In Ohio.

Wooster, Ohio, June 9.—The staid Amish people, living near Smithville and Wellersville, are stirred up over the preaching of a man who has appeared among them, and who preaches only when asleep. The preacher is known as Elder Kauffman. Just who he is, and where he hails from, no one of the sect seems to know, or, knowing, will not disclose.

The announcement that Kauffman was to occupy the pulpit Sunday evening was sufficient to fill the little edifice at Wellersville. It was just at sundown when Kauffman went asleep, or into a trance, and while in this state, lying on a bench, he commenced his sermon in German. After he had preached in that position for a little while he was helped to his feet and continued. Occasionally he would intersperse a prayer, and then the sermon would continue.

Those who understand him said that he began with the very first of the Bible, preached about Adam and Eve and other early characters, and gradually went on through the holy book. The time he preached was variously estimated from two hours and three-quarters to three hours and a half. He stopped finally from what appeared to be sheer exhaustion, and was assisted to a recumbent position.

A large portion of the audience had left before the sermon was finished.

Rev. Kauffman is accompanied by a companion, who looked after him and his wants while he was asleep and preaching. It is said that the man falls asleep every night at sundown and commences to preach, whether there is any one present or not.

LITTLE BOY

Took Two Thousand Dollars From Mail Boxes.

Natchez, Miss., June 9.—Will Metcalfe, 11 years old, was found to be the thief who, by breaking open mail boxes, had stolen about $2000 in checks and currency. The boy, who is the son of a street car motorman, was sent to the Baptist Orphan asylum.

That some one had been tampering with the boxes has been known for some months, and it was suspected that the work was done by small boys. About three months ago a 10 or 11-year-old boy took two bank checks to the National Bank of Commerce, reporting that he had found them in the gutter by the postoffice. He was paid for his honesty, and the impression is that a gang of small boys were buoyed up by the idea that if they could get bank checks from the envelopes in the private mail boxes and deliver them to the banks or to merchants they would receive a reward.

The Metcalfe boy did not appreciate the monetary value of the checks that were taken from the Lowenberg mail.

CERTAIN THAT GOD

Will Restore to Him Speech and Hearing.

New Orleans, June 9.—"I have not seen any specialist, and I don't intend to see any. I have received a demonstration of the power of Almighty God, and I know that He wants me to work for Him. When I am prepared to begin work in the Lord's vineyard my hearing and speech will be returned to me."

These words, written in a clear and plain hand, explain how young St. Julian Renfor takes the calamlay which has befallen him, that of having been stricken deaf and dumb while in the midst of a discussion as to the existence of God, in Chicago, on May 31. Renfro is staying at the home of B. A. Barrow, 2003 Seventh street, and will leave for Shreveport, where his home is.

"I cannot explain how I felt when it happened. We were discussing religion, as we had often done before, and after finishing the game of whist we were playing I arose from the table and said that I would not believe in their God until I had received a personal manifestation of His power by being stricken deaf and dumb.

"I did not make the statement in defiance of God. I simply did not know whether or not God existed. I believe firmly now in the existence of God, and I intend to work for Him. I know He wants me to do so. When I have prepared myself to do God's work my speech and hearing will be given back to me. Of this I am certain. I am perfectly contented with my condition, however."

A SUIT BY SLAVES

Of John Randolph of Roanoke For Thousands of Acres.

Claim to Have Been Once In Possession of Lands.

Celina, Ohio, June 9.—York Ryal, for himself and others, has filed in the common pleas court of Mercer county, Ohio, a suit involving the title to 3250 acres of land. The petition recites that York Ryal and 400 others for whom he sues are direct descendants of the slaves of John Randalph, of Roanoke, Va. The lands involved in this suit are some of the finest farm and agricultural lands in the state and are worth several hundred thousand dollars, being all well improved.

John Randolph died on May 24, 1833. His will was probated in Petersburg, Dinwiddle county, Va., and William Leigh acted as executioner. In his will he says:

"I give and bequeath to all my slaves their freedom, heartily regretting that I have ever been the owner of one. I give to my excutor a sum not xceeding $8000, or so much thereof as may be necessary to transport and settle said slaves to and in some other state and territory of the United States, giving to all above the age of 40 not less than ten acres of land."

The will continues at length and was recorded here in the probate office a few months ago. It covers some twenty pages of record. Six codicils were added, the last in London, England, Aug. 20, 1831, in which he recites that he has upwards of £2000 in the hands of Gowan & Marx, which sum of money was bequeathed to his executor, William Leigh, as a trust fund for the carrying into execution of his will respecting his slaves.

The petition further recites that William Leigh as such executor, did transport the slaves who were then domiciled in the state of Virginia, to a point on the Miami and Erie canal, near Minster, Auglaize county, Ohio, where he suffered the settlers to drive them back further south in Ohio, thereby defeating their settlement, enjoyment and possession of said property. Plaintiff and those for whom he sues claim the defendants hold said lands in trust for plaintiff and those for whom he sues.

He says that the slaves were illiterate and ignorant, could neither read nor write, and never knew their rights until within the last year.

The greater portion of this land lies in the vicinity of the town of St. Henry, and all of it is within this county. At the time these negroes were alleged to have been driven back and prevented from settling this section of the state was sparsely settled. At Carthaginia, this county, there were already many colored people, but after the country grew older the whites began buying the properties, and today there are but eleven negro land holders in this county, which at one time had nearly as many blacks as whites.

BIG GAME,

In Which Young Millionaires Lose $20,000, Discussed.

Pittsburg, Penn., June 9.—A sensation was sprung here when the constables of Allegheny county appeared in the criminal court to make their quarterly reports. When the Fourth ward was reached and the constable of that ward was called to the bar, Assistant District Attorney John Robb, Jr., said:

"You can tell the court how William Thaw, Jr., and Dallas Byers lost that $20,000 in the gambling house, 409 Penn avenue, a few weeks ago. The court wants to hear the transaction."

"Do you know of 409 Penn avenue?" was the question shot at him when he recovered his wind.

"Yes, sir."

"Is that a gambling house?"

"I can't take an ax and break in, because the law will not support me."

"Did you not hear of William Thaw, Jr., losing $15,000 in that house two weeks ago, and Dallas Byers $4000?"

"No, sir."

Judge Fraser—It is time you should find and report the facts to the court."

TALK OF A MEET

Automobile Contest Talked of For the Fourth of July.

Speed, Hill Climbing and Other Tests—Race Meeting Later.

Calling off both the big Fourth of July celebration, which had bene planned for West Duluth, and the race matinee to have been held at the Driving park, leaves Duluth with no special attraction on the national holiday except for the big circus, which dealt a death blow to these other two events. It was decided that it would be useless to hold them while the circus was in town.

While the big show is looked upon by the horsemen as altogether too big a proposition to compete with, there is another class of individuals, comparatively new to the Zenith City, who look upon the traveling aggregation with unfearing eyes, and who may do a little stunt all by themselves on July 4 in spite of it.

This class is that to which the automobile owners belong. An automobile club has not yet been formed in Duluth, but the organization of one is in contemplation. Members of the proposed club are talking of an automobile race and hill-climbing contest on "circus day." There are plenty of hills to climb in Duluth, and besides testing the relative merits of the machines, the novel contest would prove to be a great drawing card. It is thought that the plans will materialize, and that the race will really be pulled off. Just what course would be followed in case of the event has not been decided upon, but the hill selected would probably be either upper Fifth or Third avenues west. These avenues are a grade steep enough to satisfy the most enthusiastic crank. There are now over a dozen autos in Duluth. To see them all toiling up these steep inclines would afford an interesting sight, especially to those who intend buying one of the machines.

Although there will be no horse races on July 4, there will be a race matinee held at a later date, under the auspices of the St. Louis County Agricultural and Fair association, probably the second Saturday in the month. A meeting of the amusement committee having the matter in charge will be called for some evening next week, when the date for the races will be decided upon. The matinee will be on a smaller scale than the one which had been planned for the national holiday, but will be an interesting event nevertheless, anticipated in by twenty-five or thirty horses. There are now twenty-five horses in training at the Driving park, and many of them show great speed qualities.

And it is with cherful pleasure that we announce to you, kindred, and fellow neighbors, that the 36th anniversary of June 14th, 1904, will be celebrated at White Earth, Minn., on June 14th and 15th, 1904.

HOLDS MORE MEETINGS.

William Asher Visits Several Superior Street Saloons.

William E. Asher, president of the Duluth Bethel Society, who plans to hold religious services in most of Duluth's saloons during the coming summer, last night gave his attention to the saloons along Sueprior street, between Lake avenue and Fifth avenue west, visiting all of them in this district.

Mr. Asher did not attempt to hold services in any of the places. He merely entered them to shake hands and become acquainted with the proprietors and bar tenders, also stopping to have brief talks with many of the men met with in the saloons. He was well received, and his efforts to reach the masses were praised by the saloon men. No intoxicated persons were met with.

Tuesday evening Mr. Asher addressed a number of freight handlers at the Northern Pacific dock. He was listened to attentively, and it is thought that his remarks were productive of good among the dock men.

SUES PETER POWER.

The Northern Pacific Claims Damages of $20,000.

St. Paul, June 9.—Action for $20,000 damages was begun yesterday in the Ramsey county district court against the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland, surety for Peter Power by the Northern Pacific railroad. The suit is an echo of the famous Peter Power and Camille Weidenfeld case. The Northern Pacific railroad contends that it was damaged in the sum named in getting the injunction dissolved which was secured against it by the defendant in this action on Dec. 30, 1901. The plaintiffs in this action claim that they were compelled to pay a special attorney fee of $20,000 to secure the dissolution of the injunction wrongfully issued against them.

Peter Power, on Dec. 30, through the Fidelity and Deposit company, furnished a bond in the sum named to secure the Northern Pacific against any damage which might arise over the granting of the injunction in case the courts decided against him.

Believed to Have Occurred Near Bemidji, Minn.

Dake and his daughter, aged 18, were murdered on their claim near Quiring, not far from Bemidji. The crime is supposed to have occurred in April, and the motive is believed to have been robbery. The pair were last seen April 5. Their friends later began a search for them, but without result and then Sheriff Bailey made an investigation which is said to have established the fact that they were murdered and their bodies hidden. So far no trace of their remains has been found.

WHEAT IS DULL

Market Firm at Opening But Soon Sells Lower.

Kansas Crop Report Is Bearish—Flax Has a Bulge.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 9.—The wheat market was dull and lower today. The opening was firm and a small advance followed it, owing to a number of causes. The weather in the wheat growing country was too wet. French markets were up 1c and some stress was also laid to a report that Mexico will remove the duty on wheat. The Kansas crop report was of another nature, however, and started a downward movement. It advanced the condition considerably and confirmed a feeling that has been growing that Kansas will raise a large crop that will be available at an early date.

Liverpool closed ½d higher and Paris ⅝c higher.

In the Duluth market July closed ¼c lower, in Minneapolis ⅛-¼c lower, in Chicago ¼-⅝c lower and in New York ¼c lower. In Duluth September lost ¾c and in Minneapolis ⅓c.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 23 against 30 last year and at Minneapolis 67 against 163 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 120 against 153 last year. Chicago received 25 against 28 last year. Winnipeg received 86 against 298 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 234,017 bus. last year 254,568 bus. Shipments 594,300 bus. last year 496,353 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 9226 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼-⅜d lower. July corn in the Chicago market closed ¼c higher. July oats closed a shade higher. Primary receipts of corn were 285,216 bus. last year 107,655 bus. Shipments, 283,271 bus. last year, 538,907 bus. Clearances were 19,400 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was very dull. The July option opened unchanged at 943/4c, sold at 947/8c, at 9:40, fell off to 941/2c at 10:20 and held at that point thereafter without a change. The close was at that price a decline of ¼c. The September option also closed ¼c lower, at 813/4c.

Receipts of wheat continue moderate and millers are after it. Prices have fallen off somewhat, however, and are now July price to 1c over for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet, but considerably firmer today. The July option sold ¼c up, to $1.09¾, and fell back to $1.09¼, closing there, an advance of ½c. The September option had the same advance and October was up ¾c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 northern, 95@95½c; No. 2 northern, 93@93½c; on track, No. 1 northern, 95@95½c; No. 2 northern, 93½c; macaroni, No. 1, 88c; No. 2, 86c; July 94¾@95c; September, 81¾c. Flax, in store, $1.08¼; to arrive, $1.08¾; July, $1.09¾; September, $1.10¼; October, $1.10½. Oats, on track, 41½c; to arrive, 41½c. Rye, to arrive, 65c; on track 65c.

Receipts: Wheat, 40,449; barley, 729; flax, 6616.

Shipments: Wheat, 92,104; oats, 140,424.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Rain In Southwest Causes Firmness In Wheat.

Chicago, June 9.—Rain in west and southwest in addition to a cent advance at Paris caused firmness in wheat today. A rumor that the Mexican government intended removing the tax on wheat also helped bullish sentiment. July opened a shade to 1c higher at 8c to 87½c ¼c ad sold up to 87¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 145 cars, against 143 cars last week and 266 cars a year ago.

As a result of numerous bearish crop reports, the market weakened later in the day. Advices from the northwest were especially disheartening to bulls, the spring wheat crop being reported in excellent condition. A feature of trading was selling by northwest houses. Covering by shorts caused a rally from the low point, but the market closed heavy. July sold down to 86½c and closed at 86⅝c, a net loss of 1@⅞c.

Rainy weather and firmness of wheat started a fair demand for corn from shorts, and, in consequence, the market showed considerable strength. July opened ¼c to ⅛@¼c up at 45⅞ to 46c to 46c and sold up to 46@½c. Local receipts were 382 cars, with 19 of contract grade.

Weakness developed during the latter part of the day, partly in sympathy with wheat. A number of selling orders from outsiders were received presumably on the fine crop outlook. After selling off to 45¾c, July closed at 45⅞@46c, a loss of ⅛c.

Oats were firm in sympathy with other grains. Trading was confined mainly to scalpers. July opened unchanged to a shade higher, at 29⅝c to 30⅛@¾c and advanced to 29⅞c. Local receipts were 61 cars.

In spite of a lower hog market provisions were strong on an active demand from packers. Indications pointed to a "corner" in ribs, and there was some covering on that account. Sept. pork opened 5c to 7½c higher at $12.25 to $12.37½ and advanced to $12.45. Sept. lard opened unchanged to 2½c up at $6.77½ to $6.80, and sold up to $6.85. After opening 2½@3c up at $7.10. Sept ribs advanced to $7.20.

Close: Wheat—July, 86⅝c, old, 87⅝@⅞c; Sept. 80⅝c, old, 82¼c; Dec. 80⅜c. Corn—June, 46c; July, 46⅝@46c; Sept. 46c Dec. 42⅜@¾c; May, 43c. Oats—June, 41⅝c; July, 29⅝@¾c; Sept. 31⅛c; Dec. 31⅜@¼c. Pork—July, $12.10; Sept. $12.30. Lard—July, $6.80; Sept. $6.75; Dec. 56.62½; Jan. $6.70@72½. Ribs—July, $6.92½; Sept. $7.12½. Rye—June, 75c; July, 67c; Sept. 62c. Flax—Cash northwest, $1.07; southwest, $1.06; June, $1.06; July, $1.06; Sept. $1.06. Timothy—June, $2.95; Sept. $3.10. Clover—June, $10.75. GRAIN GOSSIP.

State Crop Reports: North Dakota—The fore part of the past week was cool and cloudy, followed Friday and Saturday by a good rain, which fell over nearly all sections, and which will be of great benefit to all growing crops, as it was needed on high lands especially. Late-sown grain will be most beneficial, as the ground has been too hard and dry for the seed to germinate.

Wheat is reported generally as looking fine, the early-sown being three to four inches high, and owing to the previous cool weather has stooled well. On some low land where the ground was too wet at time of seeding, it is somewhat yellow and spotted. Corn planting is still progressing, but nearing completion. The cool weather has retarded its growth considerably, and warmth and sunshine are now necessary for its advancement. Seeding of oats, millet and barley is not yet finished, and flax seeding is general.

South Dakota—The weather during the week was cloudy and cool, with frequent showers generally. The amount of rainfall was generous in most sections, and except in some Middle Missouri valley counties, where rain was much needed before, the soil is now amply moist throughout the state, and with fair and warm weather marked growth in all vegetation may be expected.

The conditions were very favorable for the stooling of wheat, oats, barley, spring rye and spelt, and these crops are, on the whole, in very satisfactory condition; but there is still complain of some scattered fields being weedy, mostly to the grain having been poorly put in on stubble ground.

The planting of corn except the replanting necessitated by poor seed, is completed; cool, cloudy and damp weather, however, retarded growth and germination, and the showers delayed cultivation of the early planted, which is generally sufficiently advanced to require it, but does not show uniformly good stand. Considerable replanting has been necessary and a few of the poorest fields are in some localities being devoted to flax or millet.

Flax and millet sowing was retarded by the rains, but sowing will continue if these crops has made good advance.

Minnesota—A cloudy week, with rains almost daily in central and southern sections, and in the Red River valley and the Red. In parts of the Southwest and South the rains were locally heavy with some loss resulting by the washing of corn fields. May 31st was the warmest day of the week, when the day temperatures in southern portions approached 90 degrees. In the Red River valley the rains were beneficial for all the crops, especially the late seeded oats, barley, flax and fodder crops. There are still small areas in the North to be seeded to barley, flax, potatoes, millet and fodder corn. Wheat, oats and barley are doing well in all parts of the state, and generally they are becoming thicker on the ground by stooling. Rye is coming into bloom, but much of the crop is thin and poor and a good deal of it is being plowed under. Flax is coming up well. Corn is backward, its growth having been retarded by the cool and wet weather and lack of cultivation. Much of the early planted corn failed to germinate and this is now being replanted where the soil is dry enough.

Broomhall cables: Our Buenos Ayres correspondent cables that the last Argentine corn crop is officially estimated at 177,428,000 bus, compared with 147,556,000 bus estimated for the previous crop at this time last year. The exportable surplus for this season is officially estimated at 120,000,000 bus.

Broomhall cables that it is estimated that Indian shipments will amount to about 2,800,000 bus weekly, for the next two weeks.

G. W. Patten, Chicago: I am commencing to feel bearish on wheat. I am much afraid we have more old wheat here than we can use before the new crop starts. If Kansas raises from 75,000,000 to 80,000,000 bus. of wheat there will be a good run of wheat in July and August. While mills will take much wheat, I doubt if they will take it in quantities sufficient to hold the market at this high level. No. 2 hard winter cash is now selling here on its milling merits and is selling at 7½c under No. 1 northern and this No. 2 hard is deliverable on our July contracts.

Chicago Record-Herald: In refusing to reduce rates between Chicago and Transmissisippi points and the sea-board, to the basis of the special Minneapolis rate, the Eastern railroads were acting on the belief that the lake lines would soon be open. The large quantity of freight that is now being routed east over more Southern rail lines by Western and Southwestern shippers would in this event again be available to go forward lake and rail from Chicago in the usual way. Just now, although there are more boats than needed for grain cargoes, the lake and rail lines have not yet started but are forwarding their package freight East all rail. The Liverpool corn trade news says, "As regards the future of our market, weather and crop reports must continue to be main factors and the big supplies of wheat in sight will also influence. However, the efforts of the last mentioned may be temporarily smaller shipments from Argentine. The movement has already slackened and it is confidently expressed in some quarters that Russian quantities will be smaller now, that the big supplies per barge are about cleared. On the other hand, Indian shipments are likely to increase.

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Wheat—Steady cables and some rains in the extreme West caused a rally in the early trading, but the bearish tendency noted yesterday continued and the advance was soon lost and a further decline established. The approach of the government report to be published tomorrow, which is expected to show some improvement in the past month, and advices from St. Louis that the farmers in Missouri would thresh and market their wheat at the earliest possible moment in order to secure the high premium for cash wheat were moth bearish influences and were used to their utmost in pounding the market.

Corn—This market was neglected and traders appeared disposed to await the government report before taking a decisive position on either side. The market resisted the effect of the decline in wheat and showed an undertone of strength.

Oats—There was little tone in the way of fresh trade, some scalping turns in sympathy with other grains, but small stocks both at storage points and in farmers' hands point to an upward turn when the next important change takes place.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—Better weather and crop advices coupled with the local character of the trade gave the wheat market a bearish turn. The Northwest was a fair seller on better spring wheat prospects and the local bulls were worried at the rapidly advancing harvest time, which gives promise of fair July receipts. Hard winter wheat at the present discount of 7½c under the No. 1 northern will prove profitable for delivery on contract. Some slight improvement is noted in the domestic trade, but the demand for export is still dead. Mills will close tomorrow until Tuesday. At the present level of values only enough wheat will be bought by consumers to meet immediate demand. They will wait for the new crop before stocking up. We are conservatively bearish. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 27 cars.

Corn—The market was weak in tone, but prices closed a trifle higher on a late spurt. Trade was purely local and such support as was given came from floor professionals. The bulls found little of encouragement in the day's news. The weather is improving. The country movement is liberal. Peoria notes indications of increased selling in the territory to the East of them. Receipts here continue large. The sample market was steady for the good grades, but 1 cent a bus lower for the poor ones. Shipping demand is slow, and practically nothing has been taken from store the past few days. The Argentine crop is officially estimated at 30,000,000 bus larger than a year ago, and the exportable surplus at 120,000,000 bus. We see nothing to change our opinion on corn. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 468 cars.

Oats—The strength in the cash situation gave a firm tone to the oat market. Trade was small, values were well maintained. The cash grain current says the crop is progressing favorably, and letters from our Illinois stations are exceptionally optimistic. The Kansas generally to ameliorate free and prompt movement of wheat to that market. Local sentiment seems losing some of its bullish tone.

Corn—It showed some little weakness in sympathy with wheat but was dull and steady. Shipping demand is none too good and receipts are fairly liberal. Country offerings are, however, uncertain and keep the trade guessing at the amount of corn in farmers' hands and the probable movement. We are inclined to the view that there will be enough to go around if the present demand favorable. The prevailing sentiment is fairly bearish but the bears are timid.

Oats—It was very quiet and steady market. Receipts continue moderate and the demand fully equal to the supply. The cash and July oats seem in good hands and the situation a fairly healthy one. There is a large scattered short interest in September.

Provisions—A greater improvement was noticeable early in the day, but the advance was partially lost. It is, however, a firm market and has an advancing tendency. While the receipts are averaging a little in excess of a year ago they are hardly up to the expectations. There is no doubt but what the packing interests have been covering short sales all the month. Most of the buying has come from this quarter. While we have been unable to see any special bullish feature, it is unmistakably a strong market.

INANIMATE CLOSE

To Stock Market Which Finished Near Wednesday's Level.

Opened Strong But Became Dull and Prices Eased Off.

New York, June 9.—Opening prices in the stock market today showed small gains over last night on the light volume of dealings. Union Pacific rose ⅜ and Reading and St. Paul ½. There were no other features.

Buying orders diminished after the opening dealings and the traders began to realize on yesterday's purchases. Pressure against Amalgamated Copper accelerated the reaction but the market did not yield below last night's close. Denver & Rio Grande preferred rose 1 and Pere Marquette declined 3⅜.

Prices continued to yield, many stocks declining slightly below last night. Chicago Union Traction fell 1⅜. Leather preferred, the Smelting stocks and Lead made fractional gains. The market lost all signs of animation. Bonds weer firm.

Interest in the stock market gradually died out and transactions occurred only at long intervals. Fluctuations were confined to a very narrow range. Sloss preferred hardened 1 and Pere Marquette recovered 2⅜ of its loss.

Some light buying of the metal stocks resulted from the steady accumulation of smelting. That stock advanced 1¼, and Pressed Steel Car went up 1½ on a few deals. Other gains in the group were small. Consolidated Gas fell off ⅞. Chicago Great Western preferred A touched 52¾.

The market hardened a little, but Smelting and Lead reacted. Detroit Southern preferred rose 1½ and bonds dropped back to their lowest price at 40. There were advances of 2¾ in New Haven, 2 in Chicago & Alton and 1½ in Pressed Steel Car. The closing was near to last night's level and inanimate.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: The head of one of the large houses which at the end of last week abandoned the bearish attitude maintained steadfastly for nearly two years, says: "The reasons which led to our change of position are these: The main factors of the speculative situation are the exact reverse of those which existed when prices were much higher. Stocks have been bought through a period of drastic liquidation and are down 50 to 100 points. Bear conditions have been discounted. Instead of being largely distributed among the public at high prices, securities are lodged with investors, corporations and the magnates of finance. Money is very cheap and the outlook for average crops is good. Lastly, money is cheap but most important of all, perhaps, bonds are selling freely. We do a large business and can see the change. Bonds which could not be sold at all a couple of months ago now find a ready market. To my mind these things show the tide has turned."

By other competent observers, comment is made that along with the better demand for bonds there is an improvement in commission business in stocks. This is ascribed to the growing appreciations by the public of the fact that compared with the level at which people were eagerly buying them two or three years ago many of the most promising stocks on the list are cheap.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market holds its modest improvement of the past few days. It is, of course, not active, and activity at this time can hardly be expected. There is, however, no selling pressure from any quarter. Bearish enthusiasm has evaporated and holders of stocks seem contented with their holdings. We think the market may be bought with safety. Great immediate returns can hardly be expected, but a little patience will, we think, be rewarded.

• • •

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is not going to be any bull market. The movement this month will more likely correspond to that of June, 1896. At that time there was an advance which averaged about 5 points, owing to the enthusiasm aroused by McKinley's nomination. But by the Fourth of July it was all over. I am inclined to look for a fairly active traders' market, with the trend gradually upward until around the end of the month.

• • •

New York to Coe Commission Co.: Some selling of A. C. P. is probable on rumors that the deal for settlement of the copper war is off. Some liquidation in Chicago Great Western and other low-priced stocks may be looked for but this will not affect the general market. On any further advances it will be advisable to take long profits with a view to buying back on moderate reaction. No development or broad speculation is to of an active and broad speculation is to be expected until the political conventions are over and uncertainty regarding candidates and platforms removed.

• • •

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: Activity on the part of the different bull interests continued yesterday and a moderate short covering movement was forced which carried prices to the highest figures in the last ten days. The basis for the advance was improvement in crop conditions and good anthracite coal road earnings. To my mind there is nothing to bull stocks on. The trade conditions certainly are not improving and I believe they are growing worse. I believe that all such flurries in the market should be utilized to sell on and that we will have considerably lower prices during the summer.

• • •

Goldsmith, Wolf & Co. to B. E. Baker: It was reported from the floor this morning that Standard Oil interests was buying St. Paul. It was stated that a broker who acts for that crowd had a large order to buy stock around 141¼. It was also reported from an arbitage house that London bought heavily of Reading at the start. We believe the orders were cabled from this side. There seems to be a systematic endeavor to create a bullish feeling on this stock and make it a good speculation. It is our judgment that it will move up to a higher level and should be bought whenever soft.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: American stocks in London, strong. Our securities market opened strong, but soon relapsed into extreme dullness and prices eased off all around. There is nothing new in the situation. We believe that good stocks should be bought on all the recessions with a view to holding them, feeling convinced that stocks bought around the level if held will make a handsome profit before long.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper market is dull and weak and failed to develop any new features. The little speculation for an advance in such stocks as Ontario & Western, Smelter, Amalgamated and Leather, failed to arouse public interest. There was next to nothing doing in the Boston group. The whole market is too dull to permit of the expression of an opinion as to which way it is going.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 9.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 6 points on the old and one point lower to 6 points higher on the new crop months. For the first few minutes trading was quiet and the market showed little tendency to become a little more active later, and sold up to an advance of 14 to 17 points on covering, buying by Liverpool houses and New Orleans. The weather was generally favorable aside from scattered rains in the western belt, which seemed to be causing some apprehension. The Liverpool market was a little better than expected and continuing firm, helped the local advance.

Spot cotton closed quiet, 20 points higher; middling uplands 11.90; middling gulf, 12.15; sales, 25 bales.

Futures closed steady: July, 11.53; July, 11.63; August, 11.23; September, 10.10; October, 9.79; November, 9.70; December, 9.72; January, $9.78.

TO CLOSE ROOMS

Masters and Pilots Will Not Keep Open All Day.

Too Few Men Around—Grain Rate Is Still Unsettled.

Beginning with today the headquarters of the Masters' and Pilots' association, located on Superior street, west of Lake avenue, will be locked. For several weeks past the rooms have been open daily for accommodation of members of the association. Lately, however, there have not been enough marine men about the place to warrant keeping a man there to look after things, so it was decided that it would be best to keep it closed through the day.

There were about twenty-five members of the association in attendance at the regular meeting last night, but it is understood there were no exciting features. Some of the men grumbled their discontent, but the leaders advised a longer wait, to see what further developments there may be. It is felt that something decisive one way or the other will occur within the next few days. Telegrams from the lower lake ports are few and far between. None was received today, but it is understood the larger harbors are still standing firm.

Duluth harbor is a small one, with only about 100 members, and not more than half of these reside in Duluth. Many of these are said to be employed for the present on tugs and other boats about the harbor and on lumber boats. Others have deserted the association.

Three more boats of the Lake Carriers' association went into commission in Duluth yesterday. They were the steamers D. M. Whitney, under Capt. W. C. Butts; the J. C. Gilchrist and the D. M. Clemson. The Whitney and Clemson were loaded with grain for Buffalo, while the Gilchrist had on board a cargo of ore, loaded at the Allouez docks.

It is expected that the steamers Briton and Cambria will clear from the local harbor this afternoon or tonight. The Briton will go to Two Harbors to load with ore. The Cambria is loading at the Missabe docks. Both are Pittsburg Steamship company boats.

THE GRAIN RATE

Is Not a Fixed Quantity as Yet.

The grain rate is still on no fixed basis. One boat loaded yesterday at a 2½-cent rate, and it is understood that a 3-cent rate was given a boat loading today.

Some shippers claim that they are able to secure vessels at 2 cents for next week, although no charters at that rate have yet been heard of, but new offers of tonnage are mostly confined to the large carriers, while the shippers need smaller room, their lots to place being of less than 100,000 bushels.

Grain sold to the East, with the contracts containing the strike clause is now practically cleaned up, very little remaining at the head of the lakes, so that future shipments depend largely upon new business—on sales to the East yet to be made. The shippers say that the Eastern demand is poor at the present time.

It is regarded now as only a short time before the package freight lines will send their boats to the head of the lakes, which will mean a falling off in grain rates. When these lines jump in the grain rates are pretty sure to go to 3 cents. Shippers figure that they may even drop as low as 1½ cents.

DECK HAND HURT.

Charles Foster Falls Into Hold of Wolvin.

Charles Foster, a deck hand on the A. B. Wolvin, fell into the steamer's hold this morning from the deck, while the boat was taking on ore at the Missabe dock. Three of his ribs were broken by the 24-foot fall, and he was severely bruised. He may have received internal injuries also, but just how serious these will be it will be hard to discover for two or three days. Foster was taken to St. Luke's hospital. He is a young man, and it is thought his home is at one of the lower lake ports.

NO SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Masters and Pilots Will Get No Assistance.

Cleveland, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vessel interests are paying no attention whatever to the efforts of the Masters' and Pilots' association to enlist the support of the American Federation of Labor through the International Pilots' association. The Lake Carriers have received assurances from other unions with which they have contracts that a sympathetic strike will not be tolerated. Officials are lending their efforts to getting their boats into service as quickly as circumstances warrant. The Gilchrist steamers Ireland, Saunders and Watson leave from Buffalo today. Gilchrist has put nine in commission since yesterday, and he expects to have others moving tomorrow. It is the intention to put the Mitchell fleet in operation by the end of the week.

STICK TO CONTRACTS.

Longshoremen Will Not Help Masters and Pilots.

Detroit, June 9.—Henry C. Dart, secretary-treasurer of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' association, was outspoken last night in declaring that there was no probability of the longshoremen declaring a sympathetic strike in behalf of the Masters' and Pilots' association.

"The association of which I am a member does not violate any agreement," said Mr. Dart, alluding to the fact that there is an agreement between the longshoremen and Lake Carriers' association for this season.

"There is one thing that our association stands for very clearly," he said, "it is for our integrity. We want the Masters' and Pilots' association to win their battle, but we shall have to fight our battles for us. I would advocate withdrawal from the federation in preference to submitting to such an order if it were issued."

TRAVIS DISQUALIFIED.

Has Score of Twenty Behind Golf Leader.

London, June 92.—Walter J. Travis, the American champion, dropped out of the open golf championship contest at Sandwich after today's round, under the rule whereby players with a score of twenty behind the leader are eliminated. Travis' score today was 88 and yesterday 83, a total of 171. Thompson (professional) yesterday's leader, is still ahead with a total of 151.

Travis again putted badly and was also off in his long game, frequently getting away from the line and misjudging the strength of his approaches.

Sherlock, the Oxford university professional, broke the record over the Sandwich course with the phenomenal score of 71, four better than the previous best.

REMANDED TO TOMBS.

Habeas Corpus Writ Dismissed In Elias Case.

New York, June 9.—Mrs. Hannah Elias held on an extortion charge, was taken before Justice Clarke in the supreme court today on habeas corpus proceedings. Sixteen patrolmen who had been detailed to handle the crowd which clamored for admittance to the court room were almost overwhelmed and when an officer from the Tombs arrived with the prisoner all the passageways were practically blocked. There was some show of disorder as the officer and the prisoner forced their way through the crowd, but it was soon quelled.

After hearing arguments, Justice Clarke ordered that bail be decreased from $50,000 to $30,000. He also dismissed the writ of habeas corpus and remanded the prisoner to the Tombs. He said that bail could be accepted by the magistrate in the case.

RAILROAD NEWS

Advice as to Rate For Democratic Convention at Duluth.

Another Point to Be Cleared Up—South Shore Excursions.

Eben E. McLeod, chairman of the Western Passenger association, has sent the following telegram to Secretary Eva, of the Commercial club:

"Rate of one fare has been announced from Minnesota points to St. Paul or Minneapolis, pluse $3 to Duluth, account of Democratic state convention, selling June 21 and 22, with final return limit June 25."

This takes off the "plus 50 cents" which is so frequently a part of the one fare excursion rate. It is understood that the people from parts of the state who will not come via St. Paul will pay one fare for the round trip without the 50 cents. This point has not been definitely cleared, but an answer is expected on this point from Mr. McLeod very shortly.

As the above telegram might be interpreted, everybody that wanted to come to Duluth for the convention at less than regular rates would be obliged to do so by going to the Twin Cities first.

The rate is said to be the cheapest ever applied to Duluth from over the state.

EXCURSIONS TO BEGIN.

South Shore to Inaugurate Series to Lake Cities.

Beginning June 17 the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road will introduce a seriels of weekly excursions, in connection with the Detroit & Cleveland Steam Navigation company, to Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo, aside from the special excursions which are being run this month. The rates on the new excursions will be one fare and a third for the round trip and tickets will be sold only on Fridays and will be sold until the middle of August, when the cheaper excursions will be again introduced. All the Friday tickets will be good for return until the middle of September.

Tomorrow, the second day of the cheap nineteen-day limit excursions, will be run to the same points and is expected to be much better patronized than the first one. The backward weather has had a deteriorating effect on the excursion business, but the warmth of the present week caused much moer inquiry on cheap rates.

THE MANSFIELD TRAIN.

Northern Pacific Gets Five Hundred Mile Haul.

J. H. McFadzean, local passenger agen of the Northern Pacific, has made a contract with the Richard Mansfield theatrical company for what is nearly 500 miles of travel, with a special train, which is a highly unusual movement.

The company will leave Fargo at 1 a. m. Saturday and arrive in Duluth, 257 miles, at 11 a. m. The company buys tickets for 75 people and the special train will consist of two 70-foot baggage cars, one day coach, two first-class sleepers and Mansfield's own private car. A third 70-foot baggage car comes ahead of the special.

Leaving Duluth for St. Paul the private car will go down on the night train, while the company other than Mr. Mansfield will go down Sunday on the Lake Superior limited. Mr. Mansfield's car will go at night for the reason that the limited does not haul private cars.

Railroad Notes.

Week end excursions to St. Ignace and Mackinac Island will shortly be introduced by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, good leaving Duluth on Fridays and returning from either of the other points up to and including the afternoon trains of the following Tuesdays.

FIVE LARGE SHIPS

Of Russian Fleet Only Capable of Going to Sea.

Guns From the Damaged Ships Have Been Landed.

Che Foo, June 9.—A Chinese formerly employed in the machine shops at Port Arthur, who arrived here today, says that only five of the nine largest Russian ships at Port Arthur are capable of going to sea, and that steam is kept up on but three of the five sound vessels. All the guns from the damaged ships have been removed to the forts and the sailors from these ships have gone to the front with the troops.

The Russian warships, which formerly were painted black, are now painted gray, as are the vessels of the Japanese fleet. Russian torpedo boats leave the harbor occasionally for half an hour, but the larger warships cannot get through the entrance.

The Russians are refusing permission to skilled workmen to leave Port Arthur, but many are escaping. Little work is being done in the machine shops because of the confusion among the workmen each time firing is heard. One shell recently wrecked a machine shop building, but did no damage to the machinery. Another shell wrecked the offices in the dock yards.

Three hundred and fifty mines have been laid in the roadstead and many others have been placed around the shops in the naval basin. Some of the latter were exploded last week by lightning but no damage was done.

The Chinese who come out of Port Arthur complain of the treatment accorded them by the Russian soldiers, saying they were maltreated if they did not supply the soldiers with money and liquor. Villagers in the vicinity of Port Arthur are compelled to supply the soldiers with rice and the Russian horses are turned loose in their wheat fields, destroying crops.

Japanese spies who entered Port Arthur last week distributed notices assuring the Chinese of liberal treatment in case the Japanese were victorious.

KEEP KOREANS QUIET.

That Has Been Main Object of Hayashi.

Seoul, June 9.—M. Hayashi, the Japanese minister to Korea, who is leaving this country shortly for Japan, summed up the Korean situation as follows:

"Up to the present I have attained my main object, that of keeping the Koreans quiet. From time to time I have made suggestions regarding our future course here. To be successful we must have control, which is only obtainable when there is the weight of dominant power backing advice given. The lack of this will render the services of any foreign adviser useless. Heretofore there has been no definition of imperial and ministerial functions. There must be a government, and palace intrigues must end.

"The useless army of Korea must be reduced, the officials must be paid a living wage, and squeezing must be stopped. When complaints are entertained and acted upon, extortion will cease. There must be education of the proper sort. The majority of the Koreans who speak foreign languages, and have been educated abroad, are absolutely without administrative ability, and stand for little, save speculation. The educational reform will take many years. It is also necessary to formulate comprehensive mining regulations, to avoid friction between American, British, Japanese and other foreign capital. The Korean government must be completely submissive to intelligent supervision, and must be backed by force sufficient to preclude repudiation of its administration."

SIX WARSHIPS

Participated In the Bombardment of Coast.

Liao Yang, June 9.—Six warships, including one battleship, participated in the bombardment of the coast of the Liao Tung peninsula, near Kai Chou. After appearing off Gaun Tsia, Tung and Tsang Tsia Tum, they opened fire as they approached the latter place, shelling the coast line between Pud Sia Tung and Baiosi Chay. At 4 in the afternoon they shelled Russian scouts, near Sianbantszy and were joined at 5 o'clock by eleven other warships, two large and nine small. It is possible that the demonstration was made with the view of landing troops.

Railroad communication in the Liao Tung peninsula is restored so far south as Vafangow.

The nenemy's outposts were withdrawn from Liao pass on Sin Yen road, June 6. They are holding a small pass at Muden Fu, where the Russians exchanged shots with the Japanese all day, June 7. Details of the skirmish are lacking.

HUNDREDS VOLUNTEERED

For What Seemed Certain Death at Nan Shan.

Tokio, June 9.—Wounded officers who return from the Liao Tung peninsula, give interesting details of the battle of Nan Shan hill. After the first ineffectual attack on the hill, the Japanese scouts discovered that there were mines at some spot at the foot of the hill. It was determined that they could only be definitely located by the sacrifice of some men. Hundreds volunteered to go to what appeared to be certain death. They led the second advance and found that heavy rains had washed away the covering earth and exposed the mines. Engineers cut the connecting wires, rendering the mines useless and sustained no loss. The volunteers were nearly all killed in the subsequent ineffectual attack on the hill.

The Asaka men from the right wing, while advancing through the water along the shore, encountered a body of Russians, also in the water. A fierce fight ensued, both sides being waist deep in the sea.

When the Russians finally retreated the water was literally crimson. Both sides lost heavily.

During the day the Russians used several war balloons, well out of range.

In the trenches, after they had been captured, were found many articles of clothing belonging to women and children, making it eveident that the Russians intended their defenses to be permanent.

CUP FOR GOLF COMPETITION

E. P. Alexander Presents One For Single Club Tournament.

E. P. Alexander has presented the North Land Golf club with a handsome cup that is to be the trophy in a special single club turnament which will be the first of the kind ever played at the head of the lakes. The flagon is about eight inches high, of solid silver, and engraved "North Land Golf club single tournament. Presented by E. P. Alexander."

All arrangements have been completed for the single club tournament and the playing of it will be commenced tomorrow at the club grounds. The cup will be played for in two tournaments, that the winner may get the cup by twice winning it. If two different men should win the cup in the two tournaments they will play off at the end of the season. The cup will become the permanent property of the person who wins it and the name of the winner will be engarved upon it.

In this tournament the feature of the play is that the contestant is confined to the use of the same club throughout all the matches and every time he "swats" the ball the instrument must be the same. In case the club breaks the matter can be adjusted amicably but no other exceptions are made to the rule. The breaking of a club is so rare, however, that there is expected to be no difficulty on this score.

Contestants must pick their club before entering the tournament and places in the tournament will be drawn in the regular form.

In the other tournaments yesterday the following matches were played, winners' names coming first:

Handicap for men—A. W. Hartman, 1, vs. G. G. Hartley, 0.

Handicap for women—Mrs. A. W. Hartman, 0, vs. Mrs. A. E. Gilbert 9; Mrs. W. M. Prindle 4, vs. Mrs. R. P. Dowse, 4; Mrs. George Swift 1, vs. Mrs. W. D. Dalrymple, 2.

Men's championship—T. W. Hoopes vs. B. F. Myers.

Women's championship—Mrs. E. P. Alexander vs. Mrs. W. E. Richardson.

YACHT CLUB MANEUVERS

Postponed Event Will Take Place Next Saturday.

Inclement weather has been the cause of the postponement of the Duluth Yacht club's season's program for a week. Fleet maneuvers, which were to have been executed last Saturday, will take place next Saturday, and the pennant race will be held on June 18.

Commodore H. Johnston, E. W. Matter and E. H. Houghton are a committee who are working up interest in a cup which will be used for a trophy in the races. From the liberality shown their solicitations up to this time there will be a decidedly handsome prize offered.

Boats will assemble, start and finish at the Duluth boat house buoy, and

WORKHOUSE PRISONER DROWNED OR SHOT.

Minneapolis, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Hankins, a workhouse prisoner, was drowned in the river by being swept under a drive of logs by the swift current, while bullets were splashing about him from the guns of pursuing officers. Whether he was shot before he went down is not known.

While the guard's back was turned, he slipped quietly out of the corridor of the prison and after knocking the guard down by a blow on the head, he ran into the prison yard, scaled a fence and made for the river. The guard recovered himself and gave chase, firing at the fleeing prisoner, who jumped into the river and swam for the other shore. About half way across Hankins suddenly disappeared, having been sucked under a raft of logs by the current.

THE FIRST ARMY OF THE JAPS OCCUPIES TOWNS ON LIAO YANG ROAD, DRIVING OUT RUSSIANS

Sharp Fighting Resulted But Japanese Loss Was Light.

Gen. Kuropatkin Will Advance When Reinforcements Arrive.

Nothing Definite Known Concerning Attack on Port Arthur.

Fusan, Korea, June 10.—The first Japanese army has recently been engaged in most important operations. For two days past four columns have been reconnoitering the roads towards Liao Yang, Hai Cheng, Saimatsza and Siu-Yen, and have occupied towns on those roads, dislodging the Russians, numbering several hundred, from each, after sharp fighting. The Japanese casualties were sixty-five men, killed or wounded.

Russian Headquarters, Liao Yang, Thursday, June 9.—General Kuropatkin is expecting reinforcements, which, as soon as they arrive, will advance from Liao Yang, and important developments are expected.

Persistent reports are in circulation of a battle at Port Arthur, that place being attacked by land and sea. Nothing definite is known, however, except that an attack made by the Japanese did not succeed.

PORT ARTHUR FLEET.

Plans For Leaving the Harbor Are Completed.

St. Petersburg, June 10.—There is reason to believe that the plans for the departure of the Port Arthur squadron, in the event that the fall of the fortress becomes imminent, have been completed. They involve the co-operation of the Vladivostok squadron. After the blockading fleet has been engaged, the uninjured Russian ships will effect a juncture with the Vladivostok squadron and make their way to Vladivostok. The fact that the Korean straits are mined and guarded by a Japanese torpedo boat flotilla, which has been established to the satisfaction of the admiralty here, greatly increases the difficulty of the operation, but the Russians will probably prefer to take chances of getting through rather than of making a 2000-miles' journey around Japan. The attempt may occur at the first favorable opportunity.

RUSSIA PREPARING

For Any Eventualities of the Present War.

St. Petersburg, June 10.—Remote as now appears the chance that the Japanese fleet will ever be in a position to venture up the Baltic and make a demonstration against the Russian capital, or that European power will be drawn into the war, Russia evidently is taking nothing for granted. The possibility of the fall of Port Arhtur or a disaster to the Baltic squadron after the latter sails for the far East, have been considered and no precaution will be omitted to protect St. Petersburg against attack. The fortifications of Riga (in the southern part of the Gulf of Riga) and Reval (at the entrance of the Gulf of Finland), have been strengthened, some new guns of the latest types, have been mounted in the fortress of Cronstadt and a chain of water batteries, running out on either side of the shores of the Gulf of Finland, will guard the entrance to the mouth of the Neva. This system of fortifications was sufficient to discourage the attack planned by the British fleet during the Crimean war. In addition, however, shore batteries have been constructed near Oranienbaum, on the Gulf of Cronstadt, (nineteen miles from St. Petersburg) and Sestroryetsk, (on the Sestra river and seventeen miles from St. Petersburg) probably as a precaution against landings, as it is believed the forts are able to stop the advance of a hostile fleet. The approaches to Cronstadt are also being mined and merchant ships are being forbidden to enter the port without a pilot to conduct them through the mine fields. Owing to the extensive work in progress at Cronstadt in connection with the preparation of the Baltic squadron, the central basin, heretofore reserved for merchant ships, has been appropriated by the navy. Rigid regulations are enforced against anyone approaching the fortifications. The Grand Duke Vladimir, commander of the military district of St. Petersburg, has just completed an inspection of the shore batteries.

The Russian rules for the treatment of prisoners of war were promulgated today. They are of a most humane character, following the most advanced ideas on the subject of the care of prisoners. A war bureau for the collection and distribution of every possible kind of information concerning prisoners has been established by the Russian Red Cross society, under the presidency of Professor De Martens, (professor of international law at the university of St. Petersburg and recently president of The Hague court, which decided the Pius fund claims).

The Novoe Vremya editorially scouts the idea fostered by a section of the British press that the fall of Port Arthur will end the war.

The government is considering the question of increasing the scale of pensions for soldiers' and sailors' widows.

CHINESE GUARD PUNISHED.

Che Foo, June 10.—The Associated Press correspondent at Teng Chou, Shan Tung promontory, reports that the Chinese guard there has been punished by the officials of Teng Chou for failing to report the presence of a Russian vessel laying mines among the Miao Tao islands.

HARD COAL FOR RUSSIANS.

Nagasaki, June 10.—The Norwegian steamer Aggi, which arrived at Nagasaki, June 4th, from Cardiff, with coal and was arrested for unknown reasons by the Japanese, June 7, has been taken to Sasebo for the decision of the prize court. The apparent reason for her seizure is that she cleared from Cardiff for Singapore for orders, but her cargo is said to have been secretly destined for the Russians. Owing to the Aggi's inability to deliver the coal at Port Arthur, it is added, her cargo was brought to Japan for sale.

RUSSIANS MOVING WEST.

Seoul, June 10.—A force of Russian troops, the strength of which is not known, is reported to have arrived at Sein Yung, and to be moving west.

A Japanese merchant, who has returned here from the north, says the small merchants, who have been following the army, are practically bankrupt, owing to the Chinese underselling them, and that the majority are returning to Japan.

OCTOROON'S DEFENSE

Will Be That She Was Compelled to Have Money

To Satisfy Doctor and Lawyer Who Knew of Platt.

New York, June 10.—With Jamies W. Osborne, the former assistant district attorney, who conducted the prosecution of the Molineux case by her side as her principal counsel, Mrs. Hannah Elias is to be arraigned for a hearing this afternoon on the charge that she blackmailed the octogenarian, John R. Platt, out of a fortune. It is expected Mr. Osborne will be associated with Washington Braus, her adviser when the suit was brought, and J. Frank Wheaton, a negro lawyer, appointed by a mass meeting of persons of his race to assist in the defense of Mrs. Elias. This meeting was attended by representative negroes of the city, including a number of property owners, and they pledged their moral and financial assistance in the belief that she is being prosecuted because of her color.

It is expected that Mrs. Elias will declare that she did not blackmail Mr. Platt, but that she was constantly called upon for money by a lawyer and a doctor who she had employed and who knew of Mr. Platt's visits to her and that she was obliged to call upon Mr. Platt for money to satisfy these persons.

It was reported today that Mrs. Elias had received an anoymous letter postmarked Allegheny, Pa., and written on paper bearing the monogram of the Duquesne Athletic club, in which the writer theratened that if he was brought into the case publicly, he would kill both Mrs. Elias and her lawyer. It was reported also that Mrs. Elias recognized the handwriting in this note and believed it was not written by a resident of Allegheny, but by a wealthy New York man of her acquaintance, who probably was in Allegheny temporarily.

The police are inclined to look upon the letter as the work of a crank.

SHOOTING SEEN

Witness Saw All That Took Place In Young Case.

Testifies Before the Grand Jury—Inquest Is Postponed.

New York, June 10.—There was to have been a coroner's hearing today in the "Caesar" Young inquest, but it was postponed until Monday. Mr. Levy, counsel for Mrs. Patterson the woman who was with Young at the time the well known bookmaker was shot, protested against the adjournment.

Before adjournment a coroner's jury was empanelled. To the jury Coroner Brown described the shooting and said it was doubtful whether the case was one of suicide or homicide. He told the jury that he expected to get at the real facts of the case. After Coroner Brown's description of Young's death, Assistant District Attorney Garvan asked for an adjournment. He said that J. Morgan Smith and his wife, the main witnesses as to some of the circumstances were missing. He said that they had avoided service of the subpoenas issued for their attendance before the grand jury and because of that he could not go on with the hearing.

Mr. Levy, on behalf of Mrs. Patterson insisted that the inquiry proceed as required by law. Coroner Brown said that as the case is now being inquired into by the grand jury it was proper that it would first be disposed of by that body, and while Mr. Garvan only asked for an adjournment until this afternoon, Coroner Brown said he would put the inquest over until Monday.

The grand jury today continued its investigation of the case and it was expected that some conclusion would be reached before evening. Among the witnesses examined today was a person who is said to have actually seen all that took place in the cab. His name is not divulged.

NEW YORK POLICE SEVERELY SCORED BY JUSTICE GAYNER

Says That Their Actions Are Outrageously Lawless and Their Unobstructed Methods Enables Them to Retire With Great Wealth.

New York, June 10.—In granting a permanent injunction restraining the police captain from stationing officers in a cafe, near Washington market, for the ostensible purpose of preventing gambling on the premises, Justice Gayner of the supreme court has handed down a decision denouncing what he calls acts of oppression as commonly practiced by the police. He was particularly severe in denouncing the captain in question, whose action, he declared, to be "outrageous criminal lawlessness."

After finding that the captain had absolutely no grounds for suspecting that gambling existed on the premises but had persitsed in stationing men on the premisse to drive away customers, without even having consulted a magistrate, Justice Gayner continued:

"It is by methods such as these that millions of dollars have been extorted annually by city of New York and police officials have been able to retire, one after anotner, with great wealth.

"His (the captains) acts clearly constitute the crime of oppression, and it is fortunate that they have not provoked violence, and even bloodshed, for the plaintiff has the right to resist them with all the force necessary.

"We read of such official conduct in Europe, and profess to be astonished over it, but we have had more of it in the city of New York for the last twenty-five years, and especially during the last eight or nine years, than there has been in any other place in the civilized world.

"Such police lawlessness is far more dangerous than all the gambling combined. It brings in its train all of the vices and debases government and society. The law can be effectually and permanently enforced only in a lawful, orderly and a uniform manner."

THE REVOLUTIONISTS OF SANTO DOMINGO ACCEPT PEACE TERMS

New York, June 10.—The revolutionists of Santo Domingo, is reported, in a Herald dispatch from Puerto Plata, to have accepted in full, the terms of peace proposed by the government. Although Gen. Rodriguez had difficulty in convincing his companions that they should accept every one is satisfied with the arrangement.

The success of the peace commission was due to Governor Cespedes, of Puerto Plata; United States Consul Lithgow and Commander Dillingham, whose courtesy in placing the Detroit at the disposal of the commission in Monte Cristi harbor greatly aided its work. Commander Dillingham has taken great personal interest in the matter, and the correspondent adds, much credit is due to him. The blockade of Monte Cristi has been raised, the whole country is now under the control of the Morales government and peace is assured.

ALL UNION MEN THROUGHOUT THE CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT MUST RESIGN TO GET WORK

Agreement of Proprietors Has Caused Consternation To Many.

Clerks, Carpenters, Barbers, Cooks and Other Trades Included.

Must Leave Their Unions In Order To Hold Positions.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 10.—The excitement throughout this district is gradually subsiding. Work was resumed today at mines employing non-union men, which had been closed since Monday, the Stratton Independence being the first to reopen. The Portland mine remains closed by order of Gen. Bell, and its 500 employes will be compelled to abandon the union, or leave the district. Employers in all branches of business in this city, without an exception so far as known, have signed the agreement proposed by the Citizens' Alliance, "not to employ help of any kind that is in anyway connected with the District Trades' assembly or the State Federation of Labor, the American Labor union, or the Western Federation of Miners, or any kindred organization."

This agreement of the proprietors has caused consternation among the clerks and employes in shops and stores, who are members of the retail clerks, barbers, carpenters, bartenders, cooks and other trade unions, as all will have to resign to hold their positions.

The union cards, which have been demanded in this camp in order to transact business, will no longer be a necessity, in fact, it is intended that the cards shall be surrendered as soon as the committees' report can be acted on.

The present scale of wages will prevail, and individual unions will be tolerated, it is conceded, if they are conducted on conservative lines and do not give aid, directly or indirectly, to the Western Federation of Miners.

This warfare against unions is to be extended, the organizers of the movement say, to every city and town in the district.

The authorities now in control declare that there has not been for months when life and property here was as safe as they are today. The streets are quiet and as those of the lawless element who have not fled have been imprisoned, no further disturbance is expected. The search for agitators and criminals, however, is still being prosecuted.

Many prisoners arrested have been released after being examined by the military provost marshal or the citizens' court of investigation, and given a word of warning.

AGREEMENT AMENDED.

Cripple Creek, Colo., June 10.—An mendment has been made to the agreement being circulated by committees from the Citizens' Alliance pledging its members not to employ members of unions affiliated with certain labor organizations. The name of the American Federation of Labor has been stricken out and that of the American Labor Union will be substituted. As it now stands the agreement applies to the local trades assembly, the American Labor Union, the State Federation of Labor, and the Western Federation of Miners.

STRIKE COST ENORMOUS.

Estimated At $23,036,000 For Colorado Alone.

Denver, June 10—The cost of the various strikes in Colorado during the past sixteen months is estimated at $23,036,000. Of this amount the state has had to pay $636,000 for maintaining troops in the field, and the loss to strikers and others directly affected in wages, etc., and to the employers in loss of business, is placed at $22,400,000. With the exception of a few brief periods, the National Guard has been on duty at one point or another in the state since early in 1903. President Campbell of the Colorado Mine Operators' association, estimates that the loss to metalliferous miners alone may be placed at close to $5,000,000, and it is estimated that the total cost to the state, with the troops now in service, must ultimately reach $1,000,000.

DEPORTED MINER SUES.

Denver, June 10.—Thomas H. Parfet, one of the twenty-six miners deported from Victor Tuesday night, has sued out a warrant in Justice Rice's court for the arrest of Deputy Sheriff Harry D. Benton and seven unknown assistant deputies, who stood guard over the train load of banished miners, on the charge of false imprisonment.

GOVERNOR WHO BELIEVES IN MARTIAL LAW

JAMES H. PEABODY,

Governor of Colorado, who has twice proclaimed martial law in the mining district and refused to obey orders of the courts. The closing of the Portland mine may result in action reaching the federal courts for a test as to the absolute power of the governor.

PORTLAND MINE CLOSED.

Shuts Down Indefinitely By Order of Militia.

Victor, Colo., June 10.—The Portland mine yesterday was indefinitely closed by order of Gen. Bell, to be reopened later on terms which will prevent any workman securing work without presenting satisfactory working cards from the Mine Owners' asosciation. Gen. Bell says the mine was closed because of "military necessity," as the men working in it were contributing to the support of the strikers and thereby continuing the present conditions in the district.

Gen. Bell took 150 soldiers to the mine to enforce its closing, but the owners complied with Gen. Bell's proclamation without resistance. Without the firing of a shot or a harsh word, the general and his force marched to the mine, took possession, read the proclamation concerning the present disposition of the mine and then left the employes of the Portland company in charge of the plant. Following the closing of the Portland, it was announced that the mines would begin to re-open at once, the non-union mines first and the others later, and that business is to be resumed in the district at once. All miners who want work must first secure a working card from the Mine Owners' association.

No arrests were made at the Portland mine and the shifts were allowed to work out the day. It was arranged that four of the company's employes should be left in charge to guard the property and keep necessary parts running, and Gen. Bell assured the superintendent that he would furnish all the guards necessary to protect the mine.

Gen. Bell dismissed all but a few of the soldiers and deputies, and with the remainder waited for the men in the mine to come off shift. All the miners went quietly to their homes after being told that the mine was closed for the present. Gen. Bell and his staff then returned to Victor. There was a feeling of relief when news came that possession of the Portland mine had been secured without trouble.

Denver, Colo., June 10.—The closing of the Portland mine at Victor by order of Adjt. Gen. Bell will probably be the means of reaching the federal courts with a case to test the power of Governor Peabody to vest in the military absolute power in the district declared to be under martial law.

The Portland Gold Mining company, being a foreign company, incorporated under the laws of Iowa, it is said, by eminent lawyers that therefore any action affecting it may be reviwed by the United States courts.

James F. Burns, president of the Portland Mining company, is in Denver and is closeted with his attorneys, who, it is said, are preparing papers which will probably be filed in the United States circuit court soon, asking for a restraining order to prevent further interference on the part of the state military authorities with the operation of the Portland mine.

Mr. Burns, it is said, will ask that the military be withdrawn from the vicinity of his property in Victor and that he be allowed to protect his men when they go back to work. The military authorities are credited with saying that when the Burns injunction is sued for, an attempt will be made to arrest Mr. Burns himself on the criminal charge that he incited riot. It is not said that there is grounds for any accusations that Mr. Burns personally incited the riot, the implication being that he should be held partly responsible for the recent troubles at Cripple Creek because he maintained the unions by giving employment to union miners.

Present Scale Of Wages Will Continue To Prevail.

Non-union Mines Opened and Miners at Work.

The Portland Union Mine Closed By the Military Authorities.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER VICE PRESIDENT DIES IN FRANCE

Miss Lena Morton Succumbs to Blood Poisoning In Paris, Following an Operation Performed For Appendicitis—She Was Great Favorite.

Paris, June 10.—Miss Lena Morton, daughter of Levi P. Morton, of New York, died this morning from the effects of blood poisoning, following an operation for appendicitis. Miss Morton's family were at the bedside when she died. The operation in itself did not arouse serious apprehension but the appearance yesterday of blood poisoning gave the cause a grave turn. Miss Morton rallied slightly during the afternoon but later her case became hopeless and she sank gradually until her death occurred early this morning.

No funeral arrangements have yet been made, but it is probable that the body will be embalmed and taken to New York for interment.

The deceased was 27 years of age and was the elder of the two unmarried daughters of Former Vice President Morton. She was educated here while her father was United States ambassador to France. She was a linguist, highly cultivated and was a general favorite. Her father and mother, and her sister, the Duchess of Valencay, remained at the private sanitarium in which the operation was performed until death occurred.

Friends of the family fear the blow will seriously affect Mrs. Morton, who has recently been slightly indisposed.

GONE TO DEAL WITH RAISULI

Paris, June 10.—The foreign office has received lengthy advices from the French minister at Tangier. He says Mohammed El Torres, the sultan's representative at Tangier, has chosen his own son, who bears the same name as his father, to proceed to the mountain retreat of Raisuli, the bandit chief, and present the final terms to secure the release of Messrs. Perdicaris and Varley. The son already has departed on his misson. The journey will take a day or two. The officials expect a successful outcome. They say Mohammed's choice of his son shows the sincerity of Morocco's efforts. The minister pays a high tribute to the cautious reserve and constant courtesy observed by both the American and British admirals, which is construed as indicating that there is no likelihood of precipitate naval action.

WOMAN THROWS BABE TO DEATH

New York, June 10.—Frantic with fear at a fire in a six-story tenement house on Stanton street, Mrs. Benjamin Apfelt threw her only child, a babe of four months, from a window of her apartment to death on the pavement, three stories below. Mrs. Apfelt was prevented from leaping to the street after her child by firemen who had climbed to the third story on scaling ladders and whose arrival an instant earlier would have saved the child from death. More than a score of persons, who occupied apartments on the three upper floors of the building, and who had been unable to escape through the flame swept halls, were taken in safety from the fire escapes by means of scaling ladders. The financial loss by the fire, which started from the explosion of an oil stove on the third floor, probably will not exceed $500.

DULUTH CREW ROWED GAME RACE BUT LOST

Wisconsin Men Outclassed Them In Form and Power.

Surprise of Race Was Strong Showing Made By Freshmen.

Madison, Wis., June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth crew finished last in the race on Lake Mendota last evening, being beaten by the three Wisconsin eights. The visitors made a game struggle, but the Wisconsin men outclassed them in form and in power.

The race was called for 6 p. m., but rough water delayed the start and it was 6:45 when the Duluth crew left the float, preceded by the 'varsity second and freshman crew. The story of the race is told in the following bulletins:

6:45 p. m.—Water is now still and the evening a fine one. Large crowds line the shores and a number of small boats are on the water.

6:50 p. m.—The crews reach the stake boat.

7:08 p. m.—All the boats are fast to the stake boats, in position from shore as follows: Duluth, 'Varsity, Freshman and second 'Varsity.

7:10 p. m.—O'Dea instructs the coxswains that he will inquire of each: "Are you ready?" and then collectively "Are you ready?" and if no protest is heard the gun will be fired in three seconds.

7:10 p. m.—They are all off, catching the water together. The 'Varsity crew jumps the three other eights a length.

7:12.—At the quarter-mile mark the 'Varsity still leads, Duluth being bunched with the other crews. 'Varsity is pulling 28 strokes to the minute and Duluth 31 to 32.

7:15 p. m.—The Freshmen form begins to break, but they are pulling away from the Duluth eight.

7:16 p. m.—Duluth holds form and place, but cannot close up the gap ahead. The 'Varsity passed the mile mark at 7:15, rowing 30.

7:18 p. m.—Duluth, rowing 30, passed the one and a half mile; still behind.

7:21 p. m.—The finish was in the following order: 'Varsity, 10:35; Freshmen, 10:37; second 'Varsity,—; Duluth, 10:42.

The surprise of the race was the strong showing made by the Freshmen. They were less than a length behind the 'Varsity crew at the finish, while the second 'Varsity was about four lengths to their rear and about one length ahead of the Duluth eight.

The make-up of the crews was as follows:

First 'varsity—Stroke, Stephenson; seventh, Miller; sixth, Jordan, fifth, Van Meter; fourth, Dean; third, Burling; second, Bartell; bow, Schumacher; coxswain, Sawyer.

Freshmen—Stroke, Lea; seventh, Burto; sixth, Davis; fifth, Miller; fourth, Gorman; third, Hine; second, Ryder; bow, Bechlem; coxswain, Burke.

Second 'varsity—Stroke, Reed; seventh, Bodenbach; sixth, Johnson; fifth, Hetezl; fourth, Hudson; third, Foster; second, Boyle; bow, Cristman; coxswain, McNelly.

Duluth—Stroke, Gibson; seventh, Calhoun; sixth, Peyton; fifth, Puck; fouth, L'Estrange; third, Peyton, second White; bow, McPhail; coxswain, Marshall.

The Duluth men have nothing but the highest praise for the treatment accorded them. Every suggestion on their part has been at once acceded to. A number of small courtesies from Coach O'Dea and the students made the stay a very pleasant one.

They left at 12:40 for home and will arrive in Duluth tonight.

The Great Eastern Duluth

Announcement Extraordinary!

TO THE PUBLIC: In my entire business career of twenty years in Duluth there never has been a time when I stood in such urgent need of money as I do at present. The reason for this is: I am overstocked.

Being of an optimistic nature, I figured that the year of 1904 would be even a better one for business than 1903, the most prosperous one in my history, and accordingly placed unusually heavy orders with manufacturers six months in advance for this spring and summer season.

Owing to unfavorable weather and general depression throughout the entire country, besides local conditions detrimental to every line of business, trade this season has not been up to my expectations. In other words, my judgment erred, and I must now suffer the consequences. My bills are becoming due and the money to pay them with must come out of my Merchandise.

I will inaugurate tomorrow morning the greatest cut-price clearing sale in the history of any legitimate mercantile establishment.

It is a well-known fact that I control for Duluth the products of all the world's best manufacturers of Men's and Boys' Wearing Apparel, Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Furnishing Goods, Trunks and Satchels. To raise the money necessary every article of Merchandise that makes up this $150,000.00 stock in our two floors and basement, no matter of how staple a nature, will be sacrificed. It is impossible to quote prices, owing to the vastness of this great stock, but a visit to this store will convince the most skeptical that the sale prices marked in red figures on each and every article in every department must convert them into cash quickly.

Seeing is believing—Mothers, bring your children—Wives, bring your husbands—and fit them out from head to foot. An opportunity like this may never come again.

WANTED—Extra salespeople for every department.

M. S. BURROWS.

DRAG OUT FIRE

New System to Fight Flames on Texas Cattle Ranges.

Cowboys Use the Carcasses of Cows to Extinguish Fires.

Fort Worth, Tex., June 10.—The "firemen of the plains" work with a system—each man knowing what is expected of him and bravely executing it like firemen of the city. Cowboys are the "fire fighters of the plains," and burning grass is the material consumed.

Take for illustration, the great Espuela or "spur" ranch in the lower Panhandle country of northwest Texas, and go back a dozen years, when destructive fires were more frequent than they are now. Hundreds of cowboys were employed on that ranch, living in camps widely separated, covering the unsettled countries of Dickens, Crosby, Garza, and Kent.

Great and very destructive prairie fires often occurred, and systematic plans were adopted to fight successfully the devouring element, which not only involved a great loss of grass, but of stock also. One of the most successful plans were the following: It was understood among men at the various camps that when a smoke was discovered ascending from the prairie, each and every cowboy must saddle his horse and gallop away toward the fire straight out in a line from his camp.

This had to be done at night also, the fire then being detected by its light and the boys would come from every direction, striking the line of fire at many different points almost at the same time. If the fire had spread much, the men from the different camps would sometimes be many miles from each other, those from the same station going in a squad together.

If it was at night the scene would be one of wild and weird gradeur. The great line of fire, the galloping horses as the cowboys approached it, some from camps on opposite sides, their forms and those of their horses standing in relief in the bright glare of the burning grass. Herds of bellowing, frightened, stampeding cattle made the scene more terrible and exciting as they ran before the pursuing, crackling, roaring flames.

The men were not standing still on their horses; the fire was travelling and they were going with it until ready to begin their attack. Cattle must be sacrificed to save cattle. As soon as an animal fell, four cowboys dismounted and sharp knives and hatchets were at work, and in less time than it takes to tell, the slain animal was cut in twain. The halves were split so as to lay flat upon the ground, and to each hoolf the end of a rope was fastened, the other end being around the pommel of a cowboy's saddle. They dashed away into the line of fire, dragging the several parts after them.

When they have reached this, two men would cross-plunge through the blaze. Tom tried it, but his horse wheeled and turned away from the blaze, snorting loudly and in terror.

"Give me your end of the rope, Tom," one of the other men cried; "I can go over; Black Duncan will face it," and with a great plunge he cleared the line of fire.

One of the other two also crossed, and without a moment's halt and with scorched faces they wheeled their horses and ran parallel with the fire, dragging the bloody half of the beef over it, smothering the fire out as fast as their horses could run and drag the weight. One man was then on one side of the fire and the other on the opposite, each with his rope to the foot of a beef, straddling the blaze and beating out the greater part of it.

They wore slick duck jackets and leggings, upon which the fire could not easily take hold. It was hot work, however. They could only go the length of their ropes from the fire. The two men with the other half of the beef were going in the opposite direction, taking the other end of the line of fire. Suppose the fire was traveling south and the line extended east and west, fast receding from each other, and every moment widening the black streak which marked the trail of the smothered flames.

While these four men were getting ready to do this work other cowboys were sitting on their horses nearby, their faces lit up by the burning grass and cheering their companions, who were crossing the fire line to fight the main battle.

These, however, who were idle had their work to do. Each held a rolled slicker in his right hand, and when the breach was made in the fire line, they divided their forces, and followed the boys who were sweeping the flames in order to extinguish effectually spots which were left some times by the plunge of a scorched horse jerking the drag off the line of fire, or by its striking a great bunch of hard turf and jumping over a spot.

Very often cowboys that carry the drags had to hunt weak spots to cross or else there would be danger of horse and rider perishing in the effort to get through.

Before the plan described was put in practice wagons loaded with water and tow sacks were run to a fire, and the boys had to dismount and fight the flames with wet sacks. They were supplied with these by men galloping back and forth between the wagons and fire fighters. The dry hot sacks were carried back as fast as wet ones were furnished.

The other plan was the best, being more rapid and efficient. Horses would get crippled and men burned at times, especially when the wind was high—those on the windward side being most exposed. Some have been known to stay in their saddles during a long run until the skin would peel from the side of the face that was next to the line of fire.

THE OIL FIELD IS GIVING OUT

Beaumont, Texas, June 10.—A steady decline is observable in all the Texas oil fields, says the Oil Investors' Journal.

"Summaries of the producing districts indicate the following averages of daily production for the month of May: Batson, 23,000 barrels; Sour Lake, 16,000 barrels; Spindle Top, 9000 barrels; Saratoga, 2000 barrels. Total, 50,000 barrels.

"By comparing the total production of 50,000 barrels a day with the consumption and demands amounting to aproximately 65,000 barrels a day, a shortage of 15,000 barrels a day is indicated. If the demands during the month of June are equal to May figures, it seems that a drain of more than 1,000,000 barrels on oil in storage is unavoidable, unless new production is developed. In the month of March alone more than 1,000,000 barrels of oil went into storage. This is rapidly being taken out and with a continuance of present conditions with reference to shipments and production all of it, and more, too, will have been consumed in the movement of oil by the end of June, leaving stocks about as they were at the first of the year.

"It cannot be said that there has been any improving in the producing districts in the past month. Rather it must be admitted that at Sour Lake and Spindle Top conditions are daily growing less favorable, due principally to the encroachment of salt water. While Spindle Top is credited with an average daily production of 9000 barrels during May. It appears from summaries compiled late in the month it is now producing not more than 8500 barrels a day. Sour Lake was doing considerably better than 16,000 barrels a day on May 1, but the latest summary gives the field a production of 14,500 barrels. What has been the best portion of the field, the R. L. Cox subdivision of the Whit Davis tract, directly north of the Texas company's north line, has shown a serious deterioration in the past sixty days."

BUTCHER GIRLS

Scrape Pigs' Feet In the Kansas City Packing Houses.

Unpleasant But Profitable Work, and They Like It.

Kansas City, June 10.—While most of the "butcher girls," whose removal from the packing houses the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's association is going to ask this summer, say the work they do is dirty, and that Michael Donnelly, president of the union, is right when he says it is not fit for a woman, still they say they don't mind the blood and dirt, and don't believe it is half as debasing as might be supposed. Several of the young women employed in various departments where a knife is used talked to a reporter concerning their work, and described it in detail the work they were required to do.

"Scraping pigs' feet is a pretty bum job," said one "butcher girl." "You see we make good money, but it's dirty work, and we earn all we get. The job ain't no cinch, but I don't much mind it now. Two years ago, when I first began I thought it tough, but sometimes I make $25 a week, and that's good money."

"Do you wear rubber boots and a rubber apron?" was asked.

"Yes, indeed," she replied. "You see, after the pig is scalded, lots of little hair remains on the skin. Now, we have to clean that off. That's scraping pigs' feet. Three of us stand around a big trough of water, kept hot by a steam coil. In this is thrown the pigs feet. We reach in, grab a foot in our left hand and scrape off the hair with a small knife held in our right hand. Then we singe the foot over a gas jet. I can work off ten of these feet in a minute. That's goin' some. This ain't no harder than doin' somebody's washing. When night comes I'm done, and I know what I'm going to do tomorrow. Still, Mr. Donnelly is right. It ain't no job for a girl. That's a dead cinch."

"Oh, joy," said another "butcher girl," who trims meat in a sausage room, "we ain't got a bad job. Of course, we get blood on our hands and all that, but we don't mind it. It ain't no worse than workin' in a cigar store, and ain't nothin' to a laundry, where the air ain't fit to breathe. You see, the girls in our gang trim. You know when a ham butcher gets done there's lots of odds and ends of meat. We take this and trim the lean from the fat. The fat goes to make lard, the lean sausage. Yes, they used to use men for this work, but now they hire girls. I would rather be in the label gang, but we got to work where we can. I don't mind the blood now, I got used to it. At first I hated it, but I don't care now."

A negro woman who "picks" chickens leaned back and laughed long and loud when asked about her work.

"Oh, pshaw," she said. "Go away. Don't bother me wid questions. I don't mind pickin' chickens. All we do is pull out feathers. It ain't no dirtier than cookin'. If you cook a chicken, you got to clean him. At the packin' house they done freeze him inside, head and all. I don't let the talk about firin' me bother me. I can find work some place else. But whoever heard of a man pickin' chickens?"

And she laughed again.

A "boss" of one of the gangs of "butcher girls," when asked about the work, said: "The trouble ain't here. It's in Chicago. While the girls here do some dirty work, it ain't nothing like Chicago. There they're a lot of foreigners. In the sausage room, after the strike last fall they began to put girls to work where the men had worked. This is regular butcher work. For some time the men have objected to girls working in these places, but after they began to take up the regular men's work the trouble began in earnest. It will take a big effort, I believe, to get the girls dropped. They are skilful, but maybe the butchers are right. They'd better be at home."

BOB TAYLOR FOR PARKER

The Apostle of Sunshine Tells His Political Views.

Nashville, Tenn., June 10.—"Talk," says former Governor Robert L. Taylor, "why talking has destroyed more men than bullets ever did; that's the reason I like Judge Parker."

"Are you a Parker man?"

"I am for the strongest and best man," he replied. "The Democratic party has made this battle and I think the angels point to Parker. I think the Democratic party has a better chance to win this year than since 1892. If the conflicting elements will bury their prejudices and all dead issues and get a plain and simple Democratic platform in opposition to extravagance, corruption and the reckless expenditure of public money, they can strike a blow that will shatter the spectacles of the Republican party and leave it stone blind.

"Let this be a campaign of patriotism instead of teeth; of brains instead of strenuosity; of the people instead of the trusts. Let us cross the alu, wipe out Fong-Wung-Cheng, drive Gen. Rooseveltch from Mukden, capture Port Arthur and send the Petrapovlovsk of Republicanism to the bottom.

"What do you think of the chances of Republican success?"

His eyes twinkled and his lips curved in a half good humored, half contemptuous smile as he replied:

"My friends of the Republican party, after this race in Tennessee, will sing an old hymn I used to know when I was a boy.

"'Sweet prospects, sweet birds and sweet flowers
'Have all lost their sweetness to me.'

"No, we've got the right Bate on our hook and we are going to catch the fish of victory; and we will have a big fish fry next November."

"Do you think Mr. Bryan will bolt the national Democratic convention if the Kansas City platform is not reaffirmed?"

"No, I do not believe Mr. Bryan will bolt. If he does our ex-candidate for president will be ex-everything else henceforth and forever.

"I would be in favor of Carmack being nominated for vice president and elected," contiued Mr. Taylor, his eyes shining with merriment. "If it were not for the fear that he would be unable to find anyone in Tennessee who would be willing to take his place as a senator. I noticed my lion wiggle his tail a little when Carmack was idorsed for that high office."

"Will you take any part in the approaching campaign, governor?"

"Well, I am like the negro girl was when her sweetheart asked her:

"'Di'na, why don't you marry me?' She sighed and said: 'ou never axed me.'"

PROPHECY VERIFIED.

Fortune Teller Predicted Her Own Insanity.

Nashville, Tenn., June 10.—Mrs. Tennessee Sexton, a fortune teller, predicted that she would become insane. Tennessee lived alone at 1613 North Vine street. She has been in the neighborhood for about eight years. Tennessee, like all of her class, has been able to tell the innermost secrets of a person's heart. But Tennessee has risen above the ordinary fortune tellers in that she has numbers of times predicted coming things. About a week before the death of President McKinley, Tenny, a neighbor says, predicted the assassination of the president. She also predicted her lunacy.

Several days ago Tennessee became "religious" and began to starve herself. She soon became too weak to walk about. She was visited by hundreds of persons daily. Tenny refused to tell any more fortunes, and as each person whose fortune she had formerly predicted passed her she shouted, "Forgive me for telling your fortune. Amen." Yesterday afternoon she became so wild that Lieut. Smith of the police force, was notified of her condition. He had the patrol take her to the jail.

Tennessee has a son living in Illinois, but she has always refused to tell what part of the state he lives in.

CHILD WITHOUT EYES.

Case of New York Infant Wholly Precedent.

New York, June 10.—The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Webber, of 1045 East One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street, came into the world without eyes. Physicians and eye specialists declare that her case is without a precedent. Over the socket in which nature builds eyeballs, a thin wall of flesh was tightly drawn like a curtain. Beneath this was a blank wall."

FARMER SUED

Fourteen Times For Divorce Buries the Hatchet.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 10.—Herman Cordes, a farmer, whose second wife had sued him for a divorce, has become reconciled to her, and they will bury the hatchet. Mr. Cordes has had some experience in the divorce courts. His first wife sued him twelve times without success. The thirteenth proved unlucky for Cordes, however, and he was mulcted in the sum of $10,000 alimony.

Madame Gain Finds She Needs More Than The Council's Permit.

Court Enjoins Removal of the Building—Building Pledged To Owner.

Madame Gain of St. Croix avenue fame, will not be able to avail herself of the permision granted by the council to move a building she owns on leased ground on St. Croix avenue to another location which she purchased last fall.

In district court, this morning, Judge Dibell filed his decision in the injunctional proceedings instituted against Mary Gain, by J. E. Richardson, owner of the leased ground, in which the court enjoins Madame Gain from removing the building during the term of the lease and states that an injunctional order may issue on the petition of J. E. Richardson.

The decision is the outcome of the hearing held in special term of court last Saturday, when Madame Gain was directed to appear to show cause why the order should not be issued. The court grants a 20 day stay of judgment.

With his findings, Judge Dibell also filed a short memorandum, which is as follows:

"The only question in the case relates to the proper construction of the lease.

"The land belongs to the plaintiff Richardson and the building to the defendant Gain. The building is pledged to the plaintiff for the payment of rents accruing during the period of the lease. The defendant is given the right to remove the house at the termination of her lease provided all the rent is fully paid and before the removal thereof.

"In my judgment the intention of the parties was that the building should remain in its then location and there stand as security for accruing rent during the period of the lease.

"It was not contemplated that the building might be moved at the will of the defendant and, thereby, the value of the plaintiff's security be impaired or entirely destroyed.

"If this be the proper construction, an injunction should issue, as a matter of course."

WEST DULUTH

The annual confirmation exercises will be held at the St. James Catholic church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, when a class of at least 100 members, from West Duluth and New Duluth, will be confirmed. Rev. James Feehely will be assisted in the work by Rev. Father Guillet, of the St. John d' Baptiste parish. Rt. Rev. James McGolrick will deliver the sermon. At the first mass 125 persons will receive first communion.

This will be the first event of its kind to be held in the new church building on Fifty-seventh avenue, which will make it the more interesting and important in the history of the church. The interior of the building will be elaborately decorated for the occasion, and special music will be rendered by the choir, under direction of Miss Claire Kenny, directress and Miss Marie Tims, organist.

In the time that Rev. Father Feehely has had charge of the St. James parish, five years, there have been five of these annual confirmation classes, none of them with a membership of less than 100 members. This record is considered a most remarkable one for any parish, no matter where situated.

WHAT WILL SHE DO?

Question That Mr. and Mrs. Cashin Are Pondering.

One day last week Mrs. John Cashin wrote a letter to a near relation. She sealed it up, forgetting the usual custom of leaving it open until Mr. Cashin had an opportunity of putting in a few lines. Mr. Cashin, however, happened to have something he particularly desired to say to the relative in question, so, on arriving at the postoffice with the letter, he invested in a postal card, addresed it to the near relation, wrote his few lines and mailed the card with the letter. Most of the remarks dwelt upon the exceeding disagreeableness of the weather then prevailing. He said that Duluth had enjoyed sixteen months of cold weather and that twelve months more of the same article were anticipated before summer came.

On his return home he met with a surprise in the shape of information from Mrs. Cashin to the effect that her letter contained an urgent invitation to her sister to pay a visit to the Cashin home, and that the strongest feature about the invitation was the description of the delightful climate of Duluth, and of the pleasant weather then prevailing.

"You know how sister is," explained Mrs. Cashin. "She never in the world would come if she knew what sort of weather we were having now, and that it was liable to be repeated at some future date. I felt justified in fibbing just a little, under the circumstances."

And now Mr. Cashin is wondering what will happen.

FUNDS NOT ENOUGH

Amount Appropriated Insufficient to Repair London Road.

One-Quarter of Distance Decided on Cannot Be Touched.

Three blocks of London road will have to be left unimproved unless some action of the council is taken next Monday evening to increase the appropriation of $5000 made for the resurfacing of the driveway from Forty-eighth avenue east to Sixtieth avenue east.

The council appropriated the sum from the board of public works fund in the belief that this would be sufficient to accomplish the work. According to the estimate made by City Engineer McGilvray the sum will not be sufficient to pave more than eight or possibly nine blocks of the street, leaving at least three blocks untouched. The street originally had six inches of material over the base of Telford macdam. All of this material has been worn away and the macadam is now exposed. The plan is to lay four inches of new material on the road covering the macadam again and making the road practically as good as new.

The city engineer, however, states that the $5000 will not lay more than nine blocks of this material four inches in depth and twenty-four feet in width. None of the depressions in the pavement can be graded off with that amount of money. The street will still be graded sufficiently for proper drainage, however. There was originally a rise of fourteen inches from the curb to the crown of the road, and the crown will still be of sufficient height to allow the water to run off.

Three things remain for the council to do. It can either vote more money to improve the street as at first contemplated, spread out the material so that it will cover the entire twelve blocks with a thin covering, or leave the three blocks untouched.

It is hardly probable that the aldermen will vote any more money for the purpose. The board of public works fund is now practically exhausted, and the board is compelled to economize rigidly in order to make both ends meet and keep up the maintenance work. To take any more money out of the permanent improvement fund is out of the question and just where an addition to the appropriation could be secured is difficult to see.

The two aldermen from the First ward have the matter under consideration, and have asked the board of public works to postpone any action until after the next council meeting. They doubtless have some plan to advance in regard to the matter.

ENGINEER TESTIFIES

Concerning Dynamite Explosion At Independence Station.

Victor, Colo., June 10.—An investigation by the jury empanelled by Coroner Hall, into the the explosion at the Independence station on Monday, when over twenty men were killed and crippled, is being pushed. The first witness was James Dooner, engineer of the train that was pulling in at the station at the time of the explosion. Dooner said that he had stopped about seventy-five feet from the depot when some men ran up and informed him that the depot had been blown up. He told of himself and his crew lighting torches and making an investigation of the scene and of assisting the dead and wounded. He had, he said, made a second trip to the depot platform with the conductor, when they tried to find a wire by which some one said the explosion had been caused. They had not seen any signs of the wire.

The testimony of the other members of the crew was practically the same as that given by Dooner.

GETTING NEW INFIELDER

Manager Van Praagh Negotiating For a Second Baseman.

A new second baseman will join the White Sox sometime during the coming week if the plans of Manager Van Praagh materialize.

Negotiations are now under way for a fast infielder to take the place of Capt. Frank Martin at the second cushion, but the deal is not yet closed, and the name of the player cannot be made public.

Since Martin left, the infield has been more or less demoralized. Wilkes, while he is an excellent utility man for the infield, is out of his position there and does not show up to the advantage he does in an outfield position. Owens was not cut out for a second baseman, and he is too valuable a pitcher to be used in that position. This leaves the team shy an infielder, and the effect has been seen in the last two games played. Since Martin left, the men have not been putting up the strong, aggressive game that characterized their early work. The Duluth manager does not want to take any chances when the team is so well in the lead, and hopes to have the new player in time for the Superior series, which will commence Tuesday.

An exhibition contest is being played today at the baseball grounds. Koukalik is pitching. A league game will be played with Crookston on Sunday, when either Gehring or Owens will pitch.

FRENCH WARSHIPS

May Possibly Be Sent To Tangier, Morocco.

Paris, June 10.—It is reported that Marine Minister Pelletan is communicating with Vice Admiral Igon, at Toulon, relative to the possible eventuality of sending one or two French warships to Morocco. The report is not yet confirmed and probably only inquiry may have been made as to what ships are available if an emergency arises, which the officials do not expect.

A Money Saving Event.

Floan, Leveroos & Co. have inaugurated the greatest sale of men's suits of the season. They offer $13.50 and $15.00 suits at $9.75; $18 and $20 suits at $13.75; $25 suits at $17.75. This is news of great importance to the public, as the house is noted for the reliable line of merchandise it sells and the genuineness of the price reductions. A moment spent in looking over their offerings will readily convince you that when they say "sale," it means just that much.

Two Sewer Contracts.

Three small sewer contracts were let by the board of public works at the meeting this morning. The contract for the sewer in Fifty-fifth avenue east from the alley south of the railroad to London road was awarded to Johnson & Nordgren for $350.20.

George R. King received the contract for the overflow sewer in Twenty-first avenue west from Michigan street to the bay for $1590.60, and M. Fitzgerald & Co., received the contract for an extension of 100 feet to the Piedmont avenue sewer at a cost of $129.10.

RUSSIAN MINISTER TO SWITZERLAND IS SHOT.

Berne, Switzerland, June 10.—The Russian minister here, M. Jadovski, was shot in a street here this afternoon and seriously injured in the head. His would-be assassin was arrested. The latter is believed to be a foreigner. His identity has not been ascertained.

M. Jadovski's assailant was a Russian named Linitzki. He had been in Berne for some weeks and complained that the Russian authorities had confiscated an estate belonging to him.

M. Jadovski's wound, although it at first appeared to be severe, is not dangerous.

Special Opening Display of Midsummer Millinery

An Exhibit of Favored Modes.

Dainty hats of lace, chiffon, mohair and Tuscan braids will rule for summer. Tricome, flare, face hats, suit hats, hats that are rolled side and back. It's a note of daintiness that has been struck in summer models, in a great measure due to the trimmings of tiny roses, cherries, feathers, long plumes, laces and chiffon, so deftly fashioned you fancy the designers inspired.

THE BEBE HAT is one of these models—of chiffon and Maline, drooping brim, trimmed with sprays of French pink roses, ruffled edge and finished at back with loops of ribbon.

ALSO LARGE PICTURE HAT of all-over lace. A large white ostrich feather covers crown. It is edged with soft fluted chiffon and underbrim is finished with white tulle.

If for nothing else one should come to this OPENING DISPLAY to see the daintiness of the summer modes.

We also call attention to the showing of dainty conceptions for the girl graduate.

GRAFTERS MUST GO

Government Officials Are Investigating Fraudulent Homestead Entries.

Asserted One Man Has Proved Up on Four Claims.

Bemidji, Minn., June 10.—The announcement that a government detective in the employ of the general land office at Washington, has been looking up alleged digressions upon the homestead law in Beltrami county is productive of something of a sensation. It has been known for some time that a government agent was looking up fraudulent homestead entries in this vicinity and as a result of his visit and recent developments, several land sharks, who have been operating in the northern part of this county, are said to be missing from their usual haunts.

Almost every homesteader and land owner in this vicinity is familiar with the methods of the land sharks who pose as locators, the inconvenience and annoyance they cause to prospective settlers and of the downright outrages which they have perpetrated in many cases.

A settler who had been victimized by a locater and alleged United States commissioner near Blackduck some time ago, is said to have made the complaint to the general land office, which resulted in the beginning of the investigation.

It is asserted by those who are in a position to know that fraudulent homestead entries have been made almost without regard for anything in this section and settlers in the vicinity of Blackduck tell of one man who proved up on four claims, under different names, sold the pine and left the country.

A regularly organized system of graft has been prevalent, it is alleged, for some time and innumerable contests have been started merely for the purpose of "shaking down" the newcomers to this section, many of whom were not familiar with the homestead laws.

The abolishment last winter of a large number of the United States commissionerships, which were held responsible for most of the trouble, had a very wholesome effect and the office in the hands of an unscrupulous man is said to have been one of the most prolific grafts imaginable.

FIRE AT NOGALES, ARIZ.

Nogales, Ariz., June 10.—Fire has destroyed the federal custom house here, as well as the Southern Pacific and the Sonora railroad depots. The Wells-Fargo company's express office was completely gutted. Many freight cars in the yards were burned. The total loss will amount to $100,000. The cause of the fire is not known.

ARMENIAN ATROCITIES

Must Be Stopped According to Ambassadors.

Paris, June 10.—Foreign Minister Delcasse has been informed from Constantinople that the British, French and Russian ambassadors there yesterday reached a joint agreement to present an energetic representation to the grand vizier to put a stop to the Armenian atrocities. It is expected that a joint representation on the subject will be submitted today. This action follows the official investigation confirming that a number of bloody combats have occurred, that villages have been destroyed and that people have been killed in Armenia.

DOCTORS GO HOME.

Attendance on Medical Meeting Largely Decreased.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10.—There was a noticeable decrease in the number o fdoctors attending today's session of the American Medical association, many of them having left for their homes.

The few sections which did not complete their business yesterday held brief sessions this morning and the convention colsed with a general meeting at noon. The only sections of general importance were those on children's diseases where a paper was read by Dr. P. M. McClanahan, of Omaha, "On the care of infants in public institutions," and the section of Materia and Medica where a paper on "The Therapeutic Value of Massage in Acute Diseases," was read by Dr. J. W. Seaver, of New Haven, Conn.

Alleges Desertion.

Annie Dostler has begun divorce proceedings, in district court, against Oliver Dostler, on the grounds of desertion. In her complaint, Mrs. Dostler says she is 37 and her husband is 43 years old. They were married in Duluth in January, 1901, the alleged desertion taking place in 1903.

Mrs. Dostler says she was called to Iowa by the sickness of relatives, in October, 1902, her husband agreeing to follow her later. She claims that on the day set for his departure he became intoxicated and gave his railway ticket to a policeman to keep until he became sober. She says she has seen nothing of her husband since she went to Iowa and has reason to believe he has deserted her.

WOULD GO TO PANAMA.

Minnesota University Students to Get Positions.

Washington, June 10.—The isthmian canal commission has under consideration a number of applications from students of the university of Minnesota, who have applied for positions as civil engineers in connection with the construction of the Panama canal.

The state university stands high in the civil engineering department, and the names of the lucky students selected will shortly be announced.

The commission has also under consideration a number of applications from students of other Northwestern universities.

THE BARROWS CASE.

Effort Being Made to Quash Government's Suit.

Washington, June 10.—Efforts are being made to have the government quash the suit recently brought against Frederick J. Barrows, of Minneapolis, formerly an officer in the volunteer service, who was convicted and served a term in the Manila penitentiary for embezzlement of funds of the quartermaster's department of the army. The suit is for something over $14,000 and it is pointed out that Barrows has no funds to reimburse the government and that a suit would be useless. The action on the part of the government is a civil one.

FIRE AT WARRENSBURG, MO.

Warrensburg, Mo., June 10.—Fire today destroyed Clarks lumber yard and three frame buildings occupying a block of land in the business district. Loss $150,000. For a time the fire threatened the business district and Sedalia was asked to send aid. Before the Sedalia engines could reach here, however, the flames had been placed under control.

ISLANDERS ON WARPATH.

Savages on the Pacific Islands Break Out.

Honolulu, June 10.—From the South Pacific come many reports of outbreaks of violence in the islands which were regarded as semi-civilized. First come a reliable story of cannibalism of the Admiralty island, and now inhabitants of Norfolk island have appealed to the government for permission to organize a defense corps because of the threatening conduct of the blacks.

The German steamer Prinz Sigimund brings news of a massacre at Druor island, in the Hermit group. About 500 natives in canoes attacked Waklen's coffee and cocanut plantation and killed Manager Reimers and several laborers. They then looted the place, burning buildings and carrying away everything they wanted. They left in canoes for a neighboring island, but it is thought most of them were drowned, as a great storm came on. At various places canoes were washed ashore. The German governor sent a punitive expedition against these natives.

WISCONSIN ODD FELLOWS

Appleton, Wis., June 10.—The following officers were elected at the second day's session of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows: Grand master, Ernest A. Kehr, Milwaukee; deputy grand master, C. W. Sapies, Osceola; grand secretary, Richard Hoe, Milwaukee; grand treasurer, William George Thwaites, Milwaukee; grand chaplain, J. H. McNees, Richland Center; grand representatives, N. R. Nelson, La Crosse; H. H. Stewart, Superior; grand marshal, J. W. Brown, Berlin. The offices of grand conductor, grand guardian and grand herald are appointive by the grand master-elect, and will be announced before the convention adjourns. A trustee will also be appointed to take the place of David Turner, of Milwaukee.

The session yesterday was taken up with committee reports. The institution of a new office, known as the state inspector and instructor, will meet with opposition. The majority of the delegates visited the Odd Fellows' home at Green Bay, making the trip on a special train over the Northwestern road. Those that remained here were given a ride about the city. The degree of chivalry was conferred on a class of 100 at the city park last evening, and was followed by a reception and dance at Odd Fellows hall.

The Rebekahs are holding their sessions at the Congregational church. Over 400 members are in attendance. New officers were elected, as follows: President, Mrs. Mary F. Oakey, Madison; vice president, Mrs. Meta Warden Yantz, Oakfield; secretary, Mrs. Sarah Hutchinson, Menominie.

WOODEND EXPELLED

From the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange.

New York, June 10.—The expulsion of W. E. Woodend, of the suspended firm of W. E. Woodend & Co., was announced on the Consolidated stock exchange today, the reason given being alleged irregularities in dealings.

W. E. Woodend & Co., are in the hands of a receiver and various investigations of the firm's affairs have been instituted in the courts. Dr. Woodend's prominence in other than financial circles and the large number of branches maintained by the firm throughout the country made the somewhat sensational closing of the firm of more than ordinary interest to which much was later added by the various court proceedings.

The suspension of A. F. Woblcke for one year was announced on the Consolidated stock exchange today for "acts detrimental to the exchange."

WILL NOT TRUST STATE.

Attorney Holds Out Warrant For Massachusetts.

Boston, June 10.—The warrant for $1,600,000 drawn on the national treasury, payable to Gov. Bates, of Massachusetts, on account of Civil war claims of this state against the government, has been held up by J. B. Cotton, of Washington, who was agent for Massachusetts in relation to these claims before congress. Cotton, acting under a contract entered into with the late Governor Wolcott, claims he was to receive 10 per cent of the fund secured.

When the warrant was drawn several weeks ago, Mr. Cotton immediately secured it for "transmission to Massachusetts." He still has the warrant, and refuses to deliver it up until he is paid his commission of $160,000.

It appears that when the warrant was issued, Cotton presented to the treasury department a certified copy of the note to the governor and executive council of 1899, which appointed the attorney to prosecute the state's claims and specified that his compensation should not exceed 10 per cent of the amount collected. It has been the custom of the treasury department to turn a warrant over to a state's agent for transmission to a governor.

Search For Dahl and Daughter Unsuccessful.

Bemidji, June 10.—The search instituted at Quiring postoffice to disocver the whereabouts of N. O. Dahl, of Crookston, and his daughter, Miss Aagot Dahl, of Quiring, has so far been without results and has developed nothing that will explain their mysterious disappearance.

O. C. Rood, a prominent Crookston merchant, and C. C. Strabnder, a business man of that city, were in Bemidji yesterday, returning to their homes from a trip to Quiring. Both are sons-in-law of Mr. Dahl. They are at a loss to account for his disappearance, but incline to the belief that father and daughter have met with foul play. Both gentlemen declined to discuss the matter for publication.

PLANS ARE MADE

Arrangements For Entertainment of Democratic Convention.

Central Committee to Have Supper Night Before Meeting.

Yesterday afternoon there was a joint meeting of the sub-committee on state Democratic convention of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club and the Bryan and Towne club committees. Arrangements were outlined for the showing of proper hospitality to the visiting politicians, and the program is believed to be one that will please the visitors and make Duluth popular as a convention city.

It was decided that the Commercial club would entertain the state central committee of the Democrats on the night preceding the convention by a supper at the club. There are nearly 100 members on this committee, and the spread will be quite a notable affair.

After the supper the state committee will hold a meeting and decide when and where the convention of the party to nominate a state ticket shall be held. This will probably be the most important matter which the committee will have to handle while here.

On the morning after the convention there will be an excursion on the steamer Newsboy, to entertain the delegates and their wives, and the Third regiment band has been engaged to make the outing additionally pleasant.

At the conclusion of this joint committee meeting the general local Democratic committee on arrangements for the convention held a meeting and decided on Alfred McCallum for one of the sergeant-at-arms of the state convention. Mr. McCallum is private secretary to Mayor Cullum, and his appointment is regarded as a signal honor, the work connected with the post being important and requiring considerable tact.

A number of other matters of detail were attended to, such as arrangements about badges, standards for the delegations and accommodations for them.

The Commercial club, through Secretary Eva, is sending out the following postal card today to all the Democratic state committeemen:

"It will be a great favor to us, and we believe will enable us to add to the pleasure of your visit to Duluth if you will send us immediately after your convention next Saturday a complete list of the delegates from your county to the Duluth convention."

The county conventions, as indicated by the above, are to be held tomorrow, and the St. Louis county meeting will be held in the city hall, at 2:30 p. m.

* * *

It looks as though the Hearst people would control this convention, especially in view of their victories at the Duluth primaries last Saturday night, as well as outside the city. Two of the delegates from Ely will be H. Van Blarcom and D. Brown, who are claimed as well wishers of Hearst. There will be two other delegates from there, and while their names could not be learned, it is said they are also Hearstites.

The convention is entitled to about 140 delegates, of which something over 100 are expected to be present. Followers of Hearst are claiming everything in sight, especially as the Parker followers are very quiet about what they expect to do at the meeting.

MOTHER OPPOSED

By Bartender In Fight For Son's Estate.

Guthrie, O. T., June 10.—An interesting land contest, for the possession of a valuable claim near Hobart, in Kiowa county, is in progress somewhere before the general land department, wherein the claims of a widowed mother, who lives in Hartford, Conn., are involved.

Michael Carroll, a native of Hartford, died mysteriously several months ago in the upstairs portion of a saloon building at Hobart. He had been a homesteader, when the Kiowa and Comanche county was opened to settlement narly three years ago, and had drawn a valuable claim within five miles of Hobart, the county-seat town. It has been the belief, all the time, of the coroner, who presided at Sarroll's inquest, that his death was the result of foul play, and the officer has been an important witness in the land contest.

A man named McWain, who was a bartender in the saloon building where Carroll died, bought Carroll's relinquishment to the homestead claim. Carroll was to have all he wanted to drink, eat and wear as long as he lived.

Carroll was a Catholic and the county coroner sent letters to all the priests in Hartford, near which city it was known Carroll had lived. The letters were read to the congregations with the suggestion that everyone aid in locating Carroll's relatives. Finally one priest located a widowed mother, whose son, like Farrell, was a drunkard who had wandered away from home several years ago, leaving her almost poverty-stricken. A picture of Farrell was sent to Kiowa county officers and it was at once recognized by all who saw it as Mike Carroll. When found dead Carroll was in a room without a stove, with but little clothing on the bed, and the thermometer during the night had ranged below zero.

The homestead is easily worth today $5000, and would be a godsend to the widowed mothe in Connecticut.

IOWA FARMERS CELEBRATE

Hard-Won Fight For Switch For Co-Operative Elevator.

Galva, Iowa, June 10.—A monster picnic celebrated the completion of the Farmers' Union elevator at aGlva. All Ida County joined in the merry-making.

The company was formed by eighty-five farmers living near Galva, in March of 1903, with a capital stock of $25,000, for the purpose of carrying on a grain, lumber and coal business. Ground was secured from the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad company and a promise secured from the proper official for building of a sidetrack to the proposed elevator.

An elevator with a capacity of 20,000 bushels speedily materialized, but not so the sidetrack. The railroad company failed to show any inclination to carry out their part of the agreement, claiming that it would be impossible to switch cars around so short a curve as would be necessary to reach the elevator building from the main track. The company also claimed that it would be necessary to build a bridge, costing $1000, over a low piece of ground.

The Galva people employed a surveyor and took measurements of their own, demonstrating the feasibility of the sidetrack, but their representations failed to carry weight with the railroad company.

Meanwhile the big elevator companies were not idle. By the time the farmers' elevator at Galva was ready for business, grain was being hauled in from remote points of the county, some of it coming from within four or five miles of Ida Grove, the higher prices offered by the line companies at Galva making the longer haul profitable. It was evident that it was the intention to smother the newly formed company in its infancy, but the Galva farmers said nothing, realizing that their elevator was a paying investment, even though it did no business, on account of the higher prices which they were able to secure for their produce. Incidentally, they handled coal at retail at a good profit, besides which the price of coal handled by the opposition came down to such an extent as to be beneficial to the whole countryside, whether patrons of the farmers' union or not.

In his capacity as president of the elevator company Rob Baxter of Silver Creek township made many fruitless trips to confer with the polite but evasive railroad officials, and also with the railroad commissioners. Finally, realizing the hopelessness of looking for relief from these sources, a bill was prepared, and during the latter part of the recent session of the legislature he set about securing pledges from members to vote for the measure. He had not gone far with his canvass before a representative of the railroad tapped him on the shoulder and told him the matter need go no further and that the Galva people would get their sidetrack. However, by the time the dicker was completed, the elevator people had to pay the railroad company $300 toward the cost of tho sidetrack.

When it came to the actual construction of the switch this past week the railroad company found that a 4x6 foot culvert, which four men built in one day, would answer in the place they at first claimed a $1000 bridge to be necessary, and Chicago & Northwestern locomotives now make their way around the alleged to be prohibitive curves without apparent difficulty.

The following were elected: Past great commander—Rachael A. Bailey; great commander—Mrs. Burns, St. Louis, Mich.; Lieutenant commander—Mrs. Anna Holthe, Muskegon; Great record-keeper —Miss Emma Bower, Ann Arbor; Great finance keeper—Mrs. Susie Graves, Port Huron; Great Medical examiner—Dr. Holdon, Detroit.

MAN WHO ORIGINATED

The Railway Mail Service Narrowly Escaped Prison.

Jackson, Ohio, June 10.—Thomas S. Bradford, who died recently in Jackson, originated the railway mail service. He narrowly escaped being sent to prison for it. In the '60s Mr. Bradford was a railway mail clerk, and James N. Tyner, who was acquitted on the day of Mr. Bradford's death of conspiracy in postal frauds, was postal inspector for this division.

In those days the present system of routing the mails was unknown. Then a letter mailed in Washington and addressed to Chicago was tied up at the postoffice at Washington in a brown paper parcel along with other Western letters and addressed to the postmaster at Cincinnati.

Here the package was opened, the letters for Cincinnati and adjoining territory were taken out and the Chicago letter was tied up again with other Western letters and sent to the postmaster at Indianapolis, where the parcel was subjected to the same process and sent on to Chicago. The system was slow and cumbersome.

One day Clerk Bradford discovered that by opening the brown parcel and taking out the Western letters, and, instead of dropping them off at Cincinnati, taking them to Indianapolis on his run, he could save a great deal of time. He adopted this system of handling his mails.

The practice soon came to the knowledge of the postoffice department and Inspector Tyner was assigned to the case.

One morning Mr. Bradford went aboard has car as usual for his daily run. He had emptied the pouches on his assorting table and had begun tearing open the brown parcels when a hand was laid upon his shoulder and he turned to face Inspector Tyner.

"Young man, by what authority do you open these packages addressed to the postmaster at Cincinnati?" inquired the inspector. Mr. Bradford hastened to explain that he didn't know he was doing anything wrong, but was only sending the mail to its destination quicker.

He then explained his mehtods to the inspector. At the conclusion of his explanation Inspector Tyner said: "Mr. Bradford, I was sent out here to place you under arrest, but instead I think the postoffice department owes you a great deal for this."

The inspector went back to Washington and reported the facts, and in a short time an order was issued to all postal clerks to open the postmasters' parcels and assort the contents in the manner indicated.

FURNITURE POLISH

Is a New Remedy For Bruised Limbs.

Columbus, Ohio, June 10.—Councilman M. A. Williams met with a slight accident in which he bruised his shins considerably. He reached home feeling tired and sore, but knowing that his wife kept a store of handy medicines in the house, proceeded to the shelf to get the turpentine bottle, which he knew was there.

Mrs. Williams happened to be away, and so he went it alone. He searched the shelf and finally found a bottle which he knew must be turpentine. He took it and went upstairs, disrobed and rubbed the bruised shins with the liquid and went to bed. He woke up about 2 o'clock in the morning and his shin pained him, and so he gave it another rubbing with the contents of the bottle. In the morning when he got up Mrs. Williams had returned and had been told of Mr. Williams' trouble by some member of the family.

"How do you feel?" she asked.

"First rate," was the cheery response.

"What bottle did you use?" was her next question.

"That funny-looking bottle there on the shelf," he replied.

Mrs. Williams gave a hearty laugh and said: "Why, Mort, that is a bottle of furniture polish."

But it cured him.

BARBER DIED MYSTERIOUSLY

Took Capsule Which Was Thought to Contain Quinine.

El Paso, Tex., June 10.—Joseph Nixon's death is a mystery. He carried $75,000 life insurance, and a rigid investigation is being made. Few men in El Paso have as much insurance on their lives and Nixon was only a prosperous owner of a barber shop. His policies were taken out last November.

When Nixon was preparing to start home from his shop Saturday night he gave his colored porter money and instructed him to purchase a box of quinine capsules. The negro soon returned with five five-grain capsules and Nixon took one. He dropped into a saloon, swallowed a drink and went home. In an hour he was violently ill and suffering great agony from pains in his stomach.

Dr. Vilas and other physicians who were hastily called diagnosed the case as strychnine poisoning, and it was at first believed that the drug was contained in the capsule. This, however, was subsequently found to be untrue, or at any rate the remaining capsules were proven to contain only quinine.

Nixon died without obtaining relief, and the physicians are still in the dark as to the cause of his malady.

Nixon, who was 43 years old, owned the Parlor barber shop, and earned an income of several thousand dollars per year. It is also stated that he loaned money at interest and made considerable profit. His family consisted of a wife and a boy of 8.

According to a statement given to a reporter Wednesday, he had $25,000 in the Mutual, $25,000 in the New York and $5,000 in the Prudential, besides two small fraternal organization policies.

An examination of the quinine capsules taken by Nixon was made Wednesday by Drs. W. N. Vilas and W. O. Wright.

The powder was found to be pure unadulterated quinine.

The capsules were put up by a company of Detroit and not by a local drug store.

Dr. Vilas said: "The capsules were pure quinine without a particle of any other drug. From the convulsions with which Nixon died I would say that his demise was caused from strychnine poisoning, although on examination other poison may be found."

GOATS MILK

To Be Supplied To Infants Of Chicago.

Chicago, June 10.—St. Louis capitalists are interested in a plan to relieve Chicago's scarcity of milk and improve the quality of food given to infants. They propose to establish a number of distributing stations in Chicago from which goats will be sent out whenever an order for fresh milk is received. And since there are dangers for the babies in the nursing bottle as well as in the ordinary milk of commerce, it is planned to have the infants take their nourishment entirely from goats—a method which is said to be in vogue among the Latin races.

MILLIONS IN FEES

Go to Cromwell Who Engineered Sale of Panama Canal.

By Incessant Work, Has Rebuilt Many Bankrupt Enterprises.

New York, June 10.—William Nelson Cromwell of this city, who returned from Paris the other day after having completed the sale of the Panama canal to the United States, is now, in many respects, the most remarkable figure at the American bar. Aside from his other claims to celebrity, he possesses the unique distinction of having received the most enormous single fees ever paid for legal services.

For selling the Panama canal—in itself one of the most difficult and successful individual achievements of the century—he is popularly accredited with having been paid $1,000,000. In reality he got much more, and $2,000,000 would be much nearer the mark. At any rate, it was several hundred thousands of dollars more than John E. Parsons was paid for drawing the bombproof charter of the Sugar trust.

For reorganizing the great firm of Recker, Howell & Co., in 1881, he got from the court a fee of $200,000, and received a splendid silver service from the firm.

For settling the affairs of Price, McCormick & Co., he is said to have received $100,000 in one fee.

Princely fees flowed into his pocket for his work in reorganizing the Northern Pacific railroad, and in organizing the American Cotton Oil company and the $80,000,000 National Tube company.

He set on its feet the Produce Exchange Trust company and settled up the affairs of the Seventh National bank, and of the Metropolitan Fire Engine company, and of the Penfield companies. He was the counsel to the reorganization committee of the American Shipbuilding company. In these and many other cases he has received fees, every one of them a fortune in itself. Within the brief period of a dozen years he has made several millions. He has thus become, from the wage-earning point of views—to say nothing of the other aspects of his wonderful achievements—the richest and most successful practising lawyer, not only in this country, but in the whole world.

His magical success has been chiefly along the line of bringing business success out of business failure. There is in him that rare combination of energy, courage, insight and persistency blended to form what his associates call positive genius.

Mr. Cromwell is a small man, with a nervous temperament, and with indomitable energy. Edmund Clarence Stedman once said to a friend:

"You don't appreciate Cromwell. Your partner is a genius. Had he been a poet he would have charmed the world."

"I live to work"—this is the Cromwell motto. Work is literally his passion. He does not play golf, or walk, or ride horseback, or indulge in any other form of exercise by which professional men usually relax their minds and preserve their health. In whatever he undertakes he has undying hope, unbounded energy, unrelenting persistency, and a characteristic dazzling quickness of action and resourceful boldness and originality of execution that bring the full and successful accomplishment of his purpose almost before it is generally realized that he is beyond the preparatory stage of his undertaking.

In two of the great undertakings in which he figured, the reorganization of Decker, Howell & Co., and of Price, McCormick & Co., he achieved almost instant success by going entirely outside the ordinary prerogative of a receiver. He jumped to the telephone and gave orders which resulted in bearing up the prices of the securities in which those firms were chiefly interested. In the case of the failure of Price, McCormick & Co., only one creditor sold his collateral after the initial assurance of Receiver Cromwell to protect the collateral had been put on the tape.

The sale of the Panama canal was an entirely different undertaking, one requiring not only expert knowledge of the subject of the canal itself in all its physical and financial phases, but also great skill at negotiation and a continued display of adroitness and energy under a long succession of the most trying circumstances.

The general proposition at the outset was very simple:

First—Was the Panama canal route feasible?

Second—Would the United States government adopt it in preference to the Nicaragua route?

The question as to the feasibility of the Panama route was virtually settled in its favor through the action of the French Panama Canal company before Lawyer Cromwell took up the project of a sale to the United States. The report of the inquiry of the international technical commission, appointed by the canal company, proved the route to be feasible.

The remaining proposition, simple in its form of expression, was of the utmost difficulty of solution. At the time Mr. Cromwell undertook the sale there was not one public man in Washington, so far as known, favorable to the project. American official opinion was entirely enlisted on the side of the Nicaragua route. In one of those first interviews between the secretary of state and the American counsel for the Panama Canal company the fromer was coldly polite, manifesting no real interest in the Panama proposal. When the subject was laid personally before Speaker Reed he was asked only to use his endeavor to have the administration give the question of the feasibility of the Panama route fair investigation. The speaker made a cutting comment on the administration.

"We are in the hands of a syndicate," he said.

Lawyer Cromwell resolved on a campaign of popular education. Before entering thereon he employed a staff of civil engineers to teach him and his active law partner in the undertaking all that it was possible to learn about the Panama canal. Thus equipped, he organized a private bureau of information, and furnished articles to newspapers and magazines, and put printed matter about the canal into every library in the country. An immense amount of literary material was circulated in Washington, in congress everywhere.

The most critical point in the progress of the crusade was when, in the closing hours of the last congress over which Mr. Reed presided, a "rider" was tacked onto the river and harbor bill appropriating $200,000 to investigate the Nicaragua route. That meant the death-knell of the Panama route if the bill was passed with the "rider" attached. After a brief but strenuous period of activity on the part of Lawyer Cromwell and his partner, and through the resulting action of Speaker Reed and Chairman Theodore E. Burton of the river and harbor committee, the measure was amended to provide for an investigation of both routes. This was only after a threat by Reed to defeat the river and harbor bill unless it was amended, and after a 20-minute presentation of his side of the case by Mr. Cromwell to the committee. Speaker Reed had been won to Panama some time previously, in a two-hour interview, during which maps and all available data were laid before him. The sequel of the amended "rider" was the second Walker commission, which reported in favor of the Panama route.

GIRL SIDED WITH JEHU

Against Her Fiance, and Coachman Was Not Indicted.

New York, June 10.—All the tongues—at least among the women—of Morristown, N. J., are wagging merrily over a case of assault, in which Frederick W. Ford, a man in society and a New York banker, had three teeth knocked out by Jacob Winters, a coachman for De Witt Clinton Flanagan, a former representative. The assault occurred on the evening of May 7, but the gossip has been fanned into flame anew because of the rumor that Miss Mary Keppele Howell, who was with Ford at the time of the occurrence, testified before the grand jury in favor of the coachman.

On the evening of May 7, the story runs, Ford and his fiancee, Miss Howell, started from an evening train for her home. When about to cross the sidewalk they were stopped by Flanagan's horses, driven by Winters. The horses were nervous and prancing a little.

Ford says that the horses were running away and he feared that he and his fiancee would be run down, while Winters says that the horses were almost still and that he had them under perfect control. At all events, Ford jumped for the horses' heads, grasped their bridles and yanked them back on their haunches, whereat Winters jumped down from the box and struck Ford in the mouth, knocking him down and breaking three of his front teeth.

Fighting made, Ford bounded up, and probably would have engaged in a fight with the coachman but for the fact that he was accompanying his fiancee. Monday morning Ford swore out a warrant for Winters' arrest on a charge of assault and battery. The grand jury was in session and Ford was called before that body. After hearing the testimony, it is stated, the grand jury had fixed on an indictment against Winters.

At dinner time the fact that Winters was to be indicted leaked out, and it is said that Flanagan at once took a hand in the matter. After dinner Miss Howell was called before the grand jury and that body fought over the matter all the afternoon, with the result that no indictment was returned. Now it is contended on every hand that Miss Howell gave testimony in favor of the coachman, which caused the jury to change their minds. It is also said that there are strained relations of a serious nature between Mr. Ford and his fiancee, and that the wedding, which was to have taken place next month, may be postponed indefinitely.

These are mainly rumors, however, as Mr. Ford refuses to talk and Miss Howell denies herself to all callers.

PIES MADE BY DEACON'S WIFE

Appealed to Minister's Taste and Divorce Suit Resulted.

Muncie, Ind., June 10.—In a suit filed by Edward C. Hilligoss, of Anderson, against Rev. Martin C. Bartlett, of this city, the plaintiff alleges that the minister alienaed his wife's affections. He demands $5000.

The suit is the culmination of a church scandal that set the little town of Fairmount, Grant county, into a furore last year, but which never reached the public prints until now.

Rev. Martin Bartlett, past the prime of life, was the pastor of a happy flock, that of the First Christian church in Fairmount. One of the most active members was Edward C. Hilligoss, aged 60, whose wife, fifteen years younger, was also a devout member of the flock. In 1903 the talk began to disturb the congregation. It was whispered that the minister was paying an unusual number of calls to the home of Deacon Hilligoss. When one member of the church ventured to make a remark to the pastor he laughingly replied that "Sister Hilligoss could make better pies than any other cook in his congregation."

Finaly Deacon Hilligoss noticed that the minister's visits were surprisingly frequent. He remonstrated with his wife, but the minister kept up his visits. And now, in his complaint for damages, the deacon says that one day he went home and found the reverend gentleman in the act of kissing his wife. Deacon Hilligoss was angry, but he remembered the principles taught to him by Rev. Mr. Bartlett and did not do bodily harm to the clergyman. However, he took steps at once to procure a divorce. Divorce was granted in the Grant county circuit court in Marion. The notoriety was such that Rev. Mr. Bartlett removed from Fairmount to Muncie. He is married and has a large family. Deacon Hilligoss has made his home with his children in Anderson. He is possessed of enough property to render him an income sufficient to maintain him.

Hilligoss also alleges in his complaint that the minister and Mrs. Hilligoss conspired to have him declared insane after he learned their secret.

SURPRISE AFFAIR.

John Peebles "Persuaded" By Pistol to Marry.

New York, June 10.—They do things so queerly in this big city. Miss Ella Kieseau is now the wife of John Peebles. It was a surprise affair, in which the bride's two brothers and a big pistol played parts even more prominent than that of the bride and the groom.

Young Peebles and Miss Kieseau have known each other several years. Mr. Peebles says that he never promised to marry her. He had an appointment on Sunday afternoon with the young woman and spent more than an hour with her. Onobserved by him, the two borthers of the girl, William Kieseau, a policeman, and Charles Kieseau, were keeping watch. Later they pursued and captured Peebles.

The policeman drew his revolver and, pointing it at the young man's head, told him he would shoot if Peebles refused to go with him and marry Miss Ella Kieseau. He consented and was taken by the brothers to Wortham on a car. There the party was joined by the bride-elect, who, it is said, was not aware of the desperate plan of her brothers.

After the ceremony Peebles went home and the brothers took possession of the bride.

"It is true my brother threatened to blow his head off," said Charles Kieseau.

"We felt perfectly justified and would have been willing to die for it. We gave Peebles every chance in the world to marry our sister and when he didn't take advantage of it, we took things in our own hands, regardless of the consequences."

TENNESSEE GIRL

Seeks a Lover By the Berry Route.

Chicago, June 10.—It is entirely within the possibilities that Miss Mollie Gaylord, a Tennessee girl, will have a Chicago fireman for her husband, Chief Musham thinks. At any rate, she is likely to correspond with some of Chicago's fire laddies.

One day while packing big, luscious strawberries into a box for shipment from a farm at Sharon, Tenn., she wrote the following not on the box in pencil:

Sharon, Tenn., June 1.—Unknown friend: Should any fine young man receive this box of berries and desire a nice correspondence with a nice young girl let him write to Mollie Gaylord, Sharon, Tenn.

I will give you a description of myself. I have black hair, brown eyes, light complexion, weigh 128 pounds and an 19 years old. Please give full description of these berries when you write. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

MOLLIE GAYLORD.

"That," Fire Marshal Husham said, "is just the size and description of a girl that would suit some of the youngsters on my force, and I wish one of them had her for his wife. I will agree to be present at their wedding."

The box of berries, with the usual hollow bottom, was shipped North and in the court of trade, with nineteen other boxes, was bought by Chief Musham. Miss Ellen Musham, his daughter, declared they would not "keep" over Sunday and she "hulled" them and "put" them up." She turned the box over to the chief with a suggestion that some of his men might answer the note. "I'll have Secretary Gamble answer it, anyway," the chief said.

CAN NOW BE MARRIED.

Fifteen-Year-Old Girl Will Get License.

Judge Middlecoff, yesterday afternoon, issued an order placing Louise Andrigo, an Italian girl, under the guardianship of her aunt, Mrs. Maria Serafico. The girl, who is but 15 years of age, wishes to be married, but as she is under the legal age and her surviving parent is in the West, too far to be reached to obtain his consent, it was necessary to have a guardian appointed.

Miss Andrigo appeared at the clerk of court's office some weeks ago and desired a marriage license, but when her age was learned, it was refused.

Mrs. Serafico, the guardian, will give her consent to the marriage and the girl will be married in a few days to a young Italian workman with whom she fell in love not long ago.

Since her first failure to get the marriage license Louise has made a number of trips to the courthouse to appeal to the county officials for aid and advice as to how she could obtain legal permission.

Dumb playing lost yesterday's game for Crookston. The Woodpeckers had but one hit less than the White Sox and but one error as compared with five on the part of the home team, but they lost out by stupid base-running and dead work in the field. It was a slow game neither the spectators nor the players appearing to get livened up, in spite of the beautiful weather.

Noidin was in the box for Duluth and did good work, striking out twelve men and allowing but eight hits. Miller was serving up the slants for the Woodpeckers and he proved an easy mark. The White Sox hit him when hits meant runs, and knocked out enough safe ones in the first four innings to win the game.

They started after him in the first inning. Corrigan, Quillan and Randall all connected for singles and the bases were full. Then Mr. Miller allowed one of his curves to catch Zink in the short ribs and Corrigan was forced home. "Jimmie" Hughes was too anxious to get a hit and struck out. Lagger drove a little one at the pitcher and Quillan was out at the plate. Novacek tried to catch the batter at first, but the ball hit Lagger on the back and Randall sprinted home. Ball went out on a grounder to short stop.

There were barrels of joy for the fans in the third. Quillan waited while Miller threw four bad ones past him and then trotted down to first. He walked on to second when Novacek let one of Miller's shoots go past him, and continued his tree trip to third when the Crookston catcher repeated his stunt. Meanwhile Newt Randall had come up to bat and nearly tore the cover off the ball with a hit between the first and second bags which Schils could not reach. "Newt" got his engines started for the second cushion and was safe a mile by the time Novacek popped the sphere in that direction. Big Bill Zink and his telegraph pole went out on a fly to Breyette, and then "Jimmie" Hughes drove out a nice safe one scoring Randall. Lagger lammed the ball to left field and walked back to the bench. Then Capt. Aartle Ball lammed the leather for two sacks and Hughes hiked home. Owens went out to Hoffmeister.

In the fourth one more came, Corrigan corralled his second hit, a pretty double, and after Quillan had lifted the leather skyward and let it fall into the mitts of Mr. Carlisle in the central garden. "Newt" Randall furnished work for the scorekeeper by lamming the round thing for a single and scoring Corrigan.

After that the stuff was off. Only one little scratch hit could the White Sox get in the next four innings, but the game was won. Four safe hits, one of them a double, resulted in but one run for the Woodpeckers in the fourth. Carlisle started off with the double and Novacek brought him home with a single. Then the elongated catcher got so much that he could commit petty larceny on the second bag and tried it. "Out" said Hogan after Ball had caught a beautiful throw from Hughes when "Novy" was still steaming it up a dozen yards from the base.

Hoffmeister bammed three times at the wide, wide world and thin Hoffman flogged the thing hard enough to get to first. Burton repeated the trick, but stopped just a little too far off first and that strong right arm of James Hughes sent the sphere down to ink before he could tag the cushion.

"Buck" didn't allow them another look in until the eighth, when the White Sox showed a tendency to take another skyward flight like the one of the previous day. One run was scored without a hit, but Buck took a brace and called a halt.

In the ninth, with two men out, the Woodpeckers got a chance to tie the score. Big Bill fumbled one on first and Breyette and Schils got hits. Then Noidin forced in a run by issuing transportation to Carlisle. But he showed that he was only toying with the Woodpeckers when Novacek came to bat. Three of those mysterious benders got him the fatal foozle and it was all over.

The error column of the White Sox looks bad, but the players were going after everything in sight. Corrigan's two muffs both came after long runs when he was unable to recover himself in time to properly handle the ball.

TWENTY-EIGHT HITS.

Hammerfest at Superior, and Fargo Is Winner.

Perry Werden's band of braves from the wilds of North Dakota took the scalps of the Bugville bunch of swamp-jumpers yesterday to the tune of 9 to 8, and incidentally did things to the star member of the twirling staff that put him out of business.

Simmons was unmercifully hammered by the visitors in the first five innings, nine runs being scored off his delivery. Then "Demon" Shaw took a hand in the game, and he shut out King Perry's band for the next four innings.

In the fourth inning Werden became incensed over a decision by Umpire Smith, and with a whoop of rage the big captain started out on the field to tell the umpire his business. He was backed up by little Jimmy Foulkes, but Smith was equal to the two of them, and after lining them both and putting them out of the game, called one of Superior's "finest" and had the two voluble players escorted from the grounds. Hallock and Lynch took their places.

Hallock held the longshoremen safe for three innings, when they commenced to land on him and all but batted out a victory with two runs in the eighth and one in the ninth.

Twenty-eight safe singles tell the tale of the slaughter which put two pitchers to the bad, and all but ended the career of another.

Grounds Are Wet.

Winnipeg, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern league game between Winnipeg and Grand Forks, scheduled for yesterday afternoon, was postponed on account of wet grounds.

Off the Bat.

The Woodpeckers were easy.

* * *

Randall had three safe ones out of four times up.

* * *

Corrigan had a single and a double out of four times up.

* * *

Hughes' throwing to bases was the prettiest seen on the grounds this year. He had five assists.

* * *

"Buck" Noldin struck out twelve men. When Buck gets his curves over the plate they look like peas to the batters.

* * *

Breyette, the Crookston shortstop, is one of the prettiest fielders in the league. He handles himself like a ball player and keeps his mouth shut, a rare virtue with some of the Northern league players.

* * *

Hoffmeister, the "heavy-hitting Dutchman," joined the Woodpeckers yesterday, and should help pull the team out of last place.

* * *

Today is ladies' day at the ball grounds, and the members of the gentler sex will be admitted free to the grounds and the grand stand. Koukalik will pitch for Duluth.

* * *

This is an open date with the Northern league teams, and Duluth and Crookston will play only an exhibition game as there are no postponed games to be pulled off as yet.

* * *

"Rusty" Owens was tried out on second base yesterday and made a very fair showing. He is an all around ball player and is in the game all of the time.

* * *

Manager Van Praagh has substituted 4 o'clock in place of 3:30 as the hour at which the games will be called on week days. The experiment proved a popular one yesterday.

WISCONSIN BERRIES

Next Week Will See Finest of All In Market.

Kansas Floods Cause Big Jump In Price of Potatoes.

Next week will probably see the first shipments of Wisconsin berries on the local market.

The Wisconsin berries are known as the local crop, as there are practically no berry patches north of Eau Claire and Chippewa Falls. These two cities are the two big centers of the berry-growing district, and nearly all of the Wisconsin berries received in Duluth are from these two cities.

Reports received by the local commission men during the past week indicate that the crop is ripening fast, and will probably be ready for shipment within a few days.

It is impossible to tell as yet the extent of the crop, but everything points to a large yield. In the South some of the crops have been enormous, and in many places the farmers have been unable to pick and ship the berries fast enough to keep them from rotting. Whether the Wisconsin crop will be as large as the Southern crops remains to be seen, but there is little doubt that the vines will have a heavy yield this year.

There is not likely to be much change in the price of the fruit until next week. If the Wisconsin yield is as heavy as the dealers expect, there is likely to be a drop in the prices, but otherwise they will remain about the same from now until the end of the season. The present shipments are coming from Illinois and Iowa.

The Hood River berries from Washington appeared in the market today. One of the Michigan street firms had a carload of them. They are selling at a reasonable price this year, less than that demanded as a rule for the first shipments. The low prices of other berries would naturally force them to. The Hood River berry, in the opinion of many people, does not possess the nice flavor the Wisconsin berry has, but it is a remarkably luscious one, and is always sounder and a better berry to keep than the Eastern ones.

* * *

The Kansas floods have sent the price of new potatoes soaring skyward again just as they promised to come within reach of the average purse. The river beds of Kansas and Missouri were the spots where the new potatoes were ripening first, and the floods reported through that district have not only ruined a large part of the crops, but have prevented the farmers from digging them and getting them to market. The result has been that the price of new potatoes has jumped about 30 cents per bushel during the past week, and they are now selling at about $1.70. Until the floods abate there is not likely to be any material change in the price.

The dealers report a marked betterment in business conditions during the week. The fine weather, and the probability of the early settlement of the lake strike, have combined to give a better tone to the trade in general, and the dealers are looking forward to a good summer's business.

Court In Superior.

The June term of United States court will begin in Superior, next Tuesday, the sessions being held in the rooms of the board of county supervisors, in the courthouse.

One of the most important cases to come up for trial will be that of Charles Dennis and Eddie Fay, who are charged with the Superior postoffice robbery late last fall.

Pat Burns, who was arrested in St. Paul some time ago, suspected of being implicated with Dennis and Fay in the robbery, has been released by the authorities at Waukesha. It is said that no evidence could be produced strong enough to convict him.

POOR MISSIONARY

Is One of Heirs to Cecil Rhodes' Estate.

Asheville, N. C., June 10.—Mrs. Mary Virginia Rhodes Baker, an heiress of Cecil Rhodes, the diamond king, whose whereabouts have been a mystery for several years, has turned up here. She has been advertised for far and wide. Mrs. Baker has been engaged in missionary work in the mountains and has barely eked out a living. It was by the merest chance that she discovered she was heir to Rhodes' estate. She was in conversation with some friends, one of whom recalled having seen the "want ad" relative to Rhodes. Mrs. Baker is 45. At 14 she married and moved to Georgia. Her husband lived only a few years and at 18 she was married to her second husband, a minister. He was killed in an accident a year ago. She has communicated with Consul General Evans relative to the fortune left her.

"GUM SHOE" FOURTH

In Chicago Seems Destined to Be Failure.

Chicago, June 10.—The "gum shoe" Fourth of July seems destined to failure. The noiseless, well-regulated, disciplined Fourth is now but an iridescent dream.

The distribution of $10,000 worth of illuminated declarations of independence has been abandoned. There will be no free distribution of firecrackrs, torpdoes and harmless pyrotechnics. It is likely that the whole scheme will be abandoned by the Chicago Amusement association.

It is largely a matter of money. It is estimated $50,000 would pay the bill. Thus far nearly $5000 has been subscribed and of that sum nearly $1500 has been expended for office help and for the work of promulgating the new idea.

Thirty stenographers and secretaries who have been busy with the affairs of the office for two weeks have been dismissed.

HAIRY SECT

Invades City of Chicago on a Crusade.

Chicago, June 10.—The "flying rollers" of Michigan, a new sect which professes to be close imitators of Jesus, the Nazarene, have invaded Chicago and propose to convert the city.

"It is the ingetting of the children of Israel," said Charles Dissen, who led the party, "We are chosen of the Lord and I am the twentieth century disciple of Jesus."

The four men of the party wore their hair long, and their beards reach to their belts.

"The Nazaritic law forbade the clipping of the hair or the trimming of beards," said Mr. Dissen. "Jesus observed that law and so do we. We live as Jesus lived. In those days the faithful brought their wealth and threw it at the feet of Jesus. That's the way we do. What I have belongs to the cause, and what Sister Caper has is mine and mine is hers."

"Is it against the rules of your belief to bathe?" was asked.

"That is a matter of personal privilege," said Mr. Dissen. "We can bathe if we wish."

NINETY-NINE YEARS.

Murderer of Montana Deputy Sheriff Sentenced.

Missoula, Mont., June 10.—Ninety-nine years in the penitentiary is the verdict of the jury which tried Herman Parsons for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Truda. Parsons raised a disturbance at a dance and was ejected by the deputy. He returned with a gun, later, and shot the officer dead. He also wounded Ole Erickson, a member of a posse, before being captured.

ANARCHIST DIETZ

Judge Parish's Conclusive Statement In the Wisconsin Case.

Dietz Without Particle of Title to the Property Claimed.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., June 10.—Sympathizers with and supporters of John F. Dietz, who is defying the law and courts, can extract no grain of comfort from Judge Parish's address in the case of the Chippewa Lumber and Boom company. Judge Parish said:

The evidence in this case shows title to the dam and the right to operate the same, through conveyances from the government of the United States and through legislative enactments, clear down to the present time and to the plaintiff, and as against the defendant, John F. Deitz, and any person who has conveyed to him or to any other person.

The plaintiff has as much right to operate the dam and to control it, as far as appears from the evidence in this action, as a man has the right to use his horse or his cow, or any person all property that he has or to occupy his home, where he has the title, undisputed.

The defendant has no defense, as far as this court is concerned at this time; he has absolutely refused to appear in court or make any demand upon this court for any relief under any pretended claim which he has, or may pretend to have, to the dam in question. No matter now good a defense a man has, he cannot take a gun and defy the officers of the law and assume to act as his own judge.

It is enough to say in this action, so far as the evidence is concerned, that it has all been sworn to by the records produced here in court of the county of Sawyer.

It has been said that there is great sympathy here for Mr. Deitz in this community. I cannot believe that, for Sawyer county has had the reputation of being peopled by honest, intelligent citizens, and no honest and intelligent citizen, who knows the facts in this case, would for a moment excuse any man, no matter how great he might be, for violating the law and defying the law as this defendant has apparently violated it.

As I say, the defendant may have some defense. He keeps beyond the reach of the courts; he keeps his hand upon his rifle, and defies every man in this community and every man in the state. He says: "I have possession of this, no matter how I have obtained it, and I am going to enforce that possession, and if any person attempts to in any manner interfere with me in my (apparently unlawful) possession, I will kill him." Now, any man who makes statements of that kind (and that is proven here by the witnesses), simply defies the law, and he is no more entitled to respect than any anarchist who defies government, defies the law and defies order, for society is entirely dependent upon people submitting to the law. If a man breaks the law, it is his duty to appear in court, to submit to arrest and trial, and if his guilt is not established, he should be acquitted.

When this county, and all other counties, were created, and in those that may hereafter be created by the legislature, there is a pledge on the part of the community, of the citizens within the limits of that county, that they will see that the law is enforced; that they will not join in with any law breaker and prevent the bringing to justice of any such person. This is a pledge on the part of the community to the legislature which creates the county, and the power that creates or makes may unmake, and I feel that it is my duty here to say that I am not prepared to believe, and I hope it is not believed outside, that the county of Sawyer threwe its influence in the interests of people who defy the law; in the interest of anarchists, and I hope you will not let it go forth and be heralded abroad that in Sawyer county justice will not be had.

By the records of this case, the defendant, John F. Deitz, was summoned to appear in this court. He does not appear. By the records of thise case, he was duly served with an order of the court ordering him not to molest nor in any manner interfere with the plaintiffs in the enjoyment of their rights of running the river and using the dam for flooding logs down the stream.

The fact that the plaintiff in this action is a corporation is no excuse for the defendant, for a corporation like this is a mere association of individuals for the purpose of carrying on some lawful business or employment, and no man would excuse the defendant in this case if he knew the facts, no more than he could excuse any law breaker who takes possession of his neighbor's property and threatens, if there is an attempt made to dislodge him, to kill the officers of the law who were sworn and whose duty it was to enforce the law at all hazards, and I will say here, that if there is not enough strength in the officers of the law and in the people of Sawyer county, the state of Wisconsin is bound to lend its aid to put down lawlessness, some where it will, and if there is not power enough in the state, the government of the United States, upon being legally called upon for aid, will grant it.

No man can, more than perhaps merely temporarily, defy the law, for no man is so low that he is beneath the law, and no man is so high that he is above the law. The law reaches all alike.

I have made these remarks here publicly, as I have been informed there is a good deal of loose talk, and many things published, based on false statements, perhaps, and upon hasty conclusions.

The judgment is granted and the defendant is perpetually enjoined from in any manner interfering with the plaintiffs or their assignees in operating the dam, which the evidence shows they own, and which the law says they may control.

LODGE'S SEAT IS IN DANGER

Canadian Reciprocity Fight In Boston Is Getting Warm.

Boston, June 10.—Business men of New England are making a determined fight for a reciprocal trade arrangement with Canada, and they believe they are going to win, despite the antagonism of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and the Republican machine politicians, who have been vigorously opposing them since the movement assumed active form after the election to the chairmanship of the Boston chamber of commerce last winter of Henry M. Whitney, one of the best known steamship men in New England.

Not only will they win, the business men think, but they feel they have succeeded in so arousing public sentiment that Senator Lodge will have to withdraw his opposition or sacrifice his chances of getting another term in the senate and cause a loss of Republican strength in New England that may never be regained.

That there is a demand for Canadian reciprocity that the Republican machine cannot afford to ignore is shown by the approval the efforts of Mr. Whitney and the chamber of commerce are meeting. A petition was started a few weeks ago asking the chamber of commerce to call a public meeting at which those in favor of reciprocity could express their views, and within a remarkably short time the petition had 35,000 names, most of them of leading business men of Boston and a few cities and towns just outside of Boston.

CUP COMES BACK.

British Yacht Club Cannot Defend Cape May Trophy.

London, June 10.—The Cape May cup returns to its original home on board the American liner, St. Louis, sailing from Southampton tomorrow. The royal yacht squadron obtained the trophy from King Edward, and it is now consigned to the New York Yacht club.

The royal yacht squadron was obliged to decline the challenge for the Cape May cup of Commodore Morton F. Plant, of the Larchmont Yacht club, with his schooner-yacht Ingemar, because King Edward's cutter Britannia, which held the cup, is too antiquated to defend it. It was, therefore, decided to return the trophy to the New York Yacht club. The conditions of the cup require that it must be defended by the latest winner.

FREIGHT HANDLERS

From Atlantic to Pacific May Be Called Out.

New York, June 10.—Lawrence Curran, leader of the striking freight handlers, after a protracted conference with prominent labor men here, has issued a statement that he will call out the freight handlers from New York to San Francisco unless the strike here is settled within the next three days.

Curran estimated that more than 50,000 would be affected if the new strike is ordered. "I will give the railroad and steamship companies now fighting the freight handlers and firemen three days," he said, "to grant the demands of both organizations or accept arbitration.

"If after that time our demands are not granted I will call out every freight handler between here and San Francisco."

WORLD'S FAIR TO PAY UP.

Francis Tells Shaw Government Need Not Foreclose.

St. Louis, June 10.—In answer to Secretary Shaw's assertion that he feared he might have to act as receiver for the exposition, President Francis stated that the money due the government on the World's fair loan of $4,000,000 will be paid on schedule time. The law provides that 40 per cent of the gate receipts between June 1 and 15 shall be paid to the government, and President Francis is confident that all the installments will be met readily.

REDUCTION LARGE

Logging Figures Indicate Large Decrease In Winter's Cut.

Will Strengthen Market and Prolong Life of Timber.

During the early part of last fall, before the lumbermen had begun operations to any great extent in the pine woods, they anonunced that they would probably reduce their log cut for the winter of 1903-4 by from 20 to 30 per cent.

The recent report made public from the surveyor general of logs of the various districts shows that there was a cut of 674,981,820 feet in the second district of Minnesota, or a reduction of a little moret han 200,000,000 feet from the previous winter's cut, making a reduced cut of almost 23 per cent. The figures of this district are considered a fair sample of the log cut in the other districes.

This reduction in the cut, it should be remeinbered, was not made through any concerted action by the lumbermen, and in a season that was particularly favorable to them for a large output by reason of its length.

When the logging season opened last fall, both in the South and the West surplus stocks of lumber were said to be threatening the stability of the market. In nearly every white pine locality the lumbermen began immediately to take measures to hold their cut down, having come to the conclusion that it was necessary to keep the lumber market from going to pieces.

This same cautioness, it is claimed, is apparent in the summer logging work this season, and very little work is being acomplished along that line.

There has not been quite so much of a demand for lumber for the past six months, according to the reports of the manufacturers, as during corresponding periods in the preceding two or three years, and the result has been a slight falling off in the prices of many items in stock. Low grade lumber has been in better demand in the market, and the scarcity of stock has kept its prices up fairly well. Prices of higher grade lumber have declined materially, but it is claimed the declination in prices would have been much more had it not been for the policy of retrenchment in the woods.

There is another effect from the reduced timber cut, besides the prospect of a better lumber market, and that is the prolongation of timber life in this state.

Some of the lumbermen claim that the end of the timber cut in Minnesota is not so near as most people seem to think, and that the policy of retrenching in their outputs from now on will serve to put off the end of northern logging for at least a few years.

The demand in the local market for men for summer logging is the lightest it has been for years, particularly in Northern Wisconsin, where the sandy soil has permited operatations in the nineries to go on almost uninterruptedly the year around. Practically no orders have been received in the month past, where in former years men have been in demand for summer logging camps right along.

SHOULD ALSO WATCH OUT

Automobile Owner Thinks People Should Show Some Caution, Too.

"I notice that the papers have been saying something about fast automobile driving within the city limits," said a local owner of one of the motor cars, last evening.

"Now while I believe it is all right to caution the automobilists against too fast driving, for the safety of the public, I think that a word should be said about the heedlessness of people who are daily crossing the streets in our city, without paying any attention to approaching vehicles, whether a street car, a team or an automobile.

"Of course pedestrians have certain rights in street crossing which owners of vehicles are bound to respect, but I believe that there are more heedless people in the city of Duluth than in any other city in the country.

"Coming down Superior street almost any day the trip is enough to try the nerves of an experienced chaffeur because of the people he must dodge at a moment's notice in the street, when they are paying absolutely no attention to their own safety."

WYOMING STIRRED

Over the Recent Murder of a Sheepman.

Butte, Mont., June 10.—Mrs. Lucy L. Moore, stepmother of Lincoln Morrison, the young sheepman who was shot from ambush on the night of May 28, on Alkali gulch, in the Big Horn country, Wyo., a short distance south of the Montana line, offers a reward of $2500 for the assassin. One thousand dollars will be paid for a chain of evidence that will disclose the identity of the assassin, and $500 for corroborative evidence sworn to and used on behalf of the state in the trial of the guilty one.

In addition to these rewards, the Luther C. Morrison estate will pay $1000 for the dead body of the assassin, and the Wool Growers' association of Central Wyoming will also pay $1000 for the corpse.

It is said that several famous manhunters will take the field at once and, armed with evidence that will be given them by persons who have already run down some startling clews, hope to run the midnight raider to earth.

Young Morrison is dying at the home of Mrs. Moore, in Casper.

The shooting of Morrison occurred near the scene of the murder of Ben Minnick, who was shot down while in camp on Thunder mountain, a year ago last February. Central Wyoming is greatly stirred up over the foul crime, and if the assassin is caught he will be summarily dealt with.

MINNESOTA CONCERNS

Placed on the Tax Rolls at Marquette.

Marquette, Mich., June 10.—Several companies controlled by J. J. Hill and the Great Northern road, which have their head offices here, but transact all their business in Minnesota, have been placed on the tax roll for something in excess of $1,000,000. The concerns are the Lake Superior company, Swan River Logging company, West Missabe Land company, Wright Land company, Wells Land company, Davis Land company and Northwestern Employes' Investment company, the majority of which grew out of the purchase of the Wright, Wells, Stone and Davis interests on the Western Mesaba some years ago by the Great Northern.

Except a little land near Hibbing, the companies own nearly all of the iron formation in one township. They made but meager returns to the assessor, but from all accounts it is not believed their assessment has been placed too high.

MERRITT OF DULUTH

Buys Control of a Black Hills Company.

Deadwood, S. D., June 10.—J. B. Safford, president of the Empire State Mining company, has sold the control of the company to E. T. Merritt, of Duluth. The company has operated the Golden Slipper mine, four miles east of Hill City. A five-stamp mill hase been kept in operation for some time and the ore is found to be rich. Extensive work will be carried on under the new management. It is believed to be a mine equal to the Holy Terror, at Keystone, it being on the same belt and about five miles north.

Two veins of free milling ore have bene encountered in the Mile High shaft at a depth of 100 feet. The veins are two and nine feet in width. A hoisting plant is to be installed and extensive work carried on.

ANTI-HEARST FORCES WIN

Original Hearst Man Goes Down In St. Cloud Election.

St. Paul, June 10.—The Hearst forces at St. Cloud were routed last night by the "anti-" forces, and James R. Bennett, Jr., and Mayor J. E. C. Robinson, the leaders in the campaign for the New York newspaper man, went down with the others.

The anti-Hearst men claim all but five of the 18 delegates and declare that the returns from the country will give them absolute control of the convention.

The "anti" forces carried every precinct in the city with the exception of the Second precinct of the Third ward, and the second precinct of the Fourth ward. James R. Bennett, Jr., is the original Hearst man in this state.

VETERAN HANGED.

Many Messages Asked Commutation of Sentence.

Paragould, Ark., June 10.—Mart V. Vowel, aged 61 years, a white man and confederate veteran, was hanged here yesterday for the murder of W. F. Lovejoy. The city was filled with people from adjoining towns and counties. On August 19, 1903, Vowel shot and killed Lovejoy at Rector, Clay county. A change of venue was taken and he was convicted by the Greene county court and sentenced to hang. The governor refused to interfere and since that time numerous delegations have waited upon the governor, but found him obdurate.

Vowel was formerly a Mason and an Odd Fellow in good standing. It is said that 462 messages were received in the past day or two from Confederate camps requesting Governor Davis to commute the sentence.

Atlantic, Iowa, June 10.—Editor Carleton, of a Cumberland newspaper, and Miss Mary Connelly were driving near Cumberland when several thugs waylaid them and first abused them with vile epithets and then threw beer bottles and other missiles at them. Miss Connelly was struck in the face with such violence that one of the bottles broke and the jagged edge cut out her right eye and is believed to have destroyed the other. Carleton escaped without serious injury. The thugs have disappeared.

TELLS OF RACE

Capt. Mahoney Returns From the Contest at Madison.

Duluth Not Up to the 'Varsity Crews In Form.

"All the boys were well pleased with their treatment at Madison, and while they very much regret the loss of the race, they think with a great deal of comfort of the excellent treatment accorded them at the hands of the university during their visit there."

Such was the statement of Capt. J. D. Mahoney, of the Duluth Boat club, this morning after his return from Madison. He says the men had everything they asked for excepting victory.

"Madison was very kind and indulgent in every way. They gave us our option on nearly everything—in fact, everything. Anything that came up for a choice was let go our way, and there was not a detail on which we could justly lay the slightest claim of undue advantage.

"Capt. O'Dea had his men trained down to a very fine point indeed and they certainly showed up in fine form. We marked off the course and had everything fixed so that there could be no fouling of our boat, with plenty of room between our men and their opponents. There were four crews in the race, as Madison had her 'varsity, second 'varsity and freshmen crews in.

"The Madison men were in the best of condition as they have a good gymnasium with rowing machines and there is always an opportunity for good practice in the evenings, as the water gets smoothed off so you can row in good style. Yesterday the water was rough all day, but toward evening it calmed down and all conditions for the race iself were as nice as could be wished.

"Up to half way through the two-mile course it looked very much as if we had them, but from that on they showed more ability than the Duluth boys. We were not badly beaten, though, for it was a fine race and quite close. The record is 10:35 and the race was made in 10:28, the winner only getting in about ten seconds ahead of Duluth's eight. Our men finished very cool, in fact less winded than I thought they would, or would have liked. I am afraid we did not get our stroke up enough, as it might have helped us materially.

"But we were nicely cheered by Madison a couple of times when we had finished. O'Dea had his men in such good training that he could get them to row 20 or 26 or any other number of strokes that he liked by merely ordering it so. That is true of the 'Varsity and second 'Varsity eights, but he has some trouble with the freshmen, who are harder to trim down to the right gait. But the freshmen can pretty nearly hold the 'Varsity for two miles. Four miles is the ordinary length of race in such regattas.

"We were nicely boated, to be sure, and I doubt if any eight was ever better equipped in that respect in a shell race. But we had difficulty in practice because the weather conditions here prevented us getting out at times when we might have gotten the benefit of practice. But we were royally treated at Madison and none of the boys has anything but praise to give Madison for her kind treatment of us while we were there."

Hamilton Peyton, one of the eight, came back with Captain Mahoney. The rest of the men stayed until to day to pack the shell in the baggage car. They will leave Madison at 12:40 this afternoon via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and will land here tomorrow morning from St. Paul.

Andrew O'Dea, coach of the Madison crew, was overheard to say that he could get the Duluth eight to as fast a pace as the Madison eight in a week if he had the opportunity, and do it without changing the method of rowing.

The Madison crew of oarsmen which won the shell race from Duluth will compete on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 28, with eights from Cornell, Columbia, University of Pennsylvania and Georgetown, Md.

HUNDREDS ARE DISAPPOINTED

Guardsmen Change Decision to Drill at Ninth Avenue East.

Several hundred people assembled at Ninth avenue east and Superior street last evening to see the infantry and naval reserves do their maneuvers and waited patiently without seeing anything in the line of military come near.

The announcement in The Herald yesterday was made on the strength of a statement of Captain Little, which was made Wednesday night to Company A. This was to the effect that there would be drilling at the point named.

It has been the custom of the militia to do the drilling outdoors at the point named, but last night Major Resche, believing the darkness would set in too soon to give the men a fair practice, took them downtown so they could get the benefit of artificial light. He said today that if he had had any idea that the public was waiting at Ninth avenue east and Superior street he would have paraded down there.

Championship for men: A. W. Hartman vs. Frank Leach, E. P. Alexander vs. W. E. Richardson, W. B. Silvey vs. D. B. McLennan, W. W. Walker vs. W. M. Prindle, E. P. Towne vs. Werner Pressentin.

NOT SERVANTS.

Jefferson Guards Employed To Protect Property.

St. Louis, June 10.—Because of a misunderstanding as to the duties of the Jefferson Guards, stationed at the house of the board of lady managers, it has been found necessary to issue a special order defining the status of the guards. The members of the board assumed that the guards were general utility men and the order just issued declares that the guards shall not be asked to run errands, etc., but shall be considered as guards for the maintenance of order and protection of property.

A large number of the delegates to the national convention of the Travelers' Protective association, which has been meeting at Springfield, reached the fair today.

DECISIONS AFFIRMED

By Supreme Court In St. Louis and Lake County Cases.

St. Paul, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seven opinions were handed down by the supreme court today, and the majority of them were rather unimportant in character. In the case of Andrew Hendricks, respondent, vs Lesure Lumber company, appellant, from the St. Louis county courts, the court affirmed the order of the lower court. It was an action to recover damages for an injury received by the respondent while working in a sawmill as a tail sawyer. The court says the evidence tended to show that the head sawyer, whose duty it was to regulate the distribution of lumber as it passed from the saw, was not a fellow-servant of the respondent.

That the appellant was negligent in not furnishing, for the respondent's use, suitable and safe appliances for the reversing of the rollers which propelled the lumber.

That the respondent was not guilty of contributory negligence, and did not assume the risk in attempting to manipulate the reversing rod in a certain manner, there being no handle at the proper place.

In the case of John Olson, appellant, vs. M. C. Aubolee, respondent, an action for libel from Lake county, the order of the lower court was affirmed, because the evidence was considered sufficient to warrant the verdict of the jury. Olson was auditor for the county, and was candidate for re-election, and the alleged libel is said to have grown out of a campaign document issued by Aubolee, containing statements which Olson claimed reflected on his character. The suit was for $8000 damages.

WHERE KISSING IS AN ACCOMPLISHMENT.

The Japanese do not know how to kiss. If a Japanes girl knows how to kiss, it shows the work of a foreign instructor. She does it as an accomplishment, not as an enjoyment. Not so with the American girl. She does things because she enjoys them. When she eats pillsbury's vitos, she does it because she enjoys it, and because it is healthful.

NO INDICTMENT YET RETURNED

New York, June 10.—In the Patterson case it was said today that, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, another witness whem the police consider of great importance in making a thorough investigation of the case has mysteriously disappeared. The man is Harry Frank, a bartender, in the saloon where Young and Mrs. Patterson are said to have spent a great part of the night before Young was shot. Frank was summoned to appear before the grand jury to repeat any conversation between Young and Mrs. Patterson, which he may have overheard while in the saloon, but he did not appear and the officers were unable to find him. The examination of all available witnesses was completed by the grand jury during the day.

The jury reported this afternoon, but did not return an indictment against Mrs. Patterson. It was reported that if the case is to be reconsidered by the grand jury, it will not be taken up until some time next week.

A dramatic scene occurred after the coroner's hearing, while Mrs. Patterson was being led back to the Tombs. Mrs. William Luce, sister of the dead bookmaker, confronted Mrs. Patterson and cried out:

"You fiend. You did it."

Mrs. Luce tried to reach Mrs. Patterson but was prevented by an officer and was led away.

KNOX MAKES STATEMENT

Harrisburg, Pa., June 10.—Governor Pennypacker today appointed Philander C. Knox successor to the late United States Senator Quay.

Philadelphia, June 10.—United States Attorney General Knox, who was appointed by Governor Pennypacker to succeed the late M. S. Quay in the United States senate, in an interview today said:

"My retirement from the cabinet will in no way affect the policy of the administration as pursued by President Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt stands for certain principles. Upon my resignation Mr. Roosevelt will experience no difficulty in selecting a man who will continue to represent those principles and carry out the national policy as set down by him.

"I cannot conceive how my retirement as attorney general will affect the presidential campaign. I have no fear that the action of the leaders of the Republican party of Pennsylvania in deciding to present my name for the senatorship will be made a campaign issue. One individual cannot injure the chances of President Roosevelt.

"I did not give the slightest thought to the senatorship until I was asked if I would agree to accept it if it were tendered to me. I replied that, if my name was viewed with favor, I would consider it a high honor to succeed Senator Quay."

Asked if he would immediately resign his cabinet position, Mr. Knox said:

"I have no reason to as yet. My actions will be guided by after developments."

IT BEARS FRUIT

Agitation For Improved Mail Service on Omaha Succeeds.

Several Towns Nearby to Be Served From Chicago Train.

The agitation started by The Herald a short time ago in regard to mail for points on the Omaha road, between Duluth and Spooner, Wis., has practically brought about the desired results after all, in spite of the fact that Norman Perkins, superintendent of the railway mail service in this division, refused the request asking that the mail car and clerk running afternoons between Ashland and Spooner be transferred to the Duluth-Spooner run, and put on the Twilight Limited, which leaves Duluth at 4 p. m. daily.

Chief Clerk Curtis of St. Paul was in the city yesterday and said that Mr. Perkins has made arrangements to supply the larger towns between this point and Spooner with mail from the 5:30 Omaha-Chicago train. This will bring the mail into the towns in question an hour and a half later than would be the case if it were carried on the Twilight Limited, but the result is practically the same. On the whole this arrangement will probably give more satisfaction than the transfer of the mail car asked for, because all the mail of the day to the towns in question will be ready for the 5:30 train, while if it left Duluth at 4 o'clock much of the mail would not be ready so early in the afternoon, and would have to remain in the local office until the following day. Another advantage is that the Ashland service will not be interfered with in any particular.

The towns which will now be supplied from this afternoon Omaha train are Itasca, South Range, Hawthorne, Solon Springs, Gordon and Minong. There are a few smaller towns which will be given no service from the train as yet, but the postoffice officials, in keeping close tab on the mail addressed to these towns for several days past, have reached the conclusion that they are not of great enough importance at this time to warrant giving them service from the train. They receive one mail a day from the morning train, which is regarded as sufficient for a while yet. But the towns named above are larger, with quite a big mail, particularly in the summer time, when hundreds of people from Duluth and Superior are camping in their vicinity. A business man may now remain at his summer cottage at one of these places and receive a letter from Duluth every evening telling about the events of the day.

While the Chicago-Omaha train stops at some of the towns regularly, it will be necessary to establish mail cranes at the others, so that a mail pouch may be dropped without slackening the speed of the train.

THE STATE OF TRADE

Shown By Reports to the International Mercantile Agency.

New York, June 10.—Reports made to the International Mercantile agency from special correspondents at trade centers throughout the country indicate some improvement in general business during the last week. This has been most noteworthy in the South and Southeast, where excellent sales have brought the volume of better distribution. Hats and caps are active, but boots and shoes in certain sections have not done as well as usual.

Jobbers in many sections report improved business, although country merchants in some instances have been prevented from visiting trade centers owing to increased business at home, since farmers have finished planting.

Retail trade is strong, and if fall business turns out as well as advices now indicate the total for the year to Sept. 1, will average fully as much as that reported during the corresponding period of 1903. Labor difficulties on the great lakes appear to be nearing solution, with the prospect that most of the congestion in traffic will be relieved within a fortnight or so. At Milwaukee the strike has already been partially broken, and negotiations at other points are progressing satisfactorily. The tie-up has been very disastrous, and losses sustained aggregate a very much larger sum than was looked for when the disturbance began. Iron is still stagnant, most branches of the industry being virtually at a standstill. The only exceptions are structural materials and raw pipe, where a large business is reported. Half the merchants' furnaces in the Pittsburg district are likely to be out of blast by July 1, which will materially lessen coke production. The outlook is for dull trade during the summer. Crops have made excellent progress owing to the prevalence of more seasonable weather in many sections of the Southwest.

Corn has to an extent been retarded by too much moisture, but the present acreage ranks probably as the largest ever planted so that the actual harvest may exceed expectations.

Business throughout New England is still depressed by unsettled conditions in manufacturing, due to the shut-down of the cotton mills. Wool prices are uncertain and mills run on orders only. Some activity is reported in leather goods, but the tendancy everywhere manifested is to "go slow."

WORST OF ALL EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles, Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

HITS FROM SHOULDER

Lord Dundonald Causes Sensation In Canadian Military Circles.

Attacks Minister Fisher For Interference In Appointments.

Winnipeg, Man., June 10.—The speech delivered by Lord Dundonald at a recent military dinner in Montreal, in which he strongly criticised Mr. Fisher, minister of agriculture, for his action in connection with a military appointment, has created a tremendous sensation in military circles, and the end of the matter is not yet. The militia officers in Montreal are determined to stand by him, and declare if he goes they go too. It is generally believed that Dundonald made the speech in question with the full intention of directing public opinion to a grave abuse. He said in part:

"When a nation is at war and when danger stares that nation in the face, it intrusts promotions and selections for advancement to the general whom it intrusts to lead it. Political intrigue for personal advancement is dormant in times of national terror, but when peace comes, political wiles and schemes begin to weave nets. I care not who the man is who advances one man or penalizes another on account of his political color. I say that man, whosoever he may be, isn't the friend of his country.

"Recently a gross instance of political interference occurred. I sent a list of officers to the Gazette and received the list back with the name of one officer scratched out by the minister of agriculture. I feel certain that had Mr. Fisher's life led him to be a soldier instead of to agriculture, he would feel annoyed on personal grounds on the extraordinary lack of etiquette involved in scratching a name put forward by a man whose business it is to find efficient officers of the militia."

Ottawa, Ont., June 10.—Mr. McLaren (of Huntington), a Liberal, asked the premier in the house yesterday if the attention of the government had been called to a report in the press of a speech by Lord Dundonald at Montreal, in which he attacked the Hon. Sidney Fisher for interference in military appointments because of politics. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that the attention of the government had been called to this, and that as the matter was a grave one the government would make a statement today.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Antoine Spran, a life prisoner in the Connecticut state penitentiary, being granted a release on condition that he return to Italy, became very excited and said: "I cannot go back to Italy and work for fifteen cents a day. I would rather stay in prison."

Alleging loss of sight, hearing, smell and touch in consequence of injuries received at the Iroquois theater fire, Miss Mary Lutiger, a school teacher, has filed suit in the superior court against the owners of the theater and the city of Chicago. She asks damages of $50,000.

John Watts, formerly city clerk of Marion, Ind., was arrested at Rockford, Ill., Thursday on a charge of embezzling $6772.50 while he was serving as clerk there.

Capt. W. G. Hartwell, of Chippewa Falls, Wis., has started for Japan, where he has received a commission in the army. Capt. Hartwell did not anticipate going so soon, but received an order from Japan calling for his immediate departure. Hartwell was a member of the militia which put down the Homestead riots.

Mrs. Miller, an aged negro woman, confessed on her deathbed in Keokuk, Iowa, Thursday, that she had brained Pleasant Cousins, an old colored man, with a piece of gas pipe in Burlington in 1901. The death of Cousins had been a mystery. The woman killed Cousins for his money.

Jack "Twin" Sullivan, of Boston, received the decision Thursday night at St. Louis over Andrew Walsh, of Brooklyn, at the end of fifteen rounds of vicious fighting. The men weighed in at 158 pounds. Except in the ninth and fourteenth rounds, Sullivan had considerably the better of the fighting.

CAMP GROUNDS AN LAKEVIEW

Being Put In Shape For the Annual Encampments.

Lake City, Minn., June 10.—Preparation of the camp grounds at Lakeview is well in hand, and they will be in readiness for the Third regiment on June 14. The Second infantry and battalion of artillery will arrive July 5, and the First regiment on July 18.

The adjutant general's headquarters will be here during the encampments, and the following named officers have been ordered into service: Adjt. Gen. E. D. Libby, Maj. Charles W. Fisher, Assistant Inspector General and Capt. Olaff M. Nordley, military storekeeper.

Capt. William H. Hart, brigade quartermaster, will prepare the grounds, lay out the camp and superintend the pitching and striking of tents. He will also have charge of all transportation. Capt. Arris E. Lee, of Stillwater, brigade inspector of small arms practice, will have charge of all work on the rifle range.

The annual inspections, except as to property, will be held during the encampment. No issue of ordnance stores or quartermaster's supplies will be made. This is a new ruling and will be strictly enforced.

The commanding officer of each regiment will assume general charge of camp and be responsible for its appearance and leave it in a perfect sanitary condition.

Enlisted men will not be allowed to board trains stopping at camp or passing through the grounds, unless provided with proper transportation. Regimental commanders will be required to prefer charges against any man violating these orders. Deaths have resulted in the past from carelessness in this matter.

The encampment order also prohibits the regimental bands from playing the "Star Spangled Banner" as part of a medley. It will be played as a selection by itself only.

All regimental and company records must be taken to camp for inspection.

There will be no improvements in the buildings, owing to the insufficiency of funds.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

Woman in her present phase is a physiological paradox. She has an 1830 figure and a "straight front" walk. The carriage which so effectually banishes all suggestion of embonpoint is adapted to the tight fitting skirt. It means a well developed backbone, a stiff knee and a sure step. The heavy soled shoe, which has become the proper caper, is the best illustration of the fact.

The athletic woman, perfectly poised could afford—nay, was obliged—to graduate from the limitations of "tootsie-wootsies" and cultivate a footstep that could be heard in the land. Now, alas, that she has evolved a fairly mannish tread to bear her cherished independence company, fashion has switched back to the ways of vapors, wasp waists and the altogether airy-fairy type.

Grandmother, in her full draperies, never walked. She would have scorned any movement so suggestive of the "too too solid." She floated. She hardly seemed to touch the earth. Her little foot, shod in its delicate satin shoe, seemed to spurn the ground. And while the peculiar lightness of her motions may have been to a large extent due to the hoop which buoyed her up like a topgallant sail her idea of her own fragility had much to do with the case, says the New York World.

Present day, woman, with the same generous width of skirt to hamper her progress and without the hoop to carry the burden—and herself along with it—is doubly handicapped. Add to this the stride she has acquired with such careful pride and you sum up a condition of affairs, which is a serious menace to her peace of mind.

The long and the short of it is that woman must learn to walk all over again. Ruffles and furlebows, wide sleeves and wider petticoats associate themselves with no swinging gait. They prescribe the springy, mincing step, which avoids an entaglement of draperies and the consequent awkwardness of the wearer. How to swing gracefully a skirt six or seven yards in circumference and at the same time preserve the center of gravity unimpaired is a problem to appal the bravest. The dangers of a court train are not to be considered by comparison.

Whether the struggle involved will drive woman to the much derided hoop once more or will end the reign of the 1830 frock is the burning question of the hour. The still more horrible and more probable compromise of a revival of the bustle, with adventitious curves at either side to increase the area and 'bear up" the victim, stares us in the face.

The saucy little saddleback skirt may make its preparations to retire to the shelf. The long-hipped corset must submit to bear it company. The waistline, which begins half-way up the back and ends in a loop well down in front, is also doomed. Woman has literally stepped back in swaddling clothes. Any natural freedom of movement must be rigidly repressed. She must realize that she can no longer run without danger to life and limb, even though mad dogs line the way. There will be no more swinging on and off the car with a neat display of ankle to show mere man how to do it. The woman who can put down her foot is not now in demand. Her skirt will prescribe the limitations of her infinite variety, and she must glide through life like a well regulated doll.

Popular.

I.

My sister Bess is popular, 'most ev'rywhere she goes;
They say she's awful popular with all th' men she knows;
I hear about her pleasin' ways, an' of her cheery smile—
I hear that there word "popular" about her all th' while.

II.

At home she gets up mornin's with a grouch that's pretty bad,
An' spends about an hour jest sassin' ma an' dad;
I guess she works so hard a-bein' popular away
That when she's in the family she don't feel very gay.

III.

I often git to guessin' how th' folks 'ud like her if They'd hear th' way she jaws at me when we git in a tiff.
An' then I'd like to hear what they'd say b'hind her back,
If they e'd see her sloppin' 'round here in her dressin' sack.

IV.

She's popular, of course she is, espec'lly with the men.
I 'spect some time she'll marry some poor feller, but till then
I wisht 'at she 'ud think of us a bit, an' try t' be
A little bit more popular with ma and pa an' me.

THE EVENING STORY.

THE FARMER AND THE FAIR

By William H. Osborne.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Old Solomon Shandy, of New York, Chicago and the United States in general, lit his pipe. "It's all right," he said, somewhat sadly, to the group of crooks about him, "our supermanuitd has been, like me, here, may be out of business, but he's a darn good man to come to for advice. It's the man that's had the experience and knows the details that you want to come to in your great need. I know you chaps," he went on, covering with his hand a patch in his trousers, "if I wanted to borrow a few hundred off'n you, you'd give me the icy glare. But when you come to recognize the fact that all the crooks in creation will be at the St. Louis fair, and that you chaps will only be a drop in the bucket, and that you'll have to put your best foot foremost to keep your heads above water—why, then, you come to me to find out how to do it." He waved his pipe in the air. "I don't complain, you know. I merely state the fact." He drew a sharp inward breath. "Jehosaphat!" he exclaimed, "there's only one man in this country that knows how to work the crowd at that St. Louis fair to beat the band. Just one man—"

Shandy snorted. "You nothin'," he arised, "'Tis me—Shandy, as has made a fortune at every fair, and spent it free. If I only had the coin, like some of you chaps, I'd do that fair." He sighed. "But I'm out of it. I'm nothin' but a superannuated has-been, and that's all."

Shifty Shift, a man whose name indicated his nature, slowly changed his position. "Shandy," he said, "if you'll give us a few pointers, we might be givin' you a percentage on the fair receipts, after it's all over. That's what." He winked at the rest of the crowd, who gently smiled. "I'm a man of my word, you know."

Solomon Shandy, sharper par excellence, shook his head. "I'm a-going' to tell you anyways," he went on, "just what the secret of success will be out there. Never before," he continued, leaning forward, his eyes lighting up with the old gleam, "never before has the American public been so anxious to get something for nothing. Whether it's the Wall street craze or not, I don't know. But when you get out there with your faro outfits or whatever game you chaps will work, there's one thing that you want to do—let the public win, and win well at the start. Let one man win and get away, and he'll tell a hundred. Let the second man win and get away, and he'll tell a thousand. That's the whole business nowadays. Let 'em swallow the hook, instead of just nibble, as we used to do. It's the same system, only on a bigger scale. Take lots of money with you, and let plenty of it get away from you at the start—cast your bread upon the waters. It'll come back to you all right. That's all. Remember it. I say it. I've read the signs of the times, and I can see that if you go into the business wholesale and liberal, you'll have all the other crooks skinned to death. You keep ahold of what I've told you, and tell your friends, and this here New York crowd of crooks will wipe up the fair grounds with them Western fellows. Now don't forget. This is the twentieth century—the business century; the century of method and graft that's big. And beside, it's the St. Louis fair. And don't forget."

The New York crowd of crooks pushed this advice clear back in its caranium; it was good advice, and they knew it. Slowly and by devious routes they departed for St. Louis. There was Frank, the fickle faro man; Schley, the shell gamer; Mackerley, of the three-card monte game; Shifty Shift, Barnabas Billington, the crook par excellence; Micky Walters, and a host of others. And they went with pockets lined with goodly sums of money, for they knew that for every dollar laid out, a hundred would come back to them. And they took all the more because of Shandy's good advice.

"Good-by, Shandy," they said, on parting; "when we get back, we'll blow you off. We will, indeed."

The New Yorkers worked in one corner of the fair grounds, for they wanted that corner to be an attraction. For a few days nothing happened. Then it was whispered about that a sleek-looking countryman from Green Village, whose name was Vredenburgh, was about, and that he was worth about a million, and that he was as green as the village from whence he came, and that he was in St. Louis without his wife; which probably meant that he would be well stimulated most of the time, and an easy gentleman to work. He was a farmer, all right; for he had done his best to hide that fact. He had placed upon his person all the outward evidences of the urbanite; but a silk purse never yet was manufactured of a sow's ear, and this man, without a hayseed in his hair, was a hayseed beyond all question.

When the New Yorkers looked upon this man they knew they had something superfine, and they remembered the advice of Shandy. They determined to give him plenty of rope until he hung himself.

"What's this?" exclaimed Farmer Vredenburgh, sidling up to Frank's faro outfit. "I've lived in St. Louis all my life, but I don't just know this thing" Frank solemnly cracked up the game.

"Do—do I have to put up any money?" asked the farmer, in an uncertain voice. Frank shook his head. "No unless you lose," he said.

"I ain't a-goin' to lose," exclaimed the farmer. Frank didn't intend that the farmer should—not for awhile. So he started up a game, and the farmer won a dollar; another, and he won two dollars; another, and he won five. After the farmer had won perhaps half a dozen small games, Frank concluded it was just as well to let the next game be a losing one for the victim and a winning one for him.

"Now for another," he said. But the farmer, who had won every game, shook his head. "No," he answered, "I've won a whole lot of your money; blamed if I want to clean you out. I'll quit, and let you up. So long."

After that he struck the shell game that Schley had going in a tent. "I'll pick out that there ball every time," he announced. Schley bet that he wouldn't. But he did, because Schley let him. Schley in all gave up $15 to this green-born millionaire. Finally Schley waved his hand.

"Bet you $50," exclaimed Schley, "that you can't place the little ball this time." The farmer dropped his hands. "Bet I can't either," he responded, "so I'll leave." And he did.

But Ebbsmith, the envelope man, had an experience that was absolutely humiliating. Ebbsmith had not been so well heeled as the others, and when the farmer put up a quarter and Ebbsmith let him pick out an envelope with a $50 bill in it, Ebbsmith was tossing big bait over the side—big bait for him. The farmer pocketed it without a word, and went away. Ebbsmith followed him about all the afternoon, trying to get that $50 back by fair means or foul, but he couldn't make it. The farmer refused to budge an inch.

Then the New Yorkers put their heads together. Day after day went by without the farmer's indulging further in the games which were to have proved his treason. They watched him for awhile, and found that he patronized all the other crooks upon the ground. So they concluded that it was time to act.

Mickey Walters was detailed to waylay and rob him. Mickey started out to do it. He came back.

"I can't find him," wailed Mickey; he's disappeared. I can't find him anywheres—that's what. Though if I found him—" Mickey swung a vicious fist into the unoffending air. "Say what—"

The farmer, it is true, had disappeared. But he was not far away. For one day he bought a short lease on a little sideshow tent in the middle of the grounds. Then he closed the flap and stepped inside. Then he disrobed. In five minutes Vredenburgh, the farmer man, had disappeared. And another man stood in the farmer's place. In five minutes the flap was open once more and the lessee of the tent was ready for business. Two of the New York crowd who passed that way stopped and held their breath.

"Good Lord," they exclaimed, "if old Sol Shandy didn't get out here, after all. Shandy, hello! Who staked you, Shandy. What's the graft with you."

Shady mysteriously smiled. "I came out here to St. Louis shorn," he answered; "but, say, I've gathered in considerable wool."

When the rest of the New York crowd heard about it, they groaned. "Gee," they said, "if Shandy's here, he'll get all the good that's going." Then an idea occurred to them. "Mickey!" they yelled, 'get that farmer man and sick him onto Shandy. That chap'll have old Shandy cleaned out in just about three licks."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Tramps Set Upon and Almost Killed By Others.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—Near the Great Northern railway crossing a gang of tramps became involved in a fight. One was cut with a razor across the face, the gash extending from the upper lip to the back of the head, splitting the left ear. Another cut laid bare the skull from the top of the head to the back of the neck, and another the left wrist to the bone. The small finger on the left hand was almost cut off. The man was found in a box car, almost dead from loss of blood. He was taken to the city prison and his wounds dressed, and he is likely to recover, but will always carry some ugly scars. Three men were arrested and are now in jail pending investigation.

G. Laube, the inventor, accompanied by his daughters, Hattie Rose and Zula Verna, departed for California Tuesday with the hope that a change of climate will be helpful to his failing health.

A four-days' carnival has been arranged for this city, commencing June 30 and continuing over July 4. Special excursion rates will be given from all points.

Huron has been alive with home-seekers and land-buyers for a week and some good sales have been made. The unusually heavy rainfall has given crops wonderful growth, and the country presents a very attractive appearance. The rainfall since Jan. 1 aggregates 8 inches as against 5½ inches for the sambe period last year.

Watertown—The Republican primary election for Codington county was held this week and the following ticket nominated: State senator, C. A. Neill; representatives, J. R. Michaels and Ben Lee; treasurer, G. E. Cloyes; auditor, J. D. McLaughlin, register of deeds, H. O. Mathiesen; sheriff, W. W. Waddell; clerk of courts, William Schoenberger; superintendent of schools, A. H. Barnard; state's attorney, H. G. Hundredmark; judge of probate, John Nicholson; coroner, H. A. Tarbell. The largest Republican vote ever polled in the county was recorded, there being 1229 ballots cast.

In opposition to this ticket the Democrats put up the following ticket in delegate convention, held in Watertown: Senator, C. H. Lester; representatives, West Dory and August Duffner; treasurer, S. H. Ohtness; auditor, Louis Wolfe; register, John Ginsbach; sheriff, John Coplan; clerk, Fred Bronson; superintendent, Louis Beckman; state's attorney, A. Sherin; judge, L. S. Deming.

Canton — The twenty-fourth annual camp meeting of the Seventh Day Adventist church of South Dakota opened in this city with a large attendance. Among prominent members from outside of the state in attendance are: Elder F. W. Farnsworth, of Australia; Dr. C. C. Lewis, president of Union college in Nebraska; Dr. W. A. George, of Lincoln, Neb.; Elder Luther Warren, and Rev. R. A. Underwood, of Philadelphia; C. A. Burman and L. D. Randall, of Iowa. Over fifty tents are on the grounds.

Aberdeen—Jacob Merkel is in the Walworth county jail at Bangor, awaiting developments in the condition of a man named Swartz, who is lying at the point of death with a bullet wound through his body, inflicted, it is charged, by Merkel. A family quarrel is said to have caused the shooting. Swartz is a son of one of the Haymarket anarchists.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Oakes—Preparations are going forward for the coming of the state encampment G. A. R. and W. R. C., on June 14, 15 and 16. The gates will be thrown wide open and ample entertainment afforded for all visitors. The street decorations will surpass anything before seen in this part of the state, and the parade on Wednesday will be a fine feature. Ball games for each afternoon have been arranged between Ellendale, Jamestown, Forman and Oakes, and the Powell-Portello Theater company has been engaged for four performances.

The acetylene gas has been turned on and the city is well lighted. The building for the plant is not completed.

The remains of the late T. W. Millham arrived from Ellendale and will be buried in the Oakes cemetery, where eight of his children are lying. Mr. Millham was postmaster of Ellendale and died this spring at Hot Springs, Ark., while there for his health.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

The Pere Marquette Road Deceived the Investing Public.

Detroit—In the hearing of the railroad tax case at the Cadillac, J. H. Simpson, assistant to the vice president of the Pere Marquette, admitted that the reports of the directors to stockholders and to the railroad commissioner for the year 1900, 1901 and 1902, were untrue. The object of the reports, according to Simpson, was to furnish information to the stockholders as to expenses, whether the road could pay dividends, etc., and he admitted that this information was grossly inaccurate and misleading. Items figuring up hundreds of thousands of dollars were charged to the construction account and improvement fund that should have been credited to the operating account. The general result was to swell the figures showing the alleged net earnings, all of which made pleasant reading to stockholders and investing public.

Newberry—The six-year-old son of Albert Randa, of Newberry, lately of the Soo, is dead, having been accidentally killed by being crushed underneath a heavy counter, which fell on his breast and inflicted injuries from which he expired three hours later. The little fellow, in company with a number of playmates, was playing in a back room of his father's place of business, and in some manner an old, discarded bar or counter, which had been used in some saloon, was tipped over catching the Randa boy underneath.

Sault Ste. Marie—The badly decomposed body of a man, later identified as Paul Brushe, of the Soo, was found by a small boy in a clearing about three miles west of Blaney, Schoolcraft county. Coroner Kefauver and Sheriff Moody, of Manistique, were notified by the Mueller Lumber company, as the first impression was that the man had met his death by foul means, a watch and several rings he was known to possess being missing. The officials made diligent investigation and ascertained that Brushe had pawned the jewelry, thus exploding the theory of foul play.

Ironwood—Henry Weldekamper, a carpenter who left Ironwood about two years ago, recently sustained injuries by a falling tree in Oregon which resulted in his death. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and Maccabee lodges of Ironwood.

Powers—Attorney Charles F. Juttner, of Powers, Menominee county, says that the health officials now have the diphtheria epidemic, which caused the closing of the schools, under control and believe that there will be no other cases. There are twelve cases in Spaulding and Powers and but one has resulted fatally. The health officials are taking every precaution to prevent a spread of the disease.

Manistique—Thomas Hannan, founder at the Manistique Iron company's furnace, is unable to be present, having been severely scalded by a defective steam cock connected with a hot water pipe. On account of a defect the valve was replaced by another which leaked as badly as the former. Orders were given to shut the water off and Hannan, supposing that the order had been complied with, began unscrewing it and was deluged with boiling water. His right arm and leg were the most severely injured.

CONDEMN LAND

Water Board Recommends It For New Reservoir Site.

Owners of Land Desired Are Difficult to Get at.

The board of water and light commissioners will recommend to the city council that the land required at West Duluth for the auxiliary reservoir which the department contemplates constructing be acquired by condemnation proceedings rather than by direct purchase from the owners.

This action was decided on at the meeting of the water and light commission last night, after the report had been received from the committee appointed to ascertain the cost of blocks 16 and 19, Lloyd's division, in West Duluth, the site selected for the new reservoir.

The committee was unable to get any prices on the land in question, owing to the fact that the owner of some of the land died recently and one of the executors of the estate is sick and not able to carry on the negotiations. The committee placed the value of the lots at about $480, and recommended that the city council be requested to acquire title by condemnation proceedings.

The report was approved by the commission, and Manager Case was instructed to transmit it to the city council.

The water and light committee of the city council met with the water and light commissioners last evening to confer relative to the establishment of lower rates on hydrants, put in subsequent to May 1 last.

The commission passed a resolution establishing the rate for hydrants put in subsequent to May 1 at $40 each. The rates established on hydrants put in previous to May 1 will remain unchanged, $60.

Manager L. N. Case, who was a week ago given a leave of absence to attend the national convention of managers of water and light plants, was unable to get away from the city owing to the pressure of business. Mr. Case will take his vacation this coming week instead.

Under the rules of the department the gas rentals are payable by the 12th of each month, in order to get the discounts, but as the 12th of the month falls on Sunday next, the usual discounts will be allowed on bills paid on Monday, June 13.

Will Not Be Here.

Owing to the encampment necessitating the presence of the Third Regiment band at Lake City, from June 13 to 23, that organization, which is considered the peer of any band in the state of Minnesota, will be unable to play at the Democratic convention in the city, so that the committee having the matter of music in charge will have to make other arrangements. The band will not be back in Duluth until the night of June 23, while the convention will be held June 22.

Tries to Play Tug.

Guy Eaton's fine launch, the Jessie B., met with a serious accident last night about midnight, while endeavoring to get the barge Corliss, of the Pittsburg Steamship company, off the middle ground in the upper bay. The towline parted and whipped off part of the after cabin of the Jessie B., so the launch is now in the dock for repairs. The tugs are unable to get at barges when they are on the middle ground, and for this reason a light draft craft must be used to bring them within distance of the tugs. After the accident the Corliss was towed to Two Harbors to load.

"DEMOCRATIC HARMONY"

Sends Col. J. M. Bowler to the Minneapolis Hospital.

Minneapolis, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Blood flowed freely at a Democratic harmony meeting in Minneapolis. Col. J. M. Bowler was afterwards taken to St. Barnabas' hospital to have a four inch gash on his head stitched up.

It all came about as a result of an attempt to patch up a truce between the Hearst and anti-Hearst factions.

Chairman Elijah Barton attended the meeting, and was accused by the Hearst men of issuing duplicate credentials so as to cut out Hearst delegates.

One thing led to another and as the fruitless meeting was breaking up, Col. Bowler called Barton a liar. Barton's retort was a blow on the colonel's face, and in the ensuing melee, Col. Bowler slipped and cut his head on the corner of a heavy oak door.

PLATFORM ADOPTED.

Richmond, Va., June 10.—The state Democratic convention reassembled at 11 o'clock this morning and adopted the platform just as it came from the committee on resolutions.

FOR STEALING A HAT.

John Raade Accuses A. Lieberman of That Offense.

Stealing the coat off a man's back has always been considered the height of cleverness in a thief, but Atel Lieberman is claimed to have stolen the hat from a man's head and to have sent him out of his store bare-headed to let the lake breezes blow through his unprotected locks.

Lieberman is the proprietor of a clothing store at the corner of First avenue east and Superior street. The complaining witness, John Raade, claims to have entered Lieberman's store this morning to purchase a light summer hat. The prices did not suit his fancy and the proprietor offered to take Raade's old hat in part payment. But Raade believed he was being charged about three prices for the new hat, and started to leave the store. He claims that Lieberman refused to return him his old hat and he appeared at the office of the city attorney bare-headed to swear out a warrant for Lieberman's arrest.

Lieberman was arraigned before Judge Gearhart on the charge of petty larceny and pleaded not guilty. He was given an hour to secure his witnesses and the trial was set for 4 o'clock.

NORWEGIAN CONFERENCE.

More Delegates Attend Meeting at Albert Lea.

St. Paul, June 10.—A special to the Dispatch from Albert Lea says: More delegates to the fifteenth annual conference of the United Lutheran Norwegian conference arrived today, and the large theater auditorium was crowded. The committee on schools, as appointed, is composed of President N. C. Brunn, A. J. Huiting, G. T. Rigle, O. D. Haugh and Ole T. Jorstads. Rev. Wigdahl read the report of the Orphans home, at Lake Park, Minn., and President Tune of Augustana college read his report.

The subject of home missions was presented by H. C. Holm, who said that twenty-five pastors were needed for work in the slums of big cities. Rev. Slettendahl spoke on the seamen's mission work on the Pacific coast, and awakened much interest in that subject.

TRANSFERRED TO MILWAUKEE

M. J. Bryan of Wisconsin Central General Agent There.

M. J. Bryan, who for over two years past has represented the Wisconsin Central in this city, has been notified of his appointment as general agent of the Wisconsin Central at Milwaukee, which is the home office of the company. Mr. Bryan is very well known in this vicinity, especially in view of the fact that he has been here but a comparatively short time, and his numerous railroad, commercial and social acquaintances are keeping him busy today in receiving their congratulations.

Mr. Bryan came to Duluth from Chicago, where he was traveling freight agent of the company. Prior to that he was general agent at Pittsburg, Pa., and had represented the company at St. Louis, New Orleans and Detroit. His earlier railroad experience was with the Northwestern and he was chief clerk of the general freight office in Chicago at the time he decided to throw his fortunes with the Wisconsin Central.

He says that in his experience in changing from one city to another he never contemplated leaving with more regret than he does Duluth, and that during his official residence here he has made more friends in a given time than at an other city in which he has been stationed.

His new position will be effective July 1, until which time he will remain in Duluth. A successor to Mr. Bryan has not yet been made public.

BURROWS NEEDS MONEY.

To Secure It He Sacrifices His Entire Stock of Clothing and Furnishings.

M. S. Burrows is nothing if not courageous. His announcement in today's Herald is a candid, straightforward statement of one emergency that has arisen and the course that will be pursued to meet it.

Mr. Burrows plainly acknowledges his pressing need for money. Owing to the very backward season, and the fact that he anticipated a very busy one, and bought more heavily than at any other year in his business career. The time for settling is here; manufacturers do not want clothing; they want the cash, for which they also have a pressing need, and have very candidly stated so.

Mr. Burrows realizes that other merchants are in a similar boat to his own, though not to the same extent, as the Great Eastern carries by all odds the heaviest stock in the city, if not in the entire Northwest. To make the sale a success, the prices must be cut deeper than ever before; so deeply, in fact, that people will buy for future needs, even if they have to strain a point to do so. The sale begins tomorrow, and as the announcement states, takes in every article in every department throughout the entire three floors.

ELY CHURCH ROW IN COURT

Judge Dibell Enjoins Interference With Trustees In Charge.

An airing of a church row at Ely took place in district court last Saturday, at a special term, and following it Judge Dibell has filed a decision in which he finds that the Swedish Free Lutheran church of Ely, by its trustees, Victor Gustafson, Emil Fredsburg and Charles Johnson, are entitled to an injunction against John L. Anderson and Swan Pearson, restraining them from occupying the church building, holding any meetings therein or in anyway interfering with the possession of it by the complainants in the case.

The court says that an injunction may issue after five days from date if the petitioners in the action file a properly executed bond in the amount of $250.

The case is the outcome of a fight between factions of the church and has been on for some time. Victor Gustafson, Emil Fredsberg and Charles Johnson claim to be the legally elected trustees and were in possession of the building and the church reecords in March. It is claimed by the defendants, John L. Anderson, and Pearson that they were elected trustees in May, and they are charged with having broken into the church building by force, removing the locks and fastenings from the doors and putting on new locks.

In his memorandum, Judge Dibell says:

"The contest is largely between the de facto trustees of the plaintiff religious corporation, also claiming to be legally elected trustees.

"The plaintiff trustees are in possession of the records of the organization and are exercising their offices, and are in possession of the church property, except so far as they have interfered with the defendants.

"From the showing made it is extremely difficult to determine who is in the right in this unseemly strife and it may be that neither faction is charitable to the other.

"The Swedish Free Lutheran church was adjudged to be the owner of the church property, out of which this controversy arises, and possession thereof was given it and its trustees.

"The two defendants claim to have been elected trustees at an election in May last, the validity of which is questionable.

"There is enough shown in the evidence to indicate that the defendants are likely intruders and trespassers, and to warrant the court in giving such temporary relief as may be consistent with proper practice."

The court indicates that if the defendants believe they have a case and should be in possession, there is another way by which they may bring their claims to the attention of the court, namely, by quo warranto proceedings.

A MODERN SOLOMON.

In a cozy little flat two bachelor girls were keeping house, and somehow things seemed to go wrong, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Although each of the bachelor girls considered herself too far "advanced" to be bound down to a mere matter of housekeeping; nevertheless, each had her own ideas as to how things ought to be done. When one bachelor girl planned one thing, the other was sure to plan something else, and there was a conflict of directions for the maid they employed. In brief, the cozy little flat suffered from too much supervision. So the two bachelor girls finally decided to alternate in assuming supreme charge of the household arrangements, but each invariably sniffed and criticized during the week that the other was in charge, and otherwise intimated disagreeably that her way was the better way. For, be it understood, neither of these emancipated girls could possibly avoid interfering in the management of a home to the support of which she contributed; in her home things had to be done her way, for no other way was the right way, and it just naturally distressed her to have a home managed in any but the right way. However emancipated she might be, this was something that was ever on her mind, which may account for the fact that boardinghouse keepers do not look with favor upon women boarders.

Now, a short distance away there was another cozy little flat, which also suffered, but in a different way. In this flat two young men were domiciled, and it suffered from lack of supervision. Here, too, an attempt was made to work the problem out on an alternate basis, and here, too, it failed. Just at the time when one of the bachelor girls was upbraiding the other bachelor girl for presuming to give any directions during the week that the former was in charge, one of the young men would be "roasting" the other young man for neglecting to attend to his business and make proper provision for the care of the flat and the meals necessary to comfort, not to say health.

Thus, while two people, in spite of all rules, were constantly occupied with the details of the management of one flat, two other people, also in spite of all rules, were constantly occupied with efforts to escape the details of the management of the other flat.

"For heaven's sake!" one of the young men would say, "you'd better take entire charge here, for you're a good deal better at this sort of thing than I am."

"Goodness me!" one of the bachelor girls would exclaim, about the same time, "you'd better leave all of the housekeeping to me, for I simply can't stand careless management in the home."

But neither the other bachelor girl nor the other young man would agree to such propositions, and things grew so steadily worse in the two flats that all four finally sought out a wise woman to learn wherein the trouble lay.

"Is it possible," asked the girls, "that two people cannot live harmoniously in one cozy little flat? In spite of our best resolves, there is constant friction and we are ever striving to usurp the temporary authority and responsibility, each of the other."

"Can it be," demanded the young men, "that two people cannot live together peacefully in a home of their own? In spite of our best resolves, there is constant friction and we are ever striving to escape the temporary authority and responsibility that is a necessary feature of domestic success."

Thereupon the wise woman smiled in a superior way.

"This," she said, "is one of the simplest problems that ever was brought to my notice. The explanation of your troubles is easy, and the solution quite as easy."

"Shall we give up the flats," they asked.

"No," replied the wise woman. "Keep both flats, but get a clergyman and two marriage licenses. You are divided up wrong."

The letters of Miss Merkley, whose picture is printed above, and Miss Claussen, prove beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains throught the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me."—Sincerely yours, MISS MARGARET MERKLEY, 275 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Claussen Saved from a Surgical Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not express one-half of the virtue the great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered with ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure me after all.

"However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, and let the doctors alone, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that fruitless operations cost me. If the women who are suffering, and the doctors do not help them, will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they will not be disappointed with the results."—MISS CLARA M. CLAUSSEN, 1307 Penn St., Kansas City, Mo.

FARMER

Mortgaged His Farm to Purchase a Madstone.

Chicago, June 10.—Peter Huff, a Brownsville (Tenn.) farmer, mortgaged his little farm to secure a madstone, hoping to cure his son of hydrophobia. The charm failed to work and the young man was brought to Chicago and placed in the Pasteur Hospital, where Dr. Lagorio says he will be cured. When young Huff's arm was examined the stone was discovered bound tightly to the wound. Dr. Lagorio threw the charm out of the window.

Young Huff was infected in a peculiar manner. Two months ago one of his cows was attacked with a spasmodic affection of the throat which he treated with antiseptic washes. It developed the animal had been bitten by a rabid dog and the saliva, touching a cut on Huff's arm, infected him with the disease.

"I had read about madstones," said the father, "and wrote an advertisement to Nashville newspapers asking for the address of any one with a madstone. I got three answers—one from Chicago, one from Madison, Wis., and one from Nashville. I answered the last because I was in a hurry to get help for my boy. The man, whose name is George W. Ladd, showed me the stone and offered to sell it for $150. He refused to lend it or hire it and I had to put a mortgage on the place to get the money."

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

SEANCE IS ENDED

By Policeman Grabbing Hold of the "Spirit" Mother.

Mad Efforts of the Frightened Audience to Escape.

Philadelphia, June 10.—With his arms around a figure introduced as the spirit of his dead mother, Policeman Hoagland of the Jefferson street station bravely held on to the alleged spirit, in reality a woman, while her husband struck him repeatedly with his fists. In the meantime 19 other persons in the room sought to escape by doors and windows, only to find every avenue of escape guarded by a bluecoat.

Lights were brought and evrybody was taken to the station house. There the alleged spirit, Mrs. Elizaabeth Howland, who was captured clad only in a long house gown, and her husband Clarence, were receiving money under false pretense. Their home where the raid took place, is 1541 North Twenty-second street.

The arrests were the outcome of complaints made by supposed victims of the pair, who asserted that on the promise of seeing and talking to the spirits of dead relatives and friends they paid the Howlands money, only to be duped. But there were many, the police say, who paid money and went away awed and satisfied.

Lieut. Lyons assigned Policeman Hoagland and McCarty to the case, and, in plain clothes, these two men allayed the suspicions of the summoners of spirits, and at the same time collected evidence and laid plans for the effective surprise which was sprung last night.

The investigation commenced several weeks ago, when, it is alleged, the two policemen, upon payment of half a dollar each, were admitted to the "development class." In this stage any doubts of spiritualism the candidates might have were "dispelled" and they were asked who, in the spirit world they would like to be brought into the presence of.

Meetings were held on Sunday evenings in a hall on Columbia avenue above Broad street, and two or three times during the week at the Twenty-second street house.

On Monday Hoagland and McCarty were disappointed, they told Howland, in not seeing any one that knew, but upon payment of a dollar Hoagland was promised for the next evening a talk with the spirit of his mother, who died 15 years ago.

Tuesday evening the two policemen were present with 19 others, 14 men and five women, when the spirit first appeared.

The audience was seated in a long room, at one end of which a small shaded lamp burned dimly. When the silence was most impressive the curtains above a cabinet were drawn back slowly, and, shaking out a long, loose robe, the spirit stood revealed.

Several of the awed spectators were solemnly escorted forward to converse in subdued tones before it became Hoagland's turn. Howland acted as master of ceremonies, and as the policeman stepped forward his right hand was tightly grasped by the assistant.

"Is that you, mother?" asked Hoagland.

The answer was muffled, and without ceremony the policeman sprang forward. Howland hung on to his right arm, and while the policeman clutched the woman with free arm, he was at the mercy of her husband, who hammered the disturber of spirits vigorously with his fists.

"Turn on the lights!" yelled Hoagland, for pandemonium had broken loose in the room. Women screamed and chairs were upset and broken in the mad efforts of the frightened audience to escape. Not one, however, got away from the detail of patrolmen outside under Special Policeman Weaver, and all were taken to the station house in the patrol wagon.

Policeman Hoagland says the woman's only garment when he grabbed her was the bag-like robe that extended from her neck to the floor, and it is said that on more than one occasion she appeared nude. The couple, it is said, were reaping a rich harvest, the receipts Tuesday night being $19.

COURT SAYS

That the Right to Snore Is Inalienable.

New York, June 10.—Magistrate Crane held in the Jefferson market police court that it is an inalienable privilege to snore even in church. He expressed this opinion when Harry Wilson, 17 years old, who says he hails from Chicago, was called before him because he went to bed under the organ in St. Joseph's church Monday night and interrupted an evening service by snoring loudly. The boy told the magistrate he had been in this city a week, had run out of money and had no place to sleep.

"I don't see that this boy has done anything terrible," said the magistrate. "He simply crawled in through a window and went to sleep. I think I will discharge him."

Michael Bachelor, sexton of the church, objected:

"We don't make a lodging house of the church," he protested.

"If I had a church," said the magistrate, "I would be glad to have the whole universe sleep there."

"It wasn't nice of him to interrupt the service by snoring," objected Bachelor.

"It is a God-given privilege to snore," announced the magistrate. "The boy is discharged." The magistrate secured the boy a position in the Metropolitan street railway service.

ASLEEP SINCE FRIDAY

And Doctors Are Unable to Awaken Her.

Marion, Ind., June 10.—Mrs. Albert Jarvis has been asleep since last Friday night. Her husband is an oil operator. He left home Saturday morning without awakening his wife. When he returned Saturday night she had not awakened. He was unable to arouse her and called Dr. Patterson, who worked with her all night without success.

Nearly every physician in the town has been called in consultation, but the case is one of mystery and they are unable to diagnose it.

Dr. Patterson said he believed a clot of blood had formed on the brain, but there is no sign of apoplexy or paralysis. The woman appears to have good use of her body, but is simply in a deep slumber from which she cannot be awakened.

THE NOVEL PLEA

That May Save Life of a Murderer In Pennsylvania.

Result of Locking Two Brutal Men In Same Cell.

Chester, Pa., June 10.—It is expected here that Cornelius Bush, the negro, who last week was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a Philadelphia jury because he beheaded his cellmate, James Pratt, in the Eastern penitentiary, will never be hanged. This belief is brought about by the revelations that have come to light here since the conviction of Bush, which tends to show that Pratt was three times a murderer, and that Bush, in putting him to death, was simply cheating the gallows of their ultimate inevitable prey.

It is also said that the novel plea will be made before the board of pardons in behalf of Bush that the officials of the Eastern penitentiary are to a certain degree blamable for the terrible tragedy within the prison walls, because they knew that both Pratt and Bush were men of murderous impulses, and that to place them together in a cell where they must inevitably quarrel was folly, amounting almost to criminality, in view of the fact that both men were sentenced to "solitary and separate confinement."

Glenn C. Mead, attorney for Bush, will go before Judge Sulzberger, in Philadelphia, to ask for a new trial for Bush. If the court denies the application the case will go to the pardon board, which will be informed that the penitentiary officials placed the men together in a cell when it was known that both had been repeatedly convicted of atrocious assault, and that neither would stick at murder. It is probable, also, that the pardon board will be informed that the Chester police now have in their possession evidence showing that Pratt had murdered at least one man, and that he had probably murdered two others. This evidence the police could not secure while Pratt was alive, because he was the terror of the Tenderloin in Chester, and no one dared to testify against him. Accordingly, he escaped punishment for many of his misdeeds and crimes, but Chief Leary stated yesterday that there is now no difficulty in getting evidence to prove that the man was a murderer.

Several years ago the headless body of John T. Dougherty was found on the Philadelphia & Reading railway, at the foot of Welsh street, and suspicion pointed to Pratt as the author of that crime. It was said by residents of Bethel court that Dougherty attempted to get upon a train and lost his life in that way, but the police have just learned from some of the people of the court, who have no longer occasion to fear, that Dougherty and Pratt were together early in the evening; the stranger was decoyed into Pratt's den, where he was given drugged whisky, robbed, and when he revived and demanded his money, was beaten until almost dead. Expecting that the man would die, Pratt carried his body to the railroad and placed it upon the track in a way that the wheels cut off the head.

The fact that Pratt was beheaded by his cellmate is taken by the colored people of Bethel court as simply retributive justice for the crime they allege he committed in Dougherty's case.

RELEASED FROM DUNGEON

In Colombia, Alabama Judge Is Back Again.

Birmingham, Ala., June 10.—Judge Frank C. Randolph, who defaulted for about $25,000 while serving as probate judge of Montgomery County eleven years ago and fled to South America, is in Washington and will, it is said, shortly return to Alabama. Indictments are pending against him. Recently his shortages with the state and county were settled.

Judge Randolph landed in New York a few days ago, and his baggage reached Montgomery Sunday. It was learned that he stopped off in Washington to confer with his attorney, ex-Secretary of the Navy Herbert.

Soon after reaching South America Randolph killed a wealthy German in Colombia in a dispute over some land. He was sentenced to death, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. After spending nine years in a dungeon influential Americans got a pardon for him. He is a member of one of the most prominent families in the South, and was for years a political leader in Alabama.

SHE PAID DEARLY

For Title, When Helen Morton Married Duke of Valencay.

Husband's Family Noted For Liking American Brides' Fortunes.

New York, June 10.—The reports from Paris that the duke and duchess of Valencay have agreed to divorce proceedings, and that the duke's mother has appealed to the pope to have the marriage annulled, has excited more than usual interest here.

The earlier report that the duchess is in New York was an error, as she is now at the Paris home of her father, former Governor Levi P. Morton. It is known that she is in constant communication with her family here, and that the filing of the proceedings is not a surprise to the family.

Helen Morton was regarded as the most beautiful of Levi P. Morton's daughters, and has always been one of the most popular of "the Morton girls."

Accomplished, a thorough musician, a linguist, she is fond of outdoor sports. She has traveled extensively, and figured in the fashionable worlds of London and Paris.

There she met Paul Louis Marie Archampauld Boson, count of Pertgord, the second son of the princess of Sagah, and she thought she fell in love with him.

They were married in St. Mary's church, London, on Oct. 5, 1901, not four years ago. A distinguished company graced the occasion. Mr. Choate was present with the entire staff of the American embassy. The duchess of marlborough, in a splendid costume of purple velvet and furs, was there.

The bridegroom's father, the duke of Talleyrand, was not present, for the old duke, a dandy in his young days, was a paretic in his old age.

But the bridegroom's mother was radiantly happy. The count of Perigord is her favorite son—so great a favorite over his elder brother, Helie, that rumor had it the princess of Sagan tried to break the law of primogeniture in Boson's favor. But Helie, gilded youth, has fought duels and got into trouble with the French courts because he obligingly discounted notes for Max Lebaudy, the "Little Sugar Bowl."

Before this brilliant marriage, that arbiter of Paris fashion, the princess of Sagan, had found it necessary to sell the famous Chateau de Valencay, which was bought by Prince Talleyrand, which was Napoleon, who wished his representative to receive foreign envoys in truly princely style.

The wife of Count Jean de Castellane, herself a Talleyrand, bought the chateau from the princess of Sagan. Now, whoever of the Talleyrands owns the chateau, claims to be entitled to call himself duke of Valencay.

The princess of Sagan was aroused to learn that Count Jean de Castellane would claim this title. Luckily there happened to be a clause in the law permitting a Talleyrand to buy back, within a year, at a price greater by one-sixth, any property he had sold at forced sale. So after the brilliant marriage, the estate of Valencay was bought back by Count Boson for 2,718,324 francs ($543,665).

So Count Boson of Talleyrand calls himself duke of Valencay.

His mother, who was born a Sellierie, and who now asks the pope to annul her favorite son's marriage, is a woman of decision. She long kept her husband in luxurious duress.

She quarreled over property with her husband's father. Her husband at last accounts was living at the princess' residence, having been removed from his quarters at the Cicle de La rue Royale in 1897, when he suffered a severe stroke of paralysis. A family council appointed his fashionable, masterful wife to be his guardian and trustee, and a close guardian has she been.

Necessarily every American in Paris, every American woman who has married a title, must be deeply interested in this divorce.

The Talleyrand et Sagan family and their connections have a liking for rich Americans. The Talleyrand-Perigord who bought and sold the chateau of Valencay was Dorothee. She was born in 1862 and married in 1898 Count Jean de Castellane, elder brother of Count Boni de Castellanc, who married Anna Gould.

Another of the family, Maurice, duc de Dino, by his marriage with Miss Elizabeth Curtis, daughter of Joseph Davis Beers Curtis, of New York, in 1867, had a daughter, Palma, who became the wife of Prince Mario Ruspoli. The Ruspolis have been mayors of Rome. Much American money which the present Prince Ruspoli enjoys is raised on fine plebian cranberry bogs in New Jersey.

When Miss Helen Morton married, her generous father settled on her $30,000 a year. He has put in trust for her 400 shares of the Morton Trust company. By the ante-nuptial agreement, her husband has control, during their marriage, of the greater part of her income.

One of the exploits of the duke's brother, Helie, prince of Sagan, was to punch in the face Maitre Barboux, a celebrated lawyer of Paris. The encounter between the prince de Sagan and Maitre Barboux followed the dismissal, owing to a legal technicality, of the action brought by Mme. De Gast, a wealthy widow and a well-known automobile driver, against Maitre Barboux for producing in court a photograph of a nude figure, called "the masked woman," and declaring that Mme. De Gast had served as the model. After the parties to the suit here left the Palais de Justice, the prince de Sagan, who had accompanied Mme. De Gast to court, meeting Barboux on the street, struck him, saying:

"You are an insulter of women!" at the same time handing his card to Maitre Barboux.

DIAMONDS IN OLD SHOE.

Lost and Found In the Garbage Can.

Chicago, June 10.—Diamonds valued at $3000, which were kept in an old shoe, were lost and found by the owner, Mrs. George Frank, 1885 Diversey boulevard, yesterday.

Shortly after 12 o'clock Mrs. Frank sought her diamonds, which are said to have been kept in the shoe. They were missing and she notified the police of the Sheffield Avenue station.

Several detectives were detailed on the case, but before they had reached the house the diamonds are said to have been found in a garbage can in the rear of the Frank flat. While the diamonds were missing the servants searched every nook in the flat to find them.

Finally, it is said, they were found in the garbage can by one of the servants, who returned them to her mistress.

WALL STREET IS LAUGHING

Over Harriman Being Barred From His Private Car.

New York, June 10.—Wall street is laughing over a story which has just become common property, of which E. H. Harriman is the hero.

He was starting on a Western trip, and appeared in the station half an hour before train time, looking distinguished and natty in a silk hat and frock coat. Boarding the car with his secretary and two or three railway officials, he speedily exchanged his frock coat for a loose-fitting sack, and clapped his comfortable old black slouch hat upon his head. Then he stepped down to the train platform for a stroll all by himself.

Two minutes before the train started Mr. Harriman started to climb back into his car. A uniformed trainman barred his way, saying coldly: "This is a private car."

"That is all right," said the head of 20,000 miles of railroad. "It is my car."

"You're nutty. On the other side of the platform for yours," said the trainman, with calm indifference.

"I am Mr. Harriman," said the slouch-hatted man, somewhat angrily, as he waved the guard aside.

"Gwan out'er here," commanded the now indignant trainman. "Mr. Harriman is in the car and he doesn't want to see any such trampy lookin' man as you be."

It was about time for the train to start, and, although inclined to be amused, Mr. Harriman realized that he must get aboard the train without delay. He commanded: "You stand aside and let me pass. I tell you that I am Mr. Harriman."

At that instant Vice President J. C. Stubbs of the Southern Pacific stepped out on the platform. "I say, Stubbs," exclaimed Mr. Harriman, laughing, "come out here and identify me."

Cancerous Ulcers

ROOTED IN THE BLOOD.

After the age of 45 or 50, when the vital powers are naturally weaker, it is noticed that a hurt of any kind heals slowly, and often a very insignificant scratch or bruise becomes a bad ulcer or sore. At this time of life warty growths, moles and pimples that have been on the body almost from birth begin to inflame and fester, and before very long are large eating, sloughing ulcers.

Whenever a sore or ulcer is slow in healing then you may be sure something is radically wrong with your blood. Some old taint or poison that has been slumbering there for years is beginning to assert itself, and breaks out and becomes a bad ulcer and perhaps the beginning of Cancer.

Dear Sirs:—I have not words strong enough to praise your great medicine. I had a sore on my left temple for several years. It would itch and burn and bleed, would scab over, but would never heal. The doctors pronounced it Cancer. After taking S. S. S. awhile the sore began to discharge, and when all the poisonous matter had passed out it healed. I took in all about thirty bottles, taking it for some time after it had entirely healed. This was about ten years ago, and I have seen no sign of it since.
Gant, Audrain County, Mo. JOSEPHUS REID.

These old sores are rooted in the blood, and while washes, soaps, salves, etc., keep the surface clean, they are not healing. A blood medicine to purify and strengthen the polluted blood, and a tonic to build up the general system is what is needed, and S. S. S. is just such a remedy. No poison is so powerful and no germ so deadly that this great vegetable blood remedy cannot reach it, and ulcers of every kind quickly yield to its wonderful curative properties. Medical advice or any information you may desire will be given by our physician without charge.

GOVERNMENT BY CORPORATIONS.

If there are any worse anarchists in Colorado than the members of the Mine Owners' association and their tools, the officials of the state government, then they have yet to be pointed out. The latest move of these mine owners is to forcibly close the only mine operating with union labor in the lawless district and to forbid its being opened until all its employes receive working cards from the Mine Owners' association.

What a howl there would be from certains organs of government by corporations if the forces of a state government should be ordered to close down a non-union mine at the behest of a labor union because the union members had decided that the closing was necessary in order to preserve the peace of the community! What a rattling of dry bones there would be if the governor of any state should so completely lend himself to the uses of organized labor as Governor Peabody has lent himself and the forces of the state to further the nefarious schemes of organized greed.

Union men are even prevented from working on a new gold prospect outside the boundaries of the district where martial law is declared and they are shot down by the minions of the law without warning and without justification. When spoken to in regard to this matter, Governor Peabody said in effect: "I do not know where the boundary line is, neither do I care," as much as to say that he had sent the state's forces to break up the miners' union and drive the union men out of the country and he did not care what means they employed to do it, even if they resorted to cold-blooded murder in order to carry out his orders.

Officers of the union deny any knowledge of the perpetration of the recent outrage at the Cripple Creek depot, and there is reason to believe that they tell the truth. The career of anarchy inaugurated and carried out by the Mine Owners' association and their tools since the crime occurred is conclusive evidence that they would not hesitate to hire such a crime committed if they thought thereby they might be enabled to destroy the miners' union. Their closing of the Portland mine and thus depriving 300 men of an opportunity to earn a living is every whit as great a crime as the other. The man who is thus deprived of his livelihood could not be blamed if he would shoulder a gun and fight until he died in defense of his liberty and his rights as an American citizen.

FOR THE LAND HUNGRY.

The Herald has been asked several times for information concerning the opening of the Rosebud Indian reservation in South Dakota.

The best way to procure complete information is to send a letter to W. A. Richards, the commissioner of the general land office at Washington. It is not necessary to patronize the land agents, who advertise information at $5 to $10.

The method of procedure in order to procure a chance in the distribution may be thus briefly stated:

Registration at Chamberlain, Bonesteel, Yankton or Fairfax, S. D., must be made in person, except ex-soldiers, who may make application through an agent. Soldiers of the Spanish-American war are included in this privilege.

Having obtained a certificate of registry, one may examine the lands, but make no settlement in advance of the opening day, which is Aug. 8, 1904. The drawing, which is by lot, takes place July 8, 1904. The applicant must be personally present at the drawing.

The price of the lands is $4 per acre. Of this sum $1 must be paid when the entry is made and 75 cents per acre after two, three, four and five years. Besides this there are the usual fees of the land office.

As much of the land is worth as it lies $15 to $20 per acre, the rush to possess it is easily understood.

It is estimated that the chance of each applicant will be one in 25 or 30. It is now claimed that at least 60,000 persons will appear in line for the drawing. However, you are on a footing with the best of them and may draw a prize.

GREAT ENEMY OF GOOD ROADS.

Among the elements and forces of nature there are several enemies of good roads, but the greatest of them is water. It washes away the material of the road. It soaks into the road and softens it so that the wagon wheels cut into the surface, making ruts and holes. It permeates and softens the foundation so that the surface of the road sinks or breaks up. In the winter the water that is in the road freezes, expands, and loosens and disintegrates the road material.

The most important thing in the building of roads is to lessen or prevent the ravages of water; yet no feature of the work is so neglected as this. Many local road supervisors seem to give no consideration to the question of drainage, and the result is a regular mud blockage during several weeks or months of the year.

The following are a few simple rules given by an expert road builder, the observance of which would go far toward bettering the roads of this country:

First. The road should be so located and constructed as to avoid steep grades down which the water rushes during heavy rains, tearing up and washing away road material.

Second. The foundation of the road should be thoroughly drained by open side ditches which will carry off the water, and where necessary tile drains should be laid in the foundation itself.

Third. The surface of the road should be hard and smooth and have sufficient slope toward the sides to shed the surface water.

Fourth. Ruts and holes on the surface of the finished road should be filled as fast as made so that no water can lie on the surface to be worked up into mud.

These rules are simple and easy to follow, and any one who gives any serious thought to the matter can see the wisdom of following them. Still they are almost universally ignored as the condition of our roads abundantly proves.

What this country needs is a radical change, a new era in road building. The people have been moving in ruts in more senses than one, and if each local community is left to work out the road problem alone, they will continue to move in the same ruts, and every year millions of dollars will be thrown into the mud, to say nothing of the losses resulting from the use of bad roads. Lectures on road improvement seem to do very little good. Books and bulletins on road building appear to have very little effect.

What the local communities need is practical object-lessons, and actual assistance, and these can come only from the state governments and the federal government. It is for this season that road reformers everywhere are turning toward state and national aid as the only solution of the road problem.

The bad roads of the United States are a blight, a curse, a disgrace, and all patriotic, progressive citizens should make a grand united effort to wipe them out and put our nation on a level with the advanced nations of Europe in the matter of roads.

THE PREACHER IN POLITICS.

In a recent issue of the Outlook Dr. Lyman Abbot, speaking of politics in the pulpit repeats these words he had formerly written in a "Letter To a Minister:" "What I recommend to you on the subject of political preaching, then, is this: Deal with all the public issues of your time, but deal with them exclusively in their relation to the kingdom of God. As a citizen, you may be a Republican or a Democrat, a Populist or a Prohibitionist, but in your pulpit be neither."

This is undoubtedly good advice, but somewhat needless. Very few preachers would run the risk of working in the interests of any palitical party in the pulpit. By way of illustration of his point Dr. Abbot said: "I noticed that during the Bryan campaign the ministers who preached on the political issues in the East asured us that the gold standard was the only honest money, and the ministers who preached in Colorado were equally certain that free silver was the only honest money."

It will be remembered, also, that previous to the civil war Northern ministers denounced slavery as an institution, while ministers belonging to the same denomination in the South defended it as an institution authorized by the Bible and sanctified by God. Even Southerners now realize that slavery was wrong and yet some of these ministers might have been honestly mistaken in endeavoring to uphold it. There are men today who attempt to justify it on the ground that it was God's plan for elevating the black race, while hundreds of thousands of white men who never owned a slave gave up their lives in an effort to prevent the freeing of other people's slaves.

Was not the Northern minister justified in preaching from the pulpit that slavery was wrong? The Herald believes so. Yet Southern people denounced Henry Ward Beecher and other pulpiteers who declaimed against slavery, as "meddlers in politics."

If a preacher honestly believes that the gold standard is right let him say that if he wants to. If another thinks that bimetallism is right let him have his say. Truth will prevail in the end. Error cannot live always even though preachers uphold it.

How a minister is going to "deal with all the public issues of his time" with any effect, if he fails to reveal what position he takes on those issues, it is difficult to see. A preacher has just as much right to express his opinion publicly on all the issues of the day as has an editor or a private citizen, and if he is an unreasonable partisan it will not take long for his hearers to find him out.

THE FIELD SURVEY

Even Southern officials and newspapers now condemn lynching in the abstract. But the trouble with most newspapers and officials North and South is that as soon as a lynching occurs in their own community they forget to condemn it and either remain silent or give the affair indirect approval, while the participants, although well known, are rarely apprehended, for political reasons.

A new political organization, known as the United Christian party, has sprung into existence. Its members want the government to recognize God by placing his name in the constitution. It will probably continue to stand alone.

Labor unions cannot exist if they permit non-union workmen to work alongside union members. When, therefore, the unions ask for the signing of contracts making "closed shops" they are only asking something that might later prevent a strike in order to keep out non-union workingmen. Harsh as the rule may seem to refuse to work with non-union men in the same trade, it is only a matter of self-defense. The "open shop" means "no union." That is all there is to it.

It was appropriate, of course, that Henry C. Frick should first make official announcement that Attorney General Knox was a candidate for the office of United States senator to succeed M. S. Quay. It was also quite appropriate that Knox should be immediately appointed. This will leave no room for doubt in the minds of the general public as to his ownership and who it is that has directed his course as attorney general. This also ought to definitely settle in the public mind the status of President Roosevelt as a "trust buster." There was no need for Mr. Knox to announce that it was not the purpose of the administration to "run amuck" among the trusts. It was plain to be seen that it has been running "in the muck" prepared by the trusts.

The people of Louisville are raising a fund so that the case of Jim Howard, who was convicted of complicity in a political murder, may be reviewed by the supreme court, where there is no chance for local passion or prejudice to control the judicial action. The fund is being contributed to by members of all parties, which is further indication that the people of Kentucky can be relied upon to give those charged with political murders a fair trial.

The New York Times asks: "After Port Arthur, what?" Well, it appears to be the Japs.

Commenting on the report that there were few young men in the Democratic convention at Detroit last week, the Marquette Journal says: "Young men are naturally attracted to the party that has power for getting things done. The role of obstructionist, particularly when it entails membership in a singularly unharmonious and bickering family, has no temptations for them." It is presumed, then, that young men have superior judgment to older ones. It is a wonder that the editor of the Marquette paper waited until he was middle-aged before he joined the "party that gets things." It is noticed that ever since he joined it he has "been getting" something.

IF YOU DO NOT KNOW, YOU OUGHT TO KNOW:

That in connection with the movement made to discourage the use of harmful patent medicines, the official chemists of some of the states affirm that many much advertised "face bleaches" contain either corrosive sublimate or bichloride of mercury. The state chemist of Massachusetts finds that a remedy much exploited to cure the drink habit contains 41 per cent of alcohol and another 26 per cent; a certain sulphur bitters contains 20 per cent of alcohol with no sulphur at all. The bureau of chemistry at Washington has analyzed many of these remedies and finds that starch paste is the principal ingredient of a well-known consumptive cure. A wise movement has been inaugurated to compel the printing of the formulas on the labels of all such bottles and the postoffice department is taking steps to minimize the evil by forbidding the mails to some manufacturers on the ground of their fraudulent use.

That postoffice receipts for the fiscal year ending July 1 next will approximate $143,000,000. In 1896 the receipts were $92,000,000. There are 25,000 rural free delivery routes in operation that serve nearly 13,000,000 people in the rural districts.

That according to our last census there are 326,000 college-trained men in the nation, 650,000 high school graduates and 12,000,000 men who have gone through a common school course. Taking the publication of "Who Is Who In America" as a basis of comparison we find that of the 10,000 successful men mentioned, the names of self-taught appear but 26 times in the compilation; the home-taught, 228 times; the men with the common school training, 1066 times, with high-school training 1027 times, and the college training, 7709 times. So that, according to this authority, the college-trained man has achieved success ten times as often as the high school graduate and 200 times as often as the man with a common school education.

That the United States is the largest producer and also the largest consumer of cotton. During the past twenty years it has increased its cotton crop nearly 5,500,000 bales, or about 96 per cent, while the world's consumption of cotton has increased about 7,000,000 bales, or about 94 per cent. During the same period the consumption of cotton in the South has increased 1,608,000 bales, or 509 per cent, while the consumption in the North has increased 762,000 bales, or 59 per cent.

That statistics in Massachusetts show that there 19 of every 100 native-born women are employed in profitable occupations, while 12 of every 100 foreign-born women are so employed. Most of these women are unmarried. The inquiry has also elicited the fact that 26 per cent of the young women of Massachusetts materially help in the support of their families.

That our over-sea exports carried in American bottoms have declined from 90 per cent down to 9 per cent, while our commerce on land has increased enormously. Ship subsidies and all sorts of panaceas have been suggested to remedy this condition of affairs in our shipping. It mosts more to build a ship here than it does abroad and it is more expensive to man a ship with American sailosrs than with any other nationality.

That during the first four months of this calendar year, this country imported $32,405,500 of gold, while it exported $23,361,296. There have been exported from New York during the month of May, $36,550,000, while there have been imports at San Francisco of $6,500,000, but our gold balance will quickly be made up by imports from Alaska within the next few months. Our current production of gold in this country is about $6,600,000 per month.

HOTEL GOSSIP

Phonetic spelling seems to be very attractive to those who stop at the hotels, at least to some of them. All sorts of dodges are resorted to by different people to save time and fill all the spaces on the landlord's book of entry. Attention was called in this column some time since to the railroad conductors who put their names and then "ditto" whatever town may be above after the last previous arrival. This saves the writer considerable time and is not strange of the railroad men, for they are in every day nearly—at least every other day—and they know that their arrival is not watched for as much as other people's. This is not because they are not liked, but they come in at regular periods and can be anticipated, and other people cannot. They are so well known about the hotels, too, that anyone who is looking for them usually knows just what town they hail from, as well as the rooms they usually use when they get here.

The latest phonetic spelling, to return to the subject, was observed yesterday, and reminds one of the discussion of the spelling and pronunciation of words that end in "ough." This particular case was on view at the Spalding where the register showed that a man was stopping from "Boton."

The copper country town is not often spelled in this fashion, but is probably entitled to the shorter way, if any place is. It may not be long until some people, to avoid mistaken spelling as well as to give an idea of proper pronunciation, may spell Grand Marais "Grand Mary," it is often called "Grand Marias," which makes some people think of elegant patrol wagons, which are often known as "marias."

"Say, will you telephone down to the cigar store and see if there's any mail for us?" asked a member of the Crookston ball team at the St. Louis of the clerk behind the desk.

"I think it's about a block down there and I don't want to walk down to find out. There might not be anything there any way."

So the obliging clerk took the trouble to 'phone the cigar store a short distance away to save the overworked baseball man the trip. There was some mail, and the ball man started out the door to go after it, without even thanking the clerk, which resulted in comment among some people who noticed the incident to the effect that the baseball business is exhausting and the men must save their strength. Maybe the Crookstonians are especially mindful of their vigor when they go up against the White Sox, as they need it then more than at some other times.

The Fashion In Canes.

Louisville Courier-Journal: It affords the Courier-Journal pleasure to be able to publish this important piece of information, straight from Noo Yok:

"To be in correct form a man when carrying a cane should put it under his left arm. The handle should be almost on a level with his shoulders and behind him and the ferrule should point toward the ground in front.

"The arm should be crooked, clasping the cane to his side, and the left hand should hold the cane lightly at about the center. Sometimes it is quite proper to carry the cane in the right hand and to use it in walking, but it must never be carried in the right hand swinging idly. The fashion of carrying it with the handle turned toward the ground has gone out entirely."

Before very long we hope to secure, from the same authoritative source, definite instructions as to how a man should carry his crutch. At present there is room for uncertainty as to whether it is the correct thing to carry it over his right or his left ear.

This Month of June.

When the waters dance with gladness,
And the blue skies, bending over,
Bear no trace of clouds or sadness,
And the fields are spread with clover;
When the feathery dandelion
Stars with gold the emerald grasses,
And each tip of bough and scion
Droops with bloom in snowy masses;
When the birds with joyous singing
All their bliss and hopes are telling,
And the south wind balm is bringing,
All the name of June are spelling.
—NINETTE M. LOWATER, in New York Sun.

His Choice.

Diogenes lived in a tub.
"You see," he told his friends, "I've found
It's better than a flat. There is No janitor to boss me 'round."
—Washington Star.

Unabashed.

Washington Star: "It is hinted," said the close adviser, "that there is no excuse for your having so much money."

"My friend," answered Senator Sorghum, "those people don't understand our social system. Nowadays it's a waste of time to expect a man to stand up and apologize for having money."

PRICE OF OIL REDUCED.

Cleveland, O., June 10.—The Standard Oil company today reduced quotations on all grades of refined oil, naptha and gasoline ½ cent per gallon.

LINES TO A LAUGH.

"What is she studying?"

"Studying how to get Jane a graduation outfit."

I'm glad I'm livin' nowadays,
For I have heard it said
That though we earn our living now,
The Romans urned their dead.
—Yale Record.

Princeton Tiger: First Student—I get all my exercise running to chapel in the morning.

Second Student—Ah. I see! A sort of religious exercise.

New Yorker: Smith—I woke up last night with a horrible suspicion that my new gold watch was gone. So strong was the impression that I got up to look.

Brown—Well, was it gone?

Smith—No; but it was going.

Chicago News: Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a confidence man?

Pa—A confidence man, my son, is a man who separates others from their money and their confidence simultaneously.

Princeton Tiger: The hare easily caught up with the tortoise. "Well, old man, you're not much of a runner," he sneered.

"No," admitted the tortoise, "I'm not. I think I'll try for the crew. You see, I'm quite at home in the shell."

DRAWN FROM THE WOOD.

New York Sun: A sylvan coolness blows from "The Wooden Works of Thomas Anonymous," printed in Baltimore and bound, or said to be, at the Backwoods bindery, Sumter, S. C. In these periodical sprees of the mercury, poetry from the woods is refreshing. The mystifying "Thomas" has returned to the wooden age of books. He prints on wood. He binds in wood, genuine boards. His wooden slabs and their exterior wooden walls are held together by tiny rings, connected by an ornamental brass chain. He might have added a couple of wooden clasps, but what's the use of finding fault with a genius and an original? "Thomas" is thoroughly enjoying himself; and if merit is appreciated, his poems will be hanging by the chain from a peg or hook in hundreds of happy homes.

He admits facetiously that he "took to the woods" when his brain was big with poetry. Wooden as the book looks, he thinks "it will be necessary to peruse the contents fully in order for anyone to appreciate fully how thoroughly wooden it is." Mock modesty; the book is fine gold. What a joy are these godlike lines to us who have long insisted that the art of poetry is merely a carving of prose into assorted lengths and hunks:

"The undulatory theory which assumes that ether is
An elastic and sensibly imponderable fluid
Pervading
All space, the motions of whose particles in the form

If there is anything wooden in that it is the rustle of immemorial elms. Sleep drips from every line. You hear the murmur of straws in oceans of sherry cobblers. This is a man to set Ganot's "Physics" to music and compel the "Principia" to "rag time."

Now for a more jovial vein:

"Miss Luna spends the change she makes for trips around the world she takes; she must through all her quarters run, yet silver change can count upon; in silver Luna rolls, and she suggests the silver coinage free; for minds the moon can change and churn—with moon and men the tide will turn. On earth's affairs and human sense the moon exerts an influence. She sets—her duty is to hatch those theories that moonlight match. The setting moon like setting hen is mad, and mad she makes the men."

This poet is nobly wild, not mad. Behold a glorious rhyme, of unimaginable beauty:

"And I dreamed I was greens and that coons grazed me o'er,
And of wild men with limited literature."

In this woodhouse there is unlimited literature, infinite riches in a little room. The works of Thomas Anonymous are illustrated xylographically in the grand manner. Who is this true Thomas the Rhymer? Our old Gopher friend, Jadam Bede, used to put his poetic legs into birch bark "pants." Has he now enshrined his feet in wood?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There is more money lost in amateur gardens than in the stock market.

The man who is willing to quit smoking to save money is the one whom tobacco doesn't agree with.

Angel cake is a square meal on the honeymoon; afterward nothing will do but steak and fried potatoes.

A woman can cry her eyes out over her bad luck in having a funeral and a bargain sale come on the same day.

It tickles a woman to death to think if her husband lost all his money how everybody would be talking about her heroism.

SAGE ON VACATIONS.

Washington Post: Russell Sage has given out an interview, in which he opposes vacations. Russell Sage would probably turn every human soul into a hump-backed, round-shouldered money-making automaton. He would have all men tune their ear to the crinkle of greenbacks and clink of coins instead of the singing of birds, the ripple of the brook and the rustle of the leaves. Sage is not as wise as his name.

With normal men money is not all there is in life. If the dollar were every man's ideal there would be no love, music or laughetr in the world. It was the highest authority on earth who declared that a man's life does not consist in the abundance of the things that he possesses, "for the life is more than meat and the body is more than raiment."

The summer vacation has its economic use. It encourages and helps a man to live longer and therefore to work a greater number of years. It gives him the opportunity to learn new things and to think new thoughts, thus enhancing the quality of his work. It gives him a chance to see nature at wrok, and this ought to make him a stronger, better and more sympathetic man.

Vacations to employes are worth the price to employers, and the average employers knows this, even if Russell Sage, in the blindness of his greed, does not.

Mr. Sage says that during his eighty-eight years of life he has not taken a vacation. Poor man; to stand on the edge of eternity and never to have fished, or golfed, or boated, or picked daisies in the summer fields! If Mr. Sage had taken a few vacations he might have been a wiser man.

6000 Miles From a Jury.

New York World: "No freeman," promised King John under the persuasion of the barons at Runnymede, "shall be taken, or imprisoned, or disseized, or outlawed, or exiled, or in any way harmed—nor will we go upon or send upon him—save by the lawful judgment of his peers or by the law of the land."

For nearly seven hundred years that has been the law of English-speaking men. But the Supreme Court of the United States, by its favorite vote of five to four, has decided that not only the Constitution but Magna Charta stops this side of the Philippines. American citizens living in that favorite land are not to enjoy the right of trial by jury because congress was under no obligation to extend that right to a people unit to exercise it.

Of course the law is what the majority of the Supreme Court declares it to be. But there is no disrespect to that lofty tribunal in saying that our flag is floating over seven million people who are unfit to be trusted with trial by jury it is wandering altogether too far from home.

Pointers By Pease.

Anoka Union: Anyway Sam Johnson made Bob Dunn squirm.

Senator Knute Nelson has flown from the wrath to come.

Joel P. Heatwole wants to be United States senator. Misguided politician.

Costly indeed must be this campaign to both Collins and Dunn.

Many republicans are wishing for a deadlock to the coming state convention.

There never was a time more ripe for a man of the people to be nominated for governor.

The expenditure of so much money to gain the nomination for office is one of the crying evils of the twentieth century.

Hennepin county should quit its foolishness, and bring out a man for United States senator. Then sacrifice everything else to that end.

As to Barrels.

Puck: "The candidate's income is large, is it not?"

"Fairly so; about a barrel and a half per minute."

THE YOUNG GIRL

Hostesses Who Do the Honors For Fathers at Washington.

Miss Helen Cannon and Miss Flora Wilson the Leaders.

Washington, June 10.—The most prominent of the young girl hostesses for their fathers in Washington are Miss Helen Cannon, daughter of the speaker of the house, and Miss Flora Wilson, daughter of the secretary of agriculture. They live within two doors of each other on Vermont avenue, and have known each other ever since the beginning of the McKinley administration. Miss Cannon became prominent the past winter when her father was elevated to the speaker's chair, and she has made a splendid record for tact and brains. She has made a record of dinner giving second to no one in society, and has at one time and another entertained every member of congress at least once during the season, and she knows how to give delightful dinners, too, in spite of the fact that this is the first season her father has maintained an establishment in Washington.

Miss Cannon has been hostess for her father since she was quite a small girl, but most of their entertaining has been done in their home in Danville, Ill. They have always returned to this home in Illinois as soon as congress adjourned, but, having a house here to look after, Miss Cannon will not go immediately.

She made quite a record this winter on her "one hour" dinners. She was the first to adopt this plan for a large company, and she served several dinners of 24 covers in one hour. Her receptions have been among the very largest of the winter, and it is a fact that only once or twice have the speaker and his daughter dined alone since the opening of congress.

Miss Wilson is the only unmarried hostess of the cabinet circle, and, strange to say, she has served the longest time of any of the cabinet ladies. She is, in fact, the only original hostess in the cabinet, her father being the only one of Mr. McKinley's first circle of counsellors who has remained. At the end of next season Miss Wilson will have served for eight consecutive years in the limelight of the cabinet circle.

She came to Washington fresh from her college honors. Her father being a widower for many years, she has discharged the duties of his household with much skill. She is a musician of some ability, a soprano singer and has given her services many times for charity and social affairs.

The Countess Cassini is the only unmarried hostess in the diplomatic corps. She is not only gracious, clever and cultivated, but is original in the extreme. Bar Harbor will know the little countess this summer, as the Russian embassy will be located there for the season, the first summer the count and countess have spent in this country for several years.

Miss Helen F. Warren, daughter of the senator from Wyoming, is acting as hostess here for her father. Mrs. Warren died a few years ago, while her daughter was away at school. Miss Warren was a novice at presiding at dinner tables or receptions, but came to the duties with much grace. She has shown great adaptability and originality. She is extremely attractive, with a pretty face and charming manners.

Senator and Miss Warren have apartments in the New Willard, and while they have given a number of small dinners, their only large entertainment was the dinner given early in the season in honor of Secretary Taft. The guests were seated at a table made in the form of a hollow square, the center of which was a miniature Panama canal. The decorations were all in red, white and blue, and tiny electric lights in those colors aded to the effect. This dinner created much comment, there being more than 100 guests at it, constituting it the largest dinner party of the season.

Miss Anna Cockrell, daughter of the senator from Missouri, succeeded to the position of hostess when her elder sister, Marion, was married to Mr. Gallaudet, 18 months ago. She is a very good-looking young woman, tall and willowy, with graceful manners. She is fond of horses and horse races.

Miss Katherine Cullom Ridgeley, the debutante daughter of Comptroller Ridgeley, has presided over several dinners this season with much grace. She is a charming girl, scarcely 20, and has been brilliantly launched upon society this year by her father and grandmother, the wife of Senator Cullom, both in Washington and Chicago.

Miss Louise Kauffmann, daughter of Samuel H. Kauffmann, is one of the most delightful of the unmarried hostesses. Her mother died some years ago, while she was still a schoolgirl, and she assumed the duties of mistress of the household at once. Miss Kauffmann has entertained almost all of the prominent people who come to Washington, and has had a brilliant career in Washington society without being in the official set. As the daughter of one of the owners of the Evening Star, and a man who was interested in all public institutions and affairs pertaining to Washington, she has been called upon to entertain nearly all clases of people.

Miss Morgan, daughter of Senator Morgan, of Alabama, is the mistress of her father's household. She is a girl of fine character and mind, cares little for society, has her own small circle of friends and entertains little in a large way.

OBJECT TO BILL BOARDS.

Minnesota Art Society Passes Strong Resolutions.

St. Paul, June 10.—The governing body of the State Art society, at its meeting yesterday at the state capitol, took a stand against the billboard nuisance. The Art society adopted a resolution protesting against the abuse of billboard advertising, commending the St. Paul Civic league for its stand against the nuisance, and asking that the next legislature pass laws to remedy conditions.

The session of the governing body was a rgular monthly meeting and there was a full membership present. The subject of an abatement of the bill board nuisance in St. Paul and in other cities and towns of the state was brought before the meeting and the following resolution was unanimously passed by the directors of the society:

"While we recognize the right of the producer to acquaint the public with the nature of his products in any legitimate and inoffensive way, and also the fact that advertising is of mutual benefit both to the producer and consumer, we greatly deplore the extent to which it is carried on in the large cities and many of the smaller towns of our state, obscuring the prospect of travelers along our highways and becoming an offense to the esthetic taste of all who have a love for the beautiful.

"We highly commend the efforts of the Civic league of St. Paul to cultivate public sentiment by having a model signboard erected and agitating the question in its public meetings.

"Resolved, that we will gladly co-operate with all efforts to secure legislation providing for a state law which shall tend to regulate and curtail street advertising throughout the state, either by imposing a tax or limiting the size of boardings and the number of places where advertising may be done."

CANNOT PREVENT BILLBOARDS.

Chicago, June 10.—Four years fighting against unsightly billboards has failed. The appelate court yesterday declared the city's billboard ordinance invalid and unreasonable. The ruling was made in the case of a bill poster, who has been for four years in litigation with the city over the ordinances. The court holds that owners, if they do not imperil others, have the constitutional right to erect on vacant property any structure they please, no matter how unsightly.

OFFICERS ELECTED

By the New Lake Superior Corporation.

New York, June 10.—Two stockholders of the Lake Superior corporation, which is the reorganized Consolidated Lake Superior company, met in this city yesterday and elected the following officers and board of directors: President, Charles D. Warren, of Toronto; vice presidents, Charles E. Orvis, of New York, and Thomas J. Drummond, of Montreal; treasurer, John T. Terry, Jr., New York. Directors, Francis B. Reeves, Philadelphia; T. T. Fee, Philadelphia; John T. Terry, New York; Dumont Clarke, New York, George B. Turrell, Oranage, N. J.; F. H. Clergue, Sault Ste. Marie; Charles S. Hinchman, Philadelphia; N. W. Rowell, Toronto, and Edward Q. Trowbridge, New Haven.

The president of the new company is the president of the Traders' bank of Toronto. The vice presidents were closely identified with the old corporation. Director Clergue was president and general manager of the Consolidated Lake Superior company.

A check for $1,000,000 to be used as working capital, was paid into the treasury of the company at yesterday's meeting.

UTAH DELEGATES GO UNINSTRUCTED.

Salt Lake, June 10.—Utah Democrats in state convention yesterday decided to send the six delegates from Utah to the Democratic national convention uninstructed. Four of these six, it is said, are against Hearst with a leaning toward Parker, as first choice. Two delegates probably will support Hearst.

Decision of the party leaders to avoid all reference to the question of polygamy was carried out so thoroughly that no committee on resolutions was appointed and no platform was presented to the convention.

DOWN WITH MERGER

Is Now the Slogan of the Collins Supporters.

Both Sides Still Claim Hennepin In Democratic Convention.

St. Paul, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Down with the merger and corporation control of state politics."

This is to be the slogan of the supporters of Judge Loren W. Collins during the three weeks intervening between now and the state convention June 30. It was definitely decided on at a conference of Judge Collins, James A. Martin and other leading supporters of the St. Cloud candidate held recently in the Manhattan building. At that conference it was decided that the attacks on Mr. Dunn's record as state auditor are not good politics, and although Public Examiner S. T. Johnson will carry on a little game of politics all by himself, the regular Collins managers will talk anti-merger.

James A. Martin, being questioned by what hook or crook the Collins men are going to defeat R. C. Dunn, said:

"How about the Republican state platform? Are the Republicans going to have a platform and is it going to stand by the principles on which the Republicans waged their campaign in 1902? If the Republicans stand by this sort of a platform, you need not worry that Dunn will be nominated."

"Yes, I am satisfied that the move of the Collins men from now on is to hammer away on the merger," said one of the Dunn managers yesterday. "I have thought all along that the Collins men would come back to this. They figure their only show to nominate their candidate is to take advantage of whatever anti-merger sentiment is left after Van Sant has got a second term on that issue. The anti-merger talk will hurt us Dunn men some in the southern part of the state, but most of the people believe that the merger is dead."

Tomorrow will settle definitely the Democratic presidential situation in Hennepin county. Both the Hearst and the anti-Hearst men claim victory in the recent primaries, and the exact situation will not be known until the county convention is held tomorrow. People who are watching the situation are not so sure today as they were Wednesday that the Hearst men are in the lead. The Hearst men claim 258 delegates to their opponents 107 with 18 missing, and the anti-Hearst men claim 232 to their opponents 173.

Elijah Barton, leader of the anti-Hearst forces, yesterday gave out the following estimate:

Wards—	Hearst	Anti-Hearst.
First	22	14
Second	3	15
Third	3	57
Fourth	25	22
Fifth	19	21

L. A. Rosing, of Cannon Falls, who has been in St. Paul a few days, said yesterday that he is confident that the state convention will send an uninstructed delegation to the national convention at St. Louis.

The Democratic primaries will be held this evening. Humphrey Barton, one of the Ramsey county leaders, said yesterday regarding the situation in Ramsey:

"I do not think that there will be any contest. The Hearst men are in the minority here. At least they have not been active and I do not look for any considerable effort on their part to capture the delegation."

* * *

Loren Fletcher seems the most likely nominee of the Republicans for congress against John Lind. Efforts of anti-Fletcher men to decide on a new candidate have not been very successful, and the former congressman will probably make another fight against Lind. This seems to be the result of the recent meeting of representative organizations in Hennepin county. Although the meeting was called by anti-Fletcher men, it is reported that the former congressman was considered favorably.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 10.—Twenty-seven persons were injured yesterday in an accident on the Mason City & Clear Lake electric line, while returning to Mason City from the last campfire of the Iowa G. GRAVE WAS DUG BUT THERE WAS NO CORPSE.

Logansport, Ind., June 10.—When Miss Lizzie Leazenby, of Burnettsville, returned home yesterday from a visit she was met at the train by a hearse and a group of sorrowing relatives, who expected to receive her corpse. It developed that a message sent by long distance 'phone, intended to announce her coming, had been misinterpreted during several repetitions, through various exchanges. A grave had been dug, and all funeral preparations made.

TRAVELERS' ASSOCIATION

Exonerate Le Beaume and Elect New Officers.

Springfield, Ill., June 10.—The National Travelers' Protective association, after being in session four days, adjourned at midnight. After considering the case of Louis Le Beaume, the convention, by a vote of 209 to 59, exonerated Le Beaume. The verdict of the convention was directly contrary to the majority of the national directors, who had suspended Le Beaum, and a vindication of the action of the minority, who held that under the constitution of the association he could not be suspended without a trial.

The following officers were elected: President, Horace C. Starr, Richmond, Ind.; first vice president, Thomas S. Beckwith, Petersburg, Va.; fifth vice president, H. H. Hodgeman, St. Paul, Minn. It was decided by unanimous vote to meet next year at Savannah, Ga.

TRIUMPHS OF MODERN SURGERY.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It so allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all druggists.

BOB BURDETTE

And World's Fair Pass That Was Missing.

St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—"I must go in," said Robert Burdette, the minister-humorist. "You can't go in," said the Jefferson guard at the fair grounds, "without a special pass."

"But I have an engagement to make a speech," said Rev. Burdette.

"Engagements don't go without a pass," said the guard.

Burdette argued and persuaded vainly and went back to his hotel.

A short while afterwards a delegation of West Point cadets came to learn why he had not appeared to make the speech. He explained, and the cadets took the matter up with the guard. The result was the same. Then when it was too late Burdette found his pass in an inside pocket. He says it is a joke.

WHEAT IS LOWER

Very Bearish News From Foreign Crops Affects Market.

India Has Huge Exportable Surplus—Flax Slightly Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 10.—Bearish news was thick today and wheat fell sharply particulary in the Duluth market which lost 3¼c on the July, to ½-⅝c in Chicago, ⅛-¼c in Minneapolis and ⅞c in New York. Antwerp reported very large shipments from India this week, more than 2,500,000 bushels and said the exportable surplus from India is now claimed to be 120,000,000 bus., which is 20,000,000 bus., than previously estimated and 61,000,000 bushels larger than India's crop prospect of last year. The estimates of crops of European countries indicates 76,000,000 bus., more wheat than last year.

Weather is good and the Modern Miller report was satisfactory, saying:

"No damage of consequence to the winter wheat crop has resulted from heavy rains in the west which for a time caused apprehnsion. The general promise for the growing crop is satisfactory. Improved conditions being reported from many sections. The plant is heading out as far North as Neb. and cutting has begun south of the Ohio river and in Oklahoma. The yields reported so far are fauly up to or exceeding previous expectations. The crop in Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan will be the smallest since 1900.

Michigan furnished about the only bullish news apart from the small Northwestern receipts which continue far below last year. The state report from there placed the condition of wheat at 47 which was 7 points off from last month. The condition a year ago was 86.

Liverpool closed ⅝@½d lower and Paris ¼c lower.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 22, against 23 last year and at Minneapolis 120, against 288 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 142, against 281 last year. Chicago received 17, against 27 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 236,542 bus., last year 308,281 bus. Shipments 392,152 bus., last year 225,357 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 68,-651 bus. Bradstreet reports weekly clearances from America of 1,482,062 bus. Argentine shipments were 1,936,000 bus. this week against 1,592,000 bus. last week and 2,068,000 bus. last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ½d lower. July corn in the Chicago market closed a shade higher. July oats closed a shade lower. Primary receipts of corn were 765,105 bus., last year 367,800 bus. Shipments 674,400 bus., last year 657,785 bus. Clearances were 11,676 bus. Argentine shipments this week were 2,166,000 bus., against 2,066,000 bus. last week, and 1,432,000 bus. last year.

Trading in wheat was very quiet in the Duluth market. Cash offerings were light and in futures little was doing. July opened unchanged at 94½c, advanced to 95⅝c at 9:45. From that point it fell off steadily to 93½c at noon and then rallied somewhat, closing at 93¾c, which was ¾c off from yesterday. The September option closed without change at 91½c.

Flax was a little more active and July fell off 3c to $1.03¾ and then rallied to $1.04¼. It then closed at $1.05, which was 1c lower than yesterday. Other options lost ½c. Flax stocks at Duluth are estimated to decrease 250,000 bus this week. Argentine shipments of flax this week were 1,456,000 bus., against 600,000 bus last week and 188,000 bus last year.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Several Reasons Cause Easier Tone In Wheat Pit.

Chicago, June 10.—Large Argentine shipments and a gain during May of 7 points in the condition of Kentucky wheat, as shown by the state report, today offset the bullish effect of heavy rainfalls in the Southwest, causing an easier tone in the wheat market. In spite of lower cables the opening was firm on wet weather, July being up ⅛c to ¼c at 86⅝@86¾c. Sentimen soon changed, however, and considerable selling pressure developed. Prospects of a bearish government report had a depressing influence. On the decline, July sold off to 86¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 159 cars, against 206 cars last week and 203 cars a year ago.

For a time there was general selling by small holders on apprehension of a bearish government report. A reported decline of 5c in the price of cash wheat at Toledo and a decline of 1½c at Kansas City helped to create weakness in the speculative trading. Before the declining tendency was checked, July sold to 85¾c. There was a rally late in the day due partly to the bullish Michigan report. Only a part of the early loss was regained, July closing 1⅝@¾c lower at 86¼c.

Wet weather in Kansas, together with a bullish Nebraska crop report, held corn steady in the face of easier cables and weakness of wheat. July opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 48⅜@⅝c to 48⅝c, sold up to 49⅛c and then steadied around 48¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 520 cars, with 31 of contract grade.

Considering the weakness of wheat the corn market held firm, although prices showed some declines. July closed a shade lower at 48⅞c, after selling down to 48⅛c.

Early firmness of wheat had a stimulating effect on the price of oats, but trading was only of moderate proportions. July opened unchanged to a shade higher, at 39⅝@39¾c to 39¾c and held at 39⅝c. Local receipts were 95 cars.

Provisions were firm on light receipts of hogs. There was a fair demand from packers and offerings were light. September pork opened unchanged to 5c up at $12.20 to $13.35, advancing later to $13.37½. September lard was down 5c at $6.80. Ribs were up 2½c to 5c at $7.15@7.17½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—It was a heavy market throughout most of the day but before the close recovered some of its decline. The whole cash situation is dull and heavy. The demand everywhere is slow and cash premiums are beginning to crumble away. From every place where harvest is iminent the reports of large yield and good quality continues to come in. Broomhall cables that southeastern Europe is having the much needed rains. The government report this afternoon is rather expected to show an improvement of a point or two in the condition of winter and pretty high condition for spring wheat.

Corn—It is very dull and very steady market. There is some shipping demand but it is not on a large scale. The market however seems to be pretty well supported. Our view would be that if the price suits and the corn prospects are favorable, there will be corn enough to go round.

Oats—Supply and demand are about on an even keel and stocks of oats are not large and market is without much selling pressure. Speculative operations are small and featureless. Pattten interests are no doubt under the July.

Provisions—It was again a strong market under about the same conditions that have prevailed so far this month. Packers are the best buyers. The disappointment over moderate receipts of hogs is increasing and the buying is influenced by this fact. The stocks in the hands of outside speculators and are not being offered freely. There is a fairly good demand for meats but a slow demand for lard.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: Wheat—The cables came lower; weather all that could be desired; no rains anywhere. The government crop report is expected to be bearish, owing to the improved winter wheat situation and very fine spring wheat outlook. All these factors gave us a weak start in wheat today and, with the exception of one or two feeble rallies, the market has been heavy all morning. The market is getting down where purchases will prove more profitable than sales. Don't believe that 80c September wheat will worry the holder very much and we advise buying it on a scale down if it should break any more from these prices.

Corn and oats—Corn and oats have been firm all day. Believe we have had our break in corn and that purchases around these prices will show a good profit in the near future.

Provisions—The provision market is strong; packers and commission houses good buyers. Pork acts well and looks like going much higher. Buy it on all reactions.

Estimates of the foreign crops: United Kingdom 32,000,000, against 56,000,000 this time 1903; France 376,000,000, against 320,000,000; Russia 560,000,000, against 480,000,000; Germany 144,000,000, against 128,000,000; Roumania 47,000,000, against 72,000,000; Italy 168,000,000, against 144,000,000; Spain 96,000,000, against 120,000,000; Hungary 176,000,000, against 144,000,000. These estimates figure 76,000,000 bus. more wheat than last year.

Broomhall cables: Our Argentine agent cables that the weather is unfavorable for the new wheat seeding, rain being much wanted. The wheat markets are weak owing to the export demand continuing small. Arrivals from interior are moderate and the quality of the grain has improved now being satisfactory. The corn markets are dull with a continuance of a light demand from foreigners. The arrivals at the ports are fair in quantity but still unsatisfactory as regards quality.

• • •

W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: Wheat—Fine weather, easier cables and the approach of a government report which is expected to be bearish were again the dominating influence., and prices dragged to a lower level. The market has now declined 4c a bus since Monday, and it begins to look as though the liquidation was fairly complete and that the market had changed from an overbought to an oversold condition. For the time being the bullish features of the situation have been lost sight of, but they still exist and will, we believe, again assert themselves. Primary receipts 256,542, against 302,831 a year ago.

Corn—There was some selling on fine weather and estimates of over 600 cars for tomorrow, but the market absorbed these offerings and rallied easily, showing the same stubborn undertone noted yesterday. We acnnot hear of any pressure to sell cash corn in the country at this level, and believe the long side is safer than the short side.

Oats—A very narrow but fairly firm market, yielding a little on the weakness in wheat, but recovering easily. The situation is strong and the market waiting for some new motive, which will most likely be on the buying side.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

More Cheerful Seniiment Was Created Among the Traders.

Closing Quiet and Steady at About the Best Figures.

New York, June 10.—In the stock market today American Smelting rose ¾ and Chicago Great Western preferred "A" fell as much. Otherwise the opening changes were restricted to ⅛@⅜ and ⅛@⅜ either way. The trading was languid and the market was narrow and uninteresting.

Expectations of a good showing by the government crop report to be issued after the close of business today, prompted a better demand for the Western stocks. St. Paul led the division with a rise of ⅞ and there were also a large absorption of Atchison and the Pacifics. Small gains were the rule throughout and trading was larger. Denver & Rio Grande preferred and Metropolitan Street Railway improved ⅞. Hocking Valley 1. American Telephone & Telegraph 2½. Westinghouse Electric 2⅝ and General Electric 3. Reading was bought heavily and touched 47⅞. Chicago Great Western preferred "A" declined 1¾ and Realty preferred was heavy.

Buying orders made their appearance again after a period of dullness and prices rose to the best. Pennsylvania was in conspicuous demand up to 115. There were gains of 1 in Rock Island, Long Island, Snuff preferred and Corn products preferred, Toledo, St. Louis & Western rose 1½ and Chicago Great Western preferred "A" rallied 2. Bonds were firm.

The sustained advance of the morning created a more cheerful sentiment among the traders and buying for the long account became more general. Louisville & Nashville was taken hold of and advanced to 109 and still higher prices were received for Union Pacific, Pennsylvania and Reading. Lackawanna jumped 3 points.

Less activity attended the advance during the afternoon, but the movement upward continued in moderation. By 2 o'clock Union Pacific, Reading, Erie first preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Brooklyn Transit, Consolidated Gas and Republic Steel preferred had been included in the advances which reached a point or more. Local traders came forward again in the late rise, Metropolitan Street Railway rising 1⅞ and Brooklyn Transit 1⅜. Republic Steel preferred gained 4. Pacific Coast 3⅜. Corn Products preferred 2½, and People's Gas, Tennessee Coal and Locomotive preferred 1 to 1½. The general level of prices touched the highest of the day. The closing was quiet and steady at about the best.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market continues to creep higher. To our mind it has all the fingermarks of a bull market. It is slow, but it is gaining activity and colors. Holders of stocks who have persistently refused to sell through the conditions that have prevailed for the past four or five months are not likely to sell now, and the market is bare of offerings. All the tendencies concerning the crop outlook are favorable. If they continue so, it must establish an attractive outlook for the futures. Our view is that while the market is dull, the buyer who waits for an active market will pay higher prices for his investments. There are plenty of good dividend-paying stocks selling on a 5 per cent basis or better. The investor in bonds must soon turn to stocks. We would buy stocks, and buy them right now.

• • •

Dick to B. E. Baker: The present upward movement to drive shorts to cover and to catch same stop loss orders in December cotton. The effort may be successful, but as soon as the trick is turned it looks as though a decline would be the result.

• • •

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: General conditions and railroad earnings show no improvement to my mind. Price changes are abundantly insignificant and the short interest seems to have pretty well covered up at present. Therefore it is fair to suppose that the market ought to sell off somewhat. In the long run, I believe that the contraction in business must more than counterbalance the easy money which results therefrom and that securities prices will see a lower range.

• • •

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is a well defined rumor that copper will be pushed up to around 54 aginst the shorts. However the short interest in copper is not abnormal. I believe that the U. S. Steel stocks are dragging along bottom, and consider M. S. M. a sound investment at present prices. I look for the market to gradually improve and consequently purchase might be made for moderate profits.

• • •

C. G. Gates & Co. to B. E. Baker: Harriman is credited by current gossip with the statement that there is nothing in the general situation to induce any selling of stocks on the part of the public or other large holders, although there is no promise of any pronounced activity just yet.

Theo. Wolf to Paine, Webber & Co.: It looks to me as though one should leave the short side of the stock market alone and commenced buying good bonds and railroad stocks. Everybody seems to be waiting until the presidential nominations are made and until the crops are secured. I believe that all those waiting for that time will pay a great deal higher prices for stocks and bonds. The securities are sold by the rich people of this country who will not part with them unless they get much higher prices.

• • •

Coe Commission company: American stocks in London steady. Our market opened strong and has ruled strong and fairly active all morning. All the good stocks show gains and are holding firm. The position of the market is strong, owing to a large short interest, the bear raids have no effect on the market; the feature is the total absence of liquidation. Stocks should be bought.

Wortley to B. E. Baker: Looks as if a drive was being made against shorts in Pennsylvania. The whole market shows signs of a concerted drive against the shorts. It is evident that the advances have not caused any liquidation.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: More bullish feeling has been expressed today from several sources than has been heard for weeks past. The buying, however, is believed to be mostly for short covering. If the government report is as favorable as expected the market will probably rally further but we see no reason to look for a sustained rise. We think the market should be treated as a traders' market for the present. All trade journals are bullish on the copper market today. It is thought consumers will all come into the market at once and a sharp rally will result.

• • •

Hayden Stone & Co. to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The strong New York market today had little effect on our coppers. They seem to be waiting for Amalgamated to make a decided move so as to follow. The technical position of coppers is favorable for an advance but the uncertain outlook for the metal on business depression tends to check any advance, however, we do not expect much of a decline and think market a purchase on all weak spots.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 10.—The cotton market opened weak at a decline of 4 to 7 points and immediately following the call increased the loss under liquidation and bear pressure encouraged by the weakness in Liverpool and a generally favorable weather map. July seemed to come in for considerable selling through commission houses and sold down to a net loss of 21 points while the new crop worked about 8 to 9 points net lower. Later the market was slightly steadier, but more irregular with prices at the end of the first hour about 9 to 13 points lower. Business was moderately active.

Cotton spot closed steady, 25 points higher; middling up lands 12.15; middling gulf, 12.40. Sales 282 bales. Futures closed steady. June, 11.73; July, 11.85; August, 11.40; September, 10.25; October, 9.90; November, 9.82; December, 9.84; January, 9.89.

QUIET IN PORT

Little Doing of Interest—Two of Pittsburg Fleet Move.

Grain Rate Nominally at Two Cents With Quietness Prevailing.

Everything remains comparatively quiet in local marine circles. There appears to be nothing new locally in regard to the strike situation. During the last two or three days the local customs office has received a number of notices from lower ports acquainting the local officials of changes in masters of Lake Carriers' vessels, which is taken to mean that captains are to be secured as fast as there is work for them to do. Up to this week scarcely any such notices were received at all.

The steamer John T. Hutchinson, one of the first Lake Carrier boats to be moved from Buffalo this season, cleared last evening from Duluth with 187,000 bushels of flax for Buffalo. She was in command of Capt. F. B. Masey. The A. B. Wolvin and Bransford, the latter vessel of the Hawgood line, cleared with ore for the lower lakes.

The Cambria, commanded by Capt. J. T. Gemmell, cleared with ore for Lake Erie this afternoon. The Briton, with Capt. George Holdridge in command, with the barge Corliss in tow, cleared from Two Harbors this afternoon with ore for Lake Erie. Both boats belong to the Pittsburg Steamship company.

GRAIN RATE TWO CENTS.

The grain rate to Buffalo today is nominally at 2 cents a bushel for large cargoes. Boats wanting cargoes under 100,000 bushels can get better than that. For the 2-cent rate shipment can be given next week.

SEAMEN FIRM.

Will Carry Out Contracts With Lake Carriers.

Cleveland, June 10.—President Livingstone, of the Lake Carriers' association stated today that President William Penje, of the Seamen's union had called at the headquarters of the Lake Carriers today and assured them that all contracts made by his organization would be carried out in both letter and spirit, and that there would positively be no sympathetic strike by the members of the Seamen's union during the present season.

Officials of the Masters' and Pilots' association have called the attention of the collector of customs for this district to what is claimed to be a clear violation of the law on the part of members of the Lake Carriers' association sending out vessels from various ports without a full complement of officers. President Livingstone said today that there was a law governing such cases, but he did not think it would apply to freight boats. He added that if the masters and pilots desired to take up such technic

REPORT ON CROPS

Spring Wheat a Little Below the Ten Year Average.

Acreage Less Than Year Ago—Winter Wheat Condition.

The government report of the condition of the spring wheat crop on June 1 gives the percentage of 93.4. This is not quite up to the condition at the same time last year when it was 95.9. Two years ago condition was 95.4 and the ten-year average is 93.8. The condition is, therefore, slightly below the average.

The acreage is estimatd at 17,140,800 acres, which is a decrease of 116,000 acres from last year.

The average condition of winter wheat on June 1 was 77.7, as compared with 76.5 on May 1, 1904; 82.2 on June 1, 1903; 76.1 at same date in 1902 and a ten-year average of 79.8.

The condition of oats is given as 89.2 and the oats acreage at 27,646,00, a reduction of 86,300 acres from last year.

C. P. DEWEY DEAD.

Millionaire Ranch Owner Succumbs to Carbuncle.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 10.—C. P. Dewey, the millionaire ranch owner, died early today at the home of his niece, Mrs. B. Walker Peterson, at her suburban residence at Woodsdale. Death was due to a complication of diseases which originated in the formation of a carbuncle on his face. He was heavily interested in Chicago realty and was a large land owner in Kansas, Nebraska and Texas. He was the father of Chauncey Dewey, who with two cowboys, were recently acquitted of the murder of the Berry brothers, the result of a ranch feud in Northwestern Kansas.

NO JURISDICTION.

St. Paul, June 10.—Civil courts, declared the supreme court, in a decision today, have no jurisdiction in land controversies as long as the legal title remains in the general government. The case was that of Thomas Sims, appellant, vs. Harriet Morrison, James Morrison, Daniel Morrison and Annie H. Harvey, respondents, and came from Itasca county.

"Leaving It All to Us."

We find that our judgment is relied upon more and more by diamond purchasers. People come to us with general ideas as to what they want. They wish to avoid mistakes, and they are often glad to have us shoulder the entire burden. Many times we save dollars for such people. We certainly do our best, and such operations, as a rule, reflect favorably upon both parties.

If any doubts disturb you, tell them to us.

DEPORTING MINERS

The Order of the Day In Cripple Creek District.

Committee Recommends the Exiling of Large Number.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 10.—Deportations are the order of the day. Gen. Sherman M. Bell, military commander, has ordered that ninety-seven members of the Miners' union shall be taken outside of Teller county on a special train, in accordance with the recommendations of the citizens' committee, which examined them. This committee was in session nearly all night investigating the cases of 100 other union men who are confined in the Victor armory, and submitted another report to Gen. Bell today recommending further deportations.

Squads are out scouring the hills in search of certain men who are wanted in connection with the Independence assassinations. Telegrams have been sent to sheriffs and chiefs of police at outside points asking them to watch for these persons whose names are not made public.

A GOVERNOR'S RISE.

An interesting man is Governor John Green Brady of Alaska, says the San Francisco Argonaut. His rise in life is a hard-fisted romance. He was born in the slums of New York, about 1850, and was cast adrift. He is not sure where he got his name. The Children's Aid society finally picked him out of the streets, and he was one of a carload of homeless youngsters shipped West. At Tipton, Ind., a benevolent citizen named John Green came down to the station and asked the man in charge of the waifs to give him the raggedest, ugliest, poorest boy in the lot. With a promptness equaled only by his candor, the superintendent ordered "Jack" Brady to step forward. The lad took to study, and money was found to give him a course at school and college. He went into the Presbyterian ministry, finding his way by degrees to Alaska. The natives interested him greatly and he did good work among them. Later he resigned his ministerial office to start a tide of emigration toward Alaska. He went to Washington in the spring of 1897 and procured an introduction to President McKinley, in order to present his own application for the governorship. Brady went back with his commission in his pocket. Since then his labors in behalf of Alaska have been indefatigable.

JAPS CAPTURE SIU YEN, AN IMPORTANT RUSSIAN POSITION

It Commands the Highways Leading to Hai-Cheng and Kaihing.

St. Petersburg Paper Hears Fighting Occurred at Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The Japanese have taken Siu Yen, driving out the Ruslans. The enemy appears to be advancing on Hai Cheng.

Tokio, June 11.—The town of Siu Yen, now occupied by the Japanese army is of great strategical importance being situated about 40 miles northeast of Kaihing and 45 miles southeast of Hai-Cheng. It commands perfectly the roads to both places. Saimatsza is also an important point as it controls the roads to Liao Yang and Mukden. By following this route the Mao Tien Ling pass, a strongly fortified and almost impregnable Russian stronghold will be avoided on the advance of the Japanese army northward.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The view of the general staff is that as the Japanese column which reached Siu Yen was not followed by either of the main armies in southern Manchuria, the Japanese have no present intention of advancing on Hai Cheng, but have sent forward a force as a feint to menace and discourage as much as possible the dispatch of a heavy Russian force down the Liao Tung peninsula. Neither does the general staff believe that the enemy's column at Saimatsza, even should it go so far north as Djiandjian, is of a serious character, the opinion being that General Kuroki continues to dangle before Gen. Kuropatkin's eyes a double objective, but that he is not yet strong enough to risk a real advance. This belief is based on calculations that the enemy has not more than 130,000 men all told in southern Manchuria and that only in the event of the Japanese attaining strength greatly in excess of these figures will they be capable of a genuine forward movement.

No fresh news has been received in regard to the situation around Port Arthur.

Private advices from Liao Yang indicate that the Russian force at Vafandian is prepared to retire northward if seriously threatened.

FIGHTING OCCURS

At Port Arthur With a Japanese Reverse.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The Russky Invalid, in concluding an article on the military situation in the far East, inclines to the belief that fighting has already occurred in front of Port Arthur and that the Japanese sustained a reverse.

The Viedomasti, of which Prince Oukhtomsky, who is now sojourning in the United States, is the editor, has received a second warning for "gratuitously disturbing public opinion" by printing a report that some Moscow merchants had subscribed to a Japanese loan. A third warning will result in the suspension of the publication of the paper.

The Novoe Vremya, discussing the report that the submarine boat Protector had been shipped from Newport News, Va., for Japan, expresses the hope that the United States government will make a detailed explanation of why the boat was allowed to leave the United States.

RUSSIAN MOVEMENTS

Cannot Be Learned By Messengers From Newchwang.

Newchwang, June 11.—Messengers sent to ascertain the truth of reports that the Russians are moving a large force in an attempt to relieve Port Arthur returned here last night without having learned anything.

A Japanese cruiser has been seen near Ka-Chen during the last three days. She is believed to be watching the Russian gunboat Sivouch, which is bottled up here, to prevent her from taking a dash for the open sea and attempting to reach a neutral port and there disarm.

Local merchants have been informed by Shanghai shipping firms that they will not undertake at their own risk, the delivery of merchandise of any nature at this port.

The Russians continue to receive immense cargoes of flour and large amounts of specie.

United States Consul General Miller is making a close investigation of the death of Lewis Etzel(of Butler, Pa., the correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, recently killed by Chinese soldiers.) The Chinese general has expressed much regret and says he will punish the men who shot Etzel when they return. They have not been seen since the Etzel incident. The funeral of the correspondent was largely attended. General Kondratsvitch and his staff, the civil officials and the consuls were present.

Bandits are pillaging the outskirts of Newchwang almost nightly.

FROM PRIVATE CAR

Gen. Kuropatkin Directs the Work of Campaign.

Liao Yang, June 11.—The entire Russian plan of campaign is directed from a railroad carriage here, in which General Kuropatkin works, eats and sleeps. The car is divided into a saloon, a study and a bedroom. The commander-in-chief passes the most of his time in the study at work, surrounded by his aides. Although small of stature, Kuropatkin is at once distinguishable among his entourage, however brilliant may be their uniforms, by his determined gestures and sturdy figure. He has the reputation of being severe, but just, and his word is law. His officers express the fullest confidence in him and he is the idol of the common soldiers, and the foreign attaches find him most pleasant. He takes little or no rest except a half hour's siesta after lunch, when the heat is excessive, and he occasionally indulges in the distraction of reading literary works. Dispatches from the scene of operations are brought to him at any hour of the day or night. The general eats well, of simple dishes, but hurriedly, seldom remaining at the table more than a half hour. He drinks wine sparingly, smokes a cigar or two after breakfast and sets a general example of abstemiousness to his officers. He rises at 7 o'clock and retires at midnight. After drawing up a daily dispatch to the emperor, summarizing the situation, his mornings are engaged in the consideration of correspondence and tactical questions. He often mounts a horse and makes a tour of inspection of the camps and military works around Liao Yang, sees visitors during the afternoon and subsequently receives the reports of the generals at the theater of operations.

Kuropatkin is much interested in the Red Cross work, visits hospitals and speaks encouragingly to the patients. He never misses going to the station to meet trains bringing wounded men, and out of the funds sent from St. Petersburg gives the money according to their rank —one dollar and a half to an unmarried, two dollars and a half to a married man, and as much as $250 to officers. He also distributes medals to the wounded who have performed acts of special bravery.

JAPS SHAKE THEIR FISTS.

Vafangow, Liao Tung Peninsula, June 11.—The Japanese lost a prominent commander in the last fight and according to reports from Chinese sources they are displaying signs of despair, shaking their fists in the direction of the Russian forces.

The bombardment of the coast northward was a mere demonstration. The Russians did not reply.

There is no sickness among the Russian troops and they are in excellent spirits.

FINANCING OF WATER POWER PROJECT ARRANGED BY GREAT NORTHERN POWER COMPANY

Bonds Necessary For First Installation of Power Have Been Pledged By Strong Bankers.

Thirty Days May See Actual Construction Work Begin and Letting of Machinery Contracts.

The Herald tonight is able to bring the people of Duluth the best and most encouraging news announcement which they have had for many years.

The Great Northern Power company has financed the project for the improvement of the water power of the St. Louis river. Pledges from strong banking houses for the entire amount of bonds it has been desired to sell in order to make the first installation of power have been made, in fact, the amount pledged is more than needed.

A strong firm of contractors has been interested, and within the next week the representatives of both will be in Duluth to finally close the matter.

All of the details have been worked out and agreed upon, and nothing but a most unforeseen complication could now prevent the consummation of the plans.

The Herald has during the past few months paid no attention to the many rumors that have been afloat as to the progress of the plans of the company, ignoring premature publications, preferring not to raise false hopes, and waiting until the people of Duluth could be given news that meant something.

Within all probability thirty days will see the actual work of construction begun. The orders for the machinery will be placed within a month. Work will go forward at a rapid rate, and it is hoped to furnish power within a little more than a year's time.

The development of the first installation of 30,000 horse power calls for the expenditure of something like $2,000,000. Part of this goes for machinery and equipment, but a large part will be spent for construction and will find its outlet in the community.

The plans made also provide for the development of the 15,000 hydraulic horse power below the first development, and that will also go forward at once.

In connection with this the outlook is excellent for closing a contract for this power with a large manufacturing concern, which would expend something like $1,500,000 in erecting its plant.

Altogether there is every reason for Duluth people to feel happy and look forward with hope and enthusiasm to the coming few months.

It has been no small matter to float so large a project as this at this time and the amount of time, energy and patience that has been consumed by President C. A. Duncan and General Manager C. C. Cokefair, in working out this most satisfactory termination, has been enormous. They have worked on when their task seemed hopeless, and when they could find little in the way of encouragement, but because of the project, for its merit was enthusiastically conceded by every bond buyer before whom it was laid, but because all were absolutely refusing to invest in industrial propositions of any kind.

With reference to their negotiations and the conclusion they have reached C. C. Cokefair says:

"When our president, C. A. Duncan, and myself went East some time ago for the purpose of selling a block of our bonds, sufficient to warrant us in placing orders for our equipment and making contracts for the construction work, we found the bond market in a most unsatisfactory condition. Money was abnormally cheap on call with stock exchange collateral but no disposition whatever to invest in industrial securities, especially in bonds of a construction proposition.

"None of the large financial or bond houses were disposed to make any new committments, the most of them being already obligated to float large issues that had been held in abeyance for a long time waiting a better market. Scarcely any industrial bonds have been sold for months past and as a leading member of one of the largest bond houses in the country said, 'We are selling a few industrials but we have to use a ball bat to do it and it is not pleasant business.'

"After acquainting ourselves with these conditions we set about to shape ourselves accordingly, formulating as attractive a proposition as possible and using the friendly influence of prominent parties in the East with whom we already had business relation, or to whom we were favorably introduced. The unusual merit of our proposition and the unqalified indorsement of the highest authorities on such matters enabled us to work to advantage and we received some encouragement. In fact, negotiations were well under way for the sale of the bonds when our president, Mr. Duncan, was obliged to return to Duluth, while I remained to continue these negotiations, and am glad to report that we how have substantial pledges for the purchase of a large part of the bonds that we wish to dispose of at this time.

"We have arranged with one of the most substantial banking and bond houses in the country to join in and take charge of the underwriting, for which a syndicate is now being formed, and barring some unusual conditions, which are not anticipated, the entire matter will be closed very shortly. Orders for equipment will then be placed and the work of construction will go forward rapidly to completion.

"Parties representing the Eastern syndicate and one of the largest construction companies in the country, will meet with our directors the coming week and go over the entire proposition with a view to determining final details.

"Our executive committee fully appreciate the interest the community have in this matter and we feel that we can shortly announce the final closing of the matter and the names of the parties associated with us in the deal."

As is well known the street railway interests at the head of the lakes, controlled by Thomas Lowry of Minneapolis, have contracted to take a large amount of power from the company. Mr. Lowry has been deeply interested in the success of the company and gave most valuable aid to the officials of the company in reaching bond buyers who would take up the project.

Mr. Cokefair has practically recovered from the effect of the ptomaine poisoning which he suffered in New York. He was a very sick man, however, and was laid up for a number of days and under constant medical care.

Men Were Disembarked and Told to Go East as Best They Could.

Militiamen Deserted Their Charges and Train Went Back West.

Kansas Sheriff and Posse Sent Miners Back Into Colorado.

Syracuse, Kas., June 11.—Seventy-six deported Victor, Col., miners sent out from their state on a special train, in charge of half a hundred Colorado militiamen, were literally dumped into Kansas today and left destitute upon the prairie. With a parting volley, fired into the air, the militiamen deserted their charges and returned West. Later, the miners were turned back to Colorado by an armed Kansas sheriff and forty deputies.

The miners had been placed on the train, which was a special made up by the authorities in control, in the disturbed Colorado town and in charge of well armed militiamen started for the East late yesterday. At La Junta, where the first stop was made, the cars were closely guarded. The miners were not permitted to leave the cars, nor were any of the 100 or so men who gathered at the station allowed to communicate with them.

When a point in Kansas, half a mile east of the Colorado line was reached, early today, a halt was made. It was a deserted spot on the wild prairie, with no railway station, eating house nor farmer's house within several miles.

Without delay the men were disembarked, the engine was reversed, and the militiamen re-entered the train. Col. Kennedy, the officer in command of the guard, instructed the miners plainly that they were not wanted in Colorado, and told them they had better go East.

Half a dozen of the soldiers fired a volley into the air to intimidate the men and the train started West with the militiamen, leaving the miners to make their way to some habitation as best they might.

While the miners were deciding upon what they would do, Sheriff John Brady of Hamilton county, Kansas, and forty armed deputies arrived on the scene and ordered the unhappy men back to Colorado. Three of the miners had already started east on foot. The others retraced their steps at the command of the Kansas officers along the railroad track westward. After a long, weary tramp they straggled into Holly, Col., a small town near the Colorado-Kansas line, where of bonds that had been held in abey- they were furnished food at the big Salvation Army station. Despite the emphatic command of Col. Kennedy, the men, after a rest, again took up their journey west and started overland for Lamar, Col.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 11.—Peace is coming to Cripple Creek if Gen. Sherman M. Bell, military commander of Teller county, can accomplish all that he has planned to do. It will come through the forcible expulsion of all persons who owe allegiance to the Western Federation of Miners or who express sympathy with them. With the exception of the Portland Gold Mining company, all the large companies and nearly all the operators who are organized as the Cripple Creek District Mine Owners' association, require miners to surrender their cards as members of the Western Federation of Miners and take out cards from the Mine Owners' association before giving them employment. Union miners who renounce their federation will be permitted to remain in the camp if they have satisfactory records.

Several hundred men applied at the mine owners' headquarters for cards yesterday and today but few were issued as the rule to investigate thoroughly the record of each applicant will be enforced. The mines are rapidly resuming work and by next Monday all except the Portland will be in full operation, employing only non-union men.

No radical steps have been taken to enforce the agreement of the business men in general to employ no members of unions connected with the Local Trades assembly, the American Labor Union or kindred organizations. Order having been restored, Sheriff Edward Mell today largely reduced his force of special deputies. Since the recent deportations following the hegira of many strikers to avoid arrest and incarceration there remain in the county jail more than 100 pisoners against whom criminal charges will be filed, it is said, about 100 in the Victor armory and Cripple Creek mining exchange hall, many of whom are marked for deportation.

The woman side of the situation has been one of the most troublesome to the military authorities and the citizens' committee. Non-union workingmen have become accustomed to receiving insults and jibes from women in sympathy with the strikers, but none of these have been arrested or driven out. Some men are sent away only that their wives may follow them.

District Attorney Trowbridge has appointed S. D. Crump as his deputy in place of J. C. Cole, who was forced out of office. As attorney for the Mine Owners' association, Mr. Crump has to a large extent directed affairs, through the strike and re-organization period.

DEPUTIES HAVE ROBBERS TRAPPED

Glenwood Springs, Col., June 11.—Sheriff Adams has returned here and reported that the Denver & Rio Grande train robbers are completely surrounded in a patch of brush at the east side of the junction of Divide creek and the Grand river. A posse of 100 deputies were picketed about the place, and he expressed the belief that it was impossible for the men to escape except by swimming the Grand river. An attempt to do that, he said, seemed almost certain death, as the river at that point is nearly half a mile wide and has a tremendous current.

The hunted men have not been able to obtain food anywhere during the past thirty-six hours, and must be almost at the point of starvation.

ABNER M'KINLEY, BROTHER OF LATE PRESIDENT, IS FOUND DEAD

Was Discovered Sitting In a Chair at His Home.

Death Came Without Warning to Members of Family.

Death Came Some Time In the Early Morning.

Somerset, Pa., June 11.—Abner McKinley, brother of the late president, was found dead in a chair in his home at 8 o'clock this morning. His death came without warning to his family. His colored servant, who slept in his room, was up with him at 2 o'clock, and it is not known at what time Mr. McKinley got up again, as he did not waken his servant. Mrs. McKinley walked into his room at 8 o'clock and found him sitting in a chair, cold and apparently dead. A physician was summoned, who said death had probably occurred two or three hours before.

Canton, O., June 11.—The body of Abner McKinley will be brought here for burial beside his mother and father, in Westlawn cemetery. The widow and other members of the family accompanying the body will leave Somerset Sunday evening for Canton, and while here will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Ida McKinley, widow of the late president.

The funeral services, it is expected, will be held at 2 o'clock, Monday afternoon. Abner McKinley was engaged in the practice of law in Canton until about fifteen years ago, when he removed to New York. He had a country home at Somerset, Pa., and spent much of his time there. A widow and one daughter, Mrs. Mabel McKinley Baer, survive him.

Mrs. Ida McKinley received the news of the death of her brother-in-law on returning from a drive. She immediately telegraphed her condolences.

ABNER McKINLEY.

A cablegram from London announces that Lord Minto will be succeeded as governor general of Canada by Earl Grey, lord lieutenant of Northumberland.

DETECTIVES WATCH NEILSON HOUSE FOR YOUNG VANDERBILT

New York, June 11.—Believing that Reginald Vanderbilt, upon whom representatives of the district attorney's office for several months have unsuccessfully endeavored to serve a subpoena, compelling him to appear as a witness in criminal proceedings against Richard A. Canfield, is in this city, detectives have been stationed around the Neilson residence on Fifth avenue since last evening. When it was reported yesterday that young Vanderbilt had suddenly left Philadelphia, where he had been for several weeks, a thorough search of the places in this city frequently visited by him, was begun by a detective armed with a subpoena. After a careful, but fruitless search, the detective evidently concluded that Vanderbilt, if really in the city, was at the residence of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Neilson, on Fifth avenue and an all night vigil in the vicinity of the mansion was begun. Nothing developed during the night, but today the detectives succeeded in slipping into the house past a maid while the latter was picking up the morning papers at the door. A moment later, however, the detective is said to have met determined opposition in the form of the negro servant, who demanded to know the intruder's business.

When the detective replied that he desired to see Mr. Vanderbilt, he was informed that Mr. Vanderbilt was not in the house. The detective was ordered from the premises by the negro, and on leaving again took up his station on the opposite side of the street.

Later a second attempt was made by two detectives to enter the house. A butler answered the bell, but when asked if Reginald Vanderbilt was in, promptly slammed the door. A few minutes later the bell was again rung, and again the butler appeared.

"Want to see Mr. Vanderbilt, and I want to see him quick," emphatically exclaimed the detective.

"The house is closed for the summer and everyone has gone away," was the response.

"We know Mr. Vanderbilt is inside and we want to see him," persisted the detective.

The only answer was the slamming of the door.

The proceedings in which Vanderbilt's testimony is desired were brought against Richard A. Canfield by the district attorney in an endeavor to show that Canfield was the proprietor of a gambling house.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Indianapolis Journal: The Methodists are good business men. If their general conference had been a political convention with everything "set up" in advance they could not have gone through with their long program more expeditiously or with less friction.

Chicago Tribune: The Presbyterian assembly has placed itself on record as opposing the use of tobacco by the ministers of that church, and the Methodist general conference has refused to allow any latitude in the matter of theaters, card playing and dancing. The lid is on again.

Boston Transcript: The last hope of the wicked for rest in this world is gone, apparently. Rev. Dr. Conwell of Grace Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, puts into practice next Sunday a long considered plan for bringing an entire religious service to the sick in the hospitals by means of a telephone with a megaphonic receiver just back of his pulpit. And Philadelphia might be made so restful, too.

Chicago Chronicle: We are ready to indorse Rev. F. C. Priest in his zealous work to preserve the sacredness of the home and to prevent easy and reckless divorce, but we hardly agree with him when he says: "The only way of satisfactorily settling the divorce question is that of Christianizing before marrying souls." The Jews, it should be remembered, are peculiarly strict in regard to the family relation and Christians might well follow their example in this respect.

Portland Oregonian: The man who believes in evolution and in the conclusion of the higher criticism may be able to do a great deal of good in the pulpit in the pastoral relation. It is unquestionable whether the unfrocking of all such men is not too high a price to pay for a uniform belief in dogmas whose permanency is open to serious doubt. It should be enough to make sure that the skeptical-minded preacher refrains from attacks upon the creed he is supposed to hold. There are sermons enough to be preached which do not transverse the points in controversy. If his conscience will not suffer him to be silent concerning his doubts he should be amenable to reason and ordinarily can be induced to act the manly part and withdraw from a communion whose tenets he has come to reject.

WORKED TWO PAWNBROKERS

Bowery Money Loaners Trimmed Beautifully By Two Sharks.

Two Bowery pawnbrokers were worked for $1275 by a couple of slick strangers during the early part of the week, on the old trick of substituting paste diamonds for real.

The two strangers, who had the appearance of traveling men, visited the two pawnbrokers simultaneously, and asked to put up some jewelry, saying they were "hard up" and wanted to raise a little ready money. One of the men showed a diamond ring, with a seven and a half carat diamond, worth $90 a carat. In the other shop the second man showed a ring, locket and a pair of cuff links, all of which were set with diamonds. Each of the strangers asked for a loan of $600 on the jewelry. The pawnbrokers, unwilling to trust to their own judgment in so important a matter, showed the goods to a neighboring jeweler, and was told that the stones were undoubtedly genuine and worth the money asked. But the pawnbrokers declared they were unable to tie up so much money in a single investment, and declined the loan.

Two days later the strangers again appeared and offered to sell the jewelry outright. The pawnbrokers accepted this proposition and paid over $600 and $675 to the two men.

The pawnbrokers were so much elated over their deal that they showed the diamonds to their jeweler friend, and were horrified to learn that bogus stones had been substituted for the real ones.

FIRE AT COHASSET.

The Dunn & Marcus Sawmill Is Totally Destroyed.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire at Cohasset caused the destruction of the Dunn & Marcus saw mill. It is a total loss. It was valued at $10,000; no insurance.

RURAL ROUTES.

Washington, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rural routes have been ordered established on July 15, as follows: Freeport, Stearns county, additional service, with one carrier; Wadena, Wadena county, with two carriers. Carl G. Nace has been appointed a regular and Fred A. Miller, a substitute rural carrier at Sebena.

ENDS BOTH LIVES

George Bishop, Duluth Bartender, Kills Woman, Then Himself.

Inmate of a Superior Resort—Bishop Wanted Her to Leave.

George Bishop, of this city, a bartender familiarly known as "Reddy" Bishop, shot and killed Laura Lee, an inmate of a resort at 105 Cumming avenue, Superior, last evening, and then committed suicide.

It is claimed that Bishop had made a number of efforts to induce the girl to leave the place, but of no avail, his visits to the resort finally culminating in the tragedy when he found that she was persistent in her refusal.

Bishop has lived in Duluth for the past eight or nine years and has tended bar at several of the Bowery saloons, but was not employed, so far as can be learned, at the time of his death.

He came into some prominence about two years ago, when, as barkeeper at the White Elephant saloon on West Michigan street, he shot and seriously wounded Kildee, a desperate character who was afterward killed in Two Harbors. The shooting was clamied to have been done in self-defense. Kildee starting to draw a gun on Bishop when he picked up a revolver back of the bar and fired, sending a bullet through Kildee's body in the neighborhood of the bowels.

Little is known of Bishop's antecedents other than that he has a sister living at Marshfield, Wis., and his parents reside in Phillips, Wis.

While in Duluth Bishop made his home at a number of different boarding places and hotels.

It was claimed at the time of the shooting last evening that Bishop and the woman he shot were old acquaintances, in fact the Bishop knew her before she entered into a life of shame.

The woman lived about twenty minutes after the shooting, the bullet passing through her left lung and shoulder. After shooting her, Bishop withdrew the empty shells from his 32-calibre revolver and reloaded it before he shot himself. His death was practically instantaneous, the bullet enterin the right temple and coming out near the base of the skull.

The Lee woman was conscious before her death and stated that the shooting was without provocation.

BRINGS SUIT ON BOND.

Guardian of Gravelle Children Sues on Forest's Bond.

A. Farrington, who was appointed guardian of the orphans, Alice and Joseph Gravelle, after their former guardian, Louise L. Forest, embezzled the guardianship funds in his possession and left for parts unknown, has started a suit in district court against Forest and his bondsmen, Napoleon Grignon and Jerry C. Como, to recover the amount out of which Forest is said to have defrauded his wards.

It is claimed that when Forest was appointed guardian there was turned over to him $2158.54, of which he spent $328.91 in the exercise of his guardianship. The rest of the money, about $1829.54 he spent in wild cat stocks, the stocks being purchased in his own name.

Forest was cited to appear before probate court some time ago to show where the money intrusted to him had gone, and, on the showing made, he was ordered to make good to his wards. Instead of doing so he skipped the country, taking with him about $2000 of the funds of a local fraternal insurance society, of which he was a trustee.

Indicted by the grand jury for embezzlement, Forest has never been heard from since he left, but he is supposed to be somewhere in Canada.

Napoleon Grignon and Jerry Como were Forest's bondsmen in the amount of $2000, and the guardian asks that a judgment for the entire shortage be entered against the bondsmen.

Brought From Range.

Gustaf Johnson and James King, of Virginia, were brought to Duluth yesterday and lodged in the county jail to serve terms of thirty and ninety days, respectively. Johnson was convicted in municipal court of destroying personal property of Mrs. P. Bonner and King was convicted of stealing a sum of money from Christ Peterson.

Ida Selina Matson, of Buhl, was lodged in the county jail yesterday to serve a seventy-day term for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. She paid a fine here about two weeks ago for the same offense.

DUSE IN RETIREMENT.

According to a writer in the Paris Presse, Signora Duse now lives in complete retirement, seeing no one, avoiding all fatigue, and doing her best not to think of things theatrical. She refuses to speak of anything concerning the stage, and so anxious is she to divert her thoughts from her profession that when she goes out she will not pass before a theater if she can help it. If the theater has brought her her greatest triumphs, it has likewise been the cause of much sadness to her, and she has recently fallen into a profound melancholy. Her friends are few in number, and she refuses all opportunities of making new acquaintances. She constantly keeps near her a statuette of Proserpine. The pagan deity has a peculiar fascination for Signora Duse, who has invested her with a mystic charm, and believes she has discovered in her points of resemblance to herself.

A CHILD PRODIGY.

I do not know whether many people went to the St. James' hall recently for the purpose of making scientific observations, says the Pall Mall Garette. At least one who did so soon forgot everything but the fact that a child on the platform was making glorious music. It is probably safe to say not only that little Franz von Vecsey is the most wonderful little boy in the world, but that he offers to scieice as difficult a problem as any it knows. Here is a child just turning 11 who is not merely master of all the technique of the violin, but plays the most profound music, even that of Bach, like a genius of mature years. One's conclusions as to musical genius were simply confirmed on hearing from his mother that this child practices only two hours a day, and often less. Yet he is absolute master of the most difficult music written by the greatest virtuose of the past in order to show off their own technique. Explain it how we may, it is the fact that musical genius is the earliest to manifest itself, and in no other spheres of human activity can a child of eleven be an acknowledged master.

FIELD DAY SPORTS

High School Will Hold Them Saturday, Rain or Shine.

When the high school inter-class field day of next Saturday is over and the baschall team has played the game which it has scheduled with Ashland, the spring athletic season will be closed and the attention of the school directed toward the closing events of the year.

The baseball season has been highly successful in every way, and although no games have been played with any of the large outside schools, on account of the depleted condition of the treasury, all the best amateur teams in their class at the head of the lakes have been met and have been defeated in every case, which is an exceedingly good record, considering the fact that nearly every member of the team, including the battery, was new and practically inexperienced.

Coach Church and Capt. Scobie deserve much credit for the good showing which the nine has made. It is largely owing to their careful instruction as well as to the spirit and enthusiasm which the boys have displayed in their work, that the team made such an excellent record for itself. In spite of their inexperience, the boys have been fielding well, hitting the ball regularly, doing some remarkable base running, and should turn out a championship team next year.

Because the long-continued spell of wet weather interfered so greatly with the training, the much-postponed field day has been again postponed until next Saturday afternoon, and will be pulled off whether it rains or shines. The soliciting committee has met with a hearty response from the business men, so that there will be a large number of desirable prizes for which to compete. As the entries are not all in, it will be possible to give only the list of events, which is as follows:

100-yard, 220-yard and 440-yard dashes, half-mile and mile runs, 120-yard and 220-yard hurdles, running high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, shot put, and the hammer and discus throws.

Considerable discussion has arisen as to whether 220-yard or 440-yard quarters should be run in the class relay race. The seniors want a 220-yard quarter, but the juniors say that this will put them at a disadvantage because they have been training for the longer distance, while the seniors have not been training at all, or at least very little.

SENIORS WIN.

Defeat Juniors In Well Played Game of Ball.

Yesterday afternoon at the Forty-seventh avenue east grounds the senior baseball team defeated the juniors in a well played game by a score of 6 to 3.

The juniors played in bad luck and by making errors on bases lost the game when they had victory within their grasp. Hill pitched a fine game for the juniors, striking out eleven men and passing but two. He throws a very tantalizing outcurve which puzzled the older classmen considerably. Scobie managed to keep his hits well scattered and when in a tight place would almost invariably use a close inshoot which would result in a pop-up fly.

The line-up was as follows:

Juniors—	Position.	Seniors—
Hill	pitcher	Scobie
McLean	catcher	Olson
Furni	first base	Zimmerman
Deetz	second base	Strate
Fenton	third base	St. Clair
Crasswelier	short stop	Hornbrook
Campbell	center field	Sweeney
McCarthy	right field	Crandall

School Notes.

That the close of school is near at hand is greatly evidenced by the conversation which one hears in the halls, by the long drawn sighs of discontent that are elicited when one of the returned college students happens down to corridor with an air of peace and tranquility beaming forth upon the hardworking and industrious high schoolers, and by the preparations which are being made for the class night and commencement night exercises which occur on Thursday and Friday, June 23 and 24. Monday afternoon the seniors will draw lots in order to decide in which part of the house the seats that they will give their friends will be located, and on Tuesday the tickets for the baccalaureate sermon, which will be delivered by Dr. Long on the afternoon of Sunday, June 19, will be assigned.

The Agassiz club is having its second annual outing today. The members secured Mr. Patterson's launch and have gone up the river for the purpose of having a good time as well as to observe the beauties of nature.

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the seniors are going over to Minnesota Point to have a last picnic together.

A very common question nowadays is, "How many 'exams' are you going to get out of?"

MIDDLE NAME IN PHILADELPHIA.

"Philadelphia seems to be a city of middle names," said the cosmopolitan to the Philadelphia Record. "If a man has a middle name, and most Philadelphians have at least one, he often insists upon having it spelled out in full. A mere initial won't do at all. Just glance over the society columns of the newspapers and you will see. For my part I don't see just where there is any more dignity in John Brown Smith than in John B. Smith, but the average Philadelphian seems to think there is. I have frequently been impressed by the published reports of weddings in which the names are invariably elongated as much as possible. Now, in New York, if a man happens to have a middle name, he doesn't flaunt it on every possible occasion. I have just been reading about the plans for the coming wedding of Miss Elsie Whelen and Robert Goelet of New York, and I was impressed by the fact that the published reports do not credit Mr. Goelet with even a middle initial, and the same applies to every one of his six ushers, and yet they are all prominent society men."

ANCIENT SUBTERRANEAN PASSAGE.

Recently the interesting discovery has been made of a subterranean passage leading from the abbey at Tromney, the last parish in the diocese of Ely, down to the river. The passage is 500 feet in length, and, although constructed centuries ago, its existence has hitherto been undreamed of by dwellers on the duke of Bedford's model Thorney estate. A hermitage was founded at Tromney by religious Saxons in 655, but the present abbey wther is used as the parish church, was built at the end of the eleventa century.

It pays to advertise in The Herald—ask I. Freimuth.

MANY GREAT CURES

BY Dr. MITCHELL

MR. ROBERT COSTELLO,
Of Grand Rapids, Minn., Who Was Treated Successfully for Stammering, and Restored to Perfect Health.

Mr. Costello, in talking to a reporter, said: "I recommend Dr. Mitchell's treatment very highly for all stammerers or who have and defect in their speech, and those in declining health, for I believe that he can cure them. Any one writing to me I will be glad to substantiate this statement."

Ely Lafave, Two Harbors, Minn., says: "I recommend Dr. Mitchell's treatment to all sufferers from heart trouble, nervousness and stomach trouble, for I went to Dr. Mitchell after I had tried everything without getting relief and his treatment has worked wonders for me. I can enjoy life and feel that it is worth living. A number of my friends have also been cured by Dr. Mitchell. His treatment is a life saver and I am glad to give this unsolicited testimonial."

Miss Sena Hagen, 2432 West Superior street, Duluth, writes: "I had been afflicted with liver and kidney trouble for a number of years. Had been thinking of going down to 17 East Superior street quite a while before I went. I had a feeling that I ought to go because from reading the statement made in this paper from people who had been treated and cured by Dr. Mitchell, I had gotten a very favorable impression. I also talked with a number he had treated successfully. One was Mr. Carl Stackmesser of Tower who had not walked for eleven and a half years and was made to walk. Also Capt. W. G. Gowett, of Tower, recommends Dr. Mitchell's treatment. He had been to a number of sanitariums and came back to Tower with no hope, and after taking Dr. Mitchell's treatment he highly recommends it. I commenced the treatment and when I saw what it was doing for me I was sorry I had not commenced sooner. My health had been completely broken and I had been taking medicine as far back as I could remember. His treatment worked wonders for me and I recommend it to all sufferers and those who are not getting well under their present treatment. I will be glad to substantiate this statement.

Miss Runum of South Dakota, who suffered from nervousness and stomach trouble for six years, returned home cured last week.

Mrs. Joan Marris returns to her home at Oacoma, S. D. cured of fistula from which she had suffered for a number of years.

If you are suffering do not be influenced by what some unprincipled or ignorant person may say, but go and consult Dr. Mitchell personally. He will tell you if he can benefit you or cure you, as he does not care to handle incurable cases. If anyone tries to discourage you by telling you that the treatments are not what they are reported to be, investigate and you will find that they have either been misinformed or else do not know of what they are speaking. Dr. Mitchell gives his valuable advice free.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Lake Superior Mines Are Making More Copper Than Ever Before.

Have Adjusted Their Operations to the Metal Market Prices.

Houghton, Mich., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mines of Lake Superior are now making more copper than ever before in the history of the district. The better among the new mines are securing large outputs, and several of the old properties are making more metal than ever before. The mines have adjusted their operations to the metal market prices, and are making money, with few exceptions. There is no boom, but the general situation is a remarkably healthy one in every respect. Barring accidents of a most serious nature, or severe labor troubles, neither of which may be looked for, the 1904 production of copper will materially exceed 260,000,000 pounds, for the first time in the sixty years since copper was first made by the pioneer lake mines.

The Osceola has this week begun exploratory work for the southern extension of the Kearsarge lode. The North Kearsarge and South eKarsarge mines of the Osceola Consolidated company are the principal producers of that property, but the recent development work of the Calumet & Hecla has shown that the Kearsarge lode may possess good mineral values on the tract of the Osceola mine proper. The old Osceola has a full equipment of mining machinery on the ground, and should the Kearsarge lode be found workable, will be in a position to open and equip a big mine in less time and for much less money than would be possible on a virgin tract.

Messrs. A. S. Bigelow and W. J. Ladd, of the Osceola, Tamarack, Isle Royale and Ahmeek mines, are in the district, as is President H. F. Fay of the Centennial and allied properties. Officials of the Quincy and Copper Range companies are expected to visit their mining properties here within a week or ten days. The increasing disposition of all Eastern managements to keep in closer touch with their mines is to be highly commended.

Figures of costs at the new Michigan smelter are awaited with interest. The expectation that the records of low smelting costs will be shattered is a reasonable one, in view of the large size, modern arrangement and thoroughly up-to-date equipment of the plant. Substantial progress has been made in the smelting practice of the district during the past ten years, and the example of the fine new plant of the Michigan works will lead to further gains in the same direction.

The all-rail shipments of refined copper continue, owing to the strike that has tied up lake traffic. The shortage of coal for the operation of the mines remains a disquieting factor in the situation. A few cargoes have been received, and none of the mines or mills have been forced to suspend, even temporarily, by reason of a shortage of fuel, but the available supply at local ports is small, and it is imperative that coal be secured during the open season for the requirements of next winter and spring, as well as for the near future. The lake strike has also caused a shortage of mineral supply for the Buffalo smelter of the Calumet & Hecla, which ran out of unsmelted mineral several weeks ago.

The future of the Ahmeek is no longer considered as open to question by the best posted mining men of the district. The showing in the openings already secured is much above the average, and within three years the Ahmeek will prove a large mine. The openings of the Ahmeek are neither deep nor extensive, according to the local standard, but it is a matter of record that no mine opened with a first-class showing at surface, and for a depth of 500 feet has failed to make a rich mine to great depths. The Allouez will, in all likelihood, secure a showing somewhat similar to that of the Ahmeek, when the vertical shaft now sinking reaches the Kearsarge lode, or when the bed is tapped by a crosscut from the shaft. A second shaft has been started on the Allouez property, and within three to four years the Allouez should be one of the steady producers of the district. It is evident that whatever the district may be losing, by reason of the partial exhaustion of the old mines, is being much more than made good by the big new mines opened within the past six years, and the other new mines now opening. In no previous year have the developing mines and prospects of the district shown a higher average of promise than at the present moment. The Centennial is scon to become a producer; the Ahmeek may be said to have safely passed the experimental stage; the Allouez has very bright prospects; the Kearsarge mine of the Calumet & Hecla is opening well, and the developments at Section 15, south of Houghton, promise to make not one, but three new mines of value—one mine on section 15, one on section 16 of the Atlantic company, on the underlay of the lode, and one on section 11 of the Isle Royale company, on the northern extension of the lode. There is also the Globe tract, south of the Champion, where the southern extension of the Baltic lode has been located. The Winona prospects are also bettering, and the showing of the Elm River is better than at any previous period in the five years of the company's corporate existence. The pessimists who have been prophesying the death of the Lake Superior copper industry will have to postpone the date of the funeral for at least fifty years to come, because of the important developments of the past six years.

The sale of the old one-stamp mill of the Centennial and its dismantling, mark the close of the history of the old Schoolcraft-Centennial mine, on which unsuccessful efforts, entailing the expenditure of some $2,000,000 were made to open paying mines on the Calumet conglomerate and the amygdaloid beds. The present Centennial mine is opened on the Kearsarge lode, and no attention whatever is being paid to the old openings.

Much interest is felt by mining men in the experiment now being made at the Ahmeek mine, where concrete stringers and ties are being laid for the skip track. The question of finding timber for the mines is one of ever increasing importance and the cost of mine timber is rising steadily. The great forests of primeval pine that covered perhaps half of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan forty years ago have been reduced to patches here and there, and it is now necessary for the mines to secure their heaviest timbers from the pine and redwood forests of the Pacific coast. Smaller pine, hemlock and cedar timber is still obtained on the southern shore of Lake Superior, but the supply is growing smaller every day, and the end is in sight. The Calumet & Hecla company is making increased use of hardwood timber, and as there are many billion feet of maple and other hard woods remaining within a hundred miles of the mines, some relief can be afforded by the partial substitution of hardwood for pine and hemlock. This, however, is but a temporary relief, and if cement and steel construction can be employed in the mines it will prove a boon to the copper industry. Concrete should prove successful for certain uses, but the availability of steel remains to be proven, as the acid mine-waters are very corrosive.

Nearly seven-eighths of the production of the old Franklin mine is secured from No. 5 shaft, though a little rock is still coming from No. 3 shaft. The second shaft at the Franklin Junior will greatly relieve the pressure upon the single shaft now in commission.

The most valuable mineral production secured from any one shaft in any mine of the world is hoisted through the single shaft of the Calumet & Arizona mine at Bisbee, which is now raising crude wealth at the rate of about $10,000 per day for every day in the year. It is not without reason that every visitor to the property comes away with admiration for the ability of the Lake Superior mining men to accomplish results that are little short of marvelous.

The remodeled section of the old Hecla mill of the Calumet & Hecla at Lake Linden is securing results that fully prove the wisdom of the change. While termed a rebuilding, the new section is actually an entirely new mill, both in construction and equipment, standing upon the same ground as the northern half of the old wooden Hecla mill. About three years more will be required to complete the work of remodeling the other half of the Hecla mill, and the 11-stamp Calumet mill.

CATARRHAL NERVOUSNESS

A Condition Known As Systemic Catarrh—A Congressman's Endorsement.

DR. G. B. CROWE, a physician and a very influential man in Alabama and chairman of the Populist State Committee, in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, of Columbus, Ohio, says:

Washington, D. C.

"Peruna is a most valuable medicine. It affords me unlimited pleasure to testify as to the merits of your remedy as a catarrh cure. I have used it as such and find it is a very great benefit when my nervous system is run down. I heartily recommend Peruna to all whose nervous systems are deranged."

G. B. Crowe, M. D.

The nervous system is the source of all our bodily powers, mental or physical.

The brain and spinal cord generate the power and the nerve fibers convey the power to every part of the body.

It is the nerves that give the heart power to beat; it is the nerves that give the arteries the power to contract, and thus regulate the flow of blood through them.

Each artery is provided with an elastic or muscular coat, which is capable of contracting or expanding so as to permit more or less blood to pass through, according to the needs of the body.

When the nerves are paralyzed or weakened, this contracile power of the blood vessels is wholly or partly destroyed.

This produces congestion, especially of the mucous membrane lining the various organs of the body.

When this congestion continues for some time it is known as chronic catarrh.

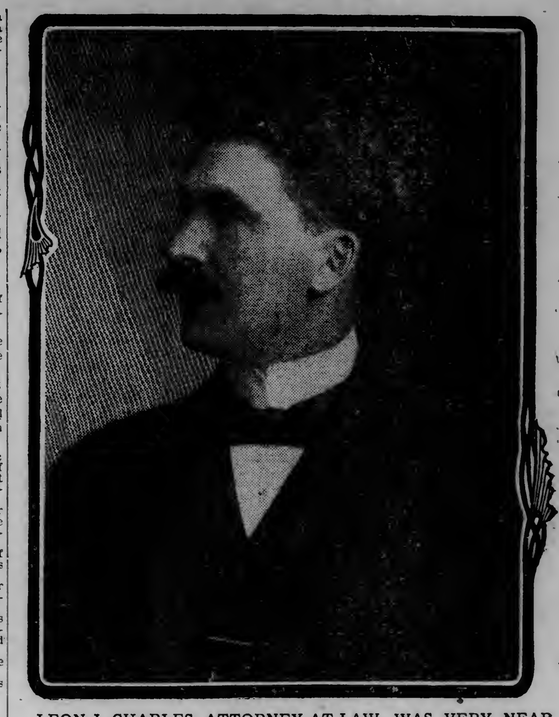
The congestion may occur in the mucous membrane lining the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels, kidneys and pelvic organs.

Whenever it occurs it produces the same condition—chronic catarrh.

J. H. Huling, ex-member of congress from West Virginia, writes:

CONGRESSMAN J. H. HULING.

"Peruna as a cure for catarrh and a tonic of most serviceable excellence is beyond all question, as has been proven by many of my friends who have been benefited by its use."—J. H. Huling, Charleston, W. Va.



LEON J. CHARLES, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, WAS VERY NEAR NERVOUS COLLAPSE.—SAVED BY PE-RU-NA.

Leon J. Charles, Attorney-at-Law, Winslow, Arizona, writes.

"For a man taken up with the daily routine, and rushed and pushed constantly to do thirty hours' work in twenty-four, there will invariably come a time when nature demands her due. I was on the edge of just such a breakdown when Peruna was recommended to me, and proved a helper and a friend. It seemed impossible at the time to take a vacation, and yet the constant brain fag seemed to compel it. Peruna built up the broken-down system, restored me to a normal condition, and through its use I was enabled to continue my work. I have learned to appreciate Peruna very highly, and advocate it as a safe, proper and, indeed, necessary medicine to every business man who is worn out, tired and sick." Leon J. Charles.

The symptoms of catarrhal nervousness are: A foreboding of calamity, a sense of something awful about to happen, twitching of the eyelids, moving brown specks before the eyes and metallic ringing in the ears, sour stomach after eating, with belching of gas, a feeling of great weight in the stomach, morbid fear of leaving home, a constant desire to talk of symptoms, chills and hot flashes, hands and feet usually cold and clammy, general tendency to oiliness and dryness of the skin of the whole body, neuralgic headache, nervous chills, hysteria, sinking and faint spells, distressing palpitation of the heart, defective eyesight, total inability to read, write or do any business, urine abundant, without color, loss of flesh, sleeplessness and sexual excitability. Some of these symptoms are present in every case.

All that is claimed for Peruna is that it cures catarrh, wherever located, by its action on the vaso-motor system of nerves. That it is a specific for that phase of catarrh called catarrhal nervousness the accompanying letters show:

Mr. T. W. Scott, Custom House, San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"Some time ago, suffering from indigestion, loss of sleep and what might be termed general exhaustion, I was recommended to try Peruna, which I did and found that it did all that is claimed for it."

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

CONDEMNED FATHER SAYS

Goodbye to His Children Whose Mother He Murdered.

Columbus, Ohio, June 11.—One of the most pathetic of the many sad scenes enacted within the walls of the penitentiary occurred when the three children of Michael Schhiller, condemned murderer, kissed him good-by.

Schiller will be executed early on Friday morning of next week. He was convicted in Mahoning county of the murder of his wife. Schiller put up a fight for his life, but there is no hope for him, as the state board of pardons rejected his application for commutation of sentence and the governor stood by the action of the board.

The three children, soon to be orphaned, are now in a Roman Catholic children's home in Cleveland. Friends of the condemned man arranged for the final interview. The oldest, Minnie, is 11 years of age, and she brought her two young brothers to the penitentiary from the Cleveland home.

Schiller presented the daughter with his gold watch and chain and the little boys with silver watches.

Al Wade, convicted of the murder of Kate Sullivan, in Toledo, and Mose Johnson, colored, convicted of the murder of an insurance agent named William Testin Portsmouth, will have to go to the electric chair. The state board of pardons rejected their applications for commutation of sentences.

Mose Thompson will be executed Saturday of next week. Al Wade will be electrocuted July 14.

Three executions are scheduled for Friday of next week. It is likely that Charles Stimmel, of Dayton, will get an extension of time so as to permit the higher courts to pass on his case. The other two are Schiller and Lewis Harmon, of Columbus, convicted of the murder of Farmer Geyer.

DECORATION TO MELBA.

London, June 11.—King Edward has conferred on Mme. Melba the decoration for science, art and music. She is the first woman upon whom it has been bestowed.

LIKE ENOCH ARDEN OF OLD

But With Strange Variation Was Edward Lindsay's Life.

Marion, Ind., June 11.—The story of Enoch Arden, with a strange variation, has been duplicated in the life history of Edward Lindsay, who died in Hartford City Tuesday.

Lindsay, his wife and family formerly lived in Akron, Ohio, where he was employed in a factory. The panic of 1893 caused the factory in which he was employed to close. Lindsay was unable to get employment in Akron, and he went to Columbus, Ohio, in search of employment, but without success.

After three weeks the letters ceased to come. Mrs. Lindsay went to Columbus in search of her husband, but failed to find him or to learn what had become of him. She returned to Akron, sold their property and came to this city to join her parents, who had removed here from Ohio.

For ten years Mrs. Lindsay worked as a seamstress to support herself and child.

Stephen Applegate, of this city, fell in love with Mrs. Lindsay and asked her to be his wife. Mrs. Lindsay told Applegate if he would wait one year and no tidings of her husband were received, she would then marry him. This was agreed to. The year passed without any news of the missing husband. Applegate and Mrs. Lindsay were then married.

Last fall, three years after the marriage to Applegate, Lindsay appeared here and made himself known to his wife. He told a tale of suffering, theft because of want, and subsequent imprisonment. She offered to divorce Applegate and return to him, but he refused to permit it, saying that it would be unfair to her, their child, Applegate and his child. All that he asked of her was that she come to him when he was dying, and for her to see that he was given a proper burial.

He also requested that she get a divorce from him on the grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Lindsay did as he requested, but refused to live with Applegate as long as Lindsay lived. An application for divorce was filed, the decree granted, and since that time Mrs. Lindsay has supported herself.

Mrs. Lindsay went to Hartford City to attend the funeral of her first husband. When she returns she is to be married again to Applegate, as she declares the first marriage was illegal on account of her not having a divorce from Lindsay, who was living.

SUED BY HIS DOCTOR.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coachella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

FORGERY CHARGED

Against a School Superintendent In Arizona.

Phoenix, Ariz., June 11.—Professor R. L. McDonnold, superintendent of the schools in Phoenix, will be arrested in Sandiego on the charge of forgery, according to the chief of police. He left here several days ago for that city, the chief says, to join a young lady to whom it is understood he was to be married soon.

McDonnold has been school superintendent the past two years. He has been paid $1600 a year each by the district and school boards. The latter has been short of funds the past year, and the trustees have paid by hypotheticating the salary vouchers with the Valley bank.

It was discovered that McDonnold last February hypothecated a duplicate set of vouchers, covering seven months to that time, with William Fickas, a local money lender, as security for $500. The signatures on the duplicates of Trustees Robinson, Kaye and Miner are declared to be forgeries.

McDonnold came from Henderson, Ky., and is about 25 years old. He has made a notably efficient superintendent, and has been re-elected for the succeeding term by the district board, though the high school board has not yet taken action. He has been in bad shape financially, the police say, and was attached on leaving Phoenix by a bicycle dealer, to whom he owed a small sum.

LONG SLEEP ENDED.

Diagnosis of a Remarkable Case In Indiana.

Marion, Ind., June 11.—Mrs. Albert Jarvis, who has been asleep since Friday evening of last week, awoke from her long slumber last evening at 4 o'clock. She is unable to talk aloud, but speaks in a whisper.

Dr. Patterson, the attending physician, stated that in his opinion a clot of blood at the base of the brain was the cause of her somnolence. The blood has been absorbed about as fast as it accumulated. This relieved the pressure on the brain sufficiently to prevent paralysis or apoplexy, but not to prevent a deep sleep. He said if the blood continued to absorb as fast as it clotted nothing serious will result, but in case of an accumulation to any extent death will result.

Mrs. Jarvis is 30 years old, has been in excellent health and was on the street shopping a short time before she retired Friday night.

WAS GOOD FOR TEN YEARS AND PARDONED.

Indianapolis, June 11.—Mr. Kennedy, who in 1878 was convicted three times for the alleged killing of a guard in the southern prison, where he was serving a sentence for assault and battery, and having served seventeen years of the sentence, being out on parole for ten years, walked from the governor's office a free man. In the first trial for the murder of the guard, Kennedy was sentenced to be hanged. In the second he was given a life sentence, and the third result likewise. Governor Matthews, now dead, paroled him in 1891, promising him a full pardon if he would be good for ten years. The promise was fulfilled today.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Retail Dealers Have Growing Confidence In the Future.

New York, June 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Current trade conditions are without change and collections continue slow as a rule, but there is growing confidence in the future, dealers exhibiting an inclination to prepare for fall and winter on a large scale. There is still much complaint that the weather is unseasonable for retail distribution, and payments are not prompt. Reports regarding the building trades are almost uniformly favorable, structural work increasing as the season advances, and transporting prospects are brighter on the lakes. Railway earnings, now practically complete for April, show a loss of only 2.9 per cent, compared with last year. The decline in the cost of living has continued without interruption since March 1.

List prices for iron and steel products are maintained in most cases, mainly because of agreements rather than the support of consumption. Demand is extremely limited. The only new business of importance was furnished by several large orders for cars, which provide a demand for plates, and a desultory movement of structural steel for railway bridges and buildings, at full prices. Other lines of finished steel are quiet.

Some evidence of weakness is noted in hides, both domestic and foreign, although actual changes in quotations are small. Similar indifference is noted in the leather market, shoe manufacturers operating cautiously. Belting butts and harness leather are both about one cent lower. Fewer new contracts are received at shoe factories, and the situation is without special feature.

Commercial failures this week in the United States are 227, against 220 last week, 256 the preceding week and 215 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 20, against 20 last week, 17 the preceding week and 14 last year.

IRON ORE SHIPMENTS

For This Season May Reach 17,000,000 Tons.

Cleveland, June 11.—The Iron Trade Review says: The strike of the Masters' and Pilots' association promises to end with a complete victory for the Lake Carriers' association. Captains and mates in large numbers are resigning from the union and are asking for their old positions more rapidly than the owners can send the vessels out. The outlook is that before the close of the week all boats having cargoes contracted for will be afloat. Up to June 1 last year 4,623,576 tons of iron ore had been shipped from the northern ports against none this year. After June 15 there were 17,327,974 tons shipped and vessel owners are now predicting that 17,000,000 will be about the tonnage for this season; or, in other words, that about as much ore will be shipped after June 15, this year, as in the same period of 1903. Hence, they say, the freight rate should be the same, based on 85 cents from the head of the lakes, the contract price of last year. It is, however, very doubtful if anything like 17,000,000 tons will be shipped this season and shippers do not concede that the 85-cent basis will prevail.

Very few sales of ore have been made during the past week. Ohio and Pennsylvania furnaces in order to make up their mixtures, are borrowing from each other and are having no trouble in keeping in blast without placing orders for ore. The ore on Lake Erie docks is not being forwarded very rapidly.

ROCK ISLAND

Preferred Stock Has Been Reduced $2,500,000.

New York, June 11.—Announcement was made yesterday that the Rock Island company had reduced its preferred stock from $51,190,200 to $48,690,200, and requested the stock exchange to strike the $2,500,000 stock called in from the list. The stock returned to the treasury represents part of the price paid to the Southern Pacific for a half interest in the Texas lines. Officers of the state of Texas declared that the Rock Island as a parallel road could not own the lines partly purchased from the Southern Pacific.

In 1903, the Rock Island purchased $5,060,000 of the Houston & Texas Central stock, $960,000 of the Houston, East & West Texas stock and $200,000 of the Houston & Shreveport shares from the Southern Pacific. It was announced yesterday that the entire transaction had been cancelled.

BISHOP POTTER'S CRITICISM.

A Protest Against Deceiving the Sick and Wrecking Lives.

Unusual comment has been caused by Bishop Potter's declaration that Maine's prohibition law is a failure when the sale of sarsaparillas and other so-called cures containing up to 61 per cent (over half) alcohol is unrestricted, while claret wine with only 10 per cent alcohol is barred out by law. As a matter of fact the majority of the wines-of-this, wines-of-that and other patent medicines sold in all states depend upon alcohol and stupefying drugs for their temporary effect. They lower the vitality, wreck the nerves, and often lead to an uncontrollable desire for alcohol and nerve-deadening drugs. This is one of the principal reasons why doctors are opposed to patent medicines, and it is why we have repeatedly stated that without the use of alcohol or injurious drugs Father John's Medicine is the best remedy ever prescribed for building up those who are weak and run down, and for all throat and lung troubles. It makes strength and flesh, by which each organ of the body is enabled to do its proper work and thus drive the impurities out of the blood. Dr. A. H. Straub, a noted physician of Brooklyn, N. Y., adds his indorsement to the above in the following letter over his own signature: "I have frequently prescribed Father John's Medicine for grip, and for bronchitis and other respiratory diseases and found that has cured when the regular pharmacopoeia remedies failed. (Signed) A. H. Straub, M. D., 884 Bushwick Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y." Fifty years in use—get it today. The money is refunded in any case where it does not do all that is claimed for it. Father John's Medicine is for sale by all druggists; the L. W. Leithhead Drug Co., distributors.

NATURE ALONE CAN CURE DISEASE.

The word "Chiropractic" comes from the Greek word xeip, meaning "hand," and npartos, "practos," and means hand-fixing. A Chiropractor is one who adjusts with his hands—a hand practitioner—who works on and adjusts the human machine, the most perfectly conceived and constructed of all machines. There is not a piece of wonderful mechanism in the world which is not designed from some part of the human body.

In the human spine there are twenty-four vertebrae, each one having an intervertebral notch. The two vertebrae being brought together create a window, from which bundles of nerves emanate. As these nerves penetrate into the body they distribute and end in the different parts of the body controlled by them; some in the skin, some in the blood vessels, and others again in the vital organs.

It would be almost impossible to estimate the number of nerves in the body, but an idea may be gained from the fact that it is only at the end of a nerve that there is feeling, and that there is no part of the body that is without feeling. We are practically nerve machines.

No part of the body can perform its duties without that intelligence which is instilled into it through the nerves by the life-giving forces of Nature. Whenever this life-giving nervous force is shut off, a disturbance of nature is bound to occur, which is called disease. It is as absurd to treat the effect, or the disease itself, as it would be for a fireman to treat the nozzle when the supply of water was being shut off by a heavy wagon resting on the hose near the hydrant.

A luxation or displacement of the spine alone causes pinched nerves. Pinched nerves alone are the cause of every ill that afflicts the human body. The Cheropractic doctor adjusts the displacement, and the disease must disappear, and the patient recover, if sufficient vitality be left for Nature to work on. What Nature cannot accomplish man certainly can not. People have been kept alive for as long as a week by the use of powerful stimulants, such as oxygen, strychnine, etc., but no power on earth can retain life in the human form when Nature's store of vitality is exhausted. An engine will run sometimes for a considerable distance by the force of its own momentum, after the steam has been shut off, but in the end it comes to a dead stop. So it is with the human engine, when the life-giving force transmitted through the nerves to a vital organ is shut off by a displacement of the spine.

DR. D. W. RIESLAND.

LATEST CLASS AT THE RIESLAND SCHOOL OF CHIROPRACTIC, 707-8-9 PALLADIO BUILDING.

The Riesland School of Chiropractic has for its sole object the teaching of the one science (Chiropractic) by the aid of which nature is permitted to bring about a normal condition in the human frame.

The classes are composed entirely of men and women who, after thorough investigation of the grand results of chiropractic adustment have given up their former business to learn the course.

Compared with the expense of going through a medical college, the cost of learning this science is a very small one and the graduate at once establishes himself in any community by the splendid results that attend his work. Dr. Riesland will accept a limited number of students, and the sincere and ambitious man or woman who graduates in this course not only creates an opportunity that guarantees his financial success, but he has the satisfaction of knowing that his work is a noble one, which will earn the lasting gratitude of thousands of fellow mortals made well.

The following is taken from a booklet just published by Dr. F. E. Brinkman, of Bemidji, who recently graduated from the Riesland School of Chiropractic and who is already accomplishing splendid results in his own home town.

Why I Became a Chiropractic.

Up to the 25th day of February, 1904, I had no more intention of taking up the science of Chiropractic as a life work than you who are now reading these pages. In fact I had never heard of it.

Nearly every person in the vicinity of Bemidji knows I have a boy who, since the age of 17 months, has been deaf and dumb, though very bright in every other respect. While attending a funeral in Brainerd in January of this year, his mother heard of numerous difficult and even wonderful cures that had been accomplished by Dr. D. W. Riesland, Chiropractitioner of Duluth. She was so impressed with the apparently sincere accounts of many cases similar to her own boy's that she decided to take him away from the school for the deaf and dumb in Faribault, Minn., where he was completing his education, and bring him to Dr. Riesland for treatment.

After three treatments, a slight, but noticeable improvement became evident. The boy himself, instead of being unwilling to take further treatments, was most anxious to continue. He pointed to his ears and plainly indicated that some change had taken place in his condition. I decided to bring him back to Dr. Riesland and to stay with him for two weeks' time.

I was at Dr. Riesland's office constantly during his period. The more I saw of his work, the more convinced I became that this new science, of which I had never before even heard, was far in advance of anything taught in the medical colleges, and that it was to supercede all other methods in the cure of disease. I questioned scores of people, of all ages and conditions, who came for treatment; they were unanimous in declaring that the results of Chiropractic adjustment were little short of marvelous.

When a man whose youth is passed, decides to give up a business which has been giving him more than a good living and to begin afresh at something entirely new, it goes without saying that he is sincere. A further and more convincing evidence still, is that I treat my own boy entirely, and have every confidence from the improvement already apparent, that his sense of hearing and speech will, in time, be entirely restored.

I might say, in conclusion, that no pecuniary consideration would induce me to take up the profession of Chiropractic in my own home town if I had not had ample evidence that it is all that is claimed for it.

The Question of Old Age.

By Dr. D. W. Riesland.

The writer has given serious thought to the subject of longevity, and it is believed, presents here a theory for the cure of old age never before brought to public attention.

Before presenting these ideas a few explanatory remarks seem necessary. In the first place, I will ask that you permit me to call old age a disease. If such is the case there is a cause for it, as there is for every disease. The primary causes of all diseased conditions are one and the same; namely, interference with nerve force; for it is by and through nerves that we have any feeling whatever, whether it be a feeling of ease or a feeling of disease. Therefore disease is the same, regardless of its location in the body. If these deductions are well founded, old age is caused by that condition of the body which renders impossible the transference of normal nerve force to all its parts, and I propose to show what that condition is.

Conditions Considered.

The first grand characteristic which separates man by a vast gap from the quadrumana, is his erect position and bipedal locomotion, and it is my opinion that it is his erect position, coupled with ignorance and carelessness, that has caused him to fall so short in longevity, as compared to other mammalia. Because of his erect position and the law of gravity, man always loses in height as age advances. In many cases the dorsal curve of the spine becomes exaggerated, which partly accounts for the loss in height, but only partly.

One may remain just as erect as ever (see illustrations), but the loss in height still prevails and the reason for it is most important, in accordance with the theory herein presented. The principal reason lies in the gradual change in form and shape of the intervertebral cartilages which lie between the bodies of the vertebrae. These discs of cartilage, twenty-three in number, constitute about one-fourth the length of the spine, and act as cushions to lessen the shock of concussion, at the same time giving flexibility and mobility to the trunk of the body. Without these little cushions the wonderful feats of the acrobat and contortionist would be impossible; in fact the comparatively easy and simple act of tying one's shoe would be out of the question. As the body ages these little cushions of rubber-like material become flattened by constant and repeated spinal concussions, produced in ordinary ways, and by the occasional extraordinary shocks to which most of us subject the body from time to time. The thinner and more compressed these discs become the less flexible the body grows, and as the saying goes, we are

"Old and Stiff."

If these were the only effects produced it would be a small matter, but the most serious part has yet to be explained. There is a marked decrease in the size of the spinal windows, produced by a flattened condition of the discs of cartilage.

Now, as to the effect of this decrease in the size of the spinal windows: The brain is the dynamo which runs the human mill, and the spinal cord is its main wire. From this cord emanate 31 pairs of spinal nerves, which pass in bundles through the spinal windows. This great human dynamo, by means of the spinal cord and spinal nerves, is constantly transmitting the life power to all parts of the body. Shut off this life power and we die. Shut it off from a portion of the body and that portion loses its power to function.

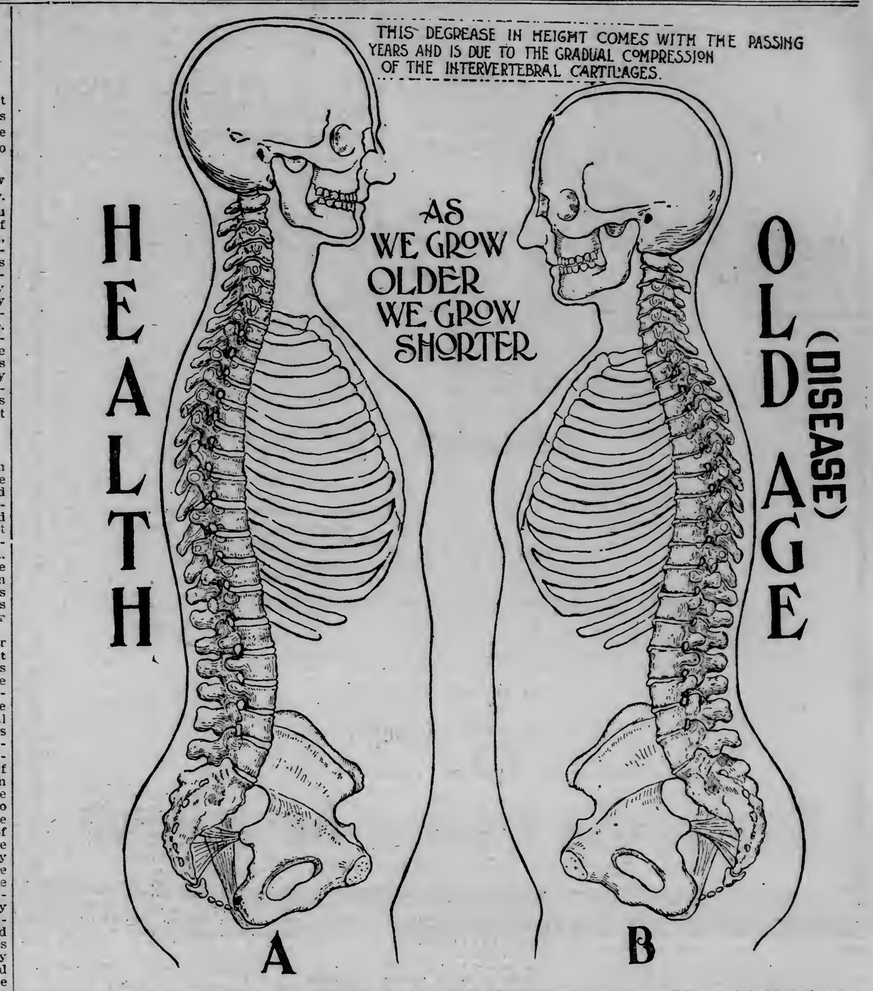
Weaken the Current By Pressure

As it passes to any organ and the organ itself becomes weak. Now, if the spinal windows through which the spinal nerves pass are all partly closed, it certainly follows that the nerve current is weakened to all parts of the body. The natural consequence of this gradual cutting off of the life current is a diminution of mental and physical force, resulting in old age and decrepitude.

The brain is constantly sending its messages to all parts of the body by way of the spinal cord, which contains centres controlling and governing the utrition of the skin, bones, blood vessels and muscles as well as many other centres performing necessary duties, but if these life sustaining impulses are weakened by being crowded through partly closed windows, their full measure of force cannot reach its destination.

The Cure of Old Age

Or any other disease can only be accomplished by opening wide the partially closed windows, thereby connecting the soul with its earthly belongings, and to do this is not an easy matter, though it is possible in the large majority of cases, as I have proven by actual demonstration during the past few years.



THIS DECREASE IN HEIGHT COMES WITH THE PASSING YEARS AND IS DUE TO THE GRADUAL COMPRESSION OF THE INTERVERTEBRAL CARTILAGES.

Fundamental Principles of Chiropractic.

It is a well-known fact that the so-called spinal nervous system proceeds from the cord in bundles or leashes, which, through openings along the sides of the bones, are distributed to the various parts of the body, and that these nerves are known as Motor and Sensory. The sensations, feelings, pain and pleasure are due to the existence of the sensory nervous system, which nerves are supposed to end in the skin or near the surface of the body.

The muscles are all attached to the bones by fibrous cords inserted into a periosteum which covers the bones everywhere, and from these attachments they extend along the bones to be inserted into some other bone, and their office is to contract.

If no unnatural or undue contraction occurs in nerves or muscles, the actions are natural, a complete system of harmony exists; but if, from any cause, undue contraction ensues or the muscles fail to respond naturally, inharmony and consequently pain and distress is the result.

The movements of the whole body, every part of it, are due to the existence of the motor nerves. Both of these systems of nerves emerge from the orifices along the sides of these thirty-one pair of foramnia or spinal openings. These nerves may become pressed by partial or complete dislocation of the bones forming these orifices, by the contraction of muscular fibers through the action of the motor nerves. Pressure upon sensory nerves produces pain in the part through which these nerves are distributed. Diseases are caused by undue pressure upon the nervous system, anywhere throughout the body.

This being the case, when the pressure is taken off the primary cause of the disease is removed.

When it is understood that the nerves of the body enter into every muscle, and every tissue, and that all of the vessels which carry the fluids of the body pass through or into the muscles, and these nerves and fluid-carrying vessels are enclosed in a muscular structure and that they are tubes, and that through these pass the blood and fluids of the whole body, and that undue contraction of the muscular fibers pressing upon the delicate vessels, we can readily understand how it is that obstructions are caused and pain is felt. Their being no yielding of the bones, to which the muscles are attached, and none in those in which they are inserted, the contraction of the muscles and nerves by the displacement of bones may entirely cut off the circulation through these delicate vessels or press so hard upon the nerves that interference with their functions ensues, and inharmony is the direct result. Increased and continued contraction of these muscles will pull the bones out of joint.

We would have neither feeling nor motion without nerves; in fact, we would not exist were it not for them.

When we continue the investigation and find that inasmuch as the nervous system is a principal factor in the regulation of the circulation of the blood, it will be readily seen that we must have all unnecessary pressure removed.

This pressure is caused by the laxation or displacement (partial or complete) of the vertebrae, or by contraction of the muscles drawing on or across the nerves.

Inasmuch as the muscles are of incalculable strength, and liable to great contraction, is it any wonder that the bones gradually get out of place?

The muscles draw toward their attachment and tend to draw whatever bone they the are inserted into toward the attached end, and if one end is attached to or near the end of a bone, and the other to some other bone, that bone finally yields to the force exerted upon it. Thus we have spinal curvature, wry neck and hip joint disease from this cause. Luxations or displacements in the lumbar vertebrae often produce sciatica and displacements of the hip from the contraction of muscular fibers and nerves. The functions of the various nerves are to convey sympathy, sensation, motion, intelligence; and these functions are dependent entirely upon their freedom from pressure from origin to terminus.

These systems of nerves regulate and control every tissue in the body through the sub-conscious mind, even the circulation, absorption, assimilation, elimination, the secretions, so that their freedom is essential to the harmony of the body in al its parts. Whatever affects the action of the nerves affects it physically and that means to change the normal action, which, when understood, means inharmony and disease.

All pain is due to unnatural pressure upon the sensory nerves. All morbid action in the body is due to iritation of the motor nerves, and all depressing effects such as the various forms of paralysis are due to interference or undue pressure upon the sympathetic nerves.

Whether we have a headache, constipation, colic or dysentery the cause producing either must be removed.

Our philosophy of removing the pressure, has the most rational claims upon the afflicted. Marvelous results have followed.

This science, properly applied, will mitigate suffering that cannot be cured otherwise. We cordially invite the most rigid criticism of our work and the philosophy of our method of removing the cause of disease. Chiropractics are able to place the finger on the body that trouble, and explain it. When the pressure is removed the disease must disappear.

To do this is Chiropractic. Ninety per cent of all diseases originate in the spine. Intelligent persons can learn to handle the vertebrae of the spine as readily as they do the keys of a piano.

People Are Skeptics.

When anything new, in the light of a radical departure from what people have been educated to believe is brought before them, it is human nature to be skeptical. The man who invented the telegraph, the man who discovered the circulation of the blood were at first both looked upon as lunatics or fakirs. But nothing can down Truth. Many other great discoveries, which at first met only with scorn, have been recognized as blessings for scores of years.

The science of Chiropractic but a few years ago was unknown. Today it isc known only in communities where it has accomplished seemingly marvelous results in the cure of disease. People must believe the evidence of their senses. If a person comes to a Chiropractitioner with a disease which doctors have failed to cure, and that person is completely restored to health, he must believe. He is not tangled up with long technicalities; he only knows he is sick. The Chiropractitioner tells him why he is sick, and proves that he is correct by giving the patient treatments that allow nature to restore him to health.

To Whom It May Concern:

Last January I was taken sick with a very severe pain in my side. I called in two physicians who both pronounced it a very serious case of heart trouble and advised me to keep very quiet, and never under any consideration to walk fast up hill or upstairs.

They also advised me to give up the work I was doing. The work of a city fireman was much too exciting, they said, for a heart like mine. About that time I heard of Dr. Riesland, and went to see him. He told me he could cure me, but it would take a little time. I began taking his treatments right then and kept improving right along until today I am a sound, well man. I can truthfully say my heart is just as good as it ever was, and that I never felt better in my life.

OCTOROON FREED

From Charge of Extortion Brought By John R. Platt.

Rearrested on Civil Suit and Held In $20,000.

New York, June 11.—Mrs. Hannah Elias was discharged late yesterday afternoon, on motion of Assistant District Attorney Jerome, at the conclusion of the testimony of John R. Platt, the aged millionaire, who caused her arrest for extortion.

Mr. Platt proved a disappointing witness. To questions bearing directly on the charges on which the woman's arrest had been made, he answered repeatedly:

"I don't know." His helplessness and his apparently unreliable memory surprised those who attended his examination. He did not remember whether he had given Mrs. Elias large sums of money during the past ten years, as charged, and did not remember signing certain of the papers in connection with his charges against her.

The ordeal was a trying one for the aged man, and his replies became scarcely audible toward the last. As son as he had left the witness chair, Assistant District Attorney Rand said:

"Your honor, I think the parties to this miserable scandal ought to be allowed to stew in their own grease. There is no evidence before you that will possibly serve to hold this woman on a charge of extortion. I recommend that she be discharged."

The magistrate thereupon discharged the woman. Immediately afterward Mrs. Elias was re-arrested on a writ in the civil suit originally brought against her by Mr. Platt to recover $685,000. She was released a few minutes later on $20,000 bail and was escorted by detectives through the crowded corridors of the criminal courts building to the street, where her carriage was waiting.

Several thousand persons, among them hundreds of negroes, attracted by the case, thronged the building and stood crowded in the streets outside.

When Mr. Platt, feeble and trembling and apparently dazed, was helped out of the building the crowd hooted and hissed him.

Mr. Platt, who was the first witness, said he was 83 years old and had resided in this city since 1865. He first met Hannah Elias at the time the volunteer firemen came on from San Francisco, about fifteen years ago. Some time later he again met the woman at a Third avenue massage establishment, through an advertisement, and had kept up the acquaintance since. His relations with her had been of a tender character, and he had bought for her a house and had given her large sums of money.

"She was your mistress?" asked Assistant District Attorney Rand.

"She was not my mistress," replied Mr. Platt.

The aged witness then appeared to become very much confused, and to several subsequent questions he replied that he could not remember and referred the questioner to his attorney.

Asked if he had not signed a paper sevral days ago in which he stated that Mrs. Elias had extorted hundreds of thousands of dollars from him, he replied that he could not remember. He had signed a certain paper several nights ago but did not remember signing a longer paper which Mr. Warren gave him. Mr. Platt would not give a direct answer to a question as to whether he had paid the woman more than $600,000 since January, 1896, but did remember that he gave her $7500 last month.

This payment was made, he said, because Mrs. Elias told him she was being sued and would have to go to court and expose him unless the money was paid. He could not recall that two men, whom the assistant district attorney named were about to bring suit against her. She did tell him that if she was taken to court she would be obliged to testify as to her relations with the witness.

"What were those relations?" asked Mr. Rand.

"Business."

"Did you not pay her because of relations of a more tender character than doctor and patient?"

"I gave her the money because she said she would be put out."

At the request of Mr. Rand the witness read the first paragraph of the complaint in the suit, which he had brought against Mrs. Elias, and said it "was all right."

"Then yau are afraid of her?"

"I gave her the money to keep things quiet."

"Did you give her the money willingly?"

"Yes."

Magistrate Ommen then took the witness in hand, but Mr. Osborne, counsel for Mrs. Elias, objected to the manner in which questions were framed on the ground that the magistrate was putting the answers in the mouth of the witness. Magistrate Ommen did not press the point, and as Mr. Osborne declined to cross-examine the witness, Mr. Platt was excused.

Lyman E. Warren, of counsel for Mr. Platt, then was called to the stand and in reply to a question by Mr. Rand, said that he knew of evidence which would corroborate Mr. Platt's testimony. He declined, however, to give any information on the ground that he was counsel for Mr. Platt.

Mr. Osborne, attorney for Mrs. Elias, admitted that Mrs. Elias had received the $7500 mentioned in the complaint, but said that it was not given her by reason of any threats.

Again, Mr. Osborne moved for the discharge of Mrs. Elias and Assistant District Attorney Rand said that he would not oppose the motion.

"The only thing for me to do, I suppose," said Magistrate Ommen, "is to discharge the prisoner. She is discharged."

There was a great deal of excitement in the courtroom when this announcement was made and Magistrate Ommen was compelled to rap for order several times while Mrs. Elias and her lawyers were edging their way out into the corridors. There the woman was met by Deputy Sheriff Walgering, who served the order of arrest in the civil suit. Mr. Brauns was expecting this service and had the $20,000 bond prepared and gave it to Walgering. That was all that was necessary and she left the building.

FLOOD CAUSES NINE DEATHS.

Ardmore, I. T., June 11.—The high water has caused the death of nine persons in the Indian Territory. The dead: Mrs. H. F. Wilson, her baby and Miss Fay Davis, Mill Creek; five children of Tony Jones, in Kinicki valley; a child, name not learned, at Bengal. Mrs. Wilson, her child, and Miss Davis were asleep in her home when a cloudburst swept away the building.

LIVING BAROMETERS.

Any one who has been brought much into contact with animals knows how sensitive they are to approaching changes in the weather. Pearson's Weekly says that nature seems to have provided them with a prophetic instinct in this respect partly, no doubt, because to so many of them the weather is of such great importance.

The nests of many birds would be utterly ruined if its tenants were away during a storm, and so, warned by instinct, they never fail to return home in time.

When a storm is approaching the robins will sit whistling on the top branches of trees; if swallows touch the water as they fly it is a sure sign of rain, and so it is if the sparrows chirp a great deal.

When seagulls fly out to sea early in the morning the day will be fine and the wind moderate, but when the gulls hang over the land and fly inshore the fisher folk know that they must expect severe winds and probably stormy weather.

Fish, too, are very weatherwise. Cod will actually take in ballast before a storm. Some while ago a number of cod were caught off the shores of Newfoundland 12 hours before a severe gale, and it was found that all of them had swallowed a number of stones, some of which weighed three or four ounces.

Sea urchins always try to wriggle under the mud, or at least to cover themselves with sand, before a storm; while dolphins never sport or toss about in a rough sea, until a change for the better is at hand. All sailors know that a tempest is impending when the numbers of the stormy petrel flock in the wake of the vessel.

In Scotland the country people believe that it will be a fine day if the raven cries before the rook in the morning, but quite the reverse if the rook makes himself heard first.

If a cab horse is lively without apparent cause, it is a sure sign of cold weather in the near future; but if it stretches out its neck and sniffs the air, the observer should turn back and fetch his umbrella, for he will certainly need it before the evening.

If a cat sneezes it will rain—unless, of course, your youngest olive branch has emptied the contents of the pepper pot beneath her nose. If she sits with her back to the fire it will snow; if she washes her face during a frost it will soon thaw, and if she scratches the wall or the legs of the table vigorously, the wind will be very high.

When the cat washes her jaws with her feet, especially if she puts her paws over her ears, it will rain; and when the rain is over, the cardinal point to which she turns while washing her face shows the direction from which the wind may be expected; while if pussy's coat looks particularly bright and glossy, the following day, at any rate, will be fine.

Dogs always know when it is going to rain; and, as to be forewarned is to be forearmed—with an umbrella—it is well to remember that rain will in all probability ensue when you see your dog making holes in the ground, eating grass, refusing meat or howling when anybody goes out, and also if he seems very stupid and drowsy.

Hark! I hear the asses bray.
We shall have some rain today.

And when these much-abused quadrupeds hang their ears forward and rub themselves against the walls they pass, it also foreshadows the approach of wet weather.

Moles make most reliable little barometers; it is a sign of very hot weather when they creep above the ground in summer, but floods are imminent when these tiny burrowers forsake the valleys and low-lying ground.

In late autumn the moles always form basins in a clay bed and fill these with worms, which they do not kill outright, but only mutilate to prevent their escape, thus providing food for the winter months. The milder the winter is going to be, the fewer will be the number of these larders, so gardeners can always be wise in time by noticing the moles' winter preparations. When moles throw up fresh earth during a frost, one can give up all hopes of skating, as it is sure to thaw within 48 hours.

Fowls are by no means out of the running as indicators of the weather. When they flap their wings, shuffle in the dust, or roost in the day time, it will soon rain; by standing on one leg they snow very plainly that cold and frost are at hand.

Oxen, like horses, sniff the air before rain, and also lick their hoofs and lie on their right side. Bats that fly into the house are a certain indication of rainy weather; while hares always take to the open country before a snowstorm. Of all birds it may be said that their being strangely silent is evidence of an approaching thunder storm.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Collins Men to Open St. Louis County Headquarters on Monday.

L. A. Barnes Mentioned For Member of Legislature—Local Democrats Watching Caucuses Throughout State With Interest—Republicans Assisted Democrats Against Lind In Minneapolis.

Vote hunters on the Collins side in the governorship campaign will open headquarters at Nos. 13, 14 and 15 Mesaba block Monday. This is convenient from a general standpoint and as it is practically next door to the offices of A. P. Cook, and only a couple of doors away from the office of Simon Clark, surveyor-general of logs. It is happily located for the use of at least two of the leading workers for Judge Collins.

The Collins men have never yet announced a chairman and it is to be deduced that Dr. J. J. Eklund did not find it feasible to give time to the place, as much as he was urged.

While the Collins crowd has been under disadvantage in not having a chairman nor headquarters up to this time, the Dunn side has had a few bumps. The necessity of changing its local chairman and the unhappy action of Mr. Dunn a week ago in starting a scrap with the Minneapolis Journal poltical writer have been drawbacks. While the change in chairman from William C. Sargent to William Getty is a disadvantage, it is not asserted to be so on account of either man being better for the work than the other. But the change of chairman of a campaign at any time is a shift that means the taking hold by somebody who may not look at conditions in the same way as the predecessor, and it at least puts the new man to some disadvantage. But as the change has been made early in the campaign, it is not expected to have any particular remarkable effect.

Dunn's workers are describing his encounter with the newspaper reporter in Minneapolis as an "accident" of temper, which is about as good a political excuse as has cropped out for a long time. They call attention to the fact that such mixups are not as rare as they might be and point to the fact that Senator Nelson when interrupted once in a meeting where he was speaking, went down into the audience, threw the man out, came back and resumed his speech. When John Lind was governor he had an animus against a St. Paul Dispatch man, and on the day he concluded his term as governor, he went to the Dispatch office and is said to have gotten satisfaction by laying hands on his enemy in the regular old fashion. But in the last case, which is a fairer comparison with what Dunn did, the governor waited until his term expired to get his man, while Dunn has not been made governor yet. His friends say that he wished to have the job off his hands so that he might not have the job ahead of him if he were to go to the governor's chair.

But the Collins people are confident that Dunn is not going there, at least they are manifesting that customary political sang froid in the affair that gives indication of all kinds of hope. They are working quietly and both sides are getting their precinct organizations in shape.

Collins people claim that the action in the county committee in putting the primaries so close against the county convention was to prevent the Dunn people from spending money. This might be taken as evidence of fear that the Dunn people could in a longer interim use boodle to buy off some of the other side. But the Collinsites say that the reason is that if the delegates were elected, say on Friday for the following Tuesday's meeting, they would come to the city immediately and that their expenses would have to be paid while they are here.

Dunn workers, regarding his action toward the political reporter of the Minneapolis Journal, call attention to their claim that the paper named was very friendly to Dunn during the legislative session of 1903. At that time John F. Jacobson, of Lac Qui Parle county, now chairman of the board of control to succeed James A. Martin, who is heading the Collins campaign, was a house leader and had many issues in common with Dunn, who was auditor of the state. There were a number of bills of Dunn's, notably one on the increase of the tax on gross railway earnings, which were furthered by Jacobson. At this time, they say, the paper indicated could not say enough in praise of either Dunn or Jacobson. But times are changed.

* * *

On the Democratic side of the fence there continues the usual quietude. The arrangements that were made for the state convention and the holding of the primaries, a week ago, have been the only local features for the week. The primaries were apparently so one-sided as to be devoid of interest. The Hearst people continue to work a more open campaign than the antis, and if Hearts has really stopped contributing to his own cause, it has not stopped the interest in St. Louis county. The Hearst club is directing work over the state from the top floor of the Torrey building.

* * *

The charge is frequently made by the Collins workers that the Dunn side has all the money in this campaign. At Dunn headquarters yesterday it was asserted that Dunn had not put a cent into St. Louis county, and that the people doing the work up here in his behalf were using their own money.

* * *

Friends of N. F. Hugo, representative of the Fifty-first legislative district, and a prominent candidate for speaker of the house, claim that the withdrawal of Dr. J. D. Budd, of Two Harbors, from the race in that district, included a direct reflection on the loyalty of the former toward the medical representatives. In the doctor's letter of withdrawal, he said:

"I right here state that the hardest thing I had to contend with during that campaign was the peculiar methods of my Republican associate."

In answer to this it is asserted that Budd got no more than a third of the votes in his town, while the majority that elected him was made up in Duluth, where Hugo lives. Some of his friends who knew of his letter of withdrawal, and what it would contain, are said to have urged him in vain to cut out that part of his letter referring to his "Republican associate."

* * *

L. A. Barnes, alderman from the Seventh ward, is being actively mentioned for the legislature in the Forty-ninth district. The two members last year, Dr. David Graham and P. E. Dowling, may neither of them be in the race this year. Mr. Graham has already announced that he would not be in the race again, while Mr. Dowling has not committed himself one way or the other openly, although he is said to look askance at the prospects. George J. Malkory, ex-member, and John Saarl, of Sparta, are in the race, and if they stay, and Mr. Barnes goes in, the three will probably make enough of a crowd for a lively contest. But in this phase of it there might be encouragement for Mr. Dowling to hang on, as in a multitude of opponents there is safety, according to a political maxim, at least for the man who has the office and wants to keep it.

Local Democrats have this week been watching the caucuses throughout the state with keen interest. Hennepin county claimed the chief interest, and at first the opinion was general that the Hearst forces had won out, but this later proved to be open to much doubt, in fact at this writing the anti-Hearst men seem to have the best of the pre-convention claims.

There appears to be no doubt that Republicans took a hand in the primaries in Minneapolis in the interest of Hearst for the purpose of injuring the prestige of John Lind. Congressman Lind was the recognized leader of the antis. Loren Fletcher, who was defeated by Mr. Lind two years ago, is again anxious to try conclusions with the former governor, and with his crowd, took an active part in striving to undermine him in his own party. They figured that his defeat in the primaries would discredit him in the eyes of his followers, and would be greatly to the advantage of Mr. Fletcher, who hopes to run against him.

Hacks provided by the Fletcher barrel, which is notorious in politics, were running too and fro from the primaries, and there was evidence on every side of his work. If Congressman Lind has won out against the double odds, his prestige is likely to receive a substantial increase, and the attempt of Mr. Fletcher may not have been as astute as it was intended to be.

* * *

Another county that was closely watched by Duluth Hearst men was Stearns. That is the home of James R. Bennett, Jr., the "original Hearst man" in Minnesota and the recognized head of his campaign. The Hearst men here hardly dreamed that Mr. Bennett would be downed in his own community, his representations having led them to believe that Stearns was pretty nearly a sure thing, in spite of some opposition. But he did go down, and most ingloriously. With him went Mayor Robinson, who was allied with him in the leadership of the Hearst fight in the county.

The county of Stearns will be so completely anti-Hearst that it is doubtful if Mr. Bennett can have the privilege of coming to the Duluth convention as a delegate.

Some interesting Republican campaign secrets are shown in the following editorial from the Marshall News-Messenger, written by Capt. C. C. Whitney, its editor, who is secretary of the Republican state committee.

"Much criticism has been made by the portion of the press antagonistic to Governor Van Sant because the report of Public Examiner Johnson upon the condition of the state auditor's office was presented in the midst of the present political campaign. We have nothing to do with the merits or demerits of that report, and Mr. Dunn has his own defense of the charges made. But it is only fair to the governor and public examiner that the facts regarding the report should be dealt with. The investigation was not ordered or instigated by either the governor or public examiner. The investigation was ordered by the legislature of 1903, and was conducted under its direction until the close of the session late in April, when it was ordered continued by the public examiner. That official employed the same expert who began the work for the legislature until he suddenly left the state and remained away for months, until found and summoned before the public examiner by legal process, an unwilling witness of his own work, and, of course, not to be considered in continuing the investigation. Then the work was taken up by the force in the public examiner's office, completed, and the report finally given to the governor was placed in his hands some six weeks before it appeared in the newspapers. By the governor the report was turned over to Attorney General Douglas, before his term of office expired, and laid aside while it was necessary for him to go to Itasca park to close his official connection with those interests. Upon his return the report could not be found! Lost or stolen, it was a month later before the public examiner learned the condition of affairs and then he began anew the task of compiling from office notes and records the more than 100 pages of the report, typewriting and proofreading, and the new report went to the governor, and in turn was passed to the new attorney general, where it has since laid. These facts have been hitherto suppressed, but the public, the governor and the public examiner are entitled to the benefit of them.

"Had the expert employed by the legislature and continued in service by the public examiner attended to his business, the much-discussed report would have been completed before Dec. 31, and not delayed until the midst of the gubernatorial campaign. Who caused the delay? Certainly not the legislature nor the public examiner. But on the other hand, suppose the public examiner had failed to make his report, how would he stand before the bar of the next legislature?

GOSSIP FROM ST. PAUL.

Gubernatorial Nominee Will Name the Whole Ticket.

St. Paul, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Whoever gets the Republican nomination for governor will name practically the entire Republican ticket."

This statement was made yesterday by a leading gubernatorial campaign manager, who is in as close touch with the political situation throughout the state as any other man in Minnesota.

The statement reflects the sentiment of a great majority of the Republicans who have visited the St. Paul hotels recently. To a question as to how a particular candidate for attorney-general or railroad and warehouse commissioner is getting along, each of these Republicans will reply: "Don't have any idea; haven't heard any talk on that office down our way. Only talk I hear is on the governorship."

Although there is probably much truth in this statement, no one knows what candidates either R. C. Dunn or Judge Loren W. Collins will name if nominated. Neither the Collins nor the Dunn men have a slate that anyone has been able to find out. Present indications point to the nomination of Julius H. Block for state treasurer, whichever gubernatorial candidate wins. Although W. J. Donahower, candidate for attorney-general, is an appointee of the Collins forces, many men are working for him and many Collins men, particularly the state senators favorable to Collins, are boosting E. T. Young of Appleton, secretary of state. Peter E. Hanson of Litchfield, a strong Dunn man will be renominated irrespective of the gubernatorial result.

The nomination of justices of the supreme court and railroad and warehouse commissioner will be affected most by the gubernatorial situation. The Collins men want the present justices returned and for the ostensible reason voted at the state central committee to have the justices taken up before the other officers. The Dunn men are openly working for Judge D. B. Searle of St. Cloud and they would not regret the nomination of Judge E. A. Jaggard of St. Paul. H. P. Hall, manager of Judge Jaggard's press bureau, is a strong Dunn man and spends a good deal of time at the Dunn headquarters.

Among the candidates for railroad and warehouse commissioner, Senator A. T. Stebbing, of Rochester, is a Collins man. A. D. Gray, of Preston, is for Collins, but the Dunn men are glad to have him a candidate, since it means Dunn will get half of the Fillmore county delegation. The same is true of Young, of Mankato. John King, of Walker, is a Collins supporter, while D. M. Gunn, of Grand Rapids, is for Dunn first and Gunn second.

Some of the Dunn men say J. G. Miller, of Two Harbors, is for Collins, but Mr. Miller says he is keeping out of the gubernatorial contest.

E. J. Herringer, of Ada, is reported to be a Dunn supporter, and Ezra G. Valentine, of Breckenridge, is backed by many friends of the Princeton candidate.

Republicans of the Second congressional district say they will hold a caucus before the state convention to decide on one of the two candidates for railroad and warehouse commissioner, William E. Young, of Mankato, and Thomas Crawford, of Lakefield. Both candidates are developing considerable strength, and neither is disposed to step out of the race until he is satisfied the people are determined to have the other.

Young is one of the best known lawyers in the southern part of the state, and he has the advantage of living in Mankato, which is somewhat of a railroad center and has large commercial interests. Crawford, who is editor of the Lakefield Standard, is well known among the newspaper men of the state. He is an out-and-out Dunn man. Young is not taking part in the gubernatorial fight, but his candidacy is favored by Dunn men. It means that Dunn will get at least half of the Blue Earth county delegation, al of which the Collins men have been claiming.

There is more talk of Senator Hiler H. Horton, of St. Paul, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman against F. C. Stevens, but Senator Horton does not give his friends any encouragement that he will make the run.

Senator Horton was in the congressional limelight a good deal a year ago, but the general sentiment recently has been that he will not be a candidate. Should he enter the field, however, there may be a lively contest. Senator Horton won considerable prominence as the promoter of the appropriation bill for the new capitol. He is a good speaker, a formidable debater and an all-around shrewd political manager. Congressman Stevens, on the other hand, has been exceedingly fortunate in securing in congress many benefits for St. Paul and the Fourth congressional district.

AN UNFETTERED DELEGATION.

There is not the slightest probability that William R. Hearst can secure the presidential nomination in the Democratic convention at St. Louis. The state conventions already held have settled that point so decisively that there is no one now, not even Mr. Hearst, himself, who believes he has any chance whatever of being the nominee. Furthermore, there will not be enough Hearst delegates in the St. Louis convention to dictate or decide the nomination under the two-thirds rule. They will not number one-third of the convention, possibly not one-fifth.

In view of these facts, what utter folly it would be for the Democrats of Minnesota to send a delegation to St. Louis instructed and bound by the unit rule to vote for a man who has not even the ghost of a chance of winning! Whatever reasons the supporters of Mr. Hearst in this state may have had for believing that he was the proper man to nominate for president, those reasons have been overthrown entirely by the verdicts of other state conventions which have eliminated him from the possibilities. As long as there was a chance for his candidacy to succeed, those who were supporting him were acting consistently when they worked for a delegation instructed to vote for Mr. Hearst. There was a time when it seemed possible that Mr. Hearst might capture the nomination, but his boom reached its height several weeks ago and has now flattened out completely. His supporters in Minnesota must surely see not only the folly of continuing a fight in his behalf, but the absurd position the Minnesota Democracy would be placed in if the state convention should now send to St. Louis a delegation instructed for one who may properly be styled a political corpse as far as the nomination is concerned.

If the Hearst men in Minnesota act wisely, they will cease demanding an instructed delegation for the candidate of their choice. The party cannot be built up and strengthened in this state by tieing up the delegation to any candidate—much less one who will be in a small minority at St. Louis. The way to advance the interests of the party at home is for all Democrats to join hands in the selection of a strong delegation which can be depended upon to act in consultation and conjunction with the delegates from the other states in the naming of a candidate who can command the united strength of the party throughout the nation and who will attract the independent voters whose support is necessary to ensure Democratic success in November.

THE JAPANESE FATALISTS.

A peculiar notion is existant in America regarding Japanese soldiers. Because they are fatalists and not afraid to die, that is looked upon by some people as a trait to be condemned. The Boston Globe gives voice to this odd sentiment when it says in explanation of the Japanese code of ethics: "When dying in battle for one's master, affection for parents and the love of wife and children must be regarded as nothing compared with loyalty."

It would be difficult to discover any difference in this sentiment than that displayed by Americans or the volunteers of any so-called Christian nation when they offer their lives in behalf of their country's welfare. Yet the Globe is greatly shocked over the apparent disregard for human life by the Japanese officers and declares that "the fighting on the Kwantung peninsula has been the most sanguinary and reckless recorded in modern times. The Japanese admit officially a loss of 3500 killed and wounded in the battles. The sacrifice of life was simply awful and has met with rebukes from the leading military reviews of Europe and America. Such tactics, consisting in sacrificing thousands of soldiers without counting the cost, would not be employed by Europeans. The Japanese soldiers despise death. Such fanaticism would not be warranted by any known code of Christian morals."

The "code of Christian morals" must have greatly improved since the civil war if the Boston paper speaks truly. Less than 1000 Japs were killed in the assault on Kinchow and Nan-Shan heights. The losses in the battle of Gettysburg during the rebellion were over 20,000 on each side. In Pickett's charge alone 3500 men were lost. In a single attack on Vicksburg, that was repulsed, 3000 men were lost. In the battle of the Wilderness, 10,000 men are said to have fallen on each side. In the assault on Cold Harbor 7000 Federal soldiers were killed and wounded. Grant's Virginia campaign cost the Union 54,000 men, according to the official records.

The fact is that the Japanese soldier does not care to lose his life any more than the American, but considers the welfare of his countrymen of more consequence than his own life. So he freely takes the risk. That is the one redeeming feature in warfare, either Christian or Pagan. It develops the heroic in man's nature, which cannot fail to have some good effect upon succeeding generations.

In fact, it is bravery in the face of death that has made the soldiers of so-called Christian nations generally invincible, when pitted against the fatalists of races with inferior intelligence.

The school histories of the United States from the beginning have taught the rising generations that man can do no greater deed than to offer his life in sacrifice for his country's welfare, and yet we find some of our leading newspapers making the rather ridiculous complaint that the Japs inculcate the same doctrine.

As long as there is warfare there must be sacrifice of human life, and sometimes it is better to sacrifice many lives at once in a decisive engagement than to sacrifice more by long drawn-out maneuverings in order to avoid bloodshed. It is altogether probable that there would have been less lives lost in the civil war but for the hesitation of tender-hearted generals and the delays occasioned for political reasons.

THE MUSIC TEACHERS.

The fame of Duluth as a convention city is rapidly spreading. The delightful quality of its summer climate makes a great attraction which will be more and more effective as time passes.

Next week the Zenith City will have the pleasure of entertaining the convention of the State Music Teachers' association, which will attract hundreds of musicians from different parts of the state. Not only will the best musical talent of the commonwealth be present, but the event will draw here some of the most famed artists in the country.

It behooves the citizens of Duluth to do all in their power to make the stay of these musical people both pleasant and profitable. It is by acts and not by words that the city will be judged, and if it is the desire to attract other conventions in future the members of those who come should be treated with every possible consideration and courtesy.

This convention will entail a considerable expense upon the membership and it is proposed to meet this in part by giving a series of recitals, which will be participated in by musicians famed for their talent. No doubt the music-lovers of Duluth will gladly reciprocate in substantial manner.

On behalf of the people of Duluth, The Herald extends to the music teachers a cordial welcome, trusting that their visit to the Zenith City will create in their minds an impression both pleasant and lasting.

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD STREETS.

"The streets of a town, good or bad, give visitors a lasting impression of a town," said Mayor Riordan in his message to the council of Harrison, N. J. Therefore the streets should be kept in good condition and in doing future paving the strictest supervision should be employed. He suggests that copies of the specifications, under which any paving is being done, should be distributed to the property-owners along the streets to be paved and that every property-holder be requested to see that the work is being done properly, reporting neglect.

It is rather difficult for inspectors, property-owners or anybody else to see that paving is properly done when it is torn up in patches after once being laid. It never is as good pavement afterward. The tearing up of pavements for the laying of water and gas mains, conduits and sewers is responsible for the early failure of nearly all kinds of pavement and this patchwork business is especially damaging to macadam pavements, which can never be put down as good as they were before.

It would seem that city governments ought to be able to devise some plan that will prevent this kind of destruction and waste in future.

SOURCE OF COLORADO'S DISEASE.

Assassination as a means of gaining a victory cannot find palliation, justification or excuse in a free republic, whether it be committed by workingmen, labor unions, politicians or corporations; whether it be the shooting of a governor in Kentucky or the annihilation of non-union workingmen in Colorado; whether it be done by the street "gangs" of New York or the tools of organized greed in any part of the country.

The men who were guilty of the black crime recently committed in Colorado should be ferreted out and punished to the full extent of the law, but at the same time it is unjust to punish a whole community of innocent people for the deed of a guilty few.

It would be just as sane and reasonable to charge the entire membership of the Republican party of Kentucky with participation in the murder of Governor Goebel as it is to charge the entire membership of the miners' union in Colorado with the responsibility for the dastardly crime committed at Cripple Creek. Yet we find many organs of organized greed free to charge that the Colorado crime was not only committed by union men, but by direction of the miners' union and this without knowing anything about the facts, even before the perpetrators have been discovered or given trial.

The Brooklyn Eagle, in a mean attempt to throw upon the shoulders of President Roosevelt responsibility for all the contemptible and murderous acts committed recently by union men because, forsooth, he undertook to assist in settling the strike of the coal miners by peaceful methods, makes the deliberate charge that the recent crime in Colorado was committed by the miners' union as an organization. Under the heading, "Murder By Trades Unions," the Eagle goes on with a column and a half of invective and inuendo against unions and unionism that clearly reveals its animus. In one portion it states an evident truth in the following:

"Right to earn our bread is as sacred as the right to eat it, and there can be no peace, no safety, no progress and no honor in that nation which would deny this right."

With this sentiment all honorable and upright men will readily agree. But this was written before the Mine Owners' association by force and intimidation deprived 300 union men of the right to earn their bread by laboring in the Portland mine and also had their minions fire upon a body of union men who were endeavoring to earn a living in a new district. It remains to be seen whether the Eagle will as vigorously uphold the right of these union men to earn their bread as it exerts in behalf of its pets, the non-union men. It is safe to infer, however, that it will not find anything to condemn in the action, but will uphold it as a necessity in the establishment of peace. Or else it will forget all about it.

The fact is that if the miners' union of Colorado has drifted into anarchy it has been driven to it by the anarchy of the corporations in corrupting the state legislature by the use of money and inducing the lawmakers to defy the popular will as expressed at the ballot box. That is the source of Colorado's disease and its so-called "respectable" and wealthy citizens are responsible for it.

The man who toils in a mine ought to have just as much to say about how much he will take for his labor and how long he will work as the man who would manipulate the people's inheritance for his own benefit, and deny the right of labor to organize.

THE FIELD SURVEY

The men who are working at $1.60 per day on the ranges will hardly agree with Secretary Shaw that increased cost of living is a blessing, but the majority of them will vote the same ticket that he does just the same. They will be convinced by the Republican spellbinders that in order to draw any wages at all they must assist in keeping the Grand Old Party in power.

On busy thoroughfares pedestrians have enough to do to keep out of the way of street cars and teams without being obliged also to dodge out of the way of flying bicycles and automobiles. It is an awful easy matter to send an automobile along a business street faster than it ought to go, and but few of them are run on Superior street in the business center as slowly as they should be.

* * *

It is claimed that the miners' strike in Colorado has already cost in round numbers $23,000,000. If the union miners had been granted all they asked the amount could have been paid out of this worse-than-wasted money and most of it would be left.

The street railway tracks cannot be extended to Fairmount park because the Grand avenue bridges are unsafe. The bridges cannot be repaired because there is not money enough in the board of public works maintenance fund. And there is over $400,000 of Duluth's money lying idle in local banks. Why not borrow a little of this back from the banks and make some of the improvements that are imperatively demanded?

The West Duluth Commercial club has finally arrived at the wise conclusion to allow the people of Duluth to be free—even on Independence day.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS.

Says the Battle Lake Review:

> Editors are often obliged to hear: "Oh, well, you ride on a free pass," and similar remarks. This is wrong, for editors get very few free passes during a lifetime. Big railway corporations are not in the habit of giving their property away and they seldom issue passes without requiring money or its equivalent. They usually require monthly balances and allow no overdrafts. The free pass theory is only a dream.

It is true that all the transportation the average country editor uses is paid for many times over in advertising, yet the fact remains that an editor must always "be good" in order to secure transportation in exchange for advertising from some railroads, while others refuse it altogether to papers whose "influence" is considered of no account. Consequently what editors often hear as to riding on passes is true in the sense that the editor is under some obligation to the railroad issuing the transportation although he may also pay for it in advertising. The fair way would be to pay fares and make the railroads pay for advertising. But if that were the rule, but few country papers would get any railroad advertising.

The Moose Lake Star, which is now edited by E. A. Rydeen, has the following to say in its last issue concerning its former publisher:

> We have heard considerable complaint from the old editor lately. During the five months that he has spent at the head of this thriving newspaper he reports a net gain of only $25,000. What with his law business and land business and undesired bachelorhood it looks to him like working for nothing. As for the new editor we can only say that he is more easily satisfied and if the good people of Moose Lake will continue this liberal patronage we shall not be selfish but will retire in a year or two with our fortune and settle down to a life of ease, giving some other good citizen a chance to buy us out and make his fortune also.

In our mind's eye we can see the editors, old and new, rolling in the wealth derived from the publication of the Star.

Speaking of a recent decision of the United States supreme court the Princeton Union says:

> It would not do to permit semi-barbaric or half-civilized people trials by jury in certain cases. Such guarantees or government were intended only for people who realize what a free government means.

As this decision was rendered in the case of two American citizens residing in the Philippines it is to be inferred that a jury trial was denied them either because they were barbaric and half-civilized or because they could not realize what a free government means.

This is from the Warroad Plaindealer:

> A couple of weeks more will show u how the trusts dominate political conventions—how they will prevent the nomination of Roosevelt. Don't lose any sleep over it.

No, do not worry. The way the trusts are going to prevent the nomination of Roosevelt is by moving to make it unanimous.

The local news accumulater of the St. Peter Herald, makes himself solid with the Horner family of that vicinity, in a manner most original, says the Pine County Pioneer. John Horner had been absent from his relatives in Nicollet county for some thirty years, and the Herald states that John is "a nephew of Simon Horner, conducts a hotel in Dietz, Sheridan county, Wyoming, is a subscriber to the Herald, and an all 'round gentleman. All the Horners are." That's business, but where do the fair ones of the family come in?

HOTEL GOSSIP

It is a good joke on the St. Louis, so they say, and the people who are superstitious say that the people who belong to the house have some occult power, that any time any chance prize is offered to the house and its guests, some one connected directly with the hotel seems to gobble the plum.

At any rate, two of the best prizes that have been obtainable in the hotel for some time have been carried off by some one belonging to the inner circle.

Not so long since there was put up at the cigar stand a series of chances by which the person drawing the lucky number should be entitled to a ticket to St. Louis, so he could take in the Louisiana Purchase exposition. The different lovers of excitement took a chance now and then at the schedule price, with the hope that they would all get the right number, and the amount of mental speculation that went on over the matter was much more than the amount expended in buying the chances.

But when they learned that Thomas Michaud, head of the clerical contingent, had bought a chance, their stock fell way below par. It was all off. There was no hope for those on the outside of the St. Louis family circle. They knew from the time they heard of "Tommy's" advent into the contest that there would be nothing doing for their benefit, as the prize was sure to cross his palm. They were right. It did. He will go to the exposition, having drawn the right ticket.

Now there are a whole lot of people who patronize the St. Louis that are fearful of taking chances in the future on any scheme that may hinge on chance, as they say it's not a matter of chance if the family circle is not excluded. Not long ago there was a watch raffled and a great deal of interest was manifested in seeing who would be able to ascertain the time of day at a nominal cost for a period of years.

Ernest Butchart, of the proprietor's family, got the watch, and it is said a rule may be enforced prohibiting any of the family from taking chances on the same things as the guests, in order that the outsiders may feel assured that they will be "in it." It's a sort of a double Jonah for the people that really belong to the hotel to get most of the prizes, as it reduces the interest, and they don't care nearly so much about the trinkets or trips as most of the other people.

"Fine monument to the fellows that want high rents, that."

The speaker was standing on East Superior street waiting for a car, and he was talking to anybody else of the group of men waiting with him, that might wish to notice.

The reference was made to a double house on a prominent avenue which was within a stone's throw of where they stood. The house in both sides had signs of "For Rent" in every window, which indicated that it was vacant.

"Yes, sir, you're about right," spoke another.

"You bet I am. They had good tenants at $35 per month and that was not enough. They wanted $37.50. I hope to goodness it remais vacant for two years."

The last expression indicated that the speaker might have been the last occupant of one side of the house, but whether this was the case was not learned. But the remark sounded like it.

* * *

A stranger in Duluth who was walking along in the East End the other day recounts some rather interesting observations. There is a vacant lot in the neighborhood of Seventeenth avenue which is open to debate. That is to say, it is vacant and is not vacant, or at least different people term it differently. Fact of the matter is that this lot is in the midst of a large number of vacant lots, and has a small stable or wooden barn on the back end of it. Some enterprising man came along and seeing that the barn was not occupied, determined that it would be a good idea to see if he could not rent it, as he could house cows there and let them forage on the surrounding sward. He proceeded to see the agent of the land, and after discussion, managed to secure the use of the place at a nominal rental to graze cows on. As they are not cows that belong to him, the neighbors complained about the matter with more vigor than if it had been wholly his own affair. But the fact that the cows were frequently left all day tethered to one spot without being given water or any other attention has nothing to do with the observations of the stranger in Duluth, and is getting past the story.

One bright morning a few days ago one of the cows was roped to a stake which gave her about a 30-foot radius, when a couple of dogs happened across the lot and thought it good sport to worry her. She put her head and started to run, and the result was that at the end of the 30-foot run the climax was like that of the irresistible body meeting the immovable force—only different. But neither force gave, in a certain sense.

The horn that the rope was tied to was unwilling to break, so was the rope, and the stake was diffident about giving way. The result was that the animal turned a complete somersault and landed on her back. Where she alighted was a hollow place, and she was unable to get to her feet for quite a little, kicking vainly at high heaven meanwhile, and the dogs biting and barking all the time. Finally she got up and managed to drive the dogs away.

Coming on down First street the stranger observed some more things, particularly the following, as he describes it: "It's remarkable in a hillside city like Duluth to see the way the people use one line of cars. Take, for instance, those on Superior street. People from as far up as Second street run down to that street to get the car, and frequently from as far up as Third street. If you start at just the right point sometimes you can see people on two or three cross streets running down at once, at different speeds and distances from Superior street, according to how far away from the car they may be.

"The best example of fleetness I have yet seen is a woman. Young woman, too, and good looking in the bargain. She runs down Fourteenth avenue and when she wants to make a car that's closer than will permit her to walk, she does a sprinting stunt that would rival a professional gait. She don't care how much her light hair is strewn around by the wind. She's the lightest-footed and most graceful runner I have ever seen, and I don't have to modify the statement. If you don't believe it, just happen around in that neighborhood for a few mornings and use your own judgment."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The woman who marries for money can love her children; the man himself.

When a woman isn't afraid of the cook it is because she wants to get rid of her.

A nice thing about not having any money is you can't lose it in foolish speculation.

It's very hard to convince a woman you can't make your bills less merely by adding up the figures wrong.

The tug John McKay broke her crank pin and it was necessary to send to Chicago for another.

C. P. Byam, who was arrested in connection with alleged fraudulent land transactions, eluded the officers but was captured next day and taken to St. Paul.

The village marshal was instructed to drive every tramp out of town. An attempt to amend the liquor ordinance so as to permit saloons to keep open their back doors at all times, was voted down.

The ladies of the Catholic society gave a fair at Dr. Austin's building on the evenings of June 11, 12, 13 and 14.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Two Microbes to Fight.

The modern theory of disease lays much stress on the disastrous work of infinitesimal invisible agencies which prey upon the body. To their overthrow and entire annihilation all the forces under the command of physicians and scientists are being devoted. It sometimes seems as if there were in the realm of the intellecual and moral life certain little pestilential microbes or bacilli or germs, call them what you will, which persist in fastening upon and worrying us. They burrow their way down through the ordinary protective armor and fasten upon our very vitals. We try to shake them off, but they stick. There is no recourse then, but to declare war and wage it to the bitter end.

Remorse in its various forms, regret, repining, self-upbraiding is a terrible microbe. How much nervous force we lose in worrying over things we have done or failed to do, the opportunities squandered. How we retrace the ground in our imagination and say, "Oh, why did I not take the other course instead of the one I did choose?" Honest self-examination and self-appraisal is wholesome, but to linger long in thought over the might-have-been is suicidal. Gen. Gordon, the hero of Khartoum, used to say when he had actually done a thing he looked upon it not as an isolated historical event, but as a part of the providential movement of his life. From that point of view he could hear even the remembrance of his mistakes because he believed that somehow in the providence of God they might be made to yield valuable spiritual fruitage and turn out to the progress of truth and righteousness. So he detached himself, so far as worry goes, from his yesterdays.

And we all need to do this. Today has problems enough of its own. As Martin Luther said, "The best repentance is to do so no more." Pause enough over your folly and sin to name it as such and to seek forgiveness, and then dismiss it altogether from your mind. Suffer it not to shadow today's joys or to sap the strength to be used for today's tasks.

Another baneful microbe is fear. It is bred in the same pestilential swamp with the bacillus called remorse, but it looks toward the future instead of the past. A whimsical illustration of it is had in the little girl who was asked one day why she was sobbing so bitterly and responded "I am so afraid that when I grow up I shall get married and have a baby and the baby will die." Older people lose sleep and flesh over hardly more probable or immediate contingencies. Don't worry clubs have come up in different parts of the land to fight this special microbe, but you need not wait for an formal organization. Start one under your own roof or in your own heart.

The man who has stamped out these two microbes, care and fear, has doubled the valuation of his earthly days, lengthened the probable duration of his life, acquired an enviable dignity, poise and serenity of life and multiplied manifold the efficiency of his personality.

Religion, especially the Christian religion, provides some specifics against the inroads of these two microbes. It emphasizes its doctrine of forgiveness—perhaps sometimes in the past it has over-empraszied it. But, putting aside all fantastic and unmoral statements of that doctrine, the fundamental truth will remain that for the man who has slipped and fallen provision has been made not alone to put him on his feet again, but to remove from his consciousness the load of guilt and throbbings of remorse.

And the Bible is full also of admonitions beginning "Fear not." In fact, for the man really believes what the Bible says, worry becomes an outrage upon his God. Why, if we all are the creatures of a loving, forgiving, resourceful Father and are trying today to live as His children should, need we worry over yesterday's shortcomings or be afraid of what the morrow will bring forth?

THE PARSON.

The Colorado Mess.

New York World: The capitalist anarchist, the union anarchist and the office-holding anarchist are all indiscriminately mixed up in this murderous mess. It is impossible to sympathize with any of them; but one fact seems clear. If a corporation lobby had not manipulated a recreant legislature to defeat the will of the people, the Cripple Creek district would not be drenched in the blood of civil war. Colorado is reaping the whirlwind of lawless capitalism and official betrayal of public trusts; but lawlessness and betrayal do not justify lawlessness and murder. The terrible crimes committed by union miners or by their sympathizers cannot be condoned. As long as they are trying to murder their way to victory they are deserving neither of sympathy nor consideration.

Make the Issue Clear.

Detroit News: Of course not all the Wisconsin grafters are against Governor La Follette, but the majority is big enough to make the issue clear.

SAVE THE COUNTRY SCHOOL.

St. Paul Globe: It is one of the most extraordinary commentaries possible upon the slow advance of intelligence in matters relating to public education that, just as those in charge of city schools are beginning to study how they may escape from the evils of the graded system, those in charge of the country schools are putting forth efforts to throw it under the same evil blight.

We wonder what the people so befooled make of the general conclusion today that the country school has been the mental and moral salvation of the people; that to it we owe the possibility of independent development which alone brings out the strength and character of the human unit; that from it we have gained originality and freedom of thought, and that to it and its unconventionality, rather than to any other advantage of rural upbringing, we owe the fact that so many of our greatest and ablest men are country born and bred. We wonder what they make of the fact that thinking men who are members of boards of education and school superintendents everywhere are planning how to get away from the admitted curse of the graded system.

From the encroachments of this idea let us at least save the country school inferior as it too often is, weak in the quality of its instruction because unable or unwilling to pay for the best, narrow in its accommodations, yet it possesses the stimulating atmosphere of intellectual liberty. The child there can grow naturally, follows his bent, develops according to his own inspiration and remains a human being, instead of a pitiful little cog in a big machine. Those who propose this change mean well, but they are thoughtlessly planning the completion of a great crime against the child. Let us improve the country school, as we should, by giving it better quarters, better teachers and better apparatus, but let us save it in all its essentials as a model to which we shall eventually make our city schools conform.

The feature of the meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly last night was the address made by John F. McDonald, representing the Western Federation of Miners. Mr. McDonald is a plain, ordinary miner in appearance, not over choice in the selection of grammatical phrases, but is a very interesting talker, nevertheless, particularly so when the subject is the wrongs inflicted upon his fellow-workmen. He spoke quietly but eloquently on the horrors existing in and about Cripple Creek, and was listened to with the most intense interest. Without discussion, it was voted to donate $25 to the cause of the striking miners, and there is also talk of calling a mass meeting, to be addressed by Mr. McDonald, W. E. McEwen and others to put the miners' side of the story before the public.

"The whole country is talking about the outrages perpetrated in the Western mining district this week," said Mr. McDonald. "It has been heralded far and wide that the unions and union men caused the setting off of the charge of dynamite which resulted so fatally to the group of miners standing upon a station platform. I don't believe that a union man was in anyway connected with the frightful crime, either as a tool or otherwise. The dynamite was set off by agents of either the mine owners or Citizens' alliance. I think this is so because it is the fourth attempt which has been made to throw odium on the union men, and give some reason for driving them out of the camps.

"The first thing of this kind was an attempt by agents of the Citizens' alliance to blow up an unused mill. They thought the blame for the crime would rest upon the union men. Our detectives found out the plot in time to prevent its being carried out.

"Following this discovery there was a period of three weeks when all was quiet. The troops were ordered to leave Cripple Creek. The mine owners and the Citizens' alliance did not want to see the troops go, but desired them to remain and drive out the union miners. The day the troops were to to leave 100 pounds of dynamite was set off in one of the mines. The crime was laid at the door of the unions. The explosion occurred on the 600-foot level. A union man would have had to pass pickets and scores of non-union miners before reaching the spot, besides riding down the elevator and having the cage stopped at the unused level, thus attracting attention. It would have been a physical impossibility to do this, especially so when one considers that he would have been carrying 100 pounds of dynamite, making two good-sized boxes. The explosion was a premature one, and the evidence showed that the non-union men were caught in thir own trap.

"In another instance spikes were pulled from railroad ties to make it appear that the union men tried to wreck a train. Detectives of the mine owners were caught in the act of pulling out the spikes. Our detectives are always on the alert for just such attempts.

"I believe the Independence explosion of June 6 was all cut and dried by the Citizens' alliance. They wanted some excuse to turn the union men out of the camps, and hit upon the dynamiting outrage as the only way to bring about the desired results.

"The miners are unarmed or they would die in their homes before leaving the region for the crime of another. The secretary of the Mine Owners' association is without even a principle of common honesty. Such a man will stop at nothing to obtain his ends. He and his assoclates make up a band of thieves and murderers. An order has been given to arrest the miners' wives if they speak against the arrest of their husbands for no crime at all.

"If there is any insurrection in the state of Colorado the insurrectionists are the governor and his generals, not the union miners. If there is any desecration of the flag in the state it is the troops who carry it that are doing the desecrating. This mob is trampling upon the freedom and rights of the people. The flag is all right itself, but, like the good Samaritan, has fallen among thieves. The troops are murderers and robbers, and if there is an insurrection of the people, there will be more cause for it than there was cause for the rising of Americans in 1776."

The twenty-second convention of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor will convene in New Ulm Monday, June 13, at 10 o'clock in the morning. The meeting will continue three days, coming to a close Wednesday evening.

W. E. McEwen, of Duluth, secretary of the Federation, left for New Ulm last night. He will be folowed this afternoon and tonight by the seventeen delegates elected to th convention from the local trades and labor unions. Last year there were thirty delegates to the convention from Duluth. Those going this year are as follows:

Federated Trades assembly—President Henry Pereault, Vice-President Fred McKelvey, Charles McDowell, Edward Schublsky, E. S. Kromrey.

Building Trades council—Ole Larson, Samuel Mahan, John Day.

Butchers—George Northfield.

Plumbers—W. E. McEwen, O. L. Sturnes.

Cigarmakers—Joseph Shortel.

Carpenters—J. H. Baker, Edward Lowe, G. M. Davis.

Typographical union—Henry Dworschak.

Although there will not be so many attending the convention from Duluth this years as last, this fact does not hold true of all cities in the state. The total increase in attendance will be fifty or more over the 1903 meeting. St. Paul sent 42 delegates last year. She now has 68 delegates elected. Minneapolis, Rochester, Red Wing and some of the other larger towns will send increased delgations this year. There will be an unusual number from the smaller towns of the state as well. Brainerd sends 25 delegates where last years she sent 10, and Mankato sends 20, where she sent 10 before. There is a corresponding increase in the delegations from some of the other small towns. The total attendance will be about 375 persons.

An interesting feature of the meeting will be the annual report of Secretary McEwen, which will show that 70 unions have affiliated with the state federation during the past year. The receipts for the year have been $4,840.27, and the disbursements $2,322.97. A balance of $2517 is left on hand.

The meeting will be called to order Monday morning in Turner hall. Mayor Silverson will make the address of welcome, and President N. E. Neary will respond. Then will follow the report of the credential committee. The afternoon session will be given up to appointing committees, listening to reports of officers, and the introduction of resolutions. Reports of standing committees and unions will be heard Tuesday. Tuesday evening a mass meeting will be held. It will be addressed by W. McEwen, M. E Neary, president of the state federation, C. E. James, Harry Dix, president of the Minneapolis Trades Council; A. H. Garfield, of the St. Paul labor assembly, and John O'Donnell, state labor commissioner.

Wednesday reports of committees will be heard and unfinished business will be taken up. New business will be taken up and the election of officers will occur. The present president of the federation, M. E. Neary, has held the position for the past seven years. It is understood that Mr. Neary is desirous of retiring from office this year, and since this impression has gained ground several new candidates have appeared. Among them are C. E. James, of St. Paul, chairman of the federation council; A. H. Garfield, special organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and Henry Dix, president of th Minneapolis Trades and Labor assembly. All of these men are well known in state labor circles and a spirited contest is looked for.

Sunday afternoon a special train will leave the Twin Cities for New Ulm, leaving St. Paul at 2 o'clock and Minneapolis a half hour later. The local delegates, with the other Northern Minnesota delegates, will ride to the convention city on the special.

* * *

As yet the grocery clerks of the city have not been successful in organizing a union. Four meetings of clerks have been called but at none of them was the attendance large enough to perfect an organization. Possibly the matter will be dropped altogether.

* * *

At the meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly last night, a motion was made to remove all boycotts which had been endorsed by the assembly, and which were placed on firms by unions which have since surrendered their charter. A hot discussion ensued. It was claimed that the effort was merely to remove the old boycott from the Acme laundry as a political game to secure the support of union men at the coming election. The motion to lay the matter on the table until after election finally carried.

Delegates Sund and Elliot were named as additional alternates to the annual convention of the State Federation.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Richard Mansfield in "Ivan the Terrible."

"RUNNING FOR OFFICE."

Cohans, Reduced to Three, Give Clever Show.

The Four Cohans, though still advertised on the bills and in the house program, have been reduced to three, though it pleases the management to conceal the fact, and advertise George M. Cohan, the cleverest of the four, as still in the cast. He left the company at Vancouver, the cause of the rupture said to be due to differences of some sort or other. William Seymour is now playing the part filled by George Cohan, and while he does very well, he is far from being Cohan's equal, especially in dancing.

The production, in spite of the absence of George Cohan, is one of the cleverest and funniest Duluth has had this year. "Running for Office" is called a "musical frivolity," and that is truly what it is. It has three acts and is filled with bright songs, well sung, and clever dancing. The second act is a departure from the usual run in musical comedies in that it is a farce of the legitimate order, and presents a series of most laughable complications, following logically and without forcing, and so rapidly as to be bewildering. The work of the comedians is excellent and the audience was convulsed with laughter.

RICHARD MANSFIELD.

This evening at the Lyceum Richard Mansfield will appear in "Ivan the Terrible." The play is one of the most powerful which Mr. Mansfield has presented in recent years and has made a most profound impression. It is mounted and dressed with all of the luxuriousness and lavishness that has characterized all of Mr. Mansfield's productions.

FAMILY IN BAD SHAPE.

Developments of an Examination For Insanity.

During the examination before Probate Judge Middlecoff, of Mrs. C. E. Bliss, for insanity, yesterday afternoon a touching story of destitution came to light. Mr. Bliss has been employed as a cook in a local restaurant, through a series of misfortunes the family has come into straightened circumstances and Judge Middlecoff forwarded a recommendation to Humane Agent Withrow that the humane society take the matter up and find a more remunerative place for Bliss.

Mrs. Bliss has been in delicate health for some time and it was feared that the worry of caring for the wants of their small children had affected her mind, but the examining physicians found her to be in a sane condition.

The family has lived in Duluth for the past four years, Miss Bliss having been connected with "Gospel hall."

LOST IN A SWAMP

Jacob Sceible, Road Foreman Near Hibbing, Is Missing.

Supposed to Be In Swamp Near Sturgeon Lake.

Jacob Sceible, one of the county road commissioners in charge of the road work in Commissioner J. D. Connor's district is supposed to be lost somewhere in the vicinity of Sturgeon lake, about twenty miles fromw Hibbing, and his friends are scouring the country for him.

Commissioner Connor, who was to have attended the Democratic county convention, today, in the capacity of a delegate, has remained at home to assist in the search for the missing foreman who is said to have disappeared two or three days ago.

Mr. Sceible was out in the Sturgeon lake district doing some road work and the supposition is that while he was engaged in running lines for the road in dry places he became in some manner lost in one of the large swamps in that vicinity.

One of the Hibbing delegates stated this noon that he heard, just before starting for Duluth, that one of the police bloodhounds in this city had been sent for with the hope of tracing the missing man.

Mr. Sceible has held the position of road foreman for some time and was considered a very efficient and competent man.

RINGLING'S GREAT SHOW

Fourth of July Will Bring This Great Aggregation Here.

There will be a double celebration in Duluth, July 4, that promises to surpass all records on the "Good Time Book." The day this year will serve to satisfy the public desire more than ever for amid the boom of cannon and the pop of fire-crackers will come Ringling Bros.' great circus. Now what could be offered young America that would prove more satisfactory than a circus, fire-crackers and red lemonade. Just slip back in life a few years and recall those dear barefoot days when you and "de gang" waited anxiously through the night at the railroad crossing for the coming of some circus. Perhaps you did not have a bunch of crackers to pop or maybe it was not July 4th, but it was circus day and your heart was filled brim full of joy.

Charles A. White was in the city today in the interest of Ringling Bros.' and of the coming event he said:

"No pen is capable of paying proper tribute to the glorious Fourth of July and I above all will not attempt it farther than to say its sweeter to me than the fragrance of the first blown lilac."

"Our circus: Well, in the first place it is the largest affair ever transported from town to town and to verify my statement I can refer you to the railroad people that handle us into your city. Eighty-five double length railroad cars are employed to land us into each town and six hundred and fifty horses are carried to complete the movement after the railroads have performed their duty. There are 1280 people enrolled on the pay sheet and a herd of forty elephants to assist the local feed man in swelling his feed account. We have 108 cages of rare wild animals in our menagerie and a caravan of animals in least which constitutes the largest and most expensive zoo in the entire world.

"Now for the features that reign under the big tent. The most sensational riding acts ever performed are to be seen at each performance in the unique feats of the four Eldreds. These riders have astonished all Europe by their extraordinary equestrianism. Four people jumping from the ground to a running horse's back at exactly the same time, jumping backward at the same instant to the same flying position, side somersaulting over two fleeting horses, and executing difficult acrobatic feats while all four are on the back of a speeding horse, are several of the deeds that they accomplish that were never done before. The four Eldreds are without a peer in the whole world in sensational bareback riding. The four Bedinis, Parisian idols, are also in this high class, and make their first appearance here with Ringling Brothers. They introduce riding and leaping dogs in their revel and hazardous acts. The six Clinserrettis, who turn triple somersaults from shoulder to shoulder, are acrobats of European celebrity. The Tasmania troupe, the eight Colini-Clarons and the Dollard troupe present their specialties here for the first time, and have created a sensation. To bring these artists to this country is another evidence of the progressive policy of Ringling Brothers, which has separated their great shows from all others, both in public favor and exclusive novel and expensive features.

"Jerusalem and the Crusades will be the talk of every citizen for months after we are gone for it is the grandest conception in the history of circus achievement. The days of knight errantry, when chivalry was in flower, are pictured in fascinating splendors. Gallant youth, lissom maidenhood, heroic warrior, proud athlete, religious enthusiast, devoted matron, abject servant, barbaric voluptuary—all the characteristic types of the romantic and tragic tenth century, pass in acting review in the blazing spectacle. Twelve hundred characters are in the great cast and a ballet of 300 and a chorus of 200 young voices are employed. The musical accompaniment is furnished by the largest and only portable pipe organ ever made, and a band of 50 instruments. The stage is larger than the average circus arena, and 2000 costumes of costliest design and fabric are worn. The special scenery requires a special train. Never before was so much money invested for exhibitonal purposes, and this spirit of enterprise wisely directed, is just what makes the Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows twice the biggest and immeasurably the best inexistence."

PATHETIC CASE.

Mother Insane and No One to Care For Children.

Brooding over the death of her husband has rendered Anna Holt, of Hibbing, insane.

John Holt, her husband, was killed a short time ago on the railroad, and since his death she has been brooding constantly over her loss, until now she has became mentally deranged. Information of her insanity is now before the probate court, and the woman is being brought to Duluth this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff McGee.

The case is a peculiarly pathetic one. The young couple were Finlanders, and by dint of hard work and close economy had managed to purchase a little home in Hibbing worth about $600. The last payment on the house had just been made when the young husband was killed.

The widow was left with two small children, aged 1 and 3 years. They are both boys, and bright youngsters for their age.

The mother is not more than 23 years of age, and the father of the children was but a few years older.

Humane Officer Withrow is bringing the two children to Duluth. They will be placed in the new children's home temporarily, until some disposition of them and the property is made by the probate court.

Twenty-six Recruits.

Twenty-six recruits were being made ready for departure to their respective posts, at the local recruiting station today. Of these, sixteen will go to Angel Island, San Francisco bay; five to Jefferson barracks, Mo., and five to Columbus, Ohio. The first sixteen will be employed in coast defense work, the ones for Jefferson barracks in cavalry, and the five for Columbus in infantry.

Those for San Francisco will not leave until tomorrow morning, as it is intended to time their arrival at San Francisco so they may be met in the morning and taken promptly to the island.

The work of yesterday left only one match to be played in the men's handicap and two in the women's; three in the men's championship and one in the women's. It was expected these would be all played off today.

COMPLETE CONTROL

Hearst Men Have Things to Themselves In Convention.

Antis So Few as Not to Count—D. G. Cash Chairman.

About 100 delegates to the Democratic county convention assembled in the city hall at 2:30 p. m. today. The representation was about as forecasted by The Herald in respect to numbers and the men got down to business in very short order. The Hearst men appeared to have their intentions pretty well outlined in advance, depending on the number of their delgates, who seemed to be completely in the majority, for the security of their plans. It was generally the impression that the convention would be of the cut and dried variety, without any long discussions or controversies.

The resolutions presented by C. d'Autremont in behalf of the candidacy of William Randolph Hearst had been prepared in advance and the understanding was that Mr. d'Autremont would be proposed and endorsed for district delegate to the United States Democratic convention at St. Louis, and the delegates that were selected to represent St. Louis county at the state convention would be instructed to further his interests as a candidate at the latter convention.

The convention was brought to order at 2 p. m. by Chairman John Beutner, of the county committee, who read the official call for the assembling of the delegates.

At the conclusion of this Porter J. Neff suggested the name of D. G. Cash as chairman of the convention. Mr. Neff is on the executive committee of the Hearst club. Mr. Cash is vice-president of the Hearst club. His name was satisfactory to the convention and his endorsement for the chairmanship was unanimous.

While this much of the program was for Hearst there was opposition on hand to the extent of a dozen or a score of delegates who were in favor of candidates other than Hearst. Most of these were from Duluth and about half of them from the Third ward, where a solid anti-Hearst delegation was picked at last Saturday night's primaries. These few antis, however, were under the double disadvantage of having no spokesman and being under a Hearst chairman. They had depended on having Fred L. Ryan to act as their representative in debate and speak against any "railroad" plan of running the convention, but his enforced absence from the city left them in a state where it was believed they would let the Hearst people have their own way without much of a struggle especially with odds of about 4 to 1 against them.

Mr. Cash, in accepting the chairmanship, thanked the members for the honor and said, among other things:

"The people are being gradually encroached on by the Republican party. I have faith in the people. It is their government. They can do with it what they please. We should calmly and dispassionately proceed in the proper course to carry out the great principles for which we stand."

The following committees were appointed by the chair:

Credentials—T. J. McKeon, J. L. Nylander, J. F. Eby, G. A. Webber, John Flood.

Resolutions—Charles d'Autremont, P. J. Neff, J. T. Culbertson, J. H. Jewett and John D. Ellis.

Mr. d'Autremont, chairman of the committee on resolutions, had no trouble with his committee, which was ready to report almost as soon as named. The credentials committee, however, had a good many details to look after in its work, and as a consequence kept the convention waiting for some time before the Hearst resolutions were presented, as they could not be taken up until all credentials had been ratified.

It was generally understood in advance, however, that the anti-Hearst people had decided to offer a protest through Harris Bennett. Mr. Bennett is from the Third ward, Duluth, which, as above stated, had a strong anti-Hearst representation in the convention. The protest was to be in the nature of an amendment to the resolutions favoring Hearst.

On the return of the committee, Chairman McKeon reported that the First precinct of the Sixth ward had offered no credentials. It was decided to admit C. T. Rush as delegate without credentials. After this the temporary organization of the convention was made permanent on motion of Joseph Nylander. T. T. Hudson moved the appointment of a committee of five to prepare a list of 36 names to be submitted to the convention as delegates to the state convention.

The chair appointed the following committee: T. T. Hudson, J. D. Jewett, T. J. Walsh, J. D. O'Brien and John D. Ellis. Theodore Hollister had been suggested for membership on this committee, but was absent. Mayor Cullum was also absent, having gone to the ball game at Superior.

THE HENNEPIN CONVENTION

Hearst Sent Word to Followers to Secure Harmony.

Minneapolis, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—With six burly policemen on guard Hennepin's Democracy met today to select state convention delegates.

Early in the day a message from Hearst was announced requesting his supporters to secure harmony at any cost.

As a result the chances af a bolt were reduced and both the warring factions consented to arbitrate.

W. W. Williams and Orville Rinehart, represented the Hearst party; E. A. Stevens and James O'Brien the antis, and Judge Pond was selected as referees. It was after noon before the arbitrator got down to hard work. Contesting delegations were present from five city precincts and from Excelsior. Hearst men claimed that they would seat all their delegates and control the delegation by twenty-five and early decisions were in their favor. The Excelsior Hearst delegates were seated as it was shown that Congressman John Lind, who had been requested to post notices of the caucus had done so. Lind is anti-Hearst.

J. Bowler, wearing a court plaster on the gash he recived on his forehead and Chairman Barton who struck at him in the melee were both in the convention today, but neither could see the other.

FATAL STREET FIGHT

Occurred Over Election of Teacher In Texas.

Waco, Texas, June 11.—As a result of friction over the election of a teacher for a public school at Elk, a small town twelve miles north of here, a bloddy street fight occurred there today between R. B. Torrence, his son, Rivers Torrence and J. McAden, a son-in-law of Torrence on one side, and Dr. Holton, his son and Professor G. W. Perkins on the other. Bad feeling had existed over the school matter for some time and when the principals met today, they began fighting.

The elder Torrence was killed almost instantly, his body being riddled with bullets. Dr. Holton and the junior Holton both received dangerous wounds, while Professor Perkins and Rivers Torrence were seriously shot. McAden escaped uninjured. Shotguns and pistols were the weapons used by the participants, all of whom are prominent.

Officers have gone from Waco to the scene of the tragedy.

FISHERMEN COMPLAIN

That Business Is Being Injured By Battleship.

Newport, R. I., June 11.—Fishermen from the waters in the vicinity of Noman's land, complain that their business is being injured by the battleship Illinois, which is engaged in target practice off that island, and will lay their grievances before the secretary of the navy. They assert that the detonation from the heavy guns has the same effect on the fish as a thunderstorm, the fish leaving the surface and remaining at the bottom while the firing continues. These conditions have been found to prevail within a radius of from eight to ten miles of the vessel and have obliged the fishermen to abandon their work.

REGICIDE ANNIVERSARY.

Belgrade, Servia, June 11.—The anniversary of the murder of King Alexander and Queen Draga was observed today by the celebration of a requiem mass at St. Mark's chapel. REVERSING KUROKI

Gen. Kuropatkin Sending Troops to Turn Japs' Flank.

Rumors That Big Jap Battleship Has Been Lost.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The correspondent of the Associated Press hears that Gen. Kuropatkin is reversing Gen. Kuroki's flanking movement north of Saimatz by sending troops from Mukden to turn Kuroki's right wing. The army reserve men of St. Petersburg are being called out today, although the mobilization of the First army corps does nat apply to the city. A rumor is current at the admiralty that the Japanese battleship Yashima is on the rocks near Port Arthur. The source of the report is not exactly traceable.

Rumors that the Yashima had been lost have been circulated repeatedly since June 8, when it was repor ed that she had been sunk by a mine off Talien Wan. Other reports said the battleship Shickishima, and not the Yashima, had been sunk off Aalien Wan. Both reports originated from Chinese sources.

The Yashima is a first-class battleship of 12,300 tons displacement.

Liao Yang, Russian Headquarters, June 11.—Reports from Chinese cources are to the effect that the Japanese forces near Port Arthur have been heavily reinforced. It is believed that an attempt to take the fortress by assault will be made so soon as the Japanese are strong enough to invest it on the landside and at the same time protect themselves from possible attack in the rear in case the Russians sent a force from the north.

There are persistent rumors again that the Port Arthur fleet has succeeded in making a sortie, but no official confirmation of the report is obtainable.

The Russian reinforcements on their way here will soon materially change the situation and enable Gen. Kuropatkin to move freely.

Gen. Kuroki's main army is still at Fen Wang Cheng.

Russian outposts cover his right flank above Saimatze and extending eastward. They are in constant touch with the enemy and there are almost daily skirmishes of more or less importance. Developments are anticipated in this direction.

Bank Clerks Must Also Observe Noon Hour.

New Haven, Conn., June 11.—Bank tellers, bookkeepers and clerks in this city have learned that hereafter not only will they be required to take an annual vacation, but that they must make use of the midday lunch hour privilege. It is said that the State Bank association will also recommend that it is advisable that all banks observe this precaution.

These regulations have grown out of the recent charges against a teller in a local bank, who confessed recently that he had embezzled $70,000 and covered the matter through remaining at his desk without a vacation for a number of years and never going out during business hours for lunch.

BAD FIRE IN MICHIGAN

Village of Nahma Almost Wiped Out By Flames.

Escanaba, Mich., June 11.—Fire started Thursday in a boarding house of the village of Nahma, thirty-five miles east of here, and burned eighteen buildings before it was extinguished. The loss is estimated $40,000. Nahma has no telephone or telegraphic connections and news of the fire did not reach here until Friday. The entire village is owned by the Bay de Noe Lumber company, with head offices in Chicago. All the loss is covered by insurance. The buildings burned were the company's boarding house, carpenter shop and blacksmith shop, saloon, four storehouses and several residences of men employed in the company's mill. One hundred and fifty boarders had rooms in the boarding house and with the additional destruction of ten residences, 200 persons are homeless. Little was saved from the burned buildings. The roof of a large general store was burned off one side, and the only hotel in the village was destroyed and numerous other buildings damaged. Had it not been for the new water service the entire town would have been wiped out. The company's mill is one of the largest in the Upper Peninsula.

DOWIE REFUSED

Quarters at Any of the London Hotels.

London, June 11.—John Alex Dowie arrived here this morning from Holland, and made a tour of the hotels, accompanied by his wife and son and escorted by deacons, in search of accommodations. Everywhere he met with refusal, as the hotel managers are afraid of a repetition of the rowdyism which marked Dowie's former stay here. Ultimately, being unable to find lodging, Dowie proceeded to the Zionist's headquarters. These have been connected with the police telephones in anticipation of a possibie onslaught by the mob.

In London Will Probably Be Held July 23.

London, June 11.—The committee of Oxford and Cambridge universities having in charge the arrangements for the athletic meeting with the Harvard-Yale team will meet June 13 to consider conditions suggested by the Americans and to fix a date for the contest. It seems probable that July 23 will be selected as the most available day on which King Edward will be able to be present, owing to his majesty's other engagements.

The members of the committee say it probably will be decided to suggest the same program and conditions as governed in 1899, but they do not anticipate any difficulty in arranging a compromise if necessary.

TROOPS WILL BE RECALLED

From the Cripple Creek District, Says Peabody.

Colorado Springs, Col., June 11.—A special to the Telegraph from Cripple Creek, says: Acting under the recommendations of Adjutant General Sherman M. Bell, it is understood that the troops will be called from the Cripple Creek district tonight. During the day Gen. Bell talked with Governor Peabody over the telephone and informed him that the entire Cripple Creek district was quiet and orderly and that Sheriff Bell had full control of the situation.

It is understood that upon the receipt of this information Governor Peabody authorized Gen. Bell to return to Denver and dismiss the present troops from further active duty. It is possible, however, that Gen. Bell will decide to retain a few soldiers of the Victor company in the field for a few days longer.

GEN. FORREST.

One of the Remarkable Figures of Civil War.

In the discussions on the subject of "The Training of Generals" which have appeared from time to time in recent issues of the Sun, there have been made a number of erroneous statements concerning the illiteracy of Lieut. Gen. N. B. Forrest, says John A. Wyeth in a letter to the Sun.

That Forrest never attended school, and that he grew into manhood extremely illiterate is true; but his career emphasizes the fact that he was a man of extraordinary intelligence, close observation and quick perception. He was a fine conversationalist, and it is absurd to attribute to him the expression quoted in the Sun, and often printed elsewhere, to the effect that his remarkable successes in war were due to the fact that "he got thar fustest with the mostest men." In the first place, no such terms as here given were ever used in the South or elsewhere. The writer was born and grew up to manhood in that section, and had every opportunity to familiarize himself with the language and expressions of the uneducated whites—"the poor white trash"—and with the plantation negro dialects, and has yet to hear the words "mostest" and "fustest" spoken.

Notwithstanding this lack of school education, contact with business men and constant reading of newspapers (for he kept himself thoroughly versed in the records of the day) gave him an excellent idea in the use of words and the construction of phrases. He would instantly detect a grammatical error or the awkward construction of a phrase in a dispatch read to him after his dictation and would correct it, saying to his adjutants, who were educated gentlemen: "That won't do, it hasn't the right pitch." He would suggest the change and always shaped it into a forcible expression. There were, however, a few words learned in his boyhood days of which he could not rid himself. He said "betwixt" for between, and "fetch" for bring. It was at Brice's crossroads, where he won, considering the forces engaged, the most decisive voctory of the civil war, that he wrote the famous note: "Tell Bell to move up and fetch all he's got." He used the word "mout" for might, and "fit" fought. After Forrest became famous these idiosyncrasies were repeated and exaggerated until the idea prevailed in the minds of many that he was more awkward and boorish in speech and manner than he really was. His spelling, however, was bad, as you can infer from the following copy, verbatim et literatim, of a letter before me:

"Dear Sir: Yours Making Enquiry as to the Bondes in the handes of Maj M. J. Wickes is to hand. I se no way to gite the Bondes until I receive the Mony so as to redeam the Bondes they ma float as collateral and I canot consistently call for them until I am able to redeam them which I hop to soon be able to do. you no my condition I could sel the Bookes if I cold only git them, but so fair Bielock has not bin able to suply the demandes I wold like for you to write to Jordan and se what he is doing. I have writen to him several leters but so fair hav bin unable to git a reply. I am Respectfully "N. B. FARREST."

In spelling he seemed to be governed by sound, and this like his fighting was the shortest way to the end. In spelling "headquarters" he did not appreciate the necessity of the letter "a" in "head." He spelled "ther" with an "i," and I have in my possession a note written in lead pencil to Emma Sansom, the girl of 16 who mounted behind Forrest in the battle of Black Creek and piloted him to the unknown ford through which he crossed to the overthrow and capture of Streight's entire command. The dot over the "i" in this note is exactly in the right place and is still distinct.

Probably no man developed by our civil war was more misunderstood than Forrest. A college graduate, and personal friend, who was on his staff and lived and slept in his tent and messed with him the last three years of the war, vouches to me personally that "the general was an excellent reader, had a large fund of general information, and a remarkable knowledge of men. The real development of his mental powers was far in advance of the world about him."

Another friend, a well-known minister of the Gospel, who served under and with him for two years and was very intimate with the general, says that "he was a fine conversationalist; his voice was soft and pleasant. He seemed to know men intuitively. He would have been great in any department of life. As in war, he would have met every emergency with daring skill and every obstacle with dauntless energy. He was an impressive speaker and on several occasions I have heard him deliver an address in the most effective manner."

As the years go by and as men become acquainted with his career, his fame as a soldier will grow more and more until all men will approve the verdict given by the greatest commander on the Federal side, Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, who said: "After all, I think Forrest was the most remarkable man our civil war produced on either side. To my mind he was the most remarkable in many ways. In the first place he was uneducated, while Jackson and Sheridan and other brilliant leaders were soldiers by profession. He had never read a military book in his life, knew nothing about tactics, could not even drill a company; but he had a genius for strategy which was original, and to me incomprehensible. There was no theory or art of war by which I could calculate with any degree of certainty what Forrest was up to. He seemed always to know what I was doing or intended to do, while I am free to confess I could never tell or form any satisfactory idea of what he was trying to accomplish."

Gen. Joseph E. Johnson, deemed by many the greatest strategist and the ablest general on the Confederate side, said that Forrest was the greatest soldier of the war and "had he had the advantages of a thorough military education and training, he would have been the great central figure of the civil war."

Gen. Beauregard said that "his capacity for war seemed only to be limited by the opportunities for its display."

Gen. Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the British army, said that the genius which makes men great soldiers is not to be measured by any competitive examination in the science or art of war. "In war," said Napoleon, "men are nothing; a man is everything." It will be difficult to find a stronger corroboration of this maxim than is to be found in the history of Gen. Forrest's operations."

TEARS, IDLE TEARS!

Ex-Secretary Elihu Root was talking about the humanity of judges, according to the New York Tribune.

"They are humane men," he said. "I could tell you many moving stories of the pain that they have suffered in the infliction of severe sentences. It is not altogether pleasant to be a judge.

"That is why I cannot credit a story that was told me the other day about a judge in the West. A criminal on trial before this man had been found guilty. He was told to rise, and the judge said to him.

"'Have you ever been sentenced to imprisonment before?'

"'No, Your Honor,' said the criminal, and he burst into tears.

"'Well,' said the judge, 'don't cry. You're going to be now.'"

Promoting the Science of Crime.

New York American: One of the finest displays at the St. Louis fair is the police exhibit, where are to be seen all the latest and most improved appliances used in the several criminal industries of all nations. The burglars' tools, in particular, are thought to be an incomparable display which no rising young burglar can afford not to study. Undoubtedly the country's police authorities have by this intelligently conceived exhibition done much to diffuse a practical knowledge of modern methods among a class of operators not hitherto accorded the advantage of scientific study.

IMPORTANT WITNESS IN THE YOUNG CASE TO BE SURRENDERED

New York, June 11.—Counsel for Nan Patterson has informed a representative of the district attorney and also the detectives who have been searching for him, that J. Morgan Smith, brother-in-law of the woman who is held pending investigation into the death of Bookmaker Frank T. Young last Saturday, that he will be surrendered next Monday.

At the same time assurance was given that Smith will then appear before the grand jury to purge himself of the contempt of court which he committed when he failed to answer a subpoena.

Smith is now outside of the state, and is safe from arrest on the warrant of attachment issued last Thursday by Judge Newburger, but it had been the intention of the district attorney to have him arrested on another charge and brought back to this city. The promise to surrender him probably will cause District Attorney Jerome to abandon that plan, though the police will continue the search for the missing witness. Captain Sweeney, in whose district the shooting occurred, believes no great difficulty will be experienced in persuading Smith to tell all he knows about the death of Young and the causes leading up to it. There are reports, which as yet are unconfirmed, that the attitude of the defense will change next week, and that an explanation of the tragedy of the cab will be offered by the woman who was Young's companion when he was shot.

VIOLINIST KUBELIK LOSES BERLIN SUIT FOR SLANDER

Berlin June 11.—"Suit dismissed with costs for the plaintiff," was the verdict of the court yesterday at Frankfort-on-the-Main, in the suit which Kobelik, the violinist, brought against Dr. Gehrmann, the music critic of the Frankforter Zeitung, for what the violinist's deemed insulting personalities in criticisms of his concerts. Dr. Gehrmann described Kubelik as a "stupid looking man (bloede dreinschauenden) of superfine, effiminate appearance," and spoke of him also as a specialist and "miracle worker who produces nothing but tones."

The proceedings turned partly upon the meaning of the word "bloede," which experts testified was used in north Germany in the sense of "shy" or "expressionless" and the court noted that Dr. Gehrmann came from Berlin to Frankfort. But Herr Schwartchild, Kubelik's lawyer, saw in the word that offensive personalities characterizing Berlin musical criticism were being introduced. The Frankfort lawyer also objected to the word "specialist," which he claimed was only applicable to a variety performer. Dr. Gehrmann's defense of the word "bloede" was that he only meant to say Kubelik riveted his eyes on one spot when playing.

WARM TIME ON BALL FIELD

Courthouse Aggregation Is Pitted Against the Lakesiders.

This afternoon the court house ball team is crossing bats with a strong aggregation of the Lakesiders at the latter team's ground in Lakeside.

Preparations have been going on all the week by both sides with the hope of winning out in the struggle, and it is believed that either side will line up pretty strong.

Capt. S. L. Pierce of the court house team has been trying out all the available material in the court house this week, and up to this noon had not fully decided on the line-up, there being a warm contest on for positions on the nine. It is rumored that several of the court house employes have even attempted to buy positions on the team.

The Lakesiders' team includes several lawyers, and a story was told at the court house this morning how one of the attorneys attempted to get an injunctional order in special term of court to prevent any of the court house team from crossing the home plate even if they made a safe circuit of the bases.

Slept In Wrong Place.

Four woodsmen, whose names are Christ Setter, Gust Anderson, Thomas Hanson and Anton Hanson, had no place to sleep last night, so they selected the soft side of a plank on the floor of one of the Michigan street basements, and laid down to sleep the sleep of the just.

One of the police officers interfered with their slumbers, and they finished their nap at police headquarters.

A charge of trespass was preferred against them in municipal court this morning, but Judge Windom reckoned the peace and dignity of the state of Minnesota had not been injured to any appreciable extent, and allowed them to go under suspended sentence.

POSSIBLY MURDER

James O'Neil Arrested For Serious Assault at Virginia.

Victim Said to Be In Critical Condition and May Die.

Assault and robbery is the charge against James O'Neil, who was picked up by Detective Fritz early this morning on the Bowery, and it is just possible that the case may develop into one of murder.

O'Neil was arrested at the instigation of the chief of police of Virginia, where he is claimed to have assaulted and robbed a woodsman of a considerable sum of money. The Virginia department telephoned to Sheriff Butchart last evening informing him that an assault and robbery had been committed in that city, and that the suspect was believed to be headed for Duluth. A description of the man was given, and from it the local police believed they recognized a man by the name of O'Neil, who was a familiar figure on the Bowery, and had been under suspicion several times for connection with the theft of money from woodsmen, although nothing had ever been proven against him.

The three members of the detective force were furnished with his description, and they started out to locate him. Detective Fritz discovered him this morning on the Bowery and locked him up at headquarters, where he is being held as a fugitive from justice.

The Virginia police were immediately notified by telephone of the man's arrest, and an officer was due to arrive on this afternoon's train to identify the man and take him back to Virginia if he is the one wanted.

The man was closely questioned at police headquarters in regard to his connection with the crime committed at Virginia, but he denied all knowledge of it, claiming he had not been mixed up in any such affair, and that so far as he knew no police in the country were after him.

The police, however, are convinced that they have the right man, and are holding him until the Virginia officer arrives. In talking with Sheriff Butchart last evening, the Virginia chief of police stated that the man whom O'Neil is suspected of having assaulted and robbed is in a very critical condition from his wounds, and may not survive.

If O'Neil is the right man he will be taken back to Virginia to have his preliminary hearing, and be bound over to the grand jury if there is sufficient evidence to hold him.

THE SINGERS FROM LUND

Swedish People Making Great Preparations For Their Reception.

The Swedish people of Duluth are making extensive preparations for the reception and entertainment of the sixty singers of the Lund, Sweden university, who will pay a visit to America this month, touring a portion of the country and appearing in the Zenith City Sunday, July 3.

The tour of the Swedish students will be a great musical event. The chorus was called together at the University of Lund, May 15, and instructed to appear for daily rehearsal until sailing June 2. As each number in the repertory is familiar to every member as the national hymn, some splendid results should be obtained. The chorus consists of sixty voices, and to insure the most artistic effect the regular college chorus, which itself consists of selected voices, has been augmented by graduates who attained fame as singers in their college days.

The chorus sailed from Malmo on June 2 and sang in London, Prince Albert hall, June 4 and immediately after departed for America. They will sing in New York June 19, which will be their initial appearance in this country. The chorus will attend the St. Louis World's fair June 24, which is a Swedish holiday, of a character not unlike that of the Fourth of July in the United States. Duluth is most fortunate in making a date with the singers, for their schedule includes their singing at only about ten of the largest cities in the country.

It is expected that everywhere the chorus will be greeted by packed houses. Denver has guaranteed $4000 for one night's engagement. Half of the reserved seats for the entertainment at the Lyceum have already been taken. Through the efforts of the Commercial club and Carl Friberg, editor of the Duluth Posten, the various railways have been induced to make special rates to Duluth from the ranges, as well as from other places in the state. It is thought likely that a special train will run from the Missabe range to accommodate the crowds coming to Duluth to hear the chorus.

FATHER IS HEARD FROM

Frank Dandrea Able and Anxious to Care For Children.

Probate Judge Middlecoff received this morning, a letter from Frank Dandrea, at Dawson, Yukon territory, relative to his two children, Joseph and Louise Dandrea, whom the humane society undertook to have sent to the state school some time ago.

Mr. Dandrea expresses the greatest anxiety about his children and says that he has been supplying them with money right along and understood that they were being well taken care of. He writes Judge Middlecoff that he intended coming back to the states this past spring but has a great deal of money invested in mines that required his presence for some time yet. He said that if the circumstances warrant it he desires the children sent out to him in Dawson this summer.

Mr. Dandrea states that his information came in the way of a letter from relatives and some newspaper clippings.

Mr. Dandrea seemed to have the impression that some charge had been preferred against the children.

The proceedings to have the children sent to the state school were not started because they were not well provided for, but because the humane society thought the surroundings of the children were not all that they should be.

After the hearing, Judge Middlecoff appointed the children's aunt to be their guardian, assurances having been given that they would be properly looked after.

In his letter to the court, Mr. Dandrea stated that he had sent a money order of $50 to his little girl.

Judge Middlecoff stated that the father's letter might make a considerable difference as to the future disposition of the children, owing to his anxiety to have them under his own care. The letter was dated May 14 last.

IS FOUND INSANE.

Mrs. Josephine Kelly Committed to Fergus Falls.

Mrs. Josephine Kelly, who was examined for insanity, before Probate Judge Middlecoff, this morning will be committed to the state hospital at Fergus Falls.

Mrs. Kelly has been a resident of Duluth since 1892 and is the mother of seven children, the youngest being now only four months old.

For some time past her mania has taken a form of intense jealousy of her husband. She has also shown undue religious fervor. Her family and friends have been caring for her with the hope that the mental aberration would soon pass away but it was finally decided to send her where she could have trained care.

Mrs. Anna Holt, of Hibbing, was brought to Duluth by Deputy Sheriff Magie, this morning, to be examined for insanity. Mrs. Holt's husband was killed in the mineas about a year ago and since that time she has shown traces of insanity. She has a religious mania and at times is violent, having smashed the windows in the jail at Hibbing where she was held for safekeeping awaiting the arrival of an officer from Duluth.

WEST DULUTH

As far as the West Duluth Commercial club is concerned no further effort will be made to have an ordinance, with the prohibiting of circus exhibitions in Duluth on holidays as its object, adopted by the city council. The motion at the regular meeting of the club last night, providing for the organization recommending to the council that there be such an ordinance, precipitated a rather warm discussion. Those opposing the motion finally won out, however, and the motion to adopt the resolution was lost.

George J. Mallory spoke in favor of its adoption. He said that Memorial day, Labor day and the Fourth of July all had their special purposes, and that these purposes should alone be observed in the doings of the day. He believed that July 4 should be observed strictly along patriotic lines, with no outside interference, such as the exhibition of a circus.

H. H. Phelps argued against the motion, taking the stand that the proposed ordinance would be a restriction of freedom on the very day that freedom and rights of the people should have the fullest swing. He thought it would be as right and proper for people to attend a circus as to witness the antics of a greased pig and its pursuers, and said he did not believe in using force, legislative or otherwise, to make the people attend patriotic exercises. He further said that he did not think it advisable for the West Duluth Commercial club to take so leading a part in an affair of this kind, which would affect the whole city, and which would be sure to arouse active opposition from different quarters.

A committee, consisting of W. J. Holmes, Charles Kauppi and W. B. Getchell, was appointed to attempt to secure the repair of the Grand avenue bridges, in order that the street car line may be extended to Seventy-first avenue west. It is claimed the bridges cannot be repaired this year because of lack of funds in the city treasury. The committee will see if this difficulty cannot be overcome.

It was reported that some of the West Duluth merchants were not handling matches made by the Union Match company, a West Duluth concern. J. J. Frey, Emil Zauft and A. H. Merriman were appointed a committee to investigate the matter and urge dealers to push the sale of home-made matches.

M. J. Fliiatrault, as chairman of a committee, reported that Superintendent Blanchard of the Northern Pacific railway had recommended the restoration of the double train service to Fond du Lac during the summer months.

Richard Schell reported that the Missabe officials whom he had consulted in regard to the matter of establishing a station at West Duluth had promised to give the matter their prompt attention.

OLD BUILDING IS GUTTED

The old bottling works at 102 Lake avenue South, was badly gutted by fire shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon. The upper floor of the building facing on the Lake avenue viaduct, is used as a saloon, and the lower story, on Michigan street, as a lodging house.

The fire started in one of the rooms on the lower floor about 1:45 o'clock, and the flames mounted to the upper story, completely gutting the building and destroying a large part of the stock of liquor kept by the proprietor, Morris Harly.

The building is an old frame structure, and it burned fiercely for a few moments, the flames reaching almost to the center of Lake avenue. The firemen handled it without difficulty, however, and the blaze was extinguished after about twenty minutes' work.

The building has a very unsavory reputation, and the proprietor has been in trouble with the police a number of times. The police state that the building is the rendezvous for a gang of bums and vagrants who make their living off the woodsmen and by petty thieving. The reputation of the lodging house is but a little better.

Harly, the proprietor, stated this afternoon that he carried insurance on his stock to the amount of $1500, which he thought would fully cover his losses.

The building is owned by Eastern parties, and G. G. Dickerman is the local agent.

The cause of the fire is not known. Harly claims that there were no lodgers on the lower floor at the time the fire started, and that the only stove in that part of the building was not lighted.

The fire occurring as it did, just at the busy hour of the day, attracted an enormous crowd of spectators, who had the excitement of witnessing, as a side attraction, a short but spirited dog fight, which took place during the progress of the fire.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Government Report Was Followed By the Usual Result.

Flax Trading Was Dull and the Market Unchanged.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 11.—The government report was followed by the usual result, wheat declined. It does not seem to matter much what the report is, wheat falls on the day following, though the decline was not a serious one. The report is received with dividend opinion, some taking it to be bearish and others moderately bullish. Wheat receipts continue to be considerably lower than last year and to this largely due the present strength. Kansas City reported the Northwest as buying considerable in that market today.

This week will see wheat stocks in Duluth reduced to less than 1,750,000 bus. There is little or nothing selling to go East, however, and shippers can get no bids of any strength. Chicago this morning reported wheat offered there at 90c that one week had 95c bid for it.

The Duluth market closed ¼c lower for July, Chicago ¼-¾c lower, Minneapolis a shade lower and New York ⅝-¾c lower. In Duluth September was ⅛c lower and in Minneapolis the same.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 49 against 49 last year and at Minneapolis 141, against 236 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 190, against 285 last year. Winnipeg received 128, against 118 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 284,000 bus., last year 396,000 bus. Shipments 216,-000 bus., last year 101,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 207,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged and ¼d lower. July corn in the Chicago market closed ⅛c lower. July oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 864,000 bus., last year 496,000 bus. Shipments 458,000 bus., last year 287,000 bus. Clearances were 2500 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was very limited. The July option opened ½c lower at 93¼c, advanced to 93¾c at 10:25, fell again to 93¼c at 11 and advanced to 93½c at 11:30, and closed at that price, a loss of ¼c. September closed ⅛c lower at 81¾c.

Cash offerings were light. Prices hold at ⅛c to 1c over July for No. 1 northern, with the mills the strongest buyers.

Flax was dull and unchanged.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluta board:

Wheat, to arrive, No. 1 northern, 94c; No. 2 northern, 92c. On track, No. 1 northern, 94@94⅛c; No. 2 northern, 92@92½c. Macaroni, No. 1, 86¼c; No. 2, 84½c; July, 93¾c; September, 81⅞c. Flax, in store, $1.08¾; on track, $1.08¾; July, $1.09; September, $1.10; October, $1.10¼. Oats to arrive, 41½c; on track, 41½c. Rye, to arrive, 65c; on track, 65c.

Cars inspected: heat, 49; last year 49; oats, 4; rye, 4; barley, 2; flax, 9; last year, 18c.

Receipts: Wheat 26,455; oats, 1605.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liquidation In Wheat Caused Decline In Price.

Chicago, June 11.—Improved weather conditions, easier cables and the bearish government crop reports caused general liquidation of wheat today, resulting in a considerable decline. July opened ⅛c to ¼@⅜c lower at 85¾c to 86@86c. With liberal offerings and only moderate demand the price quickly declined to 85¼c. On the break shorts covered freely causing a rally to 85½c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 210 cars, against 149 cars last week and 300 cars a year ago.

The market held steady at the decline the remainder of the day. There was little in the general situation to encourage buying and as a result the volume of business was small. Final prices on July were at 85¾c, a net loss of ⅛@⅜c.

Liberal receipts and a great improvement in weather conditions brought out a number of realizing sales of corn. Weakness in wheat added to the selling pressure. In consequence, lower prices were realized. After opening ⅛c to ¼c lower at 48⅝@48¾c, July sold off to 48¼c. Local receipts were 565 cars, with 28 of contract grade.

Weakness prevailed the entire day, July closing with a loss of ½ at 48⅜c, after the price had touched 48¼c.

Oats yielded to the weakness of other grains, prices showing about a ½c loss from yesterday's closing figures. An active cash demand had a steadying effect. July opened unchanged at 36⅝c, and declined to 35¼@35c. Local receipts were 122 cars.

Provisions were firm in sympathy with a strong hog market. The demand from packers was again the feature of the trade. September pork opened unchanged at $12.85, and sold up to $12.97½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c higher at $6.90@6.92½ and advanced to $6.95. Ribs were up 2½c at $7.32½.

Close: Wheat—July, 85¾c; old, 85⅝c; Sept. 80⅝c; old, 82¼@82⅝c; Dec. 80¼c. Corn—June, 47¾c; July, 48¾c; Sept. 48@48⅛c. Oats—July, 35¼c; old, 36¼c; Sept. 30¾c; old, 32½c; Dec. 31¾c. Pork—July, $12.55; Sept. $12.77½@12.80. Lard—July, $6.77½c; Sept. $6.95; Dec. $6.75. Ribs—July, $7.29; Sept. $7.37½. Rye—74c; July, 67c; Sept. 65c. Flax—Cash: Northwest, $1.07; southwest, $1.00; June, $1.00; July, $1.06; Sept. $1.06. Timothy—June, $2.55; Sept. $3.10. Clover—June, $10.75. Barley—Cash, 46@55c. Cash wheat—2 red, nothing doing; 3 red, nothing doing; 2 hard, 90@95c; 3 hard, 86@92c; 1 nor. 86@$1.00; 2 nor. 92@95c; 3 spring, 85@96. Oats—2, 35@½c; 3, 33½c. Corn—2, 48¾@49c; 3, 48½@48⅝c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Cables were dull and weather continues fine for the crops. The cash situation is unencouraging and prices continue to crumble all along the line. In view of several days break there was rather better buying of the deferred futures, but the whole market is tame and can hardly be called strong. The visible on Monday will show some decrease. Bullish confidence based on the cash situation is gradually being dissipated by the near approach of the movement of new crop. Demand of every character is from hand to mouth and most limited in quantity. We are still of the view that wheat may be sold on the hard spots.

Corn—There is the same lack of slow movement from first hands. Current receipts are quite liberal and fully equal to or in excess of the demand. There was some liquidation in July and some covering of shorts in the September. While the weather is not unfavorable, yet a little higher temperatures would be acceptable. We can see no decided tendency to the market at the moment.

Oats—As in corn, the firmness was in the deferred futures. The cash situation is the same as heretofore, consisting of moderate receipts and a good demand. We are inclined to think the short interest in September oats is quite large and the discount rather attractive.

Provisions continue to be disappointing and far below what the trade had expected at this time. The distributive demand is good. The action of the market shows no change in tendency and is strong. Packers are on both sides, but there is a noticeable weakening in the confidence of the previous bearish position. While they are not quite ready to believe that prices will advance sharply, they are more conservative in their bearishness.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In the Stock Market and the Closing Was Firm.

The Prices Stiffened Briskly In the Final Dealings.

New York, June 11.—A slight advance in prices of stocks has reflected some growth of confidence over the business outlook. The hopeful feeling regarding crop prospects has been an important influence in causing this sentiment in face of the evidence of a lower present level of business activity and prosperity. The decline in consumption of iron, contracted bank clearings and decreased railroad earnings, are the leading items of this evidence. Exceptional activity in the anthracite market has helped stocks connected with that industry. The cessation of the gold export movement has increased the ease of the money market.

New York, June 11.—The opening trading in stocks today was active and well distributed and at fractional gains running to a half. Metropolitan Street Railway rose ⅝. Exceptions were St. Paul, United States Steel and Amalgamated which were shaded a small fraction.

A fair degree of acitvity developed in the first hour, but prices varied only slightly from the opening range. Profit-taking in the coalers was offset by the rise in Western stocks and the market in general was quite firm. Hocking Valley and Lead preferred moved up 1 and Iowa Central preferred 1½.

There was a pause in the upward movement after the bank statement appeared. Only minor stocks were moved widely. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, that companies certificates for Chicago & Eastern Illinois and the preferred stock of the latter rose 2 to 3½. Kanawha & Michigan 1¾ and Soo, Metropolitan Street Railroad 1⅞, General Electric lost ½ and Republic Steel preferred 1¼. Prices stiffened briskly in the final dealings. The closing was quiet and firm.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The government crop report showed an improvement in conditions since a month ago. The bank statement was favorable. The stock market continued dull and firm and closed a shade higher than yesterday. Coppers continue to show a slight inclination to work up and should any favorable news come they will pretty surely be more active. There is no news relative to the metal market, but some of the leading trade interests look for higher prices soon.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 11.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 5 points on the old crop, while new crop months were unchanged to 3 points higher. Cables were about right and the weather was generally favorable, but soon after the opening shorts began covering, and the market became active and very excited, and went up at a rapid rate, with July selling from 11.73, the low point on the call, to 12.25 within the first hour of trading, this being an advance of 40 points from last night's closing figures. August also ruled sensationally firm, and the new crop joining in the upward movement, and showed net gains of from 20 to 30 points. July in New Orleans advanced more rapidly than here, and New Orleans was an active buyer in the local market, while the professional bear element seemed to be covering. In fact, nearly everyone had orders to buy, while offerings were comparatively limited.

Futures closed steady. June, 12.16; July, 12.29; August, 11.85; September, 10.57; November, 10.09; December, 10.03; January, 10.07. Spot closed quiet, 70 points higher. Middling uplands, 13.85; ditto gulf, 13.10. Sales none.

DESCRIBING HIS TEETH.

John S. Sargent, the noted painter, was saying that the late Dr. Evans, the American dentist of Paris, had once shown him all his curios.

"Among these curios," said Mr. Sargent, "there was a letter that amused me greatly. Dr. Evans had received the letter in his youth in America. It was from a young farmer of Vermont who wanted a set of false teeth made and sent to him. He wrote for the teeth in some such way as this:

"'My mouth is three inches acrost, five-eigth inches threw the jaw. Some hummocky on the edge. Shaped like a hoss shew, toe forar. If you want me to be more particular I shall have to come thar.'"

FROM WILCOX TO GIBBON

"Good maw'n, ma'am! You all got Ella Wheeler Wilcox's 'Poems of Pleasuah?'"

"Why, no, we haven't, Uncle John," said the librarian, apologetically. "We havn't a copy of that in the library. What else would you like?"

"Thank'ee, ma'am. You all got Ella Wheelah Wilcox's 'Poems of Passion?'"

"No, we havn't that, either, Uncle John."

"W-w-w-ell, then, give me 'Gibbon's Rome!'"

As Mr. Walter Page and Mr. Nathaniel Shaler point out, there is no need of fearing that "our neighbor" will not ultimatel reach the best—or the next thing to it.

CHINESE MAGISTRATES' OLD BOOTS

Visitors to China are particularly struk by the numbers of pairs of boots hung in separate wooden cages in the archway of the main west gate of Hsiahnua, the valedictory gifts of beneficial prefects, says the Lahore Tribune. It is an attractive custom in China to invite a departing magistrate whose rule has been popular to leave a pair of old boots for suspension in a prominent place as a hint to his successor to follow in his footsteps. It is a considerable honor to be asked to leave these boots, and the people make the request all the more eagerly because they believe in the efficacy of the hint.

PANAMA'S COAT OF ARMS.

Panama, the new republic, has a coat of arms showing a comprehensive design, says the San Francisco Argonaut. It consisted of a shield, surmounted by an eagle, in whose beak is the ribbon upon which is written the motto of the state, "Paz. Libertad, Union, Progresso" (Peace, Liberty, Union, Progress). Below, on the upper part of the shield side by side, are the implements of war and of peaceful occupations. Below this, occupying the central place, is a land and water view, the site of the canal, the fruits of the harvest and a rushing train on a track fill up the point of the shield. Flags drape it on either side, and stars surmount the eagle.

Level, Strait and Comfortable.

The roads of the New York Central lines, over which run hourly trains, occupy the natural highway between the East and West. A water level for 1000 miles between Chicago and New York, along the shore of Lake Erie and Lake Michigan, through the Mohawk valley and beside the Hudson river. A route, level and straight, and offering comforts and conveniences unsurpassed.

TREACHERY CLAIMED

Masters and Pilots Bitter Against Capt. B. F. Howard.

Is Mate on Sonoma—Accuse Him of Double Dealing.

Members of Duluth Harbor, No. 44, Masters' and Pilots' association, have discovered that Capt. B. F. Howard, well known in local marine circles, and a man who has always been prominent in association work, left on a trip down the lakes last Tuesday evening on the steamer Sonoma, of the Tomlinson fleet, in the capacity of first mate. When he accepted the position he was acting on a committee from the local harbor which had as its object the persuading of mates and captains to refrain from working on Lake Carriers' association boats until the strike was settled

Brother members of the harbor charge Capt. Howard with double dealing, saying that he was all the time working for the lake carriers' interests when supposed to be helping the masters and pilots in the attempt to win out in the strike, and the feeling against him is therefore very bitter. C. B. Hibbard, secretary of the harbor, apparently voiced the sentiments of harbor members today when he said:

"It is not so much the desertion of Howard as his double dealing that gives rise to the bitter feeling against him. The trick he played us was about as mean a one as I ever saw. He is a traitor of the worst type. This appellation is a very mild one compared to the names applied to him by some of the boys, as you will find out by talking with them on the subject.

"Monday evening, the very night before sailing on the Sonoma, Howard was at our harbor meeting. He said not a word of his intentions, and appeared to be working with us. It is now regarded as a certainty that he has been working for the Tomlinson and other lake carrier interests for some time past, and that he was so working when he agreed to do all in his power to fight the association and to keep captains from manning their boats. Howard has always been prominent in local marine circles, and on three occasions has been selected as delegate to important Eastern conferences, a position of honor and trust. For a time he served as captain of the local harbor. All this makes his latest move put him in all the worse light."

CAUSES CONTROVERSY.

Augustus B. Wolvin Stirs Up One at Loraine.

The big new steamer Augustus B. Wolvin, which cleared from Conneaut yesterday with 10,300 tons of coal for Duluth, has caused the city of Lorain and the National Tube company to become engaged in a controversy over the widening of the winding basin of the river opposite the steel plant docks. The basin is just 538 feet across and dredging is being done at that point, mainly on strengthening and deepening the channel. The tube company wants the winding basin made wide enough to accommodate vessels the size of the Wolvin, which would necessitate a basin of more than 660 feet.

To this proposition the board of public service has not agreed, refusing to permit the alteration of its original plans, but that the city cannot making the plea that the city cannot afford to spend the money to accommodate the only boat on the lakes that cannot now turn in the basin. The argument is made that if the Wolvin should prove successful, others of the same size or larger will be constructed, and Lorain harbor will not be able to handle them. The steel plant is three miles from the mouth of the river.

APPEAL TO GOMPERS.

Assistance to Be Asked On Lake Tie-Up.

Washington, June 11.—Capt. J. M. McGregor, of Detroit, president of the International Pilots' association, is seeking President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor for assistance in the controversy between the Lake Carriers' association and the pilots. President Gompers is in New York, and Capt. McGregor, after conferring with Secretary Morrison and Vice President Duncan of the Federation of Labor, left for New York.

The Lake Carriers' association, it is alleged, refuses to employ members of the Pilots' association, although the Lake Carriers recognizes and has contracts with the Seamen's

REALTY MARKET CONTINUES SLOW

Little or Nothing Doing In the Way of Transfers of Property—Improvement Projects Continue to Be the Feature of the Market—Several New Ones That Are Under Contemplation.

Local improvements rather than the transfers of titles continue to be the important feature of the realty market at the present time, and some of the dealers predict that the conditions will not change during this month.

Some sales are being made from week to week, but it has been some time since any transfers involving a considerable amount of money has been made. The sales are mostly small, and not frequent enough to hardly term the business as lively.

Local inquiry is only fair, and that largely for unimproved property. The loan business is reported as fairly good, however, for this time of the season, among nearly all of the agencies.

* * *

William M. Prindle & Co. report a rather quiet week, but with several people figuring on buying. Several offers are in hand now. Mr. Prindle reports the following sales: No. 2721 West Sixth street, described as east half of lot 443, block 84, Second division, for $750; No. 2542 London road, for $1600; lots 11 and 12, block 5, Merritt's division, for $550; Nos. 1101 and 1103 West Superior street, for $3000; Nos. 17 and 19 East First street, to J. Halahan, for $2500.

Another important deal the firm has closed up has been on a 50-year lease of the store property at 511 West Superior street, described as lot 85, block 18, Third division. The figures of the lease are not stated, but it is understood that the increasing values of property in that vicinity make the proposition a very favorable one for the lessee.

* * *

Farm land selling continues lively, but not in such large blocks as earlier in the season. The Boston and Duluth Farm Land company has sold 600 acres in Carlton county to Frank Oppel and Herman Kritzel, both of the southern part of the state; 280 acres in the same vicinity to Nelson Orres, of Jordan, Minn. The lands lie in 49-21.

The company has been selling in the neighborhood of 3000 acres per week for some time past, and figures that it has placed about sixty actual settlers in St. Louis and Carlton counties this spring.

* * *

Local real estate men who have been dealing largely during the past few years with the wage earning class of people claim that the lake strike has played havoc with their business this season, in fact, where they expected to sell a number of properties to wage earners, who were laying plans to build moderate-priced homes this season. Lack of work has changed conditions to such an extent that the building enterprises are all off, and some of the sales that weer negotiating have been indefinitely postponed.

* * *

Reports that reach Duluth from the adjoining villages in the county indicate that some of them have had a healthy realty movement this spring. This is especially true of Floodwood, where it is estimated that fully twenty-five new buildings are under the course of construction. It is also claimed that twice as much ground is being cleared by settlers around Floodwood than last year.

* * *

W. J. Olcott will build this summer on the southeast corner of Twenty-third avenue east and Third street, one of the handsomest residences to go up this year. Architect W. T. Bray, who made the designs, is taking the figures on the new building now. Announcement was made a few weeks ago of the improvement of the northwest corner of the same street and avenue intersection, by the $20,000 home of E. L. Bradley.

Mr. Bray is getting out plans for a 90 by 120 feet brick machine shop and a 25 by 45 feet boiler house for the Biwabik Mining company. The construction work is to begin as soon as the plans are in the hands of Superintendent J. S. Lutes of the mining company. Both buildings are to be thoroughly fireproof. The roof of the machine shop will be constructed on steel trusses so placed that they will travel the entire length of the shop.

Mr. Bray is also getting out for Bishop Morrison plans for a frame chapel building on the old English style. The exterior will be finished entirely in natural wood, with hammer beam trusses.

* * *

Another handsome East End residence that will be erected this summer will be that for W. C. Agnew, on the north side of First street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east. The lot has a seventy-five foot frontage and was recently purchased by Mr. Agnew. The designs are by Architect J. J. Wagenstein. The residence will be of the old colonial style.

* * *

Mr. Wagenstein is getting out plans for a two-story brick store and flat building for S. K. Daugherty, on First avenue west, between Superior and First streets; plans for a large $10,000 frame residence, for W. C. Gilbert, a Grand Rapids, Minn., lumberman; plans for a brick two-story flat building on Fifth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues etst, for local parties.

Mr. Wagenstein says that the contract for the brick flat building and the double house of Samuel Rothermel and Charles Magdanis, at Eighteenth avenue east and Superior street, will be awarded today.

BROWN EGGS AND WHITE.

It is a curious fallacy that the brown colored egg is necessarily superior to the ordinary white egg, a belief which has led to the practice of artificially coloring the latter in imitation of the former, says London Lancet. It is doubtful whether the color of the shell bears any relationship to the nourishing quality of the egg. As those who rear poultry know, it is merely an indication of the strain of the laying bird. Still, a preference is very commonly shown for the brown or coffee colored egg; the color is attractive, and led by the eye, the choice is very generally made in favor of what is regarded as the richer and superior article. The practice of deception is thus encouraged. The shell of the white egg is stained in the simplest possible way, perhaps by immersion in a decoction of coffee berries or by means of an aniline dye. This resource may satisfy the eye, but, after all, there is probably not the slightest difference from the nutritive point of view between the naturally brown colored egg and the white one.

There is most probably, however, an important dietetic difference between two eggs the yolk of one of which is a very pale yellow color and that of the other a rich, almost reddish color. It is a notorious fact that the country-produced egg may usually be placed under the latter description, while the egg produced by the hen who is under an unhealthy and limited environment shows an anemic color, generally a very pale yellow. The eggs of wild birds—as, for example, the plover—show a yolk of a rich reddish color.

The substance which contributes color to the yolk of the egg is iron, just as it is iron which gives color to the blood, and there seems to be little doubt that the iron compound in the yolk of the egg is of a similar nature to that of the blood. It is easily assimilated, and eggs are regarded as a suitable food for the anemic person, as they present a concentrated and generally easily digested form of nutriment rich in iron. The iron compound of the egg has, in fact, been termed a "hematogen," because it is probable that from it the blood of the chick is derived. The amount of iron in the yolk of an egg would appear to increase with the intensity of its color, and there can be little doubt that the maximum is reached in the richly colored yolk of the egg produced by a fowl existing in healthy surroundings, for then its processes of nutrition would be working under very favorable conditions. As an article of diet, therefore, the egg should be judged, not by the color of its shell, but of the yolk, which should be of a rich reddish rather than of a pale yellow color.

GAUGING THE TEA.

A belated society tale goes backward to the season when Harry Lehr was courting the lady who is now his wife, says the New York Times.

One day Mrs. Dahlgren accidentally dropped a ten-dollar bill into a tea urn, which had just undergone inspection in anticipation of coming guests. When these guests arrived Mr. Lehr was among them. The hostess had forgotten her hank note in the urn, and innocently brewed her tea. All noted the peculiar flavor, but drank it bravely. The cause of their secret mystification might have gone politely undiscovered had not the hostess proceeded to give a lecture on the subject of brewing tea. She removed the lid of the urn to illustrate her point and revealed not tea leaves, but a ten-dollar bill. She was appalled. The urn and all the cups were sent away. She made primrose appologies and insisted upon serving each of her visitors with a fresh cup when the new supply appeared. When it came the turn of Mr. Lehr she asked:

"How will you have it? Strong?"

"Not quite so strong as the last," replied Mr. Lehr. "Make it about $9.75, please."

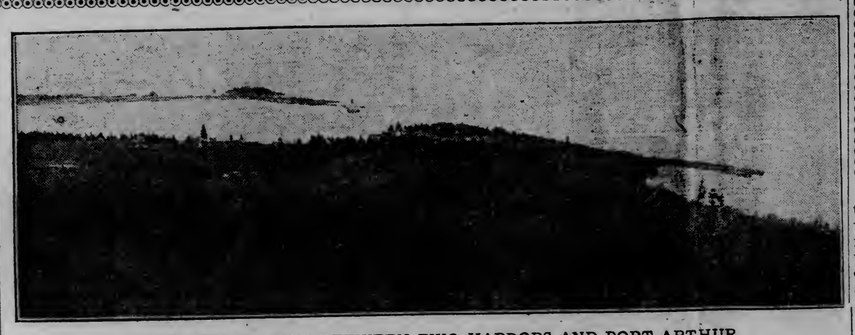
ALONG NORTH SHORE OF LAKE SUPERIOR

Picturesque Beauty of This Charming Region.

Wonderful Coloring Along the Hills In Spring and Autumn —Scene at Grand Marais.



THE BEST HARBOR BETWEEN TWO HARBORS AND PORT ARTHUR.

LOOKING WEST FROM GRAND MARAIS HARBOR—EVENING.

In true summer weather the voyage from Duluth, along the north shore of Lake Superior, around Isle Royale and return, is one very delightful—that is, to the lover of fresh air and refreshing breezes, and to the one with the temperament that animates the stretches of water and the near shore. As for those who, in modern parlance, "do" the trip, I cannot speak,—I rather suspect they are "done" by it. When one comes in touch with these latter individuals it is to be perceived that there is an art in knowing just how to rest, just how to deliver oneself to sweet idleness.

Some hours after one leaves Duluth the shore line begins to grow more interesting. As the day advances one reaches the land of lovely hills, of headlands jutting into blue water, and of rocky bluffs set amidst the mixed green of wintry spruce and summer foliage. There is, of a surety, in the spring and autumn, some wonderful coloring along the hills. One finds in the early months the transparent, fairy green of budding trees contrasted with the gloomy evergreens; and how that pale tint catches the gold and sheen of the rising and sinking sun! Farther away in the hollows the burnt number of trees as yet giving no indication of spring's vitalizing touch, gathers shadows that creep into more indefinite shades of distant land. And the autumn! One can then only pause and excalim: The hills,—a serrated range running away into the east and west, jutting it generally,—become very lovely to see with their gold and brown, their red and russett and with all the intermediate tones, dull or brilliant. The azure of the water meets you; and the azure of the sky rises in the distance. Away to the south the azure meets. Everything is panoramic—in the style of a frieze, viewed in the sense of a picture, and from the artistic standpoint it is, ceratas a picture. An apt hand, a mind with conception of beauty, and a spirit to conjure with these the requisite for the ambitious, and a finely pointed brush for the long and gracefully silk-netted sweeps and notches, and for perhaps the single line or two.

Until one has reached Port Arthur the last of railroad is seen at Gooseberry. By that time one has passed Split Rock which is, itself, a familiar point. Prominent and picturesque, rugged and rocky, it forms, sheer from the water, a wall of perhaps a hundred feet. Then, among other spots of interest, there is the namesake of one of the Hudson river points of remark—the Palisades.

Some way it is not until evening, until after leaving the dining room and gaining the upper deck, that one feels how very far away he is from the city, the city life and the so-called "world." One becomes slightly inclined to feel the superiority of oneself in the present surroundings, and to pity those left in town with seemingly sordid cares. Watching, one sees the shore line begin to fall away in distant shadow; the rocks, the numerous coves and the little bays begin to merge with their own reflections on the silent water; the hills are darkening before the sinking sun. And perhaps the clouds are forming for a scene after the dreams of a Michael Angelo.

All day the boat has run so close to land that minute inspection could be given the rocks and gravel beaches; at the stops where there were no wharves, the boat even ran its bow against the bottom, perhaps a dozen feet from shore.

But with the coming of evening, and there are wonderful evenings up this way—the eye rests on farther points than the nearer shore. Way

"HEADLANDS JUTTING INTO BLUE WATER."

GREAT GROWTH OF THE RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE

George S. Westcott Tells of the Railway Mail Clerks' Work.

Strain on Memory Is Enough to Stagger an Ordinary Man.

GEORGE S. WESTCOTT, OF DULUTH,
Who Has Been in the Railway Mail Service for Twenty-four Years.

"If you could take a voyage around the earth with the flying night, so that, whenever you gazed down at the globe you would find it in darkness, you would see darting lines of light going criss-cross over it in every direction," said George S. Westcott, of 5515 London road, the other day.

"Where the United States lies you would see more of them than anywhere else. You would see them gliding restlessly from the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Glimmering lines would be visible to you where they go threading among the Rocky mountains.

"North of the United States you would see some black patches where there would be no such bewildering maze of them. But even there, in the wilderness of Alaska, you would see some.

"In fact, you would see some lights flashing and hurrying along everywhere on the globe. You would see them rushing across Siberia. You would see them in Africa, some flitting along the shores of the Indian ocean, some speeding down toward the far Cape of Good Hope, others going along the northern shores of the Mediterranean ocean. You would see them in China and the Philippines, that continent would look to you like a great loom of flaming threads, all busily weaving.

"These lights are the railroad trains of all the world carrying the fast mail. Even in the old days in England the fast mail was the great feature of swift transportation. The old-fashioned folk who viewed a journey of 100 miles with as much anxiety as we view a trip of 1000 today, always tried to get a seat in the mail coach. The best roads in Europe were the great mail roads. And so it is today. The fastest trains, the fastest ships, the fastest horses, the fatet runner of the world are used by day and night, everywhere, from Point Barrow, Alaska, to the Cape of Good Hope, to carry the mails."

Mr. Westcott, who thus picturesquely describes the railway mail service, is well qualified to tell of it, for he is himself an old railway mail clerk, twenty-four years in continuous service. Seven nights in every two weeks he is busily working in one of these threads of light, which, in his case, travels from Duluth to Staples and back, over the Northern Pacific railroad. He is 53 years of age, and oldest in point of service to Uncle Sam of any of the thirty railway mail clerks running in and out of Duluth over the various lines. Having made a close study of the service for nearly twenty-five years, Mr. Westcott is acquainted with all its ins and outs. His advice to the young man is to keep out of the business. He says a man intelligent enough to become a good clerk can make much more and much easier money in some other line of work, and still have an opportunity left to get some enjoyment out of life.

Mr. Westcott, interested in the service in the United States, has also collected data concerning the service in foreign countries. This data shows that Uncle Sam was not one of the first in the field of carrying mails. Some of the smaller countries of Europe were far ahead of him for a time. But now he is the leader of them all.

He has more postoffices and postoffice employes than any other country. He carries more mail matter. More mail is delivered to each of his sons and daughters than is the case anywhere else. He has 33,000 more postoffices than Germany and 55,000 more than Great Britain and has 8000 more employes than Germany, while Great Britain is 39,000 behind him. He has nearly 316,000 more miles of mail routes than the next nearest country, Russia, and spends $10,000,000 more a year on his mails than any other country.

Another interesting fact about the statistics in the hands of Mr. Westcott is that they show Japan to stand eleventh in the list of nations for the number of postoffices within its borders. Japan leads such European countries as Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Norway, the Netherlands, Denmark, Belgium and Greece.

"The railway mail service has made great strides since I became a clerk, in 1880," said Mr. Westcott. "My first run was between Minneapolis and Council Bluffs. I kept the run for twenty-one and one-half years. It finaly became too strenuous for my advancing years, however, and rather than work myself to death, as I have seen so many brother clerks do, I transferred to the Duluth-Staples line. They manage to keep a man pretty busy up here, but the work he has to perform does not touch what they expect of him between Minneapolis and Council Bluffs.

"In 1880 on the latter run there was a service each way once a day. Four clerks were employed. I was the fifth to work on the line. Now there are four mails a day each way, with fifty clerks employed. My old companions of the early '80s have been dropping off one at a time. The last to go was only 16 years old at the time of his death. The others were all younger, ranging from 28 years up, when their last summons came. Working as one has to down there is a killing business.

"One has to be a pretty bright chap to get into the service these days, and when he gets in disappointment awaits him; he finds his abilities could be used to much better advantage in some other line."

INDIAN WHO IS A HUMORIST

"John Smith" the Wit of the Chippewa Nation.

Participated In Many Battles In His Early Manhood.

KAH-BE-NUNG-GWA-WAY ("JOHN SMITH") AND HIS SQUAW.

Cass Lake Minn., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kah-be-nung-gway-way (better known among the people living along the Duluth-Grand Forks line of the Great Northern railwaqy as "Old John Smith") is probably the only Indian in the United States that could be classed as a humorist. John is the wit of the Chippewa nation, and among the white people of Northern Minnesota is considered the wisest and the "foxiest" red in the country. John is somewhere in the neighborhood of 90 or 100 years old. His exact age is not known, but he tells of many councils which he attended that were held by old Chief Hole-in-the-Day, Bemidji, and Mos-qua-dis (Little Turtle) as far back as fifty years ago. He also remembers a treaty that was signed between the Chipewa Indians and the government over sixty years ago, and he himself declares that he was "big strong buck" then. His frame is now bent with age, and John grows more parched as the years roll by, but in every wrinkle of his old face there lurks a smile, and his bright, beady-like eyes sparkle with mirth at all times. He was born on the Cass Lake reservation, and in his early manhood participated in many battles.

In John's youth, the Chipewas occupied the country between the head of Lake Superior and the Mississippi river, the balance of the country west being inhabited by the Sioux. The "Father of Waters" was a sort of dividing line between the two Indian nations, and it was a veritable river of blood, at times, so fierce were some of the contests between the two factions. John Smith was one of the leaders on the Chipewa side, and he can tell many interesting tales as to the battles with his ancient foemen. After the Sioux were conquered and driven to the west of the Mississippi river, over into Dakota, John took up his abode in the thick forest, at the mouth of Leech river, (where he yet lives) between what is now the village of Deer River and Leech lake. When the war between the North and the South broke out, and the Sioux massacred the whites at New Ulm, John, together with Mos-qua-Dis and other leaders among the Chippewa, organized an Indian company of friendly fighters for the whites and they had much to do with driving the Sioux back to their hunting grounds in Dakota. This company of Indian soldiers afterwards served in the civil war, towards the close of that memorable struggle between the North and South, and John Smith worships as the apple of his eye, a G. A. R. button, which he claims is his by right of having been bestowed personally by a Union general. Of late years John has been a picturesque picture in the towns of Grand Rapids, Deer River and Cass Lake.

Nearly everyone knows "Old John Smith" and everyone likes the old fellow. Many have cause to remember his keenness, and he often turned the joke on some would-be josher. A few years ago, at the time when Deer River was the terminus of the western end of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad, running from Duluth, John "got even" with F. L. Churchill, the proprietor of a hotel there. John had on several occasions attempted to secure some alcohol from Churchill, but the latter steadfastly refused to give it to him. John kept up his entreaties, and Churchill finally gave him a jug, which he (Churchill) declared was alcohol. Smith took his jug, and with a contented grunt, started for home. After the Indian left, Churchill stated to those in the hotel that he had given John water instead of alcohol, and wanted them to wait till he came to town again and see what he (John) would do. Nothing was seen of the old red for about three weeks, when he walked in to the hotel, unconcerned, and, apparently, oblivious of the fact that Churchill had "sold" him. He asked the landlord if he wanted some moose. Churchill replied in the affirmative, and John came in with a quarter of fine looking meat, for which Churchill paid him, and he mounted his pony and went toward home. It was noticed that John, who usually drove to town with two ponies, had but one on this occasion.

Churchill passed the word along the railroad line that there would be a "banquet" at his hotel the following day, which was Sunday, and among

NORMANNA MALE CHORUS GOING TO THE SANGERFEST

Which Will Be Held at Grand Forks In July.

Flaaten's Band and Orchestra to Accompany the Society.

The seventh biennial musical festival, or sangerfest, of the Northwestern Scandinavian Singers' association, will be held in Grand Forks July 7, 8 and 9 next. It will be attended by the Normanna male chorus of this city, some twenty strong, accompanied by Flaaten's band and orchestra.

NORMANNA MALE CHORUS OF DULUTH.

The orchestra has been engaged to play for the festival, an honor The orchestra has been engaged to play for the festival, an honor which the association insisted on at the last festival in Soo Falls in 1902.

The Normanna society sent delegates to the festival at Omaha in 1896. In 1898 the festival was held in Duluth and at St. Paul in 1900, where the local society participated.

There is some talk of arranging for a big excursion to the old country two years hence, instead of the regular festival, the singing associations in the association to charter a boat and make a tour of Norway, Sweden and Denmark. The individual members are quite enthusiastic over the proposition, and it is claimed that such a trip could be made profitable as well as pleasant, and that the opera houses in the countries named would hardly be able to hold the crowds that would be attracted by the novelty of a Scandinavian musical association from the United States singing in the old country. Numerous singing societies from the countries named have toured this country, however, in fact one is coming to Duluth next month.

The Normanna male chorus is one of the most prominent Scandinavian musical organizations in the city. It was organized in 1894 by I. Sodahl and has continued with a varying membership ever since, with regular weekly meetings, sometimes oftener. At the present time the musical director is Jens H. Flaaten.

Of the charter members only two are now members of the present organization. These are D. Stoen and G. Thrana. Many of the singers have belonged for several years.

At the coming sangerfest there will be as many as 350 Scandinavian singers and a number of grand concerts will be given.

The present membership of the Normanna club is as follows:

Director, Jens H. Flaaten.

First tenors, H. Norley, John Solvik, Daniel Stoen, H. Haugen and Olaf Halten.

Second tenors, A. Ruske, E. Johnson, G. Thrana and O. Bothner.

First bassos, A. Sauer, L. Hildahl, A. Christopherson, P. Anderson and J. Berger.

Second bassos, A. Angvick, Oscar Aas, H. Spjotvold, P. Anderson and C. J. Halling.

In connection with the picture of the Normanna male chorus is shown the handsome silver trophy which the society won from the Svea club, of this city, in a musical contest held at the Lyecum Aphil 17 last.

The cup, which stands sixteen inches high, is known as the Carlson trophy. It was presented by Carlson brothers, of Duluth, to be contested for by the Normanna male chorus and the Svea Glee club, as the representative Scandinavian singing associations at the head of the lakes. No other society is eligible. The cup must be won three out of five times by the club that becoines permanent owner. Three months' notice is required by challenge.

The cup now held by the Normanna club must be the subject of a challenge by the Svea Glee club within a year of the date of the last contest. If the challenge is not made the Normanna club will be considered as having won the second contest.

The cup has buckhorn handles and the engraved designs, which are the Norwegian and Swedish flags, enameled in colors, surmounted by the American eagle, also the musician's lyre and wreath, were made by G. Thrana, of the Normanna club. The cup was engraved by N. Hendrickson. The trophy is valued at $100.

After the Normanna male chorus won the Carlson trophy it celebrated the event with a party at which Director Flaaten was presented with a handsame silver cup standing nine inches high.

Tuesday evening the music class of the Sacred Heart Institute entertained at a recital given in the assembly hall. The program was well chosen and well rendered. The chorus work was especially enjoyed, and earnest practice and sympathy among the voices were evident. Miss Belle La Vaque sang very sweetly "The Better Land," while Miss Mildred Ochsner, in her gay "Cuckoo" song, made a promising beginning.

Of the instrumental selections, several eight-hand pieces and one twelve-hand number showed excellent practice, while the piano solos and a pretty piano duet by Misses Chase and Idell were rendered with great skill. Miss Lambert, in her piano solo, played with a delicacy of touch and beauty of expresison which characterizes all her selections, while Miss Bertha Chase rendered one of her violin solos with true musical feeling.

LOVERS TWAIN

By Belle Maniates.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Tall and admirably proportioned, with a most distinguished air, modest in bearing, straightforward in manner and frank of countenance and possessed of a captivating personality, Philip Hathcourt was well equipped to win favor in the eyes of women. But Leigh Cornell, the one woman to whom his heart inclined, was still fancy free.

Though they were the best of friends he shrewdly divined that he would be forcing an issue if he told her of his love.

"I hear you are going to sing a solo at St. Luke's next Sunday," he said, as they sat in the box at the theater one night.

"Yes; I am to sing "Angels Ever Bright and Fair.'"

"I shall come to hear you. By the way, we shall have a guest at that time—a friend of my younger brother. He is quite music mad, I believe."

"Who is he?" she asked, carelessly.

"An Englishman—though he spent his boyhood in America. His name is Reginald Derbyshire."

"Oh!" she cried, her eyes full of interest. "Did he live here in this city years ago, and did he fall heir to a title and estates in England?"

"Yes," he replied. "Did you know him?"

Her eyes had become reminiscent and a soft smile played about the delicate curves of her lips.

"When we were children we sang in a vested choir. We were given the ducts, more because I was so fair and he so dark than from any blending of voices. They thought we made a tableau, I suppose. It was like a romance, his becoming Lord Somebody and crossing the seas to his estates. and I! Well, my lines were cast in far different places."

Watching her jealously he noted the sudded softening of her countenance.

Sunday morning found him in the Hathcourt pew, his brother and their guest, Reginald Derbyshire, also present.

Young Derbyshire had gone to England full of American ideas and with a stolid determination not to become "English," but it was only natural that an impressionable boy should insensibly and by degrees receive the imprint of English sentiments. Gradually he became molded in the character of the country which had been his birthplace, and at last England claimed him for her own. Soon after attaining his mapority he again visited his old home. He had an eager interest in everything pertaining to his old life and hunted up his former friends with enthusiasm. He had ever cherished most tender recollections of the little pansy-eyed girl who had sung and played with him. It was of her, in fact, he was now thinking as he appeared to listen to the sermon.

He had scarcely glanced at the members of the vested choir until now, when the organ pealed forth at the close of the sermon, a young girl rose and faced the congregation. She looked as tender and pure as an arch-angel in her white robes, with eyes uplifted to the oaken rafters of thelittle chapel.

"One of Raphael's sistine Cherubs!" thought Reginald.

At the rising cadence of the song and the exquisite play of the silvery timber of her voice his memory awoke.

"Leigh!" he gasped, as the old, familiar air and words rang out. How they took him back to the Sundays of his boyhood!

A flood of sunshine streamed through the painted windows and fell in slanting rays upon the golden hair that crowned the young singer like a halo.

"And I taught her that song!" was his triumphant thought.

She finished. There was a momentary silence like that solemn pause which follows a benediction. Then, with a tremor in his low, gentle voice, the old pastor offered a heartfelt prayer. Outside the church Reginald waited for her. When she came he rushed forward with impetuous and outstretched hand.

"Leigh!" he cried eagerly.

A bright, glorious flush rose to her cheeks and a happy light shone in her eyes as she grasped his hand, while Philip, standing by, felt like kicking this newcomer to the ends of the earth.

"I knew you as soon as you began to sing—our old song!" he exclaimed.

She wondered, with a sudden divining, of the reason that Philip had not told him of her. Reginald accompanied her to her home and they talked of other days—the days when she had sung in the choir and the unhappy days that had followed, when her father had died so suddenly, and to support her invalid mother the little Leigh had sung in dance halls and on pleasure boats. At her mother's death, just before he had come into his possessions, she had been adopted by some wealthy people.

"There have been changes indeed in your life since the day I taught you the song you sang today," he observed.

"No greater changes than came into your life, my lord," she retorted.

A blush reddened his boyish face. Even kittens can scratch, but no one can cherish resentment long towards a kitten. By the time they reached the house they were on friendly terms, and in the days that followed he haunted her presence with a persistence agonizing to Philip.

Early in June they were invited to a house party at Roselawn, the country home of the Hathcourts. One afternoon, as Reginald sat beside Leigh on the piano bench watching the slender finger that glided softly over the keys, he was struck by a new expression in her eyes. The dazzling brightness of her face had given way to a strange, sweet quiet. Hitherto he had regarded her as a gay little playmate. It occurred to him now that she was a woman.

"Leigh," he half whispered, "do you remember that when we were children I was your little lover?"

She looked at him with startled eyes. Something in his tone and eyes warned her whither his thoughts were turning. He noted her changing color and pulled himself together. It was not right to flirt with this girl! He was about to turn the conversation into safer channels when, with some hurried excuse, she rose and left the room.

"That was a narrow escape!" he thought. "Most girls would have led me on. I mustn't make love to her if she is a tremendously pretty girl."

While he was reflecting on girls in general and Leigh in particular Mrs. Wendell, one of the very few who knew Leigh's history, entered.

"You look as conscious, Reggy, as Leigh did just now. It would be a pretty romance if your boyish attachment for Leigh should end in your carrying her to your ancestral walls!"

"Oh, Mrs. Wendell, you know that as lovable as Leigh is, a fellow in my position couldn't overlook the days she was nothing less than a street singer. It wouldn't do in England, you know!"

Leigh, returning to the music room, heard the speech. Her eyes, usually so bright and tender, flashed with spirit as she quietly and unobserved left the room.

There was a grand ball at Roselawn that night and Reginald was one of the first to enter the ball room. Mrs. Wendell hurried to him.

"Oh, Reginald, I've something awful to tell you! Leigh overheard what you said about her having been a street singer. She just told me she heard you!"

He gave a cry of dismay.

"No, really, Mrs. Wendell! That is awful! Believe me, I shall make amends. I shall ask her to marry me."

Just then a beautiful vision swept past him. Could figure so slender and stately in trailing gown be that of little Leigh? As she passed through the long room at the side of her adopted father Philip Hatcourt did not remove his eyes from her.

"Leigh," he murmured, as they stood apart for a moment, "may I have the first dance?"

She turned slightly pale, hearing the intensity of his voice, but qietly gave him the promise of the dance. Then Reginald came hurrying toward them.

"Leigh, you were so late in coming!" he cried. "May I tell you how gloriously beautiful you are tonight?"

She glanced at him carelessly with a cold, little ghost of a smile.

"I want the first dance," he continued.

"You are too late! I have promised it to Philip."

She danced as she sang, with a perfect abandon that made her oblivious of everything but her delight in the art. Supple and graceful, she was the very poetry of motion. The music rose and died away and swelled in swaying, rhythmic strains that appealed insensibly to desire for motion.

The first dance ended Reginald hastened to claim her for the next one it had seemed to him that his code of honor demanded by way of apology nothing short of a proposal. But tonight her heightened beauty and the intoxicating delight he felt when dancing with her made him forget any motice but love. His wooing was audacious, passionate and importunate. Her refusal, calm, undaunted and unalterable.

Surprised, yet not baffled, he continued to plead beseechingly.

"I don't understand such inconsistency, Reginald," she replied. "Today you were proclaiming that you could not marry a street singer!"

"Spare me, Leigh!" he pleaded. "I didn't love you then. You are prejudiced now by reason of that unfortunate and careless remark. Take time, and let your heart soften towards me."

She laughed tantalizingly.

"I don't love you, Reginald! And I never will."

"You did, or were on the verge of it," he protested.

"When?"

"This afternoon before you left the music room so suddenly. I saw it in your eyes."

"You may have seen love there," she said, slowly, "but not for you."

A quick passion seized him.

"I know for whom! Someone whose feeling for you isn't equal to mine—someone who will not—"

"Stop!" she commanded. "My answer is final. Take me back to the ball room."

She was experiencing a slight exultation in the realization of the power a woman can wield over man. This feeling made her eyes more luminous and her face more radiant. They passed Philip in the doorway of the pavilion. He drew back out of view, all the wounds in his heart beginning to ache at the sight of the proud, happy bearing of the girl, whose countenance was glowing and flashing with excitement. He came up to her quickly.

"Will you dance this with me?"

"Certainly," she replied.

"I don't want to dance now," he said, when Reginald had withdrawn. "Let us go to the house, but not to the ball room."

They went into a deserted room, dimly lighted by candles, to a deep window embrasure which looked out on the garden at the back of the house. The moon flying swiftly through great, floating masses of clouds sent a silvery beam upon the gold of her shining hair. Her eyes were full of depth and color.

A little French clock chimed out 12 strokes.

"This is the noon of night," said Leigh, trying to speak lightly.

"Leigh, I have no right to ask—but, did Reginald propose to you tonight?"

"I have no right to tell, perhaps, but I will. He did."

"And you accepted him?" he asked, tensely.

"No, I refused him."

His arms went about her. "Then, Leigh, let me tell you, I—"

"Wait!" she cried.

Her voice was sharp and strained. She drew away from him.

"I want to tell you something—something about my early life. You do not know that when I was a little girl—"

"You sang on the boats and in dance halls," he interrupted, "to support your sick mother. I heard it before I met you. I think it was that which first made me love you!"

She turned soft, wet eyes to his.

"Oh," she said, with a little gasp of joy. "And to think of this time I've been dreading to tell you!"

NEW BONNETS FOR SALVATION LASSIES

Can Wear Champagne Colored Hats of the Broad-Rimmed Sailor Order—New Suits of Linen Also Permitted.

About 12,000 women in the United States this year are to have brand-new bonnets for the first time in manny summers. They are women, too, who heretofore have not known what it is to have a new Easter hat, or what it is to wear a flower of a feather. Their millinery has not only this peculiarity, but each one's bonnet is as exactly like her sister's as two peas.

Whether her face is long and narrow, or short and broad; whether her nose turns up with a heavenly tip, or down with a melancholy droop, and without one thought as to what the beauty expert declares to be her physical culture duty, every one of these 12,000 women has been wearing the same kind of hat winter and summer, in wet weather and dry.

These are the Salvation Army lassies, and their black poke bonnets, trimmed with sombre ribbon, may have a vacation this year if the lassies think it best.

American women of the ordinary Easter-bonnet and summer-hat wearing classes consider it smart to have an imported English hat, and that is exactly what the Salvation Army lassies are to have a chance of buying this year. It is a very pretty hat, something of broad-rimmed sailor order, tipped down a little over the hair in the back, of a deep straw color, and trimmed around the rim with broad folds of pongee silk.

It would be called, perhaps, a champagne-colored hat, and the suit which goes with it might be described as having the same hue popular in dress fabrics, but that is not the name of anything a Salvation Army lassie would wear.

There are new suits, too, to go with the new hats, and, while they are an innovation in this country, they are not novelties on the other side of the water. It is the summer uniform worn by the Salvation Army women not only in England, but in Canada, and is made of lighter colors and materials, suitable to the warm weather. Thesuit is of linen—a plain skirt, with a short sack coat buttoned the full length, with a little turndown collar at the neck, and straps on the shoulders.

Upon the straps the officers of the army may have the stars indicating their rank, if they desire. Because of the novelty of the change from dark blue to light it may take time or very hot weather to bring them into constant use.

Salvation Army women put quite as much thought into the buying of bonnets as other women, but for different reasons. If an officer of the shoulder-strap sex, a Major or Colonel, perhaps, buys a bonnet for the pretty little Major or Colonel, his wife, who has been raised to the rank by marrying him, he knows that it is going to last her five years if she is a careful young woman.

Then—no, she does not buy a new bonnet even then, but has the old one reblocked, dyed and trimmed, so that it looks as good as ew, costs her about half as much as she paid for it in the first place, and will last at least two years more.

Salvation Army bonnets, of the type that is familiar in the United States, are an interesting variety of head covering, quite a interesting as the more elaborate creations that other people wear. There is nothing to equal them in general fineness of construction, except the Friends' bonnets, the pretty soft gray silk ones now so seldom seen, but a few of which are made by skillful Quaker milliners in Philadelphia. These, being all of silk and made with great care, are more expensive, but the Salvation Army bonnet is costly, considering the simplicity of style.

In the first quality of straw, trimmed on the outside with folds of satin ribbon, with shirred satin facings on the inside and satin strings, they are $5.50. A cheaper quality, with coarser straw, and trimmed with silk instead of satin, and with grossgrain strings, are $2.50, and there is a quality between at $2.50. There is a straw hat of black, something the shape of the new light one, at $2.25 and $2.50.

The lassies who work in the slums have a little hat for their special work. This hardly counts with the others, for it is very plain—a little round thing, tipping down over the face, and costing sixty-five cents, or $2.50 in a better quality. The slum workers themselves put on a little band or a simple facing if they like. These are the girls who wear cheap shawls over their shoulders and gingham aprons, dressing as much as possible like the people among whom they work. At one time they omitted even the red hat band, which is their badge of office.

But the regulation bonnet has been the black poke. As far as possible it is the custom of the army to utilize home industries in whatever country they may be located, but the finest of the straw bonnets come from Luton, one of the big straw centers of the straw hat industry in England. There the army has its own factory, where its own people are employed, and where great quantities of black poke bonnets are turned out annually, for there are 100,000 women in different parts of the world to wear them. The coarser straws are made for the army in a factory in Boston.

Sister Corson, of the army, is the milliner for the lassies in America, and it would take a long time for her to count the number of bonnets she has trimmed. If the lassies were not as economical as they are in millinery, she would have to sit up nights to keep them in bonnets. She is not a milliner by trade, and has taken up the work since she came into the army, but she does it so exquisitely that one of her bonnets is worth examination. The fine straws, in the first place, are beautiful, forming one of the finest braids made. Upon these straws folds of satin or silk for the outside of the hat are put on with mathematical precision.

Trimming new bonnets is not a circumstance to what has to be done with the old ones. Some of these are dilapidated specimens when they are brought back for repairs. Some of them have seen so much extra service that a respectable ash barrel hardly would own them. The trimming is removed. They are put on a block and pressed, made fresh and new with black coloring matter, entirely retrimmed with new material, and it is a clever Salvation Army lassie who knows her own bonnet.

There are no men milliners in the army, but there is a millinery salesman, and he knows all qualities and shapes, for there are two varieties, even of the poke bonnet. One of them, an English shape, is longer at the cars and square. Another, which to unaccustomed eyes looks exactly the same, is cut off slightly at the ears and is called the American shape. There is an extra large poke, but that is not often used. One pretty bonnet is the little poke worn by the children. It is of a rough straw, without the mature folds of the grown-up bonnets, trimmed with a big bow of blue ribbon on the top and with more of the ribbon set on in a band on the lower edge and forming the strings.

Salvation Army bonnets are useful as uniforms for practical wear, but they have minus qualities. The lassie wears her straw bonnet whether it snows or the sun shines, and in winter or summer. In the latter season, fitting closely around the ears with the heavy folds of silk, it is uncomfortably warm, and in winter the cold winds art blown inside the front where it stands out around the face, and it is quite as uncomfortably cold.

The new bonnets and suits are not expensive. With each bonnet or hat is included the Salvation Army band.

The bonnets have many virtues as badges of office. They go with their wearers into many kinds of work, but they are not, as their wearers frequently are, cosmopolitan. In different countries it is the rule of the army, as far as possible, to conform with the custom of the country.

In Japan the army worker wears her kimona like the Japanese women, lives in a simple little house, eats from low stands on the floor, sleeps on a straw mat at night, and she wears no hat at all. In India she wears the robes of that country, with the yellow chudda draped over her head and shoulders. In Java and Ceylon, Finland and Poland, she also follows the customs of the country, and it is not necessary to go further afield than California to find her in the native dress of the people among whom she works. The workers in San Francisco's Chinatown wear the Chinese dress.

But with this adaptability the bonnet is such an important part of the Salvation Army lassie's uniform that she is sure to have one tucked away somewhere, even in the little doll's house which she occupies in Japan. Salvation Army bonnets are not only good and enduring companions for life, when the lassie has finished her labors and worn her bonnet for the last time, when the last words of her friends and fellow-workers are said over her body, above her is placed the Salvation Army flag, the Bible and the same familiar bonnet with the red band.

THE COLLEGE GIRL'S GRADUATION FROCKS

THE LINGERIE HAT

THE NEW 1830 POKE BONNET

A SIMPLY GIRLISH MODEL

OF EXQUISITE SIMPLICITY

WITH MANY NOVEL FEATURES

SWEET GIRL GRADUATE

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT, MIRIAM SPIER.

At this particular time of the year the happy little school miss and her greatly interested mamma are way in the depths of planning for the all-important class-day toilette. The new frocks designed for the exercises which will celebrate graduation seem somewhat this year more than ever to be exceedingly beautiful. For one thing, a delicate simplicity marks the best models, and everywhere white is queen over color, though the faintest tints of colorings are occasionally to be seen—with these conquering qualities graduation tokens now and then coming for decoration.

Of course, a little later on at the summer resorts there are many social functions where this dainty frock will be very appropriate at either afternoon or evening affairs.

Yards and yards and yards of material are needed for the new evening gowns; that is, for their skirts and sleeves, and if they are made of diaphanous textures that requires underbuilding. Shirrings and puffings in innumerable devices decorate the airy frocks of this year's graduation. Threading, lacing and latticing effects with ribbon are devices frequently resorted to. Very quaint, quite resembling the portraits in ancestral halls, are some of these toilets. Girls who have an eye to economy are using a new chiffon cloth, which in weight is much like silk muslin, but which can be worn nearly threadbare without wrinkling. A dainty design seen in this material was in the palest tint of pink. The skirt had a cluster of three ruffles of silk lace at the knee and finishing the hem. Above each cluster were three broad tucks. Frills of the same lace trimmed the waist and flowing sleeves. The yoke consisted of the silk lace, with a bertha arrangement of narrow pink velvet ribbon latticed over the lace and caught at the intersection with knots. There was a broad ribbon sash, with small bow and long ends, tied to one side.

The combination of lace with the soft fabrics so prevalent now is responsible for as sumptuous appearance as fashion has ever displayed. While the coarser laces are less used than formerly, finer threads, with bold effects and wide meshes, are quite as prevalent as ever. One of the fancies of the present is the union of such lace with the old English eyelet embroidery, which is again at the height of popularity. The mull gowns that much used Teneriffe wheels of last year again appear, but this time they are rather a part of the setting for the embroidery than of first importance themselves. A frock of white mull recently seen will illustrate their use. The full skirt divided midway its length by circles cut in the mull and scalloped fine around the edge. These were filled with Teneriffe wheels. The deep shaped and shirred flounce was an ornate affair, made up of eyelet embroidery helped out with the wheels. The waist was decorated in similar fashion.

Crepe de chine, messaline, satin liberty, chiffon cloth, chiffon voiles, batiste and all other dainty wash goods show an increasing tendency of Dame Fashion toward soft fabrics. Even the French taffetas have taken on a totally novel aspect with their lighter and softer finish. Then, perhaps, the softest and prettiest for young ladies are the favored mulls and the daintily flowered and tinted organdies which are par excellence for the costume at present, displaying fulness, flounce, gathers, plaitings, ruchings and ruffles.

The young girls may revel in the most fascinating of evening gowns made of white batiste, which closely resembles organdy. These are made with the round skirt with the slightest possible dip in the back. They are typical 1830 costumes, dainty and quaint as those worn by our grandmothers. The skirts are trimmed to the knee, and the latest models look as if they had been copied directly from some old painting. The waists are shaped in the back and somewhat full in front. The neck is cut out round and not low, and some of the prettiest models are edged with a three-inch lace ruffle. Sleeves are generally to the elbow, but a few are made with only a gathered cap. Laces and fine embroideries are used to trim these dainty gowns, and it is more generally a combination of both lace and embroidery rather than the use of only one of these trimming. Valenciennes lace and other fine washable lace are chiefly favored. Some of these 1830 gowns are made with a separate shoulder cape to be worn over the low-neck gowns.

The most stylish lingerie costumes are embroidered as a'jour (openwork) fabrics of the lawn and mull order. Some of the high-class Swiss and French novelties show combinations of these two. Embroidered gauzes, voiles and grenadines are also very popular. Skirts of the lingerie gown, sometime, instead of being ruffled, are embroidered in the most elaborate fashion with either the solid effect of French embroidery, generally worked in sprays or conventional designs or else show the lower part of the skirt entirely composed of openwork embroidery mingled with insets of lace. The bodices show the use of the bertha to a large extent. While the predominating idea for sleeves is the ruffled one. The Broderie Anglaise gown is among these dainty dressy frocks, and generally of the pure white embroidery.

Nets in medium-printed designs are also used for evening wear and are particularly favored in cream or ivory white grounds with the design printed in pompadour colorings.

The plain and flowered muslins are singularly attractive this season, and are so well suited to the new styles of dress that they are bound to be in great demand. Flounced skirts—skirts with rows of shirring around the upper part with wide flounce put on with rows of cording. Big flowing sleeves, fichus, draped waists, sloping shoulders and quaintly picturesque shoulder capes look best made in the mousselines with white back ground and covered with the palest pink or yellow trailing roses. The plain silk mousselines, with small polka dot of the same color and trimmed profusely with lace, are very smart. Exaggeratedly wide skirts are one of the marked features of this spring, and seven yards in a flounce is not thought too wide, but the fashion can far more readily be carried out in the thin materials than in the heavier ones.

Among the newest models for evening costumes for summer wear are seen many fascinating designs, most of which have, in addition, the charm of being quite different from any gowns worn for many years. Dame Fashion never seems to tire of new combinations, so that one must not be surprised when shown gowns trimmed throughout with rows of fine Valenciennes lace, together with heavy Irish point, the two divided by only a narrow band of fine gathered or shirred lawn or batiste.

Although on first thought this may not seem at all attractive, nevertheless, these gowns are most effective, and the two laces blend quite marvelously, perhaps because of their totally different character. For the decollete gown, the waist may be made as described, with perhaps a deep bertha of the two laces joined together without the band of material between. The sleeves may consist of two short, but comparatively full puffs of the lawn or batiste, and below each puff a fall of lace. From which, of course, the lace is different, it being perhaps better to have the finer lace above. A deep bertha softens the gown and takes away any possible bareness from the sleeve. If not becoming, however, this is not necessary, the lace itself being quite sufficient finish at the neck, and the sleeve may have but one puff, made much to coincide with the rest of the gown with the two rows of lace. As no extra flounces are added to give the necessary flare, the skirt should be of the material, not of lace, being shirred or gathered, and the lace cut on the round flare pattern. If desired, a deep flounce made as the rest of the dress, with bands of lace batiste, entre deux, may be added at the knee, where the material is joined to one of the strips of lace, and this will surely make the skirt full enough to satisfy even the most exacting heart. In the model seen, which was made on this order, each lace was about four inches wide, while the connecting strip of material was about half the width. This same model would be extremely handsome for an afternoon affair. The skirt would be the same as the model described above, and the waist would merely have the addition of a yoke. The sleeves would be most attractive in the elbow length, as the gown is quite handsome enough to warrant this style. It is the greatest mistake imaginable to finish a gown with short sleeves when the style of the dress is not sufficiently elaborato or the material not appropriate for a really smart gown. For those who prefer long sleeves, however, there are certainly plenty of ways and styles to choose from. In fact, modistes today seem to exert their chief energy on this part of the gown, and judging from some fashion plates and models one's arm would need to be about twice the average length to accommodate all the tucks, bands, of lace, ruffles and puffs which are an absolute necessity on the smart costumes of the present moment.

This gown would also be most effective when worn over a silk slip of some delicate shade. The material between the rows of lace could also be of some colored or flowered lawn or net. The all-white gown for summer is sure to be, however, most attractive as well as extremely becoming and smart.

The latest Paquin models show that in Paris they are still shirring everything. Not only are skirts shirred in every conceivable manner and to a preposterous extent, but one sees it on the waists also. In many of these the fulness falls from beneath a little neck-piece like, yet decidedly unlike, a yoke. This is a new idea for a neck finish. It is extremely shallow in front and is brought well down over the sleeves to produce the long shoulder slope.

A charmingly dainty design particularly appropriate for the youthful graduate is of fine white batiste, organdie or mull, much befrilled and flounced, and typical 1830 modes. The skirts are straight and full and trimmed to the knee with innumerable tiny lace-edged ruffles of the material; while the waist, with its slightly bloused front and semi-fitted back, is made with a low, round neck edged with lace, and the sleeves, which reach only to the elbow, are formed entirely of the tiny lace-edged ruffles. A softly folded girdle of Liberty satin, that may have long ends falling at the back is worn, and if preferred, this dressy touch may be in some exceedingly delicate color. A separate shoulder cape made of the material and lace trimmed is sometimes included. To enhance the beauty of this particular gown, fine embroidery may be introduced with the lace.

A strikingly pretty lace frock is entirely of gathered flounces mounted on finely spotted esprit net, the sleeve formed of frills, the decolletage outlined with frills and the skirt frills from the knees downward. The lace need not be of a particularly good quality, provided it hangs softly and the wearer be slim and her waist encircled by a smartly arranged belt of soft ribbon. She should crown her locks with a twist of this same soft satin ribbon and tie a bow of it at one side of her bodice, tucking the ends loosely into the front of her belt.

Handwork is more plentiful than ever on toilets for all occasions. And to help out such decorations the manufacturers are introducing an endless assortment of trimmings. For evening or summer party frocks bands worked in dainty floral effects are exquisite.

Many of them cost, considering their rich appearance, a mere song. Ribbon decorations are in increasing abundance. Demurely crossed fichus and surplice waists are always contemporaries and this season is no exception. As yet surplice effects are more prevalent in elaborate get-ups than are more severe costumes.

Some evening gowns seem fluttering all over with their elaborate encrustations of gilt and silver sequins or spangles. Others are delightful little toilets of ribbon and chenille; trimmed nets and mulls are frilled, flounced and sashed to the top notch. Shaped flounces, elaborately deep, form the filmy elbow sleeves of more than one diaphanous frock. Spanish skirt flounces are put on with rows of shirring, and the same motive also form the tops of other sleeves and appear around the busts of bodices.

The clinging and strikingly effective crepe gowns have their sashes made of the same material or chiffon. Other frocks, and especially those in the tinted silk mulls for very youthful wearers, are sashed and boned, with pompadour ribbons, whose garlands, bouquets or stripes run over backgrounds in the gown tints.

A dainty evening getup, suitable for a schoolgirl of blond or pale brunette coloring, was a simple frilled frock of tucked white organdy mounted on coarse Swiss. The sash and bodice knots were of the new taffeta ribbon in a delicate coral pink, and the auburn-haired girl who wore it was ornamented with coral jewelry.

To get at the heart of this matter, the important thing is to have the graduation frocks as becoming and pretty as possible. Any white or palely tinted material which admits of transparent effects is always a good choice, and a delicately flowered silk is equally charming. For the rest, the lines of the selected model should suit the wearer's type—frills and furbelows for thin maids and straight sweeping effects for the stout ones. Flat figures may also be improved with voluminous fichus or drapery of some kind, and the too prominent bust distinguished by simply keeping the front bodice line straight.

If laces cannot be afforded, remember that all the simpler evening materials lend themselves delightfully to ribbon garnishing, and never was the ribbon supply more varied than now.

Description of Above Hats and Gowns.

The Lingerie Hat.

White chiffon is shirred over a frame of silken wire to fall in a full double ruffle over the edge. The crown is low and spreading, and a deep bandeau in the front lifts the shape off the face, a soft twist of Dresden ribbon, which ends in a rosette at the left side, covering the band. The crown is encircled with a wreath of large roses of every tint, from the palest yellow and pink down to a full rich red Jacqueminot, the colors being blended with artistic skill, and a splashing bow of the Dresden ribbon appearing as a finish in the back.

The New 1830 Poke Bonnet.

With the revival of the quaint and the old-fashioned modes of the early part of the last century the fascinating poke bonnet has likewise made its reappearance. The new models of that style, however, are far prettier than those which they are supposed to copy. Witness the illustration, in which the frame is bent bewitchingly upward at the left side to disclose the bunch of blue forget-me-nots clustering around a pink rose, the blossoms filling the sweep of the poke and resting on the hair. The frame is entirely covered with little ruffles of edelweiss lace, and the wreaths of forget-me-nots and blush pink roses are disposed around the sides and back. Long tie strings in the palest pink ribbon start from the back and are tied in a demure looking bow beneath the left ear.

A Simply Girlish Model.

White china silk, with sufficient body to retain the shape well, and yet sufficiently sheer to disclose the tint of the foundation slip—for the newer mode calls for the colored linings beneath the sheer and shimmery summer fabrics—was selected for this simple commencement frock, which is girlish in the extreme. To a round yoke, which is fashioned of alternate entre deux of Valenciennes and tucks, the blouse is bouffantly shirred, the oscillating stitch of the sewing machine accomplishing this just as well as handwork does. Three tucks run around the body, and the fastening is accomplished in the back. The skirt is in gores, each having three tucks run in on the straight edge, and three tucks also appear above the hem, which, in this instance, is faced with a broad band of white velveteen, which affords the correct flou and firmness at the foot. The sleeve has a loose upper cap, beneath which a full puff sleeve is inserted with very good effect.

The Sweet Girl Graduate.

A very sheer white Persian lawn is used for this simple and quaint design. The round yoke of the blouse is of Valenciennes insertion, the narrow strips run together to shape it. To this the blouse is shirred, the fashionable long shoulder being observed, and the sleeve set in low on the arm. With this mode the use of a dress shield is imperative, the much smaller arm size bringing both sleeve and waist in closer contact with the flesh. The sleeve is a simple puff with a narrow cuff of lace. The skirt has a plain front panel, the sides and back being cleverly fitted with rows of shirring arranged to simulate a shallow hip yoke. Above the braid-bound hem four rows of the Valenciennes entre deux are inserted, this making a daintily simple finish to the gown.

Of Exquisite Simplicity.

The sheerest of white handkerchief linen is used for this exquisitely simple design, the chic depending entirely on the sheerness and daintiness of materials and execution. To a round yoke of Valenciennes lace insertion the gown is applied on Empire lines, a pointed handkerchief bertha meeting the yoke, this elaborately decorated with the simple lace. The full puff sleeves are banded with it, and the narrow cuff is similarly constructed. The full and bouffant skirt has a narrow volant, lace-edged, at the bottom, and vandyked points of entre-deux appear above the hem.

With Many Novel Features.

The Teneriffe embroideries find an extensive use in the summer gowns, and appear to excellent advantage in this costume of white linen, the embroideries being backed with white chiffon. The stock and the round yoke are of the openwork, to which the blouse is applied with little bouillonnee shirrings, these being repeated above and below the hip insertion of embroidery on the skirt. The sleeve follows the line of the blouse, the cuff being of embroidery and conspicuously loose. The skirt has a shallow yoke above the insertion, and to this the skirt is shirred, falling in full folds to the braid-bound hem.

A fascinating apron design calls for nainsook and embroidered edging with narrow lace insertions. A slashed lace bertha adds to the effect wonderfully.

The bolero jacket is still occasionally in the swell shops, but has nearly dropped out of use among the ultra-fashionable folk. For those who still cling to the bolero a pretty miss' costume is shown with a double inverted box plait at each of the side seams of the nine-gored skirt. The bolero itself is held to the waist by independent under-arm and shoulder seams.

Theatrical

New York, June 11.—Since the first rush a decade ago of noted actors into vaudeville of the continuous character there has not been such a scramble to get engagements in the continuous performance theaters as there has been thos year. The managers of these theaters are willing to pay large salaries when they are certain that they will get back their money in the receipts, but they are no longer eager to pay the enormous prices once asked by the actors, says the Sun.

It is said that negotiations were begun with Henry Miller, but Mr. Miller's terms were too high for the managers. They were after him not only because of his reputation and popularity in certain parts, but also because he is the possessor of a one-act play that would be splendidly suited to the purposes of vaudeville.

Charles Hawtrey, who was the first of the noted players to go into the continuous drama, was the past person of whom such a move was expected. He is an Englishman, and in that country the habit of going over temporarily to vaudeville is not common with the best actors. Here Clara Morris, Rose Coghlan, Jonauschek, Robert Hilliard, Maurice Barrymore and many good actors have acted in these theaters from time to time.

To persons familiar with the facts of Mr. Hawtrey's past career and future prospects here there was less surprise ever what he had done. In spite of his great artistic success, he had never made large sums here for himself or for his managers.

The New York run of "A Message From Mars" was the only successful business episode in the American visits of the comedian. The cities out of New York did not take kindly to the play, nor were they any more favorable to "The Man from Blankley's," which he brought back last season.

That piece exhausted its local popularity within a few weeks. The relations between the actor and his manager, Charles Frohman, were finally brought to an end, and Mr. Hawtrey having a good sketch in his possession, saw no reason why he should not earn for two weeks $2000 a week for acting four times a day in both theaters.

He made good to an extent uncommon in vaudeville, and the houses were so large during his engagement, that his contract has been extended until the middle of July. He will thus return to Europe at the close of his American tour with as much money as if he had enjoyed a very profitable season here instead of one that earned very little money for anybody.

"And his reputation will not be in the least harmed by this little flyer," said a manager the other day. "In London nobody will know that he ever did act in vaudeville, except those persons who are interested in theatricals. As they never buy tickets, their disapproval will not injure him financially.

"I think that it will do him good as an investment here. Hawtrey has always acted here only to kid glove audiences. His plays never appealed to the greater public, which is alone able to make a star profitable.

"Thus it happened that many persons never had the opportunity to learn what a fine actor he is. He must have been a really good one to have pleased so well in his new rôle.

"Now when he returns to this country all these people who grew to like him will want to see him again. They will want to see the actor whom they like and will be less concerned about his play.

"Not come back again because he has played in vaudeville? Well, I guess not. If Mr. Hawtrey goes back to London and gets a play that it a real success, do you suppose that in a year or two from this time any manager will hesitate to bring him here? Not in your life.

"Good plays are too rare, and so are good actors. Mr. Hawtrey will be just as much in demand in this country as ever, if he gets a good play."

This manager might have remarked that the doings of foreign singers and actors in this country are rarely held up against them in their own country, as it is thought that anything is possible in the United States, and no extravagance more or less makes no difference.

Fritzi Scheff will be able to get just as good an engagement in Germany or Austria after she has sung for two years in comic opera—admitting of course that she has any voice left—as she ever could. Nobody there would ever think of objecting to her on the ground that she did this or that in the United States.

Ernestine Schumann-Heink is going to sing in comic opera next year. But that will not prevent her from taking up the engagement at the Royal Opera house in Berlin which has been hanging fire so long. Even our own singers are sometimes able to do things that would seem fatal to their careers as artists of the first rank.

Lillian Nordica was pictured in a wheelbarrow, being shoved along with John Duss, and afterward she rode around the canal at the Madison Square Garden in a gondola. But now she is engaged again at the Metropolitan Opera House. So, why should she not have taken that money, even if she did for a year remain out of the opera company?

William Thompson, Jessie Millward, Isabel Irving—these are some of this season's recruits to the vaudeville stage than the best has been selected. It was early in managers have selected. It was early in November that Miss Millward began her starring career here that lasted only a short time, owing to the lack of impressiveness about the play her manager selected.

When it was decided to withdraw the piece because of bad business, the notice of this decision was given to Miss Millward through the inadvertence of a messenger just before she stepped on the stage. That naturally disturbed the actress considerably, and she was unwise enough in her indignation to express her feelings in the subject to a theatrical newspaper.

Now, it happened that several of the most important managers were interested in the play in which Miss Millward was starring, and they were all indignant that she should have talked so freely and so strongly of what they said was an accident, due to the stupidity of a messenger. They were in control of the situation, and, unluckily for the English actress, her name went on the blacklist.

So she was unable to find employment again until she joined the luckless Century Players and acted for a few weeks with little salary and less glory until that organization somewhat ignominiously shut up shop.

When Miss Millward decided to go into vaudeville it was feared that her sketch might not prove acceptable. It is a serious playlet, not so lively as these pieces are thought necessary for the amusement of the continuous audiences. But Miss Millward has satisfied the public of these theaters so well that she is now booked up continuously until December next without any interruption.

So she is for the time being able to snap her fingers at the managers who would not engage her for their companies. When she goes back to England next winter she will have cleared as much as if she had been through a moderately successful starring tour. Now she is playing four times a day, but that will not continue when she takes to the road.

Miss Millward is now receiving every week $800. Out of that she must pay probably $40 a week royalty for the use of her play and engage an actor to whom she, in all probability, must give at least $150, if not more. But that still leaves her a very comfortable salary.

Whether it will be so easy for her to get back into the legitimate ranks as it was for Mr. Hawtrey remains to be seen. It is a theory with managers that women have always lost caste by taking to vaudeville, while men do not.

Rose Coghlan has never, for instance, held the same place in the profession that she did before identifying herself with vaudeville, and the managers all believe that it takes an actress longer to recover if she is ever able to do it altogether.

Cissie Loftus, who is to be a star next year with Daniel Frohman, seems an exception to this rule. But the managers may argue that she really began in vaudeville. It is certain that none of Charles Frohman's leading actresses has ever done such a thing.

Annie Russell, before she became one of the Frohman stars, had an offer from F. F. Proctor to play a little one-act sketch for ten weeks in his theaters. She was to receive $1000 a week, which was for those days the record salary. She was naturally tempted by the offer.

"Don't you think of it, my dear," said Mme. Modjeska. "I have had many offers to go into the vaudeville theaters and I have declined them all. And I am much older than you are. I have very few years more to act, and I have lost in artistic productions much of what I earned. But I want to leave behind me the name of an artistic career. So what necessity should there be for a young actress like you, with her career before her, to take such a step? Be true to your ideals and don't sacrifice them for money."

That decided Miss Russell; and probably that fidelity to artistic standards was the best thing that ever happened to her, since Charles Frohman made her a star and she has been one of the most popular in the country ever since.

THE WORLD'S FAIR SHOWS.

The Russian and East Indian Native Dances.

St. Louis, June 11.—"How?" said I to a Sioux Indian on the Pike. He was a fine example of the aboriginal American, standing full six feet tall in his moccasins, a foot higher with the feathers on top of his head, and he was the acme of tremendous dignity thoroughout every inch of his picturesque length. Nothing that Fenimore Cooper ever wrote in his Indian stories of the East, or that Ned Buntline ever wrote in his Indian stories of the West equaled in portraiture of the noble red man this fellow whom I spoke to with a mental salaam and kowdow. I wouldn't have presumed to ask him to take a drink, so stoic and taciturn did he look. All that I had read of Indian degradation through whisky and other things incidental to civilization faded from my memory as I looked at him. Here, I said to myself, is the real thing, the it, the altogether, in American Indians. If I had known any politely deferential words in his native tongue I would have used them in addressing him. But I didn't, and so I voiced the common Indian salutation, "How?" just like that, but twice over for cordiality's sake, "How, how?"

The maestic Sioux turned slowly toward me. "How?" he said, in good English. "Hell is how. Do you see that son of a gun?"

Gun wasn't precisely his word, as he pointed to a chap who looked like a student of ethnology, and spoke on: "That chap just asked me if I was a genuine Hindoo. I told him I'd be his hoodoo if he didn't watch out."

You see, this happened in the Pike show called British India, and the Occidental Indian, one of the visitors, was indignant at being mistaken for one of the Oriental Indians. Such is the pride of race. However, his wrath didn't drive him away. Half an hour later I saw him in the Oriental theater watching placidly the East Indian dances. They employ twenty men and ten young women, whose skins vary from the blackness of a full-blooded negro to the lightness of an octaroon; and so, when a little girl on the stage suddenly discloses them standing in a double row, they look at sight like a company of American minstrels. We half expected the man at the middle to say, "Be seated. We will now have opening chorus." What he did say was that his companions were the most wondrously gifted artists that had ever been induced by generous remuneration to come out of India. Of course, that wasn't so, and one yellow fellow grinned as if it were a joke. However, they proved entertainers, as I subsequently and some of their doings were new in this country.

The women in this Asiatic show took seats on a raised platform and made a picturesque group with their Oriental costumes and languorous poses. But the men, who had a row of chairs on the stage level, were more and more gorgeous. That was a novelty, for at Chicago femininity was predominant in the show. Four men at each end of the line were so very resplendent as to highlight Hines Heidelberg and other toggery that I took them to be Rapahs—if not real ones, then good imitations. The whole party joined in what the middleman told us was a sacred hymn of India. The male voices came out well in it, but the feminine were shrilly nasal, and the beating of castanets and tomtoms didn't make an accompaniment that sounded religious. As soon as that was over my mistake as to those two quartets in royal purple, blue, yellow, red and all the other colors known to East Indian dyers, with small colored stones and metal jangles all over them, was made clear by their introduction as Cingalese dancers. They went across and around the stage, again and again, in a single file like American Indians in ceremonial dances, with similarly high knee-action and crouching attitudes. A different set of eight men in less pompous raiment gave a Cingalese stick dance, which was a kind of pat-a-cake game with raps of short wooden wands instead of spats of hands. This was odd and lively.

But the women interested us more than the men. We expected something wicked of them and we got it, for the official censor of the Pike had not yet passed judgment on this opening performance. Yet there was nothing new in the wickedness. It was much the same concheechee sort of thing that had been revived the week before in the streets of Cairo, except in a refreshing variation by two Nautch girls, tall and tawny, with hair of midnight and eyes of noon, with figures shapely and supple. It is true that they made the boneless portions of their bodies quiver once in a while, in the familiar manner of Eastern dancers, and some of their exercise was passionate, but they were no more gross than the typical Spanish fandango senorita, and they were somewhat like her in gracefully free-limbed action. The couchee-couchee creatures that their feet scarcely at all, as probably you are aware, but roll and loll their heads, wabble and wiggle their bodies and are repulsively lascivious. There were three of those in this troupe. A young one was so scrawny that her bones had little flesh on them to wigwag signals of indecency; but the two others were old, ugly and so fat in their bestiality suggested sows wallowing in a swill trough. Not a nice comparison? Granted. Yet the truth ought to be told, so that visitors at the fair who wish to see that exhibit may know where to find it and those who don't may know to stay away.

If the visitor to the Oriental theater gets warm with what he sees there he may go right across the Pike to the Russian theater and cool off. The songs and dances of the two countries are in characteristic contrast. The Russian performances are as chilly as the gooseflesh of St. Petersburg in winter, and the East Indians are as warm as the sweat of Calcutta in summer. When the curtain raises on the Muscavite show you see a rear row of twelve men on their feet and a front row of twelve women on their knees. I say women, and not girls, for conscience sake. It is polite usage to call female ballets and choruses girls, as long as they live, and to fix the average of age midway between 18 and 40, which keeps them collectively under 30. But the years of these Russians range upward from 40, not downward. They are women sure enough, and of a most respectable aspect. It was a shock to me when they arose to their feet that their skirts didn't reach below their knees. The possibility that those matronly creatures might do something indecorous gave rise to dread rather than hope. But they did not. The hems of their frocks were never flapped up an inch, and the feet, in Polish boots, were never lifted more than shin high.

The Russian native dances had energy, but no grace. The Polish ballet seen on our stage away back in the time when "The Black Crook" was young, but which have faded out of sight, were professional forms of their amateur originals. The Kiralfys, who came to this country first as a dancing family of two girls and three young men, were wonderfully nimble in the Polish exercises, and a recollection of that quintet made these undeal Russian representatives seem all the more clumsy. While a woman was singing, with her arms akimbo and her booted feet marking time, a man darted forward from the line and stamped demonstratively around her. Probably his motive was amorous, but she received him stolidly and he soon retreated to his place with no show of chagrin at the rebuff. Another man made a more vigorous onslaught, stamping harder, flinging his arms and joining his voice with hers in song. She smiled amiably at this one, but wouldn't let him touch her, and nothing came of his wooing. A stalwart woman led the whole company in a single file of hoppers, skippers, jumpers and stampers around and around the stage.

How these Russians contrive to look so icy in St. Louis on a day hot enough to melt a glacier, was a wonder to me. And what they did was frosty. Their exhibition might be given without offense in a church and would seem more appropriate there than in a theater, so unbroken was its staid dignity. The singing was mostly hymnal, whether religious or patriotic, and the folk songs were not gay in tunes, whatever they may have been in words. Altogether circumspect was this representation of Russian peasant customs on occasions of village festivity, and it was faithful, too, except in the vocalism. These performers may have been born peasants, but not for many a year had they farmed it for a living. All had been musically educated. I have no doubt it is true, as told to me by a Russian, that some of them were from St. Petersburg choirs and others from that city's operatic choruses. I am further willing to believe that the soprano soloist had been a prima donna in opera earlier in her career, so cultured and strong was her voice. All sang with might and main. The instrumental music was faint. The dancing was set to the rhythm of singing tongues and stamping soles. The troupe did not quit the stage during the half hour of the show, but kept to their two lines, except when the dances employed them. They seemed rather offish, perhaps because American sympathy is with their enemy in the Korean war. And then again they may have been apprehensive of the hostile Japanese, who outnumber them at the fair and are building a stronghold on the Pike, preparatory to an invasion by Tokyo actors and geishas. However, the Russians roused themselves for the final song and dance, which was much like the walk-round with which our negro minstrels used to end their shows, each in turn taking the center for a pigeon wing. And they wound up with "The Star Spangled Banner," God bless 'em!

The biggest two shows as yet opened on the Pike are the Christian and Biblical. One is called "Creation" and the other "Hereafter." Each has a spacious facade, with a big angel spreading her wings and gazing down on the throng. Why don't they put the "barkers" inside those celestial creatures and yell through megaphones? Of course the voices would be more persuasive coming from angels. If the language were appropriate, than those of the fellows who stand at the entrances and harangue in the usual style of the side showman. The entrance to "Creation" has a sizeable waterfall to attract attention. You pass behind that and into the realm where, in the state of this world, as recorded in Genesis, is shown day by day. The first view is a chaos of formless matter, in molten turbulence. Slowly the dimness of the sky and land separating from each, the former steaming from fire underneath and the latter upheaved in belching volcanoes. Then the shores appear, first with scant vegetation and gradually with herbal growths, till forests come into view. The illusions are perfect. They are produced by introducing sections of scenery from both sides, as stage experts call set pieces, and they are expertly painted and ingeniously illumined. The next progress is the making of the sun to rule by day and the moon to rule by night. The sun is the more novel and artistic representation. Its diffusive light reveals the landscape before the orb itself shines through and bespeaks the clouds. The moon makes a more ordinary entrance. It rises from behind an expanse of water, on the rippling surface of which it glimmers just as it would a thousand days. But the spectators preferred their old theater acquaintance, the moon, to the much superior stranger, the sun, and applaud her vigorously.

This "Creation" is not a drama, but a diorama, and its only actors are those representing Adam and Eve. The one who impersonate Adam and Eve. The who designers of this show followed the Bible accounts of the earth right up to the formation of man in the image of the Lord. Then with a stroke of genius they threw on a canvas by a stereopticon, and shades. They are commonplace. Not so in the final disclosure of the show, which has lasted about an hour. The stage setting is changed to a scene of fleecy clouds and soft illumination in heaven. Angels float in and out and round about with gently waving arms and wings, and they look divine to most of the folks who have just seen the imps below. Hymns are sung finely by invisible men and boys while the angels float among the clouds. An imaginative cynic might sit there and bethink him that the contingent from the angelic hosts are quite mortal ballet girls, showing pink legs through thin, white draperies, and that the heavenly choir is made up of the same chaps who a few minutes earlier, down below, howled and wailed as the torturers and the tortured. I tried to join the majority in their feeling of awe as the performance ended with a swirl of the angels and the sonorous finish to the hymn of "Jerusalem."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Roof Gardens and the Seashore Shows Now.

New York, June 11.—The full effect of warm weather is now beginning to be seen in playland. In less than three weeks fourteen city theaters have closed their doors. Very few are left. In the places of the lapsed are now the roof gardens and the seashore shows.

Monday evening Klaw & Erlanger opened for its first season the Aerial gardens, built on top of the New Amsterdam theater. This newest roof garden is heralded as a real novelty, a theater and an old Dutch garden in one. It is 320 feet above the street and has a seating capacity for nearly 2000 persons. The stage is as large as that in many of the theaters down below.

The auditorium can be adapted to all sorts of weather. On warm evenings the side walls being of skeleton construction, innumerable revolving windows can be thrown open. On cold or rainy evenings the theater will be fully protected from inclement weather. The old Dutch garden, reached by spacious promenades, is expected to prove very attractive.

The opening attraction was John J. McNally's vaudeville entertainment, "A Little of Everything," presented by more than 100 persons, headed by Peter F. Dailey, Fay Templeton, Georgia Sparks, Agnes Schiller, Harry Kelly, Lola McIntyre, Sabe Johnson, Susie Fisher, Charlotte Leslay and Elphyne Snowden. The story is in three acts, and of course admits the introduction of many musical specialties of a type calculated to appeal especially to summer night audiences. The piece was staged with elaborate scenery and costumes.

One of the specialties is Cole & Johnson's "Evolution of Ragtime," which presents Pete Dailey, George Schiller, Fay Templeton and eighty others in song which show the development of darky melodies from savagery to the present time. This was presented at the first performance last night with a chorus of 100 added to the length of the piece had to be cut out.

Oscar Hammerstein also opened his roof garden season Monday night with a bill for Paradise garden on top of the Victoria theater, which includes twelve big vaudeville acts and a new "musical melange" called "Parafinia." This has a chorus of seventy pretty young women. Mr. Hammerstein says he wishes to make it plain that this is in no sense a burlesque of the great opera. It is merely a "musical flage." The plot has to do with the tribulations of a foreign impresario, Herr Siegfried Confried, who is punished by the goddess Music for attempting to produce "Parsifal" without the permission of Frau Wagner. Confried is thrown into a trance, and then his trials and difficulties begin. Emma Carus, Eleanor Falk, Betty Youlon, Freda Valentine and James Ward are in the cast. Among the specialties is "The Mysterious Face," which is both ingenious and remarkable. Another is the Sunny South Plantation band, a famous negro organization from Charleston, S. C.

Picturesque Holland, with its windmills and gristmills, bridges and fisher boats, was seen on the roof, as it was last season. The cows, goats, pigs, roosters and ducks were also on hand for the opening.

The New York theater roof, refurnished throughout, opened Monday night under the management of Ned Wayburn and F. Richard Anderson with the "Wayburn & Anderson Roof Show," which includes 200 entertainers. Mr. Wayburn planned a new specialty entitled "Ned Wayburn's Girls," as a successor to the "Minstrel Misses," and this was presented Monday. Glanini's Royal Marine band and Soldierne's orchestra will be permanent features throughout the season. The opening bill also contained many artists famous in vaudeville.

One of the theaters which show no sign of closing yet is the Criterion, where William Collier is fast approaching his 100th performance of "The Dictator." Crowded houses are still the rule there, and the applause and laughter in each act seem to prove what a genuinely funny play Richard Harding Davis has written.

Several new songs were introduced this week into George W. Lederer's musical comedy, "The Southerners," at the New York theater. The singers are Elfie Fay and Eddie Leonard. "The Southerners" was not wanting in tunefulness, but the new songs give it an additional fillip.

"The Yankee Consul," at the Broadway, passed its 125th performance there early this week, and it is to continue indefinitely, despite hot weather, so the management says, because the theater-going public is by no means tired of it. As a concession to the hard-working players, however, matinees will be given hereafter on Saturdays only.

"Piff, Paff, Pouf" is going on at the Casino all summer. That theater has always had a reputation as a hot weather playhouse, and there is no reason to believe that this summer it will be any less attractive than it has been.

The reign of "Wang" at the Lyric continues with undiminished brilliancy. Recent changes in the cast have improved the performances, and from the entrance of De Wolf Hopper on the elephant to the last curtain the piece goes with a whirl which is irresistible.

Real stars from "the legitimate" figure largely in the Procter bills this week. At the Twenty-third Street theater Edna Wallace Hopper heads an attractive program. She sings her early song successes. Then there is "The Magic Kettle," by means of which you can make ice cream in a chafing dish. Wright Huntington and Florida Kingsley give Charles J. Bell's sketch, "A Stand Off," for the first time in New York. Ben Welch presents a comic Hebrew, and there are many other singers and actors.

At the Fifth Avenue both Mrs. Hopper and William H. Thompson, late star of "The Secret of Polichinelle," are on the bill. Mr. Thompson appears in a pretty little playlet by Clay M. Greene called "For Love's Sweet Sake." "The Cowboy and the Lady" is the offering of the stock company.

The summer opera at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street theater is Victor Herbert's and Harry B. Smith's "The Singing Girl." Grace Orr Meyers is the prima donna, Herman Hirshbey the comedian and Edward Metcalf has the romantic role.

At Proctor's One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street house Mr. Thompson appears in his playlet. The stock company gives "Needles and Pins," a satirical comedy adapted from the German by the late Augustin Daly. The Proctor stars cover so much ground by skilfully arranged automobile trips.

McIntyre and Heath head the week's list of Keith's funmakers. Next year they are to star on their own account and vaudeville will know them no more. They present a skit, "Dr. Breakabone." The rest of the bill is in keeping with this act. Other notable persons in it are Edwin Stevens, who with his company plays the comedy sketch "A Night Off." Ethel Levy returns with some of the songs that have become famous since she first sang them. Then Conroy and McDonald introduce their musical specialties in "A Political Pull." Taffary's dogs and a group of sterling comedians and singers complete the program.

There is plenty of novelty at Tony Pastor's this week. Mr. Pastor's stars include the Manhasset Comedy Four, singers, dancers and comedians; Belmont and O'Brien, in an amusing sketch; Mr. and Mrs. Browning in a comedy, "The Cure;" John Leclair, the juggler; Lavina and Alama; the Barkers, in an original act; Will Thompson Davis, comedian and monologist; Adams and White, musical comedians; Mr. and Mrs. Belford, the strenuous comedian and the tough girl; Arlington and Delmore, in "My Husband," and many more, with war and travel pictures up to date.

Charles Hawtrey is at the Circle Theater this week in his dainty little comedilette "Time Is Money." Besides the well known English comedian, there are in the bill Teschow's cats, just from Europe; Raymond and Caverly, "the Weber and Fields of the vaudeville stage;" the Misses Delmore, vocalists; Mark Sullivan, comedian and mimic; Ten Brooke, Lambert and Ten Brooke in a musical skit; a wire walker, several acrobats and other entertainers.

Most prominent in the program at Hurtig & Seamon's are Winona Shannon and Hubert Footner, in a comedietta called "His Long-Lost Child;" Jack Mason's five "society belles," including Grace Garner, who sings popular songs; Charles Ernest, the "ventriloquist;" Ray Cox, and Reynolds and Kiernan in a skit.

Venice in Madison Square Garden with its gondoliers and big orchestra is going on as usual. The orchestra is heard to better advantage with the new big sounding board, and the Garden altogether looks better this year than it did last.

Rumor has stalked into the Ziegfeld household, and has it that Anna Held will spend her summer vacation in South Dakota. The reason for a sojourn of the French prima donna in the land of the domestically unhappy has given rise to all sorts of gossip. One friend of the little comedienne went so far as to ask her by wire if it was true that she was going to South Dakota with a view of getting a divorce? The terse reply was in Miss Held's choice English, and read: "It's nobody's bizmais."

There is a story that Florence Ziegfeld, Jr., the husband and manager of the little Frenchwoman, displeased his wife when he decided to star Grace Van Studdiford, in "The Red Feather," and that this arrangement led to some difficulties, but it is hardly believed that it will cause a divorce action.

Our American spring invasion of London seems to be equally successful. In fact, the entire season has been off there, but the heaviest sufferers have been Ethel Barrymore and "The Prince of Pilsen." Miss Barrymore bill London farewell adieu, and sailed as soon as possible for America. She will jump almost directly from London to San Francisco, where she is to play a summer engagement. "The Prince of Pilsen" is still running on at the Shaftesbury Theater, but it is not making a very good impression. By the way, the only other American success in that theater besides "The Belle of New York" was "In Dahomey," the Williams and Walker negro show. They have just completed their long run in the English provinces after their successful engagement in London, and will soon return to this country to pick up a new tour next season. It is said that on the head of the British success of these ebon-hued entertainers rests the fact that booked in the highest-priced theaters for that tour. If they are it is likely that they will "get theirs."

"Life" that is never indulgent when it comes to its consideration of the theater bids farewell to the dying season in Gotham in the following characteristic manner:

"And so ring down the curtain on the season of 1903-04. It dies unregretted and unmourned except by those whose investments have met with—in most cases—deserved disaster. Let the dead past bury its dead. Let us hope, even against hope, that next season's summary will give us greater cause to regret that another theatrical year has gone."

Lillian Russell is not to be a star under her own management if the latest reports of her immediate future are true. These have it that Miss Russell will join the Hamlin and Mitchell forces, and be seen as a star in a musical comedy they have under consideration for her.

Announcement comes from London of the recent marriage there of Elijos Fernandez to W. L. Abingdon, the English actor. Miss Fernandez is an American actress who has earned her way to much popularity. She began her career as a remarkably clever child actress, and subsequently developed into a clever player with increasing years. The groom came over to this country two seasons back, and has been in the support of Amelia Bingham most of the time since. When Wilton Lackaye left the Bingham forces to become a star Abingdon became Miss Bingham's leading man. He made many friends in this country during his stays here. Miss Fernandez is the daughter of Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, who looks after the business cares and engagements of more actors and actresses perhaps than any other one person in the world.

FLORENCE STONE COMPANY.

The Florence Stone Stock company will again appear next week at the Lyceum, opening Monday and presenting the beautiful Irish drama "Shamus O'Brien." This a play replete with thrilling incidents, humor and love. The action is laid during the rebellions in Ireland. All the characters that have made the Irish drama dear to the hearts of the American people are to be found in "Shamus." There is but one feature to mar the present production and that is the inability of Miss Stone to appear during the first week of the engagement, owing to an attack of tonsilitis, her physician having ordered a complete rest, otherwise the company is the same as that which delighted so many Duluth theater-goers during the early part of the season. The play will be produced Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and night, followed by "Pink Dominoes," a comedy full of funny situations and bright, catchy lines, Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinee and night. In addition to the regular bills the "Biograph" will also be added, with an entirely new set of views and pictures.

"THE LONG NIGHT," BY STANLEY WEYMAN.

Andy Adams, the author of the "Log of a Cowboy," has just published a new novel entitled "A Texas Matchmaker," through Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Mr. Adams dedicated the new book to "Frank H. Earnest, Mounted United States Custom Service, Laredo, Texas." For those who would like to know more of the man who has drawn from the veteran cow puncher such a compliment, the story is now given out. Just after the "Matchmaker" was published, a Colorado newspaper man journeyed to Colorado Springs to have an interview with Andy. That character is not inclined to talk much. The interviewer, however, was foxy, and after leading up to the next book Andy was working on, and getting no satisfaction, he causualy remarked, "Who was the Mr. Earnest you dedicated your last book to?" Andy was caught in the trap and warmed immediately before the space filler. "Red Earnest was one of the finest men who ever rode the old Western trail. Now mark that fact, for it is a sweeping statement hundreds of bully good men traveled that trail and knew and loved it like the pages of a well read book. Red had served with distinction in the Confederate army, and he was so proud of the South he rarely talked about it. Occasionally it broke out, and when it did, flames flew. Many were the nights we had the same watch, and somehow we rather hit it off. Of course he was what I considered an old man, but years as numbered in cities didn't count with us in those days on the plans. Red was always, drunk or sober, hastly dignified and considerate. He had a slow drawl from a sweet low Southern voice. His politeness was illustrated once on the Rendado Ranevho, where we had secured an old bottle of rare cognac—smuggled goods. When we broke the seal from the bottle and pulled the cork there were several strangers in the improvised bar of the Rancho. One of these strangers wore a clerical garb, and Red at once walked over to this gent and offered the bottle. His hospitality was promptly declined, but all the rest of us took a drink, or two. When the bottle was empty and we were riding away toward our camp, I took Red to task for offering liquor to one of the sacred cloth and asked him if he hadn't noticed his clothes. Red replied in his usual drawl, 'Well—son—I—thought—he—was—a—preacher—but I—didn't—propose—sir—to—slight—him—on—that—account.' And to the memory or Earnest's proved. innate politeness, I dedicated the pages of the 'Texas Matchmaker.'"

Nature study, either for children or among their elders, was never more encouraged than it is at present; neither were such splendid opportunities for its study ever offered as those afforded to the child or man of today. Magazine after magazine has taken up the theme, book after book has been published dealing with one or another phase of the subject, lecturers and teachers never tire of expounding their particular points of view; yet, for all this, the subject does not become trite—the great truths that nature teaches cannot grow dull or tiresome. It is for this reason, no doubt, that some of the older volumes upon wild life and kindred subjects have gone through so many editions. One such volume of present interest is "Tenants of an Old Farm," by Henry C. McCook, D. D., Sc.D., of which the tenth edition has recently been issued by George W. Jacobs & Co. Dr. McCook has literally lived among his pets, has studied them by day and by night in their natural state, and has deemed no pains too great to acquaint the world with the wonderful lives of some of our most common insects. It is, indeed, amazing to find how fascinating ants, bees, wasps and caterpillars become under Dr. McCook's delightful treatment. The volume has proven to be one of the most valuable and entertaining on the subject that has ever been issued and the revised edition is brought absolutely up-to-date.

A nuew device in chapter nomenclature has been hit upon by Francis Lynde, the author of that vigorous novel, "The Grafters." He christens his chapters—or, at least, many of them—after the titles of well-known stories, such as "Ashes of Empire," by Robert W. Chambers, "The Wreckers," by Stevenson, "Journeys End," by Justus Miles Forman, "A Woman Intervenes," by Grant Allen, "The Bostonians," by Henry James, and "Without Benefit of Clergy," by Kipling. One curious thing about it is that, in spite of his chapter headings, "The Grafters" is not at all a "bookish" book. The only lamp of which it smells is the locomotive headlight.

The best stories Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman has written since "A Humble Romance" will be published by Harper & Brothers, under the title of "The Givers," this month. The tales are written in the author's most characteristic manner, but are largely love stories. The title, however, is taken from the opening tale (not a love story), which will be peculiarly pleasing to the numerous recipients of inappropriate presents. It relates the experience of one sturdy woman who had the courage to revolt against foolishly selected presents that were neither needed nor desired. The story when published in Harper's Magazine, under the title, "The Revolt of Sophia Lane," touched many responsive chords in the hearts of those who may be termed the victims of stupid gifts, and Mrs. Wilkins Freeman received more letters than any story of hers ever inspired, with the exception of "The Revolt of Mother."

William Dana Orcutt's beautiful romance of LaSalle's career, "Robert Caveller," is meeting with decided success, especially in the West, where the interest in the exploits of the great adventurer is naturally most active. Besides the charm of the romance itself, the remarkably finished manner in which the volume is printed and bound is attracting much attention, as also are the beautiful illustrations in color.

"Yorkshire Coast and Moorland Scenes," by Gordon Home, the author of "What to See in England," contains many attractive colored plates picturing the scenes described. Armchair travelers will relish it as well as the lucky ones who know rural Yorkshire, for Mr. Home's pen pictures of scenes and natives, and his paintings of moorland and brooklet and bay and village, have the charm that attaches to all fine and sympathetic interpretations of nature. The same may be said of Mrs. Willingham Rawnsley's volume on "The New Forest," also just published by the Macmillan company, in which the twenty full-page illustrations picture in colors delightful bits of English woodland.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman, the author of "Human Work" and "The Home" (McClure Phillips), has just been offered an important editorial position on the Woman's Journal. Mrs. Gilman has a tremendous following among people in touch with advanced thought, and her books have aroused animated discussion throughout the world between the conservatives and the radicals. Mrs. Gilman is a grand-daughter of Lyman Beecher, and, therefore, comes naturally by her faculty for telling people what she thinks they ought to hear. Her birthplace was Hartford, Conn., and her career as a writer and lecturer began in 1890; since when her reputation through the translation of her books into almost every modern language has become international.

In his biography of "Whistler as I Knew Him," just published by the Macmillan company, Mortimer Menpes tells a curious story of the famous artist. At the little breakfasts which he used to give in Paris and in London he was sometimes forced to be very economical. "He often said to me: 'Look here, Menpes, I wish you would go and buy a bottle of eighteen-penny white wine from the Victorian Wine company. We will decant it carefully, and, what with my brilliant conversation and the refined atmosphere of the studio, these men will never know whether it is good or bad. Somehow men understand red wine. If you give them a cheap vintage, they recognize vinegar; but with the qualities of white wine they are not so familiar.' So it always proved to be. This eighteen-penny white wine was produced at the famous Whistler breakfasts, where it was pronounced to be perfect. 'A very sound wine, very sound indeed,' I have heard men say as they held it up to the light, handling it carefully as though it were priceless—in exactly the same way I have seen them caress a blue-and-white-plate. I have heard intelligent men dilate for hours upon the beauty and rarity of certain porcelain which I myself have seen Whistler buy at a cheap shop round the corner, or which has been presented at our doors in company with a pound of Oriental tea."

Rupert Hughes, the author of "The Real New York," describes his forthcoming book as "something more, and a great deal less, than a guide book." There is actually almost nothing of the usual guide book characteristic in this lively and informal description of the metropolis. It is the record of an exhaustive sight-seeing tour of New York under the guidance of the author, who, being a Western man by birth, knows the city better than any native could possibly be expected to know it.

"Tomfoolery," a collection of drawings, limericks and remark sketches by James Montgomery Flagg, bids fair to become as famous as Lear's classical "Nonsense Book." Mr. Flagg's drawings are irresistibly funny, and his limericks have the virtue of being something more than simple plays on the curious spelling of the English language. "Tomfoolery" has been issued by Life Publishing company.

"The House in the Woods," by Arthur Henry, just published by A. S. Barnes & Co., is the story of a real house built on the borderland between civilization and the wilderness, and, like "An Island Cabin," is the vivid narrative of discoveries out of doors.

Stanley Weyman chose for the scene of his last novel, "The Long Night," the city of Geneva, and thereby gained himself the eternal friendship of the people of Geneva. It is testimony to the fidelity of Mr. Weyman's story that the leading citizens of Geneva have united in presenting him with an illuminated and inscribed address and a bust of Calvin. "The Long Night" is now being translated into French for the special benefit of the people of Switzerland. McClure-Phillips, the American publishers of "The Long Night," state that it has made a greater success than any of Mr. Weyman's previous books.

That the reading public relishes a taste of freshness and the spontaneous and unconventional is shown by the fact that over fifteen thousand copies of Holman Day's volumes of poems, "Up in Maine" and "Pine Tree Ballads" has been sold. Mr. Day's new book, entitled "Kin of Ktaada," just published by Small, Maynard & Company, is a still more, vivid and piquant portrayal of New England rural character outdoor picturesqueness. In its conception and execution, its mingling of prose and verse stories, this new volume is absolutely unique, and seems sure to become one of the "Old Home" books to be sent broadcast over the country and treasured as a real contribution to literature. The book is divided into six sections, five of these serious portraying each a distinct phase of homely New England life. It is neither a book of short stories nor merely a volume of poetry. In each section a generous number of the author's latest and best poems are woven into a harmonious unity by a thread of prose narrative, description or chat, so that the interest of the reader is continuously held; and the lights and shadows of the life of simple country people are shown in such artistic contrasts in these pages that the heart is touched by the tender sentiment of one verse or paragraph even while the laugh still lingers from a page of rollicking humor.

A remarkable reprint is announced by Dodd, Mead & Company for the early autumn season. It is a popular reprint of the deluxe edition, published two years ago, of Lewis H. Morgan's "The League of the Iroquois." The book has been thoroughly revised and edited by Herbert M. Lloyd. The new edition is illustrated with a colored frontispiece, plates and maps.

This has long been considered the best of all books relating to the institutions and customs of the Iroquois. It was originally published in Rochester, in 1851, in a small edition which has long been out of print and is now quite rare. The alterations and hitherto unpublished material for this new edition consists of corrections made by Mr. Morgan in his own copy of the book; personal reminiscences of Morgan by Mr. Charles T. Potter, who collaborated with Morgan in the original book; and a sketch of Morgan and his work, and notes by the editor. These notes include a large amount of Jesuit material translated especially for this work. A good deal of it has been translated before, but some is now for the first time in English, and all is original translation.

There is also material which Mr. Morgan desired to have included in the first edition, but which was excluded for lack of space.

Robert W. Chambers' original and amusing new novel, "In search of the Unknown," which the Harpers have just published, is his nineteenth published book. Having accomplished this immense amount of purely literary labor, it is curious to recall that Mr. Chambers was educated at Julian's academy, Paris, to be an artist, and that he first exhibited in the Salon in 1889. Subsequently he turned his attention to illustrating and did considerable clever work in Life and other New York periodicals. Besides his novels, he is the author of two favorite juvenile books, "Outdoorland" and "Orchard-Land," and besides these a play, called "The Witch of Ellangowan," which he wrote for Ada Rehan, and which was played at Daly's theater some years ago.

Professor Brander Matthews has been at work on his "Recreations of an Anthologist," which will be issued in the fall by Dodd, Mead & Co. This volume contains all that the author has been able to collect of certain interesting literary subjects, no one of which, however, is important enough to deserve a separate volume. There is a chapter on unwritten books, of which "Edwin Drood" and "Denis Duval" are examples; there is another chapter on the undeveloped plots of great story-tellers; "American Epigrams," "Carols of Cookery," etc., etc.

"The Ark of 1803: A Story of Louisiana Purchase Times," by C. A. Stephens, which A. S. Barnes & Co. are bringing out in their East and West Series, is a book for boys and girls, and deals with the adventures of the pioneers of Ohio at a time when Spain had closed the mouth of the Mississippi to Americans. It is entirely different from George Cary Eggleston's recent boys' story, "Running the River," which treats of flat-boating on the Mississippi at the time of the steamboats.

Woodcuts in color are scarcely in keeping with the mechanical tendencies of today, particularly in connection with book-making. W. Graham Robertson, an English artist and author, and a firm believer in the gospel of Morris, Ruskin and the like apostles, publishes through John Lane a unique book, comprising the author's own verses, of which the subject is amply indicated by the title, "A Masque of May Morning," and illustrated by himself from colored woodcuts, printed under his supervision. The volume is large, quarto; the illustrations, twelve in number, are full-page, with color schemes quite regardless of the expense of technical obstacles, which have driven the publishing world into the arms of three color processes, other makeshifts that are certainly "wonderful," but are usually "fearful" also. In the making of this book it has been the author's desire to have everything in keeping with his luxurious conception; and though it is obvious that he believes more in the fruitful influence exerted by a work of this kind upon two or three really artistic personalities, yet his desire to see the influence spread as wide as possible has led him and the publisher to issue the volume at the minimum price, with the hope that it may find its way into many hands. Not only is Mr. Robertson a master of color; the tenderness of his lines reminds one of the finest examples of Fred Walker, or of Sir J. E. Millais, in his pre-Raphaelite days.

The Pilgrim for June is unquestionably the most interesting issue of this popular magazine that has thus far been issued. The cover design itself hints at the entertaining contents of the number, representing as it does a girl in the flush of youth facing her friends, diploma in hand. A light article on certain phases of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, illustrated by W. H. D. Koerner, from sketches made on the fair grounds, serves to open the magazine. An article of decided summer interest tells of "The Rise of the Circus Clown," and is illustrated by as amusing a collection of photographs as has ever been brought together. Mr. Willis J. Abbot, the editor of The Pilgrim, contributes an article on the work and the drama of a great national convention, entitled "The Making of a President." Two of the stories in the June issue are especially worthy of notice,—one entitled "When Greek Meets ——," by J. L. Hooper, is an original a bit of short fiction as The Pilgrim has ever published, while the other, "Cisely's Story," is by Mary Applewhite Bacon, widely known as a writer of brief fiction. A double page of photographs and types of ships that are rapidly becoming obselete constitutes a pictorial feature of decided value. These are but a few of the many interesting articles and stories in the June issue of The Pilgrim, and in addition the reader will find all the valuable and unique departments are maintained.

The July Century will be a fiction number, although the advance announcements give promise of notable features of interest for serious readers. Besides further chapters of the serials, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's "The Youth of Washington" and Jack London's "The Sea-Wolf," there will be nine short stories in the number, Miriam Michelson, author of "In the Bishop's Carriage," contributing another Madigan story. There will be stories also by Margaret Deland, Bertha Runkle, and Gouverneur Morris.

Among the notable features of the Argonaut for June 6th are "The Seamy Side at Sea," by Jerome Hart, who gives prospective voyagers some good advice; "A World Without a Woman," a story in a new vein, by Marguerite Stabler; "Relief Work in Japan," a Tokio letter from Helen Hyde, who tells of how the poor are cared for there; "The Romance of Stanley's Life," an interesting account of the career of the great explorer; a London letter, telling of W. S. Gilbert's new play; a criticism of Maude Adams in "The Little Minister" at the Columbia theater, by Josephine Hart Phelps.

Starting out with a front cover design representing a healthy looking American boy in the act of throwing a ball over the home plate, the June American Boy is replete with matter of interest to wide awake boys, for in addition to the continuation of Kirk Munroe's celebrated story "The Blue Dragon," and W. J. Roe's "Camps and Campaigns of Washington," there are scores of articles long and short appealing directly to American youth. The stories are: "The Organization of the Barryville Fire Brigade," "Riding the Bucking Bronchos of the Sea," "The Rescue" and "The Ranch on the Pecos."

The June number of the Architectural Record Magazine (New York) is one of the richest in the department of illustrations that we have seen. It contains no less than one hundred and four plates. Nearly fifty are given in connection with the description of the Hotel St. Regis. For the third time in the history of the Astor family one of its members has had built a hotel that in its way is better than any other hotel in the country. Before the war, the Astor House, on lower Broadway, was the boast of New York City; much more recently the Waldorf-Astoria became a great metropolitan hotel, and now, the St. Regis on Fifth avenue, which is being completed for Colonel John Jacob Astor, fulfills once again the family tradition of possessing the most distinctively metropolitan hotel of its day. The idea of making another new standard of excellence runs through all the details and dispositions of the building. Just wherein this superiority of quality consists is made clear in the extended circle in the June number of the Architectural Record. As the St. Regis is conisdered the finest modern hotel, a wide circle of people will be interested in reading and seeing what it is like.

An extremely readable and important paper is that by Ray Morris in the June Atlantic, upon "Trolley Competition with the Railroads." Mr. Morris, who is editor of the Railroad Gazette, has made a most exhaustive study of the effects of the recent marvellous growth of interurban trolley service upon the business of the steam roads. His conclusions will afford food for serious thought to persons interested either in the trolley or the steam railroad, while they will prove extremely interesting and suggestive to the general reader.

The grim possibility that Port Arthur may be bombarded from a balloon is opened by the disclosure that the prohibition against this kind of warfare which the nations agreed upon at The Hague tribunal will expire in July. In the current issue of Leslie's Weekly the front page is a striking drawing, showing the bombardment of Port Arthur from a balloon. Other illustrations of particular note include photographs of the intercollegiate championship meet in Philadelphia; the Baltimore horse show; the great chess contest at Cambridge Springs; Secretary Hay conferring with the Japanese minister; fascinating pictures of the St. Louis exposition; beleaguered Port Arthur, Russia's imperilled stronghold, embracing a large number of photographs from the scene of the war in the East, sent by the special artists of Leslie's Weekly at the front; the $2,000,000 fire at Yazoo City, and many others of equal interest. The letterpress embraces an article that will attract wide interest. It is from the pen of an American admiral, and gives his view of the war in the East. Albert Halstead tells how President Roosevelt does his work. Ausburn Towner's exciting story, "Vanished Millions," has its closing chapters. "Jasper's Hints to Money-Makers" are alone worth the price of the paper. It is a great number.

ALARM CLOCK

Carried By Girl Who Leaped Into River.

Waukegan, Ill., June 11.—Because her lover, Allen Jackson, planned to marry another, Nora Calloway tried to commit suicide by jumping into the lake, and had with her an alarm clock so she could time herself and jump in just on the minute she thought her lover was to be made another's husband. Her plans miscarried, for not only was she saved by two men, but afterward she learned her lover had been married two weeks.

"Dear Sister: I am tired of life and the only way I can find rest is in the lake. When you have received this I will be dead. Good-by.

Miss Calloway walked out on the south pier and just at 8 o'clock she leaped in. Capt. Wagner and Lighthouse Tender Grainer heard the noise and in about seven minutes reached her. Her skirts had kept her above water.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quanity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Waggoner, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I can most heartily recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

WHAT CAUSES HARD TIMES?

Where Lies the Remedy?—D. A. Petre Says Wiser Economic System Is Needed.

Unlike nations which, in time of peace, make preparations for war, the people of America seem to find no time to study the laws of cause and effect in their haste to get rich. The old proverb, "that contentment with little is great gain," has been expunged from the vocabulary, and a new phrase has supplanted it, "happiness is only the result of accumulated wealth in any way achieved." With this sentiment as a motto, it is not difficult to see in actual experience the fallacy and hollowness of the proposition. But to come back to the point; many adhere to the time-honored idea that a presidential year brings about an era of activity in money circles—and so it does, and ever will continue, so long as sentiment over-rides economic principles. But when we analyze this sentimental argument what does it mean? Did the incoming of a new administration ever destroy the people's interests, or the government? If such were true, or even possible, this republic must be an dismal failure, because the people were no longer able to govern themselves.

No law has been ever framed that would ever prevent suicide by the individual, because he alone has power to act; but as a nation we can prevent national suicide, by education of the people in the lines of political economy. During the campaign of 1896 people lost control of better judgment because of tie ghost—16 to 1—and this was only an adjunct to the Democratic platform; those who thought along broader lines viewed this plank as only a butterfly in comparison with the social aspects of the general platform, and which, latter were the Alpha and Omego of the real equation. Then there were those enthusiasts who told us that, if the Republican party won, all the workshops in the country would be in full blasts in twenty-four hours. As a matter of fact we had more failures in 1897 than before, and it was not until the out-break of the Spanish-American war in 1898—which at the time was blamed on the Democratic party for its bringing about—that business began to revive. Did either party consider for one moment that by engaging in war they would bring about better conditions? The mere fact that war was declared brought into service all the resources of the government. It had to re-fit the navy, increase the fighting force on sea and land; ordnance, ammunition and commissariat had to be supplied, which set at work every conceivable factory, and the people, through one tax and another, footed the bill, money was put in circulation and every craft employed. This was only an incident to more active times. During the long panic of 1893, almost every industry had ceased to keep up repairs and was in a state of bankruptcy, so that when money began to freely circulate and people were generally employed, these betterments went ahead. But we do not want this kind of political war-economy to prevail but a natural order of prosperity which will not rob one man at the expense of his neighbor.

If a class in political economy was established in every high school in the land, which would impress among other things on the minds of the pupils, the law of supply and demand, cause and effect, in the material world, as the pulpits seek to impress practical Christianity on the spiritual mind, there is little reason to doubt that the people would be vastly benefited.

In viewing present conditions of trade, we have only to consult the past for an answer. Almost any person of common observation could have predicted over a year ago, the consequence of wild speculation, over-capitalization, and wild-cat promotions, which have flooded the market without any foundation of security, and yet so cagerly absorbed by a gullible public, would of necessity cause a relapse. Added to this, the fact that the manufacturers had practically caught up with the demands, that the market could not absorb any more, that the iron industry had outreached better judgment and perforce had to close down many of the mines, and blow out furnaces, brings the fact plainly before the people that the stern, economic law cuts, like the almost invisible edge of a razor, those who thwart it. To bring things home, what is the value of many of the paper stocks which possibly represent an outlay of Duluth investors not far from $3,000,000? Have these foolish ventures caused no embarrassment?

At the present time we are confronted with economic conditions, which in the history of nations have never before existed with the rapid advance in mechanical art.

But we find that the man with the money controls the machinery which the artisan has produced and made to be his own opponent, where the owner has been able to take $7.65 for every $1.36 he has expended for labor; these figures are the averages for the year 1900. In other words, each worker in factories has earned $422 per annum for the owner and has received in return as wages $422. (Census report, 1900.)

This being true, is it any wonder that the world is producing a new class of thinkers, known as Socialists, who, outside of being a political organization—of no small significance—have produced some of the brightest thinkers, who from an economical standpoint advocate a formula for a more just and equal distribution of the wealth produced? It has taken the world centuries to bring us to what is now called civilization, and we are still reaching out for the millenium of better industrial conditions, which can only come about by advanced thought and persistent effort on the part of new disciples. The great aim of man is justice towards his neighbor, and the purpose of this government was equal justice to all and special privileges to none. It is hardly true today that we are living under these conditions, but rather under these which Abraham Lincoln foreboded when he said, "As a result of the war, corporations have become enthroned, and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working on the prejudices of the people, until all wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the republic destroyed. * * * God grant that my suspicions prove groundless." Though the republic is not yet destroyed, the rest of Lincoln's predictions are pretty nearly fulfilled, and the tremendous concentration of money in the hands of a few people does threaten the stability of the government, and is one of the chief factors in producing panics more frequent than thirty or fifty years ago, by creating fictitious values. Money, unlike commodities, never suffers during hard times, but, like the snowball rolling down the hillside, of its very self gathers new accretions by reason of falling prices, and the property of others changes hands.

For some years we have been riding, you might say, on a high horse very carefully groomed but improperly fed, and through sheer weakness he has fallen down with us, and no one political party can at once reseat us; the wounds that we received through the fall will only heal through a natural and perhaps tedious process, under a wiser economic system.

"One man soweth and another reaps the harvest," and the question may be asked, have we been planting the right kind of economic seed that will produce the best harvest for our own and coming generations? The question and the answer is for you. D. A. PETRE.

GAME ON STEAMBOAT

Raided and Captain Sighs For Old Days.

Yazoo City, Miss., June 11.—Capt. Smith, of the steamer Rees Pritchard, is thoroughly convinced that there is a big difference between steamboat days of the present and past. Since the civil war Capt. Smith has been accustomed to indulge in his favorite pastime of playing poker when at leisure aboard his boat.

With Capt. John Young, Capt. George Bookout, John Bruce and Reuben Jackson, Capt. Smith was engaged in a "penny ante game," when Officer Sorels arrested the entire party, resulting in fines of $50 each imposed by Mayor Holmes.

"I've seen men stake plantations and hundreds of head of cattle on the result of a single hand at draw, whisky and stud poker in the old days and nothing was ever done, but you have seen fit to distinguish yourself by fining us for an innocent pastime."

This was Capt. Smith's parting shot to the mayor as he left the city court room.

A "cotton-topped Woodpecker" by the name of Currie did a few stunts with Van Praagh's pennant pursuers at the ball grounds yesterday, and when it was all over several coats of whitewash had been smeared over the bunch.

It was heart-breaking to sit there and watch the future champions tearing their arms out in an endeavor to hit the easy-looking curves of the "giant Swede." Curry's benders looked like balloons, but the White Sox didn't seem to have their batting clothes with them and everything they hit went into the hands of the fielders.

The Crookston bunch of Sad Affairs loomed up like champions yesterday. They landed on "Coke" in the first for three clean hits scoring two runs and winning the game. Then they settled down to business in the field and gave the youth with the taffy colored locks, who was serving up the sizzling slants, almost perfect support, and helped him shut out the bunch.

It all happened in the first. Breyette, the little short stop, lammed out a double and crossed the coveted gutta percha a moment later on a single by Schils. Then Carlisle found it incumbent on him to repeat the trick, and after Coke had hit Novacek the bases were full. With nobody out, Coke proceeded to strike out two men and it looked as if one would be the limit, but while Coke was winding himself up for one of his famous drops Schils took a chance and darted for home. The Duluth pitcher did not see him until he was half way to the plate and then to save a balk he had to continue his throw. Schils was safe by a foot. Barton went out on a fielder's choice which caught Carlisle at second.

For the next eight innings it was a battle between the giant Swede and Kouka-lik the man with the mysterious shoots. Only four little singles did "Coke" allow the visitors in the next eight innings, and the scoring was over, but the White Sox could not land on Currie at the proper time to pull out a victory.

The Duluth bunch nearly tied the score in their half of the first, when Corrigan got a pass and Quillan hit. Then the peroxide blonde at the receiving end of the Woodpecker battery allowed them both another base on a passed ball. But Randall, Zink and Hughes all fell down on the hit proposition and the stuff was off.

Ball played a thinking part on the bench yesterday, as the result of a spiking received in the game the day before. Wilkes took his place at short and Owens captoined the team from second base.

Quillan played a pretty game on third. He was the only one who had any success with Curri's shoots, getting two hits out of four times up, and taking five hard heancess in the field.

It was ladies' day at the park and the members of the fair sex were out in force to root for the White Sox, when they got a chance.

BEAUTIFUL GAME.

Cameron's Phenom Does Not Allow Fargo a Hit.

Elken, Cameron's phenom, who was unearthed in a little country village in the southern part of the state, was given another trial yesterday, and he had Perry Werden's band of braves from the plains of North Dakota smiting at the wide, wide world. Not even one little scratch hit could the Indians get from the big fellow's delivery, and not one of Werden's bunch reached second. Elken was shooting his corkscrew curves over from all points of the compass, and he had Werden's men swinging like gates, while the 800 fans chortled with glee.

And the longshoremen were in the game all the time, too. Only one error is marked up against them, and Keas did it on a hard chance.

Jimmy Foulkes was in the box for the visitors and he also had some scalps at his belt when the game was over. But he let up a minute in the sixth, and singles by Keas and O'Dea, with a long drive to the outfield by Cameron, did the trick.

NEAR THE BOTTOM.

Grand Forks Gives Winnipeg a Double Push.

Winnipeg, Man., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Tigers took two games from the Maroons here yesterday afternoon, winning each by the score of 5 to 2. Grand Forks played the eighteen innings without an error, while the Champs had nine. Dahlquist started in to pitch the first game for Winnipeg, but was wild and had to be taken out of the box in the fourth. Bemis replaced him and did good work. He continued in the box for the second game and pitched good ball for seven innings, when he let up and the Tigers got four runs.

The grounds were muddy and the majority of the errors made by the home team were due to this.

The score—First game:

	R.	H.	E.
Grand Forks	0 0 0 4 0 0 0 1 0—5	8	0
Winnipeg	0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—2	10	5

Winnipeg	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—2	10	4

Off the Bat.

Whitewashed by the Woodpeckers!

It was only an exhibition game.

Gehring is pitching this afternoon.

It was ladies' day yesterday, and there was a goodly sprinkling of the gentler sex in the grand stand.

"Rusty" Owens will pitch tomorrow in the first Sunday league game.

That white-haired boy was too much for Van Praagh's sluggers yestrday.

Duluth's new second baseman may report in time for Sunday's game, if the deal is closed. Van Praagh is waiting for a telegram announcing his decision.

That back woodsman of Cameron's made good yesterday, and the Bugville bunch will doubtless rely on him to take one of the games from Duluth.

Poor old Winnipeg! Two home games to the Tigers yesterday and crowding Crookston for last place.

Fargo, Superior and Grand Forks are making a pretty race of it for second place.

Superior next week and then look out for some excitement. What umpire will take his life in his hands for that series?

WALTER CLARKSON, THE HARVARD PITCHER, WHO IS TO BE A PROFESSIONAL

One of the most important items of baseball news during the week was the signing of Walter Clarkson, of Harvard, to pitch for the New York team of the National league. His salary for the season is said to be $8000.

Not Much Action In Commercial League—The Standing.

Big Duluth to Play at Cloquet Sunday—July 4 Games.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
F. A. Patrick	2	0	1.000
Northern Pacific	2	1	.666
Kelley-How-Thomson	1	1	.500
First National Bank	0	3	.000

The Kelley-How-Thomson and Patrick teams were scheduled to come together this afternoon, but several members of the former team were unable to be preesnt, and the game had to be postponed. It will be played some afternoon next week.

The hardware men have been strengthened and they promise to give the leaders a hard battle. Should they winout the three teams will be tied for the leadership in the race.

The Big Duluth team will leave for Cloquet this afternoon, to meet the Cloquet nine tomorrow. Cloquet claimed to have won the amateur championship of Northern Minnesota last year, and is making a strong bid for it this season, in spite of the game lost to the Duluth Fashions. The Big Duluth team claimed a victory in a ten-inning game over the Cloquet men last season, but the winning run was disputed, and the game was declared a draw. Tomorrow's contest promises to be for blood.

All of the local amateur teams are planning for games on July 4, and the majority of them will go out of town for the holiday, and the Sunday preceding. The Universal Millers will go to Aitkin for two games on July 3 and 4, and the Big Duluth team will probably go to Hibbing. One of the other nines will be booked for Cloquet, and Two Harbors will also see a Duluth team on the holiday. The holiday, coming as it does on Monday, enables the men to get away Saturday afternoon, playing two games when gone. This makes it practically certain that the team will be able to clear its expenses, and some of the teams will take long jumps.

The high school seniors defeated the juniors yesterday afternoon on the grounds at Forty-seventh avenue east by the score of 6 to 3. It was a pitcher's battle between Hill and Scoble, but the latter managed to keep the hits scattered better than his opponent, and won out. The line-up was as follows:

Juniors.		Seniors.
Hill	pitcher	Scoble
McLain	catcher	Olson
Furni	1st base	Zimmerman
Deetz	2nd base	Strate
Penton	3rd base	St. Clair

OARSMEN HOME

Madison Result Little More Than Had Been Looked For.

'Varsity Crew Is Among the Fastest In the Country.

The members of the Duluth Boat club eight returned this morning from Madison with the shell.

While the crew finished last in the race, the men are not discouraged over their defeat. They scarcely expected to hold the Wisconsin 'Varsity, although they hoped to win out from the second 'varsity. The crew which defeated them is one of the fastest in the country and is now preparing to row at Poughkeepsie with Corneli, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Georgetown. While these eights have not the reputatian of the Yale and Harvard crews, they are generally considered faster, and the Wisconsin men are always looked upon as dangerous opponents in any race. This year the crew promises to be even stronger than usual, and the showing made by the Duluth boys, handicapped as they were by a short training season, was a very creditable one.

The principal cause of the defeat was the lack of form. O'Dea's crews, the 'varsity, in particular, were able to change their stroke to anything the coach desired at a given order, and this was a great advantage to them in keeping the men working to their limit. The Duluth oarsmen were not familiar enough with the conditions of the race to know exactly how hard to exert themselves. They feared to work too hard early in the race lest they should not finish strong, and the result was that they did not make quite as good time as they might have done.

The Madison crews have had the advantage of an entire winter's training in the gymnasium, together with an extra three or four weeks' work in addition to what the Duluth men were able to secure.

The crew will continue in training during the summer months and will take regular practice spins with the second eight. It is possible that some of the oarsmen from Lake Minnetonka will come to Duluth before the summer is over to try their speed with the local men. It is not likely that any more trips will be taken this year, as the cost of the new shell and the expenses of the crew at Madison footed up a goodly sum.

BUYS FAST COAST HORSE

Lou Dillon's Owner Secures George G. For New Yorker.

Chicago, June 11.—C. K. G. Billings, who grew up in Chicago and has extensive local interests, but now refers to New York as "home," was in this city last week and returned East Monday. His peerless trotter, Lou Dillon, is now quartered at Cleveland, where she will remain until the trotting meeting at Detroit.

Lou Dillon's first public appearance this year will be at the Grosse Point track. It is not probable that she will be brought to Chicago, Inasmuch as Mr. Billings will spend most of his time in the East, he says:

"I want her to be where I can see and occasionally ride behind her, and will probably have her at or convenient to New York during the summer. She is doing well, and, although her performances have been of a wonderful character, I expect her to do better and am confident she will. As there is always a certain amount of danger in shipment she will be shipped comparatively little this season."

Asked if he knew anything about George G., the California trotter, of which so much has been heard recently, Mr. Billings replied:

"I bought him a week ago, not for myself, but for my friend, Anthony N. Brady, of New York, who is anxious to get a good horse and came near buying Major Delmar before that animal became the property of E. E. Smathers. George G. is a bay horse, 7 years old, standing 15.2½. As a youngster he was purchased by a barber for $50. Until last year he was never hitched to anything lighter than a cart.

"When trained the horse at once became conspicuous, obtained a record of 2:13½, and the barber was induced to sell a half interest at a liberal figure. Last fall he was on the market, and they offered to show 2:07 with him, but there was a complication over the partnership, and nobody who wished to buy would negotiate for him. When I learned that the complication had been settled I sent word to Budd Doble, who was in California, to go to Pleasonton, take a ride behind the horse, and wire me the result and his opinion. Budd was at Pleasonton last Saturday. He advised me that the horse had gone a quarter in :29, a half in 1:01—the fastest half ever made over the track—an easy mile, and was a grand horse. I had confidence in Budd's judgment and promptly closed the deal.

"The horse was shipped yesterday, and will be in New York within a week. He is said to have shown a quarter in :28¾, and there is only one other trotter that has ever done as much. Lou Dillon has gone quarters in :28, but she is only one trotter that has ever shown such speed. They say George G. may beat Lou Dillon's record. I don't believe he will, but for Mr. Brady's sake I hope he will do so. all that is promised for him, and even more. If he beats Lou Dillon's record she will have to make a new one."

WALCOTT KNOCKED OUT.

Baltimore, June 11.—Young Peter Jackson knocked out Joe Walcott in the fourth round of their ten-round bout last night, before the Eureka Athletic club. A right punch to the stomach put the Barbadoes wonder down and out.

WALTER J. TRAVIS,

The American Golfing Champion Who Has Won Additional Honors In England.

By his victory in the British amateur golf championship at Sandwich last week Walter J Travis, the champion of America, accomplished what is conceded to be by the conservative critics on the other side of the water the most brilliant achievement ever recorded in the history of amateur golf. For a player of less than ten years' experience to meet and defeat in turn such players as Holden, Robb, Reade, Hilton, Hutchinson, and Blackwell—men who may be said to have inherited their golfing instincts—was quite an upset to the theory that correct form is the great essential to golfing success. The quiet little man from the Garden City club went into the camp of the Philistines and came away with the plunder. His success, in addition to being a source of gratification to players on this side of the water, is only another evidence of the brain work that the American brings into play both in his business and in his sports. It was the brain work of the American jockeys that developed their successful style of riding, and it was the result of much experimenting that enabled Frank Ives to jaw the balls in his famous compromise billiard match with Champion Roberts. To the scientific methods of training the American pugilist and the American athlete owe much of their success. It was American brain that invented the rubber cored ball and it was the Travis brain that learned how to play it. Taking up the game at a period in life when most men are considered too old to acquire championship style, Travis worked out the problem of his own triumphs. Persistent practice, with a constant thought of cause and effect, enabled him to overcome the handicap of his late start, and this brain work, coupled with his magnificent nerve, won for him the highest honors it is possible for any golfer to secure.

His triumph was due to the superb putting, which is described as the most wonderful ever seen in England, one onlooker remarking, "Travis could write with his iron if you put a nib on it."

SPORT BREEDS ILL WILL.

Americans Dread International Events In London.

London, June 11.—The controversy aroused here over the Palma affair has brought to a climax a long series of unpleasant incidents associated with Anglo-American sporting contests. Scarcely any of these have occurred in England without leaving bitterness on one side or the other.

Americans resident in the United Kingdom have come to dread the visit of any American team. Almost invariably, whether it be shooting, racing, yachting, polo, boat racing, tennis, or any other sport, there has been left something to explain or something to vindicate.

Since Howard Gould came over with his yacht Niagara, which was visited by officials of the Yacht Racing association in 1896 in the absence of Mr Gould, owing to a rumor that it was floated with water ballast, to the present Palma episode, mutual distrust appears to have existed between the leading exponents of sport in both countries.

Hence the forthcoming trip of the Harvard-Yae athletic causes some misgivings in the minds of Americans who live in England. They recall the keen feeling exhibited by the English spectators against the college yells heard when Harvard and Yale last met Oxford and Cambridge in London.

Cornell's troubles at Henley in 1896 are still fresh in the minds of all Englishmen connected with rowing, while both Yale and Pennsylvania continue to come in for severe criticism for employing professional coaches, a practice which has resulted in the Henley stewards practically debarring a revisit of these American crews.

Even to the matter of clothes and the megaphoned voice of the coxswain and coach the Americans are still bitterly criticised in rowing circles, while the English tennis experts have never quite forgiven Ward and Davis for appearing in English championships in unconventional shoes.

In polo circles Lord Shrewsbury's attaok on Lawrence Waterbury, the American player, for the wearing of spurs, and King Edward's intervention to prevent serious trouble, remain points of controversy.

Only a year or so ago there was scarcely a big race run here that some American had not a horse entered. Now practically all the Americans have given up their English stables and the American jockey also has about disappeared from the British turf.

What is termed here by many Americans the "ruinous rivalry of sport" is held now to threaten more than ever the normal friendly relations between the United States and Great Britain. In the light of the experience of those best fitted to know, it is said that every Anglo-American contest, whatever the result, has left bitterness behind it, with consequent recriminations and misunderstandings, so forcibly exemplified by the contradictory statements over the Palma trophy incident.

BOXED TO A DRAW.

Savannah, Ga., June 11.—Tommy Feltz, of Brooklyn, and Eddy Lenny, of Chester, Pa., boxed twenty fast and scientific rounds to a draw last night before 1000 people, at the arena of the Savannah Athletic club.

AMERICAN JOCKEYS

Show Efficiency Over Foreign Riders Because of Short Stirrup.

Riders Using the Crouching Seat Can Control Horse Better.

Frank J. O'Neill says since the American jockeys have adopted the shorter stirrup and crouching seat since Sloan's days, there has been a marked increase of efficiency over foreign riders.

"I never saw Ted Sloan ride, and, therefore, cannot state authoritatively whether the boys are riding with a shorter stirrup today than he did," says O'Neill. "But I know this, that in the last two or three years the riders have raised up their stirrup iron until many ride with their knees much higher than their thigh bones, and crouch well forward on their horses.

"Experience has taught me that there is only one successful seat for a jockey, and that is the one with the short stirrup, which permits the rider to lean well forward on his horse's neck and take a short hold on the reins. No one but a dyed-in-the-wool Englishman, whose thoughts run to what grandpa did, rides today with a long stirrup.

"The Yankee seat has many advantages. By placing the saddle well forward on the withers, the weights rest mainly on the shoulders of the horse. This permits freedom of action for the quarters, which is the propelling power of all race horses. By taking the weight off the back the hindquarters are not burdened.

"When you are well up on a horse's withers you can crouch forward to such an extent that the neck and head of the horse serves to form a sort of wind shield, and you do not hamper his speed by catching the air as you speed along. Then, too, you can secure better control of your horse. With the rein wrapped around your hands and partly resting on the horse's neck, you have absolute control of his head. If your mount should suddenly make a bolt, there is no necessity for losing time in reaching down to grab a short hold on the reins to pull him straight. Englishmen give a great advantage to a horse when they make that move for a short hold. The American rider has his hands in the position ready for such an emergency, and he has simply to pull on the rein in the direction he wishes and his horse has to follow that touch.

"In case of a tired horse, the short rein is a grand support to his weary head. No one but a jockey knows how heavy a horse's head becomes when he is tired. As soon as he grows leg weary and his lungs and heart are nearly bursting with the strain of the contest, the head drops and his action becomes labored. If you can keep your horse's head up he is liable to recover his second wind and regain sufficient strength to fight it out to the end.

"There are situations in a race which have to be grasped quickly, and no jockey could do this without the aid of the short rein. In twisting and turning at the post he has his horse in absolute command. During the early struggle in the mad rush for positions it would be hard work to keep the horses from jumping on one another without the aid of a short hold of his head. At the finish of a race it also proves of inestimable value, because by a mere touch of one hand you can control his head and keep him straight, while with the other you can use the whip. Most horses, when they are tired and the whip is being used freely, will try to swerve, but with a short rein to control him you have a great advantage over the rider who uses a long rein and sits back in the saddle.

"I do not believe that Water Boy, the champion of last year, would ever have shown to such great advantage if he had been ridden by old jockeys who sat upright in their saddles and rode with a long rein. Water Boy stands over a lot of ground and has considerable daylight under him. His back is long and with thump, thump, thump of the old rider bounding up and down in his saddle, he would not have been able to swing those powerful hindlegs of his so quickly and easily under him and make the mighty leaps of twenty-seven feet that carried him past his rivals so swiftly and so frequently. He had perfect freedom of action under the Yankee seat, and was able to show his true powers.

"I rode him once last year and won the Advance stakes at the Sheepshead Bay track. I have never ridden a faster, a truer race horse in my life. For a big horse he is very alert on his feet and horse he is very alert on his feet and quick in getting away from the barrier. He caught his strike quickly, and when in full swing ran with the ease of well oiled machinery. He pulled steadily on the bit all the mile and a half journey, but at no stage of the road was he hard-headed or "rank." I could have handled him with reins of thread. It was no exertion for him to keep within striking distance of Hermia, even while that horse was racing a terrific clip. I could have gone up to him at any stage of the journey. When I finally gave him his head he ran up to Hermis without effort, and in a furlong carried him off his feet. That one furlong was the only period of the race in which he was extended. Before and after that he merely galloped. I will always believe that Water Boy on that day was the greatest racehorse in America.

"Ever since the short rein became the style it has accomplished a great deal toward the elimination of the use of the whip. So much better and more complete control is now secured at the starting post and the finish that a jockey can get his horse in motion and can rouse him to his greatest effort at the end without the aid of the whip. It has produced what is commonly called "hand riders," and boys now seek to win a race without inflicting punishment, whereas formerly the whip and spur were their main reliance in a close issue.

"Personally, I do not believe in too severe punishment. Three or four cuts with the whip I have found will rouse a horse sufficiently for a winning spurt, if it is in him. If you whip him more severely, it tends to make the horse cringe rather than respond. Of course, some horses are sluggards and need plenty of rousing, but you can do this to a great extent with voice, hands and heels, and then use the whip sparingly at the end.

"The majority of thoroughbreds are willing to race, and it is not necessary to force them to do their best. They are not machines, and one day they feel much better than another and race accordingly. Just how far they can carry their extreme limit of speed is a question over which horsemen have argued at length. Some say that a thoroughbred can race at his top notch three furlongs. Others maintain only a quarter of a mile. I believe that it is even shorter, between three-sixteenths and a quarter.

"A race horse that has 'foot,' as horsemen say, or has a particularly brilliant burst of speed, if he can be placed easily, will beat his opponents if judiciously ridden. I have found that where I have been astride of such a horse that if I get off well and hold him under restraint in a good position until three-sixteenths of a mile from home that I have the race practically in hand when that point is within striking distance of the leaders, and his horse is well straightened out, the horse can carry its extreme limit that distance and will wear down all opposition.

"All races, of course, cannot be ridden like this, for some horses possess only a certain degree of speed, and it is necessary to keep them going from start to finish in order to tire out the sprinters.

"Since the jockeys have ridden with short stirrups and close holds on their horses there have been less accidents than in previous years. This is due, I believe, to the fact that the jockey can cling closer, with less danger of losing his balance in the saddle than under the old style.

"Much of the danger of race riding is due to inexperienced boys, who, scarcely saddlewise, are asked to ride in a race among a big field of horses. These youngsters, unaccustomed to the flying stones and dirt, usually shut their eyes, and with head down ride madly along, indifferent to danger and the other jockey's lives. Often during the running of a race the leaders will kick up such a great amount of dust and stones that the novice would think that he was riding in a hailstorm. It is when the boys shut their eyes that the horses jump on one another's heels and an accident is the result.

"No one can prepare for a fall, because he never knows when it is going to happen. It occurs so quickly that his horse is down and he is over his head and on the ground before he realizes it. You cannot guard against the fall in any way. If you are not injured you are in great luck. There is little fear of being trampled on, however, by the horses, if they can see you and there is time enough for them to steer out of your way or jump over you. No horse will jump on a prostrate form on the ground. If anything, he will shy away from it.

"I do not, what other riders think in regard to the present seat among the American riders, but I know this—that I am wedded to it and will use it all during my career as a jockey."

NO BOOKMAKING ON DERBY DAY

Mayor Harrison Springs Surprise on Betting Fraternity.

Chicago, June 11.—Mayor Harrison announced last night that no bookmaking would be allowed at Washington park on derby day, and that no betting would be allowed during the meeting. When informed of the mayor's announcement, Secretary Howard of the Washington Park club, said:

"The derby will be run as announced, and the usual season of racing will be held. Further than this we have nothing to say."

The bookmakers were greatly dismayed by the mayor's declaration, and declared that it was beyond his power to prevent betting, although they did not question that the police would be able to do away with open bookmaking. If the worst came, one of the leading bookmakers in the city declared, recourse could be had to the English system of betting, which is much more quietly than the American method. This, he declared, would narrow down the betting greatly, but would be preferable to no betting at all.

VALUABLE COLTS.

Two Youngsters By Gold Heels In Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., June 11—Even if Gold Heels fails to win the $50,000 World's Fair handicap the coming month at St. Louis, two colts now running at the side of their dams at the Millbrook farm of Hinde & Baker, in Franklin county, are still nearly worth their weight in gold. They represent the first foals ever dropped that are sired by this wonderful race horse, easily the star performer of 1902, when he won both the Suburban and Brighton handicaps, as well as the longer race, the Brighton cup. The great horse's defeat in the coming St. Louis big event will not dim his past glorious record, as, being a patched-up cripple the racing public hardily expects him to show the sensational form he exhibited when at his best in general soundness. Cripple as he is, however, in such respect is he held that Dick Welles' owner, Rome Respess, recently said if he started the son of King Eric in that race the one horse he feared was Gold Heels. One of the two valuable youngsters by him is a chestnut in color, and is out of Ursula, by Wanderer, while the other is colored like its noted sire, a bay, and is out of Miss Riley, by Falsetto, dam Crucible, by King Alfonso. These two youngsters will do their first racing as 2-year-olds in 1906, so their sire will be 8 years old when his first get perform. This makes him two years younger than was the mighty Hanover the season the latter's first sons and daughters appeared on the track.

ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL.

Muscatine, Iowa, June 11.—Robert Morrison, son of County Clerk Morrison, and Charles Stoker, both aged 19, were arrested yesterday by federal officers on charges of sending letters to Peter Musser, a prominent lumberman, threatening to kill him and his daughter unless he deposited a large sum of money in a secret place. The first letter was sent ten days ago, and demanded $1000. No attention was paid to it, and a second and third letter were sent, demanding $4000, the last severe in its threats. Suspicion pointed to the young men arrested, and today they were arrested.

CLOSE AT HAND

Is the American Derby and English Lad Is Favorite.

Some Maidens Being Quietly Prepared For the Event.

The American Derby is now close at hand—just seven calendar days away—and the best 3-year-olds in the land will go to the post for the biggest event of the year in the West, and should the crack colts from the East take part, it can easily be considered the greatest race in the land.

Be what it may, it has nearly always furnished a grand contest, and in the result of which the greatest interest was manifest. The American Derby begins as soon as the nominations are asked for, and from that time on it is always a case of American Derby candidate did this or that.

Of the many candidates that have shown in public, English Lad looks much the best, and will most likely go to the post the favorite. That is in the nature of a handicap, as favorites have landed very few Derbies at Washington Park. Like The Picket last season, some sensational maiden may be sprung, and the allowance that he gained by being a non-winner will largely aid him in defeating the penalized favorite.

Just where this maiden may spring from no one can tell, but it is not telling any tales out of school that one is being quietly prepared at Latonia, and he is doing so well that his trainer thinks he will be a contender. There may be others at different points, and Carroll Ried's Jason may be some pumpkins. The coming week will do much to clear up the situation, as nearly every probable starter will go to the post. As to whether Highball is going to Chicago for the Derby is now a little uncertain. A week ago the trainer was positive that he would send the colt to the post for the Derby. Now it is said that he is hesitating about making the overland trip. Having no line on the abilities of many of the contestants barring a few, the lovers of racing find nothing more interesting than studying up the pedigree of the nominations and recall the deeds of the ancestors of those that will try for the honor one week from next Saturday.

In the American Derby, with its 117 colts and fillies (Drake's Van Esher having recently died and reduced the number from 118), no less than 79 sires are represented. This large number would seem to take in all the great foal-getters of the country, but, strange as it may seem, such good ones as Hastings, Octagon, St. Leonards, Watercress, Lissak and Emperor of Norfolk do not figure in the list. The mighty Hanover is also, as might be expected, an absentee, but he is well represented by his sons, The Commoner, Handsofe, Handball and Hamburg.

Of these 79 sires, 23 have more than one representative; 58 have one each, and one colt is of doubtful parentage. The Commoner heads the list with seven, while Esher's five have been reduced to four by Van Esher's death. St. George has four, and Brutus, Artillery, Florist, Rainbow, Ben Strome, Kingston, three each. Florist being credited also with a doubtful one, while Andsome, Sir Dixon, Montana, Handball, Golden Dawn, Horoscope, Requital, Riley, Pontiac, Topgallant, Flying Dutchman, Himyar, Tammany, Order and Pirate of Penzance have two each. Among those with only one representative the most noted are the ill-fated Mirthful, favorite for the American Derby of 1898, which burned in John Madden's barn; Clifford, third in the World's Fair Derby, and second in the Brooklyn Handicap, is a horse which Cliff Porter, who bred him, claimed was the best he ever buckled a girth over and gave him his name in consequence; Hamburg, the second son of the mighty Hanover, winner of the Realization in 1898 and fany other races; St. Gatlen, by Rothschild or Rover, who ran a dead heat for English Derby in 1898 with Harvester; G. W. Johnson, winner of the Hyde Park Stakes and the sire of Lieut. Gibson; Dorian, who ran fourth in the American Derby; old Blazes, the old mudder, who has transmitted his peculiarity; Potomac, by St. Blaise, winner of the Futurity in 1899 and the Realization in 1901; Tenny, by Raydon d'Or, is the great opponent of Salvator, third in the Suburban in 1890 and winner of the Brooklyn in 1891; Salvator, the winner of the Realization in 1899, the conqueror of Tenny in 1890, and winner of the Suburban the same year; Prince Charlie, was the fastest miler in England. Another sire that is represented is Boundless, the winner of the American Derby in the World's fair year, and another, King Eric, now dead, sire of the great Dick Welles.

Looking at the breeding of some of the prominent candidates, English Lad has nothing to complain of in point of ancestry. His sire, Requital, although not very successful at the stud, was by iported Eothen, and won, among other stakes, the Realization of 1898. English Lady, by Miser, the dam of English Lad, was bred by the Scogginses, and was well known to Chicago race-goers when she ran here in 1899 in the startling colors of the late Mr. Buck, editor of the Spirit of the Times. She was third in the Drexel in that year, yon by Santiago, with Blarney Stone, jr., second, and she had previously won the Kentucky Oaks at Louisville, beating Marie K.

Highball's sire, Ben Strome, is an imported horse by Ben d'Or, a Derby winner, whose sire, Doncaster, also won the blue ribbon, and whose grandsire, Stockwell, won the St. Leger, and may be termed the founder of the afmily which produced such horses as Ormonde, Orme and others. Ben Strome himself is closely related to the late Ormonde. Conjurer's sire, Sir Dixon, was by that sterling horse Billet, who also got that grand mare, Miss Woodford, which won twelve races out of fourteen starts as a 2-year-old, being only beaten, when off, by The Empress and by eGorge Kinney, her stable companion, on suffrance. As a 4-year-old she never suffered defeat, and performed the extraordinary feat of winning the stakes at Jerome Park, traveling to St. Louis and yinning there, returning to New York and winning another stake, all inside of eight days. Her three match races with Mr. Corrigan's Freeland when she was a 5-year-old were memorable events. Sir Dixon himself was a good race horse, and his progeny seemed to improve with age. Mr. Ellison's Capt. Arnold being one of his sons. Robin Hood, by Kingston, dam Belle of Maywood, is a half-brother to the great swayback, Tenny.

Hazelwood, by Puryear D, dam Hazel Mack, has a sire that has yet to make his mark. A story is told about Puryear D and the once celebrated "White Hat" McCarthy, owner of C. H. Todd, who won the American Derby in 1887. In California this spring a 2-year-old by Puryear D showed some promise, and persons remembering that Hazelwood had been a good 2-year-old, began inquiring about his sire. McSarthy remembered that some old farmer, near Oakland, had the horse and was working him in the field. McCarthy slipped over quietly, visited the old farmer ostensibly on some other business, and asked as he was leaving what he would take for the old horse he saw in the field.

Ostrich, the winner of the New Orleans Derby, and evidently a good horse over a distance of ground, is somewhat of an accident, and was invested with stake quality only after he had been passed up by competent judges of horses. He was bred at Elmendorf, and sold as a yearling to Pat Dunne for $500. After passing through various hands he eventually landed in the stable of G. L. Richards, of Boston, for whom he won the far Suburban classic. He is royally bred on both sides, his sire being Order and his dam Plumage, a daughter of Goldfinch and a son of Ormonde. Plumage never raced, but her dam, Lizzie Dunbar, was a noted race mare, and her half sister, Lizetta, won many races.

The dead Boundless, winner of the World's Fair Derby, has a representative in a colt called William Wright that is not taken so very seriously. Riley, a Derby winner of other days, has a couple entered in the name of Mr. Corrigan, but neither of them shapes up as a Derby possibility. Plaudit, who won the Kentucky Derby in 1898, is the sire of Bill Curtis, Tommy Griffin's hope. Voltaire, the Derby winner, has a double cross of Derby in his pedigree. His dam Strathreel was by Strathmore, the sire of Strathmeath, an American Derby winner. Strathreel's dam was Lady Reel, who was also the dam of the mighty Hamburg. Other noted sires and sons of noted sires who have candidates in the list are Rainbow, Russell, Florist and Tammany.

now and then and accomplish the unexpected.

In Saunders' stable that will be carried to Clevaland in a few days are many horses belonging to other millionalres than Mr. Hillings. J. H. Shults, the New Yorker, has a bunch of young Axworthys in his care and several Ohioans have entrusted their pacers or trotters to the man that developed and drove Lou Dillon.

FUTURE BOOKS

Are Said to Be Getting Steady Plays.

Chicago, June 11.—The future books of Jim O'Leary on the Brooklyn and World's Fair handicaps and the American derby are getting steady plays, and the public, as a rule, are shooting only at horses that appear to have starting chances. There is less of the haphazard guesswork this season than ever before, indicating that the public is closely watching the performanaes of the entered ones. Nothing much has developed as to the Eastern entries. There are sixteen entered by prominent owners from the East, but as yet there has been but little play on these. The next week or ten days, however, may work a change in this respect. Since the running of the Brooklyn handicap, speculation has livened up some on the Suburban. The good ones are being played, and a few of the longer-priced outsiders. Some of the wagers laid the past week:

Irish Lad—$40,000 to $5000, from various sources.

Africander—$12,000 to $1000, from Chigo.

Savable—$16,000 to $800, from New York.

Highball—$12,000 to $400, from Louisville.

Reservation—$15,000 to $300, from Detroit.

Careless—$14,00 to $350, from New York.

English Lad continues a decided favorite in the Derby at 6 to 1, with O'Leary. The public and the stable acquaintances are going to the colt from Cook's stable. Bearcatcher, too, since his win of last week, has established a following. Some of the bets laid last week are as follows:

Brancas—$20,000 to $500, from Nashville.

Bombadier—$18,750 to $250, from San Francisco.

Flo Bob—$10,000 to $500, from Chicago.

Ed Pierney—$10,000 to $250, from Louisville.

Montresson—$9000 to $300, from New York.

Ort Wells—$25,000 to $1000, from Chicago.

Woodson—$20,000 to $400, from Chicago.

Bearcatcher—$18,000 to $600, from Chicago.

McChesney and McGee continue equal first choices in the World's Fair handicap. McChesney now looks like a sure starter, and will soon be under the watchful eye of Sam Hildreth. Some considerable money, too, has shown up on Africander. Irish Lad, Gold Heels and Colonial Girl. Some of the wagers on the St. Louis event:

Irish Lad—$13,500 to $900.
Africander—$15,000 to $1000.
Gold Heels—$18,000 to $1500.
Judge Himes—$12,500 to $500.
Colonial Girl—$24,000 to $200.
Flower King—$10,000 to $400.

HARNESS GOSSIP.

Memphis, Tenn., June 11.—Although C. K. G. Billings has not outlined the campaign which queenly Lou Dillon will be called on to make, Millard Saunders, who has wintered here with the champion trotter, has been instructed to have the equipment the little mare will pull, and the smithy, the sulky manufacturer, the harness maker and the horse boot man are busily engaged rushing the order for Lou's 1904 debut in the North, which will take place in Cleveland over the famous Glenville track during the present month. The queen of trotters has passed her first winter spent outside of her native state of California in perfect health, and will be shipped from the local track to Cleveland during next week.

Trainer Saunders has paid close attention to the "tack" the Billings speed marvel will pull this year, and according to his compilations Lou will be asked to draw little less than 180 pounds gross in each of her championship trials hitched to sulky. On occasions when Mr. Billings is racing he will have the mare draw a burden of at least 200 pounds, for in addition to being heavier than Mr. Saunders, Mr. Billings never drives to anything but a two-wheeler, which runs from fifteen pounds more than the two-wheeled sulky.

The sulky that Saunders will drive the mare to will weigh exactly twenty-four pounds and one ounce, according to information reaching here from the manufacturer. It will be similar to the rig Lou Dillon pulled in all of her record-breaking performances in 1903, including the first 2:00 mile at Readville and the first mile under 2:00 at Memphis. There will be some kind of an innovation in roller bearings provided which, the manufacturers claim, may aid the trotting queen in clipping a full second off any previous mark.

Lou Dillon's set of shoes will weigh exactly one pound. In this respect it will be interesting news to old-time harness horsemen when it is stated that Lou Dillon's footwear in entirety will weigh but an ounce more than one of the front shoes worn by the trotting queen of the 80s, the immortal Maud S.

She will be provided with light bell quarter boots, such as she wore last season, in addition to hind shin boots with speedy cut attachments. On account of a fancy habit the little mare has of tossing her head, she will be harnessed with a standing martingale, but will be driven without a check rein.

With the combined weight of her driver, sulky, harness, boots and all, the "tack" will not aggregate more than 180 pounds, and Saunders has frequently predicted a mile for Lou Dillon in less than 155, rigged in this manner.

Though not officially announced, it may be stated authoritatively that Lou Dillon will be sent over about the same line of travel that she was asked last year. This means that visits will be paid to Cleveland, Brighton Beach, Readville, possibly Hartford, Lexington, then to the wind up of the harness season at Memphis late in October, where she will be called on to defend the Memphis gold cup challenges which she carried off for Mr. Billings in 1903, by defeating Major Delmar, driven by E. E. Smathers. According to the conditions of the cup, which has an intrinsic value of $5000, the permanent possessor must win it twice. It was during the 1902 contest that Mr. Smathers drove Lord Derby to straight heat victories over Mr. Billings, who handled the reins, behind The Monk. The tables were turned last year, and prospects right now point to Lou Dillon winning it again this season, provided Mr. Smathers does not discover a speed marvel between

MUNROE IS WORKING

Under Glare of Electric Lights For Fight With Jeffries.

Champion Nearly Put Out By a Dish of Strawberries.

San Francisco, Cal., June 11.—Jack Munroe has started an innovation in the pugilistic world. Twelve or fourteen hours of daylight are not enough for him to get in training for his bout with James J. Jeffries, now but a few weeks off.

Under the glare of six strong arc lights Munroe is practicing nightly to fit himself for the most important battle of his career. The miner says it is hard to judge distance under electric lights without practice, and explains his present tactics on the ground that he is getting used to conditions which will prevail the night of the contest.

A report that came down from Harbin Springs yesterday may have had something to do with the access of energy which pervades the Munroe camp. This report stated that James J. Jeffries, holder of the title, had begun to take a little mild exercise at his camp, Harbin Springs, and that he had a warm-up with Kennedy and Jack Jeffries. Owing to the fact that Jeff had not had enough practice to gauge his blows, Jack Jeffries was knocked through a window and sustained a broken rib, while Kennedy was so sore he had to lay off today. Jeff admits having been awkward in judging distance and power and states that he must have had his full steam up when he thought he was only punching at one-fourth his fighting rate.

On learning of this, Munroe immediately took to the electric lights to get in more hours of work.

Although the fight is but a short time off, the keen interest which heretofore has attended all the Jeffries' contests on the coast seems to be wanting. It is not a question of which will win, with the coast people, but how quickly Jeffries will end it.

Munroe, who was known here through a fight or two of a fourth rate character, is not highly esteemed, and that he can have improved sufficiently to defeat the champion few believe.

A well-known sporting authority said at Harry Corbett's yesterday: "This fight was made because there was none other to keep Jeffries engaged, not because Munroe has a chance. The miner is big, brawny and has learned something of late, but he is not in the chmpionship division. If the fight is fought out from the tap of the gong, Munroe may last six or eight rounds. If he does that he should be satisfied. Jeffries is a greater fighter even than he is esteemed, and the man who is going against him has beaten Peter Maher, Tom Sharkey and a Buffalo longshoreman. Sharkey's constitution was ruined by the beating that Jeffries gave him some time ago, and a good lightweight can whip Peter Maher any time.

"Munroe is in the battle for the little end of a big purse, and he will get it. When one thinks of the manner in which Munroe came to fight as a fighter, it looks like a shame to put the men on terms of equality. Jeffries was fighting four-round scraps with anybody in Montana at the time. Munroe, who was working in a Butte mine, was dug up by some wise one who remembered that Munroe was once a fair "dub." He was rung in on Jeffries, and that time was doing 'red light' stunts, caught him unawares, and stayed out four rounds. For the feat he was given the decision when the bout did not call for one. Jeffries was to knock Munroe out or forfeit $200. The contest was not for a verdict.

When the Butte referee decided Munroe a winner, the advertising possibly of Munroe struck Clark Ball, who had been handling the Jeff-Fitzsimmons show, and he tried to put on Munroe along with the champion and ex-champion. Fitz and Jeff refused to stand for it. Munroe was then taken East by other parties and put through a course of boom, and here he is.

"He has acquired something of fighting, but has neither the physical foundation nor the ring experience of Jeffries.

"It is foolish to ask which will win—the fight is as good as over now. The only question is, how soon Jeffries will win."

Regardless of the prevailing opinion of his chance of winning, the miner is working like a Trojan and undoubtedly is an improved man. His three fights have taught him coolness and generalship in the ring, and, being an awkward, uncouth strong man, he has become, in a measure, a fairly clever boxer. He has a great heart and will undoubtedly take a lot of beating. Jack is a great favorite with Pacific coasters, and is always good-humored, contrary to Jeffries' training disposition, which is morose, taciturn and sour.

The champion is taking it easy at Harbin Springs. There has been almost no betting on the result, the prevailing opinion being that no odds could approximate Munroe's chance of winning.

History teems with cases of world-conquering heroes, who, after leading charmed lives among all the horrors of war, fell victims to the most trifling ailments. One day last week "Big Jim" Jeffries, the man who has braved the Fitzsimmons shifts, the Corbett corkscrews, the Ruhlin rib-roasters and the Sharkey wallops, all but succumbed to a dish of strawberries.

The champion partook of the berries at the lunch hour. He had not long returned from a hard road trip and his throttle and palate were feverish. The berries looked inviting and he disposed of a large quantity.

Then the trouble began. Jeffries grew pale and writhed as his opponent sometimes does after receiving a solar-plexus bump.

"It's ptomaines," whispered Dick Adams.

"No," said Joe Kennedy, decisively, "he didn't have any. It's either the strawberries or the green onions."

Jack Jeffries said he believed it was a plain, ordinary case of cramps.

Jim Hays, chief of the first aid department, who is always consulted in such cases, and who is prepared for every emergency, from wet feet to an overturned stage, prescribed a cordial much in vogue with Kentucklans. The Jeffries gastric juices thus reinforced, successfully battled with the colicky qualities in the berries and the color came back into the champion's broad, bronzed face. He stretched himself and said he left all right once more; but he resolved to abstain from afternoon training for fear of "starting up the works again."

The gym apparatus, including the monster sandbag, enjoyed a rest throughout the day. Jeffries decided to vary his program with an extended jaunt over the dusty roads. He started out at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Kid Egan and the writer accompanied him in a buckboard. The course was toward Middletown, and Jeffries kept up a dog trot for the first couple of miles, taking the up grades as comfortably as though traveling down hill. Then he steadied down to a swinging walk, and did not relax his stride until Middletown was reached.

After gargling his throat with spring water, Jeffries headed for camp again, arriving there at noon, after having had about three hours continuous walking and running, during which about nine miles were covered. A hot bath and a rub followed, and the champion told those around him that he felt strong enough to tackle an army single-handed. Then the strawberries crossed his path.

The number of times in a year that a man uses The Herald's Want Columns is an idex to his interests and activities.

THE FACTS DENY

The Belief That Two-Year-Old Work Hurts Horses.

Byronerdale Winner of Nine Races as Four-Year-Old.

Lexington, Ky., June 11.—Excessive 2-year-old racing failed to show its adverse effects on at least 350 performers to reach the age of 4-year-olds this season, as according to statistics compiled by an authority here no less than this number of horses of this age have won races on the American turf in 1904, up to and including the racing over the country to Saturday, May 28. So far this year thirty-four performersof this age have won as many as five or more races, twenty-eight have won four races, forty-seven three races and seventy-one two races each, leaving 117 horses to just earn winning brackets. These figures show that up to the date noted, 4-year-olds have won 757 races this year. The leading 4-year-old race winner so far in 1904 is Byronerdale, a son of Jim Gore and Brigantz, by Bertram, with nine races won. Lev Dorsey, by the sire of the double Derby winner, Elwood, the now distinguished but ill-fated Free Knight, is second in the list with eight wins, while Big Ben, Mauser and Toscan come next, with seven victories each to their credit. The 4-year-old winners of six races are Caronal, Elfin King, Elliott, Erbo, Farmer Jim, Imp, McGee, Miss Gould, Sir Hugh and Warte Nicht, while the other good winners are named in the classified list below:

Won five races—Agnes Mack, Arabo, Bad News, Barklemore, Frank Rice, Fortunatus, Fustain, Glennevis, Gravina, June Collins, Martinmas, Neversuch, Nigrette, Ocean Dream, Semper Vivax, Shrine, Sir Preston, Skilful, Velos, Welcome Light.

Won four races—Albemarle, Belle Mahone, Blue Miracle, Capt. Arnold, Claude, Discuss, Double O, Fair Lady Anna, First Chip, Helminis, Heir Apparent, Hymettus, Iras, Jake Greenburg, Josette, Laura Hunter, Marco, Mr. Farnum, Nervator, Nine Spot, Oarsman, Platonius, Princelet, Sid Silver, Stemwinder, Stroller, Veterano and Wager.

Won three races—Ben McLean, Boutonnier, Brannus, Budweiser, Burning Glass, Celebration, Clausus, Curuelo, Dan McKenna, Deutschland, Floresian, Frontenac, Fossil, Foxy Kane, Handspinner, Harvester, Horatius, Hurst Park, Irby Bennett, Isabellita, Lucy Crawford, Landsdown, Lt. de Margaret, Lord Melbourne, Lauralgter, Mamselle, Maverick, Merwan,, Mimo, Misty's Pride, Modicum, Monsieur Beaucaire, Mr. Dingle, Niaxus, Oro Viva, Prince of Endymion, Reckoner, Reliable, Rossmond, Scepter, Stonewall, St. Winifride, Sylvia Talbot, Tancred, The Guardsman, Vestry and Witfull.

Sidney Walker, Jockey Club, Lady Bimbo, Lucky Day, Mainspring, Mansard, Mart Mullen, Mezzo, Miladi Love, Morendo, Mrs. Frank Foster, Murad, My Surprise, Olonetz, Orfeo, Our Bessie, Past Master, Pathos, Peeper, Petrolla, Phaon, Phyz, Princess Tulane, Presentation, Prodigal Son, Queen Elizabeth, Rampooza, Silbanal, Safeguard, Sister Lillian, Somenos, Stump Town, Tangent, Titus, Tommy Knight, Typhonic.

No less than 188 sires are represented by winning 4-year-olds this season, Lamplighter leading with eight representatives. Next on the list is imp. Golden Garter, with seven winners of this age, imp. Brutus, Ornament and Russell tying for third place, each being the sire of half a dozen winners. So far this season 4-year-olds have been much in the racing game, all the three big handicaps yet run off—the Burns, Metropolitan and Brooklyn—having fallen to a performer of this age, in face of the fact that such 5-year-olds as McChesney and Hermis are still in the ring. Below will be found the fastest race run by a 4-year-old so far in 1904 at the different distances. The only world's record so far broken by a horse of this age this season is the 6½-furlong mark, which John A. Scott reduced to 1:18½:

Five furlongs—Frontenac, 1:01.

Five and one-half furlongs—Both Presentation and Reliable, 1:07.

Six furlongs—Gold Money, 1:12¾.

Six and one-half furlongs—John A. Scott, 1:18½.

HORSE WON HIMSELF.

"That Poverty Pete maxim about not putting all of your eggs in one basket doesn't often work out on race tracks," said a man who, now that he can't play the horses except in the handbooks, has got to talk about them anyhow, says the Washington Post. "I've been watching the thing for a good many years, and I've noticed that it's the fellows who are game to take just that kind of chances who get by with their risks more often than not.

"There was an owner down on the old St. Louis fair grounds who had been wrestling with the 'in bad' beldame for three straight years, and the thing at length began to jangle him up. His string of about fourteen platers and one stake horse had diminished down to the stake horse alone.

"This one was a cripple 5-year-old, with the scalps of the best horses in the West dangling from his bridle, but his feet were so uncertain, on account of the hard campaigns he had been subjected to that he became an in-and-outer. When the luck didn't burn his feet, he'd always deposit the goods on the doorstep, but when his old legs began to get het up he'd stop and look over the fence and pick out tufts of soft grass with his eye.

"The day came when the horse was entered for one of the big St. Louis handicaps, in which there were some swell horses, ten or a dozen of them. The hrose's owner didn't have a dollar to bet on his good old grub-grabber, and he liked his horse's chances at the weights, too. There weren't any clewlines on his nerve, either, and he dug up the famous owner and bookie, Barney Schreiber, who had a book on the line at the time.

"'Barney,' said the horse owner, chewing on a straw just as if he'd been passing the time of day, 'what d'ye think that plug of mine is worth in real duff—not milk tickets or rain checks or stage coin, but money?'

"'He'd be worth $10,000 if his props were right, Jack,' replied Barney, in his dialect; 'but he's too dicky on his pins after the way you've been mauling him, to be worth much in any man's barn now.'

"'I'm asking you what you think he's worth right now, Barney,' said the owner.

"'Oh, if you stood him on the block, you might be able to draw down a couple of thousand for him,' said Barney, in his Weberfields way. 'Why are you asking?'

"'Not on your Teutonic may do I want to sell him,' said the owner; 'but I sure want to hock him a whole lot. What price are you going to lay against him today?'

"'Oh, 'bout 10 to 1,' replied Schreiber.

"'Uh-huh,' said the horse's owner. 'Well, you chalk me on your sheet $22,000 to $2000 that he don't cop today. If he doesn't, he's your nag, and I hope that you see that he gets clean straw to rest on—he's been mighty good to me. If he wins, me for $22,000. On?'

"'On,' replied Barney, who didn't think the horse had any chance to win, and who felt an itch to possess the animal for his stud farm.

"The old horse won the handicap in a parade by eight lengths, with his head swinging, and if you like to hear good strong language expressed in the German tongue, you ought to have been anywhere within two Salt Lake blocks of Barney Schreiber after that race ,when he had to dig up $20,000 to the owner who had the nerve to 'put all of his eggs in one basket.'"

MANY REASONS

Why Rea Bros.' Cascarin Is Now the Most Popular Laxative.

There are thousands of people in all parts of the country who suffer from diseases that the local practitioners are unable to cure. If they knew of a prescription that they could get filled for a few dollars, they would gladly do it. Doctors advertise your favorite prescription, say just what you know it will do and what it will cure. This was the way that the newly celebrated treatment, Cascarin, jumped from a sale of a few bottles to One Hundred Thousand in eight months, and it has cured thousands of people.

Cascarin is a formulated prescription now being used by the most noted specialists throughout this and foreign countries. It is one of the most valuable and truly scientific remedies of this advanced age. In diseases of the stomach, intestinal indigestion, constipation, appendicitis, diseases of the liver, and diseases of the kidneys, Cascarin has proven of inestimable value.

BIG FISH THAT ARE TAKEN WITH FLIES

Sport With the Monster Pike-Perch of Canada —Notable Fighters In a Region Where Five-Pound Trout Are Caught.

Quebec, June 11. —Fly fishing for the monster pike-perch that inhabit northern waters may be enjoyed the whole summer through in most of the Canadian lakes. In order to avoid misapprehension it should be made perfectly clear what the pike-perch herein referred to really is. This is absolutely necessary because of the great confusion caused by the careless employment of the vernacular names of fishes.

The Canadian pike-perch, often called dore by the French-Canadians, is the Stizostedium vitreum of science, often known as wall-eyed pike, and, by many Canadians and Americans alike erroneously called pickerel, a name properly belonging to the young of the common pike.

Though shaped much like a pike, there is no comparison between the two fishes, the pike being the scavenger and wolf of the waters which it inhabits, and its flesh being but little more eatable than that of the common sucker or carp; while the pike-perch is a foeman worthy of the angler's skill, a valiant fighter of gorgeous coloration, magnificently armored, and one of the most highly valued food fishes of North American waters.

When found in the Mississippi, the pike-perch is locally known as the salmon, or more frequently as the jack-salmon, while Pennsylvanians often know it as the Susquehanna salmon. The foremost of its two large dorsal fins is armed with very effective spikes and forms one of the distinguishing badges which stamp this beautiful fish as a member of the perch rather than of the pike family.

There are instances on record of the pike-perch's having been taken with the fly in southern Canada and the Northern States, for instance, in Wisconsin waters and in Lake Champlain; though it is only in more northern lakes and streams that fly fishing for this fish can be indulged in with any certainty of success. There the sport is always good.

Among other waters where many pike-perch have been taken with the fly are those of the Metabetchouan Fish and Game club, of which Senator Platt and many more prominent Connecticut anglers are members. This club's preserves are situated along the line of the Quebec and Lake St. John railway, the main clubhouse being on Lake Kiskisink, or Cedar lake, which literally swarms with these fish.

But the paradise of the fly fisherman for pike-perch is among the lakes and streams of still more northern Canada, and especially among those of the region lying between Lake St. John and the height of land. There is a beautiful large trout lake some two days' journey by canoe from Lake St. John, where the huge pike perch often dispute successfully with the trout the privilege to be the first to rise to the angler's flies.

The common red speckled brook trout are some times taken up to four or five pounds each in this lake, which is known to the Indians as Lac des Aigles, or Eagle Lake, while specimens of from half a pound to a pound in weight may some times be had at the rate of two or three at a cast. It is seldom visited by anglers because of its distance from civilization.

One party which was fishing it for trout a season or two ago and meeting with gratifying success, found that the fish all at once ceased to rise. It was only for a short time, however, but the fish that were subsequetly caught were all pike-perch. The latter mentioned fish are gegarious, and not only because of their numbers but also because of the formidable character of their dorsal spikes they prove to be resistless adversaries of the unarmed trout, effectually driving them from their feeding beds whenever they choose to invade and loot them.

In more southern waters only rather small specimens of the pike-perch are, as a rule, taken with the fly. In Lac des Aigles, on the other hand, big fish of five or six pounds often rise to the angler's flies, and so constantly that fishermen find it necessary to fish for them with one fly only, lest two of these monsters at one time on the line should wreck alike their tackle and their happiness.

They tell of one fifteen pound fish taken on the fly in this lake, and Jean Minnegouche, the Montagnais Indian, in the midst of whose hunting and trapping territory this lake is situated, is authority for the statement that one of over thirty pounds has been taken on a night line out of the same waters.

Those anglers who make a feature of fly fishing for the pik-perch say that they know of no fish which affords better sport. While it takes the fly, in its chosen waters, quite as readily as the brook trout or the black bass, it is infinitely the superior of the latter as a table fish; and many an agler, on a protracted camping trip, who has grown tired of the rich repetition of the red fleshed brook trout meal after meal, has thanked the good fortune which has placed before him the beautiful, clear, flaky, white flesh of the pike-perch, quite as appetizing, as tasty and as easily digested as that of a fresh cod or haddock.

The rod which gives the best sport to the pike-perch angler is one weighing from five to nine ounces. There should be a four-foot leader, and as a general rule bass flies will be found more killing than trout flies.

In the spring and autumn they rise almost equally well in all parts of the lakes which they frequet, but in the heat of summer are most successfully sought with the fly near the rapids which are so often found at either the inlet or outlet of lakes, especially if there be deep holes in the vicinity. They are exceedingly clean-living fish and are never found upon dirty, muddy bottoms.

It will generally be found that a dark fly is most succesfuls in the morning fishing and a lighter one in the evening. The hook should be at least a number three Sproat size.

When hooked, the pike-perch will not break water like the salmon or the bass, nor is its fight for life and liberty so long as that of either of these other fish, but its deep dives and weighty resistance are such as would do credit to a fish many times its size and frequently deceive the fisherman as to the weight of the quarry at the other end of his line.

Those who fish for the pike-perch with bait require stronger tackle, for they are apt at any time to hook a very large fish. The baits employed are numerous. The phantom minnow and the spoon are both excellent, but the natural minnow is often preferable.

Another very effective bait is a portion of the fish itself, cut into thin, long, narrow strips, so arranged upon the hook that the long end drags behind it in the water. The fish is a fearless biter, and there is no danger of its nibbling off the end of the trailing bait.

It wants it all or none, and when it gets the bait into its mouth the angler very soon knows all about it. In fishing in rapids the bait should be allowed to run down with the current, guiding it as far as may be in and out among the largest rocks.

The Indians in this northern country value the pike-perch very highly for food, and many of them have remarked that if poor Hubbard and his companion had only taken a fish net with them upon their fatal expedition into the heart of Labrador, they could not have starved, for all the waters in the locality where they ran short of food are thickly inhabited with these and other fishes.

BIG MUSKELLUNGE CAUGHT AT WINNIBIGOSHISH DAM.

ED. McGOWAN'S HUGE MUSKELLUNGE.

This is the "muskie" that Edward McGowan, proprietor of a popular summer resort on Winnebigosish dam, about eight miles from Bena, on the Great Northern line, captured after a hard battle lasting an hour, Monday of this week.

The muscallonge was brought to Duluth to be exhibited in the windows of a local market. It lacked two inches of being five feet long and weighed 38 pounds and four ounces.

Mr. McGowan did not catch the big fish by trolling, the usual method, but was fishing with a light steel rod, carrying a reel and a light silk line when the muscallonge decided to take the bait. Alone in the boat, and with so light an outfit, the intrepid fisherman spent the most exciting hour of his life, every energy being devoted to preventing the big fish from taking out all the line and snapping it or the pole in one of his angry rushes.

Time after time the big fellow dived and circled, or started away from the boat, and the drag was put on to tire him. In some of his mad rushes the big fish shot out clear of the water, shaking his head in the effort to split the hook. The line was kept taut every instant, however, and gradually he was worn out in his struggles until he could be brought alongside the boat and gaffed.

Mr. McGowan himself was pretty well tired out after the protracted fight but felt more than recompensed with his prize.

Muscallonge fishing is considered the most exciting freshwater sport in this or any other section of the country and many of the northern Minnesota and Wisconsin lakes abound in the species.

Some larger muscallonge have been caught in the adjoining lakes, in recent years, but they have been caught mostly in trolling, where the fishermen had a heavier hook and stronger line.

A WALKER NURSE CAPTURES THIRTY-EIGHT POUND MUSKIE

Mrs. Mryant. J. W. Allen. Harry Drummond. Mrs. Newman.
38-POUND MUSKELLUNGE CAUGHT BY MRS. BRYANT.

Walker, Minn., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fame of Leech lake as the home of the gamey muskallonge is maintained in the catches already made this season. First was the 38-pounder, taken in Kabekona bay, about five miles north of Walker, and which Mr. Chase, of the Hotel Chase, has had mounted for exhibition. Then last week one of the clerks at the Indian agency saw one lazily floating through the boat house and, watching for his reappearance, promptly took him in. He measured four feet, but was rather thin and weighed only 24 pounds. And now a nurse at the hospital here, Mrs. Bryant, has won distinction by landing a big fellow weighing a trifle over 38 pounds. Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. Newman, Messrs. Brummund and Allen were trolling near the White City, a mile from the village dock, when the muskie struck. He put up the liveliest kind of a fight, but Mrs. Bryant played him well and carefully, her companions giving her full credit for the capture, though assisting her in the final stage. The lady was justifiably proud of her accomplishment. This is but a beginning of the muskallonge record for Leech lake this season. The chilly weather has made it unpleasant to be on the water, or the catches would have been even more numerous. The fish are there, as was fully demonstrated last year by the large number taken along the same shore.

ALONG MORTH SHORE OF LAKE SUPEPIOR

to the east the Grand Marais light appears twinkling star-like. It is yet light when the boat has reached the harbor, which is one of two bays, itself designated the west and shaped circling like some pretty shell. In the quiet one can distinctly hear the gentle, lapping rush of water against the gravel shore. Voluntarily the eye sweeps first here and there, admiring the unique arrangements of nature. From the mainland there runs a broad gravel point and connects with the shore what must have been many years ago an island. This out point is of solid rock, even yet almost entirely surrounded by water, and runs for about a quarter of a mile parallel with the land. From the rocks at its western limit is extended a pier, on the end of which is the lighthouse. It is here, between this lighthouse and a breakwater running out from the west side of the bay, where the shore sweeps around and forms another point—that the boat has entered the harbor. Even yet, just before nightfall, the sky and lake may have a faint blush of rose. And, perhaps, from off in the west where stands a hill, whose long graceful sweep from Lake Superior's edge culminates saw-tooth fashion, there comes the plaintive call of a certain night-bird that frequents this region. All along the north stretches another hill, very high, and from the summit of which has been seen on a clear day Isle Royale, some fifty miles away.

Looking west at all that range of hills, Carlton Peak, north of Tofte, proves to be, by its size and mountainous shape, the central point of the whole stretch, which before it disappears to the eye, has run perhaps forty miles or more.

The following morning one finds oneself in Canadian waters among the many isles and islands that lie between Isle Royale and the mainland. In some places these are so numerous as to appear ahead like unisolated land and one is curious to see just where is the opening through which the boat will pass. It is much the same at the northeastern end of Isle Royale, where the channels and long, narrow arms seem almost like in some play-land.

Once, seeking the most advantageous position on the deck before a pilot house on a steamship running through those islands and bound from Sarnia, Canada, to Duluth, a passenger was admiring the loveliness of nature and at the same time overhearing a conversation between a young widow and the captain. This young widow had a fashion of gazing upon one and framing modest litle inquiries. The captain was bluff and ruddy, but maintained always a captain's dignity.

"Now, captain, I just saw one of your officers—there he goes, now; he is an officer, isn't he?"

He assured her "Yes."

"Well, I thought so. But as I started to say, I saw him pick up a stick a while ago and throw it overboard. Now why did he do that, captain?"

The captain smiled.

"Haven't you watched him doing that all along? No? You see that is the means we use for finding our way back!"

"Well, now! I wouldn't have believed it. I will remember that, however. So many islands, I suppose!"

After leaving Port Arthur the boat passes the imposing Thunder cape, and that is one of Lake Superior's finest sights. The return trip is made around Isle Royale and touches again the mainland at Pigeon river, which is the boundary line at that point between the United States and Canada.

But after all this, on the home-returning the beauty, distinctively Duluth's own—in our city at the head of the great lakes, comes with a newness not only because of a brief absence but by reason of its truth.

GREAT GROWTH OF THE RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

on one of the fast trains of the country is a fascinating one to many young men. When they find of what their duties consist, however, the work does not look so attractive. Resignations after a few months' service are frequent. The task to which his memory is put is alone enough to stagger the ordinary man. Take the Minneapolis-Council Bluffs run, for instance. The clerk must know and remember the location of every one of about 12,000 offices and be able to sort out letters and place them in their respective pouches at the rate of more than one each second. This brief space of time is all that is alowed him to pick the location of the destination of the letter from 12,000 names. Then there are the difficulties to be met with in the poorly writen addresses, one of the greatest trials of all. Every week there are some changes made in the offices, and these must also be committed to memory When these things are taken into consideration one can readily see why Uncle Sam has his clerks work seven days, and then allows them a week off for study and recuperation.

Fines are numerous in the railway mail service. The government is strict with its servants, and for every little misdemeanor they are fined. It is said that the total fines for the year aggregate a fabulous sum. The clerks have made an attempt in the past to have this fine fund used to pension old carriers, after they have outlived their stage of usefulness. Under existing conditions there is no penusion system. When a man becomes too old to work in a mail car, and this age is more quickly reached than in the ordinary walks of life, he is in a hard fix if he has no savings to fall back on, for there is no other occupation to which he may turn his hand in his old age.

"A peculiar thing about the service," said Mr. Westcott, "is that there have been no improvements made in the construction of the mail cars, or in their equipment, since the railway mail service first started. The cars are flimsy affairs, most of them, and always the weakest in the train, in spite of the fact that they are just back of the engine, in the point of greatest danger in case of a wreck. The mail car is the first to be smashed if anything happens. For this reason they should be constructed of steel. There should also be an end door in them, allowing their occupants a better chance to escape in case of accident. At present there are only side doors in the cars, and many a poor fellow could have saved his life but for this fact. Fastened in like a rat in a trap, more than one has been burned to death in the fire following a wreck, simply because the side doors had become blocked in the smushup."

The idea of a railway postoffice was first brought officially to the notice of the department in 1847. In July, 1862, the first railway postoffice was introduced into this country, patterned after a like office operated in England. In 1864 the leading railroads were induced to alter their cars for the purpose of the railway postoffice, and from that time this service has grown. Postal cards were introduced in 1873. The money order system was established in 1864, in order to accommodate soldiers and others wishing to transmit small sums of money. At the beginning of this system only 138 offices were allowed to issue orders. The number has increased to nearly 35,000. The dead letter office dates back to 1825. The rural free delivery service is the last adjunct of the postal service, but, notwithstanding its youth, it promises to outgrow some of the older branches of the department.

the guests invited was M. J. Flynn, now conductor on the passenger run between Duluth and Cass Lake. The "banquet" was held and the guests agreed that, barring a little toughness, the "moose" was fine. About a week afterwards, John Smith strolled into the hotel, and going up to Churchill, hailed him with the usual "bijou." The latter felt somewhat ashamed of having switched the alcohol on John and decided to square the matater before he left for home. After awaiting until all of the participants in the "banquet," including Flynn, were in the office, John said to Churchill: "Fine moose?" "Fine, couldn't be better," and the landlord handed John $1. He took the "cartwheel," and with the smile that everyone in the room knew meant mischief, answered, "Pony," and staoically strolled out of the room, mounted his remaining pony and galloped off home. Inquiry led to the fact that John had tasted the "alcohol," knew it was water and biding his time, had killed the poorest of his ponies and sold it to Churchill for moose. To this day M. J. Flynn cannot eat moose meat. He remembers his experience at Deer River.

John's home, at the mouth of Leech river, has long been known as "Gambler's Point,' for the reason that many desperate contests at the great national game have been played in John's cabin, on the bank of the river. His place became famous, in the early days, as an abiding place during the hot months of summer for many lumbermen from Minneapolis, Duluth and other places, who desired to have an outing. Their principal occupation while in the vicinity of John's home, was poker playing. In a spirit of kindness they learned him to play, when they first came, and he used to sit in the games with them. If his guests won, they would give the money back to John, believing that he was unacquainted with the game and to keep the money would be nothing short of robbery. It invariably happened that John was always the winner, when the guests got ready to depart. It was some years before the truth of John's knowledge of the cards became known. It appears that he knew all about poker and had some original tricks that were sure winners. He possessed an old deerskin tobacco pouch, and when playing would always sit with the pouch between his knees. When the time came to fill hands, John would evince an unsatiable desire to smoke and would dive into the sack and replenish his pipe. Invariably, after filling his pipe he would lay down the winning hand and take the pot. This went on for many years, until finally John could not stand the humorous side of his little game, and he told the boys one day how he did it. Inside the tobacco pouch was a whole deck of cards and when he wanted a good hand he would fill his pipe and incidentally his hand.

John Smith is one of the good Indians, and there is no red in Northern Minnesota who is more popular with the whites.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Extraordinary Member of Rich Strikes Reported.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 11.—The renewed activity in all parts of the Cripple Creek district, owing to an extraordinary number of rich strikes, is being maintained. If there has been any change it is in the direction of an increase in the amount of work being done. Development of small pieces of ground by individuals who never worked their properties and who have also granted liberal leases comprises another factor which is helping materially the general improvement. The district's practical mining industries are in splendid shape. It is especially remarkable when it is taken into consideration that about 30 per cent of tonnage and values of the district ore is now being shipped by lessees who are working territory which has heretofore been idle.

The Cripple Creek Gold Temple company leasing on the Gold Sovereign on Bull Hill, have finally cut the old Lovett vein at a depth of 625 feet. There is a streak ten inches wide, which will run all the way up to fifty ounces. The vein has been drifted on for ten feet, and so far is six feet wide, and neither wall found. The other five feet of the new find will run well up in the ounces.

The eighth level of the Elkton has finally been unwatered, after an idleness of almost two years. Ore had just been encountered when the eighth level was submerged with an immense flow of water from what is believed to be the main water course. A sampler and washer are now being installed.

A large quantity of mining machinery is arriving almost daily for the two new cyanide plants which are in course of construction. Both plants will be mod- of the district, as they will make a specialty of the low grade ores found on the ern and will add materially to the output properties on which they are being constructed, which have hitherto been of too low a value to mine at a profit.

MORE INTEREST

Should Be Taken In Music Teacher's Convention.

To the Editor of The Herald:

May I, through your columns, bespeak the interest and patronage of the citizens of Duluth for the annual convention of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association, which opens in this city on Thursday next. So far the public has hardly evinced that interest which the occasion deserves.

In the first place, the officers of the association have been for the past three months advertising Duluth all over the state. Secondly, the convention will bring a large number of strangers, whose verdict on Duluth will be founded upon the treatment they receive here. Then, again, Duluth has always prided herself upon being a musical center, and it would seem only consistent with that idea that a liberal patronage should be forthcoming for the advantages offered by this convention. The association offers three organ recitals by the best Twin City organists, five educational meetings, three grand concerts, including a program by state talent, and a program of works by Minnesota composers, a lecture by the noted critic, J. W. Henderson, and a violin recital by Emil Sauret, assisted by Jessica De Wolf and Arthur Speed. All this may be enjoyed for the moderate sum of $2. The committee wish it to be generally understood that attendance at the educational meetings and organ recitals is open to anyone on payment of a nominal fee for admission, and that any who care to meet the visiting musicians will be welcome to attend the reception to be tendered to them on Thursday evening at the Commercial club. May I not, in the name of the local committee, urge upon all who are, or ought to be, interested to support their efforts by purchasing tickets without delay, and thus ensure a thoroughly successful meeting.

Chairman of the Local Committee.

PET MONKEY

Saved Crazy Keeper From Committing Suicide.

New York, June 11.—Leaping from his cage to the ground, a large champanzee attached to an animal farm in Jersey City wrested from the hand of Matthew Broessell a knife, with which the man, in a fit of temporary insanity, was attempting suicide. The creature saved Broessell's life.

Broessell had been training the monkey for a number of years, and the animal was greatly attached to him. For the past few days the man had complained of the heat and declared that his reason would not last much longer. While cleaning the cage of his pet he suddenly began to scream. He picked up the knife and slashed his throat several times. The monkey jumped through the open door of his cage, and was wrestling with the man for the knife when the other keepers came. Broessell is in the City hospital in a serious condition.

session of the association as well as at all other times. President E. C. Murdock, of St. Paul, will probably arrive in the city Monday to look after association affairs and assist in the final preparations.

On the opening day, Thursday, June 16, delegates to the convention will be given a taste of Duluth's cordial hospitality. The business of the day will occupy the hours between 9:30 o'clock in the morning and 4:30 in the afternoon, and the remainder of the time will be given up to pleasure. In the evening, from 8 to 9 o'clock, a reception to the visitors will be held in the Commercial club rooms given by the officers of the club. The event is one which is looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure by everybody concerned, home people and outsiders alike. Refreshments will be served and following the reception Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Day will present a play. "The Music Lesson," a little comedy in one act written by Dr. Day, depicts the trials and tribulations of a typical hot-headed old German music teacher in his efforts to get a few musical ideas into the head of a very dull, stupid, and particularly inattentive little girl, who has about as much music in her nature as a china doll. Every music teacher has met with this type of pupil, and when the teacher happens to be of the red-fire and sky-rockety temperament of Herr von Schwartzenhoffer, the music lesson becomes a farce-comedy of a very entertaining type. Dr. and Mrs. Day have given the little comedy several times, both in Duluth and Superior and it has always met with the greatest success; but in the members of the Minnesota Music Teachers association, they will have an ideal audience who will be able from a personal experience to thoroughly appreciate the humor of the many ludicrous situations with which the play abounds.

• • •

It is expected that the attendance at the convention will be large, larger even than is ordinarily the case in an event of this kind, for the summer attractions of Duluth are well known, and the coolness of this region during the middle of June, with its other manifold attractions, will prove to be a stronger drawing card than anything either of the Twin Cities, with their excessive summer heat and its accompanying discomforts would have to offer. And then the Twin Cities have become common to the people of the state, while Duluth is as yet an unknown quantity to a great many, music teachers as well as others, and it is natural that they should be desirous of paying her a visit, particularly at this time of the year. The excellence of the program as arranged, however, should alone be sufficient to make the attendance at the convention a record-breaking one.

• • •

The two great features of the meetin outside its social pleasures, will be the lecture Friday evening by William J. Henderson, of New York city, and the recital Saturday evening by Emile Sauret, the great violinist, assisted by Jessica De Wolf, soprano, and Arthur Sped, pianist.

Mr. Henderson is regarded as one of America's chief authorities on music. His criticisms and writings in the New York Sun have brought him fame, and placed him among the leaders in America's musical world. Mr. Henderson will speak on "Modern Tendencies in Music," a new lecture which has just been completed for delivery.

The marvelous ability of Emile Sauret as a violinist is well known, not only to musicians, but to others as well. There are few people who have not heard of him in one way or another. His success extends to two continents, for he conquered Europe before coming to America, and his career on this side of the water has been one of constant success, with enthusiasm following him wherever he goes.

Of Jessica De Wolf, the soprano who will assist Sauret, the Chicago Record-Herald says:

"Jessica De Wolf sang the soprano roles in both works. Her voice possesses exquisite purity and sweetness, and a devotional quality that makes it peculiarly suited to a composition in which the religious theme is as largely developed as in the "Spectre Bride." In the "O, Virgin Mother, Gracious Be," she was heard at her best, and her best is altogether admirable."

Arthur Speed, the pianist, is equally highly spoken of in press reports of his public appearances. Of him the Musical Courier of New York, on the occasion of his first appearance in America, said:

"He revealed himself an artist of the objective, intellectual type, thoroughly healthy, and while not lacking sentiment, without a trace of sentimentality. His command of his instrument is all that the demands of modern piano playing exact of those who aspire to pianistic honors, and he has a temperament that often carries him out of his reserve to fine climaxes."

The afternoon of the last day of the meeting, Saturday, June 18, will be given up to pleasure and recreation, and Duluth members of the association will entertain their guests as guests of their stamp should be entertained. The feature of the afternoon will be the Boulevard drive, provided the weather permits the drive being taken.

A fitting climax to the convention will be the violin recital Saturday evening, by Emile Sauret and assistants.

ARTHUR SPEED, OF CHICAGO,
Brilliant Pianist Who Will Appear Saturday Evening Before State Music Teachers' Association.

EMILE SAURET,
Noted French Violinist Who Will Give Recital for State Music Teachers' Association Next Saturday Evening.

WHERE HARVARD'S OLD CLOTHES GO

The Yearly Roundup of Student Apparel at Cambridge and How It Is Disposed of—A Quick Philanthropy Which Benefits Many Persons and Places.

Cambridge, Mass., June 11.—Every spring there occurs in that part of Cambridge represented by Harvard university a general rounding up and sorting over of ol undergraduate raiment for the benefit of the poor, not only in Cambridge and Boston but as far away as Tuskegee and Hampton, Virginia. "Poco," as undergraduate diction nicknames the "old clothes man" who until some ten or twelve years ago had a monopoly in the cast-off garments of the typical Harvard man, looks askance at this yearly operation. But what has been a loss to Poco has been a gain to several hundred recipients of Harvard's bounty since the collections were first instituted, and the modest philanthropy is one that every year assumes larger proportions.

The clothing collection which is typical of a great deal of other philanthropic activity that is constantly going on with the assistance of the student body of the university, was begun in 1895 under the management of the Student Volunteer association whose headquarters are now in Brooks House, which was erected some years ago in honor of Philips Brooks and as a center for the various religious organizations of Harvard. Everything in the way of clothing is included—suits, underwear, hats, stockings and stray coats, vests and trousers. The accumulation each year fills several large packing cases. Under a new system that has been adopted during the present spring the amount of clothing thus brought together is much greater than at any previous collection. This new system is much more thorough than anything that has preceded it and brings the philanthrophy before the individual attention of practically every one of the students living in the various Harvard dormitories.

When Harvard first began collecting cast-off clothing for distribution through the various charitable institutions with which its philanthropic work is more or less closely affiliated, two days were yearly set aside for the clothing collections and during these two days the students directly concerned in the movement called at the different dormitories and gathered together such articles of clothing as the other sudents had no further use for. Naturally, however, in so large a place as Harvard two days have been found insufficient, for a thorough canvass of the under-graduates and a whole week is now devoted to the work. Each dormitory has its own clothing collector whose business it is presumably to see each student under his roof and explain the purposes and past achievements of the work. And during that week the Harvard "yard" is full of bundles of old clothes for the general response to the appeal becomes more yearly gratifying. These bundles of cast-off raiment, much of it sometimes still in very serviceable condition and all of it capable of being made of use to other human beings, find their way to the basement of Brooks House where they are sorted over and finally delivered to the officials of local and distant institutions.

Harvard has the reputation of being one of the best dressed American universities, but, as a matter of fact, the collection of clothing that for the time being turns the Brooks House basement into a semblance of a second-hand clothing store represents nearly every degree of fashion and utility. Here are the garments, for example, of the so-called "typical Harvard man," who really doesn't exist, but whom certain observers imagine they can spot at a glance by the cut of his clothing and the peculiar gait wherewith he walks abroad in it. And beside these garments, representing the latest ideas of the tallor at the time they were made, are the old clothes of other equally typical Harvard men who have smaller bank accounts and pay much less attention to the latest ideas of the tallor. There are shirts of the gayest and shirts of the quietest pattern, stockings of all kinds, from the most variegated designs to the calmest of black; neckties that sing loudly of football games and rowing regattas together with the plain dark colors of more formal occasions; hats of equal variety, and shoes that, taken in the aggregate, may have traces on their soles of the soil of every state in the Union. It would be difficult to find a more picturesque collection of garments, or one that represents a greater diversity of interests, for the clothes of the millionaire student are here stacked up side by side with those of the young man who is working his way through college, and with those also of the much greater army of students who are simply well to do without going to either extreme of extravagance or economy.

After the clothes have been sorted out into the proper divisions of full suits, individual coats, vests and trousers, underwear, hats and neckties, they are boxed up for shipment in large packing cases. Several of these cases go yearly to Booker Washington at Tuskegee—among them usually the greater number of the boots and shoes that have thus "graduated" from Harvard. Boots and shoes are a Tuskegee specialty, because this famous institution has special facilities for making them serviceable; no matter how badly a Harvard shoe may show the effects of previous wear and tear the shoemakers' shops of Tuskegee are able to start it out again on a new era of usefulness. Other cases go to Hampton institute, where they are redistributed. Practically all the derby hats that have been discarded at Harvard go to the Salvation Army headquarters in Cambridge or Boston, and the Salvation Army takes upon itself the task of finding heads to fit them. Other cases go to the Seamen's Friend Society of Boston, and furnish raiment for needy sailors. And yet other cases go to other local missions and charitable organizations. The most carefully selected box, in which the best preserved garments are packed, is sent yearly to a local mission that sells the garments and devotes the proceeds to charity. In this way the old clothes of the college are distributed over a wide area and wisely distributed by societies and individuals who know where they will be of the greatest service.

Just how much clothing has been thus distributed since the Student Volunteer society first began its collections can hardly be estimated. The sum total undoubtedly represents hundreds of suits, to say nothing of the individual pieces, and, everything being included, thousands of persons have been benefited. A single packing case, for example, contains something like 200 pairs of trousers, and as several packing cases have been filled yearly, even in the beginning of the movement, the aggregate amount of clothing thus distributed must have reached a surprisingly large figure—especially when one includes the underwear, hats, shoes and neckwear that are thus made to perform a double service.

NOTED SPEAKER FOR DULUTH ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICES

CHARLES E. PICKETT, OF WATERLOO, IA.,
One of the Most Noted Orators in Elkdom, Secured for Memorial Exercises at Duluth in December.

"Past Grand Exalted Ruler Charles E. Pickett will deliver the Memorial address at Duluth, Minn. We congratulate the committee of No. 133, for no abler exponent of the beauties of Elkdom could have been secured. Duluth Elks get early action when they go after things."

Thus speaks "The Jolly Elk," a journal for the B. P. O. E. order, of Mr. Pickett's acceptance of the invitation extended him to make the principal address at the Elks' memorial service in Duluth, Sunday, Dec. 4. Every lodge of the order in the country holds these memorial services on the first Sunday in December, and each year all are equally anxious to secure the services of Mr. Pickett for an address. He is said to be the most sought after and one of the most popular Elks in the United States. Duluth has vainly tried to get him for like occasions in the past, and even this year, in spite of the early invitation, he might not have been prevailed upon to visit the Zenith City but for the fact that he was particularly desirous of visiting this section of the country. Invitations to attend services in various other large cities were refused in favor of Duluth.

Mr. Pickett's home is at Waterloo, Iowa. He is chairman of the Republican state committee of his native state, and besides being past grand exalted ruler of the national organization of Elks, he is chairman of the grand lodge committee on the good of the order, and is one of the committee on the Elks' home of Bedford, Va., all of which goes to show his popularity in the circles of his order, and of the high respect and esteem in which he is held. He has been an important factor in bringing the organization to its present high standing and state of influence. Mr. Pickett is a brilliant orator, and one whose fame is national. His appearance in Duluth will be an event of the utmost importance in the history of the local lodge.

The number of times in a year that a man uses The Herald's Want Columns is an idex to his interests and activities.

BRIBE OFFERED THE PREMIER

Old Scandal Comes Up In French Chamber of Deputies.

Paris, June 11.—During an acrimonious discussion in the chamber of deputies yesterday between Premier Combes and M. Milerand, the Socialist ex-minister, someone on the right shouted:

"What about the Carthusian millions," aluding to a scandal that has been the subject of violent controversy in the press and that was a subject for judicial investigation a few months ago.

"That is one of the most painful recollections of my life," replied the premier. "I sacrificed certain proof of an infamy committed against me to high political considerations."

Immediately after the current question had been concluded a deputy asked leave to interpellate on a subject of the alleged bribery. Premier Combes expressed satisfaction at the opportunity to reveal a secret which had weighed on him and he made the following statement:

"In December, 1902, the secretary of the ministry of the interior informed me that he had received a visit from a person offering two millions if I would bring in a bill authorizing the Carthusian monks to remain at Grande Chartreux (the secretary of the ministry of the interior was Edgar Combes, the premier's son.)

"I replied that the person had better not enter my room unless he wanted to go out the window, and attached no further importance to the incident until a few months has later, after a bill refusing an authorization of the Carthusians had been brought in.

"The newspapers accused the secretary of having asked a million for me to make a speech in favor of the Carthusians. An investigation was made and the intermediary, who was M. Lagrave, the commissioner of France to the St. Louis exposition, was examined, but he refused to name the person for whom he had acted.

"The minister of commerce cabled to M. Lagrave ordering him to give the name. He replied that he had communicated it to M. Millerand, his former chief. M. Millerand sought me and begged me not to divulge the name for important political reasons. The matter was then dropped."

A lively debate ensued. Several deputies demanded a full public investigation of the attempt to corrupt the premier.

Premier Combes declared that the government wished full light to be thrown on the matter and did not care whether the investigation was made by a parliamentary commission or by the judicial authorities. The chamber decided almost unanimously to appoint a commission of thirty-three deputies, which will be elected Tuesday, to thoroughly investigate the subject.

TAXING OF CREDITS

Pronounced Constitutional By Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Madison, Wis., June 11.—The supreme court yesterday handed down a decision holding that the statutes providing for the taxation of notes, mortgages and other credits in Wisconsin are constitutional.

The decision is especially interesting because of the state tax commissions recommendation to the legislature that credits be not taxed. The court holds in brief that notes and mortgages are property within the meaning of the statutes; that the statutes are not void because they exempt from taxation debts due from insolvent debtors; that the taxation of notes and mortgages is not double taxation of property is defined by the court, and that the statutes in question are not in violation of the provisions of the federal constitution to the effect "that no state shall deny to any persons within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

The decision was in the case of R. G. Kingsley, of Merrill, Wis., who was assessed on over $10,000 in notes and mortgages in 1902, the taxes being paid under protest.

A HIGH-TONED HOTEL.

"Cheap men not wanted" is to be the motto of one of the new skyscraping hotels which will be opened shortly in Upper Fifth avenue, New York, not far from the entrance to Central park, says the San Francisco Argonaut. Everything about the hotel is to be the finest money can buy, and the type of New Yorker who likes to get cheap food in fine settings is not desired. A unique and simple way of discouraging him has been devised. There will be no prices on the menu cards. A plain omelette may cost as much as a brace of quail; or a wedge of pie—if they condescend to serve anything so plebeian—may be as expensive as a "baked Alaska," so far as the guest can tell from the menu. When one has eaten all one wants the waiter will bring an itemized check with a glorious footing in red ink. "We want the patronage of people who order what they want regardless of cost," said one of the managers of the new hotel; "there are thousands of New Yorkers who like to be seen in an expensive place. They search the menu through for inexpensive dishes, and then order half portions. We will not have room for them."

"But a man experienced with high-class menus can spot the cheaper dishes from memory," objected a friend. "We will have some surprises for him spread through the bill. Dishes that are ordinarily moderately priced will be toplimers with us." "The new hotel for mine," cried a youth who had just heard of the plan; "I go around a bit with the prettiest girl in New York. She believes she has an expensive appetite, and scales the menu every time for the most expensive dishes. She'll be lost with a priceless dinner card, and I won't think I'm paying for a family of nine every time I sign our supper check."

MRS. ASTOR'S PORTRAIT.

Among the most notable portraits which have been seen in New York during the last year is the full-length portrait of Mrs. John Jacob Astor, now on private view in the studio of Prince Troubetzkoy, says the San Francisco Argonaut. It is the first portrait of Mrs. Astor since she was a mere child. She is posed standing before a sofa, the face turned somewhat toward the right, the glance of the eyes very straight and direct, the hands engaged most simply in holding a black fox boa in place about the neck. The gown, perfect in its simplicity, falls in long lines of black velvet, with a soft front of white chiffon. The hair, with its added distinction of a prematurely grayish tinge, reproducing the effect of the powdered locks of an old-time court period, is simply disposed in a single loose wave above the forehead. There is not a jewel to be seen, not a touch of bright color in evidence; no attempt whatever on the part of subject or painter to call attention to a single feature of exteriority. The figure, slender and delicately feminine, stands well within the canvas, and the color scheme has to do merely with black and white and the flesh tones, with the dull red browns of a brocaded background and the changing gray lights on a highly polished floor in the foreground.

RESULTS THAT TELL.

DOINGS OF A GREAT SPECIALIST

Facts to Which His Patients Testify.

Not in the history of Specialism have such remarkable cures been made as are now being made by Dr. Rea. People from all over the northwestern country, far and near, continue to flock to his offices for his form of special treatment, all to find always the same quick relief. Dr. Rea's visits throughout the Northwest have proven to be of great good and certainly he is deserving of the full amount of patronage that he is receiving. After having practiced his specialty for the last fifteen years, traveling all over the United States and coming in contact with the worst forms of all chronic diseases, it is naturally to be expected that he would know more of one's condition and more liable to diagnose properly those forms of the many peculiar diseases to which the suffering of the community are especially liable.

A case particularly interesting which comes to our notice, is that of Martin Johnson, of Havana, N. Dakota. Mr. Johnson was suffering from an affliction which puzzled the principal physicians throughout the Northwest and having tried most of them without any relief, was persuaded to go to Chicago, where he could have the advantage of the best specialists and have every opportunity to get well. Acting on their advice, he was taken to one of the principal hospitals in that city, where he remained for six weeks, having the best of hospital treatment but continued to get worse all the time. Falling in this and as a last resort he was advised to go to Hot Springs, Ark., and there take the baths which would be of benefit to him. Arriving there more dead than alive, he stayed for some time trying the principal doctors, taking the baths regularly and the outdoor exercises which were particularly advantageous in the climatic conditions of that country, all to be of no relief to him and after an expense of $500.00 decided to return home, expecting soon to die as he had gradually grown worse until he was then considered beyond all hope of relief. Mr. Johnson, seeing in some of the principal papers of some of the remarkable cures made by Dr. Rea, some of them whom he had known to have been sick for years, now decided after eight months of constant suffering to try the treatment of this remarkable man. Seeing that he was to visit Moorhead, Minn., in a few weeks, went there to meet him for consultation and examination and to place himself under his care. Calling at his office he found many others also waiting to consult the doctor for their ailments. After waiting for some time, he was shown into his office, there Dr. Rea took him by the hand and looking him squarely in the face said, "Your trouble is confined to your liver, stomach and bowels. You have been improperly treated in fact drugged almost to death, but with proper treatment properly administered and with the right care, you can yet be made a well man." Imagine the joy that must have entered that man's heart from those few words, "You can be made a well man." It brought joy to his heart that can come only to a person who has been standing on the brink of the grave and snatched back again. Dr. Rea wrote out a prescription, handed it to him and said, "Give this to my druggist across the hall. He will supply you with the medicines that I want you to take for the coming month."

Two weeks from that day he was working on his farm feeling most as well as he ever did in his life. He is indebted to Dr. Rea for his life and says he shall never cease to praise him. We have seen hundreds of others since, who have doctored with him and all have found the same quick relief. We have met many of his patients. Some of them come as far as 300 miles to see him. Dr. Rea has his enemies as well as his friends, but we want to say that his enemies comprise only a few and they are the ske

Under Sealed Orders.

BY FRANCIS GROVE.

"Biff" Ellison had failed in his final examinations, not in all of them, but in two subjects. In one of his studies he had passed brilliantly and in all the others except two he got through with moderate success. Ordinarily failure to pass examinations would not have plunged Biff—whose real name, seldom heard, was Theodore—in gloom. He had passed through that ordeal several times and never had lost weight or even appetite. Something depended on these examinations, however; something unusual and much to be desired, so "Biff" was disheartened.

His uncle did not know the fatal truth yet—no one knew it except Biff and his teacher—but before night it would have to be revealed. Biff would rather have taken medicine than face his uncle with the confession he had to make.

"Why couldn't the teacher have let me through" he groaned. "It wouldn't have hurt him any." Biff kicked spitefully at his unoffending dog, lying at his feet. Leo yelped in surprise. "Oh, I didn't mean it, old fellow," said Biff, patting him repentantly. Leo licked his hand as if to say, "It doesn't matter."

"But I'm so miserable," Biff confided to his dog. "I did want to pass those old examinations and go sailing around the world this summer. Now I've got to buckle down to work in an office all summer."

Biff did not come to the dinner table that evening. "He says he is ill," reported his mother, "and I am sure he looks it. I am afraid he is going to have some sort of a fever."

"H'm," said his uncle. "Did he pass his examinations?"

"Oh, I did not ask him, he seemed so wretched."

Biff ate the food his mother brought him, but as soon as he had finished eating he lay down on his bed and groaned.

"I think I had better send for the doctor," said his mother, anxiously.

"No, don't do that; I'll be better in the morning," protested Biff.

After his mother had gone, saying, "Good-night, Theodore," as she did when she felt worried about him or was angry, Biff lay tossing about in the most uncomfortable manner.

His uncle had promised to send him on a merchant vessel that was going to touch at many foreign ports if he passed his final examinations. An agent of his uncle's firm was going to make the trip and Biff was to have accompanied him. Being born inland, everything connected with the sea had a strong fascination for Biff, and he longed to get out into the world and see things.

"If you don't pass," his uncle had said, grimly, "you will stay at home and work in my office. You will have to study, too, so that you can pass those examinations in September." And Mr. Ellison always kept his word.

Biff had tried to study, but a lethargy had seemed to enwrap him as the warm spring days passed by, and things would not stay in his head. He felt himself drifting to defeat, but had some sort of a vain hope that something would miraculously save him at the eleventh hour. No miracle had been wrought, however, and Biff had sunk under the weight of historical dates and facts, and complicated and meaningless rules of rhetoric.

About 10 o'clock Biff jumped out of bed. "I can't stand this," he exclaimed, and began to get into his clothes. He climbed out on the piazza roof and slid down a column to the ground. Leo came around and gamboled joyously when he saw his master starting for a walk.

Biff thrust his hands deep into his pockets and walked on gloomily. It was a pleasant night, however, and in spite of himself Biff could not help feeling a little more enheartened as he went on.

He sat down on a stone wall a long way from home and began to whistle softly.

"Pshaw! If I can't go I can't, and that's all there is to it," he exclaimed, and Leo wagged his tail in assent.

Just then Biff's eyes wandered to a light shining through the bushes almost directly across the road. "Professor Wallace is up yet," he said, mechanically; then he stood up and stared hard at the light. "Yes, sir, I'll do it; he can't any more than refuse."

Across the road and at the little gate stood Biff, Leo trotting at his heels. A moment later Biff knocked at the front door of the house where his teacher, Mr. Wallace, lived. He did not like to arouse the household by ringing the bell at that time of night, and he saw that the teacher was in the front room within hearing of a knock.

A moment later Mr. Wallace stood at the door peering out into the darkness. Biff felt like running, but screwing up his courage he said: "Good evening, Professor Wallace, I wanted to see you about something."

"Why, it's Theodore Ellison," exclaimed the teacher in surprise. "Nothing wrong, is there? Come right in."

"Have a cracker?" said he, hospitably, pushing a plate of crackers toward Biff when they were seated in the library.

"I suppose you think it's queer, my coming here this time of night, but"—

"Oh, that's all right. I'm glad to see you."

"You see I'm not smart like some boys," Biff blurted out, after a painful pause. "I can see through mathematics and things like that, where there's something to be done, but history and grammar and that sort of thing floor me."

"Yes, I see they did in your examinations," replied Mr. Wallace, drily.

"I know I was all kinds of a dub, and I did want to get through dreadfully."

"Didn't begin in time."

"I suppose there's nothing to be done now?"

"Hardly before fall."

"You couldn't pass me if I made it up during the summer?"

"Pass you in advance? Credit you for your good intentions?"

"Something like that," assented Biff, seriously. "You see my uncle promised me a long voyage if I passed, and I thought if I gave you my word of honor that I would study hard on board the ship and mail you the answers to any questions you make out from some port abroad, you might do it. I would be fair and never look at the questions before I sat down to answer them, or look in a book while I was writing the answers. You could trust me, couldn't you?"

"You are not a brilliant boy, but I never have known you to lie or deceive in any way."

"And you could give me twice as many questions as I had this time, so that would help to make it fair," suggested Biff.

"It's an unusual proposition. Why don't you wait and take the examinations in September, when you get back?"

"But my uncle wouldn't let me go."

"I see. You want me to tell him that you have passed when you haven't?"

"I want you to pass me on my promise to work, and I want to tell my uncle that you have passed me. That isn't dishonest, is it?"

"Perhaps not, although it certainly is irregular," replied Mr. Wallace, with a smile. "But I'll do it. Have you your card with you? All right, I'll fix it. Here you are passed in everything. You will see I have marked you simply 'passed' in those two branches. If you do better than that it will be so much glory wasted."

"Thank you so much," said Biff, with a sigh of great relief. "When will you have my examination questions ready for me?"

"When do you sail?"

"The last week in June."

"I will hand them to you before that time."

"Sealed, please."

"Good night, and thank you again."

"Don't mention it. Good night."

Biff ran all the way home, and got back to his room by the same way he had left it. In a twinkling he was in bed, and almost immediately he fell asleep.

"How is my boy this morning?" he heard his mother saying it seemed only a moment afterwards; but as the sun was shining in brightly it must have been hours since he shut his eyes.

"Billy, Say, is breakfast ready, and has Uncle Theodore gone? Good. Just give me three minutes, and I'll be at the breakfast-table."

"Recovered your health?" asked his uncle as he went in. "I was afraid it had been undermined by the stress of examinations. All through with them, aren't you?"

"Yes. Here is my report," answered Biff, showing his card.

"Not much margin," remarked Mr. Ellison, scrutinizing it carefully, "but I suppose you demand that I redeem my promise?"

"I want to go dreadfully."

"All right. I fancy it can be arranged."

When Biff was packing up to sail he put his rhetoric and history in his trunk.

"The dear boy is going to study. I'm afraid he will ruin his health," observed his mother when she saw them, and secretly removed them at the last moment.

For the first week Biff gave no thought to books. He had all he could do to live, and he almost wished he couldn't, but after he recovered from his terrible seasickness he dived into his trunk for his books. They weren't there. He turned everything out. They were not to be found. The sealing orders which Mr. Wallace had given him before sailing were there, but no books.

Biff remembered distinctly that he had put them in, yet he felt as if he were guilty of treason.

He would try to buy some books when they put into the first port, he thought. But there were few English-speaking persons there, and no English books as far as he could find out. At the next port he was forbidden to go out alone, and he hated to make the purchase when the agent was with him, lest it might lead to embarrassing questions.

One thing after another happened, and the cruise was more than half over before Biff was able to find his text books. Then they were not the ones he had been accustomed to, and it was almost like taking up a new subject to study them. It was very difficult, too, to study on shipboard; more so than in the schoolroom, and that never had been easy for Biff. However, when they were nearing the last port at which they were to stop before returning home, he had left it. In a twinkling he was in bed, and almost immediately he fell asleep.

"How is my boy this morning?" he heard his mother saying it seemed only a moment afterwards; but as the sun was shining in brightly it must have been hours since he shut his eyes.

He would try to buy some books when they put into the first port, he thought. But there were few English-speaking persons there, and no English books as far as he could find out. At the next port he was forbidden to go out alone, and he hated to make the purchase when the agent was with him, lest it might lead to embarrassing questions.

One thing after another happened, and the cruise was more than half over before Biff was able to find his text books. Then they were not the ones he had been accustomed to, and it was almost like taking up a new subject to study them. It was very difficult, too, to study on shipboard; more so than in the schoolroom, and that never had been easy for Biff. However, when they were nearing the last port at which they were to stop before returning home, he felt he must get at his examinations. He had studied as hard as he could, and was sure he could pass with at least fair credit. Of course, he wanted to do more.

Locking the books in his trunk, he sat down with paper before him and opened the sealed packet. Inside was a large sheet of paper, on which was written:

"Dear Theodore:

"I am confident that you can pass the examinations.

"Wishing you a pleasant voyage,

"Sincerely yours,

"EDWIN WALLACE."

"Well, I'll be bossed if he has asked me a question!" ejaculated the astonished Biff. "He is a white man. But I'll send him my papers, all the same, and Biff wrote all the rhetoric and history he knew, which was a good deal, and bankrupted himself mailing it to Mr. Wallace, along with a note explaining why he was so tardy about it.

Battle of the Mascots.

BY LEWIS RICHARDS.

The monk stood on the Dixie's deck.
Whence all but him had fled.

That is a paraphase that described the condition of affairs on the United States cruiser Dixie one Sunday not long ago. All kinds of seafaring men, as you may know, are fond of pets and set great store by them as mascots.

A monkey named Jocko and a goat called Mickey were rivals for the favor of the marines on board the Dixie. The men liked them both and petted and teased them according to their moods. There could only be one favorite, however, and both animals knew it. Sooner or later there would have to be a battle royal and whoever won would be acknowledged victor. Sunday was the day chosen for the fray and there was a large audience to bear witness to the mascots' powers.

Jocko was sitting aloft in the rigging meditating upon things in monkey land and looking down upon humans with critical gaze from a monkey altitude. Up the gang plank came Mickey. He felt in fine trim and had the air of saying, "Pity the member of the monkey tribe that gets in my way today."

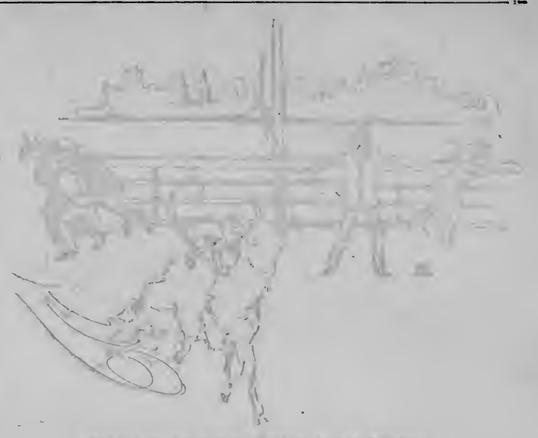
He did not see Jocko aloft in the rigging and was gazing with a vacant and superior expression about the deck when suddenly the watchful Jocko sprang upon his enemy's back. So unlooked for was the attack that Mickey had no chance to resist it. He shook himself angrily, but Jocko only dug his claws the deeper into Mickey's hide.

Poor Mickey scampered about the deck making frantic efforts to rid himself of his enemy, but Jocko was having the ride of his life and was in no hurry to let go.

The deck of the cruiser was crowded with visitors. Three of them were knocked overboard before they knew what was happening. As they splashed into the water a stout gentleman rushed up. "It's a shame," he began, but Mickey and Jocko bumped into him, but he never finished that sentence, for the next minute he was choking and sputtering in the water.

Two ships' apprentices tried to separate the rivals, but overboard they went too.

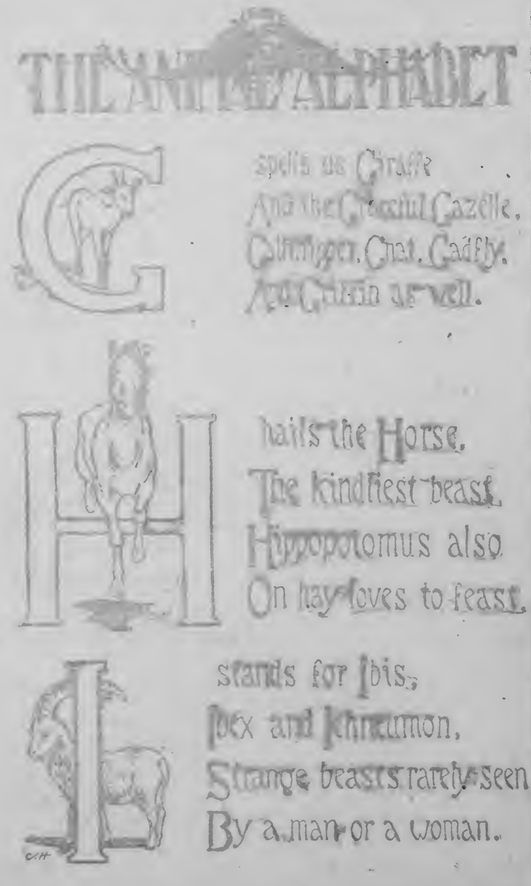
While the men were being rescued, Mickey at last got free of his unwelcome rider and retreated to a place of safety. Jocko climbed up the mast. He was well pleased with himself, but he had not had fun enough. He looked about to see what he could do next. Several young women stood just below him, wearing new spring hats. Jocko deftly reached down and snatched the flowers rapidly from one hat after the other. The girls screamed and Mickey looked out to see what was the matter. Jocko began to pelt him with the flowers and Mickey, utterly disconcerted by this method of attack, surrendered unconditionally and left Jocko acknowledged king of the mascots.



Mickey Tried to Rid Himself of the Monkey.

The Alphabetical Puzzle.

The letters needed on the blackboard to complete the alphabet will be found to spell three girls' names, one of three letters, one of four and one of five letters. The solution of last week's puzzle was "Jo, Guy, Dick, Harry."



The Little Leas' Packing Up.

ELEANOR McCARTHY.

The little Leas were making ready to go away for the summer. They had been "over the border" to say good-by to the Sickersells, and were so busy putting everything in order that they were in a perpetual buzzle and bustle of affairs.

The question of what they were to take with them was an absorbing one. Mrs. Lea and Norah were kept busy saying "Yes, you may take your best white frock." "No, of course, you can't take your dolls' house," and things like that. The three little Leas were anxious to be helpful, and they kept fetching and carrying things to be put in boxes and trunks with great energy and persistence, but so often they brought the wrong things that at last Mrs. Lea said, "Do run away and play, children."

"What shall we play?" asked Betty as they got outside.

"I don't want to play; let's sit down and talk," replied Polly.

"Yes, 'bout our travels," added Rosemary. "I don't 'member hardly anyfing 'bout when I went on a train before."

"No, you were too little," said Polly. "I remember all about it."

"So do I," affirmed Betty. "You go swifter than a bird, and the trees and houses and churches and everything run past you just as fast."

"Do they really run?" asked Rosemary.

Polly and Betty nodded.

"How do they get back, then?"

"They just run back."

"I'll be just like going to fairyland, won't it?"

"Yes, and strange things'll happen all the time," said Polly, with an air of wisdom and mystery.

"What kind of things?"

"Wait and see."

"I wonder if they're through packing yet," said Betty after a while. "Let's go and ask."

"Yes, children, I'm thankful to say your things are all packed at last," replied Mrs. Lea to their question, "and we've put in as many playthings as there was room for, so don't ask to have anything else put in."

Three trunks stood in the nursery, but they were not yet locked and strapped, "because," as Mrs. Lea said, "there might have been something forgotten that would have to be put in at the last minute."

"Now, that's so," said Polly to Betty and Rosemary, "and we'd better look around and see what's been forgotten."

"Well, here's my warship; I should think I'd want to take that," said Betty.

"And my new sewing machine. How am I going to make my doll's summer clothes, 'thout that?" said Polly.

"I want to take my red geranium along, 'cause I want to plant it," Betty remarked.

"I must take my dear little Kitty," Rosemary put in.

"Well," said Polly, "we had better put in the things that have been forgotten ourselves, and not trouble mother or Norah about it."

Open came the three trunks, although it took sometime to get them open, for the clasps were closed and they did not come open very easily. However, in time the lids of all three trunks stood open and the three little Leas stood looking into the trunks.

"Dear me," murmured Betty, "they seem terribly full."

"Yes; you can't get nuffing in mine," said Rosemary.

"Maybe there are some things in the trunks that we don't really need," suggested Polly.

"I don't like a comb, it pulls so," said Rosemary as she spied a comb in her top tray.

"I always hated this gingham dress," said Polly, pulling out a brown and white frock and putting it on the floor.

She also discarded some underclothing which she thought was superfluous, and Betty took out some shoes and her oldest jacket. Rosemary, in addition to the comb, sacrificed several cakes of soap, a box of pills and some shoes and stockings.

"Now we'll put these things in the closet, out of the way," said Polly.

That done they stuffed as many of their treasures as possible into the trunks. None of them seemed to be the right shape to fit in well, but Polly said, "We'll just make them fit," and they did.

Betty broke the red flower off her geranium, which was a pity; "but," she explained, "another one will grow when I plant it out."

The worst thing was to get Venus, the kitten, in. At first she thought it was a game and played all over. Then when she found that it was serious work she resisted strenuously, and Polly and Betty had to help Rosemary to hold her in and then get the lid down quickly before she could get caught. She got her tail pinched, and Rosemary's finger was caught, and everyone got scratched, but at last the lid was down with Venus inside.

They all three had to stand on Betty's trunk and jump up and down to make it shut, and even then it did not come down quite as far as it ought to have done.

Just before Polly went to put down the lid of her trunk they heard someone in the window laughing, and looking around they saw Mr. Timbobby.

"Going away?" he asked. "Away from all your old and dear friends. My, my this is sad. If I were built for tears I would shed them now. But no, I will not be so weak. I will go along. I see you are putting in a few last objects, and the very best always comes last, so in I go."

Before they could realize what he was about Mr. Timbobby popped himself into Polly's trunk, and in her surprise she let fall the lid which she had been holding in her hand. Try as they might they could not get it open again, and there was Mr. Timbobby locked in the trunk and ready to start on a journey with them.

"I don't want Mr. Timbobby to go," whimpered Rosemary.

"No, he always laughs at the wrong time, and he'll spoil everything," lamented Betty.

"And he'll be with us the whole summer long," groaned Polly.

"Oh, dear, I wish we hadn't opened the trunks!"

Just then Norah came in. "Tim for supper," she announced and began to put the white cloth on the little round table. "You'll have to be early to bed, for it's an early start you'll be afther makin' in the mornin'."

The three little Leas had very little conversation over their supper. They were ill at ease, and their gaze wandered frequently to the trunks.

"Thank heavens, that job's done," said Norah fervently, following their gaze.

"What's that noise?" she asked a minute later. "Mice, I do believe. What's the good of havin' cats an' dogs around if they don't keep down the mice? That's what I'd like to know."

"It isn't mice," said Rosemary.

"Maybe 'tisn't, but whatever 'tis 't sounds exactly as if it's in that trunk. Now, how in the world could anything get in there?"

Taking a brush cautiously in hand, Norah tiptoed toward the trunk, Polly, Betty and Rosemary looking on.

"Faith, an' it's in there," said Norah in a hoarse whisper.

Polly, Betty and Rosemary tiptoed behind her.

"Whist! I'm going to open it."

With face sternly set Norah opened the trunk with her left hand, the brush in her hand raised to strike when out jumped the enraged and terrified Venus sputtering and meowing.

"By all the powers, how did that imp of a cat get in there? Why this trunk is all mussed up. What's happened to it?"

"We just wanted to take some things with us that you forgot to pack," explained Rosemary.

"Well, if ye're not the worst children in the world!" ejaculated the righteously indignant Norah.

Opening Betty's trunk she saw the broken geranium and lifted her eyes and hands to Heaven. It was too much for such speech as it would be fit to use before the children.

Then she went to Polly's trunk. "It's locked itself," she exclaimed after vainly trying to open it. "I'll have to get the keys."

When she at last got it open out jumped Mr. Timbobby. With a wild shriek, Norah turned and fled. "It's the devil himself let loose," she cried to Mr. and Mrs. Lea as she passed them in the hall.

They went into the nursery to see three little girls standing by three open and badly disarranged trunks, but no sign of any such person as Norah had mentioned.

"Oh girlies, how could you, after I had worked so hard," cried Mrs. Lea, and Rosemary had hard work to comfort her.

"We'll put everything back lovely," the three little Leas assured her, but she refused their aid and sent them to bed feeling so penitent and sorry that it was at least ten minutes before they were asleep.

Mrs. Lea repacked the trunks and locked and strapped them.

"Now I hope they are ready for the journey," she said at last.

Out Jumped the Enraged and Terrified Venus, Sputtering and Meowing.
